HEAVEN AND EARTH.

BY FABER.

There are no shadows where there is no shade.
There is no beauty where there is no shade.
And all things in two lines of glory run,
Darker shades and light shades and golden light,
God commanding us through the shades of art.
And his dim track is like the silvery wake
Left by you piñace on the mountain
Pading and reappearing here and there.
The lamps and bells through Heavens and earth that move,
Go it and out as rulers of their light.
Like smaller stars upon my birth.
Death is the state of our life and love
Peculiar to her dearest sons the gods.
Because bright things are better seen in gloom!

DARK DEEDS.

BY HENRY W. NESFIELD.

"Oh," cried Elizabeth when they were safely out of hearing. "Mr. Delaney is in the kitchen." He came to the back way and knocked so that I say he wants to speak to you, and please don't tell master."

"Mr. Delaney?" I wonder what's the matter?" and Mrs. Atwood's heart beat quickly as she hurried down the stairs.

John Delaney was sitting near the kitchen table. His head rested on his hands, and he looked the very picture of misery.

As Mrs. Atwood entered, he looked up and she gave him a start—surprised a start as she noticed the haggard, worn expression in his face.

"Can I speak to you alone?" he murmured nervously.

"Yes. We need not remain outside a few moments. I have something private I wish to say to Mr. Delaney."

Elizabeth entered and she exchanged with Captain Sturgis—and at noon the boy.

"What is the name of good news?" said Captain Sturgis, "that I can tell you to look after my mother and sister when I am far away. I could have said good-bye to them even if I had been going for months. Tell them I am very very sorry—indeed broken-hearted—gone—but not told who is with them before I leave."

"But why must you go, Jack? What?"

"I cannot leave you till you I must go, and when I must leave London by this night train."

"Have you sufficient money?" asked Mrs. Atwood, inquiring to pass him as to the reason of his sudden departure.

"Yes—that is, we sufficient, I think, to take me away."

"Yes! I do not ask you to tell me anything—in fact, I will rather that you did not do so. As to your mother and I are they shall be to me as my own mother and my sister. Will that suffice? You're a good boy, Jack, when I say so!"

"Heaven bless you, Mrs. Atwood," replied Captain Sturgis. "I have given me the one bright spark of life to listen in a dark and life. I know when you say so that they will take a good kind friend to comfort them. As to money, my mother has had a certain sum both from want of her own to take the power to send them home, I well know that."

"I am sure you will rank. Whatever your fault may be want of affection for your mother is not one of them."

"Fourth" he replied, "by and for But he left the remainder of his sentence unfinished.

"I will—do say you must leave London by to-night's mail, it is now ten o'clock. You have nearly two hours yet to reach the station from which you are to go. I remain here a moment."

Mrs. Atwood left the kitchen, but returned in a few minutes.

"Now, you are not to go quite empty-handed. Take this," and said handing him a small packet. "There are three to e signs in it. It is all my own. Take it."

It was the money which he had received at morning. "I recollect she had told—the more with which she had hoped to stave off some of their embarrassments."

"No, I cannot take it," cried John Delaney, bursting into the tears. "I know too well what it is to you."

Jack" she said as he addressing a naughty child. "Take it once and don't be foolish. You can repay me by aiding."

"I will then," he replied, looking earnestly into her face, and I Heaven permits me I will repay you a hundred-fold not the money only, but the general debt as well."

"Now be off. This way. What is that you are shouting in the street?" she said, suddenly stopping as she was about to open the door. "Oh, it is only the newsboys."

"Newspapers" echoed Jack.

Gradually the hoarse cries became more and more distinct. Standing motionless as it attracted by the sounds, they listened, casting for one another eyes.

The shouts came nearer and nearer. The press papers stood out in bold upon Jack's forehead and his heart almost stopped beating as he listened to the words—

"The amateur explosion!" "Awful dynamite explosion!"

By degrees the voices faded away, and all was again still.

Neither of them had spoken for some minutes. Presently Mrs. Atwood broke the silence.

"It is it is that, Jack."

He made no answer, but slowly inclined his head.

"Good-bye, Jack—good-bye," she whispered; and may Heaven in mercy forgive you!"

Again her hands to his lips, he kissed them passionately then, with a sob, he hurried off into the darkness.

Suddenly the front door was thrown open, and a blare of light strained down the garden path, along which Delaney walked.

"Good night, then, Atwood," cried Captain Sturgis. "I'll look you up again shortly. I allow—why, there's Delaney! Who are you doing, my young Socialist, prowling about at this time of night?"

"He came with a message from his mother," interposed Mrs. Atwood, who was standing at the kitchen door.

"He can see me into a cab then," exclaimed the Captain. "I know he goes part of my way. Good night."

Captain Sturgis took John Delaney's arm, and the two started off in the direction of the cab stand.

"You can give me a lift if you like," said Delaney.

"Why, are you going down town to-night?" asked Sturgis.

"Yes; I have some law-work to do at the office of the paper I am on."

"Jump in then: I go as far as Pall Mall."

"Pleaseable Circus will do me," replied Delaney, "if you will kindly put me up about there."

On arriving at the Circus, Captain Sturgis said he thought he would like to stretch his legs, so having dismissed the car the two men walked away in the direction of Pall Mall.

It was long after Captain Sturgis and Jack Delaney had left the house in Dr. John's Wood, and Mrs. Atwood had retired to her room.

She sat quietly in her arm-chair, with her hands clasped upon her knees, as if in the deepest meditation. George Atwood had remained almost毫不conscious since his wife had hidden him good night.

Sadly, as is he, but determined upon some course of action, he rose, and putting on his hat and overcoat, readily opened the hall door and left the house.

for eating. The morning paper lay upon the table. Seizing it with trembling hands, she glanced at the head-line of the news.

"Yes—there it was. The shouts of the newsboys were only too true. 'The Dynamiters—Attempt to Blow up the House of Parliament'." This was the heading of the paragraph which met her eyes.

"I am by you, George," she replied, as the tears welled up into her eyes.

"You are to me my wife, my best friend, my only love."

"You will never know the love I have for you, George—but I am not afraid of you, darling," she continued, smiling to tuck up into his face. "You too could be in the same position as poor John Delaney is in this day."

George Atwood shifted his position uneasily, but he made no response.

"At length, putting his wife upon the head affectionately he said—

"We had better go in and see the Peletiers—I suppose we shall have to answer all sorts of questions. Say he is as bare—

"but for them, we will be certain to find out—but don't tell them more. Say he came in as he often does of an evening."

"But how shall we account for his coming up-stairs?" asked Mrs. Atwood, only too willing to screen the unhappy young man from all disgrace.

"Captain Sturgis will know, if he is asked, that Jack was not in the sitting-room at all."

"Captain Sturgis will say nothing; I will see to that," declared George Atwood.

"The interview with the police was a painful one. It transpired that the police had set a close watch upon the house, and had no intention to dislodge the inmates without a struggle.

TITLE V.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

CHAPTER XII.

Board of Health.

THE PEOPLE OF THE VILLAGE OF NORTHLVILLE, ORDAIN:

SEC. 1. The board of health shall have power, and it is hereby made their duty:

1. To make diligent inquiry with respect to all nuisances, of every description, in said village, which are, or may be, injurious to the public health, and to abate same.

2. To stop, detain and examining every person coming from a place infected with a pestilential or infectious disease.

3. To cause any person, not a resident of this village, who is infected with any infectious or pestilential disease, to be sent back to the place from whence he or she came, or to the pest house.

4. To cause any person, a resident of this village, infected with any pestilential or infectious disease to be removed to the pest house. If in their opinion the removal of such person be necessary for the preservation of the public health, and can be effected with safety to the patient.

5. To rent or take possession of a proper house to be used as a pest house, to employ nurses, and to provide necessaries for said pest house.

6. To exercise general supervision over the health and sanitary condition of the village.

SEC. 2. Every physician, who shall have a patient, in this village sick with diphtheria, scarlet fever, small-pox or any other infectious, contagious or pestilential disease, shall forthwith report the fact to the board of health. Provided, that if the patient be a county or township charge, that fact also, shall be reported by the physician to the board of health.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the occupant of any house, in which there shall be any infectious or contagious disease, to put up and maintain, in a conspicuous place, on the front of said house, a card, to be furnished at the expense of the board of health, giving notice of said infectious or contagious disease. And in case of the failure of the occupant of said house, to put said notice as aforesaid; then it shall be the duty, first, of the attending physician, and second, of the board of health to post said notices as aforesaid.

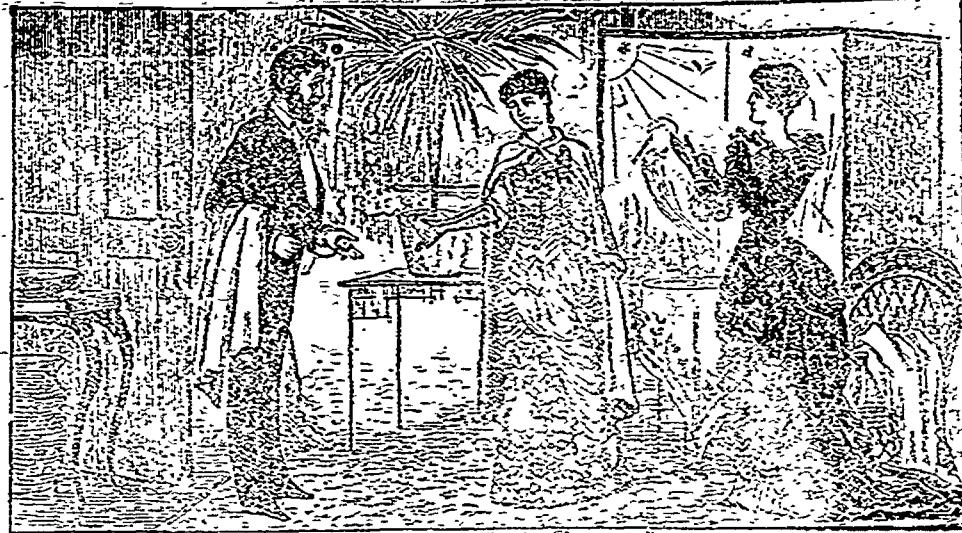

SEC. 4. All persons having any contagious or infectious disease, are hereby required to keep closely within their respective places of abode, and no person who has been convalescent with such disease, shall leave his or her place of abode and go about the village without permission from the board of health.

SEC. 5. Every physician and every nurse having in charge a patient sick with diphtheria, scarlet fever, small-pox or with any other contagious or infectious disease, and every druggist, and every person acting in an official capacity, immediately after every visit to such patient, shall change his or her clothing, and otherwise disinfest himself or herself, and every undertaker having in charge the burial of the body of any person having died of such disease, immediately after the interment thereof, shall change his clothing, and otherwise disinfect himself.

SEC. 6. Immediately after the termination of a case of diphtheria, scarlet fever, small-pox or other infectious or contagious disease, by the convalescence or death of the person or persons so afflicted, it shall be the duty of the attending physician, and in case no physician has been in attendance, then of the board of health, to examine the bedding, clothing and wearing apparel of the convalescent or deceased person, as the case may be, and shall order all such articles to be disinfected by washing, or the use of such disinfectants as may be necessary. And it shall be the duty of the board of health, after having made an appraisal, to order the destruction by fire of such other articles, to wit: goods, wares and merchandise, as to their opinion cannot be disinfected.

SEC. 6. The board of health shall keep a complete record of all its proceedings, and expenses and charges for services rendered, and such record shall at all times be open to the inspection of the common council, and all bills for expenses and services rendered shall be audited by the common council, and shall be paid from the general fund, of the village, in the same manner as other bills are paid.

SEC. 8. In the case of the death of any person from diphtheria, scarlet fever, small-pox or other infectious or contagious disease, the body of such person shall not be taken to or inside of any church, public building or other public place, nor to any private residence, or building other than that where said death occurred, but such body shall be privately conveyed to any proper cemetery, between the hours of seven o'clock in the evening and seven o'clock the following morning, and therein, buried without any public demonstration (continued on next page)

CHAPTER XIII.

Nuisances.

THE PEOPLE OF THE VILLAGE OF NORTHLVILLE ODESSA:

SEC. 1. No person shall by himself or by another, throw, place, deposit or leave in any street, highway, lane or public place any animal or vegetable substance, dead animal, fish, shells, shavings, paper, dirt, rubbish, excrement, filth, slops, unclean or nauseous water, bay, straw, ashes, cinders, stool, offal, garbage, swill or any other article or substance whatever. In the case of any alley or street where any substance above named shall exist, lie, or have been deposited, it shall be the duty of every owner or occupant of any lot or premises, within twenty-four hours after having been notified by a health officer of the village, or the village marshal, so to do, to remove from the half of said alley or street, adjoining said lot or premises, all such substances.

Sec. 2. No person shall keep, place or have, on any private lot or premises, or in any private house or building in this village, or within any distance therefrom, which will allow the articles and substances hereinafter named to create a nuisance, to wit: any dead carcass, putrid, offensive or rancid beef, pork, fish, hides, skins, bones, horns, stinking or rotten grease, tallow, offal, garbage or other animal or vegetable matter or substance which may cause any unwholesome, nauseous or offensive smell to any inhabitants of this village.

Sec. 3. Whenever any dumb animal shall die within the limits of the village, the owner or person in possession of it, shall within twelve hours thereafter cause the carcass to be removed, to a place provided therefor by the common council, or to a satisfactory distance beyond the village limits.

Sec. 4. No owner of any grocery store, cellar, shop, butcher-shop, slaughter house, stable, barn, privy, sewer, private house or other building or place, shall allow any nuisance to exist or remain on his or her premises; nor shall any person or persons or corporation operating, owning, occupying or using any public or private street, alley, or way or any premises whatever, within the limits of the village of Northville create or maintain any nuisance thereon.

Sec. 5. Every person slaughering bees, sheep, hogs or other animals, within the village limits, shall cause the house, yard or place where such killing is done, to be thoroughly washed and cleaned at the end of each day, where killing has been done. And no person shall allow or permit any nuisance, whatever, to exist on his or her premises. And no melting or rendering house, and no place of manufacture, or other business giving rise to obnoxious odors, except as may be ordered, shall be established or used as such within the corporate limits of this village, except by the written permission of the common council.

Sec. 6. No person shall allow any green or salted field to remain on any street, road, or other open place within the village longer than six months.

Sec. 7. No person or persons shall confine hogs, oxen, cattle or other animals in pens, enclosures or otherwise, so as to breed, off-spring, or rear them for sale, in any location within the limits of the village of Northville.

Sec. 8. Every dwelling house, store, manufactory, shop, hotel and place of amusement, hereafter built in the village of Northville, shall be provided with a suitable privy.

No privy, privy vault, cesspool or any reservoir into which a privy, water closets, sink, stable, laundry or other filth is drained, shall be placed near a water right, which be located or permitted within fifty feet of any well, a spring or other source of water used for drinking or bathing purposes.

It is recommended that every privy or reservoir of this kind be located at a distance of one hundred feet from any well or spring used for the above mentioned purposes.

The box system for privy is recommended, consisting of a tight box with a draw, the draw to be taken out and the contents buried every week, and the privy to be disinfected with ashes or other appropriate materials twice a week.

Sec. 9. Should the owner or occupant of any dwelling house, store, manufactory, shop, hotel or other place of abode, refuse or neglect to construct or build a suitable privy, the common council may cause such a privy to be constructed on such dwelling house, store, manufactory, shop, hotel, etc., and the expense thereof shall be charged as a special tax or assessment on the above mentioned building or buildings, and the ground attached thereto, to be levied and collected in the same manner as other assessments imposed by authority of the common council.

Sec. 10. No animal affected with plagues or other infections or contagious disease shall be brought or kept within the limits of this village, except by permission of the board of health; and no diseased animal or its flesh, and no decayed, deceased or unfit meat, fish, vegetable or fruit or impure or adulterated milk or other articles shall be sold or offered for sale as food.

Sec. 11. Any violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and the costs of prosecution; and in the imposition of any fine and costs, the court may make a further sentence, that the offender be imprisoned in the Detroit House of Correction, until the payment thereof. Provided, however, that the imprisonment shall not exceed the term of ninety days.

Adopted and ordered published this 21st day of Jan. 1889.

The following we clip from the Mt. Pleasant Leader, which we think is worthy of publication: "Remember regard to the small pox and other contagious diseases. Proper precautions succeeded by the bitter cold of winter, should always be taken when such enters unbidden the home of poverty. Diseases are prevailing, but do not let the abode of want. There are children whose lives are almost wholly cheerless, whose homes lack even the commonest comforts of life. Fortunately there are but few of these in this vicinity. But still we always have some with us. We may not ask whose fault it is that these little ones suffer. It is not for us to refuse charity because those whose conditions render them fit objects have become so through the unscrupulousness of those of kin. It is our duty to act the good Samaritan without pausing to inquire how the wounded men came to fall among robbers. If you know of any needy poor let it be known and render them all the aid in your power. Remember you may meet with adverse circumstances some day and may need the aid of charity."

Onions are cheap enough this year so everybody can afford to be healthy according to this item: "A prominent physician was seen buying a barrel of onions and being enquired about his purchase, said: 'I always have boiled onions for dinner for the benefit of my children. I like onions, too. They are the best medicine I know of for preventing cold. Feed them raw, fried, boiled or baked—to the children three or four times a week, and they'll grow up healthful and strong.' Ladies contemplating an invitation to a party are not expected to peruse

NORTHVILLE

MICH.

Reported at a late meeting of the Boston Society for Psychical Research: "A gentleman, whose sister was dead, sat writing at her desk, when suddenly there sat at his side his sister, thoroughly life-like, even to the color and liquidity of her eyes and cheeks. The apparition startled him. It disappeared as oddly as it had come, and the gentleman was much pleased with it. He told the circumstances to the family, and then remembered seeing on one of his sister's cheeks a red scratch, as if it were but recently made. At this his mother became greatly alarmed and excited. The cause of this was made apparent when she revealed that, although no such scratch had ever appeared upon the daughter's face while living, it had been made by the mother herself accidentally in arranging the daughter's body after she had died."

It is interesting to an American to know many of the intelligent young postmasters and clerks in Egypt are graduates of that educational institution founded by American liberality and scholarship, in Beirut, the Syrian Protestant College. The administration of the postal affairs in Egypt presents a most striking contrast to that of Turkey. A sealed letter will not be transmitted from one part of Constantinople to the other. Some of the mail carriers can not read, and the old system is still in vogue whereby there is an English, an Austrian, an Italian, and a French postmaster in Constantinople as well as a Turkish.

There can be but little doubt but that the Chinese government is trying to keep the Chinese away from the United States. Now that emigration from China to America is suspended, the Chinese council is bending its energies to recall its subjects in this country. A secret circular has been issued to the faithful commanding them to return to their homes. It is more than probable that the Chinese residents of America and Australia will wind up their affairs gradually, and within ten years there may not be a Chinaman in either country.

The career of a government clerk is fairly typified in the case of James Ewell, the veteran of the war department. He began working for the United States in 1829 at $800 a year. In 1836 he was given $1,000 a year; in 1850, $1,200; a year; from 1861 to 1858 he was paid $1,500, and the next year he was promoted to $1,600. In 1864 he was given $1,800, and in 1865, on account of advancing age, was reduced to $1,600. There he is now at about 80 years of age, and there he will die, unless, perhaps, he live long enough to suffer further reductions.

They know the value of babies in Boston. A physician in that city who saved a baby from the attack of a vicious bulldog has just recovered a verdict at the hands of a discriminating jury of $7,000. The doctor was badly bitten and bruised in the conflict with the dog; he lost several weeks of valuable time from his practice; and his nervous system was so shattered that he frequently goes through the same terrible struggle in his dreams. On the whole the verdict does not seem an extravagant one.

Somebody has taken the trouble to inform the world that Queen Victoria is a very hard worker. She breakfasts at 9 and then spends the morning dictating letters to her secretary. At 2 p. m. she takes luncheon, then holds a court ceremony, and afterward indulges in a short drive. She does not dine until 9 p. m. As her mail is enormous, she really gets through a vast amount of work in a day. Once in a while questions of state of some importance require her attention. The fact is that she has no successor.

Ireland no longer sends the greatest number of emigrants to this country, being behind Scotland and England. During last September and October the number of emigrants from these countries was three times the number from Ireland. During the 10 months of 1868 ending in October there came 277,314 English and Scotch emigrants, against 159,773 from Ireland. The future from Italy also bids fair to over shadow that from Ireland.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Lieut. Gov. McDonald One of the Killed.

Two Guards Killed—Several Injured.

As the east-bound passenger train on the Northwestern railroad neared Elkhorn, a station sixteen miles east of Waterford, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, one of the trucks under the rear coach broke and threw the coach off the track. The coach was derailed about five car lengths, when it struck a stump and was smashed to pieces, killing or injuring all the occupants. The killed are: James H. McDonald, Lieutenant-governor of Michigan; William Cochran of Escanaba; H. H. Tait, Cleveland, O. The wounded are: Mr. Petty, Beaser of Ashtabula, N. W., spine, fractured very badly; Mrs. McCure of Waterford, wife of the train-brakeman, badly cut and severely torn; Mrs. E. P. Foster of Iron Mountain, severely cut in the head and injured spine; Conductor H. Armstrong injured in head and leg broken.

Mr. O. C. Davidson of Commonwealth at the time of the accident was playing cards with Lieut. Gov. McDonald, Mr. Tait, and Mr. Cochran. He says that the first intimation that he had that anything was wrong was a jolting sensation on the car which swayed two or three times and then turned on its side. He remembered nothing more till he found himself 200 or 300 feet in the rear of the train in the snow. It seems that the car is turned over and a stump which penetrated between the two who were playing cards. Mr. Tait, who was sitting in the seat to the rear of the table, was instantly killed. His neck being broken. Mr. McDonald was torn out of the shoulder and was found at least 40 feet from the body. He lived about one hour and was conscious for a few minutes.

The whole side of the car was torn off by the second stamp and it seems difficult to say which penetrated the car.

The dead were picked up and carried to Waterford. A special train conveyed the bodies of Mr. McDonald and Mr. Cochran to Escanaba, where they resided. The remains of Mr. Tait were taken to his home in Cleveland, O.

The message informing Gov. Luce of the fatal accident to Lieut. Gov. McDonald contained no particulars. He immediately wired Mr. McDonald as follows:

"I am this moment intercept of a telegram announcing the death of my dear friend, Lieut. Gov. McDonald. I enclose my sincere sympathy to assure you that Michigan will mourn with you in this irreverent loss." (Signed) G. G. Luce.

Gov. Luce has issued the following:

State of Michigan,
Executive Chamber.

An unfortunate telegram announced the sad death of Lieut. Gov. James H. McDonald at Elkhorn, Mich., on Saturday, Jan. 12, 1869.

"A grand man has gone" are the simple words awaiting the lips of all who knew him. He will be recognized everywhere for utterance and bearing, a model heart, a master of principle, whose virtues are worthy of emulatio[n] and whose life without the stain of dark blemish. I do not feel fitted to make that proper obituary speech which I have on the day of his funeral.

This fat in modern times is far less popular than formerly. Even the fat of the hog has lost much of its former value, by reason of the competition of preparations of cotton-seed oil and other substitutes. Fat of hogs gets now less of its commercial value from its abuse in making fraudulent bacon. That fact, it is hereby intimated that the fat of all parts of the body of the animal, and especially on the inner sides, is fat more likely to pile more fat upon the inside of the animal, and especially on the inner sides. Fat of hogs gets now less of its commercial value from its abuse in making fraudulent bacon. That fact, it is hereby intimated that the fat of all parts of the body of the animal, and especially on the inner sides, is fat more likely to pile more fat upon the inside of the animal, and especially on the inner sides. This fat in modern times is far less popular than formerly. Even the fat of the hog has lost much of its former value, by reason of the competition of preparations of cotton-seed oil and other substitutes. FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1889.

A young rascal in Vassar sent his grocer down cellar to draw a pint of molasses while he engaged in stealing a couple of dozen eggs, concealing them in his pockets. Mr. Grocer "caught on to the scheme," however, before the egg thief left the store, and seizing a washboard, swatted his nibs over the pockets right and left, smash-ing the eggs into a pulp, and turned the victim into the street, his pockets streaming with yeks of eggs—a horrid example of thievery.

A great many people think a newspaper should have about a page of local news whether anything happens or not. Deluded mortals! Local editors cannot make people break their necks, commit suicide or do any other of the exciting things that go to make up the material out of which the local reporter delights to weave paragraphs furnishing domestic news when there is none is very like extracting blood from a turnip. Let those who grumble send us what news they know and we will gladly publish it.

We copy the following good thing from an exchange. Read it carefully, parents: Before listening to the complaints of your children about the partiality and fiendishness of their teachers, and getting all worked up and excited over it, it were better to reflect a little. Recollect that your one and half a dozen clerks drive you crazy half the time, and bear with the teacher who is making for you intelligent men and women of an unpromising material as you were yourself twenty or thirty years ago. Recollect that besides your boy, who of course, all know is an angel, she has to contend with that boy of your neighbor, and you know equally well what a terror it is.

PLYMOUTH.

Aisted Lapham's son made them a visit last week.

Miss Edith Coler of Salem, was in town last week visiting friends.

We are to have another Iron Factory here at the Iron Wind-Mill Co.'s works. Particulars later.

It is reported as a fact that there is to be a dance in the stone house just completed for J. H. Benner. The boys say a door price of $1.00 must be charged to the tune of "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning."

The High School Lyceum was highly entertained by an exhibition of some views and comic slides by Prof. A. C. Brower, Monday night. There never has been a teacher here that endeavored to do more for the profit and pleasure of his pupils than Prof. Brower.

It is a busy scene just at present at Masonic and Odd Fellow's hall. The stairs and entrance are being changed and the ante rooms moved back and the lodge made into a better shape having no protruding corners and being considerably larger. Both orders confidently expect the "Goat" to greatly increase his speed around the room and he who rides without falling off will be crowned with honor and respect.

The meetings and interest still continue at Newburg. Elder Palmer, of Didsborough is also present this week and new converts are being made every night. Let every christian try and attend and help by their presence if in no other way the good cause. Especially should every Methodist be ready and willing to uphold their pastor when God is using him to carry on so great a reformation. There are in a little over two weeks only, twenty-three converts.

The partition wall in the cellar between the buildings occupied by W. A. Bassett and R. G. Hall has been giving way for some years and has been propped up to prevent it falling down. C. G. Curtis with some men are putting in needle bars through the wall and keeping them up tight so as to hold up the two story brick wall above while the masons can relay the foundation. This is a matter of public interest inasmuch as the north side of Amity hall rest upon this foundation and it was so defective that some of it fell down when the props that were against it were taken away. This ought to have been attended to before but it seems that the owners of the buildings put it off on account of the expense until one of the occupants made a decided kick.

A SCRAP OF PAPER SAVES HER LIFE.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time. She weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, she got a sample bottle, it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy plump, weighing 120 pounds. For fuller particulars and stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fox Street, Trial bridge of this wonderful discovery, see at A. N. Randolph's drug store.
