LOCAL AND GENERAL.

THANKS.—Gratitude is due to Mrs Ward and her family for a nice basket of late peaches.

POTATOES.—Mr. David Clarkson states to us, that from "seed planted in ordinary season, he has just realized 1194 lbs. Early Rose Potatoes. Some weighing as much as 1 lb. and 500 lbs.

SMALL AND DURABLE.—The spikes that are being used by Hutton & Bedford in their carriage shop, are brought here from Grop, Tompkins Co., N. Y. They are manufactured there by Mr. Nelson Perrigo, brother of Elias Perrigo of this place, and are being introduced here have given entire satisfaction.

HUNT RACE.—A little sport was indulged in the afternoon of the 20th of a horse race. Mr. Chas. Hook and Mr. James Connelly matched their horses to run to Plymouth and back, 10 miles, both being harnessed. Connelly's horse came in ahead having made the trip in 44 minutes. States were set up but to no great amount.

PERSONAL.—Rev. J. C. Baker, made us a brief call Thursday. His looks have not been so well, and reports himself as well pleased with his work and his church. The church over which he has charge is in a prosperous condition, a parsonage has just been bought, and paid for at 2,075 dollars. Also a bell, added to the church at 600 dollars.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Hughes & Son have made a sale of their brick store on Main Street, to Mr. Edward Smith a merchant of Maple Rapids, who is about to locate here in the mercantile pursuit. The price agreed upon is $400.

E. S. Horton, disposed of his house, lately built, and lot to Mr. Daniel Pomeroy, receiving $1,300.
House and lot, from E. O. Hastings, to Henry W. Hokomb, for $450.

ACCIDENTS FROM RUNAWAYS.—A few days since while Mrs. Wm. Sessions, was driving to the village when her horse became frightened at her parasol, ran away overturning the carriage and dislocating her shoulder.

Mrs. Sheldon Root, and a sister of her husband, Mrs. Barbour were driving on the road when their horse became frightened at the carcass of a cow lying near the road, and at once became unmanageable, rearing the carriage against a bump, paralyzing both ladies to the ground, where they lay some time in an insensible state, before being discovered, and finally had to be carried home on beds.
Medical aid being summoned, it was ascertained that Mrs. Barbour was so injured by concussion that one side of her body was paralyzed. Although Mrs. Root sustained no severe injuries, they were both of so serious a nature. All are under Dr. Honston's care, and as we write are reported as recovering slowly.

A TRIP WESTWARD.

In our last we gave our readers a sketch of Buchanan, and now we will speak of the smaller, but no less enterprising village of MATTAWAN.

This is a pleasant little town of about 600 inhabitants, situated on the M. C. R. R., 156 miles west of Detroit, and like many others villages on the road owes its existence to the completion of the Michigan Central Road. Here are two churches, a Baptist, pastor, Rev. J. W. Goslin, Congregational, pastor, Rev. Mr. McFarlan.

Two Hotels—"WILLARD HOUSE," proprietor, J. W. Willard, and Bro. "BROOKS," proprietor, L. Mathews. Two Dry Goods, two Drug and one Grocery Store. One Millinery, one Dress Making, two Boot and shoe, one Harness, three Blacksmith, and one Wagon Shop. One Planing Mill. Dentists, McFar-lan & Bro. Three Physicians.

During the past year several new buildings have been erected, among which was a nice dwelling house by Dr. Henry Briggs, who is also putting another frame building to be used as a store. Van-ochian & Fitch have in an advanced stage of erection, a brick block, which when completed will prove a valuable acquisition to the growth of the place.

A fine looking brick School House was put up about two years since at a cost of $600. The attendance is large. The board employ a principal and two assistants. Following are those for the ensuing year: Principal, Mr. M. Darling; Intermediate, Miss Lucia A. Darling; Primary, Miss Laura Woodhall.

During our stay in the village we were very hospitably entertained by one of its citizens, Mr. J. B. Adams, to whom and family we return our sincere thanks.

A DEATH-BED PROMISE.

There came a time, however, when Philip's vacillating purpose became fixed, though probably in an opposite direction to what the real balance of his confused feelings indicated him. On a quiet winter evening he and Honor met once again. It might be she was kinder to him than usual, or he himself more susceptible. However, that might be, her beauty and the scarcely concealed favor with which she regarded him so far conquered, that before they parted he had asked her to become his wife. And on the morrow, while his mind was filled with conflicting emotions of love and remorse, Honor wrote to him consenting. It made him very happy, of course. Poor Philip Stanton!

He had taken a step, however, which seemed irrevocable, he had rushed blindly on to the end. Like a man engaged in the commission of a crime, he resolutely evaded reflection on the course he was pursuing, though he could not prevent his thoughts from playing at a distance, as it were, round the forbidden point. An incessant labor he endeavored to escape self-examination, indemnifying himself with long evenings of delicious companionship, when conscience, which should then have stung the sharper, was laid to sleep by the all-powerful blandishments of the hour.

After a while the marriage day was fixed, and the preparations for it were begun. The fact was whispered about, and reached the ears of Philip's housekeeper; but strangely enough that ready tongue of hers was mute, though her feelings were anything but placid, to her own satisfaction.

One evening, after a long dispute about some intended matrimonial arrangement, Honor suddenly remarked: "By the way, Philip, what was the nature of the promise you made your late wife? I have received a curious anonymous letter about you, which I suppose I ought to show you."

Philip's face grew white; he was not able to affect unconcern, the onset was so unexpected and so deadly. He remained silent, breathing hurriedly like a man in pain.
Honor was rather startled when she observed the effects produced by her words, and said: "I am sorry, dear Philip, if I have grieved you by my question, but I have indeed received a letter containing some vague accusation or other against you—I give not the slightest credence to it, however, neither do I ask you to explain anything, if you do not wish to be disagreeable, you can trust you Philip."
"You have trusted me, Honor, more than I deserve," said Philip; "let me look at the letter."
She handed it to him; it contained but a few words penned evidently by an illiterate person, and ran thus: "You are about to be married to Philip Stanton, I hear. You have no right to him. Ask him about the promise, the oath he took to his wife who is dead. God will visit you both." There was no signature. Philip read it thrice, and lingered over it, as though endeavoring to take some resolution in his own mind. He looked at Honor at last, and said:

"Could you marry me, Honor, if you knew I had broken a promise, such as the letter mentions?"

Honor trembled a little; but after a short pause smilingly said: "Well, perhaps I could, provided it were not a very bad case."
"A death-bed promise—an oath," said Philip.

The lady was silent for a moment, and her eyes began to fill with tears. "What have you been doing, Philip?—What do you mean? Must you break an oath in marrying me?"
"I must," groaned Philip. "I promised my wife on her death-bed not to marry again. She had no right—I feel it now—to impose such a burden upon me. I had no right to pledge myself; but I did. It is irrevocable; no one can relieve me of it."

"I will not marry a man who has perjured himself," said Honor. "You have been cruel to tempt me so far for this, I cannot marry you now, Philip," she repeated; and covering her face with her hands, she sobbed bitterly, and left the room. Philip, too, stole away, crushed and miserable; in his own eyes, hopelessly dishonored.

Truth, loyalty, self-respect, you are but thin shades dwelling in a human breast, slightly esteemed, seemingly of little power; but when you depart, the pillars of the world seem to have fallen in, so weak and desolate are our lives without you.

If Philip had been less scrupulously honorable, if in his heart he had attached as little weight to the promise made to his wife as his recent course implied, he need not have seen his hopes fall in ruin about him as they now appeared to do. It was not that he lacked the ingenuity to avert it. It had crossed his mind, of course, to deny the vague accusation contained in that miserable scrawl, to impute malice and falsehood to the writer. Who was to know what transpired between him and his wife at such an hour?
And Honor Westwood would have been a lenient judge, although in her secret heart she had believed him guilty; but when confronted with offense, conscience re-asserted itself and constrained him to submit the truth.
(CONCLUDED IN OUR NEXT.)

OUR ABSENCE.—Our absence during the past week, has been for a week of my friend last Tuesday, left Lansing to pay a visit to our friend S. H. Little of Northville, the publisher of the Wayne County Record at that place. Northville, which is in the north-west corner of Washtenaw county, is one of the prettiest villages we have seen for some time. Plymouth another village pleasantly located, five miles south.
Both of the above named places, are on the line of the Tolly, Wayne & Monroe Railroad, which is well under way, and will soon be completed. Two stages leave Northville daily for Wayne, (the best of which being Corrigan & Biddle's) and they both do a good business. A stage also leaves daily for Detroit. This beautiful village contains three churches, which speaks well indeed for only about twelve hundred inhabitants. We, in company with Mr. Little and wife, spent a very pleasant day at Whittemore Lake, which day will never be forgotten by us. The Record, which is yet in its infancy, is bound to be supported by its enterprising citizens. Mr. Little and wife, will please accept our thanks for the kind hospitality shown us during our stay there; and may the Record wave on with unbounded success.—LANSING ESTERLINE.

MR. BOUTWELL AND THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

We notice that the democratic press throughout the country are railing on the on the finance subject, and should judge that Mr. Boutwell, would feel inclined to get hold of any thing but a democratic paper. A great many ways are shown whereby the public debt could be paid in a short time. Each editor, and in fact, every man in the land, has an idea, which, in his opinion, if followed, would be the most expeditious and complete method of ridding the country of the debt that now burdens it. Mr. Boutwell can not, of course, adopt every plan suggested and therefore can but take his own course. No man could occupy the high position he now fills, without being capable of taking a judicious course in the disposal of the duties involved upon him. As regards partyism, we stand aloof advocating neither one side or the other, but when publicly speaking of officials or any individual, we take the man just, as he is and if deserving show him up to be so, irrespective of party. In the case of the present incumbent of the Treasury, we think that the course he is pursuing in the payment of the public debt, is full as good as could be wished for, and that our country will be just as soon out of debt after following his ways, as it would under any other man. We would say the same were he a democrat instead of a republican. In referring to the financial matter he says: "If in these four years, exhausted as we have been by war, we have been able to pay 25 or 33 per cent. of the public debt, shall we hesitate as to our course for the next few years? If we were to pay $160,000,000 a year, which we can pay, if the present system of taxation be permitted to remain, the public debt will be extinguished in less than 14 years. If $500,000,000 a year, which we can do at a decreased taxation, the interest-bearing public debt will be extinguished in 22 years, and if we pay but $26,000,000 a year, and reduce taxation, as we may, to a very large degree, the interest-bearing debt will be extinguished in 30 years. It is astonishing that under these circumstances there should be any question among any class of people as to what the course of the country should be."

NEW AND POPULAR SONG

"ANGEL-GLEAD YOUR TREASURES HERE." Sold for this Popular Song and by the press and public, to be a perfect gem in the Musical Art. Orders are being received from nearly every State in the Union. The words of the last verse are: Near the streamlet's margin mother, Where the water gently glides, Neath the willows mournful shadow, Two green graves lie side by side, While the sweetest flowers of summer, There perfume the balmy air, Yet above our darling's wait us, In a land divinely fair,
