WALLING LEAVES.

Flung the curtains back,
And the sunbeams came,
With a smile and a look,
That was full of love and shame.
The shadows were cast,
On the wall and the floor,
And the light was so bright,
That it made me feel more.

Selected Miscellany.

FRANK CHESTER'S DESTINY.

Frank Chester was a boy,
Who had a heart as true as steel,
And a mind that was as clear as glass,
And a soul that was as pure as gold.

Which he looked hoarsely, as while

She looked at his hair,
Which she had seen before,
And she said to herself,
"How strange it were,
If I had known you were there."

THE $100,000 PRIZE.

All Brokered Hunting for the Man
Who made $100,000 by Investing Six
A Promise in a Sweetheart in France
to be Paid in Paris.

From New York Standard.
The publication of the story yesterday
of the man who had made $100,000
by investing six months of his life in a French girl, has excited a great interest among the mercantile classes of Wall street and the adjacent boroughs, especially when it is remembered that the man in question is a native of New York.

The Value of Paris.

The London Economist reckons up the value of property which is destroyed annually in Paris by a fire, and states that it amounts to about $2,000,000, which, capitalized at about twelve per cent, represents a sum of $24,000,000, or nearly twice
the value of the city.

The metropolis, says the writer with a population of 3,400,000, has a value of about $2,000,000, which, capitalized at about twelve per cent, represents a sum of $24,000,000, or nearly twice
the value of the city.

A French correspondent sends this story
from Lyons:
A curious anecdote is told of French religion, as some people will call their religion, which, with its arrangement of wheels within wheels, has succeeded so far in its endeavor to reach the hearts of the people.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 26, 1870

HOLLY WAYNE AND MONROE RAILROAD.

A general sketch of its history. In the spring 1865, the "enabling act" for the Holly, Wayne and Monroe Railway Line was passed by the Legislature.

However much may be said as to the "competency" of management, expediency of conception and skilfulness of officers, one fact stands as a complete vindication of the foresight, financial acumen and enterprise of its friends.

It is said that "every reform has its martyrs." It is also true of this enterprise. Our town has the credit of its inauguration, and it is entitled to the credit of bearing a heavy (if not the heaviest) burden during these years of varied experiences.

It has been much easier to find fault, and to ridicule what were called FAILURES, than to struggle with an unwavering purpose, through sunshine and storm, against adverse circumstances, and what seemed to be almost fate.

Helping not to merit the displeasure of some gentlemen who have modestly labored, without compensation (to whose efforts, mainly, we are indebted for our grand success, at home and abroad, in private management, public councils, and sharp negotiations; we take the liberty to mention the names of Dr. J. M. Swift, who, it will be remembered, carried the bill through the legislature, and J. S. Lapham, the treasurer of the company. Both have been zealous workers.

Also, J. J. Thompson, F. R. Beal, Edward Simonds, Judge Yerkes, and W. P. Hargraves, who have been conspicuous. They have exhibited, not only patience and perseverance, but profound ability. We surely are not saying too much, when we remind our readers, that to them they owe a lasting debt of gratitude.

We would like to speak of effective workers at other points on the line. Our friends C. H. Beal and M. Conner of Plymouth, and J. L. Andrews of Milford need no mention here to make known their deeds. We would also gladly give a chapter on ANZAKA, (for such there are) who, while having a busy life, at the spirit that bears a burden proportionate to benefits received, but space forbids.

Finally, we accord to the people great credit for liberality and enterprise. This has promise of reward, in securing the only thing necessary to make the beautiful country tributary to the line of the road, among the most desirable, wealthy and intelligent in this, or any other state.

Our own village, with a site of surpassing beauty, healthy, with its churches, schools and intelligence, its rich and highly cultivated surroundings—its water power and manufacturing facilities; presents advantages which can not fail to invite an influx of population. No more desirable location and that within an hour (by rail) of Detroit, can be found any where. Then ring the bells! fire the cannon! send up bonfires! Three cheers for Holly Wayne and Monroe!!!

We would assure those who may have imagined that the firm's cannon here, on the evening of the 18th, was the indication of the summary manner in which our "home guards" would treat the rebels in case of another war, that it was simply a rejoicing over the ratification of the contract between the F. & M. and our road.

Vanderpool Trial.

A month has nearly elapsed since Vanderpool's second trial began, and until the case is no longer a question than at the commencement, Saturday 19th the jury, who had been chosen for over 22 hours, announced a verdict of acquittal, standing for conviction, and to the acquittal, the counsel for the prisoner on behalf of the charge of the prisoner on bail. The result looks encouraging for Vanderpool, for it certainly is a gain upon the former as a result of state trial, and the chances are that at a second trial a jury unanimous for his discharge.

It is not my intention to injure the trade or run the market at all, but to sell goods to cash buyers, at cash prices. Heretofore cash buyers have paid as much for goods as those who buy upon long credit, which is all wrong. In the future it will be my aim to protect the interest of cash buyers, and for so doing, I hope to have a share of the public patronage. Quick sales and small profits is the true way to do business.
