TOWN TALK.

The post office was moved last night. T. T. F. F. club party, Friday evening, Dec. 30.

Charles Booth has added a new coat of paint to his house.

DeMoy is greatly improving his house on Rogers street.

To-morrow Ezra Thornton and wife celebrate their golden wedding.

Elsewhere will be found an interesting letter from Rev. J. M. Van Every.

Mrs. Wyman has rented her farm and will spend the winter at Ludington.

The new addition to the Drill factory is enclosed and the tin roof is being put in place.

The Health officer informs us this morning that he does not know of a single case of diphtheria in town.

Rumors of another factory to start here in the spring. Let them come, we are here first.

E. J. Robinson is engaged in the real estate business in Detroit. He is located in the Moffat block.

Incendiary fire at South Lyon yesterday. The store house of William Bartlett was consumed.

We have just added a choice line of calling cards and a fine script type to our office. Call and see them.

The Chapter and Blue Lodge are arranging to have a public installation of officers in their new hall on the 27th.

So many tramps, burglars and thieves are around would it not be wise to have a night watchman employed by the village?

H. Lount and M. Palmer returned from their month's hunting trip last Wednesday. Deer are scarce and they only shot three.

Only a drop of forty-seven degrees of the thermometer from Sunday morning to Monday morning. Regular Michigan weather.

A. H. Kessler and family, from Plymouth, have moved into the house lately vacated by Mrs. George McCoy, on Randolph street.

Henry W. Holcomb has invented a shute to carry ashes from a coal stove to the cellar or out doors. He has obtained letters patent on it.

W. McKeand has had to move his tailor shop up stairs and add his back room to the front one to make room for his large stock of clothing.

Mrs. Prof. Loomis will accept thanks for a remembrance of her wedding cake. The office force put pieces under their pillows to dream over.

Burglars entered a number of stores at Wixom Sunday night. While trying to get into George Woodman's store his large dog drove them off.

Now the clerks and others will be happy. The rink will be opened on Wednesday evening for the balance of the season. Good skates and music.

Owing to John Babillon's financial embarrassment the Milk Condenser has had to be closed for several days. It is hoped they will soon be able to start up again.

We have several desirable bargains in real estate that will pay those who intend purchasing to investigate. One of them is a fruit farm in Ionia county to trade for Northville property.

Natural gas was found at a depth of ninety feet on the base line eighteen miles east of here Tuesday. They were digging for water and found gas. Stones were thrown many feet in the air.

The Y. P. S. of the Presbyterian church desire through the columns of the Record to return thanks to B. A. Wheeler for the use of his stores last week and others for favors granted.

Mr. E. J. Robinson, president of the village of Northville, has vacated the presidential chair, and moved to Detroit. He and his family reside at 865 Seventh street, Northside Notion.

Prof. N. Dickie, of Albion, well known to many here, has been elected chairman of the National Prohibition committee to take the place made vacant by the death of Hon. J. P. Morgan.

John J. Thompson brought to town Tuesday one load of wheat containing fifty-three bags, 120 bu. Next.

Tuesday evening burglars blew open the safe in Dr. Woodman's office, Farmington, and carried off $80. They never go to printing offices for money as they would find nothing but darning letters.

It has been necessary to send to Pennsylvania for a pump to remove the water from the Pontiac gas well. When this is done the actual size of the natural gas find can be determined.—Pontiac Bill Poster.

Dr. Swift is moving in his new office. His medicines will be no better however than when he dispensed them from his old office. May he be spared many years to deal out pills from his new quarters is the wish of the Record.

The roof of J. C. Buchner's new house is a very slight place. From there you can see Plymouth plainly, and the reflection on the tin roofs and the smoke of Detroit. Some of these breezing days just climb the hill and "view the landscape o'er."

Prof. W. M. Osband, of Ypsilanti and well known here, has bought an interest in the Ypsilanti and has already entered the journalistic field. He is welcome to this part and we will wager a batch of back-subscription accounts that he succeeds in this new field as he has in every other undertaking he has gone into.

In the suit against E. J. Robinson, I. W. Hutton and P. E. White by Barclay Smith for false imprisonment a motion has been introduced by defendants counsel to have their bail reduced from the exorbitant amount of $2,000. Not because they cannot give that amount of bail as they already have done so but on general principles.

Thanksgiving night George Brown, who lives on the base line west of the village, was awakened by his dog making an effort to break into the barn. He went out and found some one had been trying to steal wheat from his granary. They had pried off the door and would have made off with a quantity of security cent wheat.

Josiah Emery and family, of Waterford, Oakland Co., and H. W. Holcomb and family, of Detroit, were in town last week. They came here to attend the annual re-union of the Emery family, held at the residence of O. N. Barnhart. The company numbered twenty children and grand-children were all present except Dr. Z. T. Emery, of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose health would not permit of his taking the journey.

At Union Chapter No. 55, Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

High Priest—J. H. Woodman
King—A. H. Dibble
Scribe—C. R. Stevens
Captain of Host—J. W. Fuller
Principal Sojourner—J. W. Fuller
Captain of Val—H. D. Dean
" 2d " —S. Bower
" 1st " —L. W. Hutton
Sentinel—A. K. Carpenter
Treasurer—A. A. Wheeler
Secretary—E. S. Horton.

Are we going to have a hard winter? Can't say, but have credible information from country exchanges that the corn husks are very thick; that muskrats are building their houses bigger and stronger than ever before; that frogs have buried themselves very deep in the mud, and that country editors are laying in a heavy supply of subscription wood (basswood and water elm). All these are infallible signs, and there is no doubt that we will be frozen to death before February. However we will take our chances and receive subscriptions for a year in advance as usual.

DAKOTA.

JAMESTOWN, Nov. 22nd, 1887.

EDITOR RECORD:—

We arrived here, our new charge, 1st Nov. This is a beautiful city of 3,500 inhabitants, nearly one hundred miles west of Fargo, on the northern Pacific railroad. Though a very young place, its buildings are universally substantial, they would do credit to a city of ten or fifteen thousand inhabitants. Many of the private residences are truly handsome. It is the county seat of Stutsman county, and has a magnificent court house, one of the finest I ever saw for the money. The North Dakota Lunatic Asylum is located here, as is also the Presbyterian College. The soil is a black loam and gravel so unlike that of the Red River Valley, the latter being as productive as any I ever saw.

The northern part of Dakota had a wonderful yield of wheat this year; viz, thirty-five to forty-five bushels per acre. Those regions had timely rains, whereas much of the country along the line of the Northern Pacific and south of it suffered terribly by drought, the yield of wheat being unusually poor; viz, six to ten bushels per acre and much of it too poor to ever cut. Still, I have been told that the average crop of wheat in the territory was as good as that of former years. For many miles around Jamestown the crops have suffered much for two years in succession, and the consequence has been an average crop of about six bushels to the acre and the people very much disheartened. Much of the land in Dakota is so fertile that I have almost unbounded confidence in its productiveness.

I must say, however, that the seasons are not reliable. The country is more than ordinarily subject to drought and hail storms, both of which must necessarily affect crops. Still, again, hail and lightning the former generally in the early part of the season, and the latter in the latter part, are not so common as in many other parts of the country.

ance, with but few exceptions the counties have gone for local option. I never saw such earnest fighting for temperance as in the late Dakota campaign. We held our last session of conference at Fargo a pleasant and harmonious session it was. As an organized Annual conference we have held but two sessions. Last year the conference had forty-seven appointments, this year it has sixty. You see we are making rapid growth. It was my lot to preach before the conference in the afternoon of the Sabbath. The next session of the conference is to be held at Jamestown. From the glowing reports of the Record touching Northville's rapid growth, I fancy that the Detroit conference will in the near future hold its session there.

How people move over the country, nearly as much as Methodist preachers. The first man with whom I shook hands here after preaching my first sermon was one whom I met years ago on Lake Superior. Already I have written to much at length.

Yours very truly,
J. M. VANEVERY.

Nov. 23, by Dr. L. R. Fisk, assisted by Rev. Washington Gardner, at the residence of the bride's parents, on Michigan Avenue, Mr. G. Will Loomis and Miss Lottie M. Berry. Miss Belle Smith bore the honor of being brides maid, and the groom's brother, Frank was his best man. A pleasant company, rooms brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated with flowers and evergreens, a wedding supper in keeping with the occasion, many and valuable presents, congratulations and best wishes of many friends, all contributed to make a joyous social event. Among those present from abroad were the bride's grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. James Berry, of Alcona, the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Loomis, of Edwardsburg, and Rev. Samuel Bird, of Whitmore Lake, near Ann Arbor. Of the presents, one, a large and elegant lamp, was selected by Mrs. Prof. Taylor, for and by direction of Mrs. Prof. Barr, who was then in the last stages of a protracted illness, and died the next morning, several days before the wedding for which the gift was designed. The bride graduated from the Conservatory of Music last summer, and the bridegroom from the college in 1896. He is now principal of the public school, at Northville, Wayne county, for which place the couple departed on the night train.—Albion Recorder.

SALEM HAPPENINGS.

Notwithstanding the bad weather the New England supper at H. B. Thayer's was a success socially and financially. Over 200 being present and the net receipts being about $45. Miss Nettie Durfee, of Plymouth, commenced teaching a four months term of school at the Brick Monday morning. Miss Edith Allen, of Holly, visited in this locality last week. The furnace is being put in the Baptist church this week. Salem wants a cheese factory, a good roller flouring mill, and a telephone line with many other things. Any of the above enterprises would surely pay. Crowds of 15 or 20 of our ladies are going to South Lyon daily for winter business. We want a millinery shop. Miss Cora Ann, of Ann Arbor, spent the day at M. S. Ross' school. The Typewriter is a great thing.

L. K. Shaw, a well known farmer of Macomb county, was found dead in the woods a few miles from Romeo. There were no marks of violence on his person. The stomach was examined by Drs. Greenhields and Berry, but nothing found that would cause death. His heart was also examined, and found to be all right. He was found in a cedar clump, about ten rods from the road, near a trail, with his overcoat folded up and placed under his head. He lay with his arms folded. It is thought that he was a little derailed. He was talking of buying the farm on which he was found, and the supposition now is that he drove around that way on his way home to look the timber over, and got turned around and laid down and died. The report that he had sold his wheat and received $500 was incorrect. Nothing was missing from his person.

AN OCEAN HORROR.

A Steamship Sunk by Collision off Dover.

One Hundred and Thirty-two Drowned or Missing.

The Dutch steamer W. A. Scholten, Capt. Taat, left Rotterdam Nov. 19 for New York. She carried a complement of 210 passengers and crew. At 11 o'clock the next night she was in the English channel, ten miles off Dover. A heavy fog prevailed. Without warning, the steamer Rose Mary of Liverpool struck the Scholten on the port bow with a terrible crash.

Immediately after the shock was felt the Scholten's passengers, all of whom had retired for the night, rushed on deck in their night gowns. The boats were promptly ordered to be lowered. It was found that only two were available. The three others were useless and were not lowered. The water rushed swiftly through the hole in the bow. A terrible scene ensued.

The panic-stricken passengers uttered piercing shrieks. Many fell upon their knees and prayed. Little children clung to their mothers, who themselves were shrieking with terror. The officers were cool and self-possessed and remained on the bridge to the last. Several persons secured life belts and leaped into the sea. Within twenty minutes of the shock the ship was engulfed.

All those who had put on life belts floated and were rescued by the boats from the steamer Libo, which cruised around until 4 o'clock in the morning. Many of the rescued lost wives, husbands, brothers and sisters. The survivors were provided with clothes, and everything possible was done to ensure their comfort.

The passengers' accounts differ regarding the circumstances of the collision, and the reports of the officers of the Scholten clash with those of the officers of the Rose Mary. Some of the passengers say that the evening's merriment had ceased, and most of the passengers had retired to their bunks, only a few remaining in the saloon, when a tremendous crash was heard on the port bow. They say it is impossible that the collision could have occurred by the Scholten striking an anchored vessel.

The second officer declares that every precaution had been taken on board the Scholten. A good lookout was kept and Capt. Taat not only had the ordinary watch on the bridge at the time of the disaster but all the officers who intended to remain there until the vessel was fairly down the channel. The captain was last seen at his post trying to quiet the passengers and get the boats off.

An officer of the Scholten states that the Rose Mary was carrying no side lights but was showing the usual masthead lights to indicate that she was lying at anchor. The Scholten steered straight down the channel, leaving her sufficient room to pass clear. When they drew near they found she was steaming ahead and making right on to them. They tried to signal her off, but it was too late. The officers of the Rose Mary aver that they were lying at anchor and were run into. They say they did not weigh anchor until morning.

The latest estimates are that 133 persons are drowned and missing. The first mate and fourth engineer have been recognized among the dead.

The people of St. Peter's buy their milk from around a stable, which serves as a tank.

POWDERLY IS WEARY.

He Tells of His Loyal Devotion to the Cause of Labor.

General Master Workman Powderly, in response to a request from a prominent knight of Indianapolis, Ind., urging him to reconsider his determination to retire from the leadership of the order, has written a letter of which the following is the substance:

You ask me to reconsider my determination to retire from the heat of the order after the next session. I do not see how I can consistently do so, and it would be unkind to ask me to retain a position which I do not want and which I am confident another man can fill with better advantage to the order at large. During the past year I received thousands of communications from individuals, it is true, in which I was abused, condemned and asked to resign. Papers were full of abuse; threats of impeachment were made and threats of withdrawal from the order were freely indulged in. Through this cloud of gloom but one ray of light made its way, and that came from far away Denver, where D. A. S2 passed those ringing resolutions indorsing my course and condemning the anarchist element which sought to prostitute the order to its own business. I then felt that the order would stand more cheerfully by some other man than it would stand by me. True, I have never had cause to find fault with the order's treatment. I have received, but when blows fall thick and fast friendly intercession now and then cheers the person on whose head the blows are falling. I believe the best service that I can render to the order is to step aside and allow some other member to do work I am trying to do.

I have devoted years to the cause of labor. My life in the services of humanity has been the one constant fight by night and day against the enemies of labor and the element of discord, which opposed me from within and without. Such a life has been a most exciting one, and has left me with a legacy which I can never part with in the shape of a heart trouble that may do its work at any moment. I could not make such a subject a matter for discussion in any annual message or before the general assembly. Personal interests, social ties and the comforts of home have been things of the past with me for years. I long to be once more a free man, for to-day I am bound by ties most inestimable and ruled over by not one but by 500,000 masters. You can never know the strain under which I have lived for years. It would not be becoming for me to speak of the financial sacrifice I have made for the order, and I am free to say that I would be willing to make such a sacrifice again, either by health, wealth or comfort for the order of knights of labor. I have for eight years, as general master workman, tried as honestly as I knew how to better the condition of my fellow man by helping to build up an organization through which they would be protected in their rights. That organization is built but profane hands have been laid upon it, and the men who gathered in Chicago and gave out that hostile declaration to the world did so only because anarchy could not rule the order. I do not charge all those who attended the meeting in Chicago with being anarchists, but I claim that a vast majority of them did not represent their constituencies.

SETTLERS HAVE RIGHTS.

Decision of Importance by Attorney-General Garland.

On Oct. 18 Secretary Lamar submitted three questions under sections 2, 4 and 5 of the act of March 3, 1877, "to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by congress to aid in the construction of railroads and for the forfeiture of unclaimed lands and for other purposes" to Attorney-General Garland, asking his opinion on the same. The attorney-general has made known his decision. He holds that the first section directs the adjustment of the grants; the second section for the restoration of title to the United States, and the third provides for the restoration of any homestead who whose preemption shall have been erroneously canceled on account of railroad grant, or without war.

In answer to the second question of Secretary Lamar—"Can the department after adjustment of the grant by the department, issue a patent to the purchaser of such land before the said land has been reconveyed by the road or title recovered by judicial proceedings?"—Mr. Garland says that the persons or person so purchasing in good faith shall be entitled to land so purchased after the grants respectively shall have been adjusted.

The third question is as follows: "The fifth section provides that where a railroad company has sold lands not conveyed to or for the use of such company, and where such lands are for any reason excepted from the operations of the grant of said company, it shall be lawful for the bona fide purchaser thereof from said company to make payment of the United States for said land, and thereupon patents shall issue therefor to the said bona fide purchaser, or his heirs or assigns." Mr. Garland declares the intent of the act shows that to carry out its purpose the word "grant" wherever used in the second, third and fourth sections, must include lands in both primary and indemnity limits, and in order that the remedy may be adequate to redress the wrong the word "grant" in the fifth section must be construed to include, as it does in preceding sections of the act, both primary and indemnity limits.

Immediately upon the receipt of this decision Secretary Lamar directed the commissioner of the general land office to proceed at once and with as much dispatch as possible to adjust all land grants under the act of March 3, 1877, in accordance with the opinion of the attorney-general in regard to the same.

An Old One.

Nebraska State Journal.

The oldest human being in the world is an Indian woman living in the southern suburbs of Lincoln. She was born in 1478, and distinctly remembers the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, assisted by Susan B. Anthony. She sold Columbus a pair of beaded moccasins at the time, and he gave her a Waterbury watch and a man to wind it for her. She refers to him affectionately as Chris, old boy. She says she had always predicted that America would be discovered, when a general boom would be inaugurated. She was servant to George Washington for a number of years, and was present when he chopped down the cherry tree. She protested against, but George answered that he had to do something to make a reputation, and he had a weakness for chopping down cherry trees and selling the truth. The gold boy attended the fair and drew the that snake. Again that snake came back, thrashed and cavorted around me and looked in my eyes. This time he had the courage to look more steadily at me and I noticed a sort of appealing look in his eyes. I followed the reptile which ran ahead to show me the way. He led me to a big log at the end of the field. Under the log was the snake's mate. He wanted me to extricate him. I lifted one end of the log, the snake crawled out, and both of them streaked away. The next morning as I was eating breakfast I heard a knock at the door. I opened the door, and there were two black snakes. They had a big fat rabbit and a pair of partridges. They crawled into the kitchen, got upon a chair, laid the game on the table, and then left the house. They had knocked at the door with their tails. Now if you don't call that human nature; instinct, then I'd like to know what human nature is and instinct are.

Her Bad Fate.

Miss Mary Tucker, the beautiful young daughter of ex-Representative Tucker, of Essex, Conn., who married with her father's colored coachman, Hanchett, and was married by the minister in her town, she previously having colored her skin to conceal her identity, was found, says a special from Hartford, deserted and penniless, at a farmhouse between Lyme and Black Hill, on the Shore Line road. When her absence from home was discovered her father and friends started out in pursuit and traced the couple to Lyme where Hanchett deserted his bride and took the boat for New York. The girl made her way on foot to the home of her father and was met there with loving arms by her mother and aunts and uncles.
