LOOSE'S RED CLOVER PILE REMEDY.

Is a positive specific for all forms of the disease. Blind, Bleeding, Itching, Ulcerated, and Protruding Piles.—Price 50c. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston.

JOSLIN, ILL.

J. M. Loose Red Clover Co.—I purchased a box of your Red Clover Pile Ointment of F. P. Goliday, at this place, after using various other ointments without effect. I used several applications of the Red Clover Ointment and have not had any trouble since. I now believe I am permanently cured. My case was not one of the worst, but I have suffered with them over a year, and bled so much I became greatly reduced in flesh. Your ointment acted miraculously, and I am only too glad to speak to the many sufferers of this painful disease. If it cures all who use it as quickly as it did me, you will sell a great deal of it. But I am convinced your Pile Ointment was made to cure, and not like the many others I have tested, to cure, and not like the many others I have tested, to defraud. It is a pleasure to me to say, the Red Clover Pile Ointment has been a priceless blessing to me, and I know it will prove such to others who will try it. Respectfully, I. V. PARK.

TOWN TALK.

Dr. E. N. Root is spending the week in Detroit.

$1,000 to loan on real estate at six per cent interest.

School commenced Monday morning with an average attendance.

Mrs. John Harmon had a poorer spell last week but is better now.

Frank N. Clark is spending the week with his wife on Mackinac Island.

Myron White left Wednesday evening on a prospecting tour to Washington.

We have no space for the communication alleging to expose a scandal in town.

A. S. Huff has been canvassing for the art album company of Battle Creek for the past few weeks.

The organ factory have just closed a contract for a $3,000 organ for a Methodist church at Johnstown, Pa.

Mrs. L. E. McRoberts and Mrs. Jas. Sessions were called to Ypsilanti Friday by the death of their sister, Mrs. Deibel.

Miss Jennie Babbitt was chosen by the board to take the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Nellie Wald.

Dr. Avery was called away last Friday to the bedside of his father who has been very sick at his home at Stockbridge.

Charles Rogers has commenced the building of a new house west of the residence of his father-in-law's—C. M. Thornton's.

Rev. L. G. Clark, of this place, and L. P. Bickford, of Wixom, will exchange pulpits next Sunday—morning and evening.

E. W. Smith has sold his stock of bazaar goods at Hastings and will move to Kent City where he will clerk for his brother-in-law.

Father Broegger preached his farewell sermon at St. Mary's church on Wednesday. It is said that a young priest from Milford will be sent here.

Wayne Review.

The young Jesse James boys who have been breaking into houses in the west part of the village have been discovered. The officers caught them last evening and they confessed.

We are indebted to E. A. Babbitt for a copy of the Marquette Mining Journal giving an interesting account of the capture of Holzhay the daring train and stage robber who terrorized the upper peninsula with his deeds.

About sixty-five ladies of the Plymouth and Northville W. C. T. U. unions met at the residence of Mrs. E. R. Reed Wednesday afternoon. They had their tea served on the lawn and evidently passed a very enjoyable time.

Rev. Dr. Hudson is in attendance at the annual session of his conference at Bay City. There will be preaching in his church next Sunday morning and evening however. The pulpit will be supplied by some minister sent from the seat of conference.

Justus H. Rathbone, of Alexandria, Va., the founder of the order of the Knights of Pythias lectured in the Presbyterian church last Wednesday evening. The first meeting of that order was held in Washington, D. C., in 1864, with only five persons present. Now there are 265,000 members and the order is growing very rapidly.

Even the manufacture of flour has its craze. For the past few years every thing has been roller process and most of the mills of the country have been changed to that plan but now there is a tendency back to the old stone flour. The different processes of manufacture are receiving scientific discussions and something new will have to be invented to suit the everchanging fancies and whims of the epicurean.

Joe Hetley returned from Washington Tuesday, where he has been prospecting for several weeks. Joe looks prettier and fatter than ever, but don't think Washington the best place on earth for his family. He has invested in a homestead and some village property and will wait for it to grow into a fortune. Joe can interest you with big fish and snake stories as well as the old boomers of the excited west.—South Lyon Excelsior.

A SUDDEN CALL.

HENRY PARMENTER KILLED BY THE CARS SUNDAY MORNING.

Early Sunday morning the community were shocked to learn that Henry Parmenter, of this place, oldest son of Philander Parmenter and wife, had been found dead beside the railroad track at the depot with the back of his head crushed in.

Henry had been spending Saturday evening with the boys around town and at nine o'clock he with others went to Plymouth on the late train. There they spent most of the evening at Streng's hotel and went to the crossing at about 2 a. m. to take a train home. A through freight train came along and they got on intending to jump off while the train was running this station.

When they got opposite the Ely factory William Hunt jumped off on the cinders and was not hurt. He thought Henry did not get off but went on through and he went home. But when opposite the platform Henry evidently attempted to jump off but was drawn under the wheels and the back part of his head run over and was undoubtedly killed instantly. Two trains passed by before he was found.

Justice Blackwood was notified and summoned a jury consisting of J. M. Burgess, J. H. Woodman, W. H. Ambler, W. W. Wendell and A. H. Kohler who viewed the remains and adjourned to Monday afternoon, when after examining a number of witnesses found a verdict that he came to his death while trying to get off a train while it was running at a high rate of speed.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist church on Monday afternoon, sermon by Rev. Dr. Hudson. He was twenty-three years of age and unmarried.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

The attendance was not as large at the school meeting Monday evening as last year. The Director made the report of the school board for the past year which was referred to a committee consisting of Chas. Booth, E. K. Simmonds and E. R. Reed with instructions to publish it.

The board recommended the raising of $900 by special tax for the purpose of paying janitor, repairs and incidentals which was voted. $938 were voted to pay the first bond and interest becoming due Jan. 1, 1890 for the erection of the school house.

Spencer Clark was elected a trustee for the coming three years.

OUR NEW POSTMASTER.

Edward S. Horton received his commission as postmaster last Friday and as Monday was the first of the month he assumed his duties then. Mr. Horton is an old hand at the business and feels quite at home. Northville has had but few postmasters during her day and only the present ingoing and outgoing ones are alive. H. M. Perrin acted as such in the early days when he gave place to D. H. Rowland who for many years filled the place. He was succeeded by Josiah Chase who had to give place to W. D. Whalen at the political change of the government when A. Lincoln was elected president. In 1868 under the Andrew Johnson regime Edward S. Horton was appointed and served until Dec. 1885 when a democratic administration asked him to step down and out for J. H. Woodman who now retires for Mr. Horton.

For a number of years after Mr. Horton took the office his salary was $380 and it is only in the past few years that it has been up anywhere near the present figure. Now the office pays about $1,200 per year but out of that the clerk hire has to be paid, and part of the rent and fuel.

Mr. Horton was born in Massachusetts in 1843 and moved to Northville with his parents in '56. For three years he worked at the blacksmith business in the shop now owned by J. Palmer and for two years in the St. Johns Republican office. He enlisted in Co. D, 5th Mich. Cav. as a corporal but afterward went into the band. His leg was hurt in the engagement at Yellow Tavern by his horse falling and for months he was in the hospital on his back trying to get the gangrene out of his leg and system. He has been lame ever since from the wound and it grows worse as he grows older. After he was discharged he attended school here a year and then clerked in James P. Donaldson's drug store (where A. M. Randolph is now) until the government called him to its service in '68. Mr. H. has always held the confidence of his fellowmen and has filled well the places he has been called to. He will make an acceptable p. m.

Capt. J. H. Woodman who has been feeding at the government crib for the past four years was born on a farm in Novi in 1842 where he lived until the war broke out when he enlisted in Co. I, 22 Mich. Inf. as a private. For meritorious conduct he was promoted through the different positions to that of Captain. He was with Sherman on his famous march to Atlanta. He has the remarkable record that he was with his regiment during all of its engagements, never was wounded, never was sick nor took a drop of medicine while in service and never was excused from service. After his discharge he settled on a farm in Novi and lived there teaching winters until he moved to Northville twelve years ago. From that time until he was appointed p. m. by President Cleveland he followed the business of building and carpentering. He has made a good postmaster and retires with the confidence of everyone. He is a good citizen and the Record hopes he will not move from Northville.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

NORTHVILLE RECORD, SEPTEMBER 9, 1869.

Winfield Scott planted on his farm 3 lbs early rose potatoes, and has realized from the crop 1 1/2 bushels.

Wheat is being threshed and turns out well, frequently a yield of 30 bushels to the acre. Oats, from 50 to 60 bushels.

Miss Adelaide Dibble has disposed of her millinery stock and retired from the business. The rooms are now occupied by Dr. James Houston as an office.

Mr. Benj. Gardner will accept our sincere thanks for the present of a basket of peaches. The fruit was very nice indeed and came very acceptable.

Mrs. Lucinda Gardner & Miss Fora Clarkson have opened a millinery and dress-making store in the lower part of the building lately occupied as a dwelling by Josiah Wilkins on Center st.

The old Northville hotel opens again as a public house this week, under the management of Charles Houk. We will then have two hotels, the other being conducted by J. W. Elliott.

Quite a number of our citizens, the greater part ladies, have just returned from a week's excursion to the Island of Mackinac. One of the S. Gardner's boats conveyed the party. They report that notwithstanding the weather, going up, was such that a close attention to berths was very desirable, still each and all enjoyed themselves to their utmost, and express their readiness and determination to repeat the trip at the first opportunity.

The annual school meeting of our union school district was held on Monday evening last. J. D. Yerkes and A. H. Dibble were elected trustees for three years in place of Rev. J. C. Baker and L. W. Hutton whose term expired. A meeting of the trustees was held immediately after the annual meeting and the following were elected officers for ensuing year: Dr. Swift, chairman; F. R. Beal, secretary; D. Clark, treasurer. The school opened on the morning of the same day with a good attendance.

A friendly game of base ball was played on these grounds Monday p. m. 30th ult between the "Lone Star" of Plymouth and "Eclipse" of Northville, resulting a victory for the latter club. The following is the list of players:

Lone Star.	Eclipse.
D. Smith,	C. Coldren,
F. Rodgers,	H. Whitaker,
G. Smith,	F. Scott,
M. Weeks,	J. Evans,
W. Burrows,	G. Wicks,
A. Roe,	W. J. Little,
F. Voorhes,	A. C. Gardner,
G. Shaffer,	D. H. Downer,
John King,	M. B. Webster,
Umpire, H. C. Hart of Plymouth.

Scorers, King Ambler for the eclipse and C. Miller, for the lone star.

THE STATE.

A PRISON PLOT.

Irving Latimer Believed to be Implicated.

About a year ago, Warden Hatch of the Jackson prison frequently saw suspicious persons hanging about the cell block, and was convinced that something unusual was going on. He made a careful examination and found that a small hole had been drilled in the wall near the grating on one of the cell windows in the east wing. The hole contained a dynamite cartridge sufficient to blow out the grating. The work was not disturbed but a careful watch was kept to capture the men. They never returned to complete their job. The warden believed the friends of Burns, the gentlemanly burglar, were the prime movers in the plot, and has since been on the lookout for them.

Some weeks ago Warden Hatch discovered that another plot had been planned. The keepers discovered, so it is reported, that dynamite and even revolvers had found their way behind the walls. It was found that the articles were thrown over the walls at certain place at night, and during the day a "lumper" would find them who would eventually turn them over to Latimer.

The other morning a lumper was found who had a quantity of dynamite concealed in his blouse. He was taken in charge and made a confession of the whole matter. Latimer's cell was searched, and Warden Hatch had the prisoner locked in one of the solitary cells.

Warden Hatch was interviewed, but would say little regarding the matter. He has been working on the case and has a strong clue, and thinks he will be able to locate the accomplices in the plot. He does not believe that Latimer is the father of the scheme, but believes it is the same gang that tried to blow up the east wing some time ago. Those who planned the scheme evidently availed themselves of Latimer's money.

The warden was asked what Latimer had to say for himself, but this he did not wish to make public at present. He said the evidence was overwhelming against him, and he believed that Latimer would make a confession. He further stated that it would be some time before the prisoner would have another opportunity to plan the destruction of the state prison. Latimer has attempted to secure a number of revolvers, but how successful he was is only known by the prison officials.

Latimer has been an unusually well-behaved prisoner, and until recently has never made the least trouble. Two weeks ago he was given a plain gray suit in place of the striped one for good behavior, and was known as one of the "good men" of the prison. He has appeared very happy, so much so, in fact, that the officers began to be a little suspicious, believing that a secret of some sort was behind his ever-winning smile. The plot was a bold one, and would undoubtedly have resulted fatally to many of his fellow convicts.

A DARING STAGE ROBBERY.

The Highwayman Operates Successfully in Michigan.

The most daring robbery ever committed on the Gogebic range occurred five miles from Bessemer, shortly before noon Aug. 24. The Bessemer stage left Gogebic Lake that morning with five passengers—four Chicago bankers, whose names were not learned, and A. Fischbein, of Belleville, Ill. When two miles out a man stepped from a thicket and, aiming a revolver at the driver, commanded him to stop, at the same time pointing another revolver at the passengers with the remark, "Donate, I am collecting."

"Here's mine," said one Chicago man, at the same time drawing a revolver and firing, but he missed. The highwayman emptied the barrels of both revolvers in rapid succession, shooting one Chicago man dead, the right eye and in the left leg. He also shot A. Fischbein twice, both balls entering the left thigh and penetrating upward to the bowels. He was probably dead. The Chicago man was sent home.

The man who fired the first shot at the robber fired two more, but missed each time, then he fell away. Fischbein fell from the stage with the rest of the party. The robber then went up to the wounded man and took from him $27 and a gold watch and chain. He lay two hours without assistance. He was taken to Bessemer, where he was cared for in the hospital and made a sworn statement.

The Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad company offer a handsome reward for the capture of the robber. A description of the robber follows to the letter with that of the daring free-booter who went through a Northwestern train near Ellis Junction some time ago. Sheriff Dave Foley of Bessemer at once transmitted a posse of a dozen men and has gone in pursuit. The chances for capture are very slim.

Detroit's New Union Depot.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in Lansing by "The Fort Street Union Depot Company," of Detroit, under the act authorizing the incorporation of companies for purchasing, constructing and maintaining union depots and stations for railroads, with the necessary powers for the management and control of the same. The new corporation is to have an existence of 999 years under its articles of incorporation. The capital stock of the company is set at a million dollars, divided into 10,000 shares of $100 each, which capital is not less than the amount that will be required for the purchase of the necessary lands and the construction of the requisite buildings. The new depot will be located on West Fort street, beginning at the corner of Third street and extending along Fort street as far as Sixth street. It will be built and owned jointly by the Canadian Pacific, the Wabash, Western, and the Flint & Pere Marquette railroads, representatives of which railroads have formed the new union station company.

A Tramp Shot.

Tony Fox, a well known farmer living near Coopersville, shot and killed a tramp Aug. 25. Richard D. McNaughton's store was burglarized the night before and the tramp killed was one of a pair suspected of the crime. Fox and a number of other people were looking for the tramps, and overhauled this one when he was warned to keep the distance. Fox, who is evidently a big fellow, believed that the tramp carried a revolver and would shoot, fired his rifle and put a bullet into the tramp's heart, killing him on the spot. It is since learned that the dead man is William Marsden of Grand Rapids, whose reputation was not the best. He is about 30 years old.

Michigan Poultry Dealers.

The Michigan poultry dealers met in Jackson Aug. 26, and formed an organization for mutual protection and benefit. Officers elected: President, C. E. Wil-lamson; vice president, C. W. Smith; secretary, L. L. Putnam; treasurer, O. R. Pierce. The entire session was spent in discussing behind closed doors matters pertaining to this trade, and the convention adjourned to meet at Detroit September 24.

Weekly Crop Report.

The weekly bulletin of the Michigan weather bureau shows the mean daily temperature for the week ending Aug. 24 to have been one degree below normal. The average rain fall was .03 of an inch below the average. The drought is having an unfavorable effect on corn, potatoes and pastures. Continued low night temperature is also retarding the growth of corn.

WOLVERINE ITEMS.

The people of Bessemer petitioned Gov. Luce to order a reward for the arrest of the fellow who committed the highway robbery and murder near that place. The attorney general decides that the Governor has no authority to offer such a reward.

Harry Holmes, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Bay City, is dead. Three of the largest shingle mills in Michigan have shut down because the price of shingles is so low.

P. F. Cleveland of Flint has been awarded the contract for building a new agricultural hall at the agricultural college for $71,000.

The Union National bank, with $100,000 capital, has been started in Muskegon. Seventeen buildings in Danville, Indiana county, were burned August 29 at a loss of about $40,000. There is little insurance on the property destroyed, which includes about half of the business portion of the village.

Prof. Wesley Sears, recently superintendent of the public school at Coldwater, has been appointed superintendent of the Hillsdale schools.

The Fifth Michigan volunteer infantry, generally known as the "Fighting Fifth," held their twentieth annual reunion in East Saginaw Aug. 28. Grand Rapids was chosen as the next place of meeting in 1900 and the following officers elected: President, Peter Lehman; first vice president, Hiram Madden of Grand Rapids; second vice president, J. W. Dean; third vice president, E. A. Ballou of Yassar; secretary and treasurer, W. A. Rowley of Mt. Clemens.

Fred Herring of Hillsdale, about 19 years of age, boarded a freight train the other night for the purpose of stealing a ride. When four miles from Joadsville he fell from the train and rolled under the wheels. Both legs were ground to a pulp below the knee, and he died the next day.

The examination of Gosh and Brearley for the murder of Daniel Sinclair ended by the same way, further examination, and they have been sent to the Kent Circuit Court.

Harry Tim the Tompkins boy who was stabbed while on a lark at Petoskey, died Aug. 29. Robert Matthews, whom the boys were teasing, has been arrested, charged with stabbing Gill.

The annual reunion of the Second Michigan infantry was held in East Saginaw Aug. 24. It was decided to hold the next reunion at Adrian, the date to be fixed by the officers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Gen. William Humphrey of Adrian; secretary, Harmon Camburn of Adrian; treasurer, William L. Mapes of Ransom; vice presidents, Joseph Burger of Detroit, Alfred Thibault of Marquette, C. William Dugg of Battle Creek, John Hardy of Detroit, Charles E. Smith of Lansing, E. Stave of Detroit, John C. Beaton of West Bay City, James H. Robertson of Pewamo, Daniel Ferguson of May, John Callahan of Buffalo.

Alex. Wilson of Oscoda was run over and killed by a train at Potts, the other day.

Burt Harger was instantly killed in the wooden mill at Columbiaville the other day. Alphonso McMaster, an employee of the Lansing lumber company, died Aug. 27, from the effects of being struck by a board thrown by a saw. He was a lieutenant in the First Michigan engineers during the war.

Nine store buildings and three barns in Spring Lake were burned the other morning, causing a loss of $30,000.

There are 20 prisoners in the new state prison at Marquette.

The Washtenaw county pomological society meets at the court house in Ann Arbor September 7, and fruit-shippers will talk maza transportation arrangements and talk about showing products at the Detroit exposition.

Mrs. Graunville Lindsay of Ypsilanti, jumped from a moving train the other night, and falling under the wheels, was instantly killed.

Mrs. Valke Moore of Mayville left the house a woman to drive the cows out of a field, and on returning found that her little eight-months old daughter had fallen into a vat of water and was drowned.

A woman named Tillman was arrested at Grand Rapids on a charge of shoplifting. At her home the officers found her three children and about $300 worth of stolen goods.

Regents of the university will hold a special meeting Sept. 17, to decide on a location for the new hospital.

Prof. Thavret, superintendent of schools at Hillsdale, died at Bay View a few days ago. The remains were brought to his old home in Albion for burial.

A five-years old daughter of James A. Carr of Mayville, was kicked in the head by a horse. Both bones of the skull were broken.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Earp, late rector of the Episcopal church of Ann Arbor, who has been under treatment at the Battle Creek sanitarium for some time, is improving. The chief physician of that institution while stating that Dr. Earp was of sound mind, qualified the same by the statement that he was suffering from gastric neurosis, a nervous affection which takes form in various erratic conditions of the mind, such as depression, fear of impending danger, and other forms almost innumerable. Dr. Earp, though not fully recovered, is much improved since going there, and Dr. Kellogg believes that with proper rest he will fully recover his health within a few months at the farthest. There is nothing whatever in Dr. Earp's manner and conversation that would lead one to believe that he was not mentally sound in every respect.

Gor. Luce has completed his examination of the testimony in the case of Sheriff Metevier of Mackinac county, and finds him guilty of official misconduct by reason of drunkenness. Metevier has been ordered to vacate his office, and the office is declared vacant.

The Van Buren county battalion will hold its 12th annual reunion at Hartford Sept. 13, 14, and 15.

George Wilkins, residing near Okemos, was injured in a runaway accident, and died the next day.

John McVey, a farmer living near Decatur, was fatally kicked by a horse the other day.

Mrs. David Dunning of Perry was thrown out of a carriage in a runaway the other morning, and very seriously injured.

A row occurred in a Port Huron saloon the other night when one Giliz struck Chris, a black heavy, blows on the head with a hammer, fracturing the skull. Stein will die, and Giliz has been arrested.

John Nichol of Battle Creek has given $10,000 to the Union home of that city to found a charity hospital. The gift is in honor of the memory of his daughter Mrs. Fanny Abel of Detroit.

The Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railway company has purchased the Durand branch from the Saginaw construction company, the road to be practically transferred when completed to Oaaka beach, from which point it will be extended on to Mackinaw. The distance from Saginaw to Durand is 40 miles, and from Saginaw to Oaaka beach 20, making 60 miles in all.

William Doran, a resident of Detroit since 1882, died at his home in that city Aug. 26.

An electric street railway to beat the Saginaws is being talked about.

Mrs. Patrick Chatham, aged 92, and mother of 18 children, 14 of whom are living, was walking over the track of the Chicago & Northwestern railway near Negaunee the other morning. The switch engine struck her, cutting off both legs. She died at noon. The responsibility for the accident is not fixed yet.

Burgars secured $300 worth of stuff from Charles Alken's clothing store in Howell the other night.

Judge Peck of Jackson has decided the alimony question in the divorce case of Charles R. and Mrs. Dorand by allowing her $17,000, $1,000 in cash, and real estate to the amount of $16,000. The parties were divorced four months ago, and the defendant is worth $160,000.

Itasca has struck an artesian well which seems to be inexhaustible. It is 350 feet deep, the water coming from just below a vein of hard rock.

John Dickens of Menominee fell down the stairs in the National hotel in that city and broke his neck Aug. 25.

Mr. K. Thabue, a native of Burmah, is a new arrival at the agricultural college. Mr. Thabue came to this country from Burmah five years ago, studied at the Kalamazoo college, went from there to the university of Chicago and has now come to the agricultural college to take his course.

A TRAIN DITCHED.

Fifty Persons Injured, Some of Whom Will Die.

The vestibule train on the Santa Fe route, running between Kansas City and Chicago, met with a serious accident at Kinsman, 15 miles north of Streator, Ill., the other morning. The train was heavily loaded with Grand Army veterans and their friends bound for the Milwaukee encampment, and consisted of several extra coaches. By the spreading of the rails two Pullman sleepers and the dining car were thrown from the track and down a steep embankment a distance of probably 40 feet. About 50 passengers were injured. Those most seriously injured were brought to Streator and taken to a hospital. It is feared that many of the injured will die.

Will be Tried Together.

Judge McConnell has decided that all the defendants in the Cronin trial must be tried together, with the exception of Frank Woodruff. He said that in view of Woodruff's confessions it would be manifestly unfair to allow him to go on trial with the others.

All the defendants took exception to the ruling, and the judge granted 30 days in which to file bills of exception. The attorneys for the various defendants then expressed themselves as ready to proceed with the trial.

Election Called in North Dakota.

Arthur C. Mellette, governor of the territory of Dakota, has called an election by the people of the proposed state of North Dakota on the first Tuesday in October, 1889, for the purpose of electing state, legislative, judicial and county officers, as provided for in said constitution, and for the purpose of voting upon the adoption or rejection of article two of the constitution entitled "Prohibition," which is submitted as a separate proposition; and, also, to vote upon the adoption or rejection of the constitution.

New York democrats held their state convention at Syracuse Oct. 1.

NEWS SUMMARY.

OHIO DEMOCRATS.

James E. Campbell Chosen as Foraker's Opponent.

The Platform Adopted.

The Ohio state democratic convention was held in Dayton Aug. 23. The convention was called to order by Chairman Norton of the state central committee.

Chairman Harter was introduced and addressed the convention. Gen. McMahon, chairman of the committee on resolutions, then appeared on the platform bearing in his hand the declaration of principles of the democracy of the state. He said in preface that he wished to say the platform he would soon read was the unanimous expression of his committee; that it was a harmonious rather than a result of their labors was a brief, concise statement as to what the democracy believed in.

This is brief, he said, and requires all time and words. It takes a prolix and tedious method when you want to say something that you do not believe. But here is the platform:

1. The democracy of Ohio, in convention assembled, approve the declaration of principles made by the national democracy in St. Louis in 1888, and especially that part of it demanding reduction of tariff taxes. We will continue the battle for tariff reform until the cause of the people is triumphant. 2. We regard trusts, in whatever form organized, as the legitimate result of our present tariff system; and we demand the repeal of all tariff taxes that enable them to extort from the people exorbitant prices for the products they control. 3. We again acknowledge the great debt of gratitude the nation owes to the heroes of the late war, and we declare in favor of just, liberal and equitable pension laws. 4. We denounce the republican administration for its repeated violation of its pledges in behalf of civil service reform. 5. We denounce the present state administration as the most partisan, demoralizing and extravagant in our history. We invite the careful investigation of all citizens into our financial affairs as shown by the official records. 6. We protest against the repeated enactment of laws vesting the appointing power in the governor, enabling him to control the local boards of our leading cities. While depriving them of self-government, it constructs a vast political machine that is at the disposal of the governor, and a partisan chief executive has become a positive menace to the people of the state. 7. The nomination of the governor of Ohio for a third term in violation of precedent by the notorious and disgraceful use of patronage, at his command, is an outrage against the people and should be rebuffed at the polls. 8. We favor home rule in Ireland and we demand it also for Ohio. While favoring all laws that sacredly protect the ballot box and the honest voter, we demand the enactment of laws that will enable our cities to choose their own servants and control their own affairs. 9. Then came the fight of the day, the nomination for governor. Hon. Sam. F. Hart of Cincinnati, came forward to place in the race the name of James E. Campbell. Gen. C. Manderson, of Darke county, seconded Campbell's nomination. Martin A. Foran of Cleveland, was greeted with applause as he came forward to present Virgil F. Kline, of Cleveland. The speech of Mr. Foran was impressive and effective. The name of his candidate was received with loud applause, but it came mostly from the Cuyahoga delegation. Campbell was nominated for governor on the second ballot.

The ticket was completed by the following nominations: Lieutenant governor, William Van Meter, of Logan county; judge of the supreme court, Martin Follett of Washington county; state treasurer, W. E. Borden of Guernsey county; state commissioner of schools, Chas. G. Miller of Putnam county; attorney general, Jesse M. Lewis of Champaign county; member board of public works, Frank Reynolds of Hamilton county; clerk supreme court, I. J. G. Shoemaker of Seneca county. When the ticket was completed the convention immediately adjourned.

Sentiment for Sarah.

Gov. Waterman of California has written a letter to the attorney general of that state urging the dismissal of all proceedings against Justice Field for complicity in the shooting of Judge Terry. In his letter the governor says: "The arrest of Hon. Stephen J. Field, justice of the supreme court of the United States, on the unsupported oath of a woman, who on the very day the oath was taken, and often before threatened his life, will be a burning disgrace to the nation, and a mark of disfavor on Sarah Althea, wife of the late Judge Terry, is out in a bitter letter denouncing Attorney-general Johnson for his interference in the case of Justice Field. It is said that Judge Sawyer has grave doubts of the power of the federal courts to interfere in the case and that the deputy marshal will refuse to return to Stockton and stand trial in the state courts. Some of his friends assert that Terry's partisans will shoot him if he is returned to Stockton, but no one believes this. Sentiment has turned somewhat against Field because of his attacks on Sarah Althea and his evident desire to use federal power to protect Nagle."

GENERAL.

Ex-President Cleveland has been appointed a member of the New York commission on pension organization for the world's fair in 1892. Oliver Wendell Holmes celebrated his 50th birthday Aug. 29. J. R. Johnston of Pittsburg is the prohibition nominee for governor of Pennsylvania. At the session of the American association for the advancement of science recently held in Toronto, Prof. Cook of the Michigan agricultural college furnished a paper on a new remedy for flea beetles and Dr. Manly Miles of Michigan read a paper on "Soil Metabolism."

The business portion of Sacketts' Harbor, N. Y., was destroyed by fire the other night. The New York woman's suffrage state committee has called the state convention. It will be held October 2 and 3, in Saratoga. Michael Posse, an Indiana county treasurer whose time in his second term is out September 13, has notified his bondsmen that he is short about $13,000. Cigarette manufacturers having been putting a picture of Miss Halford, a daughter of the private secretary of President Harrison, in their packages. Halford will sue the manufacturers. The Cronin suspects were arraigned in Chicago Aug. 23. They asked for separate trials and the court has the request under advisement. The annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland will be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 13, 19, 20.

Judge Levi M. Vilas, brother of Col. W. F. Vilas, died in St. Paul recently.

White Horse, chief of the Crow Indian tribe, was murdered by an unknown assassin a few days ago and the body thrown into the Yellowstone river. The tribe swear vengeance.

The coroner's jury in the case of the wreck of the excursion train on the West Pennsylvania railroad near Carver's station states that the wreck was due to gross carelessness; that the ties were rotten and unfit to hold the spikes in place.

Massachusetts democrats will meet in state convention at Worcester Oct. 2. Harry Trail, who has just died at Macon, Mo., confessed on his death-bed that in 1884 he killed William Vandeventure and wife, and that "Bill" Duley, a colored man, was convicted of the crime and hanged.

Henry Shaw, the well known philanthropist, died in St. Louis, Mo., recently. He leaves about $2,500,000, most of which goes to the city in the form of different bequests. Mr. Shaw's famous botanical gardens now become the property of the state.

The Union furniture company's plant of Rockford, Ill., burned the other night. The company will lose nearly $100,000, on which there is only $40,000 insurance. The company was conducted by Swedish-Americans and all the stockholders were employed in the works.

Swift & Co.'s packing house in Kansas City caught fire the other day and only escaped complete destruction by a shift of the wind. The firm were unable to get water, owing to some defect in the supply, and the buildings and machinery were damaged to the extent of $150,000, with $120,000 insurance.

K. C. Lybarger, postmaster at Millwood, Knox county, O., shot at his daughter Daisy, but missed her, the ball striking Mrs. Lybarger and fatally wounding her. Lybarger then blew his own brains out. The cause of the shooting was old family trouble.

About 300 shoe-lasters in Cincinnati are on strike.

Dr. G. F. Surady, an eminent physician of Cincinnati, has on editorial in the 133rd number of the Medical Record, which is a death blow to Brown-Sequard's so-called "elixir of life."

Joseph E. Russell, a 13-year-old lad living in Ludlow, Ohio, made a daring leap from the Southern railroad bridge in Cincinnati the other evening, jumping from the highest span of the bridge into the Ohio River, a distance of 100 feet and 8 inches. Within five minutes after the daring feat he announced himself as feeling in the very best condition, and not having suffered the least inconvenience from the jump.

E. L. Harper, the fidelity bank wrecker, is not greatly worried about the result of his application for a pardon. While he is deeply concerned for the success of his efforts to secure his liberty, he has not built his hopes high, and an unfavorable consideration of his application for a pardon is not likely to cause him much distress of mind. The officers of this prison do not believe Harper will be pardoned, but think it possible his sentence may be commuted to a shorter term.

Ed Eszmann, of Cincinnati, jealous of Bertha Lott of Indianapolis, cut her throat and committed suicide in the same way.

Irish A. Smith, a Canton boy, O., has been arrested on the charge of manslaughter. On August 11 he pointed a gun at Caroline Knap, a neighbor's girl. The weapon was discharged, killing the girl. Young Smith says he did not know the gun was loaded, but the girl's father says that the shooting was intentional.

Wm. Meehling and a crew were thrashing wheat on the farm of Sam Deslier, about four miles west of Kossuth, O., when the boiler exploded, killing Frank Shave and Andy Webster, two of the crew. The others escaped with slight injuries. The explosion set fire to the thrasher and a stack of wheat, which was consumed before the hands could render any assistance.

Ex-Gov. Foster of Ohio is a candidate for the United States senate.

A destructive diptheria epidemic prevails in Moscow, O. Seventy cases have been reported and 12 deaths have already occurred. The disease is confined mostly to children. Many families are leaving the place to escape the dangers of the epidemic.

W. A. Smith, the man who broke jail in Cleveland about a month ago and shot Deputy Sheriff Joe Goldsoll, is under arrest at Quincy, Ill. He is positively identified by his photograph. Smith went from Cleveland to Kansas City, where he robbed a man. He was subsequently arrested for larceny at Quincy. His connection with the Cleveland crime was given away to the sheriff at Quincy by an anonymous letter.

A call has been issued for a convention of colored men to be held in Toledo Sept. 10, 11 and 12, to consider the question of having been received under the Poraker administration.

Jacob Miller, at the head of the immense agricultural works of E. Antman & Co., died at Canton, O., a few days ago, of paralysis, aged 65. He dies intestate. He carried in life insurance $5,000. He held great interests in the Antman, Miller & Company's works at Akron, owned 2,000 acres of real estate in Dakota, and had much valuable mining stock.

A THRILLING STORY OF THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR.

BY MAURICE LEGRAND.

CHAPTER XVI. (CONTINUED.)

His enemy looked on him as he lay, crouched there in the abandonment and forgetfulness of that moment. "You believe me now," he said. There was no answer. The man did not even hear him. He came nearer, and laid his hand on his shoulder and shook him with savage force. "Do you hear?" he asked. "If you believe in her, confess where she is hidden. Have you held communication with her? Say?"

Pierre looked up. His face still radiant with that wonderful knowledge, his eyes glowing with the intensity of a love that had never died, and now seemed but to have gathered fresh force from its many sufferings, its long denial. "I will say nothing," he answered calmly. "Her very name is polluted by its passage through your lips!"

Von Brandstein threw himself on the edge who thus dared to brave him, and with his hand at his throat he shook him to and fro till the breath came in spasmodic gasps from his lungs; and his weak frame lay like a log where he had thrown it. In the struggle a paper fell from the man's bosom. The eagle eyes of his adversary caught sight of it; he sprang forward, raised it from the ground, and began to peruse its contents.

"So," he shouted triumphantly. "I have caught you at last! My sin—my sin—my sin! My saintly martyr! A plot, indeed—and as I live—heavens, it is her writing!"

These words brought back life and strength to the stunned and weakened frame. With one bound he staggered to his feet, and hurled himself upon his powerful foe.

All was forgotten now. The long endurance, the gentle patience, the inexorable self-control of the past weeks. All he remembered were the wrongs dealt to him and to her—the insult that had struck him down—the revelation of her efforts to save and rescue him while he had been thinking of her all that was vile, scandalous and unjust! How plainly he saw it all—swift as a lightning flash. This unknown friend—this patient watcher over his welfare—who could it have been but the woman who loved him so well, and of whom he had been so quick to believe ill! These thoughts nerved him with the strength of desperation—the most of hatred.

Reeling, swaying, struggling breath to breast, so they strove, utterly—relentlessly. But the enfeebled frame of the French soldier was no match for the ferocious strength of his antagonist. A moment, and there was a crash—a heavier fall that echoed afar, and brought the soldiers from the garrison and courtyard in a tumultuous mass.

They saw the powerful frame of the Prussian officer trembling with a tempest of passion—his foot on the fallen body of the man he had injured and tortured so long, and on his face the lust of ferocious hatred—a blood-thirsty longing, terrible as the shadow of premeditated crime.

"Take him away!" he cried to the men, "and put him in irons for the night. He has concocted a plot to escape, and struck a superior officer. He will learn his fate soon enough!"

And with heavy hearts and a great compassion for one who they knew had at last been tried beyond his strength, they bore him away to his solitary cell!

CHAPTER XXII.

"CONDEMNED."

IN the darkness of his close and small cell, with the heavy tramp of his guards alone waking the stillness around, Pierre Leroux lay through that weary night. With consciousness came back the memory of all his folly had brought upon him—the words of his foe—the sweetness of the knowledge of her innocence that even gave him gladness in this hour of martyrdom.

"Oh, God!" he prayed, again and again, "to be free only for one hour! To see her face once more, and tell her I believe in her at last."

But when freedom might have been his the bond of his word had fettered him as with iron, and now in the eyes of all men he was a traitor, and arraigned on the heaviest charge that could be laid against a soldier. The hopelessness of his fate came home to him at last with a bitterness he had never deemed possible. But now he knew her guiltless, stainless, pure as when he had taken her to his heart; and his whole soul went out in that one intense longing—that fierce imploring cry, "To be free—only for one hour!"

He looked down at his fettered limbs in mute agony. Of bodily suffering, weakness, pain, even of the fate in store for him, he did not think—only of her. He had wronged her so deeply, judged her so harshly, and through all she had loved him with a love whose depth and purity he had never fathomed before, till it came home to him with the divine force of a resistless truth, wrung from the reluctant lips of his powerful rival.

"What she has suffered!" so he said to himself, again and again. "And I—her protector—her guardian—the sharer of her life—I was the first to misjudge and forsake her!"

He grew delirious in his agony as he thought of it. As he pictured her now—hunted, oppressed, pursued by ruthless foes, by a passion merciless and cruel as the grave, the violence of his hatred against this powerful enemy increased to fever-point. It was not for himself he feared death now, not for himself that he would have recalled the blow, whose penalty his life would pay—but for her. For her who would be at his rival's mercy henceforward, for her whose youth and beauty, and wealth of love and faith were all sacrificed because of his want of trust. "If she had only told me," he moaned in his feverish remorse. "How could I dream it was her father she had sheltered."

For he was in ignorance as yet of the oath she had taken, of the cowardly desertion and traitorous betrayal of which this man had been guilty. He knew nothing of the struggle between a daughter's duty and a wife's love that had so perplexed and tortured the girl's young loving heart. He knew nothing of the cause that had induced her to accompany her father in his hour of peril, seeing that her husband no longer believed in her, and had forsaken her—first. Now it was too late. He had no hope left. With the morrow the court martial would sit—his fate would be decided, and then

As that thought crossed his mind he threw himself on his knees—his fettered hands upraised to heaven—the hot tears raining down his white sunken cheeks. "Oh, God!" he prayed, "if in Thy courts above there is atonement for earth's sufferings, or forgetfulness of earth's pain, let me meet her there since here we may not ever meet in life again."

With the next day's noon the trial began.

The case was brief, clear, indefensible. The plan to escape fortunately gave no names, bore no address, but the fact of its being in his possession was conclusive evidence. The soldiers gave witness as to hearing the struggle between the Prussian officer and the prisoner. Colonel von Brandstein swore to the assault, stating that the man was evidently desirous of regaining possession of the paper by violence. The statements were concise and plain enough.

When Leroux was asked if he had anything to say he merely replied that the provocation given him had been too strong for any man to resist, and that Von Brandstein had, in the first place, seized him by the throat, and given him the lie direct. When questioned as to the plan of escape he refused to say from whence it had come, or who contrived to deliver it, but said that being on parole he had declined taking any steps in the matter, and if he had intended to escape he would not have waited three weeks before making the attempt. He knew that what he had done was unjustifiable in military law, but he begged the judges to take into consideration the tyranny and cruelty to which he had been subjected ever since his entrance into the garrison. His enemies themselves could bear witness to that, and therefore he considered himself morally exonerated, if for once he had dealt with his tyrant and traducer as man to man, not as soldier to officer.

"I know that I stand at a disadvantage here," he said. "I am a prisoner at the mercy of my enemies. I can hardly expect you to believe that with the means of escape at hand I refused to profit by them; yet, with death before me, I solemnly swear I speak but the truth. The story may be hushed up—doubtless it will—but truth, sooner or later, comes to the fore; and then, in other lands and in other tongues will my wrongs be proclaimed at last, and men will learn how Germany allows private animosity to take the lead of public justice, when dealing with a conquered foe!"

There was an instant's silence. The faces of the judges grew sterner and paler. Something in the noble bearing, the calm, heroic face of the prisoner touched them with compassion. Yet they knew his doom was sealed. Military justice is stern in its action, undeviating in its decrees. With the close of that day sentence was pronounced. He must die.

He who had so long prayed for death as the sweetest boon man could bestow trembled as he heard his doom. Then his eyes turned to his foe and met his malicious exulting glance with the calmness of despair.

"You have your triumph," he said, so low that scarce anyone heard him. Then he was led back to his cell, there to await the end of his martyrdom.

Faint and weak with long illness, Ninette lay in her close, narrow room. The confinement, the absence of air, the loathing of life, all combined to weaken the vigor of a frame used to the freedom of the fields, the freshness of cool, sweet winds, the width of meadow and forest, and whose eyes yearned for the sight of far-stretching skies, unbounded by a city's myriad roofs.

All the inborn instincts of her free, glad peasant life returned. She thought of her old sweet Norman home, where the peace of the silent country reigned, and the sun fell golden on the waving fields of clover and of corn. She thought of the mill-stream song—of the foam-bells dashing on the great brown timbers of the turning wheel—of the radiance of summer flowers—of the rich scents of the roses round the porch—of the gleam of the snow-white lilies, in whose cups the butterflies loved to hover and rest—of the coo of the bright-plumaged pigeons as they flew to and fro from their little arched homes—of the vesper chimes from the village church nestled in those quiet fields. All these thoughts and memories came back to her as she lay there alone, with the ban and curse of a cruel fate upon her young, desolate heart, and an utter hopelessness and despair in her soul.

Through the silence around her a voice suddenly pierced—a voice that made her start and tremble as she heard it, and forced from her lips a cry of intense fear. Another instant, and amidst the shrill clamor of the old woman's cries, and the sturdy resistance of Gretchen, the door was thrown violently open, and Leon Monprat stood before her.

"Father!" burst from the girl's pale lips. He threw himself before her, and caught the folds of her dress in his hands.

"Oh, Ninette! can you ever forgive me?"

"What is it?" she gasped in terror. "Is he with you?"

"No, coward, villain, traitor that he is. He has betrayed me. I fly now for my life."

"How have you discovered me?" she asked.

"By a strange chance—a soldier of the garrison is suspected of planning the escape of a prisoner. Von Brandstein had him watched here," he told me that it was his belief that you were concealed in the place; with to-morrow he will himself be here. I learnt his treachery and resolved to warn you in time. Ninette! I have done you a cruel injustice all my life—let me atone for it now. Fly with me—I have passports—all is ready. I had a friend who aided me for the sake of services long past. I have a plan—I will seek the king himself—he is close to Berlin—to-morrow he enters. Come, child, for Christ's sake—time is precious. Oh, Ninette! do not refuse me now!"

She drew herself calmly, proudly away.

"Father, you deceived me once. I can never trust you again."

"Do not say that," he implored. "I know you fear that I will lead you to him; I swear that I will not; every word that I utter is true to the letter. Oh, Ninette, be true to yourself, if not to me. How can I leave you in this villain's power?"

"Is it not rather late in the day to think of that?"

"Child, you torture me. Will nothing move you? Even if I tell you your husband's salvation depends on your acting as I counsel?"

"My husband—Pierre? What do you mean?"

"He is condemned to die. At day-break, to-morrow, the sentence will be executed. They hurry it for fear the king may reprieve him."

"To die—how? What is his crime?"

"Von Brandstein discovered the plan for his escape. He insulted him, and Pierre struck him."

"Oh, my God! my hand again deals him his fate," moaned the wretched girl, as she sank on the narrow bed and gazed at her father's face with blank unseeing eyes.

"Will you not come?" he urged again. She started as if a blow had struck her.

"Come?" she cried loudly. "Flee like a coward and leave him to die? Oh, Heaven! What do you think that I am?"

"You might see the king—you might intercede," he pleaded with a pitiful weakness that roused all her scorn.

"Go you and seek the king!" she cried with sudden passion, "and look you, if he die I count you his murderer!" Then she turned and seized her cloak, and flew fleet as an antelope from the house and on through the dark and silent streets, with a resistless speed that made all pursuit useless.

He lingered there a moment, then went forth and confronted the pale and frightened women in the adjoining room.

"She is my daughter," he said, with the strange, dazed eyes of a man half asleep, "and her husband dies to-morrow in the garrison yonder at sunrise."

They heard him in silence, too terrified for any words. Then he drew his cloak closely around him and went out on his errand of danger, knowing each step, each movement now was fraught with deadly peril and beset by watchful foes.

John Ruskin still uses candles for illuminating purposes. In a foot race with the nineteenth century John seems to have been extremely left.

AN AGED TRAVELER.

A Man 113 Years Old Journeying Alone from Arkansas to Kentucky.

James McMillin of Bardwell, Ky., says a Cairo (Ill.) letter to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, spent a few hours in this city recently en route home alone from Arkansas, where he has been visiting relatives. Mr. McMillin enjoys the distinction of being the oldest man known in this section of the country and probably in the United States. He was born in Botetourt county, Virginia, of which Finckle is the county seat, in the historic year of 1776, and succeeded to his father's name without the change of an initial letter or alteration of orthography. His mother's maiden name was Diana Chitwood. His father died at 97 and his mother at 106 from natural causes.

When 17 years of age "Uncle Jimmie," as he is known to his friends, became one of the colony who, under those two noted Virginians, Peyton Randolph and Stephen Randall, started west "to grow up with the country." They settled in what is now east Tennessee. Subsequently he, with his faithful wife, emigrated to Nashville, Tenn., and engaged in merchandising, serving two terms as sheriff. Later he located at the delta of Yazoo Pass, on the Mississippi, when he became an extensive planter, residing there fifty-three years. In 1881 he came to Bardwell, Ky., where he now lives.

He has been twice married and is a widower now, is the father of twenty-three children, two of whom are living, and they are accounted quite aged. He is fond of tobacco, which he chews, but is opposed to liquor in any shape, and claims not to have drunk a drop in eighty-five years. As a souvenir he exhibits a copper coin of the date of 1776, which he has carried since he was 12 years old. He is in possession of documentary evidence with reference to his birth that places beyond doubt his claim to be 113 years of age. His fund of anecdotes is large, and his tales of eighty and ninety years ago are interesting and amusing. He is quite strong of limb, mental faculties clear, and travels alone.

SHERMAN'S LAST SPEECH

"Old Tecumseh's" Touching Remarks to the Boys.

During the third day's session of the G. A. R. encampment, about twenty-five thousand people gathered at the National Soldiers' home for disabled veterans, where the man passed in review before Gen. Sherman and party. Gen. Sherman was received with immense enthusiasm and made a brief speech, which he says is the last one he will ever make. Gen. Sherman said:

Boys: My speaking days are over. I am not going to make any more speeches. If you want a speech, take Sen. for Maudsloni. I think he can make a good speech. I am always glad to see so many soldiers looking hearty and healthy. I think we stand on our legs yet. I like to see that. Our Uncle Sam takes pretty good care of these old soldiers. Uncle Sam couldn't make old men young, but he can make young men just as good as you or I ever were. I see that Milwaukee is full of them and they are coming out of the bushes everywhere. If you think you are the only old soldiers, you are mistaken. There were old soldiers before you and there will be again. Such is the providence of the world, just as good men were born a thousand years ago and will be born a thousand years hence. All we have to do is to do our parts in this short period of life honorably and honestly. I think we can pass the grand trial and say: "We have tried to do our best," and the sentence will be "well done."

We have passed through one crisis of our country's history. I don't see any crisis of another, but I do know that the future of our children is to love and venerate the old soldiers who fought in 1861 and 1865, and make them uncover their heads when they see that little banner that you followed in the days which tried us to the utmost. Let us venerate that flag and love our country and love each other and stand by each other as long as we have breath on our shoulders and legs on our bodies. Those old soldiers who marched against the enemy in those trying days, a grateful country tries its best to assist and will, I think, in fact, I am sure, be good to you when you get too old, all that is necessary. But keep young as long as you can and do not go into a soldiers' home if you can help it.

THE ULTIMA THULE

Independence is the Only Thing for Radical Canadians.

The indignation expressed by Canadians for what they are pleased to style Yankee out-goes in Behring Sea has taken a new phase, and this comes from the party in politics known as the Advanced Liberals, which is fast becoming the power in the dominion. This new departure is something more or less than the declaration of the independence of Canada.

The Montreal Herald, owned by Hon. Peter Mitchell, late minister of marine and fisheries, and organ of the Advanced Liberals, has published a long article advocating the independence of Canada rather than have her under the cat's paw of imperial politicians.

The views set forth in the leader are also to be taken as the personal views of Mr. Mitchell. The points of the Herald's article are: "If the statement made in the Washington dispatch published in yesterday's Herald convey a correct representation of the views held by Harrison's administration respecting the Behring Sea difficulty, and there is a complete accord of understanding between the British and American governments on the matter, the situation must be regarded as invested with new and startling interest for Canada."

The article then briefly reviews the claims of the United States and continues: "In other words, the United States and Great Britain fully understand each other, they will settle the difficulty in their own way, and in the spirit of charity. Canada's views and her pure spirit of charity."

The article concludes as follows: "There is one point on which the people of Canada are entitled to receive explicit information and that without delay. If it should turn out that our government has made no emphatic protest against this method of treating Canada's vital interests then the people of Canada will be justified in taking the matter into their own hands and dealing with it in the most effective manner open to them."

South Dakota Republicans.

The South Dakota republican state convention met in Huron Aug. 29. After formal organization had been effected, the committee on resolutions reported, a majority and minority report being made on the temperance plank. The majority report favored prohibition and was adopted by a big vote, not a score voting against it.

The platform adopted, among other things favors the adoption of state and national prohibition of the liquor traffic, and such other laws as may be necessary for the enforcement of prohibition; opposes the encroachments of corporations and trusts, and views with alarm the dangerous encroachment of the numerous trusts forming all over the land and demands the enactment of stringent laws, state and national, declaring the formation of all trusts and combinations for the purpose of controlling or enhancing the price of any of the necessities of life unlawful and contrary to public policy, and providing for all their suppression and the punishment of all parties interested therein.

O. S. Clifford and John A. Pichler were nominated for congress by acclamation and Arthur C. Mellette in a similar way went in for governor. The ticket was completed as follows: J. A. Fichtner, lieutenant governor; A. O. Ringsrud, secretary of state; L. C. Taylor, state auditor; Mr. Smith, state treasurer; Maj. Holland, attorney general; G. L. Pinkham, superintendent of schools; O. H. Parker, land commissioner; Judges Carson, Kellum and Bennett, supreme court judges.

North Dakota Democrats.

The first democratic convention of North Dakota met in Fargo Aug. 30, being called to order by Chairman Ryan of the state central committee. Committees on credentials, rules, organization and resolutions were appointed. Congressman Springer of Illinois, was introduced and addressed the convention at some length. He regarded the new constitution of the new state as a good one and would vote for it if he were a resident of the state. He spoke of the collective tariff with arguments against it and also spoke against prohibition. His remarks were applauded to the echo.

The following nominations were made: For member of congress, Capt. D. W. Muratti, the present United States marshal; governor, W. N. Roach; lieutenant governor, S. K. McGinnis; secretary of state, A. S. Frohman; treasurer, C. E. Lord; auditor, P. O. Degard; attorney general, T. R. Baugs; superintendent of public instruction, C. A. Kent; supreme court judges, W. P. Miller and Gammon; commissioner of agriculture, J. B. Engbert; commissioner of insurance, W. A. Friedley; railroad commissioners, F. P. Wright, J. A. Faly and Peter Cameron.

A Kentucky man who was dying alone left his will in lead pencil on the head of a whisky barrel, and it is held to be valid. The only thing he left, however, was a gallon of whisky in the barrel.

It is now settled that Parisians will have nearly everything in a "bull-fight" except the death of the bull at the corridas about to take place in the Plaza de Toros of the exhibition. The ring is in the Rue de la Federation, by the Champs de Mars.

The end-gate of a wagon came out at Leavenworth the other day, spilling 400 brew bottles on the ground, and when the crowd which rushed to pick them up found that they were empty it looked for a moment as if they would lynch the driver.

Mrs. Cyrus W. Field is said to guard as the chief among her treasures a small silver box presented to her husband by the municipality of New York and containing the freedom of the city. This was given to Mr. Field after the successful laying of the Atlantic cable, and was the last time that the honor was bestowed.

The habits of the crow form an interesting subject for the study of the ornithologist. The crow has a larger brain than most birds, and all his organs are directed to the perfecting food. Crows will destroy the nests of quail and other birds, taking the young from the nests in the absence of the old birds. The favorite food of young hawks is frogs.

Brooklyn at present is becoming overcrowded with young dentists who are trying each one to beat the other in building up immense practices. A few years ago the Brooklynite had to pay $1 to have a tooth extracted, but now the rates have been so cut, owing to the spring graduations of the dental colleges, that the price has been changed to 15 cents a tooth or two for 25 cents.

"The May trade returns show the effect of the exhibition," says the Paris correspondent of the London Times. The imports of articles of food amounted to 127,000,000 francs, against 47,000,000 francs in May, 1885; those of raw material to 193,000,000 francs, against 150,000,000 francs; and those of manufactured goods to 51,000,000 francs, against 48,000,000 francs. The exports also show a considerable increase."

The old elm tree, withered and dead in the top from old age, which stands at the entrance to the south approach, to the state capitol at Harrisburg was spared from destruction years ago at the request of General Cameron, who had taken a liking to it and had asked that it should be left untouched during his lifetime. He was so earnest in pleading for the tree that his wishes were respected.

A novel scheme to raise the sunken British warship the Sultan is now being considered by the admiralty. Mr. White-side Smith proposes to raise the ship at an estimate cost of about £1,500 by making the deck sound and then blowing the water out of the leaks. Hydrogen is the agent to be employed, and can be produced in sufficient quantities on barges on the spot by the action of sulphuric acid upon zinc.

Another unbreakable substitute for glass, a French invention, consists in immersing wire in a heated state in a thin paste formed of soluble glass, gelatine and glycerine, or glucose, in proportions varying according to the use for which the material is designed. When nearly dry, the sheets are dipped in a concentrated solution of chromic alum or bichromate of potash. Any desiring coloring matter may be incorporated with the gelatine, and opal or other protective varnish applied to the surface.

Mrs. Felicia Grandy Porter, who died at Nashville, Tenn., a few days ago, was one of the notable women of the South. She was a daughter of the late Felix Grandy, Van Buren's Attorney General, and before the war was a leader in the brilliant society of the national capital. In the days of the war Mrs. Porter busied herself in establishing hospitals for the sick and wounded soldiers, and spent a great portion of her large fortune in this work. During the last quarter of a century her time has been devoted to charities.

A LUCKY BAKER.

A Mixer of Dough Strikes The Louisiana State Lottery for the First Capital Prize.

New Orleans (La.) Picayune, July 20. With a check on the New Orleans National Bank for $15,000, Eugene Chretien, Jr., walked out of the office of the Louisiana State Lottery Company last Wednesday as happy and contented as a mortal can be.

Chretien was a journeyman baker, employed in his father's bakery, No. 2-7 Bourbon Street. He is a son-in-law of Chas. Pelter the barber, No. 313 Royal Street, and in company with his father-in-law he presented ticket No. 52,753 at the office of the lottery company and was promptly paid the amount it called for ($15,000), it having drawn one-twentieth of the first capital prize of $300,000.

Chretien purchased the ticket for $1 last Monday morning, and the next day, to use the language expressed by him to a Picayune reporter, found himself in a very fine condition financially. He accents his stroke of good luck complacently, and says he is going to put it to good use by investing in some kind of business. He hardly believes he will ever mix dough again, not that he considers himself too well-bred, but he feels that he can afford to give way to anyone else who may wish to take the cake from the oven.

Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup.

There's certainly something remarkable in this preparation, as it is meeting with a success never attained by any other medicine. It never fails if used as directed.

For over twenty years I have been a great sufferer from the effects of diseased stomach, and for three years past have been unable to do business. Two years ago my case was pronounced incurable. I visited different water cures and climates all to no purpose. Last June I began taking Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, (prepared by Rheumatic Syrup Co., Jackson, Mich.) and at once began to feel better. I have used thirteen bottles and am a well man.

The State game warden has forbidden the shooting of quails for five years and many of the sportsman are very indignant over the matter and their grounds are well taken as there are plenty of quail this fall and before the five years are up there is liable to come a hard winter and kill them all off. It is a noticeable fact that our severe winters have more to do with the extermination of the quail than the hunters.

A physician, in writing about drinking water says: "If in any house there should occur a single case of typhoid fever or diphtheria, test the drinking water, or have it done at once. A few cents will buy an ounce of saturated solution of permanganate of potash at a chemist's. If when a drop of the solution is added to a tumbler of water, its color changes to brown, it is unfit to drink; if it remains clear or slightly rose colored after an hour it is broadly speaking 'safe.'"

Great excitement prevails at Albany, Wis., a village of about 1,000 inhabitants, situated on the Sugar river, over the finding of pearls. They are found in clam-shells, between the membrane and shell, and are of all sizes, from a pea's head to a large-sized pea, and of all shades. Some have been sold for as high as $75 and $100 has been refused for others. Shipments to New York and the east have netted handsome returns. A shipment estimated to be worth $1,500 was made to Chicago last Monday. The excitement is so great that men, women and children are raking and dragging the river in search of clams.

CARD OF THANKS.

As we were called very suddenly last Sunday morning to mourn the loss of a son and to perform for him the last sad services that we could we needed the assistance and support of friends and neighbors. We found we had many friends who so aided us and to them we wish to extend our thanks and we ask them to think kindly of the deceased and his afflicted parents.
