RESERVOIR TO BE GIVEN A CLEANING

City Officials Issue Warning About Use of Too Much Water

For the first time in several years the city reservoir will be cleaned out during the present week-end City officials will start the work early Saturday morning, and they hope to have it completed by nightfall. It may take a day or so longer to complete the job, but it is planned to try and have the work finished as quickly as possible

While the reserve supply of the city is off, the city officials will run the spring pipe line directly into the city mains, but during all of the work the reserve supply will be off, and it is for this reason that city officials are urging everyone to be sparing in the use of water Saturday, Sunday, and possibly Monday

Do not sprinkle and do not let the water run any longer than absolutely necessary, urges Ray Valkenburgh, chairman of the water committee of the village commission.

It has been a number of years since the reservoir has been cleaned. It is possible that the entire interior will be given a coat of concrete The base of the reservoir is now filled with stone and clay If this is done then the water will be of short rations for a day or so longer.

When the water is turned back into the reservoir it is possible that there might be a bit of dirt that will get into the water mains and it has been urged that for the protection of water users it might be a good idea to boil the water for the first two or three days of next week.

Not only do the city officials plan to clean out the reservoir and put it in first class condition, but there will be erected around it a new tight fence so that nothing can get within the space around the reservoir

NO BAND STAND WILL BE BUILT BY THE VILLAGE

Officials Opposed to Plan to Put Structure Up in Park

The city officials see no reason why the village should go to the expense of erecting a bandstand in Central park for the series of concerts that will be given by the Northville-School Community band

At Monday night's meeting it was made known that the suggestion had been made that a bandstand be erected in the park The concerts that are to be given during the summer by the school band will be in the park this year, instead of on the streets as last year, and it is for this reason that the request was made

However Mayor Charles Filkins and other members of the commission pointed out that the park could be exceptionally well lighted, that there were many excellent places for chairs to be placed on the ground, and because of the amphitheatre-like location of the park that a bandstand was unnecessary. Not only that but it will serve to mar the general favorable appearance of the park, said officials

In many of the big cities of the state concerts are given exactly under similar conditions as now prevail in Northville One of the larger cities in the western part of the state, said one, had just recently taken down a bandstand that had stood in the park for years

When concerts are given the players are seated in chairs under well lighted sections of the park, or in some cases, a big truck is fitted up with seats for the musicians

At any rate the city does not figure that this is a good year to take funds from the village treasury to erect a bandstand that would cost between $1,500 and $3,000.

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS PROGRAM BY REAL SINGERS

Sherrill Ambler Brings to Northville Popular Stage Singers

Members of the Northville Exchange club were pleasantly entertained a week ago Wednesday noon by the five College Freshmen, who are appearing on the stage at the Grand Reviera this week.

Through the efforts of President Sherrill Ambler, his brother-in-law, Pierre Kenyon, a member of the Freshman Singers was persuaded to come to Northville Wedensday noon with the other members of the group and present the program to the club. It was one of the best musical programs that the luncheon club has ever had, and the college boys who are touring America, gave a splendid recital. The members of the Freshman Singers are Mr MacGee, Mr. Baer, Mr. Copuck, Mr. Bodwell and Mr Kenyon.

E E Brown of Ann Arbor, was in Northville for a brief visit with his many friends, Wednesday.

OVER 40 ARE ATTENDING SCHOOL NOW

Summer Term Opens with A Good Number of Registrations

Northville's first experiment with a summer school term started Monday, with considerably over 40 children taking the work that has been outlined for them. Classes in arithmetic and English only are being conducted

It is the hope of school officials by conducting summer school work to relieve the congestion of some of the grades. A number of the students who are taking summer school work were out some portion of the winter term due to sickness. Others who are attending the summer classes desire to improve their standings so they will be able to advance with the class to which they rightly belong

Some of the children are attending for the purpose of improving their school work and attendance is in no way required.

The action of the school board in establishing the summer school is generally regarded with considerable favor Its cost is trifling indeed, as to the general benefits secured, it is pointed out by those who have looked into the nature of the work being done.

The school will continue until about August first. Mrs Cooke is in charge of the classes, which are held during the forenoon.

ROK-KAY GARDENS IN FULL BLOOM

Do you wish to see a beautiful sight?

Just get into your car and go out West Main street, turn south on Clement road, stop in front of the Rok-Kay gardens and see the big fields of beautiful blossoms that prevail there It is a sight worth seeing—one that both Mr and Mrs C. M. Chase can rightly be proud of

INDIANA CONCERN GETS BIG CONTRACT

R L Fifer of the Fifer Construction company of Bloomington, Ind was a guest at the meeting of the Northville Exchange club Wednesday noon He is a member of the Bloomington club Mr Fifer's company has just secured the contract for the erection of the big mausoleum that will be constructed on the new Oakland Memorial, just north of Novi Because of the immense size of the structure the company expects to have its workmen in this vicinity for practically a year

The cooking classes of the Detroit Edison company at the Methodist church house have been more successful than anticipated There has been a large attendance each day All of the cooking was done on the new electric range, which the company has donated to the ladies of the church

Two ball games have been scheduled for the Fourth There will be one in the forenoon between the speedy Dehoco team and the Kelloggs of Battle Creek These teams a few days ago played an even break in Northville Capt. Dennston, who is always anxious to do something for Northville, has kindly consented to have the forenoon game played in Northville Then in the afternoon the Northville boys will play Plymouth and that always means big crowd from Plymouth You can bet that this will be a hot game.

VILLAGE TO FIX UP CHEMICAL FOR COUNTRY SERVICE

Will Give Farmers Protection—Hope to Get New Truck

At Monday night's meeting of the village commission it was finally decided to place the old fire truck in such a condition that it can be used for country runs. The truck will be made into a chemical wagon and will carry only such equipment as can be used during the early stages of a fire

Mayor Filkins and other commissioners pointed out that the village was going to this expense at present so that fire protection could be given to residents living outside the village limits but that in return they expected the township next spring to go in with the village and provide a real fire fighting truck for both village and country use.

Farmers and other residents near Northville have long had and still continue to have fire protection from the village In the past it has been customary for the village to pay it all Sometime ago a plan was adopted whereby anyone living outside and calling the department should pay for all the expense of the call. Now the fire extension has been given to all of Northville township, and this is what the village has decided to prepare for at once, waiting until next year to go in with the township for the purchase of a big truck.

It's Gone!

Remember that big ash pile that decorated the northwest corner of the beautiful village park? Remember—it stood right back of the fire station, with a nice lot of tipe-um cans on top, with some old floor covering added, just to lend a little touch of color to the pile?

Well folks, IT'S GONE!

No one knows where—but it's gone

And Mayor Charles Filkins declared at Monday night's commission meeting no one would ever again get a chance to say anything about the village ash pile.

SCOUTS ATTEND CHURCH IN BODY

The Boy Scouts Troop, No 107 from an East Jefferson church, Detroit, attended the Methodist services Sunday morning

It was quite appropriate that the boys were present because it was Father's Day.

Rev. William Richards read the attractive story of the reunion of the sons of Jacob at the Egyptian court where Joseph had landed as a result of the treachery of the other eleven brothers. His parting orders were, "Bring your father and come." Rev Richards pictured the aged Hebrew sheikhas he heard the good news that Joseph was really alive and wanted to see his father once more He brought out the fact that Joseph was not ashamed to have the old mane with him in the palace.

Mr Richads urged the boys never to be ashamed of their fathers and told them that most fathers took pride in what their boys achieved

The Boy Scout troop of the Jefferson avenue M E church of Detroit came to Northville last Saturday pitched camp on Clement road and spent a very enjoyable two days in this vicinity The manly youngsters were welcome visitors in the neighborhood. The camp was conducted strictly according to Scout regulations

DEHOCOES WIN ONE, LOSE ONE AT BATTLE CREEK

Prison Farmers Get a Bump in Final Game in Foodtown

The Dehoco team journeyed to Battle Creek and engaged the fast Kelloggs of that city in a two-game series Saturday and Sunday Saturday's game was won by Dehoco 10 to 7 but they lost Sunday's battle 7 to 2

Kellogg made Dehoco a gift of the first game mostly through the erratic pitching of Katz who walked four men in the third forcing in one run and setting the stage for four more that followed Again in the eighth Dehoco scored ten runs off two hits, two walks and three errors Dehoco not wishing to be outdone in the matter of generosity, good to return the game to Kellogg when they permitted them to score six runs on three hits, and four walks in the fifth However one of these hits was by Hammond for four bases, and as two men were on at the time it was for three runs

Smith, for Dehoco was the battling star after getting two singles and three official trip to the plate while Denhamm must be called the hitless wonder. Although Eddie actually carried a bat to the plate five times, he is only charged with one time at bat He walked three terrified times and twice was hit by pitched balls, thereby being credited with being on base three times without a hit

Hammond with a single and home run and Belle with two singles collected half of the hits for Kellogs

Sundays encounter was a much better ball game, even though Dehoco was on the losing end Hammond, Kellog's backstop was the Babe Ruth of the day, getting two home runs and a single in four times up Bayne with a triple and single and Hiene with two singles, also helped Kellogs materially

Destefano with two singles in four times at bat, Dennston with two singles and a base on balls done their best to make Dehoco's effort a winning one However, as Hammond's hits scored five runs it looked like too much Hammond

SIDEWALKS TO BE BUILT ALONG OAKLAND-ROUGE

Property Owners Win in Their Effort for Improvement

The urgent appeal of residents of Rouge and Oakland avenue for the construction of sidewalks along those streets has been granted by members of the village commission. It will be probably some weeks before the work can be started, as the charter provides specified times for serving proper notices and a bit of additional time is generally required.

The residents of these streets have been anxious to have mail delivered to them, and by having sidewalks constructed they can be assured of regular mail delivery all of the year

Not only is there a need of the walks to secure mail service, but residents along these streets say at times of the year because of the mud and water, it is quite difficult for children attending school to get over some places without getting wet. The improvement has been needed for sometime, and the favorable action of the commission will be good news to Rouge and Oakland avenue residents.

Novi's new baseball team will on Sunday play the speedy Pontiac aggregation at Novi Last Sunday the Novi players met defeat in Detroit, when they tried to take into camp the A C Club players

Northville friends will greatly regret the departure of Rev Pries and his family

REV J W. PRIEST

HERE IS ANOTHER JOB FOR NORTHVILLE!

Everyone feels pretty good in Northville over the success of several local projects that have been advanced during the past year or so

All are pleased with the neat, trim, general clean appearances of the city All are delighted with the transformation that has taken place during the past two years at Fairbrook Springs

The Rotary Yard and Garden contest is in full blast—and it is a much greater success than had been anticipated

Here's a new job

It's not a big one—but it is one that will give Northville unlimited favorable advertising—and it will serve thousands and thousands of people every year

The Record does not care whether Rotarians Exchangites Civic officials or what group takes it up but it's a job that could be done within the next month

During the time that will be required to work out the problem and secure permission from the proper authorities to do what we hope to accomplish we can sort of formulate in our own mind a plan for this improvement

Here is our suggestion!

On Plymouth avenue just as you will turn on the new paved highway to come into the village of Northville directly west of the Pere Marquette depot is one of the finest springs of running water in the state of Michigan

The Record editor was down the other day looking over the wonderfully fine improvement being made by the Wayne County Road Commission at this point

If you will go down to this place you will note that the new paving that will carry the vast majority of incoming Northville traffic is probably not more than 25 or 30 feet from one of the most wonderful flowing springs in Michigan.

The spring is on the property of the Pere Marquette railroad company

A big two-inch stream of unexcelled water, cold as ice and for years run to waste

Time and again the Pere Marquette railroad officials have shown a high grade public spirit in more ways than one

We wonder if it would be a wonderful thing for Northville to gather up and secure from the Pere Marquette railroad a deed to the spring or have the railroad give to the community a right to turn this flowing water into one of the biggest and purest drinking fountains in the state?

At an exceedingly small expense Northville could turn what is now an unattractive spot into another beauty spot with a great drinking fountain that could serve thousands and thousands of people who travel from Detroit out to beautiful No. Village every day of the year

A third fit between the village and the proposed [illegible] to be made [illegible] and the county road commission [illegible] to do.

After the fill is made we could do no [illegible] wide side wall not a solid lab of concrete but one of those granite slabs sawed [illegible] to the spring

And then

If we can induce someone with a little money to give it to the community that should be named by someone to look after this job we could have a sort of fountain there with the big two inch stream of water flowing from it

For a background some shrubs and flowers could be planted—and then down the street a ways an attractive looking sign could be erected inviting visitors to stop and drink fresh of Northville's pure water!

That's the sort of advertising that pays a community in royal dividends

And there isn't another town in the entire middle west possessing such an opportunity to fix up its front door so beautifully as Northville!

BIG CROWDS ARE COMING FOR THE 4th CELEBRATION

According to Joseph Blake, chairman of the general committee, that has in charge arrangements for the biggest Fourth of July celebration Northville or any other surrounding town ever had there will be here that day one of the biggest crowds that Northville ever entertained.

Mr. Blake has just covered the entire territory surrounding Northville, and he finds that there is an exceptional lot of interest in the Northville celebration

"I expect to see big crowds here from as far away as Howell, Milford, Carleton, and even Ypsilanti. Of course all of the places nearer by will have big crowds here, and then we can expect hundreds from Detroit The ball games, the races and the boxing contests, as well as all the other events we have scheduled are creating all kinds of favorable comment," states Mr. Blake.

"Of course in not knowing just how many will come, it is difficult to make all of our plans to provide eating places for them, but I know that the restaurants will be filled to overflowing that day. Wherever I have gone everyone has expressed an interest in the celebration Then they say too that when Northville pulls off something, it is always a big success. That's why we are working so hard to live up to the reputation we have.

"The seven horse running races will bring hundreds of prominent Birmingham and other places. Dr. folks to town from Grosse Pointe. Burkart tells me that there is a lot of interest in the races

Of course the whole day is so full of different events of al kinds that there will be plenty for all to do and see It's going to be a great day, there is no question about that," said the chairman yesterday

AMBLER BUYS PROPERTY OF OLD BELL CO.

Secures Possession of All the Real Estate—Will Push Business

Through a transaction completed Wedensday afternoon, the holdings of the American Bell & Foundry company, became the property of Sherrill Ambler. The deal gives to Mr Ambler nearly four and one-half acres of ground within the factory district of Northville, with factory and foundry buildings that cover over an acre of floor space.

It is his intentions to continue the manufacture of the Bell furnace and to build up as fast as possible the furnace end of the business, as well as the casting Because of the immense size of the foundry it is possible for him to take on a large amount of jobbing work which he expects to do now that the property settlement has been made.

The purchase was made from the trustees of the American Bell, a manufacturing concern that was organized in Northville some thirty years ago and prospered over a long period of years. With the decline of the bell business and other changes in business, the affairs of the company became involved, resulting in the sale that was consummated Wedensday.

Mr Ambler has had a long experience in business and was for many years connected with the Dodge Brothers in Detroit before coming out to Northville. There is no question but what he will be able eventually to develop the business which will be known in the future as the Ambler Furnace & Foundry Works, into one of the institutions of the community.

JUNIOR CHOIR OF M.E. CHURCH HAS ITS FIRST OUTING

Youthful Singers Taken to Big Detroit Zoo Last Monday

Eighteen months ago Rev. William Ketchum organized what is termed the Junior choir, a body of young people from homes where parents are interested, to attend the morning service Their place is in the west aisle of the church auditorium It has been surprising the interest that has been taken in this new activity by the young people

They are adorned with surplices and sing the processional hymn at the opening service, marching up the aisle preceded by the flag of our country the Stars and Stripes, with the Christian flag the emblem of Christianity

These young people are heard taking part in the service without any special training outside what they observe in their assembling with the congregation They have a special part in the singing of the children's hymn before the sermon. Because of this interest in the singing on their part, the pastor took them for an outing to the Detroit zoological gardens on the Ten Mile road and Woodward avenue on Monday This was a happy occasion for them and an education as they saw birds and animals of every clime.

Thanks are due to Schrader Bros who kindly loaned their commodious truck which was a novelty for the occasion. Also Mrs. Ida Cook and Mrs Elmer Games for their cars. The safe ingenuity in driving the truck was due to W. A Parmenter, bringing back his precious cargo in safety to Northville Methodist Episcopal church in the early evening All 44 children had a good time.

EXCESS WATER IS CAUSE OF LARGE SEWER FLOWAGE

Mayor Advises Clerk to Write to Lansing and Point Out Facts

At Monday night's meeting of the village commission, following a discussion of the city sewage system, Mayor Charles Filkins ordered the clerk to write a letter to the health department at Lansing advising that department that the Northville sewage sysem carried a far greater percentage of water than the average sewer system in the state

The department recently informed the village officials that a greater percentage of water was running through the disposal system than its capacity provided. The department figured that there was as much refuse in the water as in most sewer systems in places the size of Northville

The condition is entirely different here because of the fact, city officials point out, that a large amount of clear spring water is run into the sewage system at different places in order to get rid of the water At least a half dozen good size springs in the town flow directly into the sewer system, carrying clear water to the disposal tanks In addition to all the spring water the entire over-supply of the local ice manufacturing plant goes into the sewer system instead of into the storm sewer. It is this excess water which has given the state department an impression that the capacity of the plant is not sufficiently large to care for the local sewer system

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS REPORTS

Members of the Exchange club heard reports of the state convention from Dr. E. B. Cavell and D B Bunn who were delegates at Port Huron. The convention was one of the largest that the organization has ever held and the city of Port Huron did their utmost to entertain the delegates in proper manner. The program included everything from golf to speed boat riding on Lake Huron.

President Sherrill Ambler and Elmer Smith were selected to attend a dinner meeting of representatives of all clubs of the metropolitan area in Detroit Friday night.

Club members were pleasantly surprised to have as their guest Wednesday noon, Robert Brown, former Detroit Edison manager of Northville and founder and charter member of the Exchange club in this city

At the next Wednesday meeting the annual election of officers will be held. The present officers are. Sherrill Ambler, president; John Kalbfleisch, first vice president, Lewis Stewart, second vice president; Dr E B. Cavell, third vice president and William Richards secretary.

Mrs Earl Moyer has been taken to the hospital for an operation.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY JUNE 21, 1929

A GOOD JOB

Fortunate indeed for Wayne county is it that the best road commissioner of any of the great counties of the country is its own. The highway development in this part of the state where there is probably more automobile travel than in any other part of the world, is proceeding less than amazing. The members of the commission and its chief engineer have had foresight enough and courage enough to go ahead and do things when they should be done and in the way that they should be done. Last week the Record published an article written by Chairman Edward Hines, which told briefly of the steps being taken to protect a careless public from its own carelessness. How many lives have been saved by the commission is impossible to estimate but you can rest assured that the percentage, according to population, of grade crossing fatalities in Wayne county is far less than in any other county of the country.

Northville is just now the center of considerable activity on the part of the commission. The way it has solved the travel congestion of the Seven Mile road is most satisfactory. Because of the location of two or three big county care institutions near Northville, there is a tremendous amount of traffic in addition to the regular travel. The commission has realized this fact and is now taking steps to relieve the congestion that has prevailed along the Seven Mile road.

There is just one more thing we would like to have the commission do. A year or so ago Mayor Charles Filmer talked to the engineer-manager of the commission relative to the construction of a comfort station at the foot of Main street where the commission is doing away with another hazard.

There is a wonderful location for such a comfort station as the road commission contemplates. Lying directly between the two stretches of highway is a small piece of ground that is owned by the village, covered with a number of big trees, could easily be converted into a beauty spot as well as a comfort station. Mr. Smith looked favorably upon it when it was pointed out that a very great portion of the travel that comes through Northville on its way to the Mayburn Sanatorium and the training school do not pass Cass Benton park, so the comfort station at that place does not really serve the traffic that congests the Seven Mile road. We would like to see this improvement make while the other work is being done.

Everyone in Northville is appreciative of what the commission is doing in this part of Wayne county. Again we say that Wayne county is fortunate indeed in having as its road commissioners the men who are doing such a splendid job.

WATER

It wasn't so long ago that Wellington Roberts, well known Northville engineer, suggested that the time had arrived for Northville to give some consideration to an additional water supply. He pointed out the fact that Northville had a good supply for the present a supply that would possibly take care of 5,000 or 6,000 more people than live here now. He also declared that when the community had this increased population its water supply would be taxed to the limit.

Mr. Roberts, like everybody else who follows conditions, knows that Northville is growing and it has always been found advisable in a growing community to prepare well for the future.

The question of the engineer made a year or so ago has been recalled by the emergency which just now faces the little city of Fenton. Fenton, like Northville, is a growing place. But unlike Northville, it has neglected to provide for additional water supply and is now face to face with a water shortage. In order to conserve the water Fenton has been forced to curtail the use of it by its consumers.

While Northville is not faced with any such emergency as Fenton, it would be no mistake for village officials to begin a serious study of the situation from now on. Then the time comes for an additional supply they will know just where and how to get it. Possibly Huntoon springs and the Kellogg springs to the northwest will provide more water than comes from them now. We should find out. If they will not then other sources should be secured so we will have the supply when it is needed. The year of 1929 is a good time to begin.

FARM RELIEF

Looking over the roster of the great state of Michigan is indeed an interesting task. Not so much because of the high salaries paid but because Michigan has never paid big salaries up until the last legislature convened. But it is interesting to note the names and addresses and to see how greedy people are to get on that pay-roll even though the salaries are not so attractive.

People on the states payroll come from everywhere, but it is doubtful if any county provides more urgent workers for this great commonwealth than does Eaton county. In proportion to its population Eaton county probably has as many people working for the state as any other county in the state including Wayne with its millions of people.

You will find farmers from Eaton county who are stenographers. Eaton county farmers will tell you all about the fine grades of paper used by the state. Eaton county farmers who will orate for hours on the technique of labor legislation—in fact it is difficult to find any clerkships or place requiring expert knowledge about this or that under the capitol dome at Lansing that is not filled from Eaton county.

Now comes a number of worthy and prominent citizens from that portion of the great state of Michigan seeking higher and more dignified public office.

Judge Bettes, the deputy attorney general, wants to be secretary of state. He resides in Eaton county. Frank D. Fitzgerald, the efficient business manager of the highway department has for many years had a long eye for this same place. He lives in Eaton county. Bruce Lawrence, a Lansing banker but who lives in Eaton county, wants to be state treasurer. Doc Bradley of Eaton Rapids has always wanted something from the state, and he lives in Eaton county. In fact, if you carefully check down the state pay-roll you will find that nearly every person on it or seeking a place on it comes from Eaton county or at some time in some way has been tainted with Eaton county politics.

You have got to admit that Eaton county farmers know where they are at. While farmers in other parts of the state are howling for relief, Eaton county folks step out and get it. And they don't go beyond Lansing either.

THE SIX PER CENT

Under the above heading, the Grand Rapids Press publishes the following editorial:

Whenever a Boulder dam, a Mississippi waterway, or any other great Federal appropriation for a regional project comes along, it will be well to remember that more than 6 per cent of the income tax price of that improvement will be paid by Michigan taxpayers. There are 48 states, but Michigan pays more income taxes than any except New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania. It pays three times the average judging by the figures just released by the internal revenue bureau for the first nine months of this fiscal year.

Boulder dam, for instance, is to be a great California bonanza. Of the Federal income tax money raised in this local project, Michigan actually will supply more than California itself. If payments continue at the rate indicated by these figures, California's income tax payments in this nine month period were approximately $93,000,000 as against $104,000,000 for Michigan.

In Michigan, Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania people would appreciate that more than half the income tax cost of every improvement is coming out of their pockets, a pretty solid economy block might be formed at Washington to investigate local tax grabbing projects. As it is, congressmen from these states appear to be as easy as congressmen from states for which everything is coming in and comparatively little going out.

It is quite apparent that the Grand Rapids Press looks upon all public questions from the standpoint of the cash till just like it does its own business.

The Press in its discussion of this matter forgets entirely that there is anything else involved except money.

As a matter of fact the "great California bonanza" as the Press terms the Boulder dam legislation, was legislation that will provide ways and means to protect property and human lives. It was chiefly a flood protective measure and congress wisely saw to it that the dam which will provide protection for thousands of people will also pay for itself or more, it will earn from its power development. That's the part that the Press doesn't like apparently.

It is a difficult thing to imagine that the very patronizing Grand Rapids Press would regard human life and property as less important than six per cent. But if one should judge the Press on its "Six Per Cent" editorial there is no other conclusion that can rightly be reached.

FIGURES DON'T LIE

Here's a lot of statistical work that every reader of the Northville Record will delight in reading.

An Irishman working for a Dutchman asked for an increase in pay. The Dutchman replied: "If you are worth it I would be pleased to raise you. How many days in a year do you work?" "Why, 365 days in a year, you sleep 8 hours every day, which makes 122 days you sleep. Taken from 365 days, leaves 243. Now you have 8 hours recreation each day which makes 122 days taken from 243 days, leaves 121 days. We have 52 Sundays in a year which you have off, leaving you 69 days. You have 14 days vacation, take this off and you have 55 days left. You don't work Saturday afternoon, this makes 26 days off a year. Take this off and you have 29 days left. Now Pat, you allow 1½ hours for meals, which totals in a year 28 days. Take this off and you have 1 day left. I always give you St. Patrick's day off, so I ask you, Pat, are you entitled to a raise?"

Pat then answered: "Well, what have I been doing then?"

VACATION

Hundreds of Northville children like thousands of children all over the country this week start on their summer vacations. For the most of them it means a large amount of time at their disposal. To them we can simply say this—enjoy it to the fullest extent because in a few brief years, brief indeed, you will be face to face with the problems of the world starting to win for yourself a just portion of the necessities of life. When that time arrives you will find many heartaches indeed—and your path will not be filled with the joys that are yours now. We do not mean to say that there is not a lot of joy in the battle for a living, because there is but the time of real fun is right now. Enjoy it to the fullest extent by every legitimate means of pleasure that you can find.

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

AND THEY SAY THAT FIGURES DON'T LIE

"MR. DOOLEY" once said that the Irish must be shy on mathematicians cut that they excelled in figures. Without taking issue on the latter point of the statement I find evidence that there is in this story one of the rare birds who understand the science of figures.

Three men—two of them colored—had forded a narrow bayou, each in his great black mule. Their overloaded the mules somewhat and had to stop over to seven fractions a pound of watermelon weighed eight tons or cool enough to eat. Whilst he was on his vacation Sam Burke and Sven Jensen—how much alike they really are!

"There will be a lot of Burke to this for a bit of mathematics. If there are 7 fractions of 28 tons of coal we divide 28 by 7 which is 4 tons to a piece. Seven into 8 is 1 and 7 times 1 is 7, which makes 14."

He triumphantly exhibited his figures much with a stubby pencil on the back of a dime.

The figures were impressive but Sven was not satisfied for quite a different reason. "There was one of provin' that he declared. "You add 13 seven times and make it 91 and then you make it according to his own formula. Then you say that from the bottom of the 3 column he read up the map with a total of 21 and then down the column of 13 this way: 12, 13, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28. But it can't be announced with finality. Dyes see the figures to prove it."

This was Sven's exhibit:

"There is still some doubt in me mind," said Kelly. "Let me demonstrate in me own way. If ye multiply 13 by 7 and get 28, then 13 is right." He produced a bit of stubby pencil and soiled paper. "'Tis done in this way," he said. "Seven times 3 is 21; 7 times 1 is 7, which makes 28. 'Tis thus shown that 13 is the right figure and we're both right. Would ye see the figures?"

Kelly's figures in his own hand were displayed as follows:

"There is no more argument," the three agreed, as they delved in their pockets for tools to settle it.

WATER FOR FARM KITCHEN

There are farm water systems to suit every need and to fit every pocketbook. A $2 pitcher pump fastened to a bracket or shelf at the kitchen sink will draw water from a spring, cistern or well several hundred feet away if the water is not more than 10 to 20 feet below the pump. A force pump, which can be bought for about $5 will permit the use of an upstairs tank with one or more cold water faucets. The addition of an $8 range boiler provides both hot and cold water. Sixty to seventy dollars spent for an automatic electric pumping unit and pressure tank with a capacity of 3 or 4 gallons a minute, does away with the drudgery of hand pumping. This system has a pressure switch that automatically starts the pump when the pressure drops to 20 or 30 pounds and stops the pump when the pressure reaches 40 or 50 pounds.

Turkeys are not so domesticated as chickens and often lay their eggs in secluded spots. Hidden nests can be found by confining the turkey hens early in the morning after they come from the roosts and letting them out late in the afternoon when they will make straight for their nests. Sometimes turkeys will take to nests made for them out of boxes or barrels.

Parasites are insidious in their attacks and will rob the livestock owner quietly and without warning. They rarely cause quick death, but parasitized animals are unthrifty and in time become emaciated and die. Such cases should be taken in hand early. Call in a good veterinarian and, if necessary, have one of the worst animals killed and examined to find out the cause of the trouble.

WILL ASK NOVI WALLED LAKE ROAD BE PAVED AS "GAP"

Walled Lake Exchange Club is Backing This Important Project

Acting upon the suggestion of Max Hagelstine, supervisors from Royal Oak, and a member of the road committee, the Walled Lake Exchange club will circulate petitions to be presented to the board of supervisors at their June meeting, asking that the gap from the end of Maple road to Grand River road at Novi be paved.

Luther D. Allen, chairman of the Oakland County Road commission, and Isaac Bond, road commissioner, three members of the road committee of the board of supervisors, Chairman Bert J. Wardlow, C. A. Hamilton and Mr. Hagelstine, and Joseph A. Long and Rep. P. J. Miller, were invited to attend the meeting of the club on Tuesday to help them plan some definite action on the road.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the road and traffic, the manner of paving and the question of whether or not the four-mile stretch is a "gap."

In regard to the maintenance of county roads he said the cost averaged about $700 per mile. He also asked Rep. Miller about the constitutionality of the amendment to the law, and was told by Mr. Miller that it had been approved by numerous legal authorities in the state government.

Chairman Allen was doubtful if the four miles was really a "gap" as interpreted by law. He stated the road was one of the most dangerous and expensive roads to maintain in the county. He stated later that the proposed charge of 10 per cent on roads built under the amendment gap law would hardly pay for the spreading of the tax on the rolls.—Farmington Enterprise.

FEAST ENJOYED BY ROTARIANS AT EDISON EXPENSE

Members Also Hear Talk by Minister from Hazel Park

Thirty Rotarians, who are twice the amount of food that they should Monday noon, listened to a talk by Father Albert Graver of Hazel Park, on the essentials of square dealing in business. The Presbyterian ladies served a dinner that had been cooked by home demonstration representatives from the Detroit Edison company, using electric stoves for the work.

The Edison company conducted cooking classes in the Methodist church during the early part of the week and the dinner Monday noon was a part of the program given in connection with the classes. Roast leg of lamb, with all the fixings, then a delicious Michigan shortcake three times as big as the average shortcake, consisted of a part of the dinner.

The visiting clergyman declared that one to succeed in business must give quality product and must believe in the Divine Being.

It is pretty true that if you do something during the day that is questionable, something that you shouldn't do you will go home and toss in bed most of the night instead of sleeping soundly. How much difference that is to leave your place of business in the afternoon and go home feeling well satisfied with what you have done that day. It is really a consolation in itself to spend four hours of service in doing what you know is the right thing to do. It goes a long way to rid yourself of many of the worries of life, he said.

OVER THOUSAND VISIT TRAINING SCHOOL SUNDAY

Visitors Surprised by the Excellent Work of Children

Over 1000 people were guests of the Wayne County Training School at the children's day program given Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of the institution. Something like 250 automobiles were parked around the grounds and special buses from Detroit carried hundred of relatives and friends of the children to the school.

The visitors were highly delighted with the work of the children that was in evidence. Some of the products of every group in the school was on display. Dresses, fancy printed matter, useless nails, examples of fine needle work were in evidence in the array of articles that had been collected from the various classes for the visitors to see.

Following the visit to the auditorium where the main exhibit had been placed the visitors were taken by Dr. Robert Haskell and his assistants through the many buildings that comprise the school. The visitors expressed their pleasure and satisfaction with what they saw. The Wayne County Training school is regarded as one of the most progressive institutions of its kind in the country.

Edward H. Mills—He gave his Decoration day speech just like the Civil war veterans which is something like this: Well folks in the army like we were etc.

Dr. Howard Burkart—Buzzing to replace a patch owned on Fairbrook.

Mayor Charles Fukins—Looking around town to see what he can find to do to keep the "Gettup" thing to look like they ought to get the nerve to Ray Van Deerlough who thought he could show at the convention.

Harold White—When a [illegible] the [illegible] up and [illegible] up [illegible] school around [illegible] Butler's [illegible].

Fred Sayles—Drove out to Walled Lake where he had one of the good meals of his life. Mulberries and dewberries from high priced restaurants are opposed.

Joseph Blake—The Irish visitor spent the entire day trying to figure out how he could arrange a prize fight promotion.

Joseph Blake—The master of the watch making—looked over the remnants of the old Cole clock-watch shop to see if he could find something that might be of use in fixing the editor's watch.

The students thought, enough to give the wonderful bird display at the zoo.

Commencement exercises for the ten graduates were held last week Wednesday evening in the community room of the school. The first class to graduate from the new school were Marjorie Alice Atkinson, Mabel Marian Boone, Esther Fisher, Ruth Hammond, Marian Shunn and Joy Thompson. The address of welcome was given by Marjorie Atkinson, the history of the class was read by Joy Thompson who used the airplane as a type of conveyance which brought them safely through the years. Red and White, the class colors was given very acceptably by Mabel Boone, who also gave the class will, bequeathing rare sophomore valuables to those whom they may find, perhaps, learned to be in need of them. Marian Shunn in a little original story read the future destiny of the class in her class prophecy. Ruth Hammond, who seemed most fitted for the task, presented the gifts of the class. Music for the evening was furnished by the school orchestra. The address of the evening was given by the Rev. Ralph Atkins of Birmingham. In a very able manner he addressed the audience on "Values in Human Lives." In comparing values he said 833 feet and 4 inches on Woodward avenue is now valued at fifty-five million dollars or the amount of money that was paid for all of the United States west of the Mississippi river. He suggested that an industrial system that can make a billionaire and where one-third of one per cent of the population pay 95 per cent of the income tax and 82 per cent pay nothing there is something lacking. "Civilization does not value human lives," he said, and gave as his evidence that the great war with all its toll of human lives to satisfy the blood-thirsty war god. He closed by saying, "Human values come first and the home, school and church are three great institutions to bring this fact to a realization. We must enshrine human value as the greatest gift God gave to men." Presentation of diplomas by Supt. G. R. Culver closed the first year of work done in the new Novi school. All of the teachers are to return next year, except Miss Racher who will be succeeded by Miss Elsie Ruterbaugh of Morley.

Dorothy Tyler is visiting her aunt in Detroit.

Lawrence Nelson spent Sunday and Monday in Jackson, attending the high school graduation exercises.

EXCHANGITES ARE BACK FROM TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Schrader, Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Cavell, Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill Ambler, Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Bunn and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lovewell have returned from Port Huron, where they attended the annual state convention of the Michigan Exchange clubs. They drove over to Port Huron Sunday and remained until Tuesday. The Northville visitors say that the Exchangites of that place went out of the way to provide the visitors with a good time.

Rides on Lake St. Clair were taken in speed boats, a trip into the "wilds" of Canada, numerous luncheons for the ladies and a banquet formed the program for the visitors.

Leaflet 39, Eggs at Any Meal, is a free publication this spring by Agriculture, containing many good recipes and suggestions about egg cookery.

Margaret Bowman and daughter, Anna of Cadillac, were guests over Sunday of the latter's brother, Earl Bowman. Mrs. Bowman returned home Tuesday while Miss Anna remained for a longer visit.

SCHOOLS PRESENT DIPLOMAS TO 25 - COMMENCEMENT OVER

LARGE NUMBER ARE PRESENT

Programs Are Presented In Penniman-Allen Theatre

Last Friday brought to a close school days in Northville for 25 members of the 1929 senior class. Seated on the stage of the Penniman Allen theatre, arrayed in caps and gowns, the class made a colorful picture amid the huge baskets of roses that were placed before the footlights.

Gathered at the theatre to receive their last Northville instructions and honors, the graduating class made a most pleasing appearance to the hundreds of relatives and friends who were present to wish them well.

The program opened with an invocation by Rev. Frank P. Knowles, which was a message of good will and prosperity to the class as they stepped on the threshold of a new life. The invocation was followed by a pleasing piano solo given by Miss Rose Lefton.

R. H. Ameman, principal of the school, presented William G. Spencer, president of Hillsdale College, who gave the address of the evening. His subject, "A Game of Dominoes," brought the lesson to the graduates that if they would receive they must give.

Likening life to a game of dominoes, President Spencer brought out the fact that in playing the game the highest double leads, and unless you match it you lose. So as the class is assembled here tonight, are they not the high doubles of the school. Others have dropped by the roadside and it is to this class that we now pay tribute.

In life we play dominoes. If we fail to match others we lose. As an example, while walking down the streets of Buffalo I happened into a shoe store and noted several counters of shoes at an unreasonably low price so I inquired of the merchant the cause of this sacrifice. He informed me that some of the shoes on these counters sold for $10 and $12 but now they were out of style and he would be glad to realize anything to all from them in order to put his money again into circulation. So with the shoe merchant he must match the high double or lose.

Today we match pieces with others. Roosevelt, a great statesman, matched pieces with the western strong while he was introduced at political gatherings in that section as a rough rider. You as students have matched pieces with your books, your lessons and your teachers. You have been taught that in order to receive you must first give and place yourself or match yourself with others.

Your football team on the field is taught to give and the week before the biggest game they give more time and more hard work to their practice than at other periods of the season. Why do they do this, simply because the coach knows that when the two teams meet on the field of play that the team that can give the most is the team that will win the game. So in life we give pieces and the man that gives the most piece is the man that matches others and wins his game."

Following the address by President Spencer, Wayne VanDyne sang two beautiful songs. The class was presented their diplomas by Harry German, who gave them a last word of advice and encouragement from the Northville schools.

CLASS NIGHT

Almost every seat in the Penniman Allen theatre was filled for the class night program on last Thursday night. The members of the senior class who had a part on the program did exceptionally well in the parts they presented.

Ted Watts, president of the class, gave the address as the official representative of the class. The program opened with a march played by Miss Rose Lefton, followed by the invocation given by Rev. J. W. Priest.

The prayer of the pastor follows:

"Our Father, we thank Thee that Thou has taught us to call Thee by that blessed name, and we thank Thee that with more than the tenderness of an earthly father Thou art watching over everyone of us. We call upon Thee because we need Thee, we would acknowledge Thee in all our ways. In Thee we live and move and have our being.

"One has said,
"For what are men better than
sheep or goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If knowing God they lift not hands
of prayer,
Both for themselves and those who call them friends.

"We lift up hands of prayer for these young people who belong to our homes who have been trained in our schools. We pray that Thou will bless and help them.

"We pray that Thou will keep them from evil, and help them to walk in the ways of righteousness.

"We pray that they may count life a high and holy mission and may give themselves to it with unstinted devotion.

"We pray that they may realize that the self-centered life is never really successful, and may find the joy of life in serving their generation.

"Grant this blessing, we pray upon the exercises of this hour, bless those who take part tonight, bless we pray, in all the activities of commencement week.

"Bless the young people of this class as they go out into larger life and service. Bless them and make them a blessing.

"We ask in Jesus' Name."

The salutatory address by Miss Alvera Smith, the class history by Catherine Litsenberger, the "Giftatory" by Chester Tomaszewski, the class prophecy by Madeline Cole, the class will by Lois Brookman and the valedictory by Ethel Sterner comprised the speaking part of the program. Each student did remarkably well. Besides the class songs, Miss Ethel Garchow played a piano solo that pleased the big audience present.

CLASS HISTORY

(By Catherine Litsenberger)

Commencement has come as a climax to our high school days. Our lives as trees have reached maturity, the buds have blossomed. We realize that we are about to enter a broader field of life, and doing so, we look forward eagerly.

As we look back over four years of high school life, it seems only a brief time since September 1925. It was then we entered the assembly of Northville high school with forty-three members. Our faces wore vague expressions, and we were, to say the least, representatives of joyous and carefree youth. As freshmen we chose for our class officers: Harry Gunsweiler, president, Lois Brookman, vice president, and Marjorie Johnson, secretary and treasurer. Miss Hoag was class advisor.

During our first year we were asked to amuse our upper classmen by having "Freak Day." This event proved to be satisfactory to our superiors and likewise to ourselves.

We were very successful in mastering algebra and the other requirements. With the hope that our forty-three seeds would begin to develop into sturdy trees we looked forward to our sophomore year.

Upon returning to N. H. S. it was discovered that only thirty-five of those trees planted in the fall of '25 had withstood the storms of the year. These trees with the aid of friendly teachers and diligent study on their own part soon gained a firm foundation.

For class officers we chose Ted Watts, president; Allen Beard, vice president and Lois Brookman secretary and treasurer. Miss Oldaker was advisor.

Miss Harr and Miss Oldaker entertained us royally with a "kid" party in the gym. This helped to drive dull care away, and other ominous clouds which loomed up on the horizon.

The third year found us with five less. As the trees that become shriveled and dried by the scorching rays of the sun and the cold blasts of the winter, so these five were unable to hold their own against the hardships and had to face.

We organized under the direction of Miss Hawes, choosing as our officers: Rudolph Wevant, Betty Chargo and Gladys Ludwig.

Gradually the branches on the trees became stronger, offering enough in fact that along with our regular school curriculum we were able to have many parties. The greatest of all—the J-Hop—was held March 30th in a Garden of Roses, with music by Jean Goldkette's Ramblers.

The senior year came. Alas, only twenty-six remained to realize the fruition of their labors. Many of the trees were uprooted previous to our last year by the tornadoes of life.

Our last year officers were Ted Watts, Allen Beard and Marion Cousins. Mr. Cohn proved to be an enthusiastic and interested advisor. One class party was held—one which was unusual in its success. The Ghost Bird and the Senior Prom concluded a most successful and interesting year of activities.

We appreciate the influence our teachers made in giving us a broader view-point of life. Now our high school days are over. Twenty-five of the original forty-three are prepared to withstand the storm.

THE VALEDICTORY

(By Ethel Sterner)

Dear Friends: Our little boat stands at rest tonight at the bending of the stream.

The voyage of life is through many deep and unknown channels, with many windings and turnings that often make it hard for us to tell just what we have passed by and what we are yet to meet. It seems a long course to follow as we row through the waters, and often we are tempted to drift with the current whithersoever it may take us, but as we pause tonight and look back, how very short a distance we seem to have come after all—how close the banks appear to be. We stand tonight at the bend of the stream, between a happy past and an unknown future, have reached not the end but the commencement of our miles.

But as we pause here to consider the pleasant calmness of the waterripples through which we have so easily been roving we hear the noise of life's larger waters already calling us and we know that we must row ahead out of the peaceful hallow current of our young life into the deeper and roughers channels of active life.

Dear parents we cannot pass forever out of this quiet channel into the deeper waters awaiting us, without thanking you from the bottom of our hearts for the privilege of beginning this voyage of life on the breast of so clear and calm a stream. For these happy years our park has glided so smoothly along between the banks that we could reach over and gather the lilies through which we were guided, and were scarcely conscious of our own efforts in propelling our little craft on the stream. Our teachers have warned us with the most zealous zeal of the evil rocks and shoals or tangle of sea-weed so easy to be met within the broader channels of our onward course. We realize that by you dear parents have made the pathway for us our craft on the sea of life might have been adorned by many a blunder that might have therefore led to wreck or set even at the very beginning of our voyage and we want you to know how much we appreciate your loving thoughtfulness before we, tonight, sail onward through the deeper channels to the set by larger life awaiting us.

To our dear teachers we must also express our earnest thanks. Often and often, in the days to come when we are thrown more and more upon our own guidance and intuition, our minds will travel back to you, and we shall see how many times you have helped to steer our frail bark around this or that difficulty, till we shall long, I am sure, to return to the shelter and protection of your piloting. But you have given us both our chart and our compass, and as our boat glides out of the waters where you have been its guide so long, and your eyes, as I know they must, follow us on into the deeper channels ahead, may you ever see our blue and gray as signals of promise and grateful resolutions from the class that must never be afraid to show its colors, as we push out to perform our mission in the splendid sea of bigger opportunity.

To the Board of Education, I would extend the thanks of the class for the privileges we have enjoyed here. It is the spirit of school patriotism and loyalty that makes us feel that we have been well trained and carefully looked after, and naturally feel very grateful to those who have made it possible for us to come to dear old N. H. S.

Classmates, there's only one word more and the last one must be to you. We linger at the bend of the stream—the end of our course. We have paddled together through the school waves behind us, we have shared our pleasures, triumphs and disappointments for so long a time that we shall miss the old companionships more than we now realize. Some of us may work together through some of the larger deeper waters ahead, but for the most of us, I feel that it is indeed the parting word for most of us must row on alone into the deeper channels to come, wherever and into whatever they may lead. Let us as we part pledge ourselves to remember all the true and lofty aims that have been born in us in our work together here, and make our lives such as shall bring pride to our school, and cause our dear instructors, everyone of them, to be justly proud to remember that they had the task of teaching us how, at least to begin, to live. Let us as the billows of life force us apart keep our blue and gray, ever flying at the mast-head; and so face every duty of the unknown waters bravely and boldly, the principles of honor ever turning the pilot-wheel, as we sail to the success no graduate of this dear school can ever fail to win.

For now, our boat glides out between
The rocks that guard the shore
Bearing the Class of 29
To be a Class no more.
But looking forward with a smile
Of courage strong and high
Toward in that glad Afterwhile
We hope to say "Cool I Did"

HOW LONGEST DAY OF YEAR WAS SPENT BY NORTHVILLITES

A Bit of Inside Information About Several Well Known Folks

Here's how some of Northville's 400 are spending today, Friday, the longest day of the year.

Bruno Freydl—Watering the tucker box.

Harry German—Throwing a baseball for the 786 987 325 588th time.

Fred Lyke—Installing a new kind of furnace that doesn't require any kind of fuel to create heat.

Edward H. Lapham—Dodging among the pine stumps of northern Canada to keep from running over moose.

Fred J. Cochran—Feeding home grown angle worms to carp up in Carp lake.

Milo Johnson—Baiting the fish hook for Fred J. Cochran.

Sam Knapp—Showing the kids how they used to play baseball back in the days when they really played baseball.

Rev. William Richards—Watching the time chart to see where Isenglass and Wharland finish in the English derby.

Nelson J. Schrader—Just taking things nice and cool and easy—and tumbling off all the sights and strangers he had down in Cuba last winter—just sort of dreaming like you know about the bathing beaches of Florida and that part of the world the rest of the folks in Northville only read about.

Edward H. Mills—He gave his every day speech just like the Civil War veterans which is something like this: "Well folks in the army we did, etc."

Dr. Howard Burkart—Digging his potato patch over on Fairbrook.

Mayor Charles Elkins—Looking around town to see what he can find to fix up a bit. "Gotta fix things to look like they might be a town. He moved to Ann Arbor last fall who thought he could be looking at the new moon.

Harold White—When a gale blows without one of the old fashioned "strikes the hinge" of men to be blown up and down and be mad at. You can be the men next year shots and the longest day gets here and bass or pipe will be out in the Thayers fish pond.

Elmer Smith—Drove out to Howell, where he sat on the old fence rail split at butterflies and talked about high price of gasoline and applesauce.

Joseph Blake—The French waiter spent the entire day trying to figure out how he could train prize fight promoter.

Joseph Blake—The mastery of the watch tinkering—looked over the remnant of the old stone blacksmith shop to see if he could find anything that might be of use in fixing the editor's watch.

Ralph Horton—Worked from the time the sun came up in the morn and it went down at night trying to hook a gas engine to his garden cultivator.

Conrad Langfield—Fishing from the docks along the Detroit river.

Louis A. Stewart—Looking for 101 golf balls he lost the last time he roamed around the links.

Dayton Bunn—He looked from morning till night for another song for his airship.

John McCully—John left Northville just at daybreak and hoped by fast driving to reach Grand Rapids by dark. This is the same trip he claimed to have made recently in two hours and 50 minutes. He says it takes longer on long days.

Walt. Ware—Looking for cut nails down on East Main street.

Bert Stark—Trying to find a new patch of ginseng.

Frank Bradshaw—Spent the entire day kicking about the weather, wishing he was over in Kalamazoo and selling so much pop that the bottles became heated between the icebox and counter because of the speed with which he handled them.

Clifford Casterline—Stood all day in front of his gas and tire factory wishing the sun would get so hot it would blow up all the tires on all the automobiles that passed his place.

Clinton Wilber—Showed customers that came to the bank pictures he took up in Alaska two summers ago—sort of a way he had of cooling off the bank visitors.

Lucius Blake—He told his friends again and again the story of that part of his career when he hurled bean bags over the top of the Sand Lake elevator for a living.

Ed. Hinkley—Anounced to his friends that he had given up all hope of finding a way whereby he could trim Butch Balden on a trade. That's the explanation of Ed's crestfallen appearance these nice warm summer days.

Butch Balden—Ran around town all day with a big paper package under his arm trying to find another Ed. Hinkley.

Ed Hinkley—Miffilew H.

Ray Richardson—Training dogs to do fancy tricks, stay home at night and bark only when told to.

Commencement exercises for the eighth grade were held last Wednesday evening in the community room of the school. The first class to graduate from the new school included Marjorie Ann Atkinson, Mabel Marion Boone, Esther Fleeter, Ruth Hammond, Mariam Shann and Joy Thompson. The address of welcome was given by Marjorie Atkinson, the history of the class was read by Joy Thompson, who used the airplane as a type of conveyance which brought them safely through the years. "Red and White," the class colors, was given very decidedly by Mabel Boone, who also gave the class will, bequeathing rare sophomore valuables to those who they thought wisdom, perhaps, seemed to be in need of them. Mariam Shann in a little original story, read the future destiny of the class in her class prophecy. Ruth Hammond, who seemed most fitted for the task, presented the gifts of the class. Music for the evening was furnished by the school orchestra. The address of the evening was given by Rev. R. M. Atkins of Birmingham. In a very able manner he addressed the audience on "Values in Human Lives." In comparing values he said 338 feet and 4 inches on Woodward avenue is now valued at fifty-five million dollars or the amount of money that was paid for all of the United States west of the Mississippi river. He suggested that an industrial system that can make a billionaire and where one-third of one per cent of the population pay 95 per cent of the income tax and 82 per cent pay nothing there is something lacking. Civilization does not value human lives, he said, and gave as his evidence that the great war with all its toll of human lives to satisfy the blood-thirsty war god. He closed by saying, "Human values come first and the home, school and church are three great institutions to bring this fact to a realization. We must enshrine human value as the greatest gift God gave to men." Presentation of diplomas by Supt. G. R. Culver closed the first year of work done in the new Novi school. All of the teachers are to return next year except Miss Racher who will be succeeded by Miss Elsie Puterbaugh of Morley.

Dorothy Tyler is visiting her aunt in Detroit.

Laurence Nelson spent Sunday and Monday in Jackson, attending the high school graduation exercises.

SCHOOLS PRESENT DIPLOMAS TO 25 - COMMENCEMENT OVER

LARGE NUMBER ARE PRESENT

Programs Are Presented In Penniman-Allen Theatre

Last Friday brought to a close school days in Northville for 25 members of the 1929 senior class. Seated on the stage of the Penniman Allen theatre, arrayed in caps and gowns, the class made a colorful picture amid the huge baskets of roses that were placed before the footlights.

Gathered at the theatre to receive their last Northville instructions and honors, the graduating class made a most pleasing appearance to the hundreds of relatives and friends who were present to wish them well.

The program opened with an invocation by Rev. Frank P. Knowles, which was a message of good will and prosperity to the class as they stepped on the threshold of a new life. The invocation was followed by a pleasing piano solo given by Miss Rose Lefton.

R. H. Amerman, principal of the school, presented William G. Spencer, president of Hillsdale College, who gave the address of the evening. His subject, "A Game of Dominoes" brought the lesson to the graduates that if they would receive they must give.

Likening life to a game of dominoes President Spencer brought out the fact that in playing the game the highest double leads and unless you match it you lose. So as the class is assembled here tonight, are they not the high doubles of the school? Others have dropped by the roadside and it is to this class that we now pay tribute.

In life we play dominoes if we fail to match others we lose. As an example while walking down the streets of Buffalo I happened into a shoe store and noted several counters of shoes at an unreasonably low price so I inquired of the merchant the cause of this sacrifice. He informed me that one of the shoes on the counters sold for $10 and $12 but now they were out of style and he would be glad to realize anything at all from them in order to put his money again into circulation. So with the shoe merchant he must match the high double or lose.

Today we match pieces with others. Roosevelt, a great statesman matched pieces with the western states when he was introduced at political gatherings in that section as a rough rider. You as students have matched pieces with your books, your lessons and your teacher. You have been taught that in order to receive you must first give and place yourself or match yourself with others.

Your football team on the field is taught to give and the week before the biggest game they give more time and more hard work to their practice than at other periods of the season. Why do they do this? simply because the coach knows that when the two teams meet on the field of play that the team that can give the most is the team that will win the game. So in life we give pieces and the man that gives the most pieces is the man that matches others and wins his game.

Following the address by President Spencer, Wayne VanDyne sang two beautiful songs. The class was presented their diplomas by Harry German, who gave them a last word of advice and encouragement from the Northville schools.

CLASS NIGHT

Almost every seat in the Penniman Allen theatre was filled for the class night program on last Thursday night. The members of the senior class who had a part on the program did exceptionally well in the parts they presented.

Ted Watts, president of the class, gave the address as the official representative of the class. The program opened with a march played by Miss Rose Lefton followed by the invocation given by Rev. J. W. Priest.

The prayer of the pastor follows:

"Our Father, we thank Thee that Thou has taught us to call Thee by that blessed name and we thank Thee that with more than the tenderness of an earthly father Thou art watching over everyone of us. We call upon Thee because we need Thee, we would acknowledge Thee in all our ways. In Thee we live, and move and have our being.

One has said:

"For what are men better than sheep or goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain
If knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer,
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?"

"We lift up hands of prayer for those young people who belong to our homes who have been trained in our school. We pray that Thou will bless and help them.

"We pray that Thou will keep them from evil, and help them to walk in the ways of truth and righteousness.

"We pray that they may count life's high and holy mission and may give themselves to it with undivided devotion.

"We pray that they may realize that the self-centered life is never really happy, joyful and satisfied and the joy of life is found in high service.

"Guard by thy mighty power as we pass up on the exercises of the hour. Bless those who take part tonight, bless we pray in all the activities of commencement week.

"Bless the young people of this class as they go out into larger life and service. Bless them and make them a blessing.

"We ask in Jesus' Name."

The salutatory address by Miss Alvera Smith, the class history by Catherine Litsenberger, the "Gift-atory" by Chester Tomaszewski, the class prophecy by Madeline Cole, the class will by Lois Brookman and the valedictory by Ethel Sterner comprised the speaking part of the program. Each student did remarkably well. Besides the class songs, Miss Ethel Carchow played a piano solo that pleased the big audience present.

CLASS HISTORY

(By Catherine Litsenberger)

Commencement has come as a climax to our high school days. Our lives as trees have reached maturity; the buds have blossomed. We realize that we are about to enter a broader field of life, and doing so, we look forward eagerly. As we look back over four years of high school life, it seems only a brief time since September, 1925. It was then we entered the assembly of Northville high schol with forty-three members. Our faces wore vague expressions, and we were, to say the least, representatives of joyous and carefree youth. As freshmen we chose for our class officers, Harry Guntzviller, president; Lois Brookman, vice president, and Marjorie Johnson, secretary and treasurer. Miss Hoag was class advisor.

During our first year we were asked to amuse our upper classmen by having "Freak Day." This event proved to be satisfactory to our superiors and likewise to ourselves.

We were very successful in mastering algebra and the other requirements. With the hope that our forty-three seeds would begin to develop into sturdy trees, we looked forward to our sophomore year.

Upon returning to N. H. S. it was discovered that only thirty-five of those trees planted in the fall of '25 had withstood the storms of the year. These trees with the aid of friendly teachers and diligent study on their own part soon gained a firm foundation.

For class officers we chose Ted Watts president, Allen Beard, vice president, and Lois Brookman, secretary and treasurer. Miss Oldaker was advisor.

Miss Harr and Miss Oldaker entertained us royally with a "kid party" in the gym. This helped to drive dull care away and other ominous clouds which loomed up on the horizon.

The third year found us with five trees. As the trees that become shrivelled and dried by the torrid rays of the sun and the cold blasts of the winter so these five were unable to hold their own against the hardships they had to face.

We organized under the direction of Miss Hawes (Goodie) as our advisor. Robert Weyand, Betty Chargo and Gladys Ludwig were elected officers. Gradually the troubles of the trees became stronger enough to withstand the regular school curriculum we were able to have many parties. The greatest of all the J-Hop was held March 30th in a Garden of Roses, with music by Jean Goldkette's "Ramblers."

The senior year came. Alas, only twenty-six remained to realize the fruition of their labors. Many of the trees were uprooted previous to our last year by the tornadoes of life.

Our last year officers were Ted Watts, Allen Beard and Marion Cousins. Mr. Conn proved to be an enthusiastic and interested advisor. One class party was held—one which was unusual in its success. The Ghost Bird and the Senior Prom concluded a most successful and interesting year of activities.

We appreciate the influence our teachers made in giving us a broader viewpoint of life. Now our high school days are over. Twenty-five of the original forty-three are prepared to withstand the storm.

THE VALEDICTORY

(By Ethel Sterner)

Dear Friends: Our little boat stands at rest tonight at the bending of the stream.

The voyage of life is through many deep and unknown channels, with many windings and turnings that often make it hard for us to tell just what we have passed by, and what we are yet to meet. It seems a long course to follow, as we row through the waters, and often we are tempted to drift with the current whithersoever it may take us; but as we pause tonight and look back, how very short a distance we seem to have come after all—how close the banks appear to be. We stand tonight at the bend of the stream, between a happy past and an unknown future, have reached not the end but the commencement of our lives.

But as we pause here to consider the pleasant calmness of the waterways through which we have so easily been rowing we hear the noise of life's larger waters already calling us and we known that we must row ahead out of the peaceful shallow current of our young life into the deeper and roughers channels of active life.

Dear parents we cannot pass forever out of this quiet channel into the deeper waters awaiting us, without thanking you from the bottom of our hearts for the privilege of beginning this voyage of life on the breast of so clear and calm a stream. For these happy years our bark has glided so smoothly along between the banks that we could reach over and gather the lilies through which we were guided, and were scarcely conscious of our own efforts in propelling our little craft up the stream. Our teachers have warned us with the most zealous pains of the evil rocks and shoals in a sea of waters so sure to be met when the broader channels of our onward course. We realize that has you dear parents no more than this possible for us our barque of life might have been wrecked by many disasters and tossed by many a barrier that might have threatened to wreck our vessel even at the very beginning of our voyage and we want you to know how much we appreciate your loving thoughtfulness before we brought sail out into the deeper channel to the sea of larger life awaiting us.

To you dear teachers, we must also express our earnest thanks. Often and often, in the days to come when we are thrown more and more upon our own guidance and intuition, our minds will travel back to you, and we shall see how many times you have helped to steer our frail bark around this or that difficulty, till we shall long, I am sure, to return to the shelter and protection of your piloting. But you have given us both our chart and our compass, and as our boat glides out o the waters where you have been its guide so long, and your eyes, as I know they must, follow us on into the deeper channels ahead, may you ever see our blue and gray as signals of promise and grateful resolutions from the class that must never be afraid to show its colors, as we push out to perform our mission in the splendid sea of bigger opportunity.

To the Board of Education, I would extend the thanks of the class for the privileges we have enjoyed here. It is the spirit of school patriotism and loyalty that makes us feel that we have been well trained and carefully looked after and naturally feel very grateful to those who have made it possible for us to come to dear old N. H. S.

Classmates, there's only one word more and the last one must be to you. We linger at the bend of the stream—the end of ofa our course. We have paddled together through the school waves behind us, we have shared our pleasures, triumphs and disappointments for so long a time that we shall miss the old companionships more than we now realize. Some of us may work together through some of the larger deeper waters ahead, but for the most of us, I feel that it is indeed the parting word, for most of us must row forth alone unto the deeper channels to come wherever and into whatever they may lead. Let us as we part pledge ourselves to remember all the true and lofty aims that have been born in us in our work together here, and make our lives such as shall bring pride to our school and cause our dear instructors, everyone of them, to be justly proud to remember that they had the task of teaching us how at least to begin to live. Let us, as the billows of life force us apart, keep our blue and gray, ever flying at the mast-head, and so, face every duty of the unknown waters, bravely and boldly the principles of honor ever turning the pilot-wheel as we sail to the success no graduate of this dear school can ever fail to win.

For now our boat glides out between
The rocks that guard the shore,
Bearing the Class of '29
To be a Class no more.
But looking forward with a smile
Of courage strong and high,
To meet in that glad Afterwhile,
We say to all "Good-Bye."

STUDENT COUNCIL

The members of the Student Council are elected by popular vote. Membership in this organization is open to all the students enrolled in the ninth to the twelfth grades.

The purpose of this organization is to create greater efficiency in student activities, raise standards of scholarship, secure greater co-operation between students and faculty, and create a spirit of loyalty to the high school.

Miss Briggs acted as financial advisor and Mr. Amerman as sponsor.

The Council of '29 acted on many important business matters and proved very efficient.

The members of the Student Council are as follows: Mayor, Harley Wolfrom; treasurer, Ethel Sterner; clerk, Catherine Litsenberger; senior alderman, Irene Bennett; junior alderman, Dave Meinzinger; sophomore alderman, Margaret Norton; freshman alderman, Herbert Berendt; boys' athletic manager, Alfred Smith; girls' athletic manager, Marjorie Johnson; chief of police, Chester Tomaszewski.

THE T. M. B. CLUB

The T. M. B. club has now been organized for four successive years. This club started under the name of the "Cookoo Club," but soon changed to the T. M. B. club.

The club is known as the leading social club of the Northville high school. Many enjoyable parties and fetes have been given during the past year, and many more are expected in coming years.

The officers of the club are as follows: President, Ted Cavell; vice president, Lois Brookman; treasurer, Dave Meinzinger; secretary, Marion Hamilton.

There is one thing that we insist on and that is a prohibitive tariff on green beans with strings attached.

Owners of the New All-American are calling it America's finest medium-priced automobile

America's Great Debt to Alexander Hamilton

Without any question, it was Alexander Hamilton who laid the foundation for the material prosperity of the United States.

He was the founder of our whole financial system. As our first secretary of the treasury in President Washington's cabinet, Hamilton devised the governmental funding system, the internal revenue bureau, the sinking fund, the national bank, the federal mint and currency system.

He was the father of the protective tariff and was the first to propose and the first to defend the doctrine of the implied powers of the Constitution.

He was the first to advocate internal improvements and the building of roads and bridges.

Today, one of his old friends passing Hamilton's window very frequently, wrote:

"I have seen a man who made the fortune of a nation and labored all night to support his own family."

After his death his private affairs were found to be in a terrible tangled condition and it was only through a special act of congress that his widow was supplied with funds.—Thrift Magazine.

Scientists Not Agreed as to Color of Moon

The moon is not white. It is brown. Mars is not red, it is green! These are the latest suggestions of astronomers. A committee of the Carnegie institution in Washington reports that the apparent silvery whiteness of moonlight is due to contrast with the darkened sky. The actual color of the moon, they believe, is a dull brown of weathered rocks. This suggests that surface of the satellite may have been weathered by oxidation at some previous time, although the moon is known to have no atmosphere now.

Mars, according to E. J. Gounod of the Amateur Astronomers' association, may be covered with green vegetation like the earth. The reason it appears red, he says, is that the light rays have to pass through the atmosphere of both Mars and the earth before they reach our eyes. These atmospheres filter out the blue and green rays but allow the red rays to pass. The three reasons most often given for the red color of Mars are that the planet is "rusty" with iron rust, that its soil and rocks are red or that it is red vegetation.

Baffles Scientists

The remarkable electrical phenomenon sometimes witnessed at sea, and generally feared by sailors, has been satisfactorily explained by science, says H. J. Andrews, in the White Star Magazine.

It is a luminous body which can be seen on wet masts perching on, or skipping about the masts and rigging of a ship. Sometimes there are two such lumes, and the ancient Roman sailors gave the name of Helena to the single light and termed the double one Castor and Pollux. Helene in Greek signified a torch and Castor and Pollux were the two sons in classical mythology of Jupiter and Leda.

Domestic Recitals

Husbands differ. One may be sympathetically interested in his wife's recital of the day's domestic trials; another not. It is a matter of temperament, not of love.

ZIMMER'S GARAGE TO HAVE OPENING

Next Tuesday, at Zimmer's Garage, all of Northville will have a chance to see just how an automobile is made. It will also mark the formal opening of this new garage.

Every buyer of an automobile should have an opportunity to see what he's paying his good money for," says Mr. Zimmer, and in this he's in his duty to the people of Northville that's prompting Mr. Zimmer to stage an exhibition that is said to be unique in the annals of automotive history.

Nowadays all automobiles look good, and it's the before all the more important for the prospective buyer, before making his final choice, to see for himself the material and workmanship that have been put into the car he is thinking of buying.

This miniature Automobile Show will consist of an engineering exhibit, a phantom chassis, and a color and style show, which has been designed especially to please the ladies.

All are welcome, and Mr. Zimmer hopes you will be able to stay for the feature picture of a young couple's adventures in Dynamic Detroit, the home of the automobile industry. This picture was produced at great expense and is one of the best of its kind we've seen.

Silently and smoothly through the deep canyons of the city's busy streets, you can accompany these two young people on their sight-seeing trip to the magnificent new art center, the Italian marble library and art museum; the but we mustn't spoil your fun by telling you about it now. Only don't miss the thrill of a cruise over the city in one of the great tri-motor airplanes. It won't cost you a cent.

Mr. Zimmer has been advised that, owing to the demand in other sections of the country, the exhibition can only remain in Northville for only one day. There will be favors for both ladies and men.

PENNIMAN ALLEN—COMEDIAN RISES FROM PIANO TUNER

Johny Burke, who plays the comedy lead in Mack Sennett's nine reel comedy-romance, "The Good-humed in the theatre," "Bye Kiss, Bye Kiss," at the Penniman Allen Bye Kiss, which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre Saturday, June 22nd, started his career as a piano tuner. Every time a theatre called up the piano house for a tuner, Johny fought to get the job. And he took advantage of each precious minute when he found himself inside a theatre. When somebody of importance happened along, Johnny would very casually dash off a couple of his own compositions, which had nothing whatever to do with piano tuning. In this way he attracted the attention of the stage manager at a Keith theatre in Philadelphia, and was asked to show what he could do.

Johnny, the piano tuner, became Johny Burke, piano player, all over the Keith circuit. He wrote the words and music to several song hits and put them over with his droll comedy personality and before long was considered an act on the vaudeville circuits.

His first sketch was called, "How Patsy Went to War." This was the beginning of a series of monologues, which finally led up to his famous "Dirty Work," known to vaudeville fans the country over.

Burke's theatrical experience includes a season with McIntyre and Heath in "Hello, Alexander," with Willie and Eugene Howard in "The Passing Show of 1918" for 85 weeks, and with Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue of 1924-25."

Making a quick tour of the Orpheum circuit during the summer and fall of 1926-27, Johnny played Los Angeles and met Mack Sennett. He was doing a single which impressed Mr. Sennett to the extent of making a screen test.

CONSTANT TRAINING KEEPS MIX IN TRIM FOR WESTERN ROLES

When one consistently goes to such extremes of physical exertion as performed by Tom Mix in the FBO production, "The Big Diamond Robbery," which comes to the Penniman Allen theatre Sunday, June 23rd, he would hardly be expected to maintain a physical training program but Tom is as exact about keeping in shape as any professional athlete.

Constantly at Tom's side during his working hours is Frankie Dolan, his trainer and formerly a prominent lightweight in pugilistic circles.

Under Dolan's direction, Tom goes through a daily procedure of physical exercise as strenuous as that followed by a boxer before an important bout. An outstanding feature of the training feature in the program is a regulation size boxing ring, which is a permanent erection at the FBO studios. Here Tom tests his agility by boxing with Dolan and others who are confident enough to "take him on." It is a matter of record that Tom has sparred with Jack Dempsey around the ring.

"As for myself people often wonder what I could do in for formal exercise. Each making western pictures is enough to feel and harden every muscle. But in order to do these stunts in picture making a man has to be at the peak of condition at all times.

"Between pictures I couldn't afford to let my claim down physically. Why, by the time the start of the next feature rolled around, the chances are that I would be just soft enough not to be able to keep up with Tony in doing all the things that the scenario called for."

Among those who participate in the thrills provided by Tom and Tony in "The Big Diamond Robbery" are Kathryn McGuire, leading lady, Barney Furey, Frank Beal, Ernest Hillard and Ethan Laidlaw.

Eugene Forde was the director. Frank Howard Clark is the author of the story. John Stuart Twist wrote the continuity.

GRIPING TALE TOLD BY "VOICE OF THE STORM"

Karl Dane Is Featured in FBO Melodrama

Carrying the story of a great love that survives the efforts of man and the elements alike to crush it, the FBO production, "Voice of the Storm," opens at the Penniman-Allen Theatre Wednesday, June 26.

Directed by Lynn Shores, a sterling cast, including Karl Dane, Martha Sleeper, Hugh Allan, Theodore von Eltz, Lydia Yeaman Titus, Warner Richmond and Brandon Hurst, interprets the breat-taking action of the feature.

What is said to be an example of realism without parallel in motion pictures is incorporated in "Voice of the Storm" in a man race over muddy roads and tottering bridges as Theodore von Eltz, Martha Sleeper and Karl Dane attempt to reach state prison in time to deliver the reprieve which will save the life of Hugh Allan.

The many red-blooded incidents in the plot of "Voice of the Storm" is said to give an appeal to children as well as adults. A large measure of intriguing suspense for a lost formula, on the finding of which partially depends the life of the hero.

Walter Woods wrote the scenario of this FBO production.

RINGLING BARNUM CIRCUS IS COMING FOR TWO BIG DAYS

Will Show in Detroit on Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23

It was glorious news to young and old brought in the announcement of the early appearance of the great Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey Circus with its thousand and one wonders, which will exhibit in Detroit June 22 and 23.

The only five-ring circus in the world with a Big Top seating more than 16,000 persons, will this year offer more new and startling acts than ever before in its history.

Not the least in the attractiveness of the Big Show will be the presence of seven herds of elephants, 43 great pachyderms, the majority of which are highly trained performers. There are likewise the largest herds of giraffes, zebras and camels in captivity.

The menagerie of the Ringling-Barnum Circus is the largest traveling zoo in the world and in its gilded cages there appear every known variety of animals brought from the earth's remote corners by agents of the huge amusement institution.

And at each performance is to be seen Goliath, the monster sea-elephant, weighing five tons and eating 400 pounds of fish daily. During the past year Goliath has grown a full ton in weight.

The circus giants of the world have been combed to produce for this greatest of all shows the most daring and spectacular of acts, chief among which this year is the one-arm only Zacchini. The Human Projectile fired through space from the mouth of a monster cannon.

The Big Show travels on its own four trains of 150 double length railroad cars.

Luxurious Yachts Gathered at Miami

The visit of President-Elect Hoover, the Snarkey-Stribling fight and the contest between Gar Wood and Maj H. O. D. Hence the docks at Miami are quite congested and berthing space for a yacht is at a premium.

CLASS ADVISOR GIVEN GOLF CLUB

Members of the Senior class just previous to graduation presented to their advisor, M. J. Cohn, a golf club in appreciation of his interest in the class and his constant effort to serve the group. The presentation was made by the class president, Ted Warner, who told Mr. Cohn of the sentiment of the young people and of their pleasure in being able to show him in a small way their gratitude for his interest in their welfare.

Writers, Please Note

Not so long ago bottles of gum issued by the British stationery office bore the following instruction:

"In ordinary use the best and most nearly immediate result is secured by using only such an amount of gum as will just uniformly moisten the surface without leaving any noticeable excess to delay drying, the condition to be aimed at being that of a unused postage stamp just moistened as it is directly applied to a letter."

Now some sensible economist, curiously indifferent to fine writing, has replaced this piece of uneven, plod prose with the terse paraphrase: "Apply thinly."

RECORD LINERS PAY—TRY ONE

Not Original With Lincoln

The saying, "You cannot fool all of the people all of the time," is commonly attributed to Abraham Lincoln and also to P. T. Barnum, though it is not in their biographies. A little book published by A. Wessels company in 1903, "The Wisdom of Abraham Lincoln," gives this as a quotation from Lincoln's speech at Clinton, Ill., on September 8, 1858. It is quite likely that this was a proverb or popular saying long before he uttered it. A book of old English proverbs lists a similar saying: "No one is a fool always, every one sometimes."

Priceless Gavel

When the presiding officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce raps for order at future meetings he will rap with a renewed authority. It is no common gavel that calls the members to attention, for it helped literally to keep the roof over the heads of 26 Presidents of the United States.

The gavel was carved from one of the main wooden roof trusses of the White House when the repairs to the roof were made during the Coolidge administration.

Chick Health, the greatest single factor in poultry success, depends first of all on CLEAN FEED. The Globe All-Mash Method does away with scratch feed and thus eliminates contamination from disease-laden litter and droppings. This feed is as clean as the food you eat.

Well Balanced Growth is also assured by Globe All-Mash Starting Ration. Just enough minerals to build good frames; a variety of proteins to make flesh, feathers, nails, combs and wattles; a variety of vitamines to promote healthy functioning of organs; carbohydrates to give energy; palatability to insure contentment; maximum digestibility to insure maximum results. Neither too little or too much—just right—a complete ration—fed just as it comes from the bag, and proven successful by extensive test and wide spread use. Less feed is wasted because it is not scattered in litter. Work is saved because the Globe Method calls for self-feeding in hoppers.

Rigid Rules Laid Down for Wifely Deportment

Wifely comportment of the standard of 1929 is outlined in an article from The Goodhouse of Paris, recently translated into English for the benefit of fifteen power. This author of Paris comment, is sixty years old, his wife fifteen.

"When you go to town or to church, you should be spitably accompanied according to your station, and especially by worthy women, and flee suspicious company . . . and as you go, bear your head straight, keep your eyelids lowered and still look straight before you about four rods ahead and upon the ground, without looking nor turning your gaze upon any man or woman to right or to left, nor looking up, nor glancing from place to place, nor laughing nor stopping to speak to anybody on the road. And when you have come to church, choose a secret and solitary place before a fair altar or image, and there remain and stay without turning whereof to other, nor going to and fro and bear your head upright and keep your lips ever moving saying orisons and prayers."—Kansas City Star.

Child Behavior Merely Reflection of Parents

There is no mystery about children. They are puzzling often but they are never incomprehensible. At least they are not incomprehensible to old folks and I think they need not be to parents.

Fathers and mothers are themselves the keys to their offspring. A good orderly father should be able to understand why his image will not put away his toys. A quick-tempered mother should not have to call in a doctor for her daughter's tantrums. He can only advise self-control—in the mother.

The mystery is about parents, young parents, busy with their own affairs, too preoccupied with their future to think of the present of their children and to recall how it was with them when they were young.

"Run away now and play. Papa is reading this newspaper."

Parents say that, not grandparents. Grandparents do not consider the news so important as parents do. Grandpa has time and memories, some self-knowledge, some sense of proportion.—Lincoln Steffens in the North American Review.

Puss Expert Fish Catcher

Cats, in their primitive state, are born hunters and fishers, and on tombs of ancient Egypt appear representations of cats accompanying their masters on fowling expeditions. GARDENERS ARE URGED TO KEEP UP WORK IN SUMMER

A Few Simple Rules That Will Prove of Aid In Contest

Every contestant in the Yard and Garden contest should give his or her grounds a constant attention during the summer months members of the Northville Rotary club committee in charge of the contest are anticipating. The date of the judges' inspection will not be announced and the contestant who may expect his place a surprise will increase his chances of winning one of the worthwhile prizes which have been offered.

The care of one's home grounds is a pleasure and keeping them up and at their best contributes not only to both personal satisfaction and in the added appearance of the premises. Here are some hints to keep in mind:

1. [illegible] have quite a [illegible] of lawn [illegible] and [illegible] weed [illegible] Water [illegible] and [illegible] be pruned two [illegible] depending on the rate [illegible] about the time [illegible]

2. [illegible] pruning flowering shrubs should be pruned immediately after blooming. Keep space free from grass and cultivated around the base.

3. Trees.—Trees should be cared for much like woody shrubs with a space free from grass and cultivated around the base of the tree. Take care of any storm damage and watch for insect pests.

5. Flowers—Keep flower beds and garden borders edged neatly. Cut off dead flower stalks. Allow no gaps or bare spots in your garden borders. Fill in any bare spot with an appropriate annual.

In exceeding dry periods during the hot summer months water should be used copiously. A single good soaking does much more good than many light sprinklings.

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania—The Philadelphia Inquirer one of the most influential newspapers in the United States, is conducting a great Yard and Garden contest covering an area within a radius of 55 miles of the Inquirer building. In this territory the Inquirer has established over 50 registration places where contest entries are being received.

Buffalo, New York—The Evening News has placed 1000 three-color Yard and Garden contest posters in the store windows of Buffalo and has aroused city wide public interest in its big contest. The Evening News also had a special display booth at the Tenth Annual National Flower and Garden show in Buffalo and secured a large number of entries.

Madison, Ohio—The Lake County Garden club is conducting a County Yard and Garden contest and is confident of bringing about the beautification of the farm home as well as the city residences.

Selma, Alabama—Eighteen public buildings are competing for prizes in a special class of the Yard and Garden contest. Among these buildings are hospitals, churches, several schools and the Y. M. C. A.

Alamosa, Colorado—The Yard and Garden contest is a part of an ambitious municipal program which includes a dam to straighten the course of the Rio Grande river.

Some tomato growers allow disease to destroy their crop on the belief that spraying delays maturity. Spraying experiments conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture over a period of seven years show that there is no difference in the average earliness of sprayed or unsprayed tomatoes. Fluctuations in earliness are probably due to differences in the soil.

President Portes Gil of Mexico, has anounced that at all of his banquets he will serve nothing stronger than mineral water. This is a poor way to attract the Tammany vote.

GAS COMPANY TO CHANGE SYSTEM OF PAYING BILLS

New Plan Will be Big Help To the Northville Gas Consumers

Effective June first the Michigan Federated Utilities is making changes in their method of billing gas service to customers in Plymouth, Northville and Wayne. These new methods consist of a machine method of preparing gas bills, and a simplified method of keeping the accounts. Under the revised method the company will be able to render a neat typewritten bill and will be in a position to give better service. The company at this time is also changing the dates on which customers meters are read, bills delivered and the days in which the discount period expires. This change is also for the benefit of the customer.

In the past there has always been a congestion at the cashiers window on the 14th and 15th of each month, because the discount date on gas bills expired on the 15th of each month. The congestion caused customers tending in to pay their bills will be completely avoided under the installation of the new meter reading and billing system which provides for bills to be delivered throughout the month, the days on which such bills become due.

Mr. House, district manager of the Utilities, states that these new methods are practically the same as in effect in the larger towns throughout the United States, and are in keeping with the policy of the company who continue to render better service to its customers.

The plants of early flowering annuals should be purchased and set out early in June.

"MIRACULOUS-IS WHAT I SAY MODERN OF KONJOLA"

Stubborn Case of Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble Ended by New Medicine All Else Had Failed

MRS. JULIA RICE

"I know of but one word that describes Konjola, and that word is 'Miraculous,'" said Mrs. Julia Rice, 214 West End street, Alma, Mich. "As a result of stomach trouble and rheumatism I was in a terrible condition. I lost weight and strength. Gas and bloating followed my meals, and the pains were almost unbearable. I couldn't sleep on account of the rheumatic pains.

"I didn't think it possible for one medicine to do what Konjola did for me. Within a week I was immeasurably better, and in four weeks I felt like a different person. My stomach has been corrected, and my food nourishes me. All the rheumatic pains have been driven from my body. O, that all the world could know of this master medicine!"

Konjola is sold in Northville at the Northville Drug Company, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FULLER TELLS OF EXHIBITS FOR THE NEXT STATE FAIR

Northville Official Says Program Will Be The Best Ever

The eighteen annual exposition of the Michigan State Fair, to be held September 2 to 11, will be featured by the beginning of a 20-year program that is expected to make the Fair the most famous of its kind in the world long before the centennial is observed in 1949, according to E. H. Fuller, Northville member of the State Fair Board.

The first phase of the program will be the most extensive list of prizes ever offered by the Fair, $126,100. This compares with $120,000 last year, and $107,001 in 1927, the first time it had ever exceeded the $100,000 mark.

A second is the inauguration of a new display program. Wondering exhibitors of livestock and poultry who travel from fair to fair with exhibits which they display only when certain of winning, will be barred. The purpose is to confine exhibits and prizes exclusively to established livestock and poultry breeders who heretofore have been discouraged by such "cut" competition and encourage them to display their stock and to breed better strains. As a consequence a 10% increase in the number of exhibitors and exhibits is looked for. However, some of this increase is expected to result from the greater co-operation between fair officials and exhibitors which has characterized the management during the last two years.

The largest individual group of awards will be for the livestock, pet stock and poultry groups and total $55,038 emphasizing the management's determination to encourage displays by individual agriculturists of these important branches of husbandry. The biggest prizes in this group are $12,745 for dairy cattle and $10,313 for beef breeds. Poultry and pet stock are given $9,621, swine $9,785, and sheep $8,417, the largest totals ever offered in each division. The prizes in these groups total 25% more than they did in 1928. Some of this total was taken from the horse racing though awards here still amount to $13,400. Horse show, horse racing and draft and standard bred horse prizes total $26,950. Prizes for draft and standard bred horse prizes total $26,950. Prizes for draft and standard bred horses have been increased to $6,416.

Prizes in the cattle department total $37,000 as against only $26,000 last year and form the largest amount ever given in the fair's history. The poultry department will receive awards in this department.

More than $2,700 has been offered in cash for prize for fruit and vegetables of which 200 varieties, half of them mixed varieties of fruits, are to be shown. The fruit and apiary department has been given $1,285, the largest total ever to be awarded in this section.

The domestic work department this year is given $1,000. The prizes in the art department, totaling $674, are expected to bring out an exhibition of paintings, etc., equal to that of 1928 when more than $250,000 worth was exhibited.

That the work of the Boys and Girls' clubs and of the Boys' State Fair school shall not lag, prizes totaling $6,000 have been alloted to the former and $2,000 to the latter, with the possibility that both sums will be increased before fair time.

Prizes in the Better Baby contest have been raised this year to a total of $280. In an effort to make it the most comprehensive ever held the whole state will be combed for the most perfect baby between 1 and 3 years old. The contest will again be under the direction of Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, state health commissioner.

Five afternoons of horse racing and the horse show with their fine prizes, are expected to bring together the fastest horseflesh and drivers in the section and the finest society horses in the state. Additional features for which prizes have been set aside will be the hog and husband contests.

The fair managements is now negotiating for what it expects to be the finest midway etc. seen at the fair, and for two unusual grandstand features never before seen at the fair. Prospective exhibitors are advised to write to the state fair management for programs of the show.

GARDEN HILLS ARE BETTER THAN ALL THE PILLS IN TOWN

That's What Woman Says For Benefit of Garden Contestants

Here is a bit of advise for the large number of contestants in the Northville yard and garden contest as well as the many who spend hours working in their yards that comes from Myrtle Van Horne demonstration home agent for Ingham county.

"Money spent on pills might better be spent on garden hills. Slaves to the spring tonic bugbear are almost entirely made up of those who base vegetables despise fruit, love meat and adore pastries, rich deserts and candy."

Miss VanHorne insists bread-potato-meat-pie eaters show up in their weakness most after a long winter of meals containing of these foods and little else except coffee. Lassitude, lack of pep a too-tired-to-move feeling may frequently be traced to insufficient quantities of vegetables and fruits she asserts.

"No motor will start until the spark flashes," is Miss VanHorne's simile. "Neither will a body function until the spark of vitamins is supplied by the food eaten. Just as structure and lubrication influence the action of the motor, so food determines the harmony of body processes. Vegetables and fruits are our best spark plugs and for smooth running we must have on all six. One cupful of vegetable a day per adult is the minimum allowance. Three times a week some dark green leaf is necessary for perfect satisfaction; and each day one-half of the daily one cup minimum should be some uncooked vegetable. At least one potato should be added to the one cup. Leaves deserve more attention than any other part of the plant, for they are recognized as a protective food with many of the same properties as milk.

"The wise homemaker will include one cupful of fruit per adult each day, and will make an effort to feed orange, lemon, grapefruit or tomato daily, winter and summer. A liberal use of other fresh fruits, dried fruits and canned fruits will soon meet the one cup per day minimum standard. From now on until fall the inclusion of fruits and vegetables will not be difficult, because many have the delightful advantage of direct from garden to table service. When fruits and vegetables are in season, then we must plan on our winter supply, if we do home canning.

"A real liking for fruits and vegetables established early in life will prevent the development of the sweet tooth and the meat tooth. An intense liking for highly flavored foods like meat and sweets, soon overcomes the desire for the more mild tastes of fruits, vegetables, cereals, milk, etc. Some meat every day for every adult, but never unaccompanied by the full quota of fruit and vegetable. A safe guide to human nutrition is not appetite, but experience, which has proved the advisability of certain dietary standards, is the way the nutrition expert drives her argument home."

LEGION PICNIC ON TUESDAY EVENING

Tuesday evening, June 25th at 6:30 o'clock is the time selected by the American Legion and Auxiliary members for the annual picnic which will take place at Cass Benton park. Not only are the members of these two organizations invited, but they are requested to bring their entire families as well as dishes, sandwiches and a little bit extra for the fellow who has no one to cook for him. Adjutant Lyle Alexander declares that no one should miss this grand and glorious time.

Fresh tomatoes can be filled with any left-over meat or vegetables for a stuffed tomato salad. A filling made of chopped meat, such as chicken, veal or tongue, cooked peas chopped pickle or cucumber and salad dressing is very good. After the tomatoes have been pealed and scooped out they should be seasoned with salt, turned upside down to drain and placed in the icebox until time to fill and serve them.

One of the most important factors in successful mushroom culture is good ventilation. This not only supplies oxygen, but allows the growing plants to escape. Drafts should be avoided however as sudden changes of temperature check growth and cause darkening and carbonic-acid gases exhaled by the cracking of the mushrooms.
