LOCAL SCHOOL HAS PART IN SPECIAL WEEK

Legion to Assist in Plans of National Education Sponsors

Northville schools, the local chapter of the American Legion, and the Parent Teachers' association will all cooperate in the observance of the fifteenth annual American Educational Week to be observed from Nov. 11 to 17. The observance is always held during the week that includes Armistice Day, beginning Monday and extending through Sunday with appropriate services in many of the churches.

Building around the general theme of "The School and Democracy," the American Legion will begin the week's program with an appropriate assembly meeting at 10 a. m. Monday. Clark H. Smith, of Detroit, for three years state chairman of the Legion Americanism committee, will speak to the school children on Armistice Day and Educational Week. Leslie G. Lee, instructor of music, has arranged a short musical series of numbers appropriate for the occasion. Many of the Legionnaires will appear in uniform.

P. T. A. Has Part

On Tuesday, Nov. 14, the Parent Teachers' association will hold its part of the week's activities. Dr. David D. Henry of Wayne University has been engaged to deliver the address before the meeting which will convene at 8 p. m. in the high school gymnasium. Well-known in educational circles as a forceful and interesting speaker, Dr. Henry is well versed in his subject, "The Challenge of Modern Education." He has just completed two years as assistant to Dr. Paul Voelker in the Department of Public Instruction at Lansing and is now in the department of English at Wayne. A short business meeting at 7:30 p. m. will precede the address, and the public is invited for both the meeting and the brief social hour and refreshments which will follow the speech.

Both grade and high school teachers will attempt to work into

FIND MISSING FIVE-YEAR-OLD YESTERDAY

Five-year-old Henry Kerr, son of Charles Kerr, of 149 E. Main, reported missing late Wednesday evening, was found unconcernedly playing with newly-made acquaintances on Seven Mile road Thursday morning.

The boy was seen by his father at 4:30 p. m.; it was much later before Mr. Kerr realized that the boy had not returned from play and that he was nowhere around the neighborhood to be found. A search instituted at approximately midnight had no results, and it was not until early yesterday that Chief of Police William Safford found the boy.

FORMER PRECEPTRESS DIES IN YPSILANTI

Mrs. Fannie Cheaver Burton, of Ypsilanti, whose death was recently announced in the Ypsilanti Press, was the preceptress in our local school during the years 1883-85. At that time there were five teachers in the school: William H. Cheever, principal; Miss Cheever, preceptress; Miss Annie Cramer, grammar department; Miss Minnie Hatnorn, Intermediate; and Miss Flora Wald, primary department. She is the last of the group to die.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WISHES HE HADN'T FUSSED WITH TIE

Junior Cole, a high school student, wishes he had not been so particular about adjusting his tie in school, since the tie clasp with which he was struggling got the best of him and slipped from his mouth, where he had placed it for safe keeping, down his throat.

Although the accident occurred two weeks ago, Junior is still able to keep track of the offender with the aid of doctors and the X-ray machine. Luckily for him, the tie clasp offers no trouble, but in the meantime his tie often slips out of place.

ROTARIANS HEAR JOHN J. CATON SPEAK TUESDAY

Educational Director Tells How Employees Find Right Position

"A job of fitting round men in round holes" is the way that Prof. John J. Caton, director of educational research of the Chrysler Motor corporation, described his work when he spoke before the Tuesday noon meeting of the Rotary club.

Dr. Caton, who has lectured all over the United States, told the meeting of the educational work undertaken by his company. The schools which he described, one undergraduate, and the other graduate, for those who have had university training, attempt to find the proper niche for each employee. After training in every department, he said, a new man is allowed to indicate the department he would choose. His choice, and the decision of the company as to his ability, are weighed together and he is placed, Dr. Caton said, in a suitable position, leaving no "square pegs in round holes."

Guests of the organization were the Rev. Fr. Frank McQuillan of Detroit, Russell Rogers, Robert Willoughby, Orlow Owen and James Lyon.

SEVENTY-ONE-YEAR OLD WOMAN FOUND WANDERING IN PARK

Police Chief William Safford was called early Sunday morning to care for a 71-year-old woman found wandering in the city park. Apparently unable to recall her name, the woman was taken to police quarters.

An Ann Arbor address and name found in her purse were identified by her as those of her son-in-law, who was reached by phone. Although the family expressed regret for her condition and said they would come to Northville immediately, they were a long time in arriving, and offered no explanation for the woman's appearance, nor for her whereabouts.

NEW BID DATE ON CONTRACTS IS ANNOUNCED

Place Final Signatures on Village Water Receipt Pledge Monday

Final signatures were placed on the ordinance pledging village water receipts to pay for the government loan on the PWA reservoir enclosure project at the village council meeting Monday evening.

Replacing the Nov. 18 date originally set, the council named Nov. 25 as the date for the special meeting on which bids for the construction of the Public Works project will be opened and read. The later date will still give the council the necessary two weeks which are legally required to advertise for bids. The contract will be let as soon after the council meeting as the tabulation and examination of the bids will allow.

Although a citizen present at the council questioned the advisability of the enclosure, the council answered his claims with the request of the state board of health, which advises against open reservoirs such as Northville's. Only seven towns in Michigan still have water systems which allow the water supply to be exposed to the danger of contamination. The PWA project will provide for a concrete covering and an aerator.

HARRY WHITE OPENS BOOK LENDING SHOP

Offering the latest good fiction at three cents a day and the opportunity for the people of Northville to place a Remington noiseless typewriter in their home for three dollars a month, Harry H. White will offer such service in the John McCully shoe store at 117 East Main street beginning Friday morning.

Several styles of typewriters and also general supplies will be available. An added feature will be a portable desk capable of holding three hundred pounds, thoroughly practicable at an incredibly low price for an "office at home" arrangement which can be folded up and carried anywhere.

Among the latest book publications in the lending library will be "Hands" by Charles Norris, "It Can't Happen Here" by Sinclair Lewis, and "Lucy Gayheart" by Willa Cather.

Mr. White has lived in Northville most of his life and is well known for his knowledge of books. He has for a number of years written a column for The Record and for a long time was employed in the organization.

PAY TRIBUTE TO SOLDIERS NEXT MONDAY

Guest Editorial Writer Urges Renewed Expression of Nation's Patriotism

ARMISTICE DAY—A DAY FOR RE-DEDICATION

The anniversary of the signing of the Armistice awakens memories. The shadow of death that stalked the land was suddenly lifted, and laughter, shouting, singing and gladness danced again throughout the old U. S. A.

Do you remember? Yes, you do, and nothing was too good for the soldier boys. The people were all of one accord and America was all right. But today, how different—grumblers, radicals, pacifists, jingoists, communists, Reds and irritated citizens are chafing at government on every hand. We think these people represent the noisy minority, but nevertheless these disgruntled groups are idealizing everything but organized democratic government.

Would that Armistice Day of 1935 might raise up a Lincoln at the Gettysburg of the depression to sound anew the challenge of "increased devotion to the cause for which they gave their last full measure of devotion." We believe it is high time that Americans, good and true, began to "HURRAH" again for the United States of America, and cry aloud to all dissenters that the American government still gives its citizens more per square inch than any other government upon the face of the earth.

The great war proved only one thing, and that was the utter futility of all war. May Armistice Day thus express in earnest tribute to our soldiers, living and dead, a nation's consciousness of the futility of war, and a rekindled, lasting devotion to the cause of peace. In this spirit let us re-dedicate ourselves to the cause of Armistice Day, and our great government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

NAME COMMITTEES FOR CHURCH EVENT

M. E. Chicken Pie Dinner and Bazaar Activities Completed

Committees have been announced for the annual chicken pie dinner and bazaar to be held in the Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday, Nov. 12. Bazaar booths will open at 4 p. m. and remain open throughout the evening. The dinner, to be served starting at 5:30 p. m., is to be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid.

The following committee heads have been named: Mrs. R. E. Atchison, general chairman; Mrs. Bertha Neal, in charge of the chicken pies; Mrs. James Lapham and Mrs. Howard Greer, in charge of the kitchen, and Mrs. Chub Smith, as dining room head.

Fifty cents is being charged by the church for their full-course dinner. An annual affair for many years, this traditional supper has always drawn large crowds for the unique dinner served.

The bazaar under the management of the Service League will be directed by Mrs. Bernice German, Mrs. Maurice Lapham, Mrs. Marshall Herrick and Mrs. Sherrill Ambler.

WHITEHEAD BROTHERS MOVE STORE FROM SOUTH CENTER

A. E. Whitehead and A. M. Whitehead have moved their headquarters from North Center street. The two brothers have been in the same shop on Center street for about a year.

A. E. has moved his establishment where he does upholstering and woodwork to the corner of Church and Cady streets while A. M. has taken the store which he formerly occupied at 105 South Center street. He will continue to do metal work and plumbing.

Driving too fast for conditions resulted in 7,342 accidents, and failure to signal for a turn was a factor in 1,172 crashes.

That funny man you see "Hitching" at himself all the time, simply has on ill-fitting underwear. He should wear Duofold from THE MEN'S SHOP.

HERMAN IS GIVEN PRISON SENTENCE

Northville Man Convicted On Assault Charge In Circuit Court

Henry Herman, 62, of Northville, was sentenced last Thursday by Judge Adolph F. Marschner of Circuit Court to serve 10 to 15 years in the State Prison of southern Michigan. His sentence came after he pled guilty to a charge of assault with intent to commit rape.

Originally pleading not guilty when arraigned before Chief Justice Arthur Nichols here, Herman was transferred to the Wayne county jail in Detroit for trial in the Circuit Court.

Herman was brought before the court as a second offender, charged with attacking a six-year-old girl here Aug. 18. He was paroled from prison in 1926 while serving a life sentence for statutory rape, after being convicted on the charge in 1915.

SHRINE CLUB PLANS COMBINATION PARTY THURSDAY, NOV. 14

A combined dinner-dance, bridge and feather party has been planned by the Suburban Shrine club for Thursday, Nov. 14. It will be the first fall event planned by the club and will be held at the Mayflower hotel in Plymouth.

The committee which has been planning the affair for weeks, says that it has succeeded in lining up several of the best theatrical offerings available in Detroit. A large number of prizes will be given away and the feather party will be one of the largest ever held in this section.

The whole evening's entertainment will be marked by a series of surprise features which the Shrine club has worked out for the entertainment of its guests.

An excellent orchestra has been secured for the occasion, according to the committee in charge, and there will be suitable prizes for those who prefer bridge. Dinner, which will be served at 6:30 p. m., will be one dollar a plate, and reservations should be made in advance.

NORTHVILLE PEOPLE TELL OF TEMBLORS

Funny Incidences of Quake Shock Related by Many Local Citizens

Residents all over Northville woke at approximately 1:05 a. m. last Friday morning and wondered variously if the dog were scratching fleas, if there were Hallowe'en pranksters about, if they were ill, or if there could possibly be a slight earthquake. Others just slept. Although the next morning those who thought it might be an earthquake had their guesses confirmed, no damage was done in or around Northville from the three distinct but minor earthquake shocks recorded in Southern Michigan.

Although many awake and asleep were unconscious of the earth's tremors, several were awakened by the shaking of the bed.

Something woke Mrs. J. R. Walker but she wasn't conscious of what it could be until her neighbor, Mrs. W. F. Chapman, brought the news of the quake the next day. Mrs. Chapman felt a distinct shock.

Several residents, used to the ways of the highway, thought that an exceptionally heavy truck had passed, and one woman, blaming her innocent dog, thought he was unusually attacked by fleas, and was taking his revenge.

Although the quake reputedly went by areas, being felt in some districts distinctly and not at all in others, many in the same house or immediate neighborhood had widely varying experiences. Mrs. Hilary Sullivan, a resident at the home of Mrs. Ernest Miller, was awakened by the rattling of a jar on her dresser, but didn't realize it was caused by an earth tremor until Mrs. Petroneli Spencer, also a resident there, said the sensations were similar to those she felt in the Michigan earthquake of 1928. Mrs. Miller, with other sound sleepers, had no knowledge of the quake at all.

More than one person thought that he was ill. Miss Geraldine Huff was one of these until she saw the things on her dresser shake and knew that something more unusual than that was happening. Others blamed the quaking on their own nerves, and Mrs. D. J. Stark thought she was having a chill.

But while many, including Mrs. Robert Coolman, Mrs. N. C. Schrader, Mrs. Willard Stark, and Charles Dolph, were cheated of the Californian's everyday experience, Mrs. Dayton E. Bunn, in her home, was frightened by the rattling of the articles on the chiffonier.

Straightening the recreation room after her guests had departed from the Hallowe'en party, Mrs. Ray Richardson thought that the jar was caused by the chairs scraping on the floor, and one high school student moved her bed, thinking that the vibration of the refrigerator was especially troublesome that night.

SEE SHIRLEY AND MICKEY MOUSE IN BAZAAR DISPLAY

Shoppe Forecasts New Styles For Well-Dressed Dolls

The "Doll Shoppe," one of the outstanding features of the Baptist bazaar last year, will again be an attraction at the bazaar when it is presented Dec. 6 and 7 this year.

Work is already being done to prepare the latest styles for 1935-36 in the famous "Patsy" line that will come in a variety of styles in sizes 16, 18, 19 and 22 inches. An assortment of "baby" garments for the baby dolls in sizes 9, 11 and 13 ins., and the ever popular "Shirley Temple" doll will be on display with an attractive wardrobe, duplicating the styles worn by the tiny star herself.

Stuffed animals including Mickie and Minnie Mouse in a large assortment will be another feature to attract attention. Doll quilts, washable, and quilted like mother's, may also be purchased for dolly's comfort. They will be available in miniature Dresden plate pattern, patchwork, and applique.

Luncheon cloths for the small hostess' tea table may also be purchased with Minnie and Mickey Mouse and family, the three little pigs and the big bad wolf, and Peter Rabbit and his family. The designs on the cloths will be original, and will include matching napkins.

Wise mothers are already planning to purchase these novelties, according to the committee, which is composed of Mrs. Earl Montgomery, Mrs. R. H. Amerman and Mrs. M. Hollis.

PAUL B. THOMPSON EXPLAINS SCHOOL SYSTEM TO CLUB

Assistant Principal Speaks On School Operation Before Exchange

"The Operation of a Public School" was the topic upon which Paul B. Thompson, assistant principal, spoke to members of the Exchange club Wednesday noon.

The extent of a day's program, the records and general office work were explained in detail and interesting samples of the records shown to make the system clearer.

Mr. Thompson also went into detail concerning the school's standing on state and university lists. The studies pursued, the equipment in use, the facilities for promoting study, social sciences, athletics, and various other phases were all brought into the discussion as some of the things which carry weight in arriving at the standing of a school. Northville's school has been on the accredited list since 1900, Mr. Thompson said.

He concluded, presenting the local records of students here. The complete picture of the amount of office work and other details necessary to the running of a school was appreciated by Exchange members who heard the account with interest.

ATTEMPT MADE TO SELL SITE FOR HOSPITAL

Veterans' Institution To Be Within Fifty Miles of Detroit

Northville, with numerous other towns surrounding Detroit, has put in application as a possible site for the erection of a proposed veterans' hospital, according to a report given by H. H. Burkart, village president, to the council Monday evening.

Present government plans call for the building of a 350-bed veterans' hospital somewhere within a radius of 50 miles of Detroit.

Believing that such an institution would be a valuable asset to the town, President Burkart invited a committee of investigation to inspect the plot of ground situated at the end of Center street, known as the Richardson farm. Members of the committee, meeting here last Thursday, were very favorably impressed by the site, President Burkart reported, in spite of the fact that they have been offered outright gifts of ground by several of the larger towns surrounding Detroit.

Although a letter has been written acquainting the association with the approval of the council toward their requirements, a message from Charles K. Mallory, supervising superintendent of construction in the eastern area, received Wednesday, says that they have as yet received no price from the bank on the 90 acres of land proposed.

Members of the council agree that the property, which is situated on the hill overlooking the end of Center street, and joined with the reservoir property, would be ideal for the hospital, and that the addition of another large public unit would be advantageous to Northville.

ODD FELLOWS LODGE WILL GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY, NOV. 21, 22

The Oddfellows Tonquish Lodge No 32 are sponsoring a musical presentation entitled, "Honeymoon Island," to be presented at the Plymouth high school, Nov. 20, 21. A cast of 46 will present the hilarious comedy which includes many peppy steps and snappy tunes.

Performers from Northville, Rosedale Gardens, and Plymouth are being invited to participate in the amateur contest which will be held before each of the performances. A local prize will be awarded and the winner will compete in a grand final at Dearborn in December in a contest which will offer a first prize of twentydollars and a second prize of ten dollars.

Northville people are requested to make application for entrance into the amateur contest to Lucius Blake, jeweler, by Nov. 16.

A poster contest will also be participated in by these same three towns. Rules for this contest can be obtained, according to members of the committee, from either Blake's shop, or the Northville high school. Poster entries must be made by Nov. 15; they will be judged at 7 p. m. Nov. 16, at the I. O. O. F. hall by a committee composed of Mrs. Ruth E. Huston Whipple, Dr. F. B. Hoover, and Sterling Eaton.

PONSFORD'S CLOSES FOR ALTERATIONS

Maurice Lapham announces that the Ponsford store will be closed for the first three days of next week. The building of the addition on the rear of the present store and the re-vamping of the interior of the entire store will be completed during these three days and the new, bigger and better store ready for the public's appraisal on Thursday, Nov. 14.

The Ponsford store has been a merchandising mecca for many years in Northville and Mr. Lapham hopes that their customers and friends will find the changed physical set-up both pleasant for their shopping as well as profitable. Announcement will soon be made regarding new department additions as well as unusual offerings of merchandise for their official opening, stated Mr. Lapham today. "We will open our doors again on Thursday and will be ready to present to Northville quite a new merchandising set-up."

Pre-Election Interviews Given Street Reporter Early This Week Indicate Light Bond Issue Vote

Sixteen Northville taxpayers were questioned on the street this week concerning the bond issue for the proposed grade school addition which was brought to public vote last evening, just a few hours after The Record went to press. The inquiring reporter learned from these pre-election minute interviews that only three of the 16 intended to cast a vote in the election.

Whether to accept or reject the PWA grant was the one question placed before the owners of real estate in Thursday night's election. The funds for the project have been placed on a 45-55 per cent basis, PWA to provide $12,272 and the sponsors to supply $15,000 in bond loans to be covered over a period of twenty years. Under the long-time payment plan, the cost to the taxpayers would be only a few extra cents a year as the project falls within the 15 mill tax limitation.

This is the first time within seven or eight years that a school issue has been brought to public vote. The last ballots were cast in regard to the playground site. Records reveal that the vote on that question was light.

Little concern or enthusiasm was noted for the current project vote early in the week when the reporter placed the school issue question to eligible voters on the street and in places of business.

"I have no children in school. It doesn't make any difference to me what they build or don't build," remarked one local citizen.

"Yes, I expect to vote in favor of the bond issue. Northville is surrounded by renowned institutions. The village public buildings should be just as adequate and attractive as those privately owned or those under state supervision," was the response given by a young business man of the town.

"I haven't been interested in school activities in years," asserted a Northville woman of social prominence who said she didn't intend to vote.

Only one person interviewed voiced an opinion that the voting would be heavy. He is a man of political importance who has no children enrolled in elementary school at the present time.

Nevertheless when asked which way his vote would go, he replied that he favored the new addition and regarded the PWA grant a means of erecting a grade school annex which otherwise it would be impossible to have for several years.

Another man who has been active in civic affairs for a number of

National Education Week Brings To Mind History of Evolution Of Northville School Buildings

In connection with National Education Week, which is being held from Nov. 11 to 17, the following history of the Northville school system might be interesting. The material was obtained from a history of the high school compiled by Mrs. Susie Woolley and Mrs. Kittie Harmon.

The history of the Northville high school should be traced back to 1826 when the first settlers came here and the first school was a little log hut on the William Barlow farm, three miles east of here on the Base Line road. The school was at that time taught by Elizabeth Yerkes.

In 1829 two other district schools were built of logs, one on the Griswold farm east of town where the George B. Yerkes house now stands, and the other in the western part of the town on the southeast corner of the Taft farm on the Base Line road. At that time both public and private schools were held in various parts of the village.

It was four years after that the inhabitants of school district No. 2 of Plymouth Township (which included both Plymouth and Northville) met on Aug. 31, 1833, to make arrangements for the building of a school house. The vote, which was carried specified that the school should be built of cobble stones laid in lime mortar, eighty feet long, and twenty-four feet wide. A picture of that school house, situated just north of what was for many years the Hirsch Blacksmith Shop, hangs in the library at the present time. It was designed to hold 100 pupils.

A number of schools, private and public, have been located in Northville since that time; one on the northeast corner of Cady and Center streets, another on the site now occupied by the home of Mrs. L. L. Brooks, and another in the house known as Mrs. J. B. Tinhams'. The attic of the latter, "The Cochran Academy," was uncovered over the door, when the Tinhams were painting their house.

But in 1843, the old school stone house was considered inadequate, and was sold for $67 which went toward the $837 necessary to buy the "New School Presbyterian Church" building, now the home of the library.

In those days teachers labored from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. for one or two dollars a week; occasionally they had a half holiday on Saturday.

Seven thousand dollars had to be raised when it was next thought necessary to have a new school house. That was in 1859 when they chose the present school site for

IT'S A WORTHY PROJECT—BEWARE OF DISSENSIONS

With apologies to the late Will Rogers, all I know I read in the newspapers. Recent issues of The Record have recorded the fact that an effort is being made to organize a chamber of commerce in Northville, and I desire to commend the project as being a most worthy one and one that should receive the hearty support and encouragement of every citizen of the community. There are many worthwhile objectives that a well organized and wisely directed chamber of commerce can accomplish in this day of organization and co-operation. Without such an organization there are many things which should receive attention in the average town, but which are neglected because what is everybody's business is usually nobody's business, or else they are pushed aside with the expressed thought of "let someone else attend to that matter, I am too busy."

Not for the purpose of discouraging the effort that is being made now to form an organization of citizens to advance the best interest of Northville, but with the thought in mind of trying to call attention to the fact that co-operation is the one essential thing that is required to maintain an aggressive chamber of commerce, may I suggest that a similar effort was made in Northville some years ago, which was permitted to die a natural death because of dissension and lack of co-operation. In 1919 when it became certain that the sanatorium project was to be located at Northville there was a feeling among the business men and citizens generally that there should be an organization to advance the interests of the town and surrounding community, and after considerable discussion a meeting was held in the early part of the summer and the organization of a chamber of commerce was perfected. Officers were chosen and more than fifty men signed the membership roll, agreeing to pay a membership fee of $5.00. Several meetings were held during the following three or four months and about half of those who signed the membership roll paid their subscription. Others offered numerous excuses and made many promises. In September the secretary resigned because of his removal to another city, and after some weeks it was decided to make an effort to revive the organization and put some enthusiasm in its membership. An effort was made to collect the remaining membership fees and that effort was continued for several months without success and in the following spring the organization died a very natural death, the cause of the demise simply being lack of interest and dissension on the part of a few men who preferred to work along different lines and in their own way.

In co-operation with the Northville Automobile Club a banquet was held sponsored during the winter with an attendance of more than 300 men, but even with that manifestation of community interest putrefaction was noticeable and death followed within a short time. And for the same reasons that brought about the demise of the Chamber of Commerce that Automobile Club was compelled to abandon its usefulness and auto owners sought membership elsewhere, in spite of the fact that the club was the means of urging Northville's needs for better highways and the improvement of the Eight Mile road, the Novi and the Farmington roads.

Most all towns have had similar experiences with chambers of commerce and business men's associations—not because there is no need for such organizations for there are many in every community, but through lack of interest and co-operation. Why this condition should exist has always been a mystery to me. Is it because men are impatient for big things to happen in their communities, or do they become so engrossed in their own affairs that they have no time to devote to the larger community affairs? As communities grow and prosper every individual and every interest in the community benefits from such advancement.

There is much that ran be accomplished by Northville's new chamber of commerce if all will get behind the movement and co-operate to the fullest extent, but these projects require direction and leadership and without such direction they are not properly developed. A number of Michigan towns have arranged special days and special events to attract citizens of other communities and with its splendid system of highways and its expanding park system no town in the state is better situated to develop some special worthwhile project. Consider what the city of Holland has accomplished within a few years with its annual tulip display. St. Joe and Benton Harbor have their blossom weeks; Traverse City its cherry week, Caro its sugar beet festival, and many other towns are setting a lively pace in their efforts to attract visitors. Northville with its location can accomplish a great deal with proper organization and the cultivation of a real active community spirit.

I believe the results would justify any effort that might be made along these lines. Here is a task worthy of the united efforts of the new chamber of commerce.

WHY NOT HERE?

In a number of communities surrounding Detroit, beerless gardens are being established for the entertainment of the young people who do not care to attend the dances held in places where beer is served. Why cannot such an amusement enterprise be established right here in Northville? We have two churches with rooms suitable for such an enterprise, not to mention the high school gym, and could they be put to better use than to provide clean, wholesome amusement and entertainment for the young people of the community? Committees could be selected from among our young married set and our own young people who enjoy dancing and clean entertainment could be properly chaperoned right here at home instead of permitting them to visit questionable places which require an automobile ride home late at night. Many sad stories come out of these roadside speakeasy-dance halls in which young people from splendid homes are involved. We read about them but give them little attention until some neighbor's boy or girl is involved. For every one of these young people who go astray in these beer joints the community in which they reside is responsible because no better place has been provided for their entertainment. Let's not condemn the youth of today if we are not interested enough in their future welfare to throw about them influences and an environment that will be helpful and inspiring.

BETTER MOVE CAUTIOUSLY

In Detroit "friends of temperance" are opposing the proposed early closing plan of Governor Fitzgerald in spite of the fact that the records show that more automobile accidents occur on the city streets between the hours of 2:00 and 3:00 a. m. than during any other period of the whole twenty-four hours. It would seem to an outsider that Detroit citizens are paying too great a price for an additional hour of "entertainment."

The proposal for closing drinking places at 1:00 met with the approval of the people outside of Wayne county generally, if one may judge by newspaper comments. Detroit saloon interests will do well to keep in step with the rest of the state in the matter of saloon regulation or they may find the whole question of state-wide prohibition on their door steps some of these days.

STICK TO YOUR PROFESSION, DOCTOR

At a ministerial convention held at Kalamazoo, Dr. O. R. Yeder of the Ypsilanti state hospital is credited with the following very silly statement:

> "Ministers should spend less time in expedient handshaking with members of the Ladies' Aid society, and more to the study of how churches can meet the crisis facing youth. . . .
> "If it would do any good I would pray that every Ladies' Aid society be dissolved, provided similar organizations did not spring up to take their place."

Dr. Yeder is a specialist in his line, but when he steps outside of his chosen profession to insult the members of the Ladies' Aid societies connected with nearly every church denomination in the country he displays his ignorance. In the first place ministers as a rule seldom attend the meetings of the Ladies' Aid society, and in the second place many of our churches could not maintain themselves if it were not for the heroic labors of the women who constitute the membership of these societies.

This does not apply only to the small community or village churches either, because the larger city churches receive a large part of their support from the efforts put forth by the women of the church. In their Ladies' Aid society meetings the women of nearly every church enjoy social contacts that could not be provided in any other way. The women of wealth and the women who have but little meet in a common cause, each doing their part in the support of all the activities of the church of their choice. Together they visit the sick and the afflicted, feed and clothe the unfortunate, assist mothers left destitute, care for homeless children and in many other ways "advocate an intelligent leadership that can and does provide a sympathetic interpretation of Christ, which is not all covered up with hangings of worldly drapery." Can the doctor suggest a better way in which to exemplify the teachings of the Master? Of course, he cannot, and his vaporings regarding the Ladies' Aid societies had better be kept in cold storage. He is too fine a gentleman to go about the state making such ridiculous statements.

We ran across a little gadget the other day that ought to be handy for almost anyone. It's called a "keekoin" and is a combination of key and change holder which is small but equipped to hold four dollars' worth of change and several keys.

Made in a rubber composition, it is cubical in shape and has openings on the top for one, five, ten and twenty-five cent pieces, and a longer key-shaped slit in which keys can be easily and securely inserted.

The combination takes little room in the pocket and is a safe place for change because the coins will not shake out. Automobile owners will find it useful because of the rubber composition which protects the dashboard from scratches. They are inexpensive too

Are you starting your Christmas buying? For those incidental gifts which you would like to get now—something that is for no particular person but will be welcomed by anyone on your holiday list? One such gift that was in great demand last year and promises to hold its popularity this season is the wall plaque. A shop here carries them in a plaster combination in all attractive designs. One that no one could resist is a realistic portrayal of two very much distressed babies, their crying faces in the sculptured relief almost human. And if you prefer happier babies, there are three smiling cherubs for your benefit.

Another of the type of gift that will be welcomed by anyone is the bronze and wood cigarette box. Designed to hold two kinds of cigarettes this table case has a bronze base and a wooden top that is attractively finished with a crest in the corner. They're also inexpensive.

Jumping from more exciting things to prosaic, every day needs—do you have an efficient knife sharpener? For a little over a dollar you can get a small wheel that can be put on the wall or clamped on the table and that will sharpen a knife or scissors in a moment's time. If you've had the trouble with hand sharpeners and sharpening knives on the edges of crocks that most people have, you'll appreciate this little instrument for all you have to do is to place the blade in the groove of the sharpening wheel and draw it along from heel to tip while the wheel is revolving.

Leo C Eickstaedt, pastor

"For I have satisfied the weary soul, and I have replenished every sorrowful soul." Jeremiah 31, 25.

"Of whom speaketh the prophet this?" Who is it that satisfies and replenishes the weary and sorrowful soul? It is the Savior Jesus Christ, our Lord It is He who said: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." How fortunate are we to have such a Lord!

When our sins burden us, He gives us the relief we need; when our hearts are sad, He gives us the comfort we require. In Him we have redemption through His blood, namely the forgiveness of sins according to the riches of His grace. "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. Who is it that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us." It is because He Himself was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin, that He can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, and that we can come boldly unto the throne of grace and obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

This is the Christian's comfort and hope. It satisfies, replenishes, comforts, and gladdens the soul.

Thou, O Christ, art all I want;
More than all in Thee I find:
Raise the fallen, cheer the faint,
Heal the sick, and lead the blind.
Just and holy is Thy name;
I am all unrighteousness:
False and full of sin I am;
Thou art full of truth and grace.
Plentous grace with Thee is found,
Grace to cover all my sin;
Let the healing streams abound;
Make and keep me pure within.
Thou of life the Fountain art,
Freely let me take of Thee;
Spring Thou up within my heart,
Rise to all eternity. Amen.

THIS WEEK

By H. H. WHITE

Robert Frost has a poem which I recently read about a man who came to the fork of a road in a yellow wood. Regretting that he could not go down both roads he chose one. It was less traveled than the other and it had a better claim to fame the traveler thought and his decision "made all the difference." As he continued to the end he kept wishing he had gone the other.

"What a fool I was," he kept saying, "to choose as I did. How much happier I would be if I had made a different choice and followed the road I didn't take—it was more traveled."

Giving way to vain regrets made him the bigger fool and wondering what would happen if something else had not occurred.

Anyone who finds himself in this mood thinks of the other way which he failed to choose, and in imagination sees a fine straight road which had he chosen would have brought him to the land of Elysian fields

If he had been wise enough to follow the hunch he had—if he had chosen another job for the one he now has which is irksome at times—how much better off he would be. This sort of wishing and thinking seems a little futile and folly-like. The road he did not take might have been more dark and different than the one he chose.

No one knows, nor will we ever know, where the road not taken led, or whether it was smooth or rough. Often we find a friend who says to us he wishes he had taken the road that we did.

It is not the road but the faith, the spirit, the philosophy we use and our outlook on life and its interpretation that makes all the difference. Vain regrets will discolor the road and the scenery along the way we are traveling.

IT'S A WORTHY PROJECT—BEWARE OF DISSENSIONS

With apologies to the late Will Rogers, all I know I read in the newspapers. Recent issues of The Record have recorded the fact that an effort is being made to organize a chamber of commerce in Northville, and I desire to commend the project as being a most worthy one and one that should receive the hearty support and encouragement of every citizen of the community. There are many worthwhile objectives that a well organized and wisely directed chamber of commerce can accomplish in this day of organization and co-operation. Without such an organization there are many things which should receive attention in the average town, but which are neglected because what is everybody's business is usually nobody's business, or else they are pushed aside with the expressed thought of "let someone else attend to that matter, I am too busy."

Not for the purpose of discouraging the effort that is being made now to form an organization of citizens to advance the best interest of Northville, but with the thought in mind of trying to call attention to the fact that co-operation is the one essential thing that is required to maintain an aggressive chamber of commerce, may I suggest that a similar effort was made in Northville some years ago, which was permitted to die a natural death because of dissension and lack of co-operation. In 1919 when it became certain that the sanatorium project was to be located at Northville there was a feeling among the business men and citizens generally that there should be an organization to advance the interests of the town and surrounding community, and after considerable discussion a meeting was held in the early part of the summer and the organization of a chamber of commerce was perfected. Officers were chosen and more than fifty men signed the membership roll, agreeing to pay a membership fee of $5.00. Several meetings were held during the following three or four months and about half of those who signed the membership roll paid their subscription. Others offered numerous excuses and made many promises. In September the secretary resigned because of his removal to another city, and after some weeks it was decided to make an effort to revive the organization and put some enthusiasm in its membership. An effort was made to collect the remaining membership fees and that effort was continued for several months without success and in the following spring the organization died a very natural death, the cause of the demise simply being lack of interest and dissension on the part of a few men who preferred to work along different lines and in their own way.

In co-operation with the Northville Automobile Club a banquet was held sponsored during the winter with an attendance of more than 300 men, but even with that manifestation of community interest putrefaction was noticeable and death followed within a short time. And for the same reasons that brought about the demise of the Chamber of Commerce that Automobile Club was compelled to abandon its usefulness and auto owners sought membership elsewhere, in spite of the fact that the club was the means of urging Northville's needs for better highways and the improvement of the Eight Mile road, the Novi and the Farmington roads.

Most all towns have had similar experiences with chambers of commerce and business men's associations—not because there is no need for such organizations for there are many in every community, but through lack of interest and co-operation. Why this condition should exist has always been a mystery to me. Is it because men are impatient for big things to happen in their communities, or do they become so engrossed in their own affairs that they have no time to devote to the larger community affairs? As communities grow and prosper every individual and every interest in the community benefits from such advancement.

There is much that can be accomplished by Northville's new chamber of commerce if all will get behind the movement and co-operate to the fullest extent, but these projects require direction and leadership and without such direction they are not properly developed. A number of Michigan towns have arranged special days and special events to attract citizens of other communities and with its splendid system of highways and its expanding park system no town in the state is better situated to develop some special worthwhile project. Consider what the city of Holland has accomplished within a few years with its annual tulip display. St. Joe and Benton Harbor have their blossom weeks, Traverse City its cherry week, Caro its sugar beet festival, and many other towns are setting a lively pace in their efforts to attract visitors. Northville with its location can accomplish a great deal with proper organization and the cultivation of a real active community spirit.

I believe the results would justify any effort that might be made along these lines. Here is a task worthy of the united efforts of the new chamber of commerce.

WHY NOT HERE?

In a number of communities surrounding Detroit, beerless gardens are being established for the entertainment of the young people who do not care to attend the dances held in places where beer is served. Why cannot such an amusement enterprise be established right here in Northville? We have two churches with rooms suitable for such an enterprise, not to mention the high school gym, and could they be put to better use than to provide clean, wholesome amusement and entertainment for the young people of the community? Committees could be selected from among our young married set and our own young people who enjoy dancing and clean entertainment could be properly chaperoned right here at home instead of permitting them to visit questionable places which require an automobile ride home late at night. Many sad stories come out of these roadside speakeasy-dance halls in which young people from splendid homes are involved. We read about them but give them little attention until some neighbor's boy or girl is involved. For every one of these young people who go astray in these beer joints the community in which they reside is responsible because no better place has been provided for their entertainment. Let's not condemn the youth of today if we are not interested enough in their future welfare to throw about them influences and an environment that will be helpful and inspiring.

BETTER MOVE CAUTIOUSLY

In Detroit "friends of temperance" are opposing the proposed early closing plan of Governor Fitzgerald in spite of the fact that the records show that more automobile accidents occur on the city streets between the hours of 2:00 and 3:00 a. m. than during any other period of the whole twenty-four hours. It would seem to an outsider that Detroit citizens are paying too great a price for an additional hour of "entertainment."

The proposal for closing drinking places at 1:00 met with the approval of the people outside of Wayne county generally, if one may judge by newspaper comments. Detroit saloon interests will do well to keep in step with the rest of the state in the matter of saloon regulation or they may find the whole question of state-wide prohibition on their door steps some of these days.

STICK TO YOUR PROFESSION, DOCTOR

At a ministerial convention held at Kalamazoo, Dr. O. R. Yeder of the Ypsilanti state hospital is credited with the following very silly statement:

> "Ministers should spend less time in expedient handshaking with members of the Ladies' Aid society, and more to the study of how churches can meet the crisis facing youth. . . . .
> "If it would do any good I would pray that every Ladies' Aid society be dissolved, provided similar organizations did not spring up to take their place."

Dr. Yeder is a specialist in his line, but when he steps outside of his chosen profession to insult the members of the Ladies' Aid societies connected with nearly every church denomination in the country he displays his ignorance. In the first place ministers as a rule seldom attend the meetings of the Ladies' Aid society, and in the second place many of our churches could not maintain themselves if it were not for the heroic labors of the women who constitute the membership of these societies.

This does not apply only to the small community or village churches either, because the larger city churches receive a large part of their support from the efforts put forth by the women of the church. In their Ladies' Aid society meetings the women of nearly every church enjoy social contacts that could not be provided in any other way. The women of wealth and the women who have but little meet in a common cause, each doing their part in the support of all the activities of the church of their choice. Together they visit the sick and the afflicted, feed and clothe the unfortunate, assist mothers left destitute, care for homeless children and in many other ways "advocate an intelligent leadership that can and does provide a sympathetic interpretation of Christ, which is not all covered up with hangings of worldly drapery." Can the doctor suggest a better way in which to exemplify the teachings of the Master? Of course, he cannot, and his vaporings regarding the Ladies' Aid societies had better be kept in cold storage. He is too fine a gentleman to go about the state making such ridiculous statements.

We ran across a little gadget the other day that ought to be handy for almost anyone. It's called a "keekoin" and is a combination of key and change holder which is small, but equipped to hold four dollars' worth of change and several keys.

Made in a rubber composition, it is cubical in shape and has openings on the top for one, five, ten and twenty-five cent pieces, and a longer key-shaped slit in which keys can be easily and securely inserted.

The combination takes little room in the pocket and is a safe place for change because the coins will not shake out. Automobile owners will find it useful because of the rubber composition which protects the dashboard from scratches. They are inexpensive too.

Are you starting your Christmas buying? For those incidental gifts which you would like to get now—something that is for no particular person but will be welcomed by anyone on your holiday list? One such gift that was in great demand last year and promises to hold its popularity this season is the wall placque. A shop here carries them in a plaster combination in all attractive designs. One that no one could resist is a realistic portrayal of two very much distressed babies, their crying faces in the sculptured relief almost human. And if you prefer happier babies, there are three smiling cherubs for your benefit.

Another of the type of gift that will be welcomed by anyone is the bronze and wood cigarette box. Designed to hold two kinds of cigarettes this table case has a bronze base and a wooden top that is attractively finished with a crest in the corner. They're also inexpensive.

Jumping from more exciting things to prosaic, every day needs—do you have an efficient knife sharpener? For a little over a dollar you can get a small wheel that can be put on the wall or clamped on the table and that will sharpen a knife or scissors in a moment's time. If you've had the trouble with hand sharpeners and sharpening knives on the edges of crocks that most people have, you'll appreciate this little instrument, for all you have to do is to place the blade in the groove of the sharpening wheel and draw it along from heel to tip while the wheel is revolving.

MAYBURY NEWS

Mrs. Marjorie Owens and Miss Eva Johnson attended the quarterly meeting of the Michigan Association of Occupational Therapy at the Ypsilanti State hospital last Friday, Nov. 1. Following an interesting program given by the patients, the assistant superintendent of the hospital demonstrated the value of occupational therapy, giving several concrete examples. At the business meeting, Mrs. Owens had the honor of being elected to the vice presidency of the association bestowed upon her.

In a very instructive talk, Harvey F. F. Campbell showed Maybury employees and patients the uses made of the money donated to the community fund. He spoke to them on Thursday, Oct. 31, employing lantern slides to illustrate the various points he brought up.

The Goodfellows club, an organization to which every patient of the sanatorium is a member, has started its drive preparatory to arranging it so that the happy state of "no patient without a Christmas" will be found at Maybury this year. They are canvassing the institution with plns selling for not less than a dime and not more than fifteen hundred dollars, and because of the worthiness of their campaign, they feel that nobody should be without one.

Miss Ann Farrington, librarian, is back on duty after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Mrs Helen Lamcke of Paw Paw, Mich, is visiting Mr. and Mrs Bart Connors. Mrs. Lamcke was formerly a school teacher at the san.

St. Paul's Lutheran

Leo C Eckstaedt, pastor

"For I have satisfied the weary soul, and I have replenished every sorrowful soul." Jeremiah 31, 25

"Of whom speaketh the prophet this?" Who is it that satisfies and replenishes the weary and sorrowful soul? It is the Savior Jesus Christ, our Lord. It is He who said: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." How fortunate are we to have such a Lord!

When our sins burden us, He gives us the relief we need, when our hearts are sad, He gives us the comfort we require. In Him we have redemption through His blood, namely the forgiveness of sins according to the riches of His grace. "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth Who is it that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us." It is because He Himself was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin, that He can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, and that we can come boldly unto the throne of grace and obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

This is the Christian's comfort and hope. It satisfies, replenishes, comforts, and gladdens the soul.

Thou, O Christ, art all I want;
More than all in Thee I find:
Raise the fallen, cheer the faint,
Heal the sick, and lead the blind.
Just and holy is Thy name;
I am all unrighteousness:
False and full of sin I am;
Thou art full of truth and grace.
Plentous grace with Thee is found,
Grace to cover all my sin;
Let the healing streams abound;
Make and keep me pure within.
Thou of life the Fountain art,
Freely let me take of Thee:
Spring Thou up within my heart,
Rise to all eternity. Amen.

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 543): "Christian Science separates error from truth, and breathes through the sacred pages the spiritual sense of life, substance, and intelligence. In this Science, we discover man in the image and likeness of God. We see that man has never lost his spiritual estate and his eternal harmony."

THIS WEEK

By H. H. WHITE

Robert Frost has a poem which I recently read about a man who came to the fork of a road in a yellow wood. Regretting that he could not go down both roads he chose one. It was less traveled than the other and it had a better claim to fame the traveler thought and his decision "made all the difference." As he continued to the end he kept wishing he had gone the other.

"What a fool I was," he kept saying, "to choose as I did. How much happier I would be if I had made a different choice and followed the road I didn't take—it was more traveled."

Giving way to vain regrets made him the bigger fool and wondering what would happen if something else had not occurred.

Anyone who finds himself in this mood thinks of the other way which he failed to choose, and in imagination sees a fine straight road which had he chosen would have brought him to the land of Elysian fields.

If he had been wise enough to follow the hunch he had—if he had chosen another job for the one he now has which is irksome at times—how much better off he would be. This sort of wishing and thinking seems a little futile and folly-like. The road he did not take might have been more dark and different than the one he chose.

No one knows, nor will we ever know, where the road not taken led, or whether it was smooth or rough. Often we find a friend who says to us he wishes he had taken the road that we did.

It is not the road but the faith, the spirit, the philosophy we use and our outlook on life and its interpretation that makes all the difference. Vain regrets will discolor the road and the scenery along the way we are traveling.

years is strongly opposed to the village's accepting the WPA grant. "It would be wiser for the district to assume the entire financial responsibility for the cost of the addition which is greatly needed at this time. In voting bonds to cover the full amount, we could then be sure that the project would be completed and men trained for specialized work would be employed to do the construction," he said.

"It's the old question of whether the taxpayers with children in school can outnumber those who have no children," was the statement made by an outstanding village resident. "I'm going to vote for the bond issue but I expect the vote to be light. It always is on school questions," he concluded.

One eligible voter commented that he wasn't voting despite the fact that he has children in school, simply because he thought the bonds would carry without his aid. He further stated that if 10 property voters cast votes exclusive of the board members, the vote would be heavier than he anticipated.

their two-story brick building. It was at this time that it was changed from a common district school to a high or grade school. Finally finished and occupied in 1865, this brick building cost $12,000.

A hundred pupils in the high school and 50 or 60 in the primary department were taught by four teachers under the brilliant supervision of Professor Osband in this first Union school.

None of the usual fanfare greeted the early graduates, and it was not until 1869 that one lone pupil was graduated with appropriate exercises. But the senior classes increased from one to a dozen and then up, and Mrs. Harmon remembers her graduation day in 1883, when the exercises were held in the old opera house and were followed by a banquet. The tables were set at the back of the stage.

Again in 1907 an increase in the number of pupils made it necessary to add the building which now stands on the south side of the grounds. Later, the playground was added, and what was formerly known as the Smith house was taken over to house the kindergarten and one of the grades and now the Board of Education offices.

Thirty-two superintendents have watched the progress of the schools, and last night the thirty-second watched another vote being taken on another school addition.

THE FAMILY ROMANCE
By MRS. L. E. WARNER
Social Consultant

Dear Mrs. Warner:—There is a little problem which is causing considerable disagreement between my husband and myself and which is making trouble for our 13 year old daughter and her sister 10 years of age. You see the two girls like to play after school and after supper with the boys and girls of the neighborhood. It seems to me that their play is harmless but their father keeps a watchful eye on them all the time and if a boy comes up to play he chases him away or calls the girls in. My husband was raised in the old country and I am American born. My mother always encouraged me to play with other boys and girls of my own age. We could bring our friends home for games, we could make candy or we could dance. No harm came to any of us.

It seems to me that in times like these when we haven't much money for recreation we should seek ways to keep our children off the streets and open our homes and invite the young folks in. Boys have to be entertained as well as girls. I should like my girls to invite them into their home. What do you think? I wish my children had a broad minded father who would trust them.—M. P.

While I understand your husband's point of view I am inclined to agree wholeheartedly with you that children should have frequent opportunity to play together. Sooner or later your daughters will be going out with boys. It seems to me that this is a very good chance for them to come to understanding of boys' behavior, to get acquainted with "their line" so to speak.

Your husband's watchfulness is all to his credit. It is a good thing for your girls to know that "father" is likely to be near. It is also good for the other boys and girls to know that an adult is in the group or ready to come into the group as soon as anything unpleasant occurs. He should be commended for his interest, too many fathers turn the care of the children over to the mother and forget about them. He is in a position to help you a great deal. The foreign attitude toward girls is a little more protective than ours but there are many reasons why the young should be more closely chaperoned than they are when at their play. It is this somewhat careless attitude the average American parent has toward the association of boys and girls and his great haste to lock the door after the horse is stolen that is entirely incomprehensible to the foreign born person.

It would be better, though, for your husband to get out and play ball with the boys and girls in the yard than to sit indoors and antagonize them by his watchful, critical attitude toward their recreation. Fathers and mothers should know far better than they do the boys and girls their children play with. If we have the best interests of our boys and girls in mind we must understand that we are safeguarding these only by a close contact with the young people with whom they associate. It is not enough for us to know their companions by name. We should touch shoulders with them, play with them, listen to them as they voice their opinions and their attitudes if we would really protect our sons and daughters from absorbing false ideas of life and from adopting questionable social standards.

True we are representatives of a passing generation but it is possible for the average parent to keep sufficiently young to gain an understanding of the aims, purposes, and desires of the young people in whom he is so vitally interested. Boys and girls should play together, surely, but their parents should mingle with them as friends and companions whenever possible.

Touchdowns were scored by DeGroot, and Powers in the first quarter with Powers and Richardson scoring extra points. Touchdowns in the second quarter were made by Richardson and Powers, Powers and Helvey making extra points. Richardson ran 20 yards and made two line plunges in third quarter for the fifth touchdown and threw a pass to Giegler to score the sixth. LOCAL TEAM DEFEATED BY FARMINGTON

Orange and Black Gridders Use Spectacular Playing

Farmington high school's undefeated football squad succeeded in keeping its record intact when it defeated Northville's hard fighting, ground-gaining team, 20 to 12, at Cass Benton park Friday. Much credit for the victory is due to Tony Himmelspach, triple threat man of the Blue and White.

Although Himmelspach threw many long completed passes, punted from 50 to 60 yards all through the game, and made many brilliant runs, Northville must be looked to to show the greatest yardage gained, longest running plays, and the most frequently completed passes. Carl Arnold, of Northville, gained a total of 87 yards from scrimmage and intercepted a pass for a sprint of 38 yards, giving himself the grand total of 125 yards gained. Jack Junod, an Orange and Black halfback, gave the crowd an exciting moment when he faked a pass and ran through tackle for a gain of 60 yards. A surprise awaited everyone when it was discovered that the play was formerly intended to be a pass.

Midway in the first period, Donald Lee of Farmington intercepted a pass and ran to Northville's 20-yard line. After completing a 15-yard pass to Mitchell, which placed the ball on the home 5-yard line, Himmelspach circled right end for a touchdown. The try for point was successful.

In the closing minutes of the last half, the Parmenter and Junod to Nirider pass combinations took the ball to the enemy 15-yard stripe, from which Arnold circled left end, carrying the ball to the 3-yard line, from which Hay plunged for the local's first touchdown in two tries.

In the second quarter Northville intercepted a pass for 38 yards. Junod passed to Nirider for 41 yards, which placed the ball on Farmington's 14-yard marker. David Hay and Carl Arnold carried the ball 11 yards to the 3-yard line where Hay carried it over for the first touchdown. The try for point failed.

Catching Northville off guard on a shift which placed three men in position to receive a pass, Himmelspach completed a touchdown toss and converted point to raise the score to 16 to 6.

Northville lost the ball five times on fumbles, while Farmington maintained a solid grip on the pigskin. Farmington had one blocked punt and a blocked kick for goal. Charles Strautz, Northville tackle, recovered the ball for a touchdown after Himmelspach's kick was blocked.

During the closing minutes of the third quarter, Himmelspach laid hands on a perfect forward from Harvey Hamilton, Farmington quarterback, and then carried it over the 30 yards between him and the goal for a touchdown. This time Himmelspach's educated toe failed to convert the point.

The game was very fast, exciting and although the Northvillians were sorry the home team did not win, they all seemed to think that it was the best game that the local lads have played this year. With the ball on Northville's 30-yard line in the possession of Farmington, the game ended without any threats from either team.

'ROUND THE SCHOOL

Come to the Game Today

Today at 3:30, Northville's football team will meet Berkley high. This is the last game of the season to be played in Northville. Won't you please come? Berkley is bringing its 60-piece band over, and we hear its worth hearing. The price of tickets is very small (15c) and it's really worth your money. Don't forget you're not only seeing a good game, but you are also helping the student council. Don't think we don't see you students who sneak in without paying, because we do. This is one of the lowest forms of sportsmanship we know of. Doesn't your conscience ever bother you? Evidently not. How about being a good sport and come on the field the right way?

Class Attitude

There is nothing that discourages a class more than to have its members who just aren't satisfied with the way things are run, start untrue tales about projects the class intends to carry out.

This holds true especially for the senior class. Just because certain things aren't run the way a certain few think they should be immediately rumors begin around that are slamming the class. Some of the seniors who aren't interested in making money for the class, have started stories to the effect that the senior prom isn't going to be very good. How absurd this is, but how quickly little things can spoil a project. If these people would only realize that when a committee is chosen, it is made up of members who really know how to run things well. If there are more of these poor losers who persist in this talking, heed not, my friends, just consider the source.

Just a word to Ypsilanti. Thanks for your kind compliment on the Orange and Black sheet, Eddie. The journalism staff appreciates that very much. Glad to hear you are a reader of our paper way up in Ypsi

Our orchid goes to Tom McLoughlin, treasurer of the student council for doing the best bit of worrying we've seen in a long time. Her peeve is the debts the student council has to pay.

JUNIOR ASSEMBLY HOLDS ORIGINAL AMATEUR PROGRAM

Big times this past week in the junior high. Just listen. Amateur program was held Wednesday, and the magazine campaign ended Thursday.

The amateur program was really something, but what wouldn't be with all the celebrities they had there. Among some of the better known ones were Zazu Pitts, Rudy Vallee, Shirley Temple, and Greta Garbo. No fooling. At least so everyone thought until the end of the program when they took off their costumes and revealed that they were Ugenia Stanford, Jack Holcomb, Marie Angove and Virginia Labbitt. Some of the others on the program were Wellington Sears, who told a bed-time story, Murdock McDonald and his mouth organ, and a couple of piano players: Patsy Joynson, and Loretta Nagel. Just before Miss Corrin played "America" to end the party, they voted that Ugenia Stanford as Zazu Pitts was the best, and so to her went the prize, a bottle of that guaranteed cure-all, "Blue."

The seventh grade finally won the magazine contest, 36 subscriptions to 26. Said seventh grade captain Billy Washburne to eighth grade captain Roger Muller, "You put up a great fight. Better luck next time." On account of the total number of subscriptions sold they get a football, basketball and a baseball for the room. Billy Washburne as high man for individual sales, gets a notebook, a pencil box, and a pen and pencil.

SHORTHAND CLASS INCREASES SPEED

Mrs. Jack Taylor's advanced shorthand class is now taking dictation at the rate of 100 and 120 words a minute on short letters, while the beginners are making good records on 60 words on repeated material.

The following typists have made excellent records on 10-minute accuracy test: Dorothy Kent, 28 words, 4 errors; Lillian Fritz, 25-5; Ralph Mathews, 20-0; Jack Seberry, 22-0.

The proud holders of the largest number of perfect accuracy tests for the week are Hermin Toussaint and Ralph Mathews.

Don Hines is back in school after a long absence and has made excellent progress in typewriting. He typed 10 words entirely without errors on the third accuracy test he took.

The sixth hour class always produces the speediest and most accurate typists on the one-minute tests. Dorothy Kent holds the highest record with 45 words, and Lucile Simmons follows with 41 words.

There seems to be a great attraction on the ground for some of the typewriting balloons. There are several which have not started the stratosphere flight as yet. We're thinking of getting some new professors.

A beautiful, blue eyed, blonde senior girl says "The first thing I notice about a fellow's clothes, are his shoes." No foolin' fella! They're all alike. How about a pair of ours? (Shoes, we mean!) $3, $4, $5. THE MEN'S SHOP.

MR. THOMPSON SAYS

Report cards are issued to the students so they will have a record of the work they do in school. At the end of the semester the cards become the property of the students

If at any time there happens to be a question of grades or credits earned by the student, the report card is quite often a help in making a final decision.

The pupil who is interested in having a record of his or her work will take care that their report card is returned promptly and in good condition—not bent, folded, or otherwise soiled by unnecessary marks.

The general practice will be not to issue any duplicate cards. Therefore, students should take care of the ones they now have.

Grade Notes

The following pupils from Mrs. Reng's second and third grade have not been absent or tardy this year: Wilford Cyr, Virginia Deshler, Leo Eckstaedt, Robert Forshee, Floyd Lanning, John McDonald, John McKenna, Zella Forshee, Harley Heintz, Hugh Kerr, Clare Shaw and Linwood Snow.

Betty Heintz is a new pupil in Miss Leonardson's second grade. The second graders received a letter from Ann Davis and her mother, who are visiting in California. The Oak class is dramatizing the story of "The Prince Who Was Not Hungry."

Sixteen second graders from Miss Leonardson's room have gold stars after their names on the health chart. This means they have passed the health inspection each time.

Mrs. Babbitt's fourth graders have 18 new books for their reading table. Edith Blake, from this room, has been visiting in London, Can., with her parents.

Mrs. Congo's third graders have a new pupil, Anna Hoover.

Miss Atkinson's first graders played in the gymnasium Monday on account of the rainy weather. They later wrote a story about what they did. Miss Jarvis visited this room last week. There are 12 first graders who have gold stars after their names on the health chart.

The first graders are making Thanksgiving booklets. Marjorie Ann Averill chooses books from the library which she thinks are good for first graders to read. Miss Atkinson reads to the class from these books.

Bruce Ebert has been absent on acount of illness.

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS

The senior class is requesting that the Northville merchants do not give credit for supplies to any student unless that person has a slip made out by June King, class treasurer, and contains her signature. This means the class can assure prompt payment of bills.

PROFESSOR CATON GIVES INTERESTING TALK TO STUDENTS

Importance of Good English Stressed in Tuesday Talk Before Pupils

The afternoon of Nov. 5, proved very profitable for the students of Northville high school when Prof. John J. Caton, director of educational research of Chrysler Motor corporation, addressed them in their auditorium on the talk, "Education in Industry."

Mr. Caton explained the various classes and systems used in the educational schools of the Chrysler corporation. After defining what is expected of an engineer, Professor Caton told the student body that not all people are fitted for this work and while engineers can not wisely do any occupation, they excell in their own fields. He then asked the questions, "What am I cut out to do, and like, what does industry expect of me?" Professor Caton then elaborated on these questions, and his information was most valuable.

The educator emphatically stressed the fact that we do not get enough English in high school and will realize it later in life, and that, without it to write and speak, we will not advance as much as with out the benefit of good English. He also stressed public speaking and said that it, with English and personality, constitutes fifty per cent of our success today. We can, Professor Caton explained, judge one's personality and intelligence from his speech, English and writing, and it is imperative that we have adequate English in our schools today, to prepare us for college and the world before us.

Professor Caton then, in a most pleasing manner, invited the student body of Northville high school to visit the back-stage scenes of Chrysler Motors and after his conclusion the students felt assured that they had spent one of the most profitable afternoons in their school years.

SOCIETY

As usual there were many parties around Hallowe'en that one could hardly be expected to find out about all of them and if one did the space wouldn't be large enough to tell about them all. So here is just a few we've heard about.

Tuesday night, Oct. 29, Janet Stewart celebrated her birthday with a grand Hallowe'en party. Games and dancing were followed by refreshments. Janet received many gifts from the fifteen girls present.

Eight sophomore girls were entertained by Margaret Hein in her home on Hallowe'en. Of course the games and refreshments were most suitable to the occasion. Nancy McLoughlin, Betty Schrader, Margaret Sarden, Virginia Washburne, Gwendolyn Jones, Leona White, and Lois Chapman were the girls present. My, boys, this is bad.

Friday evening was a gala time for all. Practically the whole school attended the junior dance. There is hardly use in naming those there.

Betty Schrader had a big time Friday night too. She and Bud Siewert, Nancy Brown of Pontiac and Jack McLoughlin, went down to the Book Cadillac for dancing.

Shirley Condit, Pat McLoughlin and Louise Alexander made the Woman's City Club swimming team in Detroit, Saturday. Bet the boys can't do that.

Jane Grosvenor gave a Chop Suey dinner last Saturday night. The Chinese addicts partaking were Tom McLoughlin, Ida Altman, Evelyn Ambler, Paul Beard, Bob Bray, Carl Arnold, and Arthur Hayes of Ann Arbor.

Fred MacMurray has three thoroughly devoted fans in Nan McLoughlin, Shirley Condit, and Pat McLoughlin, who saw the movie at Plymouth Sunday.

Lois Chapman and Betty Schrader saw "Metropolitan," Sunday afternoon and also on the stage were Ed Brendel and Stepin Fetchet.

No need to mention the game. See you there.

NINTH GRADE SEWING TAKES COLOR STUDY

Mrs. Claude Zimmerman's ninth grade sewing class is taking up the study of colors suitable for different lines of clothes. Mrs. Zimmerman says that this helps the girls to plan the right colors when they buy their own clothing.

Mrs. Zimmerman's eighth grade cooking classes have just finished studying the menu for good breakfasts. The class will soon make up a menu and prepare a real breakfast. This will include the proper way to set a table and various other culinary details.

Would you favor having an annual high school-alumni football game?

Henry Toussaint: Yes, because it would be an interest to the community and would get the people more interested in football.

Essie Nirider: No. Football graduates would naturally have more experience and knowledge of the game than those in school, and then the chances of injuries would be greater playing with a team out of our class.

Chuck Strautz: Yes. I think it would be great sport. The Alumni would be out of condition and lack training. While the high school team have both. Have the game at the end of the season and there is nothing to lose.

Evelyn Ambler: These games are always interesting but the high school students might be injured, therefore ruining their chances for the remainder of the season.

Jane Grosvenor: No, I don't think they should because of the lack of experience the high school team would have. There would be too much competition.

Carl Arnold: Yes, I do. It would get the people of the town interested in football. Then maybe more people would come to the games during the school term.

June King: No, I wouldn't. They won't be in training, and after they graduate they never stay around here anyway, and who would be their coach?

Mr Thompson: There is hardly room in the high school football schedule to schedule games outside of the league and regular annual opponents.

8-PIECE GROUP TO PLAY FOR PROM

Ticket Price For Biggest Event of Year Set At $1.25 by Vote

At the last senior class meeting, which was called to order Wednesday, Oct. 30, by President Roland Morris, a considerable amount of important business concerning the senior prom, which will be held Nov. 27, was discussed.

Various committees gave their reports. The orchestra committee, with Jack Junod as chairman, gave a very favorable report. Music will be furnished by the Moe and Carter's eight-piece orchestra, and a girls' trio, both from Ypsilanti.

This orchestra has played at numerous college dances. The senior class is very fortunate in securing such excellent entertainment at the reasonable price that they will pay for it. The class and sponsors, Mrs. Jack Taylor and Mrs. Claude Zimmerman, feel that everyone attending the prom will be entirely satisfied because the excellent entertainment is well worth the price of tickets.

Quite a bit of discussion was carried on in regard to the price of the prom tickets. As there was not time during class meeting to carry out a legal voting, it was done Friday, Nov. 1, by ballot in the senior classes. According to this final vote, the tickets will be $1.25. The voting was quite close, because 31 people voted for a $1.25 ticket, and 25 for the $1.50 ticket.

The chaperon committee, consisting of Verna Little and Norene Blake, announced the chaperons for the prom. They are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Amerman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Lyke, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Zimmerman, and Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Blake.

The seniors have in their treasury $378.63, as reported by Treasurer June King. The class expects the money to increase considerably before Christmas, because a new order of Christmas cards has arrived which the seniors will sell.

Name cards are soon to be ordered by the seniors, and plans are being made for senior pictures to be taken.

In 481 accident cases cars collided with safety zones and 946 struck other fixed objects.

SENIOR SQUIBS

A new column, just for seniors, anything said is all in fun so don't feel hurt.

Why is it that the senior office practice girls have such a hard time getting A's?

It is reported there is $378.63 in the class treasury, we hope it increases enough to take seniors to Washington.

With "Jellie" Ware leaving our dignified class, it will probably put the jinx on the Christmas cards.

Who is that certain senior that collects Penguins?

Why is it that E. A. never pays her debts and bets? Maybe someday she will surprise us all, who knows?

Jack Junod seems to be very popular with a couple of senior girls, wonder who will win?

I wonder if the seniors are wondering "Where they will go, when they go, where they go, after they get their diplomas?"

PLACE NEW BOOKS FROM JUNIOR GUILD IN SCHOOL LIBRARY

New to booklovers! Two new books of the month are placed in the school library—"Moviemakers," by John J. Flaherty, is one of the interesting books, this tells about the way movies are made and has many illustrations throughout the book.

"Bob Gordon, Cub Reporter," by Ghoham M. Dean, is a book that will especially interest the boys.

The Junior Guild puts out two high school books a month, and you have to be a member to receive these books. It is known that hundreds of books are looked over by the best critics, and the best two are selected for the books of the month. According to Leslie G. Lee, the library has a yearly subscription to the Junior Guild. Mr. Lee states that the high school library is very fortunate to belong to such a splendid guild, because one's sure to get the very best books.

STUDENTS MAY STILL ENROLL IN COURSE ON GROUND AVIATION

It is not too late to enroll in the class in ground aviation which may be organized in the near future, Superintendent R. H. Amerman said Wednesday.

Townspeople or students may enroll but the class must have at least 15 members before the plans can be completed. Money will be borrowed from the government to pay an instructor and the school board will provide a room in which the class will meet.

There is no obligation whatsoever only the price of a textbook and several members may share that expense. There are six people who have joined including one girl.

PLAY FINAL LEAGUE GAME HERE TODAY

N.H.S. Will Play Opponents For Revenge Today at Cass Benton Park

Although the Orange and Black grid gallopers are near the cellar in the Suburban League they have a chance to topple one of the teams tied for first place. Today's Berkley-Northville game at Cass Benton park may leave Van Dyke undisputed claimant to league championship. Van Dyke and Berkley are now tied for first.

The local ball-toters have been hard on the mile aspirations of the Berkley lads for the past two years, Northville having won the last two games. And now advance information tells of the elaborate plans that Berkley is making to change the order of things. The Berkley high school band of sixty pieces will come to inspire their fighting team to great effort.

Northville has defeated one league opponent, Redford Union 13-6; Berkley out-scored them 45 to 0. But the local boys under Captain Essie Nirider will be out there fighting to make it three in a row from the strong Berkley team.

The probable line-up for today's game is as follows: Balko, re.; Toussaint, rt.; Bauman, rg.; Bray, center; Gregory, lg.; Strautz, lt.; Nirider, le. The starting backfield will be composed of a last-minute selection from the following backfield men: Smith, Way, Mitchell, Hanson, Hay, Parmenter, Arnold and Junod.

THE OBSERVER

We'll start out by telling you that our victim this week is a senior. She has pretty brown eyes and dark brown hair. We might add that she seems to possess a weakness for Latin. Recently it was necessary for her to be absent from school because of burns received when a kettle of boiling water spilled on her foot.

Here is the cheery smile that greets each and every buyer of hot-dogs at the Friday afternoon football games. You can also find her at the Sally Bell bakery after 4 p. m.

The 3 WISE MEN

—ARE ANCIENT HISTORY

It's a fact—and it's high time we men faced it.

Taken by-and-large, there isn't a more generally intelligent, wholesomely interested,* ACCURATELY INFORMED group of people in the world than the modern American housewives.

Even there, we do them an injustice. They've made "housewives" as antique as an antimacassar (whatever THAT was!) and we have to admit "homemakers" expresses what they REALLY are a lot better. Men who understand the women of today (commercially, at any rate) will tell you this: "feminine intuition" went by the boards with the rest of the old-fangled ideas.

Today, the woman with a top-ranking as Homemaker is a clever budgeteer. She reads the NORTHVILLE RECORD and believes what she finds there—and, what's more, follows its information when she sets out to buy!

SCHOOL TAKES PART IN EDUCATION WEEK

their everyday lessons, some reference to the topics designated for each day. They are: Nov. 11, "The School and the Citizen;" Nov. 12, "The School and the State;" Nov. 13, "The School and the Nation;" Nov. 14, "The School and Social Changes;" Nov. 15, "The School and Country Life;" Nov. 16, "The School and Recreation;" Nov. 17, "Education and the Good Life."

Democracy Theme

The National Education association, the United States office of Education, and the American Legion selected the school and democracy theme believing that it reflected the determination of the American people to retain and improve principles of self-rule in the face of social disaster which has checked the progress of popular government in older countries of the world. Last year, approximately 6,000,000 people in 4,000 communities took part in the exercises.

The mayors of many cities have given their cooperation to the movement by proclaiming the week set aside for the educational purposes. H. H. Burkart, president of the village of Northville, issued the following proclamation:

"Education is the foundation upon which we build. Too much stress cannot be placed upon the need of every child being given the opportunity to obtain a higher education.

"Our youth of today hold the future of the nation in their hands. The strength and greatness of our country depends entirely upon how firm a foundation our boys and girls build. It is advisable to appreciate our schools and to give our support and understanding by working hand in hand with those upon whom we depend to educate our youth.

"It is therefore fitting that under the sponsorship of the United States office of Education, the American Legion, and the National Education association, a week known as American Education Week be set aside each year to emphasize the importance of our public schools.

"Therefore I, Howard H. Burkart, President of the Village of Northville, do hereby proclaim and designate from November 11 to November 17 as American Education Week and respectfully request that all citizens observe it accordingly."

HOWARD H. BURKART,
Pres. Village of Northville.

AUXILIARY PRESIDENT STRESSES DRIVE FOR LARGE MEMBERSHIP

"Ability of the auxiliary to continue and expand its work depends upon its membership strength," Catherine Johnston, president, declared. "Every eligible woman who believes that the ideals and principles of American democracy should be defended and perpetuated should be in the auxiliary this year lending her strength to the work. Every woman who enrolls in the auxiliary for 1936 will be strengthening the cause of American democracy against the forces seeking its overthrow.

"The Lloyd H. Green unit of the auxiliary is now enrolling its members for the year ahead. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of the men who defended democracy in the World War are eligible and we hope that all of them in Northville will come into the auxiliary where they can stand with the men of the American Legion in defense of democracy against its peace-time enemies."

Expansion and improvement of the work for the disabled World War veterans in accordance with the program adopted by the national convention in St. Louis last month is being stressed. According to Mrs. Bessie Blowers, rehabilitation chairman, the first project of the year will be the Armistice Day boxes which will be given to every veteran in the Maybury sanatorium.

Auxiliary members are requested to bring home-made cookies and confectionery for the boxes to Freydl's store Saturday, Nov. 9

SCHOOL TAKES NAMES OF AVIATION GROUND SCHOOL APPLICANTS

Only 12 applicants, all with one exception in the high school here have as yet indicated interest in the proposed night school aeronautics class. School officials have set 15 as the least number of names that will be necessary before the application can go to the Michigan Board of Aeronautics at Lansing.

Monday has been named as the probable deadline on which applicants may give their name to the school. One Farmington resident has indicated interest, and it is expected that others in Farmington and Plymouth, as well as persons outside of school in Northville will apply before the first of next week.

The application for a night school session to teach ground lessons in aviation must be made to the Michigan Board of Aeronautics, with sufficient evidence of interest on the part of the citizens, before such a course can be set up.

PRAISES HIGHWAY BEAUTY

The width of the right-of-way along many of Michigan's highways was praised by Dr. John M. Gries in a recent speech. The work done in keeping weeds and brush cut on road shoulders, the general landscaping program on the main highways, and the provision of roadside tables and fireplaces were also favorably commented upon by Dr. Gries, who said, however, that in a trip of a few hundred miles in southern Michigan he counted 1312 billboards...

Radio Dramatist Presents Big Forest Estate To Public

ONE of the most beautiful woodland estates in Eastern Canada has been deeded to the Province of Ontario by its owner, Merrill Denison, creator and director of outstanding dramatic features for both the National and Columbia Radio Broadcasting Systems. The estate, known as Bon Echo, comprises about 10 square miles of lake and forest country in the heart of eastern Ontario, 60 miles northeast of Belleville which is on the main motor highway between Toronto and Montreal. The property is conservatively estimated to be worth $500,000.

In offering the gift to Ontario, Mr. Denison requested that it be used both as an experimental forestry station and as a summer recreation area for residents of and visitors to the province. Premier Mitchell Hepburn, accepting the gift, has promised Mr. Denison that his wishes will be carried out and has already ordered the erection of a forestry station on the property. The layout shows a portion of the Bon Echo Palisades and (inset) the donor, Merrill Denison.

HAZARDS OF HOME LIFE

(Chesaning Argus)

It was Mark Twain we believe, who used to say that the most dangerous place for anybody to be was in bed, because he had learned from statistics that more people died in bed than anywhere else.

Admiral Carey T. Grayson, head of the Red Cross, has just given out some similar statistics, which are to be taken a little more seriously than Mark Twain's humorous remark. More people are killed each year by accidents in their own homes than are killed on the highways in automobile accidents, the Red Cross has discovered. Last year more than 34,000 lives were lost by such things as falling downstairs, fires, accidental poisoning—usually from taking the wrong pills out of the bath room medicine closet in the dark—and such hazards as lightning, forgetting to turn off the gas, and standing on top of wobbly step ladders.

The Red Cross is starting a campaign for safety in the home. We will do our part by trying not to step on the soap the next time we get out of the bathtub.

A REMEDY NEEDED

(The Dearborn Press)

At a session of the Michigan Conference on Social Work held in Ann Arbor recently, Dr. Robert H. Haskell, superintendent of the Wayne County Training School told those present that although Michigan ranks eighth in population among the states, she is thirty-second in facilities for care of her mentally disabled.

Dr. Haskell told delegates that 1,053 persons who have been committed to State hospitals cannot be admitted because those institutions already are caring for more patients than they were built to accommodate. He pointed out that the problem is particularly acute in Wayne County.

As an organized society it becomes our duty to care for the less fortunate. It is even more obligatory in those cases where persons are in unfortunate circumstances through no fault of their own.

Several months ago the people of the State went to the polls to vote on a bond issue which if approved, would have been augmented with Federal aid funds and the State of Michigan would have been in position to build more adequate housing facilities for persons needing hospitalization.

Opponents of the proposal were concerned only with immediate taxes. They could not see into the future far enough to realize that the time would be reached when something must be done. That point has been over-reached at the present time. The situation has become so critical at the present time that it can no longer be ignored.

There may yet be a chance to get some federal aid for hospitalization projects. If this fails the people of Michigan will have to bear the total expense within the next few years...

Red Cross Has Busy Year; Statistics Impressive; Services Varied

Figures gathered at random from the year's report of the American Red Cross reveal the magnitude of the work being carried on by that organization.

Red Cross workers assisted 54,265 veterans; 587 Red Cross Public Health nurses paid 921,455 visits to 186,326 patients; 98,441 first aid certificates were issued while 45,693 persons were trained in life-saving. Volunteer workers produced 3,102,843 surgical dressings, with 80,901 volunteers being on active duty throughout the year.

First Aid Treatment Taught Thousands By Red Cross

More than 187,000 certificates showing completion of first aid courses were issued last year by the Red Cross. This shows a gain of 56,000 certificates over the previous year. Approximately 64,200 boys in C.C.C. camps throughout the country passed first aid tests. Since the Red Cross first entered the field of first aid teaching, being one of the first organizations in the world to do so, almost one million persons have been trained in handling emergency treatment.

The annual report of the Red Cross further reveals that more than 327,000 copies of the Red Cross First Aid Handbook have been sold at home and abroad.

Junior Red Cross members increased by 492,000 enrollments during the year which has just passed. Junior members carried on an exchange of correspondence with junior members in 61 other countries having Red Cross Societies.

Last year 3,817,941 persons became members of the Red Cross. The annual roll call takes place each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day.

AMERICA CANNOT LIVE ALONE

(The Rochester Clarion)

"America cannot live alone." This is a statement made recently by a Detroit exporter and how true it is.

There are goods we must import. For we either pay in gold or other goods. We must export in exchange for the goods we need. For our own salvation the channels of trade must be kept open.

We are dependent upon imports for many things used in the production of the automobile, the nation's chief industry that is doing a greater share toward getting the country out of the depths of depression than any industry that we can name at the present time—rubber, tin, linseed oil used on paint jobs, lead and other articles.

All our zinc, asbestos, manganese, jute, silk, coffee, tea, spices, bananas, linen and many other needed articles are not produced here. We are dependent upon imports of chemicals like potash, nitrates and the like. Bristles for our brushes are imported. So, too, is the wood pulp supply for the newspapers.

On the other hand the nation has a great stake in its exports. Shipped abroad annually have been three-fifths of the apple crop and one-third of the American production of lard.

Over 40 per cent of American made typewriters are sold abroad, 25 per cent of our locomotives, 25 per cent of agricultural machinery and 13 per cent of the automobiles manufactured.

We are in an interdependent world and the channels of trade must be kept open.

FIND GREAT NUMBER OF BORERS IN CORN

Severe Losses are Expected Next Year Unless Farmers Use Control

Favorable weather conditions have permitted a great increase in the number of European corn borers in Michigan corn and there is apt to be considerable damage done next year by this insect unless control measures are used, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Heavy infestations of the borer are reported from Huron, Tuscola, Saginaw, Monroe, and other counties. Reports have also been made of the presence of this pest in the more northern corn growing counties. Eighty per cent of the stalks in some fields have been damaged by the tunneling of borers, and 75 per cent of the stalks in some fields were weakened enough so they were broken down by the wind.

A strain of borer resistant corn has been developed at the college but there is not enough seed available so any can be distributed. This resistant corn is being increased as rapidly as possible so seed will be available in a few years.

Control measures to reduce the numbers of borers next spring should include placing in the silo or shredding all stalks, clean fall or early spring plowing, and the collection and burning of all remnants of corn stalks or stubble left in the fields. If any unshredded corn stalks are fed, the portion left uneaten by livestock should be raked up and burned before May 30.

The Carnegie Institution

The Carnegie Institution is a foundation with an endowment of some $22,000,000, most of which was the gift of Carnegie himself. Its purpose is to increase human knowledge and thereby increase human happiness. It has run far ahead of the dreams of Andrew Carnegie and of the trustees who helped him found it.

Istanbul Name Changes

Istanbul is quite accustomed to name changes. Back in 600 B. C. it was called Byzantium. Constantinople, in the year 330, called it New Rome. Then the Turks baptized it Stamboul. For a long time it was called Constantinople, and then the Russians, with venturesome expectations of annexing the city, called it Czargrad. Since the birth of the new Turkish state it has been given the name of Istanbul.

15 TIMES AS MUCH BUSINESS

(The Lowell Ledger)

Japan is said to be doing thirteen times as much business with the Latin American countries as she did three short years ago. She took the cheap goods at low labor cost route back to prosperity. Had we attempted to race her in that we would have had to begun two hundred years ago and trained our huskies to dwarf down their bodies on a little rice and fish a day, do away with most furniture and live in thatched huts without sanitary facilities.

DEER COUNTRY TO HAVE DOUBLE CONSERVATION

In an effort to check the normal increase of violations before and during deer-hunting season the department of conservation next month will double its force of conservation officers in the deer country.

A sum of $5000 was set aside from the Game Protection fund by the state conservation commission at its October meeting to finance the increase of personnel.

Approximately 100 fire wardens and townsmen will be assigned to the deer area to assist regular conservation officers in patrol work.

Limitations

Broadly speaking, the period of limitation is six years. The law states specifically that absence from the district where the offense was committed shall not be taken as any part of the time limitation by law for the commencement of such proceedings.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell the decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of the decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ⅔ of our food decays in our 25 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped [illegible], don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice …

RED CROSS REPORTS BUSY YEAR AIDING DISASTER VICTIMS

Tornadoes, Fires, Hurricanes, Floods, Epidemics Make Record of Year

The American Red Cross assisted sufferers in more disasters throughout the United States during the year ending June 30, 1935 than through any similar period in the peace-time history of the organization, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, revealed recently in commenting on the annual report which has just been released.

"The 128 domestic disasters in which the Red Cross extended aid during the fiscal year exceeded by 56 per cent the average over the past few years," Admiral Grayson said. "Not only was the period heavy in the number of disasters, but the geographical distribution was wide, with 37 States and [illegible] counties affected.

"Through these disasters and times of community distress, the Red Cross assisted 110,000 persons," the Admiral disclosed.

Spectacular service was rendered in many disasters because of the uniqueness of the problems and the far-flung points affected. The work of the National organization covered in the report carries stories of the Morro Castle burning; the trench-mouth epidemic in the beautiful San Luis Valley of Colorado, the great fight over a wide front in the midwest dust bowl against respiratory diseases; floods, hurricanes and tornadoes in many sections of the United States.

In addition to the disasters taking place within the continental limits of this country, Admiral Grayson pointed out that work had been made necessary by disasters in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines, where 15 disasters were recorded in that archipelago. The American Society also assisted the Red Cross of two foreign countries in caring for victims of floods and earthquakes.

The variety of types of disasters called for expert counsel on matters relating to health and nutrition as well as [illegible]. Last year's work [illegible] the value of the structure and administration of the Red Cross disaster relief, the Admiral said, [illegible] constituting [illegible] by Congress to handle this type of National relief.

Expenditures of the Red Cross for relief of [illegible] stricken by disasters within the continental United States amounted to $[illegible]. In addition, $75,000 was sent to the Philippines to assist [illegible] in three major relief operations necessitated by typhoons, $[illegible] to [illegible] Indian earthquake and $[illegible] to [illegible] landslide victims of severe floods [illegible].

The months of February, March, April, May and June were heaviest for tornado disasters. [illegible] occurred throughout the year. Serious fires calling for Red Cross assistance took place during July and December. A devastating explosion took place in Tennessee during April. Most of the hurricanes struck States along the east coast during the fall and early winter.

"All of this assistance to persons in distress," Admiral Grayson pointed out, "was only possible through generous contributions made by citizens in all sections of the country."

Most of this support of the disaster relief service comes from the annual Roll Call held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

The Red Cross has assisted 54,0[illegible]5 veterans in clearing their cases through the U. S. Veterans' Bureau this past year.

FLATTER YOUR WIFE

(Birmingham Eccentric)

Flattery is one of the most deadly of weapons that you can use to get what you want. If you want your wife to make some pies for instance, don't complain about the poor quality of a store pie that she has been serving you. Rather, some evening when you are in the midst of a crowd, praise your wife's cooking ability, especially in making pies. Then invite some of them in for dinner, for one of her excellent pies. Remember the woman who got into a crowded street car, and rather loudly spoke to a friend with her. "I wish that good-looking man would get up and give me his seat." Whereupon ten men fell out of their seats.

WOMAN ASKS OFFICERS TO CONFISCATE SON'S GUN

Conservation officers aren't frequently asked by an owner to confiscate his gun, and so they naturally were surprised by the request of an Iron county woman.

R. C. CAMPAIGNS TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS

Program Inaugurated in Local Chapters to Cut Down Farm and Home Accidents

The American Red Cross has launched a nationwide campaign to eliminate hazards at the home and on the farm that now take an annual toll of nearly 35,000 lives, according to a recent statement by James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations.

"Every Red Cross chapter is being asked to play a part in this campaign," Mr. Fieser said. "The [illegible] will be [illegible]. The children in our schools throughout the country will be given a list of the home hazards and asked to enroll parents or relatives in the fight against them."

Nearly five million men, women, and children were temporarily disabled in the homes of America last year by accidents, officials of the National Safety Council have revealed. Most of the accidents in which persons were killed and injured could have been prevented, according to this safety agency, this fact alone largely motivating the Red Cross drive for accident elimination.

Active cooperation of social, civic, educational, veterans', and other groups has been secured. Red Cross inspection forms or home check lists will be distributed to homes where there are no children with the help of these organizations.

Due to inaccessibility and lack of compensation coverage, little or no pioneering has been done in the field of farm safety, the Red Cross states. However, more people were accidentally killed in agricultural pursuits last year than in any other occupation, making the need for safety education and farm home inspection apparent.

Other agencies now active in the accident prevention field point to the fact that, because of its nearly 13,[illegible] chapters and branches, the Red Cross has a unique opportunity to successfully promote a project of this nature.

Home accidents injure many more than do automobile accidents; they kill nearly as many, claiming an average of about 90 lives daily. In terms of dollars and cents, for the practical minded, home accidents cost more than $1,[illegible] per minute.

Accidents of all types are Public Enemy No. 4. Only three diseases cause as many deaths each year, heart disease, cancer, and cerebral hemorrhage.

"The home is not the place of safety it is commonly supposed to be," said Mr. Fieser in commenting on the new Red Cross service to the community. "The Red Cross, as a part of its chartered obligation to prevent death and alleviate suffering, is conducting this humanitarian program to cut down the mounting toll of avoidable personal injury and death in the homes of the country."

The annual Red Cross roll call, running from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, is one of the means of backing such a campaign. All citizens of the United States are offered the opportunity to join and assist in the work of the organization.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS AT ACCIDENT SCENE STATE POLICE WARN

At the convention of the Michigan Safety and Traffic Directors' association it was stressed that the public should be [illegible]. Sergt. W. G. Needham of the State Police carries out the order. In a letter to the public he says: "How many times have you come upon the scene of a motor vehicle accident at an intersection, found two or more cars all folded up like paper boxes with baggage, seat cushions and personal effects well scattered over the countryside, and the operators arguing bitterly as to who was responsible for the crash? Many times I dare say—altogether too many times.

"This very thing happens hundreds of times daily in (this) community of our state, the only exceptions being those cases where the operators and passengers—some or all—are in no physical condition after the crash to argue as to responsibility. But, generally, if not at the immediate scene then at the nearby doctor's office, the argument continues and waxes hot and loud with neither operator giving a thought to the possibility that there may be other elements entering into this responsibility than just the actions of the drivers.

Note Conditions

"How many of these operators note the visibility, conditions at this intersection, how many or to what extent lack of view because of shrubs, tall grass, buildings, sign boards, etc. contribute to the crash, or the condition of the highways, their width, surface, shoulders, and whether or not there are stop or slow signs, warning signals, etc., and if so, their condition; what the weather and atmospheric conditions were, and, if at night the lighting conditions.

"Those and many other similar facts must be obtained before a complete and intelligent report can be made to the police or sheriff's department later. This report is compulsory, you know, and it must be made within forty-eight hours to the nearest or most convenient officer, in any case where there is an injury or death or in any accident wherein one or more of the vehicles involved cannot be driven away under their own power.

Reports Important

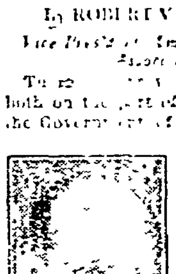
"These reports are forwarded to the Michigan State Police department by all enforcement agencies that they may be compiled and analyzed to determine the numbers and causes of accidents. Many things depend upon these analyses, such as the types of violations which are shown to be principally involved, which are later stressed by the police agencies—in other words, added emphasis is given in enforcement, in the issuance of traffic tickets, warning cards and the like. From the standpoint of the highway engineer, these analyses show where these dangerous locations exist, and how to proceed with their elimination; from the educational standpoint, by showing which and on what type of traffic [illegible] more educational literature should be disseminated.

"If you are unfortunate enough to become involved in one of these catastrophes before you lose your composure, attempt to tear the car [illegible] off the pavement to [illegible] the other operator involved [illegible] the right to [illegible] of these [illegible]. Your [illegible] will [illegible]. And if your [illegible] intelligent, you will be doing your part, not only in helping the officers to eliminate the particular hazard but by helping to make the highways safer."

THE SAME COUNTRY

By ROBERT V. FLEMING
Vice President American Bankers Association

There [illegible] both on the part of the people and the Government of the earnest and sincere efforts being made by bankers to aid in recovery. It is desirable that we miss no opportunity to foster public understanding of the bankers' problems. We are living in an age of complex and upset economic conditions. Our affairs are closely inter-related not only within the confines of our own borders but extend to other countries throughout the world.



R. V. FLEMING

The Greatest Difficulty

I think the greatest difficulty we have to overcome in America today is due to our impatience with the progress we are making towards recovery. We must realize that while the Government can help by effecting some measures for relief and recovery, we must help ourselves by doing our share to give impetus to the Government's efforts. We have the same country and basically the same businesses, factories and people we had prior to the depression, and business initiative must step forward if real recovery is to be achieved.

The theory we often hear expressed that banks create business activity is wrong. Banking can only make a supplementary contribution to business activity. Bankers have the facilities and the desire to extend credit, but business must facilitate activity by seeking the credit which is readily available to all worthy borrowers.

Let it be said for business, however, that business men are as eager as bankers to contribute towards recovery. I think some of the trouble lies in the fact that too many legislative measures have been proposed for reform which leave an uncertainty in the minds of business leaders as to their eventual outcome and effect. Consequently, they hesitate to expand until the probable effects of such legislation are known.

CHANGES URGED IN BANKING ACT

Business Men and Bankers Agree in Objecting to Political Control Over Banks.

AMENDMENTS SUGGESTED

Political Domination of Federal Reserve Board Declared to Be Undesirable for Depositors as Well as Their Banks.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Business men and bankers alike who have appeared before committees of Congress to present views regarding the Banking Act of 1935 have found common cause for criticism in those provisions which they agree would create the means for undesirable political control over the Federal Reserve System and thereby over individual banks throughout the United States. They have made the point that this undesirable condition would affect depositors in banks even more than the banks themselves.

This view has been stressed in criticisms by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the question of partisan control over banking was the central theme of a statement presented by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, who appeared before the Senate Sub-Committee on Banking and Currency hearings here. Mr. Hecht declared that his organization is actuated by a desire to be helpful to Congress "in enacting effective and workable banking legislation in the interest of all our people." He said in part:

"If it is finally decided that it is necessary to carry this legislation through at this session, we are strongly of the opinion that special care should be taken to keep our credit control and banking mechanism free from any sort of political considerations.

"In making this statement I do not wish to appear to question the propriety of the Government's exerting a certain amount of control over banking operations so far as they affect the nation's currency and general monetary policy. Nor do we object to broad powers of supervision over the operation of our banking institutions because of the [illegible] public responsibilities they carry. But [illegible] in granting [illegible] and the making of investments by our banks [illegible] are [illegible] that surely could not be under the sole control of a board so constituted as to be [illegible] political [illegible] upon [illegible] or political considerations under any administration.

The Basis of Sound Credit

"The [illegible] the expansion or contraction of [illegible] credit [illegible] from the needs of [illegible] trade, industry and [illegible], wholly [illegible] of the administrative policies of the party which happens to be in power. We [illegible] that the financial requirements of the nation's business constitute a continuing economic process that is not related to political changes. The fundamental principles of sound credit do not vary with variations in public thought. All experience teaches that the quality of credit is sound only so long as it is based purely on the requirements of sound business. It is not sound when any other considerations or motives enter into its composition.

"The Banking Act would centralize in the Federal Reserve Board at Washington means aimed to control the supply of money in the country, which term includes the sum total of currency in circulation and demand deposits in the banks which become current through checks. The powers which it is proposed to give the Board are intended to enable it to influence the quantity of this deposit money through open market operations, the discount rate and reserve requirements.

The Need for Independence

"That is the reason why we are so strongly in favor of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it would be definitely removed from all political thought, influence and dictation. Its members should be free to study and to act in accordance with the needs and conditions of agriculture, industry and trade. The policies of the board should have no reference to the politics or the changes in policies of the national administration.

"In our studies of the bank bill, we have been strongly impressed with the fact that it would set up a situation under which the Federal Reserve Board and its policies might be subject to control from the political administration of the country. In saying this I do not charge that it is the intention of the present administration to bring about any undue control over the nation's banking mechanism. The point is that if the bill passed as now proposed, opportunity for control would be there for the use of the present or whatever future administration might be in power.

TELLS HOW BANKS AIDED PROGRESS

Economist Describes the Ways Local Institutions Have Contributed to Business Growth

OMAHA, Nebr.—Privately owned banking, despite its faults, has served America well, William A. Irwin, Professor of Economics, Washburn College, Topeka, Kansas, declared in a recent address here on "Banking in a Changing World."

"Under the leadership of individuals banking has helped to bring this country to a foremost place in economic development among the nations of the world," he said. "The small community has been developed by the individual bank. The frontiers of America have been pushed forward by the help and counsel of the individual banker. The shocks of wars and depressions in a century and a half have been withstood with the assistance of the individual banker.

"It may be that we have reached a tide in the affairs of America when new methods are needed. It may be that we have come to a point where the individual should be submerged for the greatest good of the greatest number.

If Change Is Necessary

"It may even be that complete centralization of the banking system has become an economic necessity in our complicated social life. But the banker ought to be satisfied that these things are so before he should give up his right for the system we have known. We came to greatness under that kind of banking; we should not give it up without unmistakable proof of the absolute necessity of such a change."

Professor Irwin said that the proposal which has been advanced for co-ordinating banking operations in the national interest under a 'Supreme Court' for banking is typically American and ought to have the most serious consideration of those [illegible] which are clamoring for political control, which is typically un-American. It is not wise, he said, to oppose change as such, but that bankers should "see to it that change, if and when it does come, shall preserve all that is good in the past and stick as closely as possible to the American pattern of things."

Banking is properly a conservative profession, he pointed out, and should cling to practices and principles of banking that are, and always have been, fundamentally sound.

"It is to the credit [illegible] that so large a group of [illegible] never faltered, even in [illegible], their allegiance to [illegible] principles," he declared. "We probably owe our salvation from chaos to that fact."

"Sol's Path, 1680"

A sign in Northford, Conn., which says "Sol's Path, 1680," marks a colonial house which was built in 1680 or a little earlier—one of the five oldest houses in Connecticut. Solomon [illegible] occupied the house many years ago, and the path that runs by the house over Totoket mountain to North [illegible] was known locally as Sol's Path.

Maidens Sacrificed to the Indian God of War

Human sacrifice to the gods of war may have been widely diffused in North America. Dr. Truman Michelson of the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, has gathered considerable evidence, linguistic and otherwise, that a practice supposedly confined to the Aztecs and to the "Morning Star" rites of the Pawnee may have extended over the eastern part of the continent.

In the Mexican practice the heart of the victim was cut out with a stone knife. The Pawnee ceremony entailed the sacrifice of a maiden.

Doctor Michelson finds the Ojibwa had a specific word, agonakwe, which was translated as "a virgin whom pagan Indians place on an elevated scaffold in order to obtain success in war." The word, Doctor Michelson finds, can be traced back to two roots which would mean "hanging a woman."

From the same references of the missionary journals, it appears that the Hurons burned a maiden at the stake on an elevated platform. It was a sacrifice quite different in principle from the burning of prisoners of war at the stake. Because it attracted so little attention a deduction might be drawn that the ceremony seldom was practiced, or even may have evolved into the symbolic burning of the figure of a maiden before any white men came into contact with it.

Dobermann-Pinscher Is Among the Favored Dogs

The history of the Dobermann-Pinscher breed is usually interesting, as the dog takes his name from the official dog catcher of the city of Apolda in Thuringia, Germany, a man called Dobermann. Having not much to do as dog catcher, Dobermann experimented around, being assisted by his pals, a grave digger and a bell ringer. The product of these activities was called "Bellings," an aggressive dog feared by all. Whenever Dobermann saw the result of his original work, he'd point proudly to "my dog." Thus, says an authority in the Washington Post, they came to be known as Dobermanns. Since then, about 1890, much work has been done with the original Dobermann, crossing and improving until the thoroughbred is the product. Just what dogs were crossed originally for this breed will probably never be known, although there are many theories—Thuringian terriers, herd dogs, pointers, shepherds and others.

Out of this experimenting has evolved the standard that requires the present-day Dobermann Pinscher to have a beautiful wedge-shaped head, with medium sized, intelligent dark eyes and erect ears, clipped to a point. He has a neck of good length, broadening into a well-developed brisket. The tail is closely clipped. The particular beauty of the dog is his close, short, dense coat of a great glossiness. He may be black or with clear and sharply defined tan markings or a symphony of brown and tan.

A YOUNG PIONEER

When several hundred families were sent to Alaska from the Middle West to settle the Matanuska Valley, the Red Cross sent a nurse, Madeleine de Feras, to remain with them for a year to help protect their health. Among the first friends she made were the little pioneer, Arthur Hack 4 years old, and "Prince," the pup who went with his young master to Alaska.
