EVERYDAY HEROES, EVERY DAY

Clark Kent ripping off his suit, becoming Superman when Metropolis is in trouble, is an apt comparison to the heroes of our school, who daily do battle to meet the challenges of a $7 million budget cut.

"We had to do more with less money," Principal Robert Watson said. The list of cuts was long, and included laying off teachers, revising schedules and eliminating several bus routes.

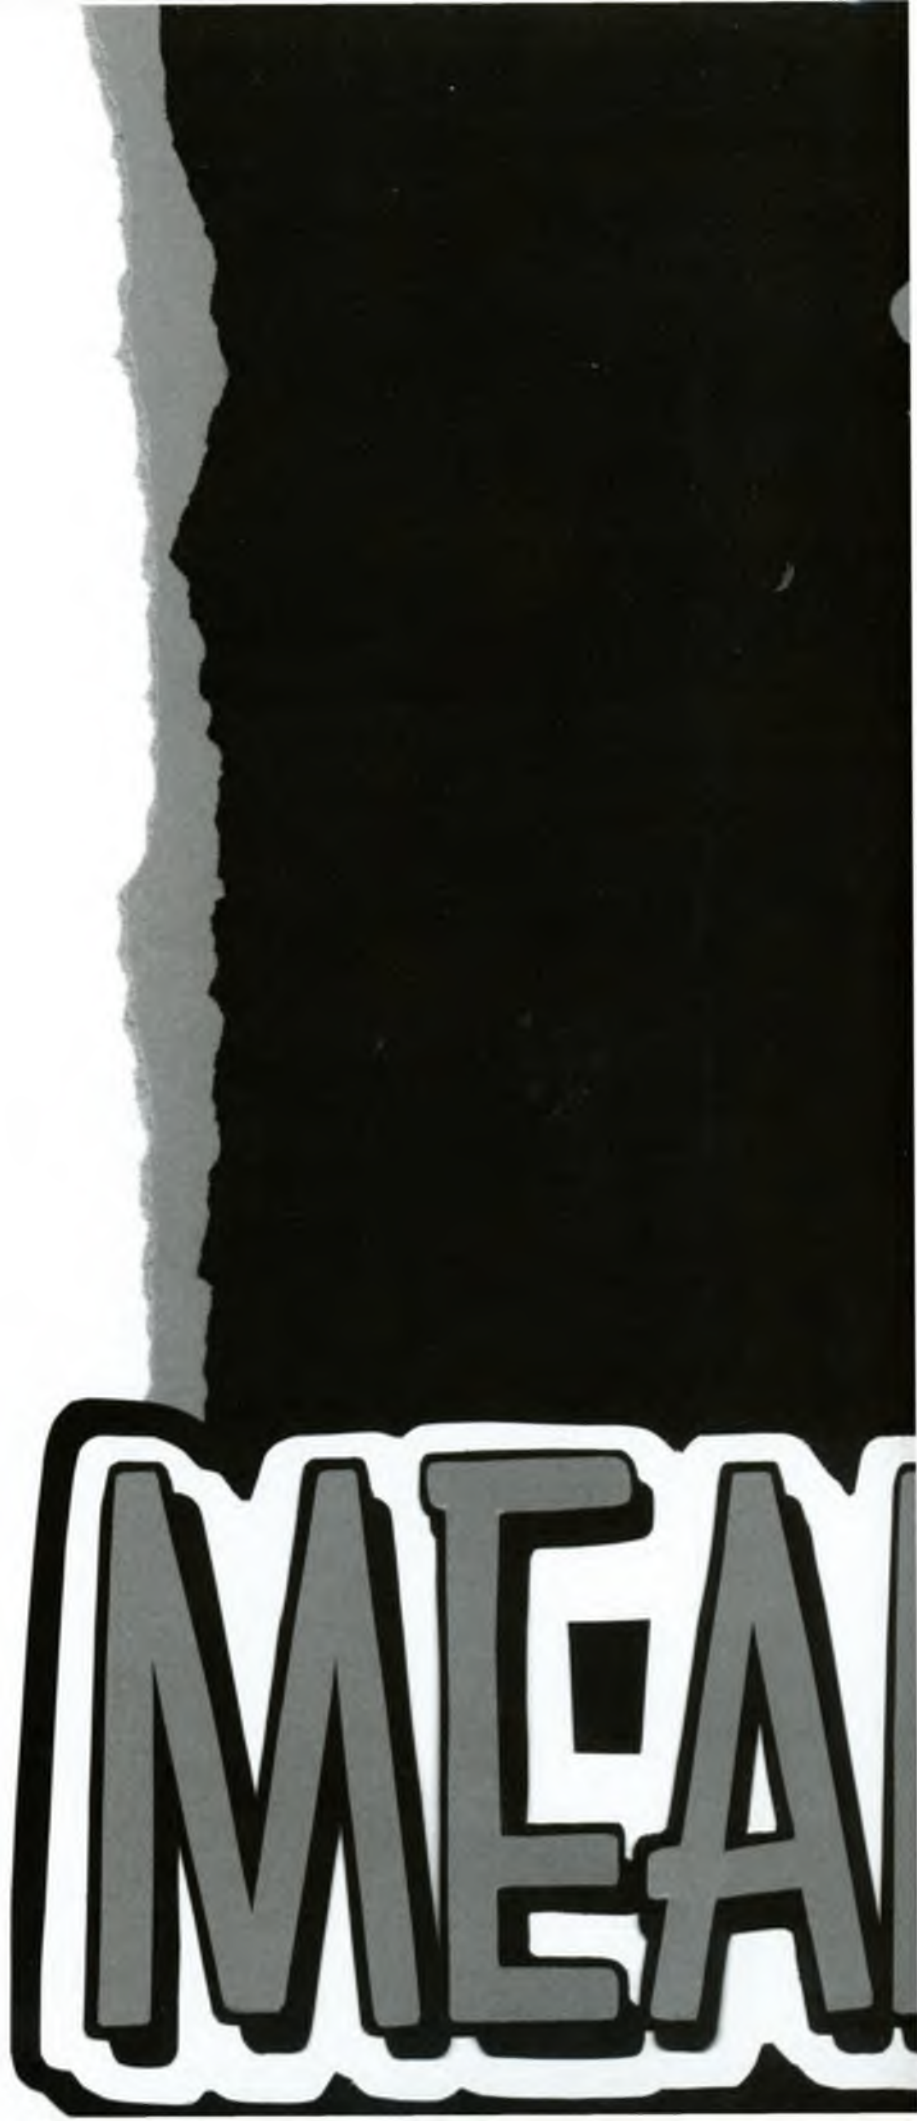

"What's most disappointing is that a lot of the things I really enjoy about teaching, like one-on-one work, I don't have as much time to do," English teacher Chris Cronin said.

While Cronin works on a tighter schedule, senior Bridget Dunn said she is trying to survive her senior year running clubs that are operating on tighter budgets. "In Lit Mag, we're cutting down our color section, in Recycling Club, we're fighting to break even. In Congress, we're buying Scanticons in bulk," she said.

The difficult times have forced members of the school system to step up and become true superheroes, this year more than ever. "The employees in the district are very resilient and have made sacrifices in order to continue to put out the best possible product," Watson said.

"Tough times show us what we're made of," Dunn said.

TO INFINITY AND BEYOND

So senior Elizabeth Hadley got a summer job. Big deal. It's not rocket science, right?

Actually, it kind of was.

"What I did was very unique," Hadley said, displaying her NASA notebook. "I wanted to develop my computer programming skills while reaching out to the community," she explained.

Hadley was one of seven students in the United States selected for an eight-week internship with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. To complete her mission, Hadley traveled to the Glenn Research Center in Cleveland, Ohio over the summer and put her supers-marts to work.

Working alongside NASA scientists, Hadley developed more than 500 lines of code that will eventually lead to stronger space explorations. "I also worked on developing a mini Mars Rover," Hadley explained. "The rover has similar features to the real Mars Rover."

Hadley reached out to the community when students from all over the country were granted access to the virtual rover through the internet. "Students can understand the different techniques required to drive the Mars rover," she explained.

Hadley netted $3,000 for her efforts at NASA, but more importantly, she said she helped improve future NASA missions for generations to come.

HEADING TO HOCKEYTOWN

Dozens of eyes scan the bustling airport terminal to catch a quick glimpse of the wide-brimmed cowboy hats bobbing their way through the crowd. The two boys from Texas make their way to the baggage claim, picking up their luggage and their hockey bags.

Four years ago, Timothy Holt was fresh out of eighth grade, preparing to attend Northville High School when he received the news that his family would be moving to Plano, Texas.

"I was really down about leaving my friends at first, but after awhile, I adjusted," Holt said. He and his brother, Jonathan, said they made it their goal to return to Michigan each year to catch up with old friends. Part of the tradition is to attend the University of Michigan hockey camp.

"Returning to Northville each year is great, and I'm glad I still have friends up there that I keep in touch with," Timothy said. "The best part is skating with them because it feels like I never left."

Senior Kevin Courtney had a chance to catch up with the Holts while he was in town. "Even though [Tim] missed many fun times, he made up for it in the short week that he was here," Courtney said.

Sophomore Austin Ratts is a friend of the Holt brothers, and he joins them each year for hockey camp. "Each year, I look forward to the final scrimmage, which makes us use everything we've learned all week under pressure," he said.

With crisp puck work and heads-up play, the three friends found their way onto the score sheet six times during their team's 10-6 victory. Jonathan and Ratts said they will be back next year to show the campers how it's done, one more time.

"CLIMBING HELPS ME RELAX AND GET TUNE WITH MYSELF," FIELDS SAID. "IT RELIEVES ANY STRESS I HAVE."

BUGGY 101

Senior Zachary Gears drove his dune buggy around Crystal Lake this summer, and here he explains a few of the modifications he made to his buggy.

- ❶ "These special mirrors are used to see all around you, so you don't run into anyone else in the dunes. We almost had someone run into us, but we got out of the way at the last minute."
- ❷ "The rental company had us wear protective eyewear, so sand wouldn't get everywhere."
- ❸ "With all the air we were getting, without the support of shocks, we would have bottomed out."

PARADE OF CHAMPIONS

As if a trip to Spain weren't already going to be the experience of a lifetime, the 12 students who traveled there this summer on the World Languages-sponsored trip arrived in Madrid just in time for the World Cup final game.

Spain, of course, won.

"The culture really came out the night of the World Cup when everyone was decked out in red and yellow," senior Molly Shuart said. "It was the most memorable part of the trip," she added.

Senior Karly Fisher said she was especially excited because of her love for soccer. "We were invited by the locals to watch the game in their meat shop," Fisher explained. "The whole city celebrated until early the next morning."

The following evening, the girls attended a parade honoring the team. "The fans had songs that they kept chanting," senior Charli Migoski said. "My favorite was 'Campeones, campeones!'" For you non-Spanish speakers, that's champions.

"It was incredible to see the thousands of fans who came to watch the game in Madrid," senior Alexandria Syverson said.

"The pride people had for their country was insane."

FREE FALLING

(Right) With his instructor, Andy, senior Ryan Trotter safely lands after skydiving. "Landing was the part I was most nervous for," he said, "but it went smoothly." (Center) Trotter feels the Gs while skydiving this summer. "Initially, I was kind of freaking out because I was jumping out of a plane," he said. "Once I was in free fall, everything changed. It was exhilarating."

GREAT ESCAPES

Stateside or abroad, summer finds students at destinations near and far. These students shared their summer travels.

MADRID, SPAIN: "The best part of my summer by far was going to Spain. We got there the day of the World Cup, so it was crazy."

SENIOR RACHEL BEGER

ITHACA, NEW YORK: "I stayed up until 2 a.m. every day and almost pulled an all-nighter on the last day. I discovered that one of my favorite dance songs was 'Sexy Chick' by Akon and David Guetta at the dance party on the last day of camp."

SENIOR ROBERT HSU

ON THE NATIONAL YOUTH LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE TRIP TO CHINA, JUNIOR DAWSON LAABS VISITS THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA. "EXPERIENCING THE DIFFERENT CULTURES AND CUSTOMS OF CHINA MADE ME REALIZE HOW DIVERSE THE WORLD REALLY IS," LAABS SAID. MEANWHILE, BACK IN SPAIN...

SENIOR MOLLY SHUART PREPARES A SPANISH TORTILLA, COMMONLY SERVED IN RESTAURANTS IN MADRID. "I HAD A TON OF FUN COOKING AND PUTTING MY SPANISH SKILLS TO USE," SHE SAID.

DON'T TRY THIS AT HOME

"For about three seconds, my arm was on fire," senior Jill Dobronski said. Dobronski explained that she and her friend, senior Laura Mifsud, were trying to make a night in more exciting by mixing flames and bug spray.

"We thought it'd be a good idea to make a big flame using bug spray and a lighter," Dobronski said. "I was holding the lighter, and [Mifsud] sprayed the flame, which shot up my arm." The flame extinguished itself after the bug spray burned off.

The two were at a party at alum James Willard's house when they caught the host off-guard with their antics. "We were playing Mario Kart," Willard said. "All I hear is this explosion sound, and I turn around, and Jill has her arm on fire."

Willard admitted he wasn't worried; instead, it made him laugh.

Mifsud said she reacted the same way. "It was scary at first," she said. "Then the fire went out, and we started cracking up."

Dobronski said she couldn't laugh as easily.

"I was really scared, and I thought I'd have burns," she said. Neither girl sustained any injuries.

Dobronski told her friend senior Mariam Cheaib about the incident. Cheaib said, "It sounded really funny. We laughed about it at first and then realized how stupid it was, but we still laugh about it now."

So, did the girls learn their lesson? Hardly.

"Next time, I'll be more careful," Dobronski said. "It won't be with bug spray or anything that makes 'big flames.'"

SHINING MOMENT

OCEANS ABLAZE

The explosion of the Deepwater Horizon BP oil rig and ensuing oil spill caught public attention this summer. Senior Christian Guenther suggested lighting the oil on fire, but other students had less hazardous solutions.

"I would lift the oil out of the water telepathically and put it back into the underground pipe. I would use my heat ray, like the one Superman has, to seal the pipe."

SOPHOMORE ALEXANDER WEIR-WITMER

"I would make a giant underwater train and connect a tube from the oil pipe to the train, and the train would run on the oil until the oil is all gone. Then I would duct tape the pipe, so the oil would not leak out."

FRESHMAN LAUREN SIROIS

"I would use SpongeBob, like the sponge he is, and soak up the oil. Then put Patrick's rock on the pipe to seal it."

TEAM MAKES A BIG SPLASH

The Meadowbrook Country Club competitive swim program didn't just entertain its members over the summer; it made a difference in the community. The swim team participated in a mission with Bridgepointe, a community outreach program.

The team also held a 24-hour swim-a-thon with the Bridgepointe children to raise money for Kids Against Hunger, a group that sends food to children in need.

"[The children in the Bridgepointe program] came to Meadowbrook for a day and went swimming in our pool," junior Kayla Hagan said. She added, "It was so fun, and you could tell that it made the kids' summer special. Some of them had never even swam before."

"A swim-a-thon is when at least one person stays in the pool for 24 hours; it was from noon to noon," freshman Loren Evans said.

"It was a really good experience, and I'd definitely do it again if I had the opportunity," sophomore Randal Holloway said.

Hagan added, "It was amazing bringing people together from two different places, and then us all swimming together."

CREW UNVEILS SECRET STAIRS

"Most students are scared to use it at first, but at the same time, it is exciting, and they think it is a cool and different experience," senior Daniel Robinson said.

As part of Tech Crew, Robinson said he's seen students' responses to the unfamiliar spiral staircase next to the auditorium stage.

Tech Crew builds sets and works backstage for theater productions, and they use the staircase often. "The staircase is really important because we can change and move lights on the catwalk," Robinson said. "All of the lights are moved around on a regular basis."

Not just anyone is allowed to use the spiral staircase though, sophomore George Gallagher explained. "You have to get permission from the auditorium manager and go with someone who has been up there before," he said.

Sophomore Emily Donohoe, stage manager, explained the necessary precautions that students in Tech Crew must follow when using the staircase. "When we are going up the stairs, we have to space ourselves out," she said.

"For safety reasons, only one person can be on the stairs at a time," Robinson added. "And walking is a must. If you run, you will fall."

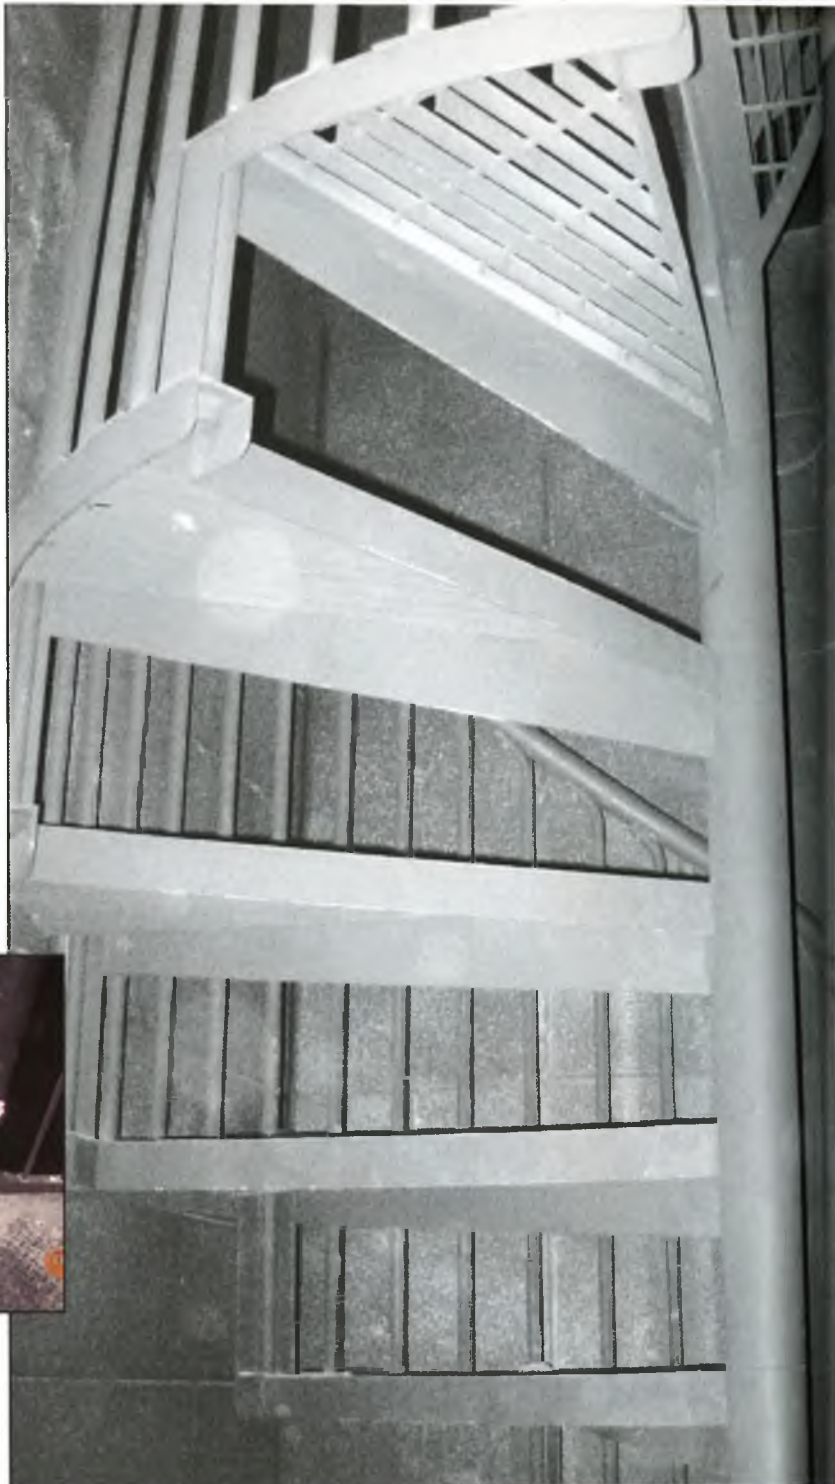

Although the spiral staircase is familiar to members of Tech Crew, Robinson said only a few students outside of the drama department know about the spiral staircase.

WALK, DON'T RUN

(Above) Walking down the staircase, sophomore Megan Conner uses caution. "Only one person can climb up at a time, or the excess weight could cause the staircase to fall," she said.

POWERS OF OBSERVATION

THESE STAIRS COME ALIVE WITH THE SOUND OF MUSIC EVERY DAY.

A HELPING HAND

MYTHBUSTERS

Students say rumors float around school all the time, and sometimes even going straight to the top doesn't help; it only perpetuates the myth.

"I've heard our school breeds birds in the underground lair for the upperclassmen."

"It's true. It's odd because there are always a large amount of Canadian Geese around our school. We house them in the irrigation pond in the back."

THE SIXTH SENSE

SHOP SMART

$17.50 for a t-shirt, $29.50 for a hoodie and $39.50 for jeans. That's $80 for one outfit.

"I like saving my money, which is probably why I don't go to the mall that often," sophomore Amanda Ciccarelli said, laughing.

But what about the sales advertised?

"They mark [clothing] up a lot, so when they say 'Oh, it's 75 percent off', they're still making a huge profit," James Lee, a summer school Economics teacher, said.

Customers said they've noticed the high prices too. Senior Katelyn Meck, for example, said she finds lower prices by going to consignment stores like Plato's Closet.

"Plato's Closet has a lot of the same clothes from the mall, but they are much less expensive," Meck said. "The best part is that the clothes are in great condition too."

Ted Porter, a manager at the First Presbyterian Thrift Shop, says consignment stores offer a unique shopping experience at lower prices.

"We're a fraction of what [the mall] charges," Porter said. "A typical shirt or blouse is about $3."

But to sophomore Sarah Oryschak, it isn't all about money.

"It's fun to get new things and express yourself by what you wear or buy," Oryschak said. "That's the best part of shopping."

by Megan Ye

SHOP 'TIL YOU DROP

(Right) Senior Kathleen Parks takes a break from shopping in Paris. "Though French fashion is typically associated with high prices, during the summer, there are huge sales because those are the vacation months for students as well as adults," Parks said.

(Below) While strolling the streets of France, seniors Kathleen Turner and Parks look at a street booth. "Money was a very difficult thing to divide amongst the activities and expenses I was interested in," Turner said. "Thankfully sales were abundant, leaving me in a comfortable financial situation."

SUPERSTAR SIGHTINGS

The beautiful girl screams as the killer chases her with a bloody knife. Suddenly, the director yells, "Cut!" and the actors walk across the streets of downtown Northville to their trailers.

In July, the city got red carpet treatment when celebrities flooded the small-town streets for the filming of Scream 4. Courtney Cox, David Arquette and Adam Brody were just a few of the stars sophomore Heather Lamoureux spotted.

Scenes from the movie were filmed in and around Lamoureux's home, which was transformed to meet the needs of the crew.

"The whole experience was like moving out of the house and moving back in," Lamoureux said.

Unlike Lamoureux, freshmen Eleni Lionas and Julia Colasanti had to hide for a closer view. "We had to sneak around bushes, houses and crew members, but it was all worth it when we came face to face with our favorite stars," Colasanti said.

"I was really excited that Scream 4 was being done in Northville because I always thought it'd be an awesome place for a movie to be filmed," sophomore Miranda Niemiec said.

"Northville is the new Hollywood," Colasanti said.

ARMED AND DANGEROUS

When the United States military was searching for a vehicle to replace its battle-proven Jeep, they looked to the AM General Corporation for its replacement.

The 1992 Hummer was designed with reliability and ruggedness, and it featured machine gun turrets. Almost two decades later, juniors Connor and Trevor Smith drive their 2002 Hummer. And yes, it does have turrets.

Students said that the turrets mounted on the front of a roaring 6,614-pound Hummer are intimidating. When freshman Cody Fielden was asked about the Hummer, all he could do was smile. He explained, "It's the coolest car at NHS. I like how loud it is. The mounted turret guns are awesome."

"When you start the Hummer up in the morning, it gets your adrenaline going and wakes you up," Connor explained.

Connor and Trevor have been working on the truck for six years now. Connor argues that the truck is his, while Trevor blurts, "No, it's mine."

There is one thing that the twins do agree on, and that is that life isn't bad when you are deciding who gets to drive the Hummer to school.

SUPER SPIRITED

Giant bunnies and Harry Potter clones roamed the halls. It was Spirit Week, and student spirit was evident, and in some cases, excessive.

When students let their creativity run away with them, it ended up getting them busted.

On Fictional Character Day, senior Matthew Lippert dressed as a big, fluffy bunny but hopped into a bit of trouble. "I had to take off my bunny hat as soon as I walked in the door," Lippert said. "You can't hide your face."

Senior Caitlin Bachelder said she wanted to pull her books around in a sled for Aspen Day, but that plan was thwarted once the hall monitor saw her.

"Jeremy! Jeremy found me! I was walking into class, and he stepped out from around the corner and busted me," Bachelder explained.

More drama developed Friday when students were seen wearing old cheer uniforms donated to the Drama Club by the cheer coach. "The girls borrowed them from the costume closet, just to wear something spirited," senior Molly Ladhoff said. "They were busted!"

Senior Alison Hartnagel said the behavior is justified. "Sometimes, you gotta risk it," she said.

SWEET REVENGE

Playing in front of the Homecoming crowd, the Mustang football team had one thing on its mind: revenge.

"Last year, our playoff run was cut short because of Livonia Stevenson Spartans," junior Jeffrey Gertley said.

The team was feeling a lot of pressure, Gertley said. Not only did they lose to the Spartans at their last meeting, but it was also the Homecoming Game. "But we were ready," senior Trevor McGowan said.

The Mustangs went into the game undefeated, with five wins, averaging almost 50 points a game.

"This was a big win, not only for us, but also for our community," Head Coach Matt Ladach said. "The win opened their eyes to the talent of the varsity football team."

With a victory against a solid team, the Mustangs continued their winning streak by beating cross-town rivals, Novi, 27-14 and in turn taking the division.

CINDERELLA SAVES THE DAY

In the midst of an economic recession, the fall play cast made a musical change.

"We made the switch to a musical rather than a play because they tend to have a heavier turnout," senior Erin Donohoe explained. "This change was for the better."

"I liked the idea of trying something different," senior Daniel Robinson said. "It definitely had its challenges, but it was worth it."

According to the assistant director, senior Matthew Hartman, the fall play brought in more than 1,000 people on Saturday alone. The show would never have been such a huge hit without the advertising help from a local charity. "Since times are tough, and the charity brought in a large crowd, we decided to give half of our proceeds to charity for the first time," junior Madison Merlanti said.

The crew decided on the musical Cinderella, because they said the theme paralleled the new charity they were supporting, Hearts for Hunger. "Volunteers at Hearts for Hunger make meals for children in Haiti and other destitute countries," Donohoe said.

"Since Cinderella is about a poor young girl, the charity fit the play well."

"It was nice to use our talents to give back to the community during these tough times," she added.

DEFEATING A NEMESIS

A rivalry is the mutual understanding between two teams that, on the field, anything goes," senior and captain of the soccer team Joseph Zywiol said.

"It's a constant fight for bragging rights," Zywiol continued. "You are playing for more than just another 'W' on the record sheet; you are playing for the pride of your school."

The competition between Novi and Northville has become a lot more than a cross-town rivalry, senior and lineman Alan Nguyen explained. "Winning the jug two years in a row has caused a war between our schools," he explained.

"There always has been a lot of tension between the schools in every sport," senior and lineman Trevor McGowan said. "The dramatic overtime win last year pushed the tension over the edge."

The "tension" McGowan spoke of was also seen in the varsity soccer game against Novi. "We played Novi for the division final," Zywiol said. "Both teams fought extremely hard, and each tackle was full force. We literally left it all on the field."

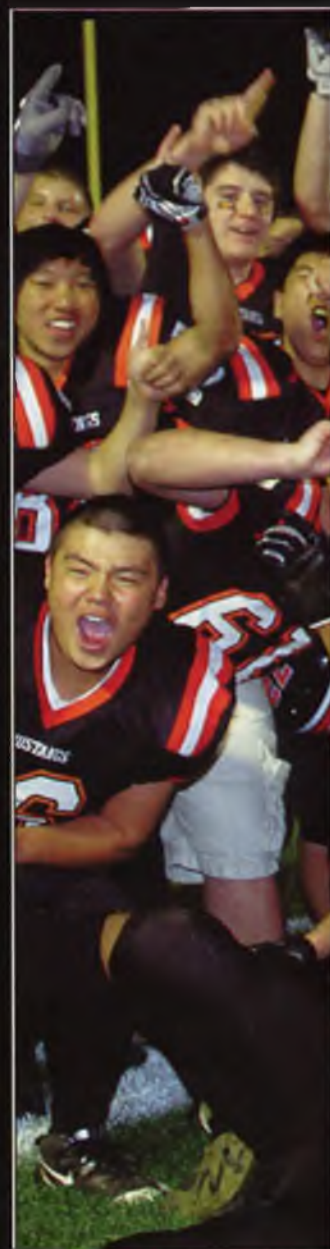

Whether they won or lost, members of every team spoke passionately of the rivalry between the schools and the game's ability to force athletes to push themselves to their limits.

PACK LEADERS

"Cross country is a different kind of team sport," sophomore Alexandra Draybuck said. "We usually run individually, and then the points we get go towards our overall score, but this year, we have been doing pack running."

The girls cross country team was fourth in the state, and this is also the first year they have used pack running.

"Pack running is when a lot of girls run with each other and cross each mile together. We try to cross the finish line as close together as possible," senior and captain Helen Mulcahy said. "Someone sets a pace, and everyone tries to follow."

According to coach Nancy Smith, who has coached the team for ten years, she has wanted to do pack running since she started coaching. Smith said this is the first year the girls had the talent to do it.

"When the top five girls come across the finish line within 30 seconds of each other, the points increase greatly," Smith said. "I do believe that pack running is the reason our team is state ranked."

"I think pack running has helped a lot of girls push themselves, and we really stay motivated when some of the girls call out encouraging statements throughout the race," Draybuck said. "Pack running really brings out everyone's true talent."

Senior Chad Cini's breakout season was a contributing factor to the team's success this year. ## ALL WRAPPED UP

Sweat ran down the tired faces of the seven varsity boys as they sprinted up the final hill at Cass Benton to finish with an undefeated record.

"This team has been one of the most talented group of boys that Northville has ever had," Coach Chris Cronin said.

Cronin added that the boys' success was based on a new team strategy: pack running. The boys and girls teams both switched up their strategies this year.

In pack running, three to five runners group together and pace each other from miles one to three. In the last 100 meters, the boys break away and finish on their own. "It's a push and pull effect," junior Matthew Sierra explained.

"Cronin has wanted to use pack running ever since my freshman year," senior Robert Singletary said. "It emphasizes team unity, and it's intimidating for the other teams to see that many of us in one pack."

Runners said that the transition into running as a team was not as easy as Cronin made it sound. "We actually weren't that good at packing at the beginning of the summer," senior and captain Trent Johnson said. "It took some getting used to."

"The hardest part was the first couple of weeks in August when we got most of our mileage up and built our base," Sierra said. Base mileage is the core part of the season where runners drastically increase their mileage.

"I like the team camaraderie because we form strong bonds through our blood, sweat and tears," Sierra said. He said their hard work rewarded the boys with an undefeated dual meet record and a conference championship.

PROVING THEMSELVES

One football team, 26 seniors, five coaches, one senior retreat and 31 different stories.

The seniors attributed the season's success to the goals they set at the retreat: keeping the Baseline Jug and winning the Division.

The goal of the retreat was for the senior players to understand what was expected of them and their team. "After the school laughed at us at the mock crash when Coach Ladach said he would never see his team win a championship, we knew we would prove everybody wrong," senior Anthony Peraino said.

With that in mind, the team set about making their goals a reality.

They worked through two-a-days in 90-degree weather, practicing from 7:45 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Through the pain, the sweat, the blood and the tears, the team not only made it through those hell weeks, but were on their way to capturing the division title.

The Mustangs faced Lakeland at Eastern Michigan for its season opener. After senior Jonathon Alandt took the opening kickoff back for a touchdown, the game was over. The Mustangs defeated Lakeland 35-0.

The momentum only built from there as they continued a seven-game winning streak and finished the regular season with an 8-1 record, the team's best since 1961.

Northville's offense led the team into the playoffs. Firing on all cylinders, the Mustangs outscored their opponents 370-123, taking the division and holding onto the Baseline Jug for another year.

UNBELIEVABLE

As they stepped on the bus, sat on the cold seats and waited to enter Novi's territory, the team had one goal in mind: beating the Wildcats.

"The game versus Novi was really important to us; we had to beat the cross-town rivals to have the bragging rights for the following year," freshman Duncan McKee said.

Right from the start, Northville put the pressure on when they forced Novi to fumble, letting the team test the Novi defense early. "The ball changed hands a lot, so when we got possession, we made sure to make the most of it," freshman Handsome Glover said.

Soon after the Mustangs regained possession of the ball, freshman Anton Travis scored a touchdown. "They were talking cocky all game and running the ball back really made them shut their mouth quick," Travis said.

After some back and forth offense, the team tried a quick field goal attempt and regained its lead when freshman Joseph Hewlett threw a 40-yard touchdown with just over a minute left.

McKee said, "When Joey threw that touchdown in the fourth quarter, I couldn't believe it actually happened. The whole team was freaking out!" The game ended with a final score of 19-14, with the Mustangs winning in a nail-biting victory.

OVERSEAS OPPORTUNITY

Once in a great while, American soccer players are invited to play in Europe with club teams, an honor for any player.

This summer, senior Fatai Alashe was invited to train with a team in Germany to improve his game and test his skills against the Europeans.

Other players on the soccer team said that Alashe was fortunate to have that opportunity.

When asked about Alashe's trip, junior Shaun Hetu shook his head and said, "Anyone that gets the chance like that is very lucky. I know that Fatai worked hard to prepare himself because he is a very dedicated player who really loves the game."

Freshman James Fiscus agreed. "Since I was a kid, I've wanted to play soccer in Europe. I really look up to Fatai, and it's good to see that it is possible to succeed when you work hard," he said.

"When I found out that I was getting a chance to play overseas, I started training to be at the top of my game," Alashe said. He said he discovered the dynamics of true European soccer, like speed of play and technical ability.

TWO TIMING

Freshman Daniel Sims races across the field in a flash. He didn't get this fast overnight. He trains part of the week as a cross country runner, and the other part as a junior varsity soccer player.

Putting in an average of 12 to 15 hours of practice per week, Sims said he needed to prioritize.

"Being in two sports was a bit difficult because the practices were at the same time," Sims said. "I managed this by going to only one practice each day."

Even though he had to miss soccer practices during the week, Sims said cross country was an excellent way to stay in shape since all the athletes do is run.

He said his coaches and teammates were very understanding of his commitment to both sports. "The team would fill him in on drills or conditioning that we ran the day before," sophomore Nathan Baughman said.

The coaches for both teams had their own techniques. "During soccer, our coaches had us work on improving our ball work, but the cross country coaches made sure I got miles in to stay in shape," Sims said.

Sophomore Eric Tang said Sims was always ready to help out the team, even if he came to a game straight from a cross country practice or meet. He knew he was tired and wouldn't be playing his best, so he let the coach substitute other players in for him.

Tang felt running helped improve his soccer skills. "He was one of the more athletic kids on our team," the captain said. "Dan always came with his 'A-game.'"

Despite the difficulties of playing two sports in the same season, Sims enjoyed playing both sports. Although sometimes he sacrificed games, meets or practices for one team or the other, he said, "I would really like to continue playing both sports next year if it is possible."

CATCHING SOME ZZZs

The team went to sophomore Nathan Albanelli's house for a team 'sleep' and were surprised by the wide array of stuffed wild animals they encountered. The animals were brought back from Africa from his dad's hunting trips.

"The team sleep was at Nate's house, and we were there with a zebra, a moose, a chicken, a deer and various other animals. His dad's like a really avid hunter in Africa."

EXCEEDING ALL EXPECTATIONS

While trying out for sports teams, players don't know if they meet the standards required of varsity athletes. In freshman Veer Shah's case, he exceeded them.

Varsity player and teammate sophomore Matthew Evasic explained the odds of a freshman making varsity. "It's usually not common for a freshman to make varsity," Evasic said. "Usually only one freshman a year makes the team of 36."

Shah revealed the try-out process. "Freshmen and sophomores try out together, which kept the pressure off me a little bit," he said. "Seeing the level of competition, I definitely tried my best."

Varsity coach Matt Stetson explained the characteristics he looks for in a player during tryouts. "There are factors to consider when choosing teams," Stetson said. "Overall, ability is the main consideration. We also play a lot of doubles, and we emphasize on that play."

Shah said he was ecstatic when he got his letter, "The first thing I did was look down at the bottom, and I saw varsity," Shah said. "I immediately started jumping, and I felt so excited."

Shah said he learned a lot playing varsity. "Playing with varsity and more experienced players has not only helped me improve my game, but also my personality," Shah said. "It has definitely helped me become more mature."

Stetson explained the reasoning for choosing Shah for his team and the significance of his techniques. "Veer showed a lot of promise for a freshman," he said. "He also had a strong forehand and played solid doubles."

(Right) The pressure mounts as senior Jacqueline Kjolhede lines up for a putt. "I had a lot of one putts that day because my chipping was good," Kjolhede said. A one putt means getting the ball into the hole with a single putt. Chipping is hitting the ball from the fairway to the green. (Below) Senior Brianna Roberts follows through on her tee shot, sending the ball down the fairway. "I was teeing off on first hole," Roberts said.

WHO WORE IT BETTER?

Much to their surprise, Coach Jeff Balagna and junior Emily Foland showed up to practice wearing the exact same hat. They both asked the opinion of senior Stephanie Sakorafis, who didn't even notice their fashion faux pas. Foland and Balagna faced off to determine, once and for all, who wore the hat better. "Balagna and I always know how to look fresh, that's why we got the same hat!" Foland said. "But I made it look better!"

HEAD'S UP

"I didn't think it was actually going to hit him!" sophomore Jenna Pomeroy said.

Against all odds, she actually did hit the unsuspecting greenskeeper.

"It was early in the morning and all the greenskeepers were out," freshman Chloe Page said. "The man was standing on the middle of the green, and we didn't know what to do!"

The girls decided just to yell for if the ball went towards the man and told Pomeroy to go ahead.

"I joked before [she took the shot] and said, 'You should aim right at that guy because he's not moving,'" sophomore Shannon Williams said. "We started freaking out a little bit when it did hit him!"

Pomeroy admitted that she was worried — at first.

"Afterwards, I thought it was funny," she said laughing. "I was more worried about my shot."

"It looked like it was going to be the shot of her life," Williams said. "Then it hit the guy!"

Sadly, after the ball hit the greenskeeper, it bounced away and landed off to the right.

Still, the girls all started laughing after the shock passed.

"We all laughed about it for the next hole," Page said. "The greenskeeper just drove away; it was, and is, a really funny memory."

For Pomeroy, though, one memory is enough to last her a lifetime.

"I've never hit anyone before in my life," Pomeroy said, shaking her head and smiling. "I'm kind of hoping it'll never happen again."

FACE YOUR FEARS

The rope underneath them begins to shake, their palms begin to sweat, their grips loosen and they feel themselves sliding down the thin rope. Drops of sweat roll down their foreheads, stinging their eyes, as they climb higher and higher to the obstacles above.

The varsity volleyball team traveled to the University of Michigan in Dearborn where they were faced with their biggest challenge of the year: a high ropes course.

"As soon as I looked up and saw the course hanging 30 feet in the air, that's when I began to freak out," sophomore Megan McCrohan said.

The course was a series of hanging tires, tightropes and rope swings. McCrohan said that each element in the obstacle course tested the players' ability to problem solve and work together.

"The course helped us overcome our fears and forced us to be open to change," junior Jennifer Buckingham said. "To finish the course, we had to step out of our comfort zone and take a leap of faith."

Buckingham said that overcoming their fears on the course contributed to much of their success on the court. The team finished the season 27-19-6.

"Since we learned to trust each other early in the season, we could focus on developing our skills by the time our regular season practices and games started," junior Taylor Young said. "We had a huge advantage over the other teams in our conference."

NO PAIN, NO GAIN

The volleyball team never fails to rack up plenty of injuries throughout the season. Junior Elizabeth Asher pointed out just a few.

"My elbows swell up a lot and are constantly covered with scrapes."

"My hip bones are permanently bruised from all the diving and sprawling we do."

"Two of our key players suffered from ACL tears."

It is a lot of running back and forth in the ten feet of room we have," Fabacher explained.

MAGNIFICENT 7

The pressure was on for the seven freshman girls on the junior varsity volleyball team, but you wouldn't know it from the amount of giggling coming out of the little room they squeezed themselves into during seminar to talk about the season.

Julia Colasanti, Briana Wilson, Kelsey Knickerbocker, Katherine Boss, Cassidy Minghine, Isabel Fabacher and Elizabeth Quinn have all been playing volleyball for around half a decade, but they still spent their summer vacation getting ready for the high school season by attending the Gold Medal Squared Volleyball Camp.

It was then that they really started to sweat. "It was so hot in the gym.

There were 30 girls to each court," Boss said.

The freshmen described the transition as difficult. "I didn't know any of the drills at the beginning of the year," Colasanti said. Her teammates laughed at her, indicating they didn't agree.

Having spent so much time together for so much of their lives, they've developed a sort of shorthand with each other.

Considering if all that time together wears on any of them, the room went silent, and the girls turned to Minghine, only to burst out in a fit of laughter. "At the end of the season, Cassidy would say she was tired of us," Boss said.

CLOSE CALL

Swimming in one of the most competitive divisions in the state makes winning divisions seem like an almost impossible task.

Divisions is a meet where the best swimmers from six different schools in the area compete.

After the meet, it appeared that the Northville girls had captured the honor. Just hours later, though, they found this information to be false.

"Novi was in charge of totaling up the points, but they counted the wrong relays, so we had more points than we were supposed to," sophomore Michelle Song explained.

"It makes me hate Novi a little bit more," junior

Leah Erlandson said with a laugh.

After realizing their mistake, coaches sent e-mails out to all the swimmers saying that South Lyon had won, but Northville had come in second place.

"We weren't surprised because we thought that South Lyon was going to win anyway," sophomore Briana Schoenek said.

Even without the win, the girls said they were still proud of themselves for doing so well.

"This was the closest Northville has ever gotten to winning divisions in awhile," junior Emily Mulcrone said.

PUSHING THE LIMITS

"We had to suffer through a pool that had similar air quality to a trench on the western front," senior Glen Vargo explained.

The boys swim team practiced up to four hours a day in highly chlorinated air at the beginning of their season.

The team said it was difficult to breathe, but they always persevered through the pain. "The swimmers deal with air quality by holding their breathe as long as they can," sophomore Austin Hunt said. "The more they breathe, the more they cough. And the more they cough, the more likely they are to throw up."

The coaches said they had to change the workout occasionally to accommodate the coughing swimmers. "Sometimes we have to modify our practices," sophomore Patrick Dunn said. "The air quality definitely affects our performances."

Despite the harsh pool conditions, the team was undefeated in their division. "We have pushed through these adverse situations and have performed well anyway," Vargo said.

"Of course, nobody can avoid the inevitable coughing, but we tough it out; it is men's swim and dive," Hunt said.

THE SWEDISH FISH

Senior Carl Henriksson moved to Northville this year from Sweden, as part of a foreign exchange student program. Henriksson shared his experiences about living in a new country, attending a new school and being part of a new swim team.

Q: Where are you from?

A: I came from Stockholm. It's a bigger city, it's the capital of Sweden. There are about two million people, and you don't need a car to get around. You take the subway, the bus or the train.

Q: Were you on a swim team at your high school?

A: I was on a club team, not a high school team. The Stockholm Rae Swimming Club.

Q: How do American swim teams compare to European swim teams?

A: American swim is more fun because there are no school sports in Sweden; they're all in clubs.

Q: How are you enjoying your time in America with the swim team?

A: It's fun because you get to experience a different society. You get to see very different people, and it broadens your worldly view.

Q: Did you get your varsity letter this season? How does swimming here compare to swimming in Sweden?

A: Yes, I did get my letter. It's the same level of competition as in Sweden. There's high standards, but I improved this season.

Q: What events do you swim? What are your best times?

IN THE FACE OF INJURIES

Fractured ankles, torn ligaments, ankle sprains, oh my! By the end of the season, the Mustangs had had their share of injuries.

"Half the time, we didn't even have enough people to scrimmage," senior Megan Gertley said.

Junior Alyssa Bates was one of the players sidelined by an injury.

"I strained my knee, and I kept on running on it and playing on it, and eventually, I had to just stop playing," Bates said.

Senior Elizabeth Roach, who had the most injuries, had issues with her ankles and back, and even suffered a concussion.

"During the last practice, I tried to block a shot, and I rolled my ankle," Roach said.

Every cloud has a silver lining, though, and the Mustangs found that after losing players, they were able to come together in the face of adversity.

"We acted more like a team," senior Meredith Williams said. "We all came together after we lost Beth and Ally. They cheered us on, even though they couldn't play. That was great of them."

When the buzzer sounded, the final score spoke for itself: The team had lost to Novi.

"We lost by a lot," sophomore Clare Townsend said. "That's what I really remember."

They lost their undefeated record, but the team just countered with a string of wins. They changed their strategy and worked harder to overcome their loss.

"When we lost, it felt like we should've won, but we just didn't put in the effort," freshman Anna Giacomini said. "We practiced a lot harder after that and came up with a lot of plays to beat their defense."

Their work paid off when the teams faced off again. The team won by almost ten points.

"It felt good to take our revenge," said sophomore Diane Myer, laughing. "We really didn't want to lose to them again."

They didn't. The JV team finished their season 18-1, winning the rest of their games and making it to Conferences.

"The girls had a tremendous season," Coach Lorri Kingsbury said. "Our only loss was to Novi."

Still, for the team, the best part was beating Novi for the second time.

"Hey, it's Novi," sophomore Kelly Wright said, smiling. "What's better than that?"

PINK PANTHERS

The boys varsity basketball team players sat in the locker room before suiting up in their pink wristbands and other pink accessories.

The team was supporting the fight against cancer during the week by wearing some pink in their games.

Players said the game dedicated to cancer support was very important to them. "It was special knowing that we were playing for people that died or suffered from cancer, and it was fun to wear the pink accessories," junior Jeffrey Gertley said.

"We all picked one person we know that had cancer, and we each dedicated the game to that person. We all played hard and did our best in memory of them," senior Henry Perry said.

DOWN BY 5

As the freshman boys frantically sprinted down the court, the scoreboard showed only seconds left, and Salem was up by five.

Freshman Aldred Williams recalled the defeat. "The only game we lost was when we played Salem for the second time," he said. "It was an extremely close game, but in the end, we unfortunately ended up losing."

Williams said it sort of fell apart for the team. "We played well together in the beginning," he said, "but in the end, we broke down."

"It was extremely disappointing that we lost," freshman Robert Parks said, "especially since it was the second time we played them. We were expecting to win."

Parks explained, "Things were just going well for Salem and not for us," he said.

He added that the team decided to see it as a learning experience. "We used the loss against Salem as motivation," Parks said. "We used it to work harder and win for the rest of the season."

Freshman player Daniel Sims said they did turn it around after the tough loss. "We had a successful final record," he said.

FROM HERO TO ZERO

Usually players are the ones with the injuries. That was not the case for Assistant Coach Todd Bowmar. While practicing with Coach Sean Dicken and JV players Stewart Henzi and Austin Rogers, he injured his wrist. These witnesses explained their sides of the story.

"Once during practice I was playing with Coach Dicken, Stewart Henzi and Austin Rogers. While we were playing, I drove to the basket, and they both slammed into me. As I fell, I tried bracing myself and fell on my wrist. The injury was on accident."

ASSISTANT COACH
TODD BOWMAR

"Coach Dicken, Austin Rogers, Todd Bowmar and myself were playing one day during practice. It got pretty physical, and Bowmar drove to the lane. I tried to block him, and then he hit me and fell. He's always making fun of me and blaming me for it."

FRESHMAN ON THE FORCE

According to freshman Melody Allyn, the best part about being a freshman on a varsity hockey team is building up the experience from years one through four.

This year's varsity B team had a record number of freshmen try out. Although the girls faced the hurdles of learning the skills of the game, each player overcame this on her own to be successful.

"This was my first year playing," freshman Olivia Scott said. "I've skated my whole life, but learning the puck play and building my knowledge of the game has been a challenge."

If not the skating, it's the adjustment to the vigorous practice routine said the girls. Allyn said, "I played in middle school, but the transition from that to high school hockey was intense — especially the practices."

Varsity A senior Katelyn Meck said, "The girls on the varsity B team are all very hardworking people that want to get better at the game. They aren't afraid to get rough and take penalties. All the freshmen are strong players, and they're nice to hang out with."

(Right) Preparing herself to head back onto center ice, senior Lauren Grigg adjusts her gear. "My mindset going into the game is that I play to win," Grigg said. (Center) Junior Paige McGuirk lines up next to her teammates before the start of a home game. "We always do half-Wisconsin as a warm up before we play," McGuirk said. "It pretty much starts with the puck behind the net then is passed to another girl on the team to take a shot."

JUNIOR PAIGE MCGUIRK REBOUNDS THE PUCK.

UP TO THE CHALLENGE

Even though the team lost a quarter of its roster and key players to injury, they managed to defeat Canton and move on to the playoffs.

"Losing five players caused our underclassmen to step up. We had to overcome the 'grade level' adversity with each other, so we could play as a team and not individually," sophomore Riley Marotta explained.

While rebuilding, the team then lost junior and forward Brent Atkinson early in the season.

"I got injured after scoring a goal during a game and broke my ankle," Atkinson said.

The injury benched him for the remainder of the season.

Junior Cole Brown credits their coach, Jeff Hatley, with getting the team through the transition, encouraging them to play their hardest despite the challenges they faced.

"I love our coach," Brown said. "His speeches get us motivated to play well during the game. They mentally prepare me."

BEFORE BIG GAMES, WE ALWAYS TAPE OUR STICKS, LISTEN TO MUSIC AND FOCUS. NORMALLY BEFORE WE GO OUT, WE GATHER IN A HUDDLE OVER THE "N" IN THE LOCKER ROOM AND ONE OF OUR CAPTAINS WILL GIVE A SHORT SPEECH. IT'S MY FAVORITE PART OF GOING TO HOCKEY.

120 AND COUNTING

Olympic wrestler and gold medalist Dan Gable once said, "Wrestling is more enduring than any other sport. Wrestling teaches self control and pride. Some have wrestled without great skill, but none have wrestled without pride."

Most wrestlers say that their first win was a relief. For senior and captain Ian Stirton, securing his 100th win was a triumph of his wrestling career.

"You have to enter every match with the right state of mind. If you come into the match worried and having doubts in your ability, you will lose the match," Stirton said. "You have to embed it in your mind that you can are going to win."

Not only did Stirton win 127 matches, but he also earned All-State honors at the MHSAA wrestling Division 1 state finals, where he placed seventh in the 125-pound weight class.

"Ian works very hard and deserved every honor that he earned this year," teammate Nicholas Menicotti explained.

"Ian has gotten physically and mentally stronger over the past four years," Coach Bob Boshoven said. "He has a tremendous amount of heart and is truthfully a strong person."

by Victor Bodrie

WORD FROM THE WISE

"This year's team was the youngest and most inexperienced team that I have coached in all my years, but they were the hardest working, most athletic and most coachable group I've had. It was fun to go to practice with this group of kids, and I'm glad I had the chance to coach them."

FLYING SOLO

"It's my last chance to show the judges what I've got, and the more difficult my routine, the better," senior Allison Kemp said about preparing her routine for States.

Kemp said she and sophomore Taylor Dempsey qualified for States by placing in the top eight in every event or top six overall at Regionals.

Dempsey said it was her first time going to States as an individual. "I was very excited and nervous, but I wanted to give it my all," she said.

In preparation for States, both of the girls improved their routines by adding harder skills, Kemp said. "I changed to a double back dismount on bars and added a new tumbling pass on floor," Kemp said.

Sophomore Erin Warwood and junior Victoria Clay went with Dempsey and Kemp to Kenowa Hills High School to support their teammates at States. "We know that they appreciate us being there to cheer them on," Warwood said.

After the long day of competing, Kemp placed sixth overall while Dempsey remained optimistic about the future. "I didn't place this year, but I'm hoping to place in everything next year," Dempsey said.

"I was really proud of both of them! They both did such a good job and really did their best," Warwood said.

Each gymnastics meet includes four events: bars, floor, beam and vault. The girls on the team have different opinions on what event is most difficult.

WONDER TWINS

Her heart raced as she opened the envelope that would determine the fate of her high school career as a cheerleader.

Would she come in as a freshman on JV, freshman, or varsity?

Arielle lafrate was as excited as ever to find out. On the other hand, her twin Alison was more "laid back" about the event, Arielle said.

When they both tried out for the cheer program and were placed on different teams, they said the split wasn't a big deal.

They said that they used their differences to their advantage. "Sometimes she helps me learn how to do things in cheer I never could do on my own, like tumbling skills and basing," Alison said.

Arielle laughed and said, "Alison helps me by giving me someone to work on the cheers with and being there for me.

I never had that with her, so it's a great thing to have now."

"She inspires me all of the time because I just see her and how far she's come from trying something new. She's really committed herself and has been doing so well, and I'm really proud," Arielle said.

Alison said she is also inspired by Arielle: "Even though she is my younger sister, I always look up to her when it comes to cheer. I respect her desire and hard work for the sport. I hope to get that passion for cheer too."

"Both of us cheering has brought us together," Arielle said.

"We both would love to be on the same team one day; that'd just be amazing," they said together.

SUPER STRENGTH

In their Cross-fit training, the girls did everything from lifting weights to gut-busting squats. Coaches and team members said that it will definitely be something that they will continue in years to come. A few cheerleaders shared their opinions on the conditioning program.

"It was hard but good conditioning for us to do to get in shape for the seasons."

"THIS STEP WAS THE HARDEST PART. I COULDN'T GET THE SPEED DOWN TO PULL MY LEG," SHE EXPLAINED.

"BUT THEN I FINALLY GOT IT, AND SINCE I WAS ALREADY FLEXIBLE, THAT WAS NEVER HARD," DAHRING SAID.

FLYING TO NEW HEIGHTS

Two separate teams, one foreign region, 156 miles away from home.

"The competition was fierce, we could only begin to imagine what we were up against," sophomore and captain Clare Porter said.

For the first time, the cheer teams competed at West Ottawa High School in Holland, Michigan.

Junior and captain Rachel Polanski described it as a great learning experience because they are not usually able to see how the West side of Michigan competes. Polanski said, "The competition was harder because the teams that were there are better than what we're used to. This made us try extra hard to impress the judges' panel."

Both teams said they knew they had to focus in order to make a good impression.

Sophomore Tess Reed said, "Before the meet was crucial and tense. We had to stay focused because we knew what we were going up against. We really wanted to do our best, so practice was very intense before the meet. It paid off in the end though."

WORKING THEIR WAY UP

For the varsity pom team, the results seem to keep coming up all ones and twos.

Last year, the team finished first in the state in Division 2. This year, they fought their way back to Division 1 with high aspirations and landed with a twelfth-place finish.

The team hadn't competed in Division 1 for three years, but senior and captain Madelyn Evasic said she knew the team was ready to show that they deserved to contend with the best. The girls finished last season blowing out the Division 2 schools by winning States.

"Winning States last year was a huge boost for our team," senior Kathleen Evans said. "It gave us the push we needed for this season."

This season began with a change that junior Rachael Jarzembowski said was for the best. "Our team needed stronger leadership and a coach that would push us to be our best," she said.

They also lost key players part way through the season, but senior captain Jillian Gray said they kept their focus. "Any problems we had this year only further pushed us to work hard and have a successful season," she said.

According to senior Elizabeth Allen, the team's positive mindset going into regionals was a necessity for success after missing the Division 1 cut by .3 points the previous year.

"We should have been in Division 1," Evans said. "We worked hard and were less than half a point away from making it."

With Allen and her team's 'Go big or go home' attitude, she said they knew they were ready when it was time for regionals this time around.

The team scored an 83 and made it back to Division 1.

And the hope for next season? To put all the twos behind them.

DANCING DOMINATION

The varsity dance team twirled its way into first place during the Mid-American and National Dance Alliance competitions this season.

The team began practices in August, dancing three times a week to perfect the routines.

"Going over every detail, we repeatedly run through our steps hundreds of times until we get it right," sophomore Alexandra Key said. "Our coach tells us, 'Own it, don't lease it,' which means that we need to give it our all."

At the Mid-American competition, the team performed a jazz routine to "Fame" and a hip hop routine to "Egyptian Lover."

"While performing 'Fame,' we hit our first triple pirouette exactly," senior Amy Southers said. "To be completely honest, we rocked Mid-American!"

The team improved from last year's Mid-American competition, in which they placed fourth and fifth with the previous season's jazz and hip hop routines.

"Our performance at this year's Mid-American competition gave our team good publicity because we improved so much," Key explained.

In addition, the NDA competition proved to be no challenge for the dance team as they placed first in both jazz and hip hop, along with the title of "Grand Champions."

"NDA was a new competition for us this year," senior Meredith Njus said. "We gave the other teams a run for their money."

ISN'T IT GRAND?

The crowd roars with excitement, the arena echoes with the thunder of hooves, and three students ride their horses out to face the thousands of people watching them at the Grand National and World Championship Morgan Horse Show.

In October, sophomore Janelle Gray, junior Anne Thurber and senior Abigail Meyer traveled to Oklahoma City for the World Championships.

They qualified by being in the top four in the regional horse show and top ten in the national show.

"This show is huge compared to the others, since people come from all over the nation and sometimes from other nations," Meyer explained. "There are so many amazing horses, and the competition is fierce."

Gray placed second in the class Junior Exhibitor Pleasure Driving 14-17, earning the title Reserve World Champion.

Gray wasn't the only successful rider at the show. Thurber unanimously won the 14-15 age division for saddle seat equitation, one of the many riding classes in the show.

"It was my seventh time competing in Oklahoma. It's a lot of work to prepare for it, but it all pays off in the end," Thurber said.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Horseback riding is a sport which requires more preparation than meets the eye. Junior Rachel Culbert described the necessary steps to prepare her horse for a day of riding.

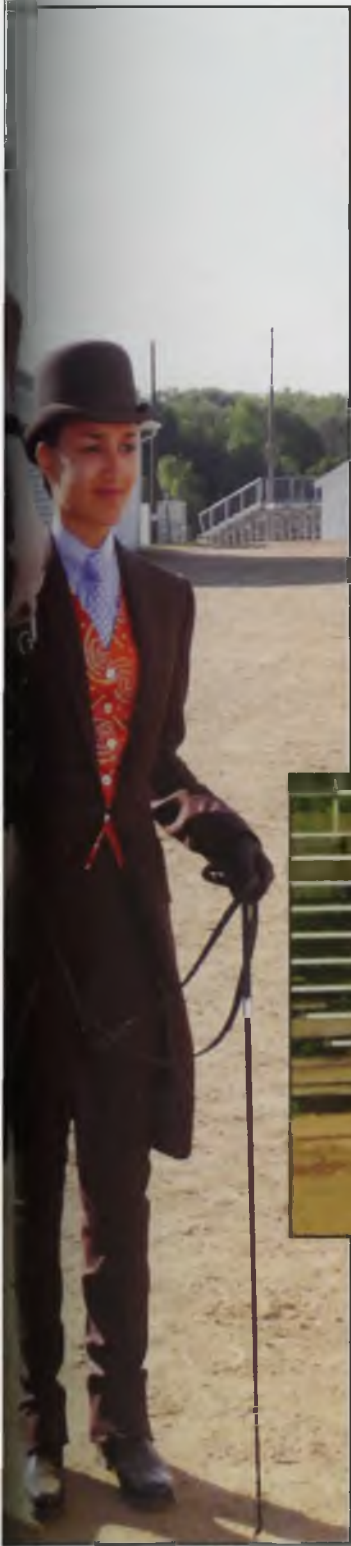

"FIRST, GET THE HORSE OUT OF THE STALL OR Paddock AND CROSS TIE IT IN THE AISLEWAY," SHE EXPLAINED. THEN...

"START BRUSHING IT FIRST WITH A CURVED BRUSH AND THEN WITH A REGULAR BRUSH."

(Below) Juniors Rachel Culbert and Rebecca Konopski prepare for the saddle seat competition. "It's a pretty competitive style of riding but Northville always does well," junior Caitlin Feltner said.

What is dressage and how is it different from equestrian? These riders described each sport.

"Dressage is all about the horse and the rider working as a team on the flat while doing complicated tasks. A flat is when we ride without any jumps."

BATTLE OF THE PINS

It was down to the last pins. Senior Kristen Muzzillo had sweat on her brow, she took her stance and released the ball. The crowd went silent, the pins dropped, and a crowd erupted into a roar.

The girls varsity bowling team won first place by only a few pins in the Early Bird Farmington tournament. "It was so nerve-racking, knowing that we could win or lose by a couple of pins," junior Hannah Craik said.

They needed eight pins to win the game, and all hopes of winning the tournament were in the hands of Muzzillo. "It was really nerve-racking to know that I needed to get the points to win the tournament," Muzzillo said.

However, the girls said they were sure that they were going to win. "Kristen guaranteed the win; she was one of the team's best players," sophomore Esha Bedi said.

"It is always a good feeling to win a really close match that you have been working hard for," Muzzillo explained.

THE PERFECT BALL

(Above) Sophomore Megan Leary follows through with her eye on the pins. "I have never made a split; I am hoping to make one next year," Leary said.

HOW TO BOWL A PERFECT STRIKE

A PERFECT STRIKE TAKES SKILL. FIRST, THE BOWLER MUST GET INTO STANCE.

IN ORDER TO HAVE A PERFECT STRIKE, THE BALL MUST GO IN BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THIRD PINS.

THE BALL SHOULD ONLY TOUCH PINS THREE, FIVE AND NINE.

A HERO IN DISGUISE

(Below) The day of a meet, bowlers need to focus on their lunges, not their game face. "A lot of it is calculating your next move," senior Ferrario said.

WE WERE THE EIGHTH TEAM PLAYING THE NUMBER ONE TEAM IN A QUALIFYING MATCH. THE NUMBER ONE TEAM THOUGHT THAT IT WOULD BE EASY TO BEAT US, CONSIDERING THEY HAD DONE IT THREE TIMES BEFORE. HOWEVER, WHEN WE BEAT THEM, THE ENTIRE TEAM STARTED CRYING!

SUPER MASCOT

Every year, the girls bowling team goes to Chuck E. Cheese for an end of season party. The girls combined their tickets to get a robot panda as a mascot. The girls explained their decision.

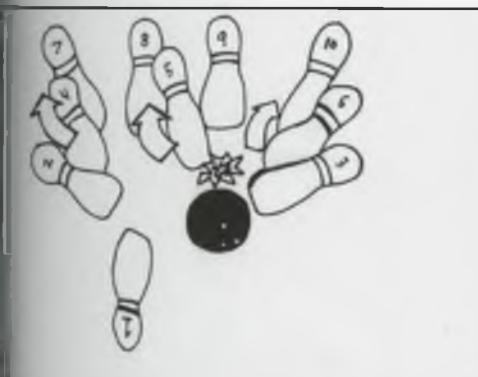

"We went to Chuck E. Cheese, and we had enough tickets to buy Darren Meredith [the robo-panda]. It was so cute and that's why we picked it. We named it after a bowler on varsity."

JUNIOR JULIE PICCONE

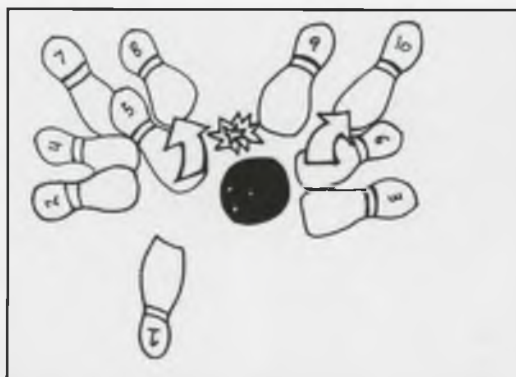

"We took the first thing that was in our ticket range and was cute. We adopted a spider from the varsity boys. They got it last year, but we adopted it this year. He is cute, and his name is Danger."

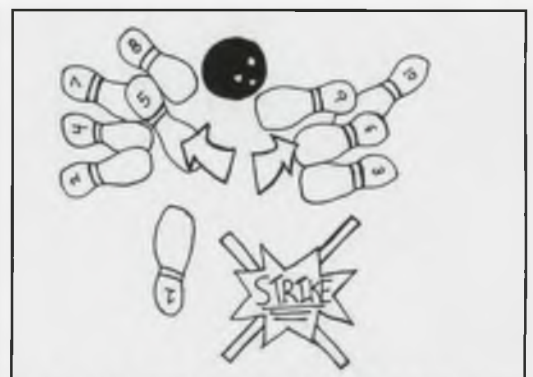

JUNIOR HANNAH CRAIK

THE PINS NUMBERED TWO, FOUR AND SEVEN SHOULD FALL DUE TO THE BALL HITTING THE FIRST PIN.

PINS NINE, TEN, FIVE AND EIGHT WILL FALL AFTER THE BALL HITS PIN NUMBER FIVE.

THE LAST PIN THAT SHOULD FALL IS PIN NINE, AND THEN IT'S A PERFECT STRIKE.

GAME FACE

(Right) After painting NHS-spirited colors on his face, senior Ryan Benoit prepares himself for his meet. "Every team was tough this year. We had to be on our game every match," Benoit explained.

(Below) Senior Joshua Cruz experiments with different weights of the ball, "When I'm holding the ball, it's like I'm holding the head of a statue," Cruz said.

STRIKE OF LUCK

Stepping up for his first frame of the game, junior Adam Zimmer rolled the ball down the alley hitting the one, three and five pin. "That was a beautiful waterfall of pins," sophomore Daniel Jacobi said. It became a joke for the team to yell whenever someone got a perfect strike.

"Some of the girls even joined along near the end of the season," Zimmer said.

The problem with the saying was that it didn't fit the team this year because the strikes they made often weren't perfect.

Since most waterfalls are freshwater, an unexpected strike is a salty waterfall, according to Jacobi's logic. It stuck, and now the team is known throughout the league as "The Salty Waterfalls."

Before meets, the team included it in cheers, and the unusual name for an imperfect strike became a perfect fit for the team.

ZEROING IN

JUNIOR DARREN MEREDITH BEGINS HIS WALK UP TO THE FOUL LINE. "FORM IS IMPORTANT IN GETTING THE RIGHT SHOT," MEREDITH SAID.

NEXT, MEREDITH LOOKS DOWN THE LANE TO WHERE HE WANTS THE BALL TO HIT

WITH HIS ARM BENT AND RAISED, MEREDITH BEGINS HIS ARM SWING. "YOUR ARM COMES PENDULUM-LIKE WHEN YOU BOW," HE SAID.

LOCKED ON

(Below) Looking down the lane, junior Trevor Corn begins his walk up and visualizes how he is going to set up his shot. "Bowling is fun, but I mostly just throw the ball and hope for the best," Corn said.

SYNTHETIC

A member of the varsity team, senior Jonathan Johnson said he thinks that an all synthetic lane is the best when bowling because it gives more hook and puts the ball in the pocket easier. "It's softer on my ball and gives me a better shot," Johnson said.

VS.

WOOD

Member of the JV team, freshman Steven Hanna said he prefers the surface that the wood provides on the ball. "We are the only team with wood lanes at home, so I have really grown to love it," Hanna said.

CROSS DA LANE

(Above) Bowling towards the ten pin, freshman Steven Hanna attempts to cross the lane and hook the ball enough to strike his pin. "I prefer the wood lanes mostly, because it hooks less, and they are the ones we practice on," Hanna said.

PRESTIGE PHOTOGRAPHY

THEN, MEREDITH GETS LOWER TO THE GROUND TO ACHIEVE MORE CONTROL OF THE BALL'S DIRECTION.

AS MEREDITH APPROACHES THE END OF HIS ARM SWING, HE TAKES AN EXTRA LONG STEP IN STRIDE. "THE COACHES DON'T LIKE THIS, BUT IT'S A HARD HABIT TO BREAK."

FINALLY, HE FINISHES THE APPROACH WITH HIS FOLLOW THROUGH AND TWISTS HIS HAND, PUTTING HOOK ON THE BALL.

DAVID LUKROP

TWIST IT

(Right) Completing her required element for this competition, sophomore Maya Warszawski performs a double flip. "A double flip is basically a single axel. I've had it for about a year," Warszawski said. (Below) Sophomore Carolyn Zhang glides across the ice at a competition. "We were surprised that we got second place because we didn't do that well in the last competition. But we did well in the first two competitions, so I think it balanced it out," Zhang said.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Some skaters practice for 11 hours a week to get their routines perfect. One skater described how she got her double axel.

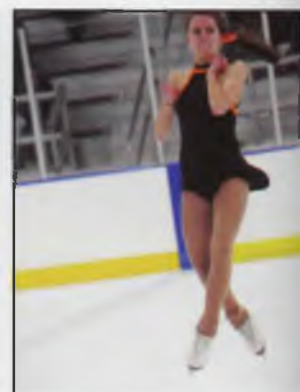

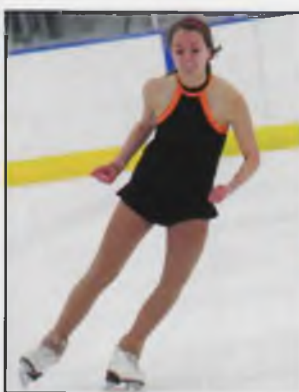

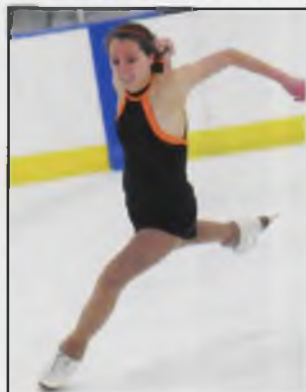

"I had been working on my double axel for four months before I finally got it. It's really important to get it because this move can determine whether or not I can move on to the next level."

TO INFINITY AND BEYOND

At a competition in Farmington Hills, the skating team anxiously waited to hear the results.

Imagine their surprise when the judges announced that the A team tied for first place, and then that the B team had come in second place in their division.

Their scores meant that they qualified to move on to States, a competition against the best schools in the area.

Now, the team has to work harder and longer to do well in States.

"We're done with the season, so now we're just practicing for States. The season goes a little bit longer because of States, so it's kind of a downer that we still have to wake up early on Saturday mornings to practice," senior Emily Love said with a laugh.

"States is in Ann Arbor, and we have to be there at eight, so that'll be fun," sophomore Maya Warszawska said, rolling her eyes.

Even though the team has to work harder and wake up earlier, they still are happy they made it.

"I'm really excited to go this year," Love said. "The A team made it to States last year, but I wasn't able to go then."

"I can't wait for States. I think that we can do really well," sophomore Carolyn Zhang said.

DON'T CALL IT A COMEBACK

Tense. In a word, that's how Larry Liu, Social Studies teacher and Student Congress adviser, described the climate of the high school as of late.

Layoffs, lost planning time and larger class sizes are daily obstacles teachers face. And though he too is up against these added difficulties, Liu said he's happy to have the job.

After he was pinkslipped last May, Liu said he spent the summer searching for another teaching job. Then, three days before teachers were scheduled to come back to work, he received a call asking him to rejoin the staff.

"I texted the class officers that afternoon," Liu explained. The news of his return ignited a buzz among students.

"I was so excited because he makes Congress what it is," junior Julia Hamilton said. "He is Congress."

Liu said he answered screaming phone calls, and Student Congress members tackled him at Freshman Orientation. "It was like a group hug," junior Spencer Knickerbocker said. "It was perfection."

Liu said the events of the summer felt surreal to him. He was prepared to accept a job at a charter school in the metro-Detroit area, but he said he's thrilled to be back instead.

"Everything happens for a reason," Liu said, "so I'm making the most of it."

CHANGE OF CLOTHES

"The old uniforms were 16 years old, so getting new uniforms is refreshing," sophomore Lauren Wickett said. "They were getting worn down from all the use, so it was time to buy new ones."

When the time came, the band ran into financial issues. Wickett explained that the company was no longer going to make the uniforms they chose, so they had to buy more than they needed right now to make sure they had enough to meet future needs.

The uniforms are set to debut at the beginning of the marching season. "The new uniforms are more roomy and lighter," junior Timothy Chan said. "The colors are brighter, and they are easier to carry around." Sophomore Christine Cho agreed. "I am glad that the band is getting new uniforms, it is really refreshing to have change once in a while," she said.

"We split into groups, and each group has to perform the entire march, and then the group watching has to critique them," sophomore Margaret Shaw explained.

SEND IN THE CLOWNS

When he caught some of them goofing around during summer band camp, Michael Rumbell, the band's director, called the students a bunch of clowns. Now, whenever he repeats the comment, snickers can be heard throughout the ranks.

"I felt bad for the people that were late; they were always getting yelled at. But in the heat of the moment, it was very funny."

JUNIOR JERRY JOHN

"A bunch of people were late coming back from practice, and we had already started. So when Mr. Rumbell saw them, he blew the whistle, got really mad and called us a bunch of clowns. A lot of us giggled."

ALL NEW BATTLEFIELD

The stadium was packed when the marching band took the field and wowed the crowd at Eastern Michigan University.

To kick off the varsity football season, the band was asked to accompany the team to its season opener at EMU.

Band Director Michael Rumbell explained, "We play at Eastern Michigan University every few years. It is an exciting experience for the kids."

The students agreed. "I was excited, and it was a fun road trip," senior Gayle Ebben said.

"I enjoyed playing somewhere other than Hillside," freshman Sanjana Joshi said. "It was the first time I had played anywhere else."

COMMAND CENTER

Controlling all the functions of the broadcasting room can be difficult and confusing, Carolyn Davis, who teaches broadcast, said. But after some time working with the equipment, she said that students get used to it. Here, she explained some of the tools students use to bring the daily announcements to life.

The headphones are used to communicate with the people working the cameras.

The VCR may be out of date, but it is used to play any VHS that is shown on the announcements.

The four smaller screens on the bottom show what each individual camera is recording.

These two screens show what is currently being recorded and what is next to be broadcast.

TESTING 1, 2, 3

Business teacher Cheri Sclater said she teaches many challenging classes, but of all of them, she said her AP Computer Science is one of the hardest.

Senior Joshua Mullen explained his struggle with developing an Employing Program and what it takes to run it smoothly.

"The Employing Program is the hardest because it uses the most codes, making it easy to make errors," he said.

- ❶ "First off, you have to figure out what you want the program to execute."
- ❷ "Then, you have to determine what kind of classes it is going to need and incorporate."
- ❸ "Finally, typing out all the classes, making a tester and seeing everything run smoothly finishes out the process."

I'M GOING TO BOSTON

The choir students take their talent on the road, visiting a different city each year. This summer, the students need their passports for their trip to Boston.

"Our bus will be traveling through Canada to reach our destination," senior Morgan Pistolesi said.

"I'm really excited to stop and see Niagara Falls," she added, "but the highlight of the trip will be singing at Fenway Park."

SINGING A NEW TUNE

For some, choir class used to be a place to socialize with classmates, but once they got to high school, they soon realized those days were over. These freshmen choir members explained how they had to change their tune once they got to the high school program.

"Choir isn't a blow-off class. This is the first time I am learning about all the different composers and notes."

BACKBEAT

Backbeat members said they let the fans decide. "Both groups know who is better by the applause at the end," senior Nicholas Denhof said. Fellow Backbeat member senior John Duquesnel agreed. "We don't think Backbeat is better than Treblemakers, just the audience does at the end of our performances," he said.

BEHIND THE MASK

Students in AP English complete an iSearch project — often described as a search for self. For her project, senior Kiley Turner used photography to discover the hidden truths of others. (Right) Turner's brother, freshman Barry Turner, is one of her frequent subjects. "I photographed my brother because at school he's the really athletic type, but he'll play the guitar constantly at home," she said. "He has a musical side to him that most don't know about." (Below) "This photograph is of a complete stranger," Turner said. "I believe it's easier to confide in strangers than your own friends and family, and it's really cool that he could share such a personal part of himself with me like that."

LIFE IN MINIATURE

(Right) One of the unique parts of freshman Lina Classon's final project were the game pieces. "I had to bake the clay for about half an hour," she said, "but I spent hours on just the board."

(Far right) Freshman Kelsey Knickerbocker explained that her pieces represent the firemen in the book whom Montag, the main character, must face.

TRIVIAL PURSUIT

(Above) In the game created by freshman Kelsey Knickerbocker, players roll the dice and answer questions about the novel Fahrenheit 451 to move around the board. Knickerbocker created her own dice and cards for the board game.

ALL FIRED UP

After reading the novel Fahrenheit 451 by Ray Bradbury, English teacher Lisa Rohde dreamed up a project in which students designed and created their own games for the research component of the unit.

"I thought that making board games would be interesting," she said. "The kids got really into it."

Rohde said she was really pleased with the results. "The projects turned out so well!" she said. "The pieces on the board games in particular were very well made."

GAMEMASTER

(Above) "I really liked building the project because I really enjoyed the class," freshman Lina Classon said. "I put a lot of effort into this game. I think it might have been close to six hours." (Right) "I liked this project," freshman Morgan Guenther said. "We got to be creative and do our own thing. I had more fun because it was more creative."

ROLE MODELS

In Parenting Decisions, students learned first hand what it's like to be a parent. "They carry a baby doll around for a while, so they can see what it's really like being a mom or dad," teacher Carla Tibble said. Through this simulation, students act like parents by carrying their babies around, dropping off and picking them up at day care, and even waking up with them in the middle of the night to care for them.

STIR FRY SENSATIONS

(Left) In Joanne Mink's Food for Thought class, senior Sarah Kief stirs peppers for her Pyramid Pizza. "The students were assigned to make pizzas that incorporate the different parts of the Food Pyramid," Mink said.

HEALTHY HABITS

(Above) Senior Nicolas Alamed-dine chops vegetables for his pizza. (Left) Students in Food for Thought must be able to use different types of utensils, like an apple slicer. "The students said that apples on a pizza wouldn't taste good, so they decided to use them as a side dish," Mink said.

KILEY TURNER

"The purpose of it was to help us realize taking care of a baby's needs takes up a lot of time, and you can't really do anything for yourself. It's all about paying attention to the baby. It was a fun assignment, and I learned a lot."

JUNIOR CLARE ELSE

"The project was fun! I enjoyed carrying my baby, named Bubba, around. Everyone wanted to babysit him and pretend they were his parents. The project taught me that it's not easy being a parent; we need to be prepared before we have kids."

JUNIOR SHUWEN WU

"The project teaches us how much time goes into taking care of a baby and how much you have to give up if you become a teenage parent. Also, it shows you just how tired you are the next day after taking care of a baby all night. I'm pretty sure the main point of the project was to teach us to not get pregnant while we're in high school, because we're still young and have the rest of our teenage years to enjoy."

JUNIOR RACHEL BROWN

BATTLE TO THE END

In Individual Sports and Racquets, students learn how to play tennis, pickleball and starball, just to name a few. During the semester, students also take part in a badminton tournament, which some say is a highlight of the class. They start by playing against other teams in their class, and the battle ends when there's only one team standing.

"The badminton tournament was very entertaining. My team was also pretty successful, but we lost against the seniors."

"Badminton was probably my favorite out of the sports we played. It was really fun. The team I played on won most of our games, so we did a good job."

SOPHOMORE AUSTIN VALKANOFF

CAN YOU REACH?

(Above) PE teacher Matt Ladach records a student's progress in the sit and reach requirement for the presidential fitness testing.

LASTING LESSONS

No one leaves teacher Carla Tibble's Health class without adding to their list of favorite classroom activities. These students shared theirs.

"For the drug demonstration, Mrs. Tibble had different dances, I guess you could say. For depressant, she'd get really depressed and calm. Then, for stimulant, she'd jump up and be hyper."

"The movie called Odd Girl Out was one of my favorite activities. It was about decision making. It was funny but really realistic about how teenagers are these days."

QUOTE MASTER

Students say they love the quotes math teacher Joe Schembri features on his white board. Some quotes instruct students on classroom behavior while others just demonstrate the kind of guy Schembri is. Here are some student favorites:

1. "You're pointless"
2. "iPods on = U points off"
3. "Schem-I-am"
4. "Your cooperation points are going to equal the derivative of 100 if you don't start working."

WORDY WISDOM

Where do students look when they need inspiration? In math class, they don't need to look any further than the posters hanging on the classroom walls.

"This poster teaches me that sometimes in life, you need to give up your short-term wants for your long-term goals."

FRESHMAN CHARLES MORGAN

"A lot of the problems I face in math can be solved just by being persistent. I know that I will always face difficulties in math, but as long as I keep working, I'll succeed."

FRESHMAN MARK ZYWIOL

"This is my favorite poster because it helps me through class every day. Every class when I want to give up on learning the difficult concepts, I look at this poster to push myself."

EXTRAORDINARY

After exhausting the math curriculum at the high school, these students decided to further their studies at the college level. Schoolcraft college offers them an opportunity to continue expanding their math skills with Calculus 2 and Calculus 3 classes.

"With math, it doesn't matter if I'm having a bad day; I'll always get the same answer. Also, our teacher makes cheesy math jokes, so it's worth it."

SENIOR CATHERINE CULKIN

"Math has always been interesting to me, and since they didn't offer higher math classes at NHS, I chose to go a little bit further and take them at Schoolcraft."

JUNIOR PATRICK HUANG

"I'm not a huge math fan, but Calculus has a lot of logic to it! Getting the right answer after doing a problem that takes a full page to do is really satisfying."

SENIOR JENNIFER WOODARD

WINNING HAND

HAVING A HOME BASE

For some, desks are a creative outlet where pictures of families, pets or cars are displayed. But according to science teacher Jon Thomas-Palmer, it's his command center and the go-to resource for those in need of physics assistance.

"The thermometer is there because it's become an interest to know the temperature in my room."

"What color is the floor' dice. Used for the final exam review."

"It's Captain Underpants. I use it for various demonstrations."

"One year, two students got into an argument about a word, which is why the page is ripped. I was promised a new dictionary, but it never came."

Palmer uses the Apple laptop to play the jams for the classroom decompression sessions.

LIGHT HOUSES TO HABITATS

(Right) After exploring the lighthouses along the beaches, teacher Scott Szukaitis brings the students to a protected habitat. "We learned how the Kirtland Warbler habitat is being destroyed by us because we walk on the beach, and the eggs are the same color as the sand, so people run over them," senior Spiridon Papoulis said.

Red, blue, green, yellow and black. These were the colors assigned to the students in AP Psychology, who then created projects based solely on the color their class was assigned.

GOING BACK IN HISTORY

In the 1800s, children were needed to work on the farm or at home, so schools were open only a few months a year. The teacher's tools consisted of slate, chalk and a collection of books.

In the 1950s, enrollment skyrocketed, and history and science became a standard part of the curriculum. Students were subjected to fallout drills, in which they would practice hiding under their desks to protect themselves from an atomic bomb attack.

Looking back through the history of education, these Social Studies teachers shared the eras in which they would have most liked to teach.

- 1 "I would teach AP Psychology in the Middle Ages because I'd be a supergenius there. Unless they killed me for saying the world is round. That would be bad."

LARRY LIU

- 2 "I would teach in the 1880s in the United States. The elimination of distractions like cell phones and PA announcements would make teaching more interesting."

MARC SIERRA

- 2 "I'd teach in first century Greece. It's warm, and I'd get to wear sandals. It'd also be a civilization on the cusp of change."

When entering high school, freshmen have the option of taking either Spanish 1 or Spanish 2. Here's how these students made their choices:

FRESHMAN

TALKING THE TALK

French 3 students ended the semester by presenting a narrative written in French.

Junior Katelyn Jakubowski explained that the story had to be between 300 and 400 words.

Junior Leah Bedrosian didn't use note cards for help, but she wished she had. "I didn't mess up at home, but when I presented, I got really red and messed up a ton," she said.

"The worst was memorizing it. I don't even memorize that many words in English," Jakubowski added.

FIGHTING THE GOOD FIGHT

Surrounded by the age-old sights and smells of the Victorian Festival, senior Michael Truong strolled down Center Street, never anticipating what awaited him as he passed between two competing booths.

Center Stage Dance Company (CSDC) and Rotary Interact were locked in a noisy battle for donations. "I knew something was up because [teacher Tim] Ortopan and the other workers were lined up watching the dancers," Truong said.

Interact sold pinwheels and lemonade for the Polio Group. CSDC hosted a game and danced on request, to benefit Methodist Boys' Home. "[The dancers] were very good and a worthy competitor," Ortopan said. "Because we were both working towards donations, people didn't see it as either/or and donated to both."

As the competition heated up, both groups stepped up their games. "[Freshman] Emma Callahan came to our booth and was screaming at the top of her lungs. I didn't know a little girl could scream that loud," senior Marissa Skinner said.

"We came up with more clever cheers like 'Pinwheels for Polio'," Ortopan explained. "We also took our lemonade sale on the road."

With the help of a little friendly competition, both groups exceeded their fundraising goals for the festival – mission accomplished.

THE LEGACY LIVES ON

In 2008, Northville graduate Jackie Turner created the literary magazine known as Cavalcade so students could express themselves through art and the written word.

Now three years have passed, and Jackie's younger sister, senior Kelly Turner, continues the legacy as assistant editor.

"My sister felt that the school needed something other than the newspaper in order for people to display their artistic and writing abilities," Turner said. "Jackie was very much inspired by the English courses that she took throughout high school."

Turner worked alongside editor and senior Bridget Dunn to encourage students to submit work that varies from photography to pieces of art and writing. "On average, we have 30 contributors who submit about 50 pieces total," Dunn explained.

Following in her sister's footsteps, Turner dedicates her time and effort to the success of the magazine. "We have received a grant from the PTSA and also have a poetry slam planned for next semester," she said. "We also distributed holiday cupcake packages to seminars before winter break to raise money."

The two agreed that the most pleasurable part of working on Cavalcade was putting all the pieces together: accepting the submissions, looking the work over and then creating the most cohesive, enjoyable magazine.

TOMORROW'S TEACHERS

Members of the Society of Aspiring Teachers, who meet in teacher Elise Morrison's seminar, explained their motives to pursue careers in the teaching field.

"I just want to grow up and help kids. I'm not sure what kind of teacher I want to be, but I definitely don't want to be an English teacher."

In the background, students can be heard talking and shuffling through papers. Two students linger around a cluster of metal desks. The large, wooden door creaks open, and the final student joins the group. The fluorescent lights buzzing above their heads, the group settles in to discuss their views on the Bible.

The founders of Exploring God's Word, a club formed this year, meet every seminar as well as every Monday after school to discuss the Bible.

Junior David Fecht started out the discussion. "Today, let's discuss the scripture and how it pertains to our own lives," he said. "I think the Evangelists are similar to students today."

Junior Patrick Kornmeyer said, "I agree. I think students can relate to the leaders of the church."

"How can we be leaders of the church and make the Christian world better?" Fecht asked.

Kornmeyer answered, "We are doing charity work by volunteering at churches and community centers," he said. "Soon, we are having a can drive for Civic Concern."

Continuing the conversation, junior William Brandin added, "We need to increase students' Christianity in everyday life."

"We need to recruit more members by encouraging Christians and non-Christians to come," Fecht agreed. "It is our spiritual duty to tie the youth of this world closer to God."

When something goes wrong in a show, it's Tech Crew that comes to the rescue.

Senior Angela Alvarez explained, "When we have a problem, we have to be on our feet. But we always end up making it work with the obstacles we face."

Sophomore Emily Donohoe, a member of Tech Crew recalled one such incident. "During the play Misinformation Man [freshman] Ryan Duda tried opening a door, but it wouldn't open, and he had to improv it," Donohoe said. "After that, Tech Crew had to move the door and sets slowly so nothing would break."

Sophomore Henry Blickle, a cast member in the student-run show, explained that the Tech Crew have some experience at this trouble shooting. "There are many times in a show where the cast has to improv and make stuff up if we mess up or if the sets break," he said.

In the end, the Tech Crew ended up saving the day. "We always end up making it work," Alvarez said, "and usually, the audience is oblivious."

"Well, to start it off, we couldn't find a teacher sponsor, so two parents volunteered to coach it," he said. "It seems to be going very well so far."

The group's practice also underwent some changes. "In

PINATA POWER

(Above) At the Spanish Club Christmas Party, also known as La Fiesta de Navidad, students take a field trip to the gym. They each got a chance to take a whack at the piñata. "I was excited when I saw the piñata because I haven't gotten to hit one in a long time," sophomore Erica MacDonald said.

The altars are typically decorated with colorful artwork and skulls. (Left) Students enjoy some authentic Mexican dishes at the Día de Los Muertos party. They tried tamales and enchiladas. Students agreed that the food is one of the best parts of Spanish Club.

These groups want to let everyone in on the secret. The Spanish Club, Spanish Honor Society, German Club, Quiz Bowl and Science Olympiad give students the opportunity to develop and divulge their talents.

BATTLE OF THE BRAINS

Quiz Bowl is a club where students learn about different topics and compete against other schools to see who can answer questions faster. The advisers for Quiz Bowl, Social Studies teachers Marc Sierra and Tim Ortopan, agreed that one of the hardest working students in Quiz Bowl is junior Patrick Huang. "I like Quiz Bowl," Huang said. "It's competitive, but you also get a feeling of self accomplishment. It is a really fun experience, and you can work hard or just have fun with it."

A NEW WORLD

The Philosophy Club discusses concepts like good vs. evil. They have "Thought Experiments" and pose hypothetical situations to each other. So we posed a question of our own. What would happen if everyone in the world had superpowers?

"People could do things they never did before. They would have to rethink medicine and the Olympics. There would be super villains and guys in masks threatening to blow up the world."

SENIOR WILLIAM MILLER

"Having powers would lead to a new system of caste society. We would develop a new set of ethics to deal with time travel. It would be terrible if some people had great powers and others had lousy powers."

SENIOR MICHAEL WYLIE

"The world would be incredibly chaotic. There would be no police force and it would lead to a lot of crime. Though, if I could pick a power, I would want the ability to read minds."

SENIOR JOSHUA ZAWODNY

"It would be awesome to have powers. I would love flying and saving cats stuck in trees."

SENIOR COLIN WEIR

TALK IT UP

"We talked to the representative of Zambia about different resolutions and what she thought about them," Xiong said. (Right) Once a week, the Philosophy Club meets to discuss ethics and talk about different philosophers. "At this meeting, we were talking about communism and capitalism along with economic systems," senior William Miller said. (Bottom right)

KING FOR A DAY

According to French tradition, during the holiday Galette Des Rois, the first person to find the object hidden inside a cake is crowned king or queen. During the French Club's celebration of Galette Des Rois, freshman Gray Brakke was crowned king. "I bit a little plastic fish that was hidden inside the cake," he explained, "so I became king for the day and wore a plastic crown."

FORENSICS

Forensics is all about working hard to enhance and improve yourself. There are a variety of different topics, such as drama, poetry and improvisation. Making a cupcake sound like Mount Everest is a key thing for forensics; we have to make something we know very little about sound like we know a lot about it."

MODEL UN

"The Model UN is a club that is a mix of debate and role playing in hopes of trying to mimic the actual United Nations. We go to three conferences each year. SEMMUNA is a learning conference. # SAVING THE DAY

Students in UNICEF, Adopt-a-Student, SADD, National Honor Society, Peer to Peer, Interact, Student Congress, the Recycling Club, Northville Health Awareness Society and buildOn join forces with others who want to save the day.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME
Senior Anne Pertner stayed with her host family at their home for ten days when she went to Nicaragua with other buildOn members to help build a school. "I love my host family so much. They seem like real family to me," Pertner said.

HEALTHY HABITS

The focus of the Northville Health Awareness Society is to help build a healthier community.

"We do seminar presentations to give healthy tips to students," senior and president Robert Hsu said. "We also do presentations at the library to show little kids how to read nutrition labels."

The club hopes to expand its efforts, according to Hsu. "We are planning on starting a community garden. We got a $500 grant to start it."

he said.

Hsu's work with the club earned him the chance to meet with first lady Michelle Obama. Obama's initiative, called Let's Move! works to end childhood obesity.

"I'm part of an organization for a healthier generation," Hsu explained. "The organization is partnered with Michelle Obama, and I was picked to go and meet with her."

HELPFUL HAUNTING

Students in the school's UNICEF club help raise money for the global organization. UNICEF buys food, water, medicine and supplies for children in Africa. The club said they had some creative fundraising methods.

"We went around on Halloween with UNICEF donation boxes, and instead of asking for candy, we asked for donations. People across the country involved in the organization all do this at Halloween. It was very successful."

WALK FOR A CAUSE

"People from all across Michigan walked and raised money for AIDS in the AIDS Walk this summer," sophomore Danyoul Yamin said. "It was a really fun experience, and I enjoyed getting to meet SADD members from other schools."

The 5K AIDS Walk in Royal Oak was just one of the events SADD members participated in this year to raise money. The group also hosted movie and game nights, held bake sales and collected member dues, raising $500 in contributions.

FUN AND GAMES

(Right) Showing students how to make a craft, junior Joseph Chou admits that it's harder than it seems. "It was fun but kind of hard for me and the kids. I ended up teaching the parents," he said with a laugh. (Below) Seniors Morgan Parsons, Alicia Vignoe, Megan Donohue and junior Mahesh Rao teach moves to students at the National Honors Society Daddy/Daughter Dance. "I was such a bad dancer that I think I inspired the other dads to dance with their daughters," Rao said.

SLIDE TO THE LEFT

ADOPT ME!

When junior Darren Meredith moved to Northville last year, he didn't know anyone. However, he said that Adopt-A-Student saved the day. In the Adopt-A-Student program, new students are assigned to another student to help them find classes, make new friends and make the transition to the community easier.

Q: Where did you move from?

A: Mexico. Just kidding! I moved from Hudson, Ohio.

Q: Were you looking forward to the move?

A: Not really, I mean, I didn't care either way. It was definitely hard to switch schools at the start of sophomore year.

Q: How did your first day of school go?

A: It was a regular first day except for the fact that my Adopt-A-Student was sick, and her best friend had to show me around.

Q: How did the Adopt-A-Student program help you to meet new people?

A: I'm still friends with [NHS alums] Brian Gotberg and Lindsey [Funfgeld]. Since there wasn't that much of an age difference, I've become friends with all of their friends.

Q: What did you think of the Adopt-A-Student program before you started it?

A: I didn't know what it was, but my mom had me fill out the form before we registered for school.

Q: What were your thoughts on it afterwards?

A: It helped me more with making friends because I probably wouldn't have met Lindsey and Brian if not for it.

Q: Would you recommend the program for any other student?

A: It's nice for kids who are new into a big school like Northville. It can't hurt.

BUILDING BRIDGES

The students at Maybury Elementary School in Detroit were filled with excitement when they received goodies during their Christmas party hosted by Student Congress.

"This year, we have been working close with Bridgepoint, a nonprofit organization that builds bridges between Northville, Novi and inner-city Detroit schools," senior Raven Batshon said.

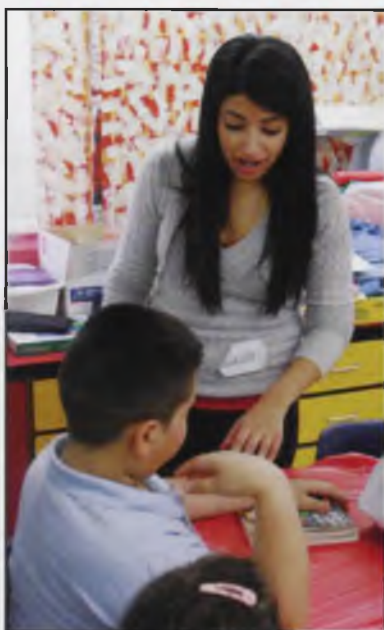

Sophomore Suzanne Clough explained how Student Congress hosted a volleyball tournament as a fundraiser for the Christmas party they were planning. "After the fundraiser, we went shopping for toys and little gifts and thought of activities to do with the kids," she said.

Congress hosted one party for a fourth grade class and another party for a first grade class at Maybury Elementary, Clough explained.

Batshon said they spent the day with the children doing crafts and playing games. "We also gave all the students a Christmas toy, stockings with toys, candy, a care package with necessities and other things," Batshon said.

Congress plans to continue its partnership with the elementary school. Batshon said, "Our Outreach Week will also be centered around collecting and donating goods and money to these needy schools."

"The kids started showing off their dancing skills, and classes started to come out in the hallway to see all of the fun that we were having," Owen said.

THE POWER IS YOURS

"They usually come back dragging the bags because they are so full," co-president and senior Charli Migoski said.

After sending members to collect the paper from each wing, the Recycling Club presidents said the English department always seems to have the most.

English teacher Rachel Besco described the various ways she was cutting back on paper use. "I post note packets on websites like Moodle and Blackboard so that if students want the notes, they can print them out. That way I'm not printing 120 copies," she said.

"There's so much paper that would go to waste if we didn't recycle, and it's nice to know that people are trying to cut back on paper use," Migoski said. The paper recycled in the school in one week broken down by departments looks like this.

"We started planning quite a while ago; we are determined to make this show better than ever!" vice president and senior Meghan McGillis explained about the Rotary Interact fashion show.

McGillis said Rotary Interact has a list of all the models and met with the students to start organizing. "We showed them how to walk across the stage and told them to pick their song that they will be walking to," McGillis said.

McGillis, along with secretary and senior Mallory Mazuchowski, were in charge of decorating the auditorium for the event. "We had a lot of fun shopping and choosing color schemes," McGillis said, grinning.

DECODING HIDDEN MESSAGES

Many people do not know this about me, but not only do I have a tattoo, I designed and drew it myself," senior Sarah Close said.

Of these students who have tattoos, they said the hardest part was deciding what they wanted because the tattoo had to represent them.

"I got Stella Splendente. It means Shining Star in Italian, and it's what my mom calls me," Close said. "Since it meant so much to me, I knew I wanted to have it for the rest of my life."

Senior Allison Smith said she also believes tattoos need a meaning behind them because of their permanence. "My brother passed away my freshman year, and I wanted to honor him in special way," Smith said. "I got a tattoo of the Tibetan word for big brother."

Senior Marc Renfroe said he wanted to learn how to create tattoos because of his fascination for the meaning behind them. "When I got my first tattoo, I just thought they were cool. It just stemmed from there. It kind of turned into an addiction," he explained.

Renfroe now has seven tattoos, each representing a different part of his life. "I have a lot of music notes to show that I am really into music," he said.

Though tattoos are often hidden, they usually represent one's personality, like a superhero's emblem.

SENIORS RALLY FOR A JUST CAUSE

Senior Marissa Lovett said she had high aspirations when she decided to get involved in becoming the event chair for the 2011 Relay for Life. "My grandpa was diagnosed with cancer my sophomore year, so I decided to make a team," she explained.

Lovett is in charge of advertisement, team recruitment, entertainment, survivorship, fundraising and ceremony planning as vice president for the event. "I don't sleep," she said, "but I blame that more on my homework than Relay for Life."

Junior Carly Oosten works closely beside Lovett to get the work done. "I'm in charge of booking the entertainment, getting the stage ready and making sure the ceremonies are on schedule," Oosten said.

Being the only all-high school Relay for Life event in the country puts the organizers under a lot of pressure. Lovett said that meeting deadlines was the hardest part. "People sign up teams late, and with the money needing to be turned in by a certain date, it becomes stressful," she said.

To get it all done, committee members begin meeting in September. Then team captains get started in December.

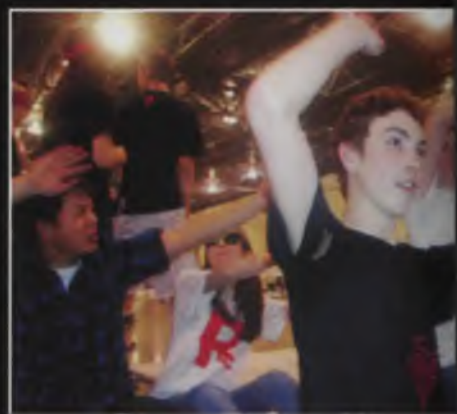

"We just kind of divide the work and get it done. It's a conscious thing; if you don't get your work done, the event is not going to run smoothly," Oosten said.

HOUSE OF ROCK!

(Right) In the early hours of the morning of the Relay For Life event, seniors Michael Dause, Michael Truong, Sophia Sdao and Christian Hoppens dance on the floor of the Rock Financial Showplace. "We were all exhausted and about to fall asleep," Hoppens said. (Below)

NEITHER SNOW NOR RAIN

The harsh wind furiously tosses the sleeting snow, attacking junior Austin Mortiere's face while the frigid air bites at his nose, yet he continues to play, the marimba that is.

Mortiere regularly practices the mallet instrument outside the main entrance or just inside the doors at the bottom of the stairwell when the weather doesn't cooperate.

"I had to stay after school for drum line practices," Mortiere explained. "I had an hour to kill, so I decided to spend that time playing marimba."

Students said they were caught off guard when they first heard and then saw Mortiere in his public practice space. "The first time I saw him, I whipped my head around to make sure I was seeing things right," sophomore Daniella Raz said. "He was playing in the snow!"

As it turns out, the impromptu performances were a happy surprise for passersby. "I like to see people smiling at the music when they leave the building," Mortiere said. "For a lot of people, it seems to brighten up the end of their day."

MUSICAL GUEST

(Right) Junior Austin Mortiere practices the marimba in the front stairwell. "I started playing mallet instruments when I joined band in sixth grade," he said. (Below) Mortiere surprises students with his impromptu performances at the school's main entrance. "The marimba is mostly the same as a xylophone, but it's bigger and has a deeper tone," Mortiere said.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

(Below) The sounds of the marimba echo through the stairwell at the main entrance. Junior Austin Mortiere performs for anyone who passes by after school. "I have gotten a few comments from people leaving the building," Mortiere said, "but they usually just look around and smile."

POCKET FULL OF KRYPTONITE

Junior year is packed with the ACT, chemistry and the stress of planning for the future. These students said they consider junior year to be the toughest of all four and described the biggest worries they have about the year — their own personal "kryptonite."

"This year has been super stressful. I have taken an ACT class and a practice ACT. This test is also always on my mind. Although it is still pretty far away, sometimes it's the only thing I can think about."

JUNIOR MICHAEL BOJOVIC

"So far the hardest part of my junior year has been reading The Hobbit. This book has caused many problems for me, including failing the reading quizzes. This experience has caused me to hate wizards."

JUNIOR TRENT CURRIE

"This year has been my kryptonite because most of the teachers do not understand the stress. They fail to recognize my situation and pile on more homework to my already busy schedule."

JUNIOR KATHLEEN CROWLEY

"This year has had its ups and down. Sometimes I have no worries, while other times I have so much to do, I do not even know where to start."

JUNIOR MICHAEL BITTERLE

"I took AP Psych but had to drop it because there was too much information for me to memorize. One plus side to this year is that Algebra 2 is super easy."

EVERYDAY ENEMIES

A SCHOOL, MUCH LIKE A COMIC BOOK, IS FILLED WITH EVERYDAY HEROES FACING OFF AGAINST VILLAINOUS FOES. THESE STUDENTS DESCRIBED THE ENEMIES THAT PLAGUE THEM EACH DAY.

FORREST ICKES VS. FINALS

FINALS WOULD BE AT THE TOP MY LIST MY HATE OF STUDYING FOR FINALS CAN ONLY BE TOPPED BY MY STRONG HATRED FOR THE TESTS THEMSELVES.

DAVID FECHT VS. SLEEP LOSS

I THINK MY BIGGEST ENEMY THIS YEAR IS MY SLEEPING SCHEDULE. I'VE NOTICED THAT I HAVE BEEN GETTING FOUR HOURS OF SLEEP FOR THE PAST TWO MONTHS. THAT'S NOT GOOD.

MATTHEW FIELDS VS. THE FIRST LUNCH

IT'S DEFINITELY THE FIRST LUNCH OF A NEW SEMESTER. SOMETHING ABOUT THE DESPERATE SCRABBLING OF KIDS TRYING TO FIND THEIR FRIENDS AND AN EMPTY PLACE TO SIT DOESN'T

APPEAL TO ME. PLUS, THINGS ARE ALWAYS AWKWARD UNTIL THE SECOND WEEK, UNTIL THINGS SETTLE DOWN.

MAXWELL GREZLIK VS. CHATTY CATHYS

MY ENEMY WOULD BE YOUNGER GIRLS STOPPING IN THE HALLWAY TO SCREAM ABOUT WHO KISSED WHO, WHILE I'M TRYING TO GET PAST THEM TO GET TO CLASS LIKE THE GOOD STUDENT I AM.

BRANDON LOVE VS. BALANCING IT ALL

MY BIGGEST CHALLENGE DURING SCHOOL IS PROBABLY BALANCING SPORTS AND CLASS AND MAKING SURE I STAY FOCUSED FOR BOTH.

WHAT AN ODD JOB

WITH JUNIOR YEAR COMES THE OPPURTUNITY FOR STUDENTS TO FACE A WHOLE NEW CHALLENGE, THE WORKPLACE. STUDENTS TALKED ABOUT WORK AND THE SUPERPOWERS REQUIRED TO FUFILL THEIR DUTIES AND MAKE MONEY.

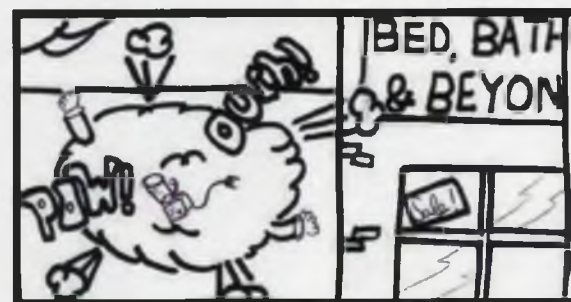

"I'M DEFINITELY EXCITED TO LIFEGUARD NEXT SUMMER. I'M READY TO SAVE SOME LIVES AND BOSS IT UP"

JUNIOR DAWSON LAABS

"MY JOB'S PRETTY SWEET. I'M A SOCCER REF, AND I ALSO PLAY SOCCER, SO THAT MAKES MY JOB A LITTLE MORE ENJOYABLE. EVERY NOW AND THEN, I HAVE TO STEP IN AND BREAK UP FIGHTS.

JUNIOR ZACHARY MOUAIKEL

"OLD PEOPLE ALWAYS TRY TO SHOPLIFT BIG ITEMS AT BED BATH AND BEYOND. I CALL MY BROTHER TO COME DOWN FROM HIS OFFICE, SO WE CAN GET A GOOD LAUGH AND FIGHT WITH THE OLD PEOPLE TO GET THE ITEMS BACK."

JUNIOR BRANDON LOVE

"I DON'T REALLY HAVE A JOB RIGHT NOW, BUT LAST SUMMER, I WENT TO WORK WITH MIKE FERGUSON, AND HE WAS SHOWING ME AROUND THE PUMP ROOM. THEN HE TOLD ME TO LOOK INTO THIS BUCKET THAT WAS FILLED WITH CHLORINE. THEN HE SHOOK IT, AND I COULDN'T STOP COUGHING. IT WAS DEFINITELY NOT COOL."

EVEN HEROES BREAK STUFF

As the table burst into flames, junior Summer LoCicero and students in Cathy Ooms's College Preparatory Chemistry class watched in awe.

Sophomore Nicholas Holub recalled the incident. "When we were doing a lab where we were testing chemicals," Holub said, "She lit a match, and then all of a sudden, a piece of paper caught on fire, and a test tube broke."

LoCicero explained her side of the story. "I lit a match upside down, and the flames were touching my hand. Then I dropped the match because it was burning my hand," she said.

"Then all of a sudden, the table was kind of on fire, and I went to blow it out. Then a test tube fell off the lab table and broke," she said.

Sophomore Aurelia Busse, a witness to the accident, explained the aftermath. "After Summer broke the test tube, everyone was making fun of her. I felt really bad," Busse said.

"She then tried to hide the broken test tube from Ms. Ooms, but she walked in and saw it. She ended up having to pay $6 for the test tube," Busse added.

In the end, LoCicero said she defends her actions. "If I didn't drop the match, then my fingers would have been burnt," she said. "My safety is more important than a broken test tube."

SLACKERS UNITE... TOMORROW

IT WOULD TAKE MEGAMIND'S INTELLIGENCE AND SUPERMAN'S STRENGTH FOR JUNIORS TO STAY FOCUSED ON SCHOOL WORK. SOME OF THEM DO CAVE IN TO PROCRASTINATION, AN EVIL FOE THAT HAS TAKEN DOWN MANY GOOD STUDENTS. JUNIORS EXPLAINED WHAT THEY DO WHEN THEY AREN'T DOING WHAT THEY'RE SUPPOSED TO.

LOOKING OUT FOR THE LITTLE GUY

When you enter her basement, you just see lumps everywhere," sophomore Elisabeth Moore said, describing her friend sophomore Samantha Klutchko's turtle habitat.

Klutchko and her father rescue turtles that have been neglected by their owners. "Most of the turtles we have come from families that did not know how to take care of them," she said.

Klutchko explained that the neglect can lead to pyramiding, which causes the tortoise's shells to become bumpy and start falling off. "Once they start pyramiding, it doesn't go away. They are stuck like that for as long as they live," she said.

When Moore first visited Klutchko's house, she said she was impressed. "Sam is amazing. She is absolutely the best one to take care of the turtles. She really knows a lot about them," she said.

"There are three different types of turtles. The terrapins live mainly in water, turtles live in both water and land, and tortoises live on land," Klutchko explained.

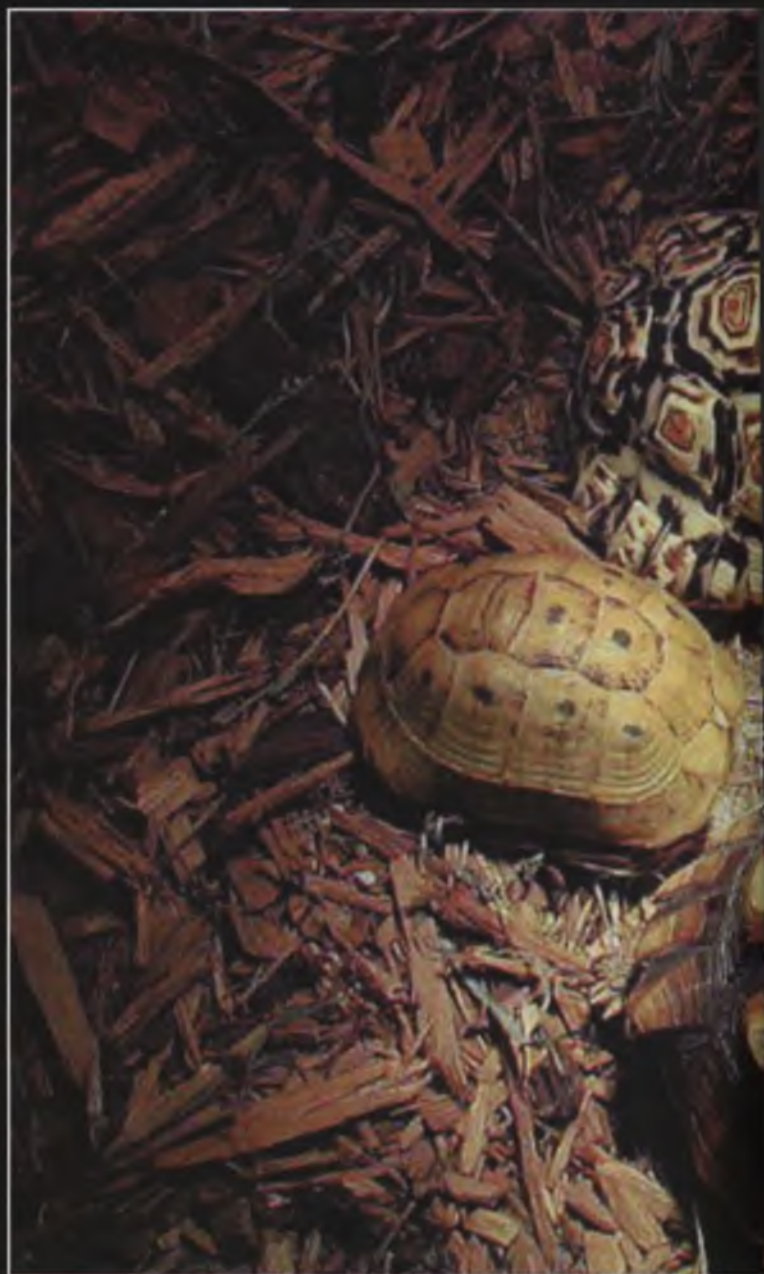

Klutchko's Biology teacher, Kim Taylor-Papp, admires her student's work as well. "I think that it is absolutely phenomenal that a high school student would save turtles," she said.

The Klutchkos have cared for 20 different species of turtles and currently have 60 in their habitat. But, Klutchko added, she's not done yet.

INSEPARABLE

(Right) There is no Sonny without Cher. "Sonny got out under the fence one day. He could have been gone forever, but he never wanted to leave Cher. They were still side by side, the fence between them," sophomore Samantha Klutchko said. (Below) Klutchko, who rescues the turtles, said each has a story. Marshmallow is timid, Tonya recently recovered from an upper respiratory infection and Sarge, Klutchko's first tortoise, was neglected by a petshop owner.

TO THE RESCUE

CASE OF THE BLUES

(Left) Heidi has the worst pyramiding condition out of all of Klutchko's turtles. "It was really sad when we got her. Her past owner neglected her, keeping her in a cage and feeding her the wrong food. She is now eating better, and her health is starting to improve," Klutchko said.

ABOVE AND BEYOND...

ORDINARY KIDS? NOT IN THIS CASE. THESE SOPHOMORES TALKED ABOUT PEOPLE THEY SEE AS BETTER THAN THE AVERAGE PERSON WHO HAVE SOME SERIOUS SUPERHERO TRAITS.

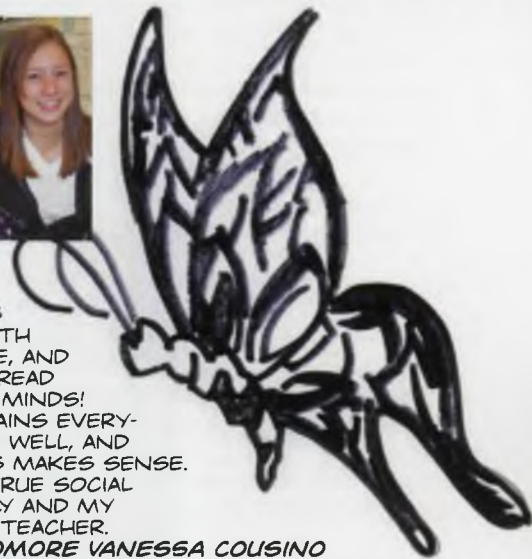

OH MY GOSH, DERRICK NEVINS! EVERYBODY LIKES DERRICK. NO, EVERYBODY LOVES DERRICK. HE'S REALLY SWEET TO EVERYONE, AND VERY EASY TO TALK TO. AND HE'S STRONG TOO, HE'S GOT SUPER STRENGTH. HE'S LIKE A TEDDY BEAR, AND HE JUST BRIGHTENS UP EVERYBODY'S DAY. AND THE BEST THING IS HOW CAREFREE HE IS.

SOPHOMORE EMMA AUTY

MRS. WARNER. SHE GETS ALONG WITH EVERYONE, AND SHE CAN READ PEOPLE'S MINDS! SHE EXPLAINS EVERYTHING SO WELL, AND IT ALWAYS MAKES SENSE. SHE'S A TRUE SOCIAL BUTTERFLY AND MY FAVORITE TEACHER.

SOPHOMORE VANESSA COUSINO

ARMEN [SHAHRIGIAN] AND RYLEE [DONOVAN]. ARMEN IS BATMAN, AND RYLEE'S ROBIN. I THINK THEY SECRETLY TAG TEAM AND PLAN OUT EVERYTHING. ARMEN ALWAYS STANDS UP FOR THE LITTLE GUY, AND RYLEE WILL BACK HIM UP. IT TAKES A LOT OF GUTS TO DO THAT, ESPECIALLY IN HIGH SCHOOL. THEY'RE TWO OF THE GREATEST PEOPLE I'VE EVER MET.

CLOSE CALLS

Suddenly the music stopped, the iPod disappeared under the seat, and while the young driver reached down to retrieve it, he lost all control of the steering wheel. It seemed to have a mind of its own as the car turned and veered into oncoming traffic, almost hitting a pole.

Sophomore Jahanze Jahania had just received his license in the fall, earning the new superpower of driving. The power failed him, however, when he put his and his friends' lives in danger while driving along Six Mile and Haggerty roads.

"It was actually pretty scary, and now everybody thinks I'm a bad driver," Jahania said while laughing. "Which I am."

This same superpower seemed to abandon sophomore Elizabeth Maier while she was driving to Wendy's. "I was trying to pass a car that was going really slow, and as soon as I started to pass him, he started to accelerate," she said.

Maier said she had to think fast to avoid an accident. "I ended up going like 50 miles per hour on the side of the road to get around him."

The girls in Maier's car were shocked by the almost accident. "Everyone was screaming and freaking out," Maier said. "Luckily no one was hurt."

Sophomore Evan Swoish said he felt like superpowers helped him survive when he was on his way to Taco Bell and was almost crushed by a car. "The car swerved into our lane, trying to turn into the parking lot," he said.

Swoish said his driving skills saved his life. "In a split second, I had to swerve into the next lane to avoid him, and the car behind me crushed the car that was trying to turn into the Taco Bell parking lot," he said.

Vs.

Both heroes and villains play big roles in comics. Many artists believe you can't have one without the other. But which is better, and who is the best hero or villain? These sophomores explained their opinion on the matter.

"A villain, I'm a very negative person. I hate everyone. There's not a day that goes by that I don't feel depressed, so I've turned against the world. Team Rocket is my favorite villain. They steal Pokemon; that's pretty bad."

"I would like to think I'm a hero, because I try my hardest to be nice to some people. Princess Jasmine is my favorite, she saves Aladdin and is really cool."

SOPHOMORE HEATHER LAMOUREUX

"I love villains. They make things more interesting. The whole story depends on them. If you didn't have a villain, the whole plot would just be a total bore. I love Syndrome from the Incredibles, he's very appealing."

SOPHOMORE ALEXA ABBOTT

"A villain, because saving people gets boring after awhile. I like Mojo Jojo, from Power Puff Girls. I love how his brain shows and his cape that always gets him in trouble."

"A hero, because I try to help people. I don't want to be a villain, they're mean. Spiderman, he can climb up walls, and that's super cool."

PLAYING THE VILLAIN

READY, AIM, SPLAT! THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT HAPPENED WHEN A CLASSMATE THREW AN EGG AT SOPHOMORE LEIGH FITZPATRICK'S HOUSE. FITZPATRICK CONFRONTED THE PERPETRATOR ABOUT THE ATTACK, AND HE DENIED IT. FITZPATRICK CLAIMED THAT THE DAMAGE WAS MADE WORSE BY THE ACCUSED'S CLAIM TO INNOCENCE, "IT WAS HIM, AND WHAT MADE IT WORSE WAS THAT HE DENIED IT," SHE SAID.

THE EGGS LAID FRESH ON THE TABLE, READY TO BE THROWN AT SOPHOMORE FITZPATRICK'S HOUSE. "THE NEXT THING I KNEW, I HAD TWO EGGS IN MY HAND. I FELL TO THE PEER PRESSURE," THE SOPHOMORE ADMITTED.

SAID SOPHOMORE AND HIS FRIENDS WAITED OUTSIDE FITZPATRICK'S HOUSE FOR THE RIGHT MOMENT TO THROW THE EGGS. "THEY SAID WE WOULDN'T GET CAUGHT, BUT AS YOU CAN SEE..." HE SAID, HIS VOICE TRAILING OFF AS HE LAUGHED AT HIS SITUATION.

JOSEPH UKROP

FINALLY, THE GROUP OF MISCHIEVOUS SOPHOMORES PELTED FITZPATRICK'S HOUSE, LEAVING IT COVERED IN BROKEN EGGS. "THEY MOVED MY VARSITY SIGN. THEY EGGED MY HOUSE. THEY EGGED MY DOOR," SHE SAID.

SUPER SURPRISE 16

With the bass blaring, a group of excited sophomores jumped up to surround sophomore Jordyn Trotter. "The look on her face was priceless," sophomore Hallie Tyburski said. "She was so surprised."

"The doors opened, and I was in complete shock," Trotter said. She said that some things had been confusing her for the past few weeks, but she hadn't guessed what.

"Before I was really confused because people kept saying 'Happy Birthday' to me in the hallway," Trotter said. "[Senior] Caitlin Steinberg especially almost let out the secret when she asked me whether DJ CoKo was DJing at the party."

The night went perfectly according to sophomore Allyson Green. "Getting everyone all the information about the party was probably the hardest part," Green said. "With the help of Mrs. Trotter planning, the DJ and dance floor was easy."

"With the original plan, to go to dinner then see a movie, I expected nothing out of the ordinary," Trotter said. "But when my mom was smiling the whole way into the building, I could tell something was up."

"When the song 'Fergalicious' came on, everyone got really excited," Trotter said. "There is a certain verse of the song that everyone knows is 'Allie's part.' Everyone sang together until her part, then we all got silent, and she took over," Trotter said. "Allie singing was the best way to end my perfect sweet sixteen."

BEING THE CHANGE YOU WANT TO SEE

It started with one boy and a lemonade stand and has grown into a nonprofit organization called Christoph's A.L.L. Stars that has raised tens of thousands of dollars to help kids with cancer.

Freshman Christoph Bartschat was the boy who started it all. "I was diagnosed with cancer in May of 2007," he said. "During the soccer season, I started bruising really easily and getting tired. They found that I had leukemia and started me on outpatient treatment."

Spending an increasing number of hours in the hospital, Bartschat noticed that there was little in the way of entertainment for the patients. It had many DVDs, but no player, so he started the lemonade stand to raise money for one. "The idea to start the organization came from my mom and I," Bartschat said.

According to Bartschat, Christoph's A.L.L. Stars has three goals: to support research, make treatment more comfortable and raise awareness about children with cancer. Now the organization raises money mainly by auctioning off donated products.

The success of the lemonade stand and the auctions grew until the Bartschats decided to make it an official organization.

"We've raised about $80,000 so far," Bartschat said. "It all goes to the Children's Hospital of Michigan."

Though Bartschat completed his treatment, he still supports the program. "I plan to keep on doing this until I go to college," he said. "I think it's important to help people and make a difference."

GO FOR GOLD

(Below) A football autographed by Rich Rodriguez and a voucher for two tickets were just a few items donated to the auction. "We sent out letters to the public relations workers for the Lions and a lot of other sports teams, and they sent the football and the voucher over," Bartschat said. Every fall, A.L.L. Stars auctions off the donated items, which is their biggest fundraiser of the year. Meads Mill Middle School also sells key chains and bracelets during its Spirit Week to raise money for the organization.

HANDLE WITH CARE

(Above) Chemotherapy is a common treatment for cancer patients, but the process causes hair loss and severe nausea. "No one should have to go through [it]," Bartschat said. "It really sucked." Because of the many negative side effects, the organization made it one of their goals to make the treatment more comfortable. (Left) After raising more $20,000, freshman Christoph Bartschat and his mom present a check to doctors at the Children's Hospital of Michigan. "We had the check printed at Kinko's," Bartschat said. "It's not actually real!"

Some would prefer to fly, while others wish they could turn invisible. Which is better and why? Students gave their opinion on the most useful superpowers and how they would use them for good or at least to make their own lives easier.

"I wish I had the power to be super stretchy. Being super stretchy would really make my life easier because I wouldn't have to get off the couch while watching television just to get a Coke."

SUPER SKILLS

PETER PARKER WAS STRUGGLING THROUGH HIGH SCHOOL WHEN HE WAS BITTEN BY A RADIOACTIVE SPIDER AND BECAME SPIDERMAN. THESE STUDENTS DESCRIBED THE SUPER POWERS THEY WISH THEY'D GAINED TO HELP THEM GET THROUGH HIGH SCHOOL.

"THE ABILITY TO NEVER SLEEP, THEN I COULD SURVIVE A MORNING SWIM PRACTICE AND FINISH MY SCHOOL WORK THAT I HAVE TO DO NOW."
FRESHMAN LOREN EVANS

"SUPER BRAIN POWERS TO MAKE FRIENDS BECAUSE I CAME FROM A PRIVATE SCHOOL, AND IT'S HARDER HERE."

FRESHMAN BAILEY FOWLER

"I GAINED SUPER SPEED BECAUSE THE HIGH SCHOOL IS BIGGER THAN IN MIDDLE SCHOOL. WE ONLY HAVE SEVEN MINUTES TO GET TO CLASS, AND IF ONE OF YOUR CLASSES IS GYM AND YOUR NEXT CLASS IS IN THE NEW WING, YOU'RE IN TROUBLE."

FRESHMAN ERIC FOX

"THE ABILITY TO FLY TO GET TO CLASSES EARLIER AND AVOID THE CROWDS. THERE ARE SO MANY MORE KIDS IN THE HIGH SCHOOL THAN THERE WERE IN MIDDLE SCHOOL."

IN SPANISH 2, EVERYONE LOOKED AT ME LIKE I DIDN'T BELONG THERE, BUT ONE DAY, MR. CREIGHTON ASKED IF ANYONE KNEW THE ONLY STEM-CHANGER VERB IN PRETERITE TENSE. I BROKE THE SILENCE IN ANSWERING 'PEDIR' AND WAS REWARDED WITH AN EXTRA CREDIT SLIP.

I'M AN UNDERDOG

Eighth graders are the superheroes of middle school. When they come to high school as freshmen; however, they move from being the top dogs to the underdogs. Students explained their feelings about this change.

"It's only in seminar that people really know I'm a freshman. The seniors always say that we have to bring food as freshmen, and we don't have the right to talk."

FRESHMAN FAITH HORBATCH

"What the seniors say, goes. If they want something from you, you better give it to them."

FRESHMAN JOSIAH JACKSON

"I came from a Catholic school, so I try to talk to people and be open with everyone. No one has been mean so far. Everyone has been really nice."

FRESHMAN SHELBY HOHENSIL

"Freshman Friday; I heard that on one Friday, everyone just beats up on the freshmen, but it hasn't happened yet, so I don't know if it's going to happen."

FRESHMAN JOSEPH HEWLETT

"I heard about the lunch tables last year and that they are only for seniors. Whenever we ask to use a chair, we get a lot of attitude from them."

FRESHMAN PRIYA KATHURIA

"I play soccer on the freshman team, so some of the seniors kind of respect me for it. The seniors watch our games, so we get to know them pretty well."

BRAIN POWER

Freshman Jonathan Li is no ordinary freshman — his classes are on par with any senior's. Li walked into high school with his math requirements almost complete: (H) Algebra I, (H) Algebra II, (H) Geometry and (H) Precalculus. What else does he have left to prove? According to Li, plenty.

Q: So, how did you get all the way to AP Calculus in your freshman year?

A: I skipped sixth grade and eighth grade math. I took Honors Geometry over the summer, and I tested out of Precalc.

Q: If you're already taking AP Calculus your freshman year of high school, what classes will you be taking for the rest of your high school career?

A: Oh, well, I'm going to take Calc II and Calc III in the future. I want to take differential equations my senior year.

Q: You're taking a lot of classes with seniors this year. Do any of them make fun of you for being the youngest in the class?

A: Well, seniors tease me, but it's not derogatory. They're not giving me a hard time or anything.

Q: Why is it that you've jumped so far ahead of the usual schedule?

A: I don't feel like I have to be in the advanced classes. I just like challenging myself in whatever I do.

Q: If you're taking all these advanced classes, you must have a goal in mind. What are your plans for college and life after high school?

A: I'd like to go to MIT, Cal Tech, or Stanford, but I wouldn't mind going to U of M.

Q: What about your career after college?

A: Uh, well, can I not answer that?

Q: Oh, it can't be that bad!

A: Well, I guess I'd want to join the ROTC.

Q: What does that stand for?

A: It's the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. I've always had an interest in the military. They have some pretty cool stuff that civilians don't have access to.

Q: You sound like you have a good grasp of your future.

A: Yeah, but it's pretty iffy right now. I'm still in high school and all, so I still have time to make my decisions.

FRESHMAN SIDEKICKS

Who wants a freshman sidekick? Really, it's not so bad. Just ask senior Emily Sklar.

"Emily was the captain [of the girl's cross country team], and we kind of just clicked," freshman Alison Robinson said. "We talk after class all the time now!"

Sklar even gave Robinson her nickname on the team.

"She calls me Twitch," Robinson said, laughing. "It's kind of an inside joke."

According to Robinson and Sklar, the two had a lot of adventures together.

"This one time, after a cross country meet, we vandalized the cross country boys' cars," Robinson said, laughing.

"With window markers!" Sklar added quickly.

"They had a big meet coming up, so we wrote a lot of stuff like 'Go Mustangs' on their windows."

Unfortunately, they didn't get away with the prank.

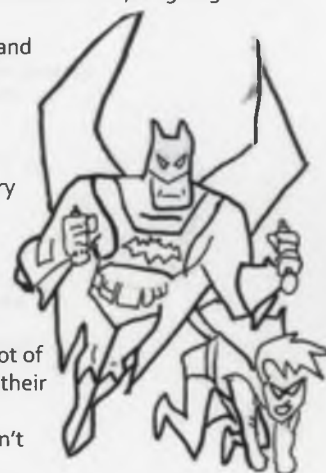

"We wrote on Ms. Johnson's son's car," Sklar said, shaking her head. "She found out, and she confronted [Robinson] in the hallway!"

"She threatened to call the police," Robinson said. "I was so freaked out!"

"Alison thought she was serious," Sklar said, grinning. "She was actually just kidding."

The girls said the incident didn't scare them. If anything, they laughed at the experience.

"Emily has my back," Robinson said. "We're just awesome like that."

BRENDON WHITE

Brendon —

Though we can't be there to share in your celebrations, know that we're thinking of you and are proud of you!

Love,
Aunt Julia and Uncle Reinhard

BRENDON WHITE

We're so very proud of you and the person you've become!
Thanks for the joy and laughter; it's been fun watching you grow up.
Now it is time to take on the world and realize the best that life has to offer.

BRENDON WHITE

Brendon —

It's going to be hard wrestling dad all by myself, but if I use the techniques you taught me, I should be fine. Good luck!

Your brother,
Connor

MARIE SILVIO

Marie,

My mama always said,
"Life is like a box of chocolates; you never know what you're gonna get."

My father always told me,
"Find a job you love, and you'll never have to work a day in your life."

"Here's looking at you, kid." We love you with all our heart!

Mom and Dad

HALEY FERRARIO

Yahoo!
All done!
Finally made it!
The freedom!
The trips, the beaches!
Staying out late, sleeping in late!
No cares, no worries!
Well, enough about us.

Love,
Mom and Dad

CARLY HAMMOND

Carly,

We have loved watching you become the young woman you are today.
You have worked so hard, and you have far to go. We hope you dance!

Congrats Munch!
You worked hard these past four years. Good luck at college.

Love, Chris

SARAH DEBRABANDER

Our house will be so quiet without you and your friends.
Good luck and have a blast at GVSU!

Love ya,
Buddy and Jay

SARAH DEBRABANDER

You are such a special granddaughter to me. You bring such joy and happiness into my life.

Love,
Pa

KEVIN COURTNEY

We are so proud of you!
You are a terrific son and will enjoy success by being true to yourself and following your dreams.
Good luck, we will miss you.

Love,
Mom and Dad

KATHRYN VANSLAMBROUCK

Kathryn,

We are very proud of you! God has blessed you with many gifts and talents — embrace them. As you enter your college years, remember to laugh as hard as you study, and know that we will always be there for our "little pumkin."

Love,
Mom, Dad and Lindsay

CHRISTIAN GUENTHER

Christian,

From the minute you were born, you have brought us nothing but joy! We are so proud of the choices you have made and all you've accomplished!

We love you,
Mom, Dad & Morgan

ERIC OSTROWSKI

Congratulations to Eric and the class of 2011. We are so proud of all of you. Good luck out there. Reach for the stars!

With love,
The Ostrowski Family

NATALIE DEMURO

What do I say to the coolest person in the world?!

Go out and do great things. I know you can achieve anything you set your mind to. Congrats!

NICHOLAS SYZDEK

Believe in yourself. Have conviction in your beliefs and the confidence to execute them. We believe in you!

Love,
Mom, Dad and Brianna

NATALIE DEMURO

To our beautiful daughter!
We are all proud of you, we love you dearly.
You are the best in everything you do.
Love,
Mom, Dad & Nara

TAYLOR KOWALSKI

Taylor!

Wake up! It's time to go to "college"

Love,
Casie

SEVAN MISIRLIYAN

Although your accomplishments are many, we are most proud of the beautiful, kind-hearted young lady you have become. Follow your dreams, knowing we will always be there to support you. We will miss you.

Love,
Dad, Mom, Sarine & Ani

MEREDITH NJHS

Whether in class or on stage, you will always be our star. We are proud of all you have achieved, and we can't wait to see your next performance. Congratulations and have a great time in college. We love you.

Mom, Dad and Elliot

STEPHANIE SAKORAFIS

You are a very special daughter, and we are blessed to have you in our lives. Believe in yourself and follow your dreams.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Elizabeth

JACK SINE

Jack,

Hold fast to your dreams and live a life that makes you happy to see the sun come up every day. We're very proud of you!

Love,
Mom, Dad and Sam

STEVEN BRYNDZA

Steven,

We are very proud of your accomplishments. We wish you continued success. Congratulations!

Love,
Dad, Mom and Matthew

JACOB INANIEC

Dear Jake,

We are so proud of you and your accomplishments. Your kindness, creativity, and humor will take you far in life.

We love you!
Mom and Dad

BROOKE ANDERSON

We have been so blessed to have such a beautiful and kind-hearted daughter. You always keep us laughing at all of your funny one-liners.

Love always,
Mom, Dad and Taylor

HEA-MI KIM

To our loving daughter Hea-Mi,

I'm thankful to have a beautiful and loving daughter. While writing this, I realized how much you've grown. We believe that you will succeed in art school!

Mom and Dad

VINEETHA RANGARAJAN

Congratulations Vineetha,

We feel blessed to have such a wonderful daughter. We are sure you will be successful in whatever you choose to become. Stay focused as you have always been.

Love forever,
Mom and Dad

SARAH MARKS

Your determination will take you far.
You are a wonderful daughter and a great sister. We are proud of your accomplishments.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Andy xxoo

ALHAN BEYDOWN

Alhan,

You are a gift from God. We wish you the best of luck, and we know you will succeed in everything you do.
We love you.

Your family,
Mom, Dad, Zeinab, Reem,
Mohamad and Juliana

JUSTIN COSPITO

Only one silver sound
One reason; one calling
One beat of my heart
Only I know the answers
For only I know the questions.

from "Wonder" by Justin Cospito

Keep asking questions,
Your loving parents

MORGAN PARSONS

Morgan,

Our sunshine! You are beautiful inside and out. We love you for your big heart and great spirit.
Keep believing in yourself and all your dreams will come true.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Devin and Linnea

LAUREN SPARSCHU

We have confidence that your intelligence will take you far in life!
If you work hard, you can achieve anything. Remember that your family is always here for you.

Love,
Dad, Mom, Audrey and Erik

MATTHEW HARTMAN

From the moment you entered our lives, watching you grow (and grow and...) has brought us indescribable joy.
Congratulations, Matt. Your dad would have been as proud as we are.

Love,
Mom and Emily

ELAINE GLOVER

Congratulations, Elaine!

We are so proud of you.

You can do all things ...

Do what you love and love what you do.

May happiness and success always be yours.

We love you,

Mom, Dietrich and Handsome

MEET THE ARTIST

The artwork featured on the cover, table of contents, title page and dividers was created by Florida artist Kelly Hennessey.

"I jumped at the chance to do something different with my art," Hennessey said of the project. "I currently do mostly painting and figured this would be a great opportunity to jump out of my comfort zone."

The artist explained how she created the original designs. "To keep the lines super clean and sharp, I decided to go with cut paper," she said. "Not only will you get extremely clean lines, but you will have sharp, clear color."

She said once she decided on the medium, she created a couple of quick sketches with hard shadows, then transferred the lines to the paper and cut them out carefully, edited them with a careful eye and then adhered them to the background. She added, "My main objective for this project was to allow the art to be enlarged or reduced and still stay sharp, clear and visually appealing."

Hennessey credits the yearbook editors for giving her such great direction. "I was given very clear, easy, and well drawn ideas that only had to be manipulated into paper for a dark yet fun effect," she said. "I enjoyed creating this yearbook art and look forward to many other challenging projects."

Hennessey studied visual communication, fine arts and illustration at Kendall College of Art and Design and has spent the past 20 years experimenting with her artwork. "I have pretty much tried just about every art medium out there," Hennessey said.

You can find Hennessey and see more of her work on facebook.

MEANWHILE ...

It seems like the 2011 yearbook staff knew it wanted a comic book theme even before the 2010 book was finished. The problem was figuring out what to do with it. There are so many ways to go with that idea. What would it look like? What would it be called?

We decided pretty quickly on the stark black and white speech bubble artwork for the cover, which then meant we had to come up with one word to pull the whole idea together.

Meanwhile ... Everyone agreed immediately.

Staffers scoured the internet for images that would inspire them, sketches were made by Student Life Editor Lauren Colasanti and sent to Florida artist Kelly Hennessey (see page 309) to see how she would interpret their ideas. Her highly-stylized, high-contrast illustrations set the look, and we were off.

The book was designed using Adobe InDesign CS2. Other effects and retouching were done in Adobe Photoshop. Headline text is set in Badaboom, sequence and speech bubbles use Dave Gibbons, and stories and captions are Corbel.

Most photos were taken with Nikon D40, Nikon Coolpix L5 and Canon PowerShot SD450 digital cameras. Additional photography was provided by Steve Fecht Photography, Prestige Photography, Visual Sports Network and Joe Carulli Studios.

The purchase price of the book is $60, and publication is made possible through book sales, the sale of senior ads and limited ad sales.

All 1,685 copies of the 320-page, all-color, 9x12-inch books were printed on gloss 80# paper stock. The Vista custom embossed, Silktouch Black cover is wrapped on a 145-pt. cover board. The front endsheets were printed on VC 01 white.

The whole affair was stitched together using Smyth Sewn binding and printed by Herff Jones at its Kansas plant.

LOOKING FORWARD

As dawn breaks across Metropolis, Superman's night of crime fighting has come to a close. He puts on his civilian clothing, and becomes Clark Kent once more.

The line between superhero and civilian is blurred as students take on the world after graduation.

"Throughout your schooling, you are given specific times and areas for each subject, but in college and the outside world you have to learn to make everything fit together," Principal Robert Watson said.

Watson said that students' time in high school gives them the necessary tools to prepare themselves for the things unknown, like the workplace, the military or college.

"I'm choosing to enter the armed forces because I want to serve my country, and I know that it'll be the best decision I've ever made," senior Christian Gjonaj said. He has enlisted in the Navy and plans to become a Master at Arms.

Senior Cameron Albrant said that he plans to join the Coast Guard. "I'm joining because that branch helps enforce the environmental laws throughout the country," he said.

Unlike Superman, students will not keep their talents hidden. They will become the doctors, teachers and protectors of humanity in our ever-changing world.

THE BEST 9 MONTHS

Dear Yearbook Staff,

It all started with a comic, printed off by Joey and Brendon and taped to the bulletin board. Now here we are, with the product of that idea created then and developed for nine months (Geez, it's like we had a baby).

We've had some excellent times getting to this point. Staying after school for hours, until we were slap happy and mod headlines were the funniest things (dueling caballos anyone?), arguing about whether letter sweaters can work on guys and discussing how adorable babies are all led us to this beautiful yearbook.

I'd say yearbook is the greatest compilation of hilarious English nerds I've ever encountered. Thank goodness I signed up for this. Thank goodness you guys did too, or that would be awkward, being all alone in class.

There's no one else I would rather spend hours brainstorming with, not because you have great ideas (not that you don't) but because your bad ideas are equally creative and hilarious. I'm sure that as some of the best thinkers and writers I know, you will do well wherever you go.

So here it is, our baby, and I couldn't be happier with the parents. I love you all and good luck with the rest of your lives.

— Faith

During class, the yearbook staff occasionally breaks into dance battles. In a competition between the photo editor and a staffer, who wins?

"Let me just tell you something, I am Sasha Fierce. Gaga herself trained me. When I dance, I DANCE. Puja's got nothing on me."

HE'LL BREAK YOUR HEART

Darkness envelops the gym, broken only by the flashing of green strobe lights. Hundreds of students dance to the beat of the pulsing music.

This year, Student Congress won the opportunity to have DJ Heartbreaker perform at Spring Fling. They won a radio contest at a Congress event in Traverse City called States.

"Last year at States, DJ Heartbreaker was giving away a dance for free," junior Emily Kallil explained. "Everyone called in, and the fifth caller won the DJ."

Junior Spencer Koblinki, who made the call to DJ Heartbreaker, explained: "I was shocked when he told me we won. I thought it was one of my friends playing a joke on me."

Student Congress members weren't the only ones who were happy with the change.

"I liked that he played popular music. The gym had a cool set up, too. It was really dark, unlike the other dances, which was a good atmosphere," freshman Kristen Frogner commented.

Kallil said DJ Heartbreaker made the dance a huge success. "It was a really fun experience. I wish we could have him at every dance," she said.

CANDYLAND

"I DID WELL IN THIS GAME BECAUSE I'M REALLY FLEXIBLE," SENIOR DAVID KETELHUT SAID.

PROM?

YOUR MAJESTY

Congress nominated teachers to appear on a Teacher's Court for Outreach Week. Students then donated money to vote for the teacher they wanted to win. The two who collected the most money were crowned king and queen, and the money was donated to Bridgepointe.

"I didn't expect to win, and it was a little embarrassing to be in front of the whole student body. I thought it was a nice way to do something for charity though."

KING PAUL POLANSKI

"I feel like I'm finally getting the recognition I deserve! Ryne Mitra generously donated, so I feel like this helped me win. It also benefitted a very good cause."

QUEEN ANDREA DENT

"I FELT OUTMATCHED WHEN IT CAME DOWN TO ME AND ALL THE SHORTER PEOPLE," JUNIOR EDWARD CLIFTON SAID.

"I'VE WON TWICE A YEAR, EVERY YEAR. THIS YEAR, I LET KEVIN WIN," SENIOR LAUREN COLASANTI SAID.

"THE THRILL OF HAVING EVERYONE CHEER FOR ME MADE WINNING FEEL SO GREAT," SOPHOMORE KEVIN KARGULA SAID.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON

"A cold went around the entire cast the week before and the week of the play," senior Megan Boczar said.

"I can't really think of anyone that didn't get sick," freshman Delaney Sullivan said. "It went all throughout the cast and the crew."

This included the actress with the lead role in the musical, freshman Halle Bins, who played Millie Dillmount.

"I got sick the week-end before the show and was still a little bit sick up until the performances," Bins said. "I sat out for a few rehearsals, and some rehearsals I didn't sing because I had lost my voice."

When Bins got sick, cast members made sure to take extra precautions to avoid having the same thing happen to them.

"We were all trying to stay away from each other and were washing our hands constantly. At one point, I think someone even brought in a surgical mask," Sullivan said with a laugh.

Despite their efforts, junior Madison Merlanti could not avoid the curse of the 'sickness scare.'

"On opening day during second hour, I had to go to the hospital because I had an allergic reaction and a panic attack," Merlanti said. "Luckily, I was able to make it back to the show that night."

"It was really tough, but it ended up being totally fine, and the show went perfectly," Boczar said. "We all united and pulled through."

PRETTY IN PINK

(Below) Cast members perform their first dance routine of the musical. "I've been dancing for years, and I'm on the dance team, so dancing comes pretty easily to me," freshman Sonali Reddy said.

BREAK A LEG

THEATER TALK

Two cast members had to speak Chinese throughout the entire performance. Sophomore Joseph Wylie explained his experience: "All of my lines were in Chinese, so it was kind of hard because I can't wing it. I also don't want to make any Asian people in the audience mad by saying my lines wrong," he said with a laugh.

ROLLER REDUX

As league registration for the winter session came to a close, there was one team conspicuously absent: the Northville Mustangs.

In previous years, the roller hockey team had participated in both the winter and spring sessions. However this season, they had to start in the spring due to a change in coaching staff as well as the addition of a plethora of ice hockey players to the roster.

"Even though we had several returning players, we also had a new bunch coming in from ice [hockey]," manager Dave Johnson said. "This year we had a new coach, Mark Dick, who has worked with the Novi club ice hockey program."

At the start of the season, the ice hockey players had trouble adjusting to the new sport. "I couldn't skate or stop, it was funny how uncoordinated I looked," junior Andrew Bradley said with a smile.

After his season with Honeybaked AAA, sophomore Brendon Kearney wanted to return to his roots. "I played roller hockey growing up, and I decided it was just time to get back into it," he said.

Senior Zach Gears said that the team has experienced its growing pains, but once they gain their bearings, they will be ready to roll.

by Joseph Ukrop

ZONING IN

(Above) Scanning the floor for an open pass, senior Zachary Gears begins to circle around the goal line. "The jump from ice to roller is really a big one. I'm still working on stopping now," he said.

COACH ERIC

BEGINNING HIS WINDUP, JUNIOR ERIC JOHNSON LINES UP FOR A SLAPSHOT.

AS HE LOWERS HIS STICK, HE HAS TO DECIDE WHICH OPEN CORNER TO AIM FOR.

APPROACHING THE PUCK, HE SAID, "IF YOU SKATE UP INTO THE SHOT, IT'S EASIER TO GET MORE POWER BEHIND IT."

TENDIN' HARD

(Below) Hugging the right goalpost, sophomore Anthony Rossi prepares himself for a shot during the game against Walled Lake Central. "I started playing a year ago, and playing goalie is tough because the whole team relies on you," Rossi said

CLOSE QUARTERS

(Above) Pulling the puck in and beating the defender, senior Ryan Trotter skates towards the net. "I just did the first thing that came to mind, and it worked," Trotter said. (Left) Lining up for the face-off, senior Joseph Ukrop strategizes on how to win the draw. "It's all about the slap and spin," Ukrop said.

ROLLIN' ROOKIE

As the only girl in the entire Michigan High School Roller Hockey League, sophomore Gabrielle Schnepf shares her background story.

Q: How long have you been playing hockey?

A: I have been playing ice hockey since I was four years old, but this is my first year for roller hockey.

Q: What are the differences between girls AAA hockey and roller hockey?

A: They are both physical, but you get much more playtime in roller hockey because of the smaller team size.

Q: What is your favorite aspect of the Northville varsity team?

A: The guys have my back, especially when the guys on the other team go after me.

PUCKMASTERS

Ice hockey can be played at several different levels. AAA is best, then AA, high school, then A. This is how the team breaks down.

DAVID UKROP

HAVING THE PUCK SQUARE TO HIS BODY, LEFT ELBOW BENT, HE BEGINS TO FINISH HIS SHOT.

GETTING LOW TO THE GROUND AND LIFTING HIS LEG, HE LEANS INTO HIS SHOT FOR THE MOST POWER.

FINALLY FINISHING, HE POINTS TO THE CORNER WHERE HE IS AIMING WITH THE BLADE OF HIS STICK.

THE SIDELINE COACH

(Right) Sophomore Alexandra Rodriguez may be injured and unable to run in meets, but that doesn't hold her back from giving her input to the team. "She's like our cheerleader, but even more. We all felt bad she was out, but she's coming back and has tremendous will; she'll be back on top soon," sophomore teammate Erin Dunne said. (Below) Coach Vincent Tyle gives the team a pep talk before the team's first meet at Mercy High School. "He'll tell us to gather around, and we all think, 'Get comfy, he's about to give a speech'," sophomore Emily Freiburger said.

COACHES CUBED

The track team has had three different coaches in the past three years. Senior Paige Thurman shared her experiences with each.

"All of the coaches have had different coaching styles. My freshman and sophomore year, Coach Smith had me focus on my form, then Coach Barnett had me focus on keeping my head down while running. Now, Coach Tyle has me focus on my starts. It's really difficult; you get attached to one, then not too long after, you have to learn to love another one."

SENIOR PAIGE THURMAN

TO THE START!

AS SOPHOMORE JULIA HOPKINS APPROACHES THE HIGH JUMP BAR, HER FOCUS IS ON KEEPING THE BEST FORM POSSIBLE.

"I TRY TO FOLLOW THROUGH WITH MY JUMP, KICKING MY LEGS UP OVER THE BAR AND NOT KNOCK IT DOWN," HOPKINS SAID.

HOPKINS CLEARS THE HEIGHT OF 4'9", HER BEST HEIGHT OF THE SEASON.

POPPIN' OFF RIGHT

HOLDIN' DOWN THE FIELD

THREE IN ONE

The frigid wind pierced the faces of the track team members as they warmed up to compete against Mercy High School for the first time. It was the kick-off meet for both teams; however, the Mercy track meet was only the first in a series of three track meets to come during the week, known by the team as "meet week."

"It was fun but a lot of work. We've never had three meets in a row like that," senior Morgan Malloy said.

Initially, the girls were only supposed to compete in one meet, the EMU Invitational, but new Head Coach Vincent Tyle said he thought it would help the new girls on the team to participate in a scrimmage early in the season.

"It was nice to start the season without pressure, and new girls could learn how a meet is supposed to flow," senior Katherine Giacomini said.

"Even though it was just a scrimmage, we really wanted to do well and start the season with a bang," Malloy said.

The following day, the team competed at EMU.

To end the meet week, the girls competed in a previously unscheduled meet against South Lyon East.

The team's coach called Tyle the first week of the official track season. "He asked me if we could reschedule our meet three weeks earlier," Tyle said. "Initially, they had two consecutively scheduled meets against Novi and Northville; they wanted to split up the tough competition," Tyle said. His girls went on to win that one.

In the end, the girls won the scrimmage and dual meet, and three girls won medals at the EMU meet. "I think Coach Tyle was pleased in his first week of official coaching," sophomore Stephanie Rogish said.

By Alexa Abbott

ANOTHER LANGUAGE

"I never had a coach before who speaks German," freshman Lina Classon said about new assistant coach Oliver Wolters. "It's different."

Classon and Wolters, both new to the team, are both also fluent in German.

"We mainly talk about track," Classon said, "and he gives me tips and pointers in German. We also talk about the difference between America and Germany, and sometimes he tells me about his life."

She added, "The best part about having a fellow German speaker is that it is funny when others don't understand us talking."

DURING THE 300M HURDLE RACE, SENIOR MORGAN MALLOY ROUNDS THE CURVE TO THE FIRST STRAIGHTAWAY.

AS MALLOY APPROACHES THE HURDLE, SHE PREPARES TO RUN "THROUGH THE HURDLE AND NOT OVER IT," SHE SAID.

NOW IN THE AIR ABOVE THE HURDLE, MALLOY PREPARES TO FINISH THE RACE WITH ONLY TWO HURDLES TO GO.

IN THE LEAD

(Right) During a meet against Novi, junior Edward Clifton takes the lead in the 4 x 4 relay. "We were being destroyed, and it came down to the 4 x 4. [My relay team] felt like we had to make some kind of an effort because it was head to head the whole time," Clifton said. "I was the anchor, and I began to open it up and get a break away, and then we won the race." (Below) Junior Andrew Schanne leaps over the hurdle. "It's all about the trail leg," Schanne said. "Run fast and stay low."

SPEED RACER

Junior Edward Clifton shared how the relay team is a well-oiled machine when it comes to passing off.

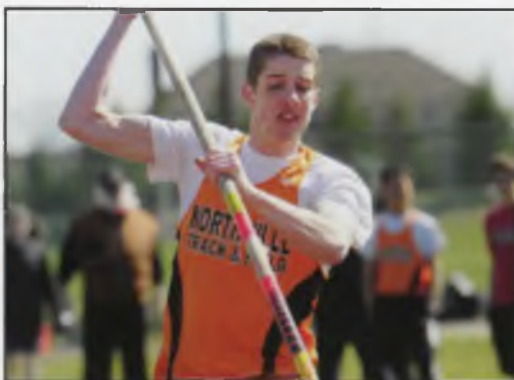

"I like to be inside the field and gauge my teammate, and when I think he's getting close, I start going. I reach out my left hand and then once I have it, I switch hands."

SKY HIGH

SOPHOMORE SEAN WAGNER BEGINS TO SPRINT IN PREPARATION FOR THE BIG JUMP

HE THEN STICKS THE POLE INTO 'THE BOX' TO PUSH OFF AND STOP IT FROM MOVING FORWARD.

WAGNER LAUNCHES HIMSELF INTO THE AIR. HE HAS TO PUSH OFF WITH THE RIGHT FOOT TO AVOID GETTING CAUGHT, WAGNER SAID.

JUMPER (Left) Junior Joseph Chou leaps into the sand during the long jump. "The higher you jump and faster you run when you hit the board, the farther you'll go," Chou said.

MAKING A COMEBACK

The sun beats down on his brow as he wipes away the sweat from his forehead. He has been preparing for this meet for weeks. The starter shoots the gun, but alumni Evan Gerish doesn't run. That's because he's coaching.

"Once I was finished with college, I moved back home and needed jobs," Gerish said. "Plus, I want to be a teacher and track coach when I grow up, so why not start half of it now?"

In addition to coaching the hurdle team, Gerish gives advice to the rest of the team.

Senior Christian Guen-ther said, "It's fun to talk to him about his old days on the track team."

With only five seniors on the team this season, the five remaining said they have a special bond with Gerish.

"I'm doing my best to walk the line of being young and relatable, but also the figure of coach," Gerish said. He added that the boys make it easy to find that balance.

"I'm still young, and I still compete, but trust me, I know what I'm doing," Gerish said.

"Sometimes in order to steal the ball from the other team, you have to put your body on the line and slide," Weber said.

COLLEGE BOUND

Junior Mallory Weber said she was being recruited by four top college soccer schools, but chose to verbally commit to Penn State University.

"There were a few schools that I was really interested in, but Penn State definitely stood out among the best. I really liked the campus and the way the coaches and team worked together to improve themselves."

CALLED UP TO NATIONALS

Playing with the national team is the highest level of youth soccer. This year, freshman Megan Buckingham was called up to play with the United States women's U-15 national team and represent her country.

Other players said that Buckingham deserved the recognition.

Freshman Rachel Yaggi explained, "Megan deserves the opportunity because she has an impact in every game she plays. She sets herself apart from the competition."

Junior Noelle Kuphal added, "She's one of the best freshman I've ever seen, and even though she's good, she still works her tail off every day."

"Every game I play, I set a goal for myself so that I can try my best to achieve it and improve my game," Buckingham said. "When I got called up to the team, I was really excited. I've always wanted to play for the national team, and I finally got my chance."

Buckingham said she discovered a totally new style of soccer through playing with the national team. "Everything is quicker and more competitive," she said.

She had a good experience with the team and learned a lot about the game. Buckingham said she hopes to be invited to the next event.

KNOCK OUT

With just two days of tryouts, three days of practice and one pep talk, the Northville girls lacrosse team was thrown into their first game against Saline.

Sophomore Alivia DuQuet described the emotions of the team before the game. "The tension was hanging in the air," DuQuet said. "Since there are so many new players, we were not sure what to expect."

Nonetheless, the team was able to overcome their anxiety. "We tried to focus on what we were doing on the field and left the external stresses outside the game," DuQuet explained.

In the end, the girls were able to secure a 23-2 victory against Saline. "It felt so good," senior Rachel Jurczynsyzn said. "It was like we went in there as warriors."

Not only did varsity come out with a win, but JV also triumphed. "We were able to shut down their team 14-0," sophomore Erica MacDonald explained. "The game was an encouraging start to the season."

The first game also proved that the girls were capable of working as a team. "We found out how to play together," MacDonald said. "And it fortunately ended up working well."

High winds, cold and rainy storms, muddy fields and tons of puddles. These conditions have defined the beginning of the girls lacrosse season, which has been marked by illness and cancellations.

A SECOND TIME AROUND

One year ago, the Northville boys lacrosse team walked off of the Catholic Central field after suffering a 16-3 loss. This year they returned, determined to make a stronger showing.

Junior Matthew Sopha explained, "We knew going into the game that they have a very strong team that's been together through the years, and we focused mostly on marking those key players."

Senior Daniel Cooke added, "With this game, we went in with a different strategy. We needed better defensive and offensive players out on the field at the same time.

We also had more enthusiasm from the players and coaches before the game."

With the added enthusiasm and motivation, Northville improved its showing, finishing with an 11-3 loss against one of Michigan's top-rated teams. Senior Andrew Baldwin said, "Even though the close game excited us, we still had to take it as a loss and use it to prepare for the season."

Cooke said the best part was seeing the Catholic Central lacrosse team running sprints as punishment for the close score after the game.

Junior Connor Smith receives a hug from senior David Ketelhut every time he wins a face off. The tradition started at the Catholic Central game, and they said they've kept it going ever since.

YOU ONLY LIVE ONCE...

In tennis, players get two serves before they lose the point. First serves are usually fast, hard and high-risk. Second serves, however, can be used in many ways. Junior Erin Doud and senior Alexandra Weaver talk about how they like to hit their second serves.

"On my second serve, I put a lot more top spin on the ball," junior Erin Doud said. "The top spin helps to slow the ball down, and it creates a lot more arc on it. It also makes it bounce higher. Top spin makes the ball much more likely to go inside the service box, so I don't double fault."

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Livonia Stevenson and South Lyon East don't have a JV tennis team, but Northville's willing to play. They'll settle for battling their varsity instead.

"I think it's sweet," sophomore Abigail Henning said. "Playing another team's varsity is pretty cool, and I have a feeling Northville will totally dominate!"

However, in order to play on the same level as another team's varsity, Northville will have to shake up their team lineup. In varsity, Henning explains, the top four players play singles, not doubles. That means playing an entirely different strategy.

"Singles is more competitive, and you don't have a partner to cover you," sophomore Juliana

Lim said. "You have to hit down the line, and you have to have a strategy for where to hit."

Different from what they're used to? Sure, but some players seem to enjoy the change.

"I like singles better than doubles," Lim said. "It gives me more playing time. Sometimes people are in the way when I'm playing doubles."

Freshman Isabella Cauffiel agreed with Lim.

"I like singles better because we're representing our school," she said. "It's like a big deal."

According to Henning, however, it doesn't matter who they play.

"We're still Northville and we're still amazing," Henning said. "Deal with it!"

BUT SERVE TWICE!

"I hit my second serve a lot softer than my first," senior Alexandra Weaver said, "and definitely with more spin to try to keep the ball inside the service box. Hitting it with spin makes it easier to control."

ALL ON THE PITCH

WHY KNIGHTS?

Even though the team is associated with Northville, they go by a different name. "We are called the Knights because the team is not made up of only Northville students," freshman Connor Keady said. "Since there aren't many rugby teams, we have players from Catholic Central and Novi. They don't want to be linked to Northville."

COMBINED FORCE

A SCRUM IS A CRUCIAL COMPONENT OF THE GAME. "A SCRUM IS A RESULT OF A PENALTY," FRESHMAN COLIN McDONOUGH EXPLAINED. "ONCE THE BALL IS DROPPED IN THE SCRUM, IT IS ANY-ONE'S GAME. IT'S A FREE-FOR-ALL." PLAYERS EXPLAINED THEIR ROLE IN THE SCRUM.

TUNNEL VISION

(Below) After the ball goes out, the Knights throw in the ball to a player lifted into the air. Junior Kyle Shashlo explains why each team lifts the player: "Each team lifts a player into the 'tunnel.' The 'tunnel' is located in between the two teams during throw ins."

ROAD TRIP

181 miles, 25 players and two vans are the ingredients for the yearly trip the rugby team takes to Elkhart, Indiana.

The trip to Elkhart is considered the highlight of the season for Coach Ron Cornell. Although it is not mandatory for the players to attend, Cornell said he thinks the trip is what the team works for during the season.

The focus of the trip is around the rugby matches against various teams that the Knights have not faced during the regular season.

Senior Ian Cunningham joined the team this season and said he is already looking forward to the cross-state trip, "I am most excited about playing teams from the midwest. I am excited to see how the teams differ from the local teams we play," he said, "but I'm also excited for the team pranks."

Junior Michael Ferguson has been on both sides of these team shenanigans.

"Last year on the drive down to the Elkhart, we wrote Coach Ron's numbers on the back of one of the vans," Ferguson said. "He received many calls, but surprisingly most of them were from men."

by Brendon White

Rugby combines the use of hands and feet to move the ball down the field. The game incorporates two types of kicking. Players explain the mechanics of each kick.

"In rugby, when you kick or punt the ball, it is comparable to punting in football. You can gain yards from this type of kick."

SENIOR CAPTAIN

RETURN OF THE PLAYERS

The players on the varsity softball team agreed that a team mainly consisting of returning members can be beneficial.

"We have a lot of the same girls on our team that we did last year, and it's definitely helped our playing because we know what to expect from each other," senior Katelyn Fenech said.

More than half of the team is composed of returning players, and the girls said the team dynamic has improved as a result.

"It really helps the team chemistry. Our positions haven't changed, so you always know who's playing next to you," junior Elizabeth Asher said.

Fenech added that the team had a "tight infield" with new freshman catcher Alexandra Chapekis. "She's doing really well, and she's definitely one of our better batters. Since she's new to the team, we try to bring her into the team and tell her to not put too much pressure on herself," Fenech added.

"As a freshman, it is really awesome to learn from all the older girls," Chapekis said. "They are all incredibly welcoming and super nice."

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

(Above) Varsity player and junior Suzanne Hasse steps up to bat as her teammates watch anxiously. "I'm a designated hitter, so I don't actually play the field," Hasse said.

BOUNCING BACK

"THEY WERE PASSING THE BALL AROUND TO EACH OTHER BEFORE THE GAME AS A WARM UP, AND [SOPHOMORE] GRACE [DERIDDER] WAS WEARING SUNGLASSES," DERIDDER'S FRIEND, SOPHOMORE MAYA WARSZAWSKA SAID.

"[SOPHOMORE] HOLLY HOLGHOUSER THREW THE BALL, AND IT HIT GRACE'S FACE AND PUSHED HER SUNGLASSES BACK INTO HER EYEBROW. GRACE WAS FREAKING OUT BECAUSE SHE'S TERRIFIED OF BLOOD," WARSZAWSKA SAID, LAUGHING.

RACE TO THE BASE

(Below) Freshman Kelsey Perkins sprints to first base after hitting a ground ball. "When you run from base to base, you need to lead off and keep your eye on the catcher to see if the ball was hit," Perkins said. "You also have to watch the coaches to see what they want."

THREE STRIKES, YOU'RE OUT!

LUCKY BAT

Some softball players share the superstition of always using the same bat. Sophomore Sarah Cullen explained how she got her lucky bat.

"I got a new bat because my last one got too short for me. The new one has a mixture of metals in it that makes the ball go really far, so now I use this bat every time I'm up to bat."

SOPHOMORE SARAH CULLEN

DOWN AND READY

(Right) Junior Matt Stojkov gets ready to hit. "Pitch selection is everything," Stojkov explained. "If you swing on a bad pitch, you are almost certainly going to pop out or strike out." Stojkov has been on the varsity team since he was a sophomore. (Below) At a home game against Wayne Memorial, junior Brett MacDonald catches for the varsity team. "You need to squeeze the ball as tight as you can on a strikeout pitch because if you drop it on a strike three call, the batter can run to first base," he explained. Wayne Memorial bested the Mustangs 6-5.

BACKING IT UP

"You are having a ball thrown at you anywhere from 50 to 85 MPH while your opponent is swinging his bat inches past your head. I love catching because it is such a challenge."

MacDONALD GETS IT DONE

The oldest kids are usually picked first for sports, but junior Brett MacDonald is breaking the playground rules. As a sophomore, MacDonald hit five home runs. Most athletes go an entire season without hitting a single one.

Standing at a massive 6 feet, 3 inches and 200 pounds MacDonald is a force to be reckoned with. He doesn't just throw his weight behind the baseball team though; he's a varsity football and basketball player too.

"Brett has grown as a baseball player and as a human being over the past years that I have worked with him," Coach John Kostrzewa said.

Kostrzewa has coached MacDonald since he was a freshman and said he's happy with the progress he's made.

Not only has he earned the respect of his coach; his teammates admire him too. "Brett is a catcher that we all look up to because he is very good at what he does, and he gets the job done correctly," sophomore Kyle Skillman said.

MacDonald said he believes that his success in baseball is largely due to the effort he's put in. "If you persevere, you can do well," MacDonald said. "I've worked hard to get here."

THE KNUCKLEBALL IS ONE OF THE HARDEST PITCHES TO THROW. THE BALL IS HELD WITH THE FINGERS AND THUMB, WITH THE FINGERS KNUCKLES DIRECTLY ON THE SEAM. WHEN THROWN CORRECTLY, THE BALL HAS NO SPIN AND MOVES EVERY WHICH WAY.

THE CURVEBALL IS ONE OF THE OLDEST PITCHES IN THE BOOK AND POSSIBLY ONE OF THE MOST EFFECTIVE. IT IS THROWN WHEN THE PITCHER IS AHEAD OF THE BATTER IN THE STRIKE COUNT BECAUSE IT CAN BE OUT OF CONTROL.

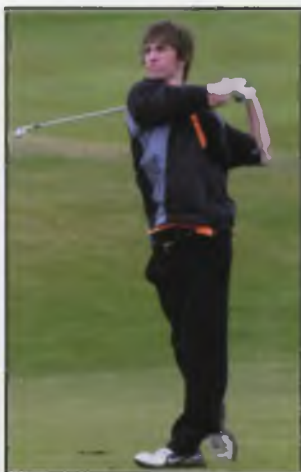

WHEN THROWING A CHANGE UP, THE PITCHER PALMS THE BALL. THIS IS AN OFF-SPEED PITCH THAT OFTEN THROWS THE BATTER OUT OF POSITION.

DIFFERENT STROKES

TRYING TIMES

The boys golf team has had to battle tough conditions in order to finish their tryouts. The players gave their opinion on the poor weather.

"Since it was my first experience with golf tryouts, I really didn't know what to expect. Having to wait a week in between rounds really didn't help my nerves though."

"Last year, we had 60 degree weather, and it was sunny, which was a first for me. The nice weather allowed for some low scores. However, this year we had some cold temperatures, which only let a couple of guys break 40."

SENIOR CAPTAIN BRADY MAROTTA HITS HIS TEE SHOT. "THE TEE SHOT BASICALLY MAKES OR BREAKS YOUR HOLE. IF YOU HIT IT WELL, YOU'RE SET UP WELL FOR A PAR. IF YOU HIT IT BAD, YOU MIGHT BE LOOKING A BOGEY OR WORSE," HE EXPLAINED.

AFTER AN OK TEE SHOT, MAROTTA HITS HIS LAY UP TO THE GREEN. "SOMETIMES YOU GO FOR IT ON A PAR FIVE. OTHER TIMES, YOU JUST HAVE TO LAY UP. LAYING UP DISPLAYS GREAT MENTAL FOCUS AND GREAT COURSE MANAGEMENT," MAROTTA SAID. "BECAUSE OF THE TERRIBLE CONDITIONS ON THE COURSE, I CHOSE TO LAY UP."

MAROTTA THEN HITS HIS APPROACH SHOT INTO THE GREEN. "MY LAY-UP DIDN'T END UP IN THE FAIRWAY, SO I GAVE MYSELF A DIFFICULT SHOT INTO THE GREEN, AND IT DIDN'T TURN OUT WELL," MAROTTA EXPLAINED.

ALL FOR ONE, ONE FOR ALL

For freshman Andrew Sarokin, golf had always been an individual sport. So he had some adjusting to do when he made the golf team along with eight other new players.

"All my life, I have been playing in individual tournaments where I had to rely on my own ability to place well," Sarokin said. "Once high school golf started, I realized that if I make a mistake, my teammates can make up for it."

The idea of being on a golf team excited junior Matthew Trumbore, who also joined the team this season.

"Along with golf, I also play football. However, unlike football, when you practice golf, you can analyze your game better, as well as your teammate's game," Trumbore explained.

The number of inexperienced golfers, like Trumbore, who were new to the golf team, didn't excite senior captain Brady Marotta at first.

"I have to admit that I was a little skeptical before tryouts this year. We had a lot of open spots, and I wasn't sure if we could actually fill them," Marotta said, "but now that I see the great guys that made the team. It's looking like a good year."

MAROTTA'S CHIP SHOT CAME NEXT. IN ORDER TO MAKE PAR, HE NEEDED TO GIVE HIMSELF A SHORT PUTT. "AGAIN I NEEDED TO FOCUS ON THE SHOT AND MAKE SURE I GAVE MYSELF A CHANCE AT PAR."

MAROTTA THEN DRAINS HIS PUTT AND PICKS THE BALL OUT OF THE HOLE.
