selfish to secure his fees from all, thus renders valueless the production of the entire party.

These difficulties that beset the steps of the inventor are well known to the capitalist to whom he applies for aid; and so want of capital denied him on the one hand, and the want of honesty on the other, he loses heart and hope. Just here comes into view the value of competent, honest counsel to the inventor.

The proper wording and presentation of an application for a patent, so as to make secure his claim, is as important to the party making it as the invention itself. Our laws for the protection, and office for the examination of patents, are the best in the world; yet both show human imperfection. It is often as needful that the party making application should be informed as to what he might have granted him, did he request it, that he has not claimed, as to secure so much what he does ask for; therefore, the necessity of a carefully worded patent upon an invention, drawn up from examination by a competent party. And this verdict the applicant should secure before he goes or sends to Washington.—Chicago Bureau.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The message of the President of the United States to Congress was read to that assembly on Monday 6th, inst.

One of the principal themes in which his views are presented, showing the relations that exist between two nations at peace with one another, and the policy that must be conformed to in order to keep up a strictly neutral standing, is given in the following which we publish entire.

As the United States is the freest of all nations, so, too, its people sympathize with all people struggling for liberty and self-government, but while so sympathizing, it is due to our honor that we should abstain from enforcing our views upon unwilling nations, and from taking an interested part without invitation in the quarrels between nations, or between governments and their subjects. Our course should always be in conformity with strict justice and law, international and local. Such has been the policy of the Administration in dealing with these questions for more than a year. A valuable province of Spain and a near neighbor of ours in whom all our people cannot but feel a deep interest has been struggling for independence and freedom. The people of the United States entertain the same warm feelings and sympathies for the people of Cuba in their pending struggle that they manifested throughout the previous struggles between Spain and her former colonies in behalf of the latter, but the contest has at no time assumed the conditions which amount to a war in the sense of international law, or which would show the existence of a De Facto political organization of the insurgents sufficient to justify a recognition of belligerency. The principle is maintained, however, that this nation is its own judge when to accord the rights of belligerency either to a people struggling to free themselves from a government they believe to be oppressive, or to independent nations at war with each other. The United States have no disposition to interfere with the existing relations of Spain with her colonial possessions on this continent. They believe that in due time Spain and other European powers will find their interest in terminating those relations and establishing their present dependencies as independent powers and members of the family of nations. These dependencies are no longer regarded as subject to transfer from one European Power to another. When the present relations of colonies ceases they then become independent powers, exercising the right of choice and self-control in the determination of their future condition and relations with other powers. The United States in order to put a stop to bloodshed in Cuba and in the interest of a neighboring people, proposed their good offices to bring the existing contest to a termination. The offer not being accepted by Spain, on a basis which we believed could be received by Cuba, was withdrawn. It is hoped that the good offices of the United States may yet prove advantageous for the settlement of this unhappy strife. Meanwhile a number of illegal expeditions against Cuba have been broken up. It has been the endeavor of the Administration to execute the neutrality laws in good faith, no matter how unpleasant the task, made so by the suffering we have endured from lack of like good faith towards us by other nations.

TO THE WORKING CLASS.

We are now prepared to furnish all classes with constant employment at home, the whole of the time or for the spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50c. to $3 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting their whole time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this notice may send their address, and test the business, we make this unparaleled offer. To such as are not well satisfied, we will send them a valuable sample, which will do to commence work on, and a copy of THE PEOPLE'S LITERARY COMPANION—one of the largest and best family newspapers published—all sent free by mail. Reader, if you want permanent, profitable work, address E. C. ALLEN & CO., A. CORNER, MADISON.

The Trustees herewith present their 5th annual announcement to the patrons of the School and to all who may be interested in Educational matters. We feel much gratification in the high position which this Institution has attained, and in the success which has attended our efforts hitherto. We hereby tender our thanks for the liberal patronage heretofore received, and trust that the School will merit its full proportion the coming year.

1st Term commences September, 6th 1869. Closes December, 3rd 1869. 2nd Term commences December, 6th 1869. Closes April, 1st 1870. 3rd Term commences April, 11th 1870. Closes June, 24th 1870.

With a New Corps of Teachers, whose successful experience and high recommendations are a guarantee that the grade and excellence which the School has attained, will be fully maintained in all the departments, including Ornamentals and Languages, Ancient and Modern.

The attention of Students wishing instruction in the higher branches, or desiring a course preparatory to entering College is invited to the facilities here offered, and which we believe are second to none in the country.
