

The Northville Record

SATURDAY, AUG. 24, 1878.

Gen. Grant appears to be the strongest name now mentioned in connection with the next Presidency, for the reason that it is believed by both parties that some of the Southern States would support him.

It would seem from Grant's declaration that he did not desire a second term. He is reported to have said recently that he was "heavily tired of public life and did not desire to re-enter it." And also that he considered it a great mistake in his having resigned command of the U. S. Army for the Presidency.

STATE NEWS.

The three flooring mills of Constantine are making and shipping over 100 lbs. of floor daily, making a market of 1,500 bushels of wheat per day.

The Saginaw Courier says that the Saugatuck & Elora mill has cut 3,000,000 feet of lumber so far as has been enough to keep busy the rest of the season.

The Detroit fire commissioners report 56 building permits granted in July; estimated cost of buildings $125,700.

Chapman of Lodiington heard some one trying to get in the house the morning of Aug. 12, and her husband being sick, she went quietly down stairs, and seeing a man entering the window she fired and shot him through the breast. He ran a few steps and fell dead. He proved to be one Wm. Hartnett, a laborer.

The Saginaw Courier says that a prouter up there went hunting Sunday and killed a rat 16 inches long, thinking at the time that it was a puma.

The Ypsilantians are getting terribly moral. A baker there was recently fined $5 and costs for selling bread on Sunday.

Down the Potomac.

Correspondence, Northern Record, Washington D. C., Aug. 22.—Undoubtedly many readers of the Record, particularly those who were in the war, are familiar with the grand old Potomac. Upon its waters our Washington people take comfort, and excursions up and down the river are a daily occurrence. One of the many points of interest within a pleasure excursionist's easy reach from here is Fortress Monroe, on Chesapeake Bay. Aside from the great fort and its accessories there is nothing more attractive there than at any place where there are fine bathing facilities. I should also have excepted the Government Navy Yard. The residences of the Navy and Fortress officials are fine buildings and so are, in fact, all the houses to be seen in the town save the huge hotel and the cabins of the colored people. The bathing and fishing are good and on these accounts it has come to be quite a summer resort. The Fort itself is massive and vast that would be impossible to attack it with any effect. The most always filled with water, the granite walls, the drawbridges and the huge guns pointed threateningly outward, all speak of strength and resistance well inconquerable.

The sail down the river on any occasion is an exceptionally beautiful one. For the first 12 miles the Capitol and Washington Monument are visible. Then Alexandria is passed, an old historic city, dilapidated now and ruinous looking. Christ Church, where George Washington worshipped, can be seen from the boat as it passes. Soon after Alexandria is passed Ft. Foote is reached and before many miles Ft. Washington, both very strong fortresses. Then comes Mt. Vernon, a lovely place and interesting to all people and nations under the sun. Mt. Vernon, should be, and generally is, the first place for tourists to visit out of Washington. Indeed, besides the Capitol and White House, we would sooner see Mt. Vernon than any of the thousand and one places strangers to Washington make a point of visiting.

Olive.

The Tom Cat.

The cat is composed of a peculiar composition, similar to India rubber, the exact combination of the material is one of the best arts. I dropped a cat out of a five story window on Broadway once, and it bounded up about a rod and landed, on his feet. He didn't even feel the fall if any bones were broken; he simply glanced at the lamp post on the corner, and read the name of the street to get his bearings, and then sailed away as gracefully as though he had just got out of a cage. It is wonderful how far a cat will tumble and not break.

Cats have a tail built into them at the after end. In repose it is about the size of a broom handle, but when excited the owner has the power of blowing it up to about the size of a Bologna sausage, and when crooked in the air it gives the cat a very graceful appearance. The principle uses of the tail to the domestic cat are few.

Their memories are poor, and they forget and leave their tails round on the floor for people to step on. One of the chief delights a cat experiences is in getting its tail under the rocker of a chair just in season to catch the whole weight of the chair at the come down.

To get the pure, unadulterated cat, one needs to go to the city and make the acquaintance of the Tom cat. There's more life to the square inch in the city Tom cat than can be found anywhere else, having a piece of cheese. There he flourishes, in all his native vigor. There his cat-like qualities find full play.

There he creeps, There he fights, There he yells, On moonlight nights, Climbing fences, dodging boats, Also bullfrogs as he sees, From the chimney to the gutter, Down escalator to the blower, Into the garden plot.

That:

The Tom cat and the street lamp attend to the business chiefly at night. Daytime they are more ornamental than useful. Sprawling around the stove, basking in the sun, he passes away the day in sleep. As the night approaches he braces up, and starts out to attend to business. He has no friends. Every cat he meets is an enemy. He meets the enemy and they are his, or he is theirs: it is as often one way as the other. As soon as he sees the foe he arches his back, inflates his tail and sounds the war cry. Tails about the town alarm the Tom cat's call in a voice that gives him the belt for hideous noises. The enemy near each other; there is not a clash of arms exactly, but there is an interlocking and braiding of legs, two lumps of animated hair go into the air and come down onto the ground and roll over, and claw and scratch, and fur flies, and it flies fur, and they scratch faces, and they face scratch, and they yowl, and howl, and bite and tear for a few moments, and then snarl their legs and sit and look at each other for a minute, and collect their scattered senses, and try and discover what particular portion of their anatomy is missing, and then both at the same instant turn and annihilate space in opposite directions, with a unanimity of thought that is wonderful in a dumb animal.

The Saginaw Courier says that a prouter up there went hunting Sunday and killed a rat 16 inches long, thinking at the time that it was a puma.

The Ypsilantians are getting terribly moral. A baker there was recently fined $5 and costs for selling bread on Sunday.

When you find that you are on the wrong track, retreat and switch off. Be sure you are right, then go ahead, and great will be your REWARD.

No longer is the Poor Man obliged to pay the debts of the Rich man by paying high prices for the necessities of life. No longer is the poor man that pays Cash for the comforts of his home, obliged to pay for the style and fashion of his neighbor.

High Prices died and were buried with the credit system. Hereafter the undersigned, believing it far better, both for them and their customers, will sell Groceries and Provisions for CASH. We must and will have C. O. D. for what we do, etc., and we assure all who may favor us with their patronage that we will sell for the lowest possible living prices.

We quote below a few of the changes in prices and assure all that there will be no deviation from these prices in the future, only in the fluctuation of the market, and we will warrant every thing we sell.

ADAMS' "PLANET" BUZZ-SAW, PATENTED DEC. 1875.

Adapted to sawing Shingle-Bolts and Stove-Wood. The peculiarity of the saw is that it revolves around the log being sawed, thereby cutting off a log of the same diameter of the saw—less the collar.

The machine is easy to handle, saws rapidly and is simple in construction.

Augustus B. Taylor has fitted up the photograph gallery over Randolph's store and proposes to work up a business in that line. He had considerable experience in such work and can give good satisfaction.

Encouraging reports are had from the Kalamazoo aqueduct relative to Mrs. Hungerford's condition and it is improbable that she may be considered so far recovered as to deem her return to her home advisable.

H. R. Chope, Water Works Reservoir, Detroit, wants to buy (or exchange) a good family horse, between age of 5 and 7 years; must be sound and a good driver. A bar gain can be made by addressing him as above.

The wife of George Hill, living a few miles out, died Tuesday morning about 2 a.m. She had been in poor health and during the heavy shower last week Wednesday received a shock which seemed to affect her, as she never left her bed after.

The Misses Sage, Matie and Mary, started last Thursday for their home in Le Roy, N. Y. The young ladies have made Northville their home for the past two or three years, and during that time have succeeded in gaining the esteem of all who know them.

Any person waiting for trains at Northville and desiring a good meal or lunch during meantime, will find such at Mr. Atwood's restaurant, but a few steps from the depot. Everything is neat about the premises and one can enjoy a meal at about one half the price charged at a hotel.

Why Not?

If the ladies all say so, it must be so, for ladies are competent judges of sewing machines, and the New Light-Running American Sewing Machine has proved to be the ladies' friend without a fault. The only machine with a self-setting needle and self-threading shuttle. Try one. Do not be behind the times.

A Party at Morrell Simmons.

In compliance with invitations, a large number of young ladies and gentlemen wended their way to the residence of Morrell Simmons, last Wednesday evening; and upon their arrival they were met and cordially welcomed by the Misses Simmons, Adah and Metta. The evening entertainment consisted of music, games and dancing and at an early hour the company doled their shawls and hats, and with happy hearts and smiling countenances, they started for their separate homes, well pleased with their evening frolic.

Improvements in Mason.

Correspondence of Dr. Remond:

While in Mason, a town situated on the Jackson & Saginaw R. R., a few days since, we were pleased to note the many changes which had taken place within the past year in the business interests of that thriving city. Mason is the County seat of Ingham, and has a population of nearly three thousand inhabitants, the greater part of whom take pride in the prosperity of the place. Without a doubt, Mason has as many visitors as any other city of its size in the state, the manufacturing interests society and hotel accommodations being all that one can desire.

Mason has one of the best Republican papers in the state, which is owned and published by Otto Fuller & Co. Mr. Fuller, the enterprising editor of this paper, has, through his gentlemanly and business like manner gained a large list of friends and patrons. At this office will also be found a first class job printer, H. K. Dean, formerly of Chicago.

The Donely house, kept by H. J. Donely, is the most prominent hotel in the place, being within a short distance of the business interests of the town. This house was built and furnished by Mr. Donely in 1859 and has been under his management ever since. Mr. D. is a man thoroughly competent to fill the position of landlord, and he is said to be giving the best of satisfaction.

Our Washington Letter.

Washington, Aug. 20, 1878.

Washington Correspondent.

Bumonit is, no doubt, to the effect that a speedy change in President Hayes' Cabinet is to take place.

Attorney General Devens to be replaced by Secretary of Navy, Thompson.

Political circles here are drawing from

Mr. Hayes' assertion that he is determined to make his administration notable in at least one respect.

This is what he says: "The relations between all the Cabinet members and myself have been from the first, and are entirely harmonious and pleasant and it is one of my ambitions, so far as I am concerned, that my administration shall be notable as one whose

Cabinet was co-existent with it,
