A GREAT SCHEME

Proposed Union to Embrace 8,000,000 Men

The Philadelphia Times says: "Ever since the memorable strikes on the Reading and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad systems, in which the hangers of labor, the brotherhood of locomotive engineers and the brotherhood of locomotive firemen were worsted in their struggle, there has been a scheme in contemplation, proposed by the knights of labor, which if the negotiations now in active progress are satisfactory, will join together 8,000,000 of workmen, with an insubstantial band, and exert a powerful industrial and political influence all over the United States."

The scheme, which had been brewing ever since the last general assembly of the knights in Minneapolis was first broached by General Master Workman Powderly and several members of the knights of labor executive board to the leading officials of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers and firemen during the conference between the knights of labor and the above organizations in the city last March, when it was proposed to settle the differences between the knights and the brotherhood by calling out all the brotherhood men on the Reading system.

The consolidation was both favored and opposed by those present at the conference and it was argued that while a union would be, in a general sense, beneficial, the needs of each industrial branch were varied, and no one organization could be made to serve the general purpose of between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 workmen.

The proposition to organize was submitted as follows: That all labor associations shall be under the direction of one supreme head, who shall be elected by the delegates of every industrial organization at a general convention. That each organization shall be representative of the general interests of the industrial organization shall retain the individuality they now possess and be under the control of a chief officer whose only superior shall be the supreme head of the entire consolidation. That the object of amulating the interests of the different associations be for the purpose of rendering moral and financial assistance to each other when differences arise that can only be adjusted by a strike.

If this national consolidation is effected it will include the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, the brotherhood of locomotive firemen, the order of railway conductors, the brotherhood of brakemen, the switchmen's association, the national association of amalgamated iron and steel workers, the knights of labor and every industrial organization that has within its jurisdiction, the text of the work of the same, and every branch of organized labor, as far as is possible.

The matter will be brought before the national convention of the knights of labor in Atlanta on September 11, the general assembly of the above organizations and the national convention of the switchmen's association to keep the matter a secret and to retain the individuality of each organization when the scheme can be known in all the departments, with the idea that with the matter a national consolidation of the labor organizations in the country will be formed by the general consolidation of the labor organizations in the country.

The arguments advanced by the organizers of the scheme are that it is a strike of the part of the knights of labor, which, if successful, would give them power among workmen, and through among employers, and as a last resort prepared to stand to save their own organization.

DISASTROUS FLOODS

Millions of Dollars Damage Done by High Water

Great damage has been done to property in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia by high water. The flood is the most disastrous since 1852. The water in the Monongahela and Cheat rivers is the highest ever known. From Brownsville to Pittsburgh and along Cheat river, reports are coming of tremendous loss to lumber men from breaking dams; to coal operators from damaged craft and destruction of coal piles, and to private individuals, whose residences and property are flooded. Only one life has been lost so far as learned.

George Greer was instantly killed by the passing of a cable rope, which he was checking the loaded coal barge at Water's landing. A report from Clarkburg, W. Va., on the west fork of the Monongahela, is to the effect that 20 dwellings have been swept away, and the damage to property is almost incalculable. A number of iron and wood bridges and several large saw mills, together with quantities of lumber and logs, having gone down with the flood.

THE VETERANS SURPRISED AND CAPTURED.

At the close of the regular meeting of Allen M. Harmon Post Friday evening, July 13, the boys were taken completely by surprise on finding the ante-rooms in full possession of the ladies of the post and a detachment of the sons of veterans in command of Capt. G. L. Palmer. The surprise was so sudden and complete that there was nothing else to do but surrender unconditionally, which was done and every man secured with the exception of Comrade Hook, who in the nick of time stepped by the sentinel on guard and got away. As soon as this was known a detail was sent after him and he was brought back in triumph. After quiet had been restored it was very soon ascertained that if a ladies and sons had not come with murder as thoughts on treasonable intent, for it was discovered that in baskets and coffee-pots they had a beautiful supply of good things provided for the inner man. Very quickly the tables were spread and the boys, having recovered from their surprise, were allowed to fall in and fall to, which they did with a will. So after being reinforced out in some measure recovered their courage the post, by a unanimous vote, returned their thanks to the ladies and sons of V. for their very successful surprise.

At a meeting of the ladies and sons of V. on the 14th inst. the following resolutions were adopted:

Inasmuch as the ladies and sons of V. have been so kind as to provide for the inner man of the boys of the post, the following resolutions were adopted:

An exchange tells the story of a boy who was sent to the market with a sack full of rabbits, entering around town all day he came home without selling them. When asked by his mother why he had not sold the rabbits he said no one had asked him what was in the sack. How many of our people are like this boy? They have plenty of goods for sale but fail to tell people what is in the sack. If you expect to sell goods in this day and age of the world, open your sack and keep shouting the merit of your stock in trade.

The Portland Advertiser has a good story, which it credits to B. J. L. P. A Methodist congregation, who recently had excommunicated a minister who had been excommunicated by the pastor with questions about the man appointed to succeed him. The pastor gravely answered them: "He is a good man and an able preacher, but there, I don't suppose I ought to say anything, and I think on reflection that I won't." Of course this infuriated everybody's curiosity, and they insisted that he explain. After declining any intention to prejudice the man, he informed them that the man in question had parted his hair in the middle. The congregation were indignant, but decided to suspend final judgment until they had seen the new man. The next Sunday he had walked up the aisle, every eye was upon him, and as he faced the people there was a big smile on every face in the church. He was tall.

What is intended to be a national organization devoted to work in opposition to the prohibition movement was chartered under the state laws of Illinois Wednesday in the name of the "National Right League." The incorporators are well known German-American citizens of Chicago. One of them explained that the formation of the league began some time ago. Its membership is growing very rapidly and as soon as it is deemed sufficiently strong their branches will be established in Milwaukee, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Minneapolis, St. Paul and other cities. The promoters desire to have a popular national movement against prohibition, though in favor of temperance. At the same time as parallel movements, the constitution declares against the adulteration of food, the corruption of press and politics, the mismanagement of public money and all trusts and attacking combinations. The closest attention to the instructions in public schools is demanded, in order that interference may be successfully resisted and a keen inspiration of true liberty inculcated in the people.

The plank relating to prohibition read as follows: "The prohibition party, as the supporter of prohibition, is the enemy of the people's guardianship to one party and the people over the other party, and is systematically destroying the citizen's enjoyment of their personal rights, is seeking to have the soul of the American nation. Prohibitionist agitators have assumed an attitude so threatening that the liberty loving citizens must oppose them in the public interest. Excessive indulgence in alcohol can be prevented only by national laws to be strictly enforced by strict law against the purchase of alcohol; by exercise on the part of the authorities of strict control over the manufacture and sale of beverages; and by means of institutions capable of improving the social conditions of the working classes, but it can never be prevented by prohibition.

The laws provide for a literary bureau to disseminate the league principles and combat its opponents through the medium of the press. The incorporators of the league are very sanguine of its success and anticipate that it will cut something of a figure in a very short time.
