EPOCH.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alternative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of kidneys, liver or stomach, or long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at A. M. Randolph's drug store.

GOLD.

Gold is scarce, but those who write to S. C. & Co., Portland, Me. will receive five full information about work which they can do at home that will pay them from $3 to $25 per day. Some have secured $10 a day. Either sex, young or old. Capital not required. You are invited to see our circular. Write to S. C. & Co., Portland, Me.

TOWN TALK.

F. R. Deal and wife left for their eastern trip last Monday.

Miss Carrie DeFriend, of Owosso, is visiting Mrs. T. J. Perkins.

E. S. Woodman has been confined to the bed part of the week.

The eclipse of the moon was plainly visible here Wednesday night.

We have decided to wait for a sleigh ride until some time in the future.

E. S. Horton and wife are contemplating a trip to Florida next week.

As we go to press snow is flying in the air. Will it bring us sleighing?

To Rent: A very desirable house and lot at $10 per month. Inquire at this office.

The Michigan Furniture company is the name of a new organization at Ann Arbor.

Miss Anna Wilkinson is visiting friends and relatives in Dearborn and Greenfield.

Mrs. Lou Vesley, of Northville, is visiting her parents here this week.—Wayne Review.

$750 will buy a good home in a good location. Call at this office and find out particulars.

Mrs. Parmenter suffered a stroke of paralysis yesterday, at her daughter's, Mrs. Hosmer's.

How is your arm, may be heard often on the streets now days. Its a vaccination sore.

We are indebted to E. J. Lake for a copy of the San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle of date of Jan. 1.

Mrs. Nettie Harter, of Rochester, N. Y., a niece of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Kellogg, is making them a visit.

The forepart of the week was a busy time for Dr. Swift. The children flocked to him for vaccination.

Natural gas is promised to the citizens of Detroit by next July. It will be piped from the Ohio gas fields.

A good newspaper out of P. R. Deal appeared in the Evening News of Monday evening and a short, concise biography of his life.

Geo. B. Yerkes has been appointed administrator of the estate of Mrs. Helen E. Hungerford, who died recently at the Pollock asylum.

The Force examination case was on trial at Pontiac, Tuesday and Wednesday, and again postponed till next Tuesday.—South Lyon Herald.

Peter Council has rented the Hutton building on the corner of Main and Center streets and moved in yesterday. He lives upstairs over the shop.

E. K. Simonds, administrator of the Chambers estate, will sell that farm at auction Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock. This is a fine farm of 130 acres.

Bear in mind that one person in every 10,000 who travel on railroads get killed. It is well enough to remember this and keep away from the dangerous things.

A repair was made on the streets Monday that a kid, at Novi had the smallest, but we have been unable to learn anything definite in regard to it and doubt the fact. It is very easy to start rumors.

The village officers desire to know if DeMoy will publish on his contract with the village the reward offered elsewhere for information that will lead to the apprehension of any one willfully breaking the lamps of the village.

If you wish to enjoy a pleasant evening, and add one more pearl to memory's casket, go to the residence of J. K. Lowden, next Wednesday evening, Jan. 23. The ladies of the Baptist society will hold a social entertainment there at that time. Amusements will be provided and a good time in general hoped for. All are cordially invited. Admission ten cents.

The railroad companies of Michigan are afraid of the two-cent-a-mile bill that may come up in the legislature and agents of all the companies in the state are extending the compliments of their roads in the shape of annual passes to the senators and representatives. It is reliably stated that the members of the legislature will ride free on every road in Michigan if they choose to.—First Journal.

Charles Palmer is getting a good deal of free newspaper advertising nowadays. But few papers in the state but what have mentioned his escapade.

There will be a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. in the RECORD office Monday evening to dispose of the property on hand. It will be sold at auction or otherwise as may be ordered. A full attendance is requested of members and others interested.

The community were surprised Wednesday morning by the news that J. R. Corson had been compelled to make an assignment to E. K. Simonds for the benefit of his creditors. A large stock and dull trade, caused by a poor season are the reasons given for the step.

The Furniture company are putting out some beautiful samples. They shipped a consignment of seats to La-peer county this week and have two more contracts on hand besides a large contract for water closet seats. Twenty men are now employed at the factory.—South Lyon Herald.

Died, of paralysis, in Waterford, Oakland Co. Mich., on the 11th inst., Clarissa Lee, wife of James B. Bradley, Esq., aged 72 years. She had five children living, all of whom were present at her funeral. She was an aunt of Mrs. J. G. Lapham and Mrs. S. A. Clarkson of this place.

This winter beats the recollection of the oldest inhabitants. In some places in upper Michigan they have a little snow for lumbering. At other places they are breaking up the camps in the woods and men coming out. It speaks a scant supply of logs for the season and its effects on business will be disastrous.

The United States supreme court, in a recent decision takes the broad ground that a life insurance policy taken out for the benefit of a man's family is no part of his estate, but will go directly to the benefit of those for whom it is intended. The decision is an important one, and should induce every man to make such provision for his family.—Id.

A number of friends gathered at the residence of Asa Randolph Wednesday evening for a surprise party. They went to the store for him and he ran to his house to put the burglars out. Rev. Dr. Hudson, on behalf of the friends, presented him with an elegant easy chair as an appreciation of the fact of his getting so faithfully as chorister for so many years at the Methodist church. He was overcome for a time but soon rallied and accepted it very gracefully.

An exchange says there is a law compelling all drivers of horses to turn to the right, but the unwritten law of etiquette which requires that the pedestrian turn out to the right for another is disregarded all the time. The natural rudeness of people is shown very forcibly in this way, especially on our muddy crossings where a polite person, who is on the clear side and who has the right of way, often has to turn aside for some ignorant man or woman if he wishes to avoid any contact or collision.

The building and loan association at their meeting Saturday evening adopted by-laws for their government and adjourned until Monday evening when they elected the following directors: L. W. Simmons, W. T. Jacquess, F. N. Clark, O. L. Palmer, J. A. Dubbar, B. A. Wheeler, D. B. Northrop, J. H. Woodman, J. B. McCracken, W. H. Young, L. W. Hudson and W. H. Yerkes. The directors have not yet yet to elect their officers. About 50 shares are taken at present and more can be had for a few days yet.

J. W. Jackson, of this village, went to Plymouth, a few weeks since, to purchase a horse. He went by railroad, bought the horse, and drove it to Constantine by a road he was accustomed to travel fifty years ago. At the point where in the old time he came rear being torn in pieces and devoured by wolves, a railroad now crosses the old highway. The low marshes and tamarack swamps remain much the same, but all else is changed. He thought of his contest with the wolves as he drove over the iron rails.—Id.

A young man has been working Clio, Otter Lake, Columbiaville and other places on the one dollar racket for a three dollar magazine. He is being inquired for by those that paid the dollar. People who buy gold dollars for 40 cents must expect to get left.

A few days ago while riding through two townships of this country, we were impressed with the appearance of two farms. Near the edge of the first a cultivator which had evidently been used and dropped in the edge of a marsh, was still there. As we neared the barns we noticed wagons and tools lying about promiscuously exposed to the weather. The barn doors were open and stock exposed to a storm which was raging, and everything about the place was in the same free and easy style. At the other farm an exactly opposite condition of things was noticeable. The owner of the first of these farms can be found in this city every few days talking to any one who would listen, about low prices, hard times and other things along that line and assuring everyone that it is an utter impossibility for a farmer to make any profits in his business. The owners of the other farm cleared $600 above expenses and supported two families last year. The first farm is several acres larger than the last. The teaching is right to the point and fully illustrates the cry which is heard on every hand and makes remarks needless.—Livingston Herald.

"I shall be in this vicinity for a month or six weeks, looking after a distribution of fish and eggs from the hatchery at Northville," said G. J. H. Moore, a member of the United States fish commission, who arrived at the Hotel Cadillac last evening. "The principal trout hatchery in this part of the country is the one at Northville, and the fry to be distributed consists largely of California, brook and Loch-leven trout. The eggs for this last variety were obtained from Scotland last season. Trout will be distributed from this station through the waters of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Kentucky and even as far south as Tennessee."

"I have just returned from Northville this evening, and the distribution has already begun. One of the United States commission's cars will arrive in Toledo tonight. About five hundred thousand white fish were sent today from Northville and will be loaded onto the car in Toledo. Their destination is Oregon and the Western territories, and this will be the first time white fish have been planted in those waters. The car also carries from six hundred to a thousand lobsters. That lobsters are no found on the Pacific coast is a fact which may not be known to many. The experiment of transporting them there was made last August for the first time, a number being planted on the California coast. It is too soon yet to say how the experiment will result, but we expect that it will be successful. The lobsters now being taken west are designed for the Oregon coast. The car is transported by the railroad companies free of charge. In fact, if it were not for the liberality of the railroads, the commission would be greatly crippled in its work. Our appropriation is $20,000 annually, but the work has grown until this is an insufficient sum.—Detroit Tribune.

Last Friday evening Will A. Fry, the milk man, received visitors he did not make welcome. He had been at a neighbor's to tea and on returning home alone his attention was attracted by a team standing in front of his house. About that time a man in the wagon gave a shrill whistle but Mr. Fry's suspicions were not aroused even then. He went on to the house and on entering discovered two men making a search of the place. They at once put the light out. He was brave and tackled one of them, the other hit him over the head with a chair which dazed him for a moment and the men started to leave. He got his revolver immediately and fired at the retreating men. One of them said "Oh, my God!" and left a trail of blood on the ground to the wagon. The three men drove east then very rapidly. Cold lead is good medicine for such men and it is a pity they do not get more.

Charles Tiffin has rented his farm just south of the village and will have an auction sale of his personal property Wednesday, Jan. 30. See bills for particulars. C. M. Thornton will swing the hammer.

There is a very dangerous five-dollar counterfeit bill in circulation, says the Detroit Evening News, and those fortunate enough to handle money of this denomination are very liable to be caught if not on the alert. The bill is of the department series of 1888, and is almost perfect in execution. It can be detected by the fact that in the cut of Gen. Grant, the engraving on the right lapel of his coat is rough, the studs are missing from the shirt bosom, and there is a distinct but very small white mark in the right hand corner of his mouth that does not belong there.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Northville, Jan. 14, 1889.
The village board met in adjourned session at the Council Room Monday evening, Jan. 14.

President Delph in the chair.
Present trustees—Brigham, Boyce, Simmons, VanZile, Waid and Woodman.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following bills were read and allowed:

J. A. Dubbar, for poets, $11.45
John Howell, care of engine, 5.00
The bill of W. T. Macomber for $1.35 laid on the table at last meeting was taken up and allowed.

A petition signed by 10 citizens for a sidewalk on the west side of Gorton Ave. and south side of Cady street west of the Cemetery was read and referred to the committee on sidewalks.

A petition signed by 11 residents of Center street asking to have the sign post of Geo. C. Hueston removed, was read and referred to the committee on lamps.

A vote of thanks was extended to W. H. Amble for procuring from the township rent for the Council room for election.

Motion made and carried that a reward of $10 be offered for information that will lead to the detection of parties breaking street lamps.

Motion made and carried that the committee on lamps be authorized to procure a new lamp to replace the one broken at the school house.

The committee appointed on the revision of the village ordinances offered the following ordinances which were adopted by the following vote:

Ordinances Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8 and 9 were passed (see elsewhere in these columns) by the following vote:
Yes—Boyer, Brigham, Waid, Woodman, VanZile and Simmons. None.

Adjourned to Monday Jan. 21, 1889.
E. R. REED, Clerk.

NORTHVILLE, MICH.

The best state that will be a good to the nation will doubtless be Dakota. Dakota is wondering just now whether she will be one state or two. The majority of the inhabitants seem to want the territory divided into two states. She is also worrying a good deal about what her new name shall be. A change of name is always an important matter to giddy young things whether they are territories or girls. It has been suggested that Winona should be taken as the name for the southern half and Dakota retained for the northern half. However, the people don't seem to take kindly to this. The name Dakota has long been synonymous with wild, so they want a name that will not have that meaning. How would North Hades and South Hades do? Or, if they object to being named like the Carolinas, Hades and Sheol might be suggested.

Lieutenant Nathaniel Lyon of Maine, thinks he has discovered the origin of water spouts, tornadoes and whirlwinds. They are caused, he says, by volcanic action. While living in the vicinity of two volcanoes in the northern part of British America he became positive of the source of these aerial disturbances: that they are generated by vacuum caused by flame of volcanoes. This vacuum, being left pendant in the air by the eruptions of the earth, forms the vortex of a swiftly revolving tornado or waterspout, and is carried by the prevailing winds over land and sea until the atmospheric equilibrium is restored and the force is spent.

The beef producer and butchers national association, with headquarters at Dallas, Texas, has set on foot a movement to re-establish competition cattle markets through the country, and to secure by legislation local inspection of cattle in the hoof for all towns and cities. Ostinately the purpose of the association is to place the business of cattle raising and slaughtering on a basis so as to secure the consumer the product at a low price. In reality, however, the efforts of the association are to return to the old methods of beef slaughter by local butchers which is now a privilege of the large beef-packing industries of the country.

The rapid rate of increase in the tide of immigration to this country, which for nearly three years kept up its flow, has been checked. The returns for the close of the current year will show an increase of about twelve thousand in the number of arrivals as compared with last year. But during the past few months there has been a perceptible decline. It is highly probable that the influx for the early months of 1889 will show a still further falling off in comparison with the corresponding months of this and last year.

Pawnee Bill, who takes the place of Captain Payne in leading the Oklahoma boomers, claims that he will have 10,000 settlers to follow his invasion. Among those not inclined to yield tamely to Pawnee Bill are the Cherokee Indians, the Cherokee Live Stock Association, who are paying $1000,000 a year rent for a five years' lease of the lands from the Indians, and the regular army that is on the ground to enforce law and order. The prospect for a peaceable invasion and capture of Oklahoma is still remote.

A year ago three young ladies of Rapid City, Dakota, met at dinner and vowed never to marry, agreeing at the same time to meet and dine together each year on the 23rd of December. On the 23rd of last month they met according to the agreement, but, strange to say, each had a companion whose name she wished to propose for membership to the club. It was a husband for each girl had married in the meantime, and the dinner that followed was one in which good cheer reigned supreme.

About 100 members of Gen. Harrison's old regiment—70th Indiana—will meet in the Willard hotel on March 4, and, as his guard of honor, will remain immediately about him till after his inauguration. Their uniform will be light brown overcoats, with Derby hats to match.

Intensive Farming.
Is it not possible to impress young farmers with the importance of what is understood to be "intensive farming?" The many articles in your valuable paper all point to better farming, of course, but intensive farming has features which many writers overlook, and beginners, in particular, ought to understand its character and to adopt it when it commends itself to their judgment.

What does it mean? Why, in brief, the greatest profitable amount of labor and expenditure that can be applied to the crops on a given area. It is exactly the reverse of "land skinning." That system impels the owner to own "all land next to him," and then to scatter his manure and labor over ten or twenty acres when it had better be applied to only one acre, or even less. It is a system which makes the crop from a field less and less each year, and the owner to keep lawling perpetually that "farming" don't pay. But it is a great, foolish, and unthinking farmer to own as much land as is possible, and the grip of fashion in farming is about as hard to break as the grip of fashion among silly young fellows as to smoking or drinking.

Many promising farmers sons and other country boys despair of success at farming, and shut it for the want of capital to start without a mortgage—and they are not far wrong, for a mortgage is a horrible thing. But intensive farming presents an opening for such, and were not their neighbors so senseless as to often cry it down and ridicule it it would often be adopted; but it is not easily certain to be volunteezed farming yet, and so no young man should be dissuaged.

What should he do? Buy a few acres, three, five or ten, according to his capital, but never so much that the land absorbs it all. If he has no money to purchase, he can buy a few acres on the farm, and also so much in addition to buy what the stock and tools are required.

The old maxim that "the farm should have less than a hundred horses" at least will hold at the close of the stock raising era, or the raising era; but the intensive young farmer will not pasture his stock—he knows better. He has no money to throw away on pasturing or fences, nor on his barnyard's roof and tons of manure are each year wasted. He will begin with one, two or three cows at first according to the market he has, or expects to make for his dairy products, and so on. He will know, too, when he buys them, something about their value and dry animals. No girl's work for him, when facts can be had.

What will he raise on such a farm? Why, such crops, of course, as will be suitable for his locality. The land, the climate and the markets must determine that, in part. In a general way, however, one can answer fruit, wheat, a pear orchard, say with the rows 50 to 40 feet apart, the space between heavily manured, and small fruits between, of which strawberries are the most reliable. Then, with thorough tillage, no weeds allowed to make seed, and mulching during the spring, everything will "boom" with growth. No fear need be felt about deep plowing, if practiced from the start.

Truck, too, will be raised for a crop rotation, or principally, if near a good market.

The dairy products, if good and reliable—as they naturally will be under such management—will all find a ready market. All the stable manure that can be had from the neighborhood, at living rates, will be bought and applied in addition to all that is made on the place. The cows will be furnished green fodder from the little farm, if such crop can be grown for less than green crops, or mill feed and hay can be bought; if not, the whole of the place will be used for fruit. A sensible man will not try to raise soiling crops in case, on the whole, it is cheaper to buy the feed. It takes much more labor to raise crops and to feed them than to use hay and mill feed, and that will be considered.

Under such management a few thousand dollars will not be tied up in farm machinery and tools. There will be no continuous outlay of cash and work in hideous fences; no time lost in driving cows each night and morning, and no waste by them of the fodder that it costs so much to raise; no loss of manure on the big way or in the barnyard. There is economy everywhere, and plenty of work, but no heavy investment of capital. The one extra item on such a place will be in the room and comfort provided for the stock.

A small capital will start such a place, but then, as profits come in and the way seems open, other acres can be added. The young wife will not have to "save her life out" to board a gang of hungry farm hands. At first, the husband can do most of the work alone, or all. Next, a stout young man, or a good man, will be wanted; and then perhaps boys grown on the place, and nice girls too, will lend a hand and push things.

These are only general hints, thrown out to suggest thought, but there is hope in the system. Young men need not go west, or shoulder a big mortgage at the east, and bear it until the burden makes them gray and tottering. It requires good sense and judgment, but to do all enterprises of this kind, the land-skinner system, the latter will go to its own place.

Raising Cows.
Very often cows can be purchased at a less cost than by raising them, and if the same quality in all respects could be secured this would be a better plan. The advantages of raising the calves, is that the farmer gets the benefit of his trouble and experience in selecting, mating and breeding. He secures to a much better extent the blood of his best stock. These are all important in securing good milk cows. While it is generally slow yet to a considerable extent it is possible to gradually improve really good cows by selecting out carefully the breeding stock, and properly mating.

To do this, so that the best possible results can be secured, experience is necessary, and the best experience is that learned from your own stock. If you have been selecting, mating and breeding under anything like average conditions, you ought to be able to secure better results with them than any one else, and if good judgment is used a more decided improvement can be made and here is another advantage. With stock of all kinds the feed and care have much to do with the proper development, and the farmer who feeds his stock so that a steady gain is secured will by feeding his own stock, be able to secure the full benefit. No other treatment will fully remove the effects of inferior when young. We may be able to develop a very good animal even after it has been started. At the same time a better animal would have been secured if a steady growth had been maintained from birth to maturity.

With calves that are to be kept for cows it is very important to secure the best development. The breed is very important and it is no inconsiderable item to mate carefully, but if these are given and yet proper care is not taken in feeding and cherishing, the best development will not be secured. The man who raises his own cows has the advantage of all this, if he chooses to take the pains to secure, and ought to be able to raise a better grade of cows than (as usually be purchased); and it is better to have the better quality even at an additional cost, than to have the cheaper animal and lower quality. And when selecting and breeding to improve every advantage should be taken to secure the best. And in the majority of cases the best calves that will make the best cows can be secured by mating and breeding the cows on the farm.

Agricultural Notes.
To make good whitewash use skim milk with lime instead of water, and it will be more durable.
A coating of linseed oil, applied to the outside of buildings, will prove of benefit. If colored in some manner it will nearly equal paint.

Aprils of mulching winter wheat, a correspondent of the Country Gentleman says: "When I was a boy, before the war, back in old Virginia it was common custom for farmers to scatter straw thinly over the poorest knolls of their wheat fields in the fall, and always with good results."
In speaking of naked fallows the Farm Home says: "A crop of ragweed on a subsoil field is a real blessing in protecting the soil from the scorching sunshine of August, which is the season that the process of nitrification shows the greatest activity." If it be necessary that the soil should be covered with vegetation let it be with something of greater value than ragweed, which is upon any farm, especially when allowed to go to seed, as the seed appear to hold their vitality in the soil for years.

Do not sell hay: it is the most unfortunate crop that we can sell from the farm, making an exceedingly heavy draft on the fertility of the soil for a very limited money return. The money value of the elements of plant food contained in a ton of timothy hay is $6.18; in a ton of clover hay $9.29. We cannot afford to go into the market and buy the chemicals which will produce these goods for the sums mentioned.

The roadsides, fence corners, rubbish, thickets and weeds should be completely cleared up not only for the advantage of the appearance, but because such are used as the harboring places of insects. Destruction to crops will follow neglect to clear out the growth in inaccessible places where the plow, cultivator and harrow cannot go. Then the hoe should be used, and fire made to consume everything that is a nuisance.

Every farmer should have a big patch of ruta-bagas or Swedes. They can be put in any time in June and a big crop be had. They are good for the cattle, hogs and sheep. They require but little work when the land is well prepared and enriched.

A "Really Truly" Story.
"Where's little Daisy hiding?"
"When papa wants a kiss!"
I asked, as I hunted all about.
She answered, "Here she is."
After awhile I asked again,
"Where can the girle be?"
"Behind the tiny, dimpled hands,
She answered, "Here she is."
Next day I said, "O where's my pet?"
"My baby's lost I fear."
"With ever sweet variety
She answered, "Here she is."
—Christian Advocate.

Lost His Religion.
A traveler through the woods of Tennessee came upon a "raw boned" man standing near a rivulet. The traveler asked the direction to the nearest railway station. The man looked up, gazed at the stranger for a moment and then said:
"If I was at myself I must tell you all about this country, but in my present trouble I can't think about no worldly matter."

"If you are in trouble I am sorry that I disturbed you," the traveler replied. "May I ask the nature of your difficulty?"
"Religion."
"Ah, unrelated in your mind concerning the true course to pursue."

"No, not that. I know all about the right course but ain't able to follow it. Well, I'll tell you all about it. I professed religion and joined the church about two months ago. I stop I mean the story and everything went on like a ball for a summer till about half a year ago."

"What occurred then?" the traveler asked.
"Why I lost my religion right here as I jumped across this branch."
"Now, what then?"
"No, it ain't no more. I come along here all right, but just as I jumped across this branch I heard snuff, and as I didn't try religion. Yes, sir, just as soon as it snapped I knowed what trash."

The traveler was amazed. This strange explanation of the lack of woodsman was new to him.
"What are you going to do about it?"

"Well, I'll better wait till the next projected meeting—about next fall or pullin' time—and by the mother's bench another while. If that don't patch me up I'm gone."—Arkansas Traveller.

Advice to "Palm."
Ex-Controller Allen Campbell, whose name has frequently been mentioned as a probable dock commissioner, is noted for telling a good story. Here is one of the late Commodore Vanderbilt he told me a few days ago:
"When Vanderbilt went abroad during the civil war he was entertained by many notables in England. Among the guests at one of the big houses besides the Commodore was Lord Palmerston. The English premier was quite taken with Vanderbilt, who was one of the handsomest Americans who had ever visited that country. But his conversation was not always carried on in the purest English. In discussing American affairs Lord Palmerston told the commodore something concerning a dispatch he had sent to the United States government. The latter listened very attentively until Lord Palmerston had finished and then astonished everybody by this advice:
"Palm, you hadn't order to writ that."—New York Star.

A Woman's Heart.
Anxious Mother—"What's the matter, Arthur?"
Adult Son—"I am desperately in love with Clara Vere de Vere, and I am afraid to risk my fate by proposing. I fear she does not care for me."
"I suppose she often speaks enthusiastically of her girl friends when talking to you?"
"Some of them."
"Are the ones she praises living in or near the city?"
"No—o, come to think. Some of them live out west, and the rest are on a five years' tour of Europe."
"Did she ever refer to any girl you meet as being 'sweet,' or 'pretty,' or 'lovely,' or anything of that sort?"
"No."
"She loves you."—New York Week-ly.

Discovery of Mosaic Agate Worth a Million Dollars in a Volcano.
An odd-looking genius, who is a guest at the Coleman House just now and frequently seen about other up town hotels, is William Cooper. He is a slender, wiry man, with a sandy beard, freckled face and twinkling eyes, who wears a brown beaver sombrero of Mexican pattern, by which he is distinctly marked out as different from the ordinary run of men in New York.

Mr. Cooper has just come from Mexico, where he has made important geological discoveries. He has been a great traveler. Some years ago he made an excursion up the Congo river, in Africa, between 700 and 800 miles, and brought back to Liverpool a valuable invoice of ivory and other African merchandise. He is a bonnie trader. Nearly two years ago he first went to Mexico, where his fluent use of the Spanish language made him perfectly at home, to look for opals and rare marbles for the New England Granite Works, which was using large quantities of rare stones in the construction and decoration of the interior of a great building on Broadway, this city.

Cooper went into southern Mexico and located at Esperanza, where he formed a partnership with a young Frenchman from New Orleans named Julio M. Chopin. Two hundred miles south of Esperanza is the volcano of Zempoatpetl, within whose crater the Indians penetrate in search of sulphur. One of these adventurous natives found and brought out of the crater a stone which came under the eye of Mr. Cooper and was purchased by him for a silver piece of small value, which has since proven to be a masterpiece of great and even fabulous value. Further exploration has disclosed the fact that the bottom of the crater is a solid bed of mass of mosaic agate, all of which has come into possession of Mr. Cooper and his partner. He is noted in speaking of his good luck, but in answer to inquiries as to how he got it:

"The volcano of Zempoatpetl was selected for the reason that it was the most fertile of the region, and the agate was discovered there from ordinary stone of that nature in the fact that it is more in the nature of the colors than the ordinary stone which is found in the river, and the agate was found and other stones were found and carried off by natives. An opportunity of getting the agate which has a peculiar look like a mosaic, with its crystals varying in color, is so arranged in the formation of the mosaic as to bring to the eye a suggestion of outlines of figures as delicately and perfectly drawn as if by the hand of a painter. No two pieces of the stone have yet been found alike. It is broken out in blocks of one to fifteen cubic feet. The crater is 150 miles from the nearest station on the railroad. The stone is transferred thither on heavy wooden sleds drawn by oxen. The trail is mountainous and rough. It takes 45 days to make a rough trip from the station to the mountain.

"I have studied up the history of the volcano somewhat. Tradition says that it broke out in eruption in the year 600 A. D., the beginning of our knowledge of the Toltec race. It continued an active volcano for about 500 years, during which time many pieces of mosaic formation were thrown out and picked up by the natives, by whom they were made into necklaces and other ornaments. The throne of King Xototl, who reigned in the twelfth century, was ornamented with fragments of mosaic agate from Zempoatpetl. The country round about the volcano is a wild one inhabited only by Indians. It is as unknown to the people of the United States as the jungles of Africa. The Indians are clean and for the most part honest. They make good house servants, and are nearly all religious. Their form of worship is Catholic."

In speaking of the discovery, El Nervio Florida, a paper published at Paxaca, makes this statement and suggestion:
"Sea shells were found in the crater of this volcano, which proves that it was connected with the ocean at one time, though at present it is more than 100 miles distant from the sea coast, and over 10,000 feet high. Could this mosaic deposit be the result of a volcanic eruption under the sea at one time, in which animal life was destroyed, and the bodies petrified in mass forming the strange deposit?"

El Comercio de Mexico computes the value of the deposit at $1,000,000. Pieces of the mosaic are now being set for exhibition.—Philadelphia Press.

TITLE IV

REGULATIONS CONCERNING STREETS, ALLEYS AND PUBLIC PLACES.

CHAPTER IX

Use of Streets, Alleys and Public Places.

THE PEOPLE OF THE VILLAGE OF NORTHVILLE ORDAIN:

SEC. 1. That no person shall remove, or cause to be removed, or aid or assist in removing any building, or other heavy and bulky article, into, along or across any street, alley or other public space...

SEC. 2. No person shall drive, lead, ride or back any horse, mule, ox, cow, cart or animal, or team, wagon, carriage, vehicles, bicycle, or along any sidewalk, in any public street, or other public place of this village.

SEC. 3. No person owning, building, or repairing any house or other building, shall permit any lumber, brick, plaster, mortar, earth, clay, sand, stone or other material, to remain on the sidewalk, after the set of the day upon which it was placed there...

SEC. 4. No person shall place by himself or another, any stone, timber, lumber, planks, boards, bricks or other material, in or upon any street, alley or other public space, except for the purpose of building, and not for that purpose except under permission first obtained from the common council.

SEC. 5. No person shall leave any horse, mule, oxen, or team in any street, alley or public space, without being adequately tied, and no person shall halt any wagon, cart, carriage or sleigh or other vehicle on any crosswalk or footwalk.

SEC. 6. No person shall rear up any crosswalk, or dig any hole, ditch or drain in any street, alley or public space, without permission first obtained from the common council.

SEC. 7. No person shall ride or drive any horse, carriage or sleigh or other vehicle through any street in this village at a rate faster than eight miles per hour, provided, that this section shall not apply to the driving of caddies and sleighs through Dunlap street, between the hours of two and five o'clock in the afternoon of any day except Sunday.

SEC. 8. No person shall play any game of ball or other games of a like nature in any street, alley or public space without permission from the common council.

SEC. 9. It shall be unlawful to gather in crowds on any sidewalk, or in any street, so as to obstruct travel over and along such sidewalk, or in said street, and no person shall stand or remain loitering upon the sidewalks or streets, adjacent to or in front of, or near any church, public hall, hotel or restaurant or other frequented public place, in this village.

SEC. 10. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons, to construct awnings on Main street or Center street, in this village, supported by posts resting on the sidewalk.

All awnings shall be supported from the building. No awning or cloth or canvass used in awnings shall be permitted to hang within six and one half feet of the sidewalk.

All awnings now supported by posts, are to be, and are hereby ordered to be removed, within ninety days from the date hereof, and that the marshal be, and is hereby ordered, to enforce the same.

SEC. 11. No person shall swim or bathe in any waters within the corporate limits of this village, unless such person is suitably attired, and while swimming or bathing conducts himself in a decent and orderly manner.

SEC. 12. No person shall permit any snow or ice to remain on the sidewalk in front, rear or side of any house, premises, building or lot owned or occupied by him or her, longer than twenty-four hours, after the same has fallen or formed; and where ice is formed on any sidewalk, such owner or occupant, as above provided, shall cause a sufficient quantity of saw-dust, salt, sand or ashes to be strewn thereon, in such a manner as to render it safe for persons walking thereon. In all cases where snow, ice or other obstructions, is or are in front of any lot or premises on any street, alley, or other public place, through any fault of the owner or occupant of such lot or premises, and are not removed within twenty-four hours, after notice from the sidewalk committee, to remove the same, the street commissioner shall forthwith effect the removal of the same, and the expense, thereof shall be assessed against such lot or premises, and such proceedings be had for collection as are required for repairing sidewalks. The notice to be given in such cases, shall be served upon the owner, agent or occupant of such lot or premises, and if they or either of them cannot be found, it shall be securely posted in some conspicuous place on such lot or premises.

SEC. 13. Any violation of the provisions of this ordinance, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs of prosecution. If the offender may be imprisoned in the Detroit House of Correction until the payment thereof, provided, however the term of such imprisonment shall not exceed ninety days.

Adopted and ordered published this 14th day of Jan. 1889. J. W. DOLPH, President. E. R. REED, Clerk.

DARK DEEDS

BY HENRY W. SPENCER

CHAPTER III (Continued) About five o'clock George Atwood led the way...

It was difficult for any ordinary person to go entering this labyrinth of a building...

John Blake thought of these things as he looked at the scene before him.

East of the city, a great deal of the night had been spent in the search for the fugitives...

With the exception of Atwood, the search party had been unsuccessful...

At last, the fugitives were traced to a small, dark, and dingy room...

George Atwood stepped forward, and with a look of perfect calm...

Atwood's eyes were fixed on the man who had just spoken...

George Atwood felt the edge of the blade upon his thumb nail...

Just the sort of thing," continued Sturgis, in a bantering tone...

Just the sort of thing," continued Sturgis, in a bantering tone...

Upon her return she was surprised to find Mary Elaine, awaiting her.

"It is all through those horrid societies to which he belongs," began Mary...

"The police," I will tell you why I think so. Some nights ago I noticed...

CHAPTER IV Several months past, and Mrs. Atwood's troubles...

What was to be done? George Atwood seemed utterly helpless...

"What is the case?" he remarked to his wife. "My husband is dead."

These things were said, George Atwood kept a watchful eye on the door...

"It was my husband," she said, "I would not have been a widow...

"Where can you go, Rube?" cried Eli. "You mustn't be seen here..."

"Who's there?" she asked me at last, as she unlocked the door...

"Will you do me a favor, Eli abeth?" said Delaney, slipping a half a crown...

"Two thousand pounds worth," George Atwood, as he regarded the man sitting opposite to him...

"What is it, Eli abeth?" asked Mr. Atwood. "Oh, nothing, sir..."
