When the potatoes are dug the danger to be apprehended from poisoned tops will decrease, but will not disappear. We should not dare to allow stock to feed along the edges of a potato patch, for fear the poison used on them had been thrown or blown upon the ground and consumed.

States that as soon as the potato tops are pulled they should either be buried or piled up and burned.—Mirror and Farmer.

Death of Mrs. Simonds.

The wife of Eli K. Simonds died at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Sept.

20th, aged 49 years.

She had what was termed dropsy of the heart, and during her illness frequently suffered acutely. Notwithstanding her suffering condition she would endeavor to be cheerful, welcoming her friends with the old-time smile, and exhibiting an interest in the welfare of those about her. The news of her death, although daily expected, was received with expressions of the deepest sorrow and sympathy.

Her beloved husband, who had shared her joys and made happy her life during their married period, is deeply prostrated with grief in consequence of her death. Her mother, Mrs.

Kidder, and sister, Mrs. C. E. Hall, also left home and were deeply smitten at their loss; but they have this consolation, that though such loved ones are taken from our view, leaving a void in our homes and our hearts, there is a realm where the beautiful beings who pass before us, like shadows, will remain forever in our presence.

Death of Benjamin Gardner

Benjamin Gardner, died Friday,

Oct. 3rd. The funeral was held Sunday at the Presbyterian church, Rev.

James Dugan preaching the sermon.

"Uncle Ben" as he was familiarly called, had been a patient sufferer for several years past.

Send the Missionaries to Adria.

One of the fatally injured persons at the Adrian death-trap was a Chinaman, who was in partnership with another of the race in the laundry business in that city. While the one in charge of the shop had gone to see his unfortunate partner, somebody broke into it and stole $26, their accumulated earnings, and all the linen left with them to be washed. As an exchange suggests in relation to this, it would be policy to recall our missionaries from China, and send them to Adria, where they are evidently needed more than in China.

Deaths at a Fair.

A terrible accident at Adrian.

While some 2000 people were gathered at the new grand stand at the Lenawee county fair, Thursday, Oct.

2nd, at 2:45, to witness the ladies riding contest, the stand suddenly gave way in the center, and came down with a terrible crash, burying the crowd in its ruins. The scene from one of agony and enjoyment instantly turned to horror, torture and death.

Ten persons were killed outright; four more have since died and several others supposed to be fatally injured.

The total number of wounded who have received medical attendance is 224.

The names of the dead Henry Hart,

Joan F. Merck, Peter Hyde, William

McLain, all of Adrian; Mrs. John

Hubbard, Jasper; David Phemadore,

Petersburg; Mathew Johnson, Attica, Ohio; Asahel Henderson; Plim

River, Ill.; Peter Egan, Manchester;

Reuben Ferguson, Rome; E. R. Hume,

Medina. Willie Hall, of Tecumseh, and Irving Powers, of Madison, are reported dead.

There were 15,000 people on the grounds, whose frantic cries of terror, together with the groans and shrieks of the wounded and dying, are said to have been agonizing in the extremes. Horses were frightened and numerous runaways ensued. Hotels and private houses were opened to wounded and the opera house improv-vised into a hospital.

The grand stand was a pleasing structure to look upon, but a veritable death-trap to stand or sit in. It was 28 by 107 feet in size and 32 feet high. The first story was designed as an eating room and made

3 feet high but was occupied by the carriage exhibit at the time. Above this was the grand stand proper.

There were 11 rows of seats, each 100 feet long. The seats were very wide, with foot rests between them.

The accident was caused by the blunder of the architect, who failed to trace and tie the timbers sufficiently.

The Tamarind.

This tree is indigenous in various parts of Africa and India and grows well in several of the East Indian islands. It is completely domesticated in the West Indies and in portions of Brazil and Mexico. It is a handsome tree, 10 to 20 feet in height. Its common leaves are of ten to twenty pairs of small oblong leaflets form a dense fol-
