N. Aletha Yerkes

Here's to a friend that we honor
As dear to the heart of our school,
Who always is full of good humor
And smiles as she lays down the rule.
A hand that is welcome and willing
She offers to all those in need,
And faithfully labors to help us;
She always is willing to lead.
So now to our dear friend, Miss Yerkes,
Who strove to enlighten our way,
We hope in this short dedication
Our debt, in a measure, to pay.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The members of the council were elected at the beginning of the fall term, 1924, by popular high school vote.

This council has held, to date, twenty-five meetings. We hold one meeting each week on Monday, the fifth hour. We have called before the council all persons found defacing school property in any manner, and have endeavored to deal fairly with them, punishing or fining them as seen fit. No parties have been given by us this year; we have been occupied with only the general business of the council. All money connected with athletics has been handled by us and all equipment bought.

DEBATE

Northville was again represented in the Michigan High School Debating League for the season 1924-1925 by Ida Rose Cavell, Reva Schrader, and Averell Henry.

Our debaters, all seniors, were engaged in the senior play just at the time of the first debate. It seemed more important at that time to earn money for the Washington trip, so in November we forfeited our first debate which was scheduled with Milford. We were ready for the second debate in December, but because of an uneven number of schools in the League we were left with no opponent.

The third regular debate was held in January. Our old rival, Plymouth, defeated us in a two to one decision.

The last debate was held here in February and we were again defeated, this time by Ypsilanti High School.

In addition to the regular debates, we had several practice debates. Two which aroused much interest were with Highland Park and Northwestern High Schools.

Had our team had more experience, we feel that we would have had a chance to defeat those whom we debated even though they were from schools which were much larger than ours. However, we feel that our team was a credit to our school and that the debate season of 1924-1925 may be counted a success, for at no time before has there been so much enthusiasm manifested. It has been rather feebly supported before, but now we believe that the debating team will be supported as loyally as any other team which represents our school.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Front Row—K. Wilcox, I. R. Cavell, Miss A. Yerkes, R. Schrader, C. Harlan.
Second Row—C. Fry, A. Henry, L. Wood.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The year of 1924-1925 has been so full of events that, so far, the Dramatic Club has not been able to come into much prominence. But we have not disappeared from the horizon, as you shall see presently. We are planning an assembly program for the latter part of May, in which we expect to break all records.

The school has recently acquired a curtain and scenery for the stage. This is a valuable asset to all dramatics and we shall not be at such a disadvantage as heretofore in presenting sketches and plays.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Front Row—B. Blackburn, R. Schrader, V. Smith, M. Horan, L. Dorsey.

On my honor I will do my best—

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout law;
2. To help other people at all times;
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

Senior Play

The Seniors staged one of the best annual plays, which was witnessed by the largest audience ever attending a class play.

This event occurred on the evening of December 7th and was entitled, "The Adventures of Grandpa." A caste of nine characters was required to perform this comedy. We had no trouble in securing this caste from so talented a class as the one of '25. Each member who participated in this famous production deserves equal mention for the creditable manner in which the part was played.

Worthy praise should also be given to those who assumed the responsibilities of stage and advertising managers.

While all the members of our class could not take an individual part in this play, they were all keenly interested from the very beginning and thus spurred greater enthusiasm on the part of the caste to bring honor to all who were thus interested.

We, as a class, desire to acknowledge that the complete success of this play was largely due to the coach, Mrs. W. L. Tinham, assisted by Mrs. Larkins, class advisor.

Junior Play

"Poor Father", a three act farce, was the title of the Junior Play presented at the High School Auditorium, the evenings of May the 26th and 27th.

The character of the hard-pressed father, "William Tompkins", was taken by Cecil Fry; the student of psychology, "Clifford Tompkins", Alec Milne; "Harold Caldwell", the chap who was always in the way, Delbert Campbell; "Sidney Dummel", a wealthy bachelor, Leslie Fraser; "George Washington Brown", a trifter with truth, Lynn Fraser; "Sergeant O'Connor" of the police, Albert Stage; "Mary Tompkins," a distracted mother, Naomi Colburn; "Gladys", the oldest daughter, Beverly Terrill; "Caroline", another daughter, Bessie Mae Pardee; "Marie", the new French maid, Kathryn Wilcox; and "Vivian Laramie", an actress, Marjorie Horan.

The play was written with just one aim, to create hearty laughter, and all who were there will surely say that the aim was fulfilled.

The success of the play was due to the untiring efforts of Miss Aletha Yerkes and Miss Frances Yerkes, the class advisor.

ELSON ART EXHIBIT

The Art Exhibition, under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Larkins, was opened Wednesday evening, May 6th, with a program of living picture tableaux.

Several well known pictures were presented, most of them preceded by a short explanation and accompanied by music.

The complete program was presented in this order:

Sand Man's Song	- - - - -	Kindergarten
Making the Flag	- - - - -	3rd and 4th Grades
Pilgrims Going to Church—Boughton	- - - - -	4th and 5th Grades
May Pole Dance	- - - - -	2nd Grade
The Gleaners—Millet	- - - - -	8th Grade
Feeding Her Birds—Millet	- - - - -	2nd Grade
Spirit of '76—Willard	- - - - -	7th Grade
Alice Freeman Palmer Memorial—French	- - - - -	High School
Old Fashioned Garden—Song	- - - - -	High School
Sistine Madonna—Raphael	- - - - -	5th and 6th Grades

The Martial band, consisting of Mr. Perrin, Mr. Lanning, and Mr. Altman, helped to create the great amount of enthusiasm that was shown.

"Feeding Her Birds" was also accepted with much applause.

"The Sistine Madonna" was very beautiful and was accompanied by music and reading.

The music was in charge of Miss Irene Olson and Miss Taylor. Mrs. Blake assisted with the violin which added greatly to the effect.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons the different grades presented programs in their own rooms which were very well received.

The Exhibit was entirely successful and each room will share in this success by being enabled to have the picture of its choice hanging on the wall in its room.

Home Economics

The Home Economics Department was established in the Northville High School in September 1924, and has been very successful considering that it is entirely new here. Equipment is being added from time to time as necessity demands; this greatly increases the value to be derived from this department. Owing to the broad range of subjects and interest, a good deal of material is being required.

In training of this kind the social and economic value of the home is studied. Units of work on foods are given, including food preservation, breakfast, luncheon and dinner or supper cookery, meal planning and serving (for the latter a dining room suite has been provided), pastry, meat cookery, child nutrition and marketing.

The clothing work deals with construction of under-garments, choice and care in clothing selections, textile study, clothing hygiene, care of clothing, and elementary principles in costume design, construction of house dresses, made over garments, summer and sport clothes, children's clothes, and millinery.

Units of work on house planning, furnishing and decorating, and business management in the home are also included.

The high school girls managed and did the cooking for the school lunch room serving a number of students each noon. Excellent co-operation on the part of the students made this possible, and splendid interest and spirit has been shown thruout the classes. A faculty banquet has been served. The eighth grade had a Japanese Tea Room for one evening during the Art Exhibit, all the preparation having been made by the class with some high school girls assisting in the evening.

With the present co-operation of the Board of Education, Supt. Helfrich and Mrs. Larkins, a strong Home Economics Department is growing in the school.

Commercial Department

During the year the Commercial Department has had added to its equipment an electric Edison-Dick mimeograph and mimeoscope which is being used by the department in further preparing its typists for positions in offices, and by the teachers and classes for invitations, posters, art work, examination questions and work which requires a number of copies. It is an attractive addition to the typewriting room besides fulfilling all the requisites of an office appliance.

Students from different branches of the department have helped to make the department worthwhile and have brought honor to it. In the typewriting department the following people have won honors from the typewriter companies: Woodstock: Rosie Visnack, 50 words, "50 Word" pin; Dortha Dunbar, Naomi Colburn, Lena Severance, Kenneth Edwards, Harry German, Jr., and Elsie Schultz have received "25 Word" pins. Underwood: Catharine Harlan, 50 words, sterling silver pin; Helen Alger and Fedora Stamann, 40 words, "40 Word Bronze Medals."

The following penmanship people have received Palmer Method Certificates so far this year: Geraldine Huff, Ruth Sessions, Ronald Lyke, Alvin Hotaling, Margaret Safford and Orson Atchison.

The Shorthand class showed that shorthand and typewriting may not be confined to the purely commercial uses in an artistic sense when they made booklets, which contained poems in shorthand dictated in class, and made covers for them using designs made on the typewriter. The designs included a church, squirrel, basket of flowers, Dutch Cleanser Girl, a fountain and a butterfly mounted on bright colored paper.

The bookkeeping people have done their work conscientiously and well and, although they have not won special honor from any foreign source, may boast of a bookkeeper from the first year class who is doing practical bookkeeping in a downtown office.

Physical Training

Athletic ability is not the only thing that the physical training department helps to develop, take for instance the demonstrations given every year. This proves that all benefit derived is not athletic. Of course there is no question but that physical training is a benefit to the athlete, it helps to develop grace and ease both of which are a great help in athletics.

Every year since we have had physical training in this school, there has been an exhibition, and each year it has been more successful until now it is a rival of the greatest show on earth; it is sometimes called a circus, which is really what it is. There is dancing by the girls of the High School, and figure marching by the girls of the grades. The boys of the High School give exhibitions on the parallel bars and on the mats. The feature of the last exhibition was the kindergarten orchestra, which is full of very promising young musicians.

Honor Point System

Honor is esteem due or paid to worth. It deals as clearly and simply as possible with fundamental things—the enduring bases of character. It is quality which deals necessarily with what may be called morals and manners, and consequently with the basic attitude toward life. Manners are the way in which we express ourselves in our associations with other people. These depend partly upon our bringing up, but even more vitally they depend upon what we essentially are, upon our outlook on life, upon our fashions of regarding others, and what we are trying to accomplish with ourselves.

What do we seek? "Success," you say? "Happiness"? What is success? Is it money, fame, and popularity? Perhaps. But that is not the whole story. Success is accomplishment, to be sure, accomplishment without the sacrifice of honor and integrity.

The "A" you get by cheating, or the touchdown you win by foul tactics, will never warm the depths of your heart.

As teachers, we urge our boys and girls to run their swiftest in the race for the laurels of life, but always to remember to play the game fairly or they will miss the supreme satisfaction which comes only to those who fight the good fight, which is the fight against all meanness in one's self, all malice and all greed. So we say, success lies in your own heart of self satisfaction. This is largely gained thru the honor of your work.

Now as the results of our investigations in other high schools, regarding some method of reward to students who stand out as superior in their interest and honorable effort along various lines of academic work and school activities, we, as teachers, decided to adopt the "Honor Point System". This system was put into effect, beginning the second semester of 1924-25. This arrangement, as given below, will from time to time need changes that it may tend toward greater perfection. We feel it is a beginning in the right direction to raise the standard of efficiency thruout our school, and as such we trust that co-operation on the part of all concerned will make for the development of a system which will prove that our honest efforts are in behalf of a school standard that will reflect credit and honor upon teachers, students and community.

The following is a brief outline of the Honor Point System:

A student may receive honors in one or more departments of the school.

All honor points are to be reckoned from the yearly average as follows:

An "A" will entitle the student to four honor points, "B" three, "C", two, "C" one, and "D" none.

SCHOLARSHIP

Any person having an average of "B" with no mark below "C" in three out of four required subjects and no "E's" or conditions will be considered an honor student.

Attendance and Tardiness

To be honored under this department, the record in attendance and tardiness must be perfect.

Debate

All members of the first team who shall earnestly and successfully participate in three out of four regular scheduled debates, and who are passing in three out of four required subjects will be considered honor students.

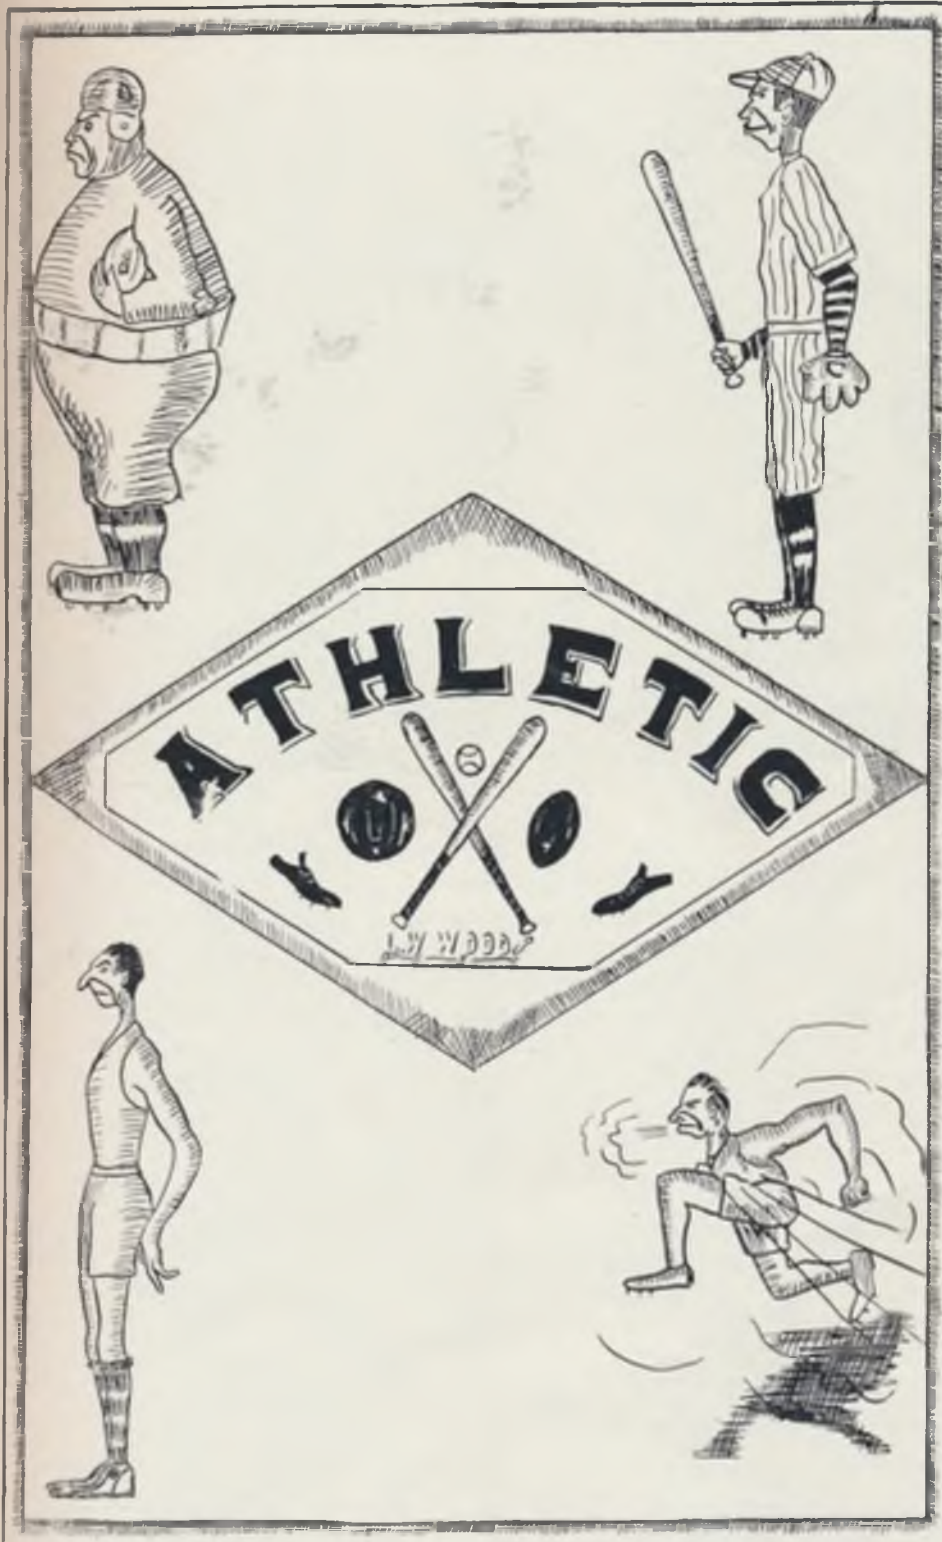

Athletics

An honor student in this department may be any member of the first team, either boys' or girls', with an average of "B" in physical training and no mark below "C" in physical training, and passing in three out of four other subjects.

Vocational

(Music, Art, Domestic Science, and Manual Training)

Any student whose work for the year is superior in quality, such to be determined by the teacher in charge together with the principal, superintendent and one student from the Junior and one from the Senior class, will be honored in each of these departments.

Football

A. K. Miller, Coach

C. B. LeFevre, Captain

Practice for Football began September 5, 1924. Coach Miller called for candidates as soon as school started. Thirty men were out the first night, but the number diminished to twenty men, with which the season ended. We had few experienced men with whom to begin the season, but during the first two weeks promising material appeared.

Clifford LeFevre (Butch), was elected captain of the team. As center, he was alert and good at passing the ball to the backfield.

Richard Smith (Brick), full back, was an excellent line plunger and always on the job.

Edward Riley (Ed), quarter-back, received at the beginning of the season injuries which kept him out of the game for a few weeks. He could be counted on for using good work in calling plays.

Gordon Crouch (Squat), half back, was a good man on end runs and a good passer.

Kenneth Edwards (Ken), was the other half back. He was especially good on offensive playing and a good punter.

Lynn Fraser (Bean Pole), guard, was a very good man on offense and defense.

Cecil Fry as tackle, did his share in breaking up plays of the opponents.

Lawrence LeFevre (Lorney), as end, was good at boxing in plays and throwing them for a loss.

Albert Kohler, another guard, was quick in getting through the lines and breaking up plays.

Carlyle Lovewell (Lyle), tackle, was also good in breaking through the lines and getting the man before he started with the ball.

Clyde Casterline, another end, knew how to pull long passes and make long gains.

Donald Starr, Leslie Fraser, Maurice Lapham, Alec Milne, Donald Ware, Leo Wood and Terry Thompson were substitutes and were always on the alert when in playing the game.

MILLER, Coach

GERMAN, Captain

A call for candidates was announced by coach Miller and the following night 35 men appeared on the floor. Each one was high spirited and had hopes that he might make the first squad. Out of these 35 candidates there were only five last year's veterans; they were LeFevre, Smith, Riley, Edwards and German, Jr. After about two weeks of steady practice, Coach Miller reduced his first team squad to 10 men whom he thought were best fitted for their positions.

One of the most exciting games ever witnessed by our local fans was a hard fought game between Northville and Plymouth. It was a real battle from start to finish. Although Plymouth led 8 to 15 in the first half, at the end of the last quarter the game stood a tie, 19 to 19. It took a five minute over time to decide it. Both teams fought as they had never fought before, but with Northville's keenest eye two baskets were scored, deciding the game with a score 19 to 23, and giving us another victory. A light but fast team was used against our opponents. The line-up was as follows: German, center; Campbell, R. F.; Wood, L. F.; Edwards, R. G.; and Smith, L. G.

Another hard fought game was played at Dearborn; it ended remarkably for our boys, and disastrously for Dearborn. Notice was given to our players that there were 30 seconds yet to play. Dearborn, being one point ahead, was stalling. The ball came to a toss up, and was knocked to German who tossed it in for a basket. The whistle for the end of the game blew just as the ball was passing through the basket. This basket, making Northville one point ahead, ended the game with great rejoicing from the Northville people. The score was 18 to 19.

Last but not least, the team shared the honors in the state tournament by winning 3 out of the 4 games played. First of all Northville was fortunate in drawing Milan, its old rival for the 3 or 4 years preceding this year, and defeated this team after a hard battle with the score of 7 to 14. Next, Northville was scheduled to meet East Tawas which our team defeated by a close score of 11 to 12. Homer, a school in the northern part of the state, was the next victim conquered. The score was 3 to 25. The fourth and hardest fought game was witnessed by a number of loyal Northville rooters who stood by their school team and yelled for it from start to finish; but for all this, Northville was not able to score one more field basket which would have defeated the St. Mary's school of Jackson. The game ended with a score of 11 to 12 in favor of St. Mary's.

Although Northville did not bring home any of the cups, our boys showed that the fighting spirit was in them from start to finish. Northville High School is proud to be represented by such a team.

"Second Basket Ball Team"

Girls' Basket Ball

Mrs. A. K. Miller, Coach

Luella Riley, Captain

The basket ball season for 1924-1925 looked promising from the very beginning. Our team was composed of Virginia Smith, Barbara Blackburn, Marjorie Horan, Luella Riley, Geraldine Huff and Madeline Lauray, with Luella Riley acting as captain. Five of these were letter players retained from last year.

The first three games were won easily and were, for the most part, practice games. We lost our first league game but this only served to pep us up. We kept our record of last year by losing only two games throughout the entire season. This brought us to a tie with Dearborn for first place. Then the fight began! It was decided that both teams should have a cup. This is the first league cup brought to Northville and it took the girls to do it.

During the season we lost through illness, one of our most needed players, Barbara Blackburn. She played guard during part of the season and showed great ability.

Our forwards, Virginia and Geraldine, were not to be beaten in their splendid team work and co-operation. When they got their hands on the ball, Northville was sure of a score.

Our centers, Marjorie and Luella, were not surpassed in the league for their swiftness and passing ability. Marjorie generally got the tip off, and Luella was always there to receive it and pass it to the forwards.

Our guards, Madeline and Lucile proved to have great skill in guarding and a splendid fighting spirit. When the ball was in the opponents' territory, it was always recovered, thus holding them to a low score.

Our reserves, Frances Hall, Ruth Sherwood, and Vivian Taylor, were always ready and willing and did splendid work when they had the chance.

Mrs. Miller, our coach, deserves much credit for the success of the team this season. She is a willing worker and an able coach. We wish to thank her for the many hours spent in our benefit.

The results of the games were as follows:

Northville 21	-	-	-	Walled Lake 4
Northville 30	-	-	-	Birmingham 15
Northville 32	-	-	-	Alumnae 10

BASE BALL TEAM

Front Row—E. Horton, E. Cramer, C. LeFevre, E. Riley, H. German, A. Milne, Coach Miller.
Second Row—O. Atchison, W. Banfield, T. Thompson, L. Wood, L. LeFevre, D. Campbell, A. Kohler.

Baseball

A. K. Miller, Coach

H. German, Manager

Up to the present time, the team has won three victories out of four games played. Three of these were league games. One was won from Plymouth, one from Wayne, and one from Monroe; and one was lost to Farmington.

There are several new men on the team this year. With H. German pitching, C. LeFevre catching, K. Edwards on third, L. LeFevre on second, and E. Riley in center field, we have a nucleus of experienced players. This with some valuable material found among the new candidates gives a team from which we expect many more victories.

Considerable enthusiasm has been shown this season. Although we lost to Farmington, we still have a chance for first place in the league.

A great deal of credit for our success is due to Mr. Miller who has coached our team for the last two years.

Front Row—C. LeFevre, D. Campbell, H. German, E. Riley, K. Edwards, T. Thompson, L. Wood.
 Second Row—Mr. Wilbur, A. Milne, C. Casterline, M. Lapham, L. Fraser, A. Stage, R. Elliott, A. Kohler.

Boys' Track Team

M. Wilbur, Coach

K. Edwards, Captain

On your mark, get set, go! The track season of 1925 is under way with promise of being just as good or better than that of 1924. Northville High School had a good track team last year (it was really the first time we have had) and this year we hope to have one that will surpass the one of last year. We have some experienced men and also some promising recruits.

Last year Coach Miller had to divide his time between base ball and track, so that it made it hard for him to give the track men the right amount of training; but at that, the Northville team finished third in the league meet. Our track team also went to Lansing where the State Interscholastic Track and Field meet was held at the M. A. C. Northville was entered in Class C with about four hundred athletes. The members of the team brought home several medals. James Wood broke the state record for the javelin throw and won a gold medal. Edward Riley won two fourth place medals one for the shot put and one for the half mile relay. Harry German, Jr., won two medals al-

Girls' Track Team

Mrs. A. K. Miller, Coach

For the past four years Northville has been represented in track. Each year we have gained little by little until now we have some very able girls on our team. At the field meet last year, Marjorie Horan took first place in high jump while Virginia Smith and Lucile Wickham tied for third place. These three also took second place in the relay. Madeline Lauray took second place in shot put.

These four girls will take part again this year, and to this number have been added several others who will do their best. It is too early to state who will be entered for the different events.

The track meet will be held at Plymouth on June 12th this year, and it is hoped that our girls will bring home more honors than ever before.

so, one for the hundred yard dash and the other for the half mile relay. Considering the competition we had, we thought this was pretty good for our first year's track work.

We are going to try to have a winning track team this year. It is just the beginning of the season so we can not say much; it is so early, in fact, that we do not know who will be picked for the team; but with all the material we have, we ought to be able to make quite a good showing. Mr. Wilbur is coaching this year and he will be able to give all his time to track (except when he keeps someone after school). We are standing by, waiting to see N. H. S. bring home the cup.

A Ride on the Street Car the Day Before Christmas

"In the course of a December town in Yorkshire, I rode for a long distance in one of the public coaches on the day preceding Christmas."

—Irving

'Twas the day before Christmas and all through the car,
Were crowded the shoppers from near and far.

As I was about to mount the steps, a large fat woman, and exceedingly strong (as I was to find out later), preceded me. I had merely to follow in her wake to get inside; and when she finally stopped in the middle of the aisle, her packages were hanging from her arms over those seated. It was impossible to pass her, so I stayed where I had stopped.

All went well until a wirey little Jew tried to squeeze under her packages to get to the other end of the car. He knocked some packages from her arm, and she, in her fury, dropped her entire load. The Jew escaped, and she bent over to save her packages from trampling feet.

She pushed people right and left, until, red in the face, she stood up and gave a neighboring passenger a look so fierce, that he turned pale. "Get off my package yous're standin' on", she ordered. Without waiting for an answer, she stooped to pick up the remaining packages; but the unfortunate fellow could not move, and from the depths of the packages, among which her head was thrust, came this: "Hey you! Get off my hair with your foot or I'll bust your leg."

The conductor, thinking that a woman was down, cried from the other end of the car, "Quit standing on that woman and help her up, you weakling!" But he was mistaken, and suddenly the neighboring passenger shot up into the air, propelled from below by the fat lady's muscular arm. Then with a great heave, she arose and called to the conductor, "It's all right. He wasn't standin' on me, he was on my package", and as she said this, she held a wig far into the air. She turned, gave the cowering fellow a withering look, rang the bell and got off, leaving a great void behind her.

A roar of laughter went up from the occupants when the little man said in a small voice, "I am glad she is not my wife."

Fortunately for me, I had very few bundles to carry. As the crowd decreased, I finally got a seat and was able to watch some of the other people.

I noticed one old man in particular. He was accompanied by three little, rosy-cheeked children, who called him "Grandpa". He seemed to be very jolly. He wore side whiskers, and had a long beak-shaped nose, and his cheeks were as red and rosy as those of the children. He wore a green toque, from under which his gray locks were protruding.

The children were continually fingering his whiskers, while he told them of many things that Santa Claus would bring them if they were good.

As the car was nearing my home, I had to get off; but I do believe that the occupants of that car were the funniest and most jolly that I had ever seen.

Faded Pictures

When the sun has faded and fallen,
And the skies in the west have grown clear,
And you think of your past and your schooldays,
Of your friends and your classmates so dear,
Then you think of your dear old teachers:
How they strove to guide you aright,
How they worked for you and your interest,
Every week, every day, every night.

Then you see yourself as a freshman,
With light heart and free hands of a lad;
Not a care, nor a woe, nor a scolding
Seemed to hurt you or make you look sad.
Then you flew as a Soph and a Junior;
Now more burdens and care seem to rest
On those shoulders that once were so heedless
Of the things they could stand in a test.

Then you were one of those seniors,
And you carried yourself with much pride;
But you thought you were right in so doing,
For that year you felt dignified.
Then a moment of silence and darkness,
And that picture has faded and gone
Like the words from the mouth of a speaker,
That has risen and gone like a song.

And tonight as you lay on your pillow,
Thinking o'er things of the past
And wondering what will become of you,
When you are alone in the blast,
Then black thoughts of the past and the future
Seem to rise one by one and then fall;
They are questions that go as a gesture,
But in the end we must answer them all.

Will my life be written in history
With the ones of the noblest of men;
Or will I end up in a prison
Or sink to some low, gloomy den?
And when I am old—in my eighties—
And I sit by the door, old and gray,
Can I answer the same old question,
Have I led a life that will pay?

A life that my children can follow,
Or a life that is blotted and black?
Is my character white and upspotted,
As it was in my school days—way back?
Now these are a part of the questions
That we students in time shall be asked;
Can we answer them proudly and truly,
Or fail when we think of the task?

So let us all, as members of high school,
Mold characters and lives that will pay;
So when death comes to waken, and nears us,
We'll have won the race, gained the day.

Podunk Beaten After Flute Blew

It was a nice hot day when Ice Cream was melting and Pop with a sad face was going down the on-lookers' necks, for this was the great day of a title ball game.

The line-up of the home team was as follows: Flute pitched, received by Radio; Violin, 1st base; Cornet, 2nd base; Trombone, 3rd base; Brakes, ss; Grass covered right field; Corn, center field; Oats, left field. This made a pretty good team for the town of Podunk.

The pitcher, Flute, was a very high pitcher and often got them to bite. The catcher was a very loud speaker. Our first base man, Violin, was a very sweet player. Cornet was noted for the numerous runs, while Trombone was noted for his slides which made him famous. Brakes was very quick, but often wore out in the critical time of the game. Grass was very tall and rather green for this being his first year. Corn was rather clumsy on account of his ears being so large that they often got in the way. Oats was a very sharp outfielder and had many fine points.

The game was ready to start when the umpire, Garlic, who was very strong, took his place on the field. "Batter up", he shouted. Phonograph took his place at the plate and broke all records by putting the ball over the fence. Apple, the second batter, got saucy with the umpire and was called out. Pickle got up to bat with a sour look and hit one by Cornet who made a run and caught it. Now two men were down and they had one run. Onion, who was the next hitter, looked pretty lucky at the plate. The second ball pitched hit him and took some skin off of his face; this brought tears to the rooters' eyes. Onion was pretty strong so he was able to hobble to 1st. Cabbage was the next hitter. He was considered a pretty good hitter but he had the big head and was also green. Flute walked him, for he was afraid of him. Tomato then strutted to the plate. He drove one over Grass. Tomato saw Cabbage stumbling ahead and yelled to him to hurry, for he did not want to "catch up", but he was soon stopped by Chile Sauce, the base umpire, for not touching 1st base. Corn popped to right field, and then was roasted by the crowd. This making three out, Podunk came to bat. Trombone, the first hitter, made safe by sliding to first. Potato batted for Violin and the pitcher could not fan him for he had too many eyes. Lettuce came to bat for Flute and every one tried to rattle him; but don't worry, Lettuce has a head of his own even if he does wither a little at times. He made a safe hit over 2nd, scoring Trombone. Throughout the game, the score kept pretty even until Flute blew in the eighth. Radio, the Podunk catcher, was not keeping his signals hidden enough and was broadcasting them into eyes of the other team. Podunk, to their great surprise was beaten 10 to 22. Small Pox, a cousin to Measles, broke out in a large cheer as the game ended.

The Short Story

I had been discussing, for several weeks, with my friends and myself, the modern short story, but the more we talked the more undefinable it became.

I was still in this doubtful state of mind when I chanced to visit the library of a friend. It is such a library that one could spend hour after hour in. It is furnished in partly modern and partly antique style with heavy rugs covering the floor. The room is just large enough to be cozy. The walls are lined with filled book cases. On one end of the room by the windows is a heavy davenport and two large chairs with a long mahogany table. In the other end is an old settee with high backs on the ends only. Some rare old prints adorn the walls, and old vases and plates are on the floor and fireplace.

which is on one side. The curtains are of a heavy gray material and a lamp on the table and another by the davenport are of the same color.

I had picked up at random, a volume of Poe, "Twice Told Tales", and "The Sketch Book". After reading and musing over selections from each, I began to feel drowsy. I was just beginning to doze off when an old volume of Ben Jonson's dramas stepped from an upper shelf, climbed painstakingly to the floor and hopped toward the short stories, who began to snicker.

The Drama had a very long face, which wore, at present, a look of disapproval and horror.

"I really don't know what this world is coming to," he lamented, "when people as intelligent looking as this man begin to read you vulgar short stories and leave me on the shelf!"

The "Sketch Book" began to laugh, "Twice Told Tales" looked offended and Poe was very angry.

"Pray tell," they chorused, "what is wrong with us?"

"What isn't wrong, you mean," he retorted haughtily, "you have ruined our set style, you are humorous."

The "Sketch Book" continued to laugh. "That is my ambition," he explained, "If I can bring a smile to a weary face or make someone say, 'that reminds me of the time, etc.', I will feel rewarded for everything."

The Drama went on, "You use such simple language, anyone could read you and understand you, while only the most learned can appreciate me," he elevated his eyebrows and his nose. "You use too much description and imagination, why you even write for children," he condescended to bestow upon them an ironic smile.

"Twice Told Tales" was almost in tears, "I consider it wonderful to express thoughts in such simple words," he protested. "I love to let my mind wander and I enjoy having the children read me."

The Drama looked puzzled, "What a queer lot you are, I am beginning to think that I don't quite understand you."

"If you would only try," pleaded the "Sketch Book," "I think you could grow to understand and like us."

"Well, maybe so," he reluctantly replied, "I'll surely try."

"Thanks, we'll do our best to help you," said the "Sketch Book" and "Twice Told Tales."

"Aha," exclaimed the Drama upon seeing the book of Poe, "Here is something that I cannot overlook. Does any sane person read the horrible, grotesque and unreal fantasies?"

"It surely appears that way," answered the "Sketch Book."

"How could they?" mourned the Drama. "The man who wrote them was crazy. They are the results of an unbalanced mind! His characters are unreal and the stories are ridiculously impossible." His voice rose higher and higher until it became a shrill wail. "His pseudo-science is disgraceful, everywhere there are grief, madness, disease and death. No one but a fiend could read them and enjoy them!"

"Do calm yourself," indignantly replied Poe. "You are merely showing your ignorance, or perhaps your ravings are the result of an unbalanced mind."

"The Drama sputtered away but was quieted by a look from Poe, who continued—

"I am very sorry that you do not appreciate me, but I can see that you do not understand. I strive to do something different and original, to produce an effect. My characters are put in the story only to enforce the horror of the situation. I do not try to make them real or even possible. My tale of pseudo-science is written skillfully enough to produce the desired effect. You say the stories are impossible. You must admit that as you read them they are awfully real."

The Drama sighed and began to hop slowly back toward his shelf. "I'm afraid I can't hold my own much longer," he said with a suspicious quiver in his voice. "I don't quite understand." He began to weep softly.

The short stories were immediately sympathetic and tried to comfort him.

I started to speak to him, when to my surprise he was back on his shelf and as sedate as ever. I turned toward the short stories, expecting them to be laughing at me, but they were just as I had left them on the table.

Beeology

Elwell is a small western village a few miles from a college town. It is settled almost exclusively by farmers who still cling to the customs in regalia and manners of two generations past.

The college in the neighboring town is patronized mostly by eastern young people of the most modern type who only regret their stay in the West because there is danger of falling behind in eastern slang and being called old fashion on their return home. Amusements here are not as numerous as in New York, and nothing delights the young people more than to pile eight or so in a car, or anything with four wheels that goes with anything resembling speed, and drive over to Elwell to tease the farmers in a conversation of question marks in which they introduce all the modern slang and obsolete words that the dictionary and worldly knowledge can graft into a vocabulary which is much more American than English. These conversations strike the farmers much like crossword puzzles, and they "reckon that the young folks from over yonder are queer critters."

One dull September day when the sun hid its face and the wind was quiet, and everything was dull and hot, eight gay students decided it was time to renew their acquaintance at Elwell.

They entered the main street going twenty miles an hour with the cut-out open. The vehicle was the inevitable old Ford without a top. They arrived at the farm house of Farmer Grumble, about half a block from a rickety old bridge which they intended to cross. In front of the house a farmer was painting beehives white. As he heard the Ford coming, he ran toward the road. He still carried the pail of paint in one hand and waved in the other a paint bursh spattering paint, which, by the way, landed a goodly portion on his goatee.

The car came to a halt but the motor was left running. The noise of the motor, which was uncommon in Elwell, seemed to make the farmer nervous; and he became very red in the face except, of course, for the white paint with which he was generously decorated, as he stuttered, "B-B-B-Bee Bee-Bee Ah-hum—"

The young people smiled broadly and one of them spoke:

"Ah, yes of course, the bees. You desire us to abandon our good intentions of scattering sunshine, and for diversion spend the afternoon swarming bees for you." He glanced at the beehives.

At this they all laughed uproariously. The poor farmer's eyes grew big and he shook his head and tried to reply, "No-N-N-, b-b-b-b—hum—ah w-w-ware!"

At this, another bright young student ventured, "Wear, of course! We would wear a bride's gown of muskeeter' netting, and in these elaborate costumes and with tin pans for drums, sally forth and make a beeline for the bees. A regular study of Beeology."

This also was greeted with laughter, and the driver started the car, leaving the poor farmer in the middle of the road waving his arms frantically and continuing his decorating in white paint.

With their eyes shut with laughter, the merry group approached the bridge. Their eyes were soon opened, however, for the car stood in a stream in three feet of water. Luckily, the car lacked a covering, so none were hurt; they were merely a rather startled and wet party sitting in a stream.

I am sure we can forgive the farmer if he smiled a little as he assisted them to dry land, and, recovering himself, explained that he had tried to tell them to "beware the bridge".

SOPHOMORE "WEENIE" ROAST

The sophomores as a class have always excelled in parties. Not to be outdone by any other class, they drove to Waterford Flats for a "Weenie" roast on October 9th. Wood was gathered and Mr. Wilbur demonstrated his ability to make a roaring fire. When all had eaten their fill, games were started. The favorite game was "keep-away" which was played almost all evening. More than once the ball went for a swim in the pond. It is reported that a few had trouble in getting out of the wood on account of "density."

JUNIOR "WEENIE" ROAST

One evening in the early part of October the Junior class went out to Edna Kreeger's for a "weenie" roast. The boys gathered broken limbs and branches and built a fire in the orchard. We had all that went with a weenie roast, even to hot coffee. After the roast games were played. As we were getting ready to leave, the fire siren blew which hastened our departure. Shall we ever forget a certain member who after devouring eight or ten weenies said, "Who ate all the weenies?"

FRESHMAN "WEENIE" ROAST

The opening event of our freshman year was also a weenie roast. On October the 31st we hiked out to Phoenix park, as hiking is considered healthful for the smallest children, and arrived there at 5 o'clock. Of course the next thing to attract notice was that queer gnawing feeling which usually accompanies hunger, so wood was gathered and the fire started. For a while everyone was occupied with the roasting of weenies and marshmallows and in turn devouring them. Games were played for as long as we freshmen dared to stay out. Then we hiked home again.

HALLOWE'EN MASQUE

The Hallowe'en Masque took place on the evening of October the 24th. The gymnasium was very appropriately decorated with corn stalks, pumpkins and hay. A hay mow effect had been arranged for the music makers, Perkins Orchestra. Doughnuts and cider were served for refreshments.

FRESHMAN CHRISTMAS PARTY

On December the 22nd, at five o'clock, the freshmen assembled in the gymnasium to wait for Santa Claus to come. While waiting, Florence Stanley and Charles Ely furnished music for the rest to dance. People think we can't dance but you just ought to watch us. After we had danced for a while lunch was served. We waited and waited but no Santa Claus appeared on the scene, so the presents were given out and the class adjourned for Christmas vacation.

SOPHOMORE'S NEW YEAR'S PARTY

Everyone knows that the Sophomores can't lose out on anything so of course we had to have a New Year's party. This took place on January the fifth in the school gymnasium. We had a delicious dinner in the lunch room and then played games to settle it. Through Mr. Wilbur's kindness, we had a victrola to provide music for dancing. We knew we had good cooks and dancers, but were surprised to discover some excellent dishwashers too.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

The annual Father and Son banquet which took place in the high school gymnasium on the evening of February the 12th, proved to be a very enjoyable affair for the guests, that is, if noise is any proof of a good time. The dinner seemed to be enjoyed alike by old and young. The menu was as follows: Roast Beef, Mashed Potatoes, Pineapple Salad, Fruit Jello, Rolls, Pickles, Pie, Cheese, Coffee, Milk.

Mr. E. L. Smith officiated as toastmaster and the program was most interesting. Howard Helfrich, a member of the 1924 graduating class, arranged to have some of his college friends from the Normal here to furnish the music. The address of the evening was given by Professor M. S. Pittman of the Ypsilanti Normal College.

JUNIOR ENTERTAINMENTS

Two band entertainments were given under the auspices of the Junior Class. One concert was given by the Highland Park High School Orchestra of which Miss Marquita Wallin, a former Northville resident, is the director. In addition to the well played selections by the orchestra, there were several other good numbers: a men's octette, a violin solo and vocal solos.

The other concert was given by the Michigan State Normal College band, accompanied by a quartette and a tenor soloist. Best of all however was a cornet solo played by a alumnus, Howard Helfrich, '24.

SOPHOMORE PARTY

On the evening of March the 9th, the sophomores, feeling that they could not go longer without notice, staged another party in the gymnasium. No party seems complete without "eats" so they endeavored to make a complete affair of it. I imagine they had in view the two athletic teams that were yet to be formed; at any rate, they spent the evening in relays and running games. I heard it rumored that Mr. Wilbur and even Mr. Palmer became very kiddish that night. As I understand it, the rest acted more like fifth graders than sophomores until it was time to wash dishes. It is strange how suddenly age can strike.

J-HOP

The first real social function of the year was the J-Hop given on the evening of April the 24th. The decoration of blue and gold were very attractively arranged and more than one person was heard to remark about the very artistic decorations. The party was well attended, and the dancers seemed to enjoy the music which was furnished by Ted Rhodes' Orchestra of Ann Arbor.

SENIOR PROM

The last great social event of the Seniors was the "Prom" on the evening of May 15, 1925. The decorations were of gray and green, very artistically arranged. The music was furnished by Schneider's orchestra of Ann Arbor. The affair was certainly in keeping with all other affairs of the Seniors. It proved to be a delightful and well attended social function.

At the Right—Richard Sonnenberg, Northville District Champion, Detroit News Spelling Contest.

Reva Schrader: "Well, I answered a question in class today."

Virginia Smith: "What answer did you give?"

Reva Schrader: "Present."

Miss F. Yerkes: "What style of writing did Chaucer introduce?"

James Wood: "He introduced doublets."

Ave Henry: "Why is a girl like a chemist?"

Ralph White: "When you take her out, she turns gold and silver to copper."

Mr. Helfrich: "I maintain that men and women are equal."

Miss Taylor: "Why, Mr. Helfrich! You are bragging."

Clausen Murdock: "Did you know the new postal law prohibits the sending of love letters through the mail?"

Elsie Martens: "No, why?"

Clausen Murdock: "To protect us males they tell me."

Reva Schrader: "What is that burning?"

Mr. Helfrich: "It smells like rubber."

Ave Henry: "That is the cooking class."

Some people are crusty, because that is the way they're bread.

Miss A. Yerkes: "William you haven't washed your neck and wrists for a week. What do you expect to be?"

William Allen: "Me? I am going to be a dirt farmer."

Abie: "Mama, what do cows live on?"

Mama: "Fodder, Abie."

Abie: "Oh! I didn't know father was so generous."

Cecil Fry (talking to Beth): "When will there only be 25 letters in the alphabet?"

Beth Ponsford: "I don't know. When?"

Cecil Fry: "When U and I are one."

Mrs. Larkins: "James, I wouldn't slide down those stirs!"

James Wood: "Wouldn't! You mean couldn't!"

Echoes From Washington

Mr. Helfrich: "Better take a sody mint."

Miss Yerkes: "Where's Mr. Colman? Has anyone seen Mr. Colman?"

Lucile and Barbara: "Come on, let's go in and see the Farmington girls again."

Ida Rose: "Ed! Where's Ed?"

Butch: "Now, don't let me go to sleep 'til we go through Toledo."

Mr. Helfrich to Laura: "Now, if Allen was only here—"

Bus Driver: "Directly ahead of the buss is "so and so". We will go through it in a minute."

Butch: "When do we eat?"

Virginia: "Razz-berries!"

Joe: "I'm goin' in the Farmington bus."

Mr. Helfrich: "Oh Katterinka!"

Mr. Wilbur (in Algebra class): "Why Elsie, you picked the easiest one of the bunch to fall down on!"

Elsie Schultz: "That's all right. I did the hardest ones then."

Dorothy Green said, "All the Starrs are not in the sky!"

Senior: "Is she a good driver?"

Soph: "Yep, she just drives me crazy."

Miss A. Yerkes: "Leo, go up and sit in the front seat."

Leo Wood (who had just finished shooting a paper wad): "I didn't do anything, Miss Yerkes."

Miss Yerkes (Very much disgusted): "Go up there any way."

Leo Wood: "Oh, I see! You want me to go up there just for fun."

Vance: "Oh! You mean thing!"

Ave: "Have you ever been in love before?"

Vance: "That is my business."

Ave: "How is business?"

Miss Avery's favorite pastime: Jumping at conclusions.

Clyde Casterline: "An awful lot of girls are stuck on me."

Alec Milne: "Yes, they must be an awful lot!"

Miss Yerkes: "They could not read or write."

Harry: "Could they spell?"

Clausen Murdock: "I was out walking with that girl from Detroit, when it started to rain."

Kennie Edwards: "Was she frightened?"

A jolly young chemistry tough

Who was mixing a compound of stuff

Dropped a match in a vial,

And after a while

They found his front teeth and one cuff.

Reva Schrader: "I think your little brother, Alf, is awfully cute."
Virginia Smith: "Yes he does look a lot like me."

Vance McKahn (The civics class is talking about the new house for the feeble-minded): "But how will they get the people for this place?"
Miss Yerkes: "Oh, they won't have any trouble."

Miss Avery: "How do you find description in Cooper's words?"
Ave Henry: "By the yard."

Mr. Helfrich (after hearing a discussion of dry weather): "Why, it was so dry in Columbiaville that we had to sprinkle the lake to keep the fish from kicking up dust."

Harry German (after being rejected by his lady love): "Then this is absolutely final?"

Lottie Dorsey: "Quite! Shall I return your letters?"

Harry German: "Yes, please, there's some very good material in there that I can use again."

Miss Lyke: "How much milk does your cow give a day?"

Harry Sedan: "'Bout eight quarts."

Miss Lyke: "And how much of that do you sell?"

Harry Sedan: "'Bout twelve quarts."

Miss Avery: "What did the Israelites do after crossing the Red Sea?"

Dorothea Dunbar: "I am not sure, Teacher, but I think they dried themselves."

Murphie made an angel cake
For her darling Edward's sake
"Edward, you a piece must take."
This she meant.

Edward ate it every crumb,
Then he heard the angel's hum,
Calling softly, "Edward, come."
Edward went.

Mr. Helfrich: "Name a liquid that won't freeze."

Lucile: "Hot water."

At teachers' meeting—Enter Mr. Miller.

A. J. H.: "Let us all now rise and sing our latest song hit,
"Mister Judge, please forget your grammar and leave the period off my sentence."

Florence: "Say, you've never danced before."

Don Kerr: "All right. You're good enough to practice on."

Wicky: "Which do you think is the best acrobat, Leo or James Wood?"

Gid: "Neither. What about Robinson Crusoe? It says here, 'After he had finished his meal he lit up his pipe and sat down on his chest'."

Del Campbell (wrathfully): "Lynn, I'm going to climb your frame!"

Lynn Fraser: "It'll be a long climb, my boy."

Miss Yerkes: "I think her name was Curtiss."

Leo Wood: "Must be some relation to me."

Junior: "Daddy, there is a bug on the ceiling."

Mr. Wilbur (who is busy correcting exam papers): "That's all right, son, step on it."

Miss Moore: "Clifford, who are the people who pay taxes?"

Butch: "The tax payers."

Miss Yerkes: "Terry, do you know the census helps the shoe manufacturer?"

Terry Thompson: "He knows how many shoes to make."

Mrs. Larkins: "Lynn, why were you late this noon?"

Lynn Partridge: "I had to wait for the barber to finish shaving me."

Vivian Taylor: "Why did you let go of that steering wheel?"

Dick Smith: "I wanted to see if I had a flat tire."

A CHEMICAL TRAGEDY

The Prof, went on a business tour
The class it's work would do, 'twas sure.
But Lizzie said, "We shall explore
The Lab;" and looked the bottles o'er.

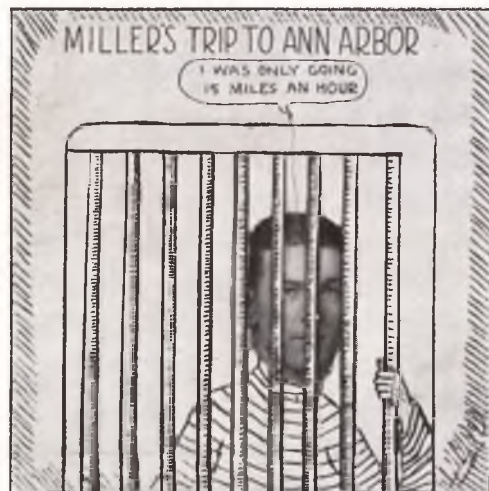

While Murph Cavell in mischief swore
Some fun to make, and did secure
Some chemicals, a pound or more!
Quoth Ave, in terror. "Never More!"

Said Reva, "I will watch the door
While Donald does the acid pour."
And Lucy, who felt quite secure,
Stepped close, that she might see the more.

The bottle dropped upon the floor,
Producing a terrific roar——
"The chem. class now, 'tis very sure,
Shall meet," quoth Helfrich, "nevermore."

For Lucy, who felt quite secure,
Is nameless here for evermore.
And Don, who sought the stuff to pour
The Gates of Heaven doth explore.

—James Wood

Our Annual

Someone has said that everything is done for a purpose. These words are true and we do not vary from them in our endeavor to publish a bigger and better annual. Our purpose is not to make money, nor to gain credit for ourselves, but to show the public what the Northville High School is doing. We want you people to know what your children are doing throughout the school year. We also want you to know what role your children are playing in high school activities. We want to convince you that education is necessary and that there are no better institutions than schools.

That our school course and activities are well balanced, you may see by the various departments of this book. This allows the best talent in many lines to be brought out. Our Domestic Science Department with the lunch room was added this year for the benefit of the girls. Next year we hope to tell you of the accomplishments of the boys in the proposed Manual Training Department. Thus our school is putting forth every effort to give us a better understanding of and preparation for all the opportunities which will come to us later.

We have hoped by means of this book to arouse in those not directly connected with the school a deeper interest in it and its activities; to those whose names appear in this, we have perhaps given some means of recalling days which will linger in memories. If this annual has succeeded in doing either, we of the Annual Staff shall feel fully repaid for our efforts.

THE SPIRIT OF PROGRESS

Architects, Builders, Contractors—all who are engaged on construction work—are keenly alive to the spirit of the times. Methods that were in vogue but a comparatively few years ago are discarded for other and better ways of doing the same things.

This "spirit of progress" is the keynote of the success of our business. You will find us keenly alive to your needs and prompt to serve you with the very latest and best in Hardware, Plumbing, Heating and Tinning.
