NORTHLVILLE.

According to a Richmond paper, girls there go to school "yelling twenty pounds of scatological literature and a three-foot battle."

As Job, McMurtie of Homer, Mich., was filling his pipe a few days ago he found a diamond in his tobacco. The jewellers say it is worth $150.

A quack doctor claims to have invented a medicine that will cure any disease, and which can also be used as an embalming fluid after death.

SHOULD the request of certain ministers in Allegheny and Pittsburg be acceded to they will be organized into an Assembly of the Knights of Labor.

A CLERGYMAN at West Chester, Pa., was so busy tying matrimonial knots the other day that he had to send one couple to another minister to be married.

In Murphysboro, Ill., last week lightning ran down a hotel chimney and wrested a knife from the hand of a cook. He was worse scared than hurt.

THAT queer sect, the Dunkard Church, in conference at Wabash, Ind., has denied the petition of its young men to wear mustaches and shave their cut.

ONE of the largest plantations in the South is that of Maj. B. W. Bellamy, in Jefferson county, Fla. It comprises 6,000 acres and employs 1,500 negroes.

This highest recorded balloon ascent was by Glaisher and Coxwell from Wolverhampton, England, on September 5, 1862. They rose to the height of seven miles.

THE Niagara Falls Park on the Canadian side was thrown open to the public last week. It contains 118 acres, is two and a half miles long and cost about $300,000.

THE most valuable manuscript in this country, judging from the price paid, is in possession of John Jacob Astor. It is the "Sloane Missal," for which $10,000 was paid.

The officers of the Bordeaux garrison lately gave Mme. Carnot a hand-some fan, and the President has sent to them in return three splendid bronze groups which cost $1,000.

The DeSoto statue to be erected at Arkansas City, Ark., is designed by Señor Marvella of Madrid. It will be in bronze of heroic size, mounted on a pedestal of Arkansas marble.

CORONATION KITTRIDGE, of St. Paul, left an estate estimated by himself at $4,000,000. Each of his eleven children is given $100,000 at the start, and the remainder is to be remain undivided until the youngest son becomes of age, which will be in 1895.

MINISTER MCCLANE who is now in Washington at the home of his brother-in-law, Gen. Joseph F. Johnston, does not believe in another Franco-German war, but says that no one should be so bold as to predict the maintenance of peace in Europe.

The trousseau of the future Empress of China is being made in Vienna. The principal court dress is of very rich blue velvet. On the front there is an embroidered eagle, the wings of which are ornamented with over 300 small and five very large pearls.

In a battle during the war Senator Bates, of Tennessee, and his brother, Col. Bates were together. They were in conversation, when the senator drew from his pocket a cigar, and struck a match with which to light it. As he did so a canon ball tore his brother's head completely from his body. The cigar was not lighted, and to this day the senator has never lit one, though he invariably appears with an unlighted cigar in his mouth.

MISS PARSONS, the celebrated author of cookbooks and lecturer on cooking, dined the other day with a Pittsburgh lady who had especially prepared a salad for her distinguished guest, but which the latter scarcely tasted. "Miss Parsons, don't you know that that salad is made strictly after your recipe?" the hostess asked. "Yes," replied Miss Parsons, "and that's why I am afraid to eat it. I have told people how to make a great many things that would give me nightmare for a week if I ate them."

A DARK DEED.

The Story of a Terrible Crime, and How It Was Discovered.

H. YES; it was here they lived for many years, and here also that they did so mysteriously, all alone in the night watch.

Looked after as she was there in the deepening twilight, she in the Conventual black and with her hands crossed in her lap.

Her face seemed very white in the shadow and her voice trembled so that I was sure of the tears I could not see.

She was Sylvia Weston, and together we had come to Coro View late that afternoon. Our errand there was to unearth, if possible, her father's will, which suddenly disappeared the day of the burial.

The will was in favor of Sylvia, and by its disappearance the property at the Coro would go mainly to a dissolute, renegade brother, who, prodigal like, had wasted his portion in riotous living years before.

And he now meant to defraud his sister. It was plain, for he had forbidden her the house the day after the hapless old couple were laid to rest. And knowing that he was then absent on a fruitless venture in the city, we determined to investigate.

The circumstances of their death were as mysterious to us as the disappearance of the will, for we put every little faith in Dr. Leclerc's assertion. The brother had been at home for some time preceding the occurrence and on the night of the decease, the family had retired early, Sylvia going to her room first on account of a severe headache.

The next morning the mother was found dead in her bed, and the father cold and rigid in his arm-chair. The family physician was called immediately, and at once pronounced it "heart disease."

It was true that both had been troubled for years with a chronic affection of that organ, but it seemed after all such a strange coincidence that they should pass away at once.

"Such things do happen," asserted the doctor, and forthwith every body was satisfied with his decision—every body but Sylvia. The suspicion aroused in her breast were measurably strengthened by the disappearance of the important document, and she had thoughts and theories of her own. These she confided to me, and that was why we were at Coro View to Leonard Weston's estate.

The housekeeper was very cordial in her welcome and had no idea of the nature of our visit.

"I think," remarked Sylvia, the next morning, "that Leonard had possession of the will he must have buried it."

We had searched every nook and cranny of the octagonal older corner of "looking for a book belonging to Sylvia." Our efforts thus far were futile, so we sat in the red-covered porch, speculating. She was pale and troubled, as she may well have been under the circumstances, and the melancholiness of her face was pitiful to see.

The housekeeper told us Sylvia's dejection and distributing it in part to the loss of the volume, yet her mind was at work also, her sympathy greatly excited.

"I do not," she said, coming out on to the porch, and smoothing down her caprices while she talked. "I do not 'see' to me that your brother may not have taken a lot of rubbish out of the wood house this other day, but course he'd say for sure."

Up the rocky staircase, and into the cobwebbed attic went Sylvia and I, forgetting our weariness in the impetus of a new venture.

As the housekeeper had said "a lot of rubbish" had been stored there, we explored the depths of several boxes, trunks and other receptacles randomly without finding any treasure. Finally we came to a green leather-covered trunk which had the appearance of having been placed there recently.

Sylvia opened it, and together we began exploring its motley contents.

Presently she sat down prostrate in dust and rubbish with a mournful expression on her face.

"What is it?" I asked, in apprehension.

"Oh my God! My brother is a murderer!" she screamed, clutching a small box in her trembling fingers.

"A murderer?" I repeated, aghast, and could not find further words, the look on her face chilled my heart's blood.

"Sylvia," I cried, after a effort, "speak; tell me, are you dying?"

"No!" she moaned; "but I wish I were."

Her expression grew wilder and more horrified. I was alarmed, I reached for the box, and without a word she gave it to me; then she sat gasping at it, as motionless as a piece of statuary.

In the box were a few white scented powders, and beside them, written directions.

And I read, "Give them one powder each,

on the sly; somehow, they will die easy and give you no trouble. I will be called, and pronounce it heart-disease. Then burn the will, and the girl will have to share with you the remaining property."

I looked up. "Sylvia," I said, fearing for the hostess asked, "and that's why I am afraid to eat it. I have told people how to make a great many things that would give me nightmare for a week

if I ate them."

MISS PARSONS, the celebrated authoress of cookbooks and lecturer on cooking, dined the other day with a Pittsburgh lady who had especially prepared a salad for her distinguished guest, but which the latter scarcely tasted. "Miss Parsons, don't you know that that salad is made strictly after your recipe?"

I looked up. "Sylvia," I said, fearing for

the hostess asked, "and that's why I am afraid to eat it. I have told people

how to make a great many things that would give me nightmare for a week

if I ate them."

The housekeeper, attracted by her talk, came in hurriedly. "What is it?" she asked, frightened and white-faced.

For any moment she thought the slip of paper

"Oh! the God-forsaken wretch to be a—"

I put my finger to my lips and motioned her into silence. "Stay with her, I will, polarity to Sylvia. I must see to this matter at once," holding up the paper significantly. She nodded in the affirmative, and I went out.

In due time the sheriff and his posse were on their way to the city to arrest Leonard Weston in his great crime. They found him sleeping in his bed, holding the hand of his wife, and the hand of his daughter.

The sheriff, who had no idea of the importance of the paper, took it and dropped the hand of his wife, and the hand of his daughter.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Dubuar preached again for the months of June and July. And here, after the work of twenty years, there closed the active labors of one of the strongest and best of men. Under his industry 145 were added to the membership, & on profession of faith. This was his home until his death, which took place after a long and very painful illness, which he endured with all the fortitude of a Christian, December 7th '88. No man has ever lived among us whose life and example were more blameless than his. No man had so many friends, not only in the church and neighborhood, but also in all the "region round about." Quiet and unassuming, his life was powerful for good in every department of Christian work.

In August '76 Henry W. Gelston was called to the work, and on the 26th of October he was ordained and installed as pastor by Detroit Presbytery. June 8th '78 the church adopted the system of rotary eldership. Mr. Gelston's labors closed in November '74 succeeded in March '75 by the Rev. H. N. Jenkins as stated supply, and he in May '86, by Rev. George E. Paddock for two years.

The whole number of members received has been 533, on profession 220 dismissed 141.

Thus closes the brief record of the church in its outward work. One needs only remember the character of the men and women who have taken part in its work, to know that the unwritten records testify of a great deal of self denial for the sake of the welfare of the church. The early settlers were men and women who left the church and the school at the sole front of their lives, and while they have many of them passed on into the presence of Him whom they delighted to serve, their works do follow them.

AUCTION SALE.

Whereas, the directors of the Globe Grain Drill Co. have from time to time called in the capital of said corporation by assessment upon the subscribers to its "capital stock," by giving notice thereof to the subscriber, and whereas the following persons have neglected payment of said assessment for thirty or more days since the installments were due and payable. Therefore, the board of Directors will sell at the office of the secretary of the corporation on the 6th Day of August A. D. '88, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon so much of the stock of each of the said delinquent stockholders as may be necessary to pay installments due on same in accordance with Sect. 11 of Act No. 222 laws of Mich. for 1885; James W. Smith, Henry P. Britton, Horace E. Cray, Will Stewart, Edward Simonds, George Rayson, Peter Connell, Hiram R. Holmes, Edward P. Kellogg, George C. Hueston, Wm. F. Yerkes, Frank N. Clark, Marvin Boeve, Orion Barnhart, Will A. Fry, Robert Yerkes, Major D. Gorton, Charles T. Leonard, Milo W. Reed, Nathan H. Power, John W. Fuller, Carpenter Bros., Frank B. Park and John O. Knapp.

By order of the Board of Directors.

A. W. CARPENTER, Secy.

Northville, July 5th.

BRACE UP.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with Headache, you are listlessly, nervous and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap bad whisky, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle, at A. M. Randolph's Drug Store.

The plan upon
that is proposed to organize makes protection so cheap
that there are some of our members who cannot avail themselves of its benefits. We know that to be a fact because the plan has been tried here in our midst. All members will be notified
by circular to attend the meeting.

Two surprises awaited the Rev. Wallace on last Sunday afternoon, at his service in Livonia. The first was as to the number of his audience, which he expected to be about half a dozen, but which on the contrary more than half filled the church. The second was to find after the service, that he had been riding roughshod over the beliefs and habits of many of his congregation, some of whom claim not to believe in a God, or in the scriptures. It was like the explosion of a bomb shell, and the reverend gentleman's astonishment may be imagined when he found out the temper and character of some of his hearers. Subsequent conversation, however, exonerated him from being directly personal in his remarks—

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Northville, July 10, 1882
A special meeting of the Common Council of the village of Northville was held in the council room Tuesday evening, July 10th, '82.

Meeting called to order by president D. B. Present trustees wad, Brig. Gen. Boice and woodman. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Motion passed that Geo. Thoras, John Little, Edward P. Kellogg, Luther Clark, Edward Benjamin be officially invited to build sidewalk Northward.

Motion passed that the village of Northville proceed at once to build a sidewalk in front of Calvary church property.

Motion passed that J. S. Chapman, L. M. Chapman, F. M. Swift be given a plot of ground, or sidewalk, in front of their old stores.

Motion passed that the village of Northville pay Mr. George Brink of the Bank one cent for holding liquors illegally.

Motion passed that the marshal have time until the 15th day of August to collect taxes.

Motion passed that the clerk be instructed to draw order on the treasurer for $1000 interest in favor of Mrs. May Ellis in payment of a sum due July 1st, '82.

On motion council adjourned.

C. A. Hutton, Clerk.

PLYMOUTH

Nearly every one has recovered from the Fourth.

Len Vickery has moved into his new house and they are nicely settled.

Saturday Mr. Bentley, of Northville, was moving some goods out of town for Mrs. Works. He fell over senseless on the wagon just as he got in front of the store. He was taken off the wagon and for a considerable time thought to be dying; but his pulse gradually regained its accustomed beat and at eventide he told us he was as well as in the morning and was at the depot waiting to take the train home. Today word came that he has had another attack which has proved fatal.

M. W. Gilford preached at Canton Center Sunday morning.

Chas Bennett and Frank Parks are near Tecumseh selling their patent hardware and report good success.

The Presiding Elder Hudson, of Detroit, preached in the M. E. church Sunday evening.

The installation of officers at Tonawanda Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 32 was postponed for two weeks on account of some of the officers elect being unable to be present. A full attendance is requested July 25 for installation and some other matters of interest.

Rev. J. M. Shank will go to Detroit Thursday evening to hear Bishop Taylor at the Central M. E. church and from thence, accompanied by Presiding Elder Hudson, to Lakeside for a week or ten days' recreation. Chas. Curtis Jr. will read his sermon for him Sunday morning. We hope to see him cheered up when he returns. The grief occasioned by the loss of his devoted wife is undermining his health, although he strives to keep up a cheerful and hopeful spirit.

7:30 sharp to mutual protection in case of accident.
The plan upon
that is proposed to
organize makes protection so cheap
that there are some of our members who cannot avail themselves of its benefits. We know that to be a fact because the plan has been tried here in our midst. All members will be notified
by circular to attend the meeting.

STATE NEWS.

Lake City in Ashes.

A fire gutted back of M. Van Andale's saloon at Lake City about 2:30 the other morning. It soon spread to the surrounding buildings and, fanned by a brisk west wind, was quickly beyond control. The Cadillac fire company was summoned and arrived in one hour and a half, though the railroad engineer had to be found and the engine steamed up.

When the flames were brought under control almost the whole of the business portion of the city had been swept away, 19 stores and five dwelling houses having been destroyed. The new jail and court-house were saved after much hard fighting. Some ten or twelve families were rendered homeless by the conflagration. The losses will aggregate about $10,000. While the fire is a stunning blow to the thriving little town, the business men will rally and rebuild as soon as possible.

After a general hospitalization, refreshments were served and the General and his family were left in quiet until nearly eleven, when the Hurricane club of Marion county, composed entirely of veterans of the William Henry Harrison campaigns of 1862 and 1864, marched to the residence of General Harrison accompanied by hundreds of citizens of Indianapolis. The veterans were presented to the General and Mrs. Harrison, and after each veteran had told Gen. Harrison something about his grandfather and the campaign in which he figured so conspicuously, a formal address of congratulation was presented, to which Gen. Harrison graciously responded.

For boating exercises nothing is better than a boat of flannel or light canvas in pale pink, blue or gray, with spruce poles decked with a deeper color that is repeated in the plain full skirt.

Gold and silver brocade is handsome on the form, but an iron lace or chain near them at the throat is now much the style for the touch of soft articles that will brighten the boat, and the effect is therefore incredible.

THE LAND GRANT BILL.

The Vote Non-Partisan and all Parties United.

SENATE OF WASHINGTON, NEW.

The house has passed the land grant fixture bill by a large non-partisan vote—177 to 3 to 3. The unanimity with which the members voted for it is due to the fact that all the factions interested in the bill desired to get it into the conference committee where all the conflicting claims can be adjusted.

The bill, as passed, bears no resemblance to the one that was adopted in the senate a few weeks ago after a long and hard fight. The only Michigan claims made are those of the bone idle home-steader, both the cash entry men and the canal company's titles being ignored altogether.

All the Michigan men voted for the bill. They did not like its present form, but were compelled to take it as best they could get, in order to settle in the best manner possible the upper peninsula land titles which have been a matter of contention for years.

Before passing the bill, which is known as the "Holman substitute," the house voted down Parson's measure, which was substantially that as originally passed by the senate.

The fight made them over the Michigan case will be continued at close quarters in the conference committee.

The president has issued an order which brings six new classes of government employees under the civil service rules. It includes every person in the department service except such as are appointed by the advice and consent of the Senate, and such as are appointed as unskilled laborers and messengers. If this order is enforced it will place our civil service nearly on a par with that of England.

The President has signed the Indian appropriation bill.

The President is obliged to decline the invitation to the Cincinnati exposition because of the press of public business.

Brig. Gen. Jas. C. Duane, chief of engineers, has been placed on the retired list.

Mrs. Dickinson, wife of the Postmaster General, has removed to her summer home at Penobscot, opposite Cooley Island.

Representative Fisher has returned from his trip to Michigan.

The river and harbor bill has passed the senate, and now goes to the house for concurrence in amendments.

Nearly $80,000 have been added to the appropriations.

A bill to make the manufacture, preparation or sale of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, etc., illegal, has been introduced in the house by Rep. George E. Bliss, formerly of Grand Rapids, which sum is an unexpended balance of $5,500 appropriated six years ago to pay for the services of physicians, surgeons and the funeral expenses of President Garfield. Over $80,000 was distributed among physicians and others in attendance on President Garfield, and each person so remunerated was required to sign a receipt in full, but most of the attendants have since been apportioned additional pay, and now Dr. Bliss comes in with a bill to scoop the last cent of the unexpended balance.

During the last fiscal year the number of post offices established was 2,066; number discontinued, 1,621; number of fourth-class postmasters reelected, and successors appointed, 1,436; number removed, 1,224; whole number appointed during the year, 11,831; number of presidential postmasters reelected and successors appointed, 1,020; number removed, 90; whole number of presidential postmasters appointed during the year, 12,364.

Patents to agricultural lands entered under the various public land laws have been issued by the general land office during the fiscal year. Cash entries, 19,000; homestead, 15,392; timber culture, 1,333; desert, 1,000; scrip, 329; total, 47,132. There were also issued during the year 1,034 patents to mineral lands; 115 patents to coal lands; and 50 patents to private lands under grants.

Patents during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1867, were issued as follows: Agricultural lands, 34,488; mineral, 1,436; coal, 53; private lands, 142. Total for last year, 26,534.

CHAPTER X (Continued).

"Well, then ram this and that into the empty cases. So do I. Saltwater Latin; Sulphur-Greek Charcoal-holiday. Balls of colored fire-various information I ram and ram. The case is full and in place. The examiner applies the match and looks for the result. Then—"

"They burst in the wrong place," said Beatrice, gaily. "She was amused."

"Yes, they of them—burst and scatter the disbursed charge; the winds in a ludicrous manner. Some, of course, fly straight and only come down like sticks after fulfilling their appointed tasks."

"But some succeed like yourself," said Horace.

"My dear Horace! Frank fell into the Christian name arrangement with the greatest ease. The more I see of undergraduates the humbler I grow. I was successful, but if my competitors were like those I coach it's nothing to be proud of."

"Let your learning bring these pupils to you."

"Not a bit of it—I have a knack of bringing dull fellows on, that's all."

"And perhaps the reason why you get all the dull fellows," said Beatrice.

"There's something in that," said Carruthers laughing.

"You read Latin," said Frank, suddenly turning to Beatrice.

"Yes. How could you tell?"

He laughed and gave her one of his quick glances.

"There is a little line between your brows—a very little one. Young ladies always knot their brows when they study hard Latin for a lady is hard study."

"Other things, besides study bring home," said Beatrice, rather coldly.

"Yes, trouble. But you can have had more trouble than bring them. You are proud, but not extremely proud. So I am right."

Certainly this young man was promising. Beatrice half-doubtfully said nothing.

"We'll have some more champagne," said Horace, noting the young man's deal with Whitaker's smile over of reading his glass.

"No thank you. I drink very little; although you're beginning to shake the沉鬱 of an anchorage."

"That is Byron, is it not?" asked Herbert.

"Very intelligent," said Beatrice, quietly, and gave her aqua-pink glance.

"Are you going to be sad?"

"Yes, I looked it up last week."

"It's a shipwreck story."

"I looked it up some months ago. Now, I remember it. I couldn't find the book, so turned to my memory. I was wrong it seems."

"Home sometimes now," said Horace.

Beatrice was looking rather suspiciously at Frank. "What did you want the quotation for?" she asked.

"For—something or another—I forget now. As soon as I am allowed to work my brain I'll try and remember."

"Don't trouble—I know. I saw the misfortune on last week."

Frank shrugged his shoulders.

"Of course you wrote the paper," continued Beatrice.

"You are provokingly acute, Miss Clauson."

"What did Frank write?" asked Horace.

Beatrice smiled. She felt she was now going to take her revenge for Mr. Carruthers's remark about the Latin.

"That paper in the 'Yesterday Review' on law students' responsibilities," he said drolly.

"Nonsense. Beatrice! —Frank couldn't have written that. I'd do you?" continued Horace, more doubtfully, seeing his guest was fastened to horror at the accusation.

"Young ladies should not read the 'Yesterday,'" said Frank.

"Anonymous writers should not misquote," retorted Beatrice.

"But did you write it, Frank?" asked Herbert.

The two brothers looked the picture of anxiety. Frank laughed.

"Miss Clauson is horribly acute," he said.

Therefore all understood that Mr. Carruthers was the author of the article in question, an article which from the bold and original views it ventilated, had attracted a good deal of attention. Horace and Herbert lookedaghast.

"Frank," said the former in a solemn voice, "you must be a radical."

"You must," said Herbert sorrowfully.

"Oh, dear, no," said the culprit. "I'm not—are you, Horace?"

The utter absurdity of the question made them all laugh. Horace and Herbert thanked heavens they were not radicals.

"But there are respectable radicals, are there not?" asked Frank innocently.

"A few," said Horace. "Sad as the truth was he was obliged to confess that there were one or two radicals of his acquaintance whose social position raised them above consideration of their political creed. It was a faint in what was otherwise a fairly well-organized world. It was a satisfaction to have Frank's word that he was not a radical and they told him so gravely.

"I fancy Mr. Carruthers is a communist," said Beatrice mischievously.

"Then my expressed opinion of your shrewdness suffers."

"But what are your views, Frank?" asked Horace.

"I have none in particular. I am willing to be guided by the best authorities—yourself, for instance. Tell me why you hate radicals so?"

"They are scoundrels English."

"H, then I detect them. Now you know what I am: I am English. Are you English, Horace?"

They told him solemnly they hoped and believed they were English to the backbone; but they told themselves they were Englishmen with instinctive accents rubbed off by foreign travel.

"It's," said Frank. "It's a great thing to be English. Few people realize what it means. Do most thoroughly."

"That's right," said Horace. In spite of the hawd-way article he was growing quite easy about his guest.

"I would pass a law," said Frank gravely, "making it penal for an Englishman to learn a word of a foreign tongue." Every time an English child conjugates a French or German verb he regards the millennium.

"The millennium?" said Beatrice, astonished.

"Yes—my idea of the millennium, which is when the whole civilized world speaks English. If we could only converse in our own tongue, every nation would be forced to learn it and so hasten the happy day. Wherever the English language gets a good footing, it conquers."

"Of course you speak only your own language," said Beatrice. She was now getting quite crestfallen.

"In my ignorance of what was right I learned one or two others. I am trying to forget them, but I can't do so."

"Well, in what other way would you show your patriotism?" asked Horace, who was amused.

"I would cling to every bit of foreign land we acquired, whether gained by force, fraud, purchase or discovery. I would think whether it paid to keep it or not. It must benefit the original owners to become Anglicized; and whatever place it is, it is sure to come in useful some day."

"No wonder you hate radicals," said Herbert, approvingly.

"Well, what else?" asked Beatrice. He had been for the most part addressing his remarks to her, as she had the right to ask.

"Lots more. But, as you are also English, let me ask you a question. Doesn't it sometimes, or upon your pride to think that we are obliged to snub ancient full-blooded Normans as our kings and queens? How much English blood has the prince in his veins?"

That was a very startling question. Th Talberts in silence began to turn over the royal family tree. Frank took a piece of bread.

"I'll show you by an illustration," he said. "You'll be frightened. Here's the First. He pointed to the head. Here is his daughter—she is the cut, the bread in her. Here's George the Second, cutting again. Here's George the Third, cutting again. Here's Edward, Duke of Kent, cutting again. Here's the Queen, and here's her cutting again. Here's Albert Edward, the beloved. He cut the bread for the last time and stuck it in the morning. What remained on a fork, gravely handed it to Beatrice.

"It's a mortifying state of things, isn't it?" he said. "for those who are as thorough English as ourselves? Don't you sympathize with the Jacobites, Mrs. Clauson?"

She chose to turn the subject. "I am going to the village now," she said. "With your permission I will accompany you."

CHAPTER XI.

EXODUS: THE WORLD.

Thanks to the remittance fine air of Oakbury, and to an absolute cessation of anything so hard work, Mr. Carruthers soon lost his faded appearance. At the end of ten days he declared himself to be in rude health, and his looks did not belie his words. Certainly he had given his words to his cousins, had taken great care of him.

In less than a week Frank had taken the measure of his cousin's innate qualities, but they told themselves they were Englishmen with instinctive accents rubbed off by foreign travel.

"It's," said Frank. "It's a great thing to be English. Few people realize what it means. Do most thoroughly."

"That's right," said Horace. In spite of the hawd-way article he was growing quite easy about his guest.

WHAT SHE HAD TO SAY.

A retail dry goods man had died, and at the funeral services in the church, a good deacon rose and remarked:

"If there are any friends of the deceased who have anything to say, we shall take a moment's pleasure in listening."

No one responded for two or three minutes, and then the widow got up.

"I haven't much to say on this sad occasion," she said, "but I would like to announce that business will be carried on at the old stand by the heart-broken widow of the deceased and our spring stock of goods can't be exceeded in price or quality in this neck of woods, and I hope you'll not forget the widow or the fatherless. Amen." Judge.

SCARED BOARDS.

Some Balkans who were seated at a boarding house breakfast suddenly lost their appetite or hearing the following conversation between the landlady and the maid-of-all-work:

Maid.—The canary is dead, muri-

Mistress.—What did you do with it?

Maid.—Threw it in the hash box.

The boarders left their hash untouched, and didn't feel easy until they learned that the new girl was English, and that she had deposited the dead bird in the receptacle intended for ashes.—New York Star.

COULDN'T SPELL.

"Well, how is this, my dear sir?" inquired the local practitioner; you sent me a letter stating that you had been attacked by small-pox and I find you suffering from rheumatism." Well, you see, doctor, it's like this," said the patient, "there wasn't a soul in the house who could spell rheumatism."

"I don't wonder at it," said Frank. "I wish some one would send me another just like him."

Beatrice gave him a look of gratitude. Every word that confirmed her suspicion of the child was welcome to her. She had not yet looked at Mr. Carruthers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

LESSON III., July 15, 1888.

THEME: God's Presence Promised.

EX. 33:12-22.

"And Moses said unto the Lord, See thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people whom thou hast brought out of Egypt, and let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know the name of this people, and thou hast also found grace in my sight. Is now therefore thy servant a fit man to go before this people? for there is no man among us that can see thy face and live." 13. And the Lord said, Behold there is a place by me, where thou mayst see my back, and not thy face; for there shall no man see my face, and live. 14. And the Lord said, I will give all thy requests. 15. And he said, I will proclaim the name of the Lord before thee; and I will be glorious in thy presence. 16. And he said, I will make all thy goodness to pass before thee; and I will proclaim thy name before the people; and I will sing thy praises before them. 17. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 18. And the Lord said, This is the place where thou mayst see my back, and not thy face; for there shall no man see my face, and live. 19. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 20. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 21. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 22. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 23. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 24. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 25. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 26. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 27. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 28. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 29. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 30. And he said, I will give grace to thee, and thy people, and I will forgive thy sins, and I will remember thy transgressions no more. 31. CUT THIS OUT YOU WILL WANT IT.

Altogether there are 401 votes or these 201 are necessary to secure the presidency. There are eighteen states casting 182 votes, that are reasonably safe for the republicans. There are sixteen states casting 153 votes that are reasonably safe for the democrats. There are four doubtful states—New York with thirty-six votes, Indiana with fifteen, New Jersey with nine and Connecticut with six. The democrats cannot elect their president without carrying New York; the republicans can. If the democrats carry Indiana, New Jersey and Connecticut, and lose New York, they will still lack eighteen of the necessary 210 votes. If the republicans carry New York and lose the three other doubtful states, they will elect their president, with seventeen votes to spare. The republicans can by carrying Indiana and New Jersey in addition to the eighteen sure republican states, they can win by carrying Indiana and Connecticut in addition with them. The signatures must carry New York and Connecticut and New Jersey, in order to elect their president.—Richmond Daily Courier.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

THE PROPOSAL TO SUBMIT AN AMENDMENT FAVORABLY REPORTED TO THE SENATE.

The proposition to submit to the people of the several states a constitutional amendment to prohibit the liquor traffic in the United States was favorably reported by Senator Blair today from the Committee on Education. The report accompanying the bill says:

"There are members in the committee who concur in the report recommending the submission of the proposed amendment to the States who do not by such action indicate their approval of the adoption of the amendment as a part of the Constitution nor that they would themselves advocate its ratification by the Legislatures of the States."

After stating that a majority of the committee think that a refusal to submit the proposed amendment to the states for ratification would be analogous to the denial of the right of jury to be heard in court upon a question of private right, the report continues:

"The agitation for national legislation for the suppression of the traffic in alcohol, policy made and sold to be used as a beverage will never cease to disturb and finally to destroy the great political parties until they submit to the States the question of the enlargement of national constitutional jurisdiction so as to include control of the subject. When decided, if adversely to the ratification, the subject will be eliminated from national politics at least for many years. If, on the other hand, the proposed amendment should be ratified and become a part of the national law, the chief curse of the world could be summoned to the block of national justice and die by the hand of the only power which can wield an ax long and sharp enough to cut off its hydra head. Then we shall have peace. But a agitation for the destruction of the liquor traffic cannot cease until the evils which it inflicts upon mankind are removed or the human race is destroyed. It is useless to try peace, peace, when there is no peace."

MUNRO'S PATENTS
A New Discovery in the Preparation of Paints.
The United States Patent Office has granted to the inventors of the process described in the following patent, the exclusive right to make and sell paint for exterior purposes, except in Canada, England, France, Germany, and all other countries where the same is granted and their franchises are established. The preparation prepared and sold by the Inventors is short, strong, non-inflammable, durable for the protection of wood, stone, iron, glass, etc., and the paint is perfectly applicable and adheres to the most difficult surfaces and is the best paint in the world. The advantages of such a paint over ordinary paint are:

"The Inventor's Patent Paint is perfectly safe, non-inflammable, and is the best paint for exterior purposes, and is the best paint in the world. The advantages of such a paint over ordinary paint are:
