TOWN TALK.

Milford fair next week.

Additional locals on fifth page.

Will Waiters' horse away with him the other day and bruised him up considerably.

John Hinman has opened a barber shop in the building just east of A. E. Rockwell's jewelry store.

James D. Murdock sold his house and lot on Mill street to S. B. Dolph and has gone to Plymouth.

Work is progressing on the Stanley air gun factory. It is located in connection with the Ely Dowel works.

The air gun companies at Plymouth are lawing among themselves over an alleged infringement of one of their patents.

We were shown October 1st an apple blossom from a tree on George Yerkes' farm in Novi. The tree had a spring look on that date.

J. H. Woodman intends moving to Detroit in the near future. He and his wife are planning to make that their future home.

According to the Michigan Dairyman, the Peninsular state now has 113 cheese factories, 107 creameries and two condensed milk factories.

Brown the artist is getting a good deal of work from neighboring towns and he deserves it for it is useless for them to compete with him.

See the call elsewhere for a public meeting to see in regard to establishing a public library in Northville. The matter is worthy your attention.

Grand Haven suffered by a severe fire Monday night. Nearly a million dollars worth of property destroyed. It is doubtful if all the buildings destroyed will be rebuilt.

The lost books of Euclid are said to have been found in India. This is distressing news to the boys who have to study him, and who think there are too many books of his in existence now.

While Dr. Avery was riding in the country Saturday his horse was frightened by the whistle of a thrashing engine near by and threw the doctor out. He was bruised considerable but is all right again.

On account of the rush of work at the Globe Furniture factory they started on extra work Monday evening. They expect to have to continue it for two or three weeks before they can catch up with their orders.

The bridge for the river Rouge this side of Plymouth has not arrived yet. The fact of the old bridge being down is the cause for a good deal of grumbling and the bridge company will have a good deal to answer for.

The effects of the Detroit exposition were seriously felt at the Plymouth fair. The attendance was small on Wednesday and exhibitors mistrusting that fact failed to bring their exhibits. The attendance yesterday was much better.

No, the reduced railroad rates do not help us any on this road. The new law only applies to three or four roads in the state. We will have to pay the same old rate of three cents a mile if we ride on the F. & P. M. road or else go a foot.

The old fashioned country fair has lost its charm; the people do not take the interest in them that they formerly did, and the county seems to have outgrown them. An exposition or a horse race can only be depended upon to draw a crowd.

A letter received in town this week from New York state says they are having so much rain that it interferes with their seeding. The ground in many places is too wet to plant. Think of that ye who have been holding off for rain in this part of God's acre.

The order known as the Patrons of Industry is on the decline and speaking of a neighboring town the Utica Sentinel says: "Armada appears to have regained its equilibrium as regards her merchants and the Patrons of Industry, as the dealers there seem to be doing as good a trade as ever. It must be that they, on the whole, sell just as cheaply as the patron stores do or else

PERSONALS.

Clint Cady is in town.

C. R. Stevens has been receiving a visit from his mother this week.

Mrs. May Power, of Detroit, was visiting relatives in town this week.

Miss Celia Spreng, of Detroit, is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Hutton this week.

Mrs. Charles Ball, of Charlevoix, is visiting at her father-in-law's, C. J. Ball.

T. J. Perkins and wife have been in town the past week visiting old friends.

Miss Rena Hilborn left for Chicago last week to take care of her sister who broke her ankle.

Luther Clapp, Fred Carpenter and Mrs. Clapp who went west to locate a farm have all returned.

Miss Cora Welsh has been spending three weeks visiting her sister, Mrs. E. W. Porter, at Bay City.

John Waterman is in Grand Rapids undergoing another operation for his cancer. His daughter, Mrs. P. E. White, is with him.

Miss Nellie McRoberts was at Ann Arbor last week in attendance at the Presbytery as a delegate from the young peoples society of the church here.

Mrs. Geo. Newman and daughters, of Detroit, are visiting relatives in town. The family will move to Philadelphia in the near future and are making a farewell visit to old friends here before leaving.

Jos. Hetley has purchased E. C. Wagar's lumber business at this place and is now north buying stock for it. He will take possession of the business at once and will make it hum. "Joe" is one of our enterprising citizens and we bespeak for him a fine trade.—South Lyon Picket.

There were but few Northvillians of matured years who did not attend the exposition at Detroit. There were 831 exposition tickets sold at this station. If all places in state turned out as liberally as our citizens there would have been more than the 300,000 people in attendance there.

A. F. Kennedy, formerly with Hoyt's marble works at Plymouth, has opened business at this place. He has rented the Swift building just south of A. M. Randolph's drug store and where he has a display of goods in that line. Northville never has had a marble yard until now.

You can hear anything that you want to but don't believe all that you hear. The report that C. M. Joslin had traded his hardware interest at Flint is untrue. The firm there is Beal & Joslin reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The brick block here is owned by C. M. Joslin and Miss M. Louise Beal.

Frank C. Buckner, M. D., of Orion, was married to Miss Hattie Stewart, of Waterford, at Pontiac on Wednesday last.—Orion Review. The doctor is well known here being a brother to J. C. Buchner. He and wife were visiting relatives in town the forepart of the week and Wednesday left for their home at Atlanta, Montgomery county.

We understand that Prof. J. H. Simonds, of Pontiac, has received a call from a leading church in a large western city as organist at a large salary. He has not accepted it yet but is holding the matter under consideration. "Johnnie" is well known to the people of this vicinity as he came to this place when one year old and lived here many years. His old friends wish success. He has made a good name for himself at Pontiac where he has taught music for the past four years.

The Granville Wood & Son organ company finished this week the organ they have been building for the Trumbull ave., church in Detroit and shipped it Wednesday. This is the last work the old company do. The new company to whom they sold have now commenced work on the new orders they have from Wayne, Mich., Johnstown, Penn., and Columbus, Ohio. These organs will probably be built here before the works are moved to the new building which will be some time next

A CALL! WHAT CALL? READ.

We who have signed this call, believe it to be the duty as well as the privilege of every one to continue the self development commenced in younger days. Also, firmly believing that in union there is strength, we desire a meeting of the citizens of Northville to consider the best method of securing a large and well selected public library, for the use of our citizens and younger people. This meeting will be held Tuesday, October 8th, at 3 p. m., in the superintendent's room at the school house. All persons interested in good reading and good books, and also those interested in placing good literature before our young people are earnestly requested to be present. Signed: W. T. Jacques, Waterman & Co., S. L. Houghton, A. E. Rockwell, E. R. Reed, Frank N. Clark, A. J. Bigelow, C. R. Stevens, Sands & Porter, Wm. P. Yerkes, C. M. Joslin & Co., L. G. Clark, and others.

D. Kingsbury moved this week to his new office and dispensary on Randolph street where he may be found.

Saturday night A. Quick, John Lockwood and Byron Thompson were arrested for disorderly conduct on the street. The first two pleaded guilty and were fined by Justice Blackwood $15 each. The latter gentleman stood trial, was convicted by a jury and fined $30. All their fines were paid.

The Stanley Air Rifle company completed their organization by the election of the following officers: E. H. Beal, president; C. M. Joslin, vice president and manager; Charles Booth, secretary; J. S. Lapham, treasurer. J. A. Dubuar and W. I. Ely are the other stockholders. The company is organized under the general laws of the state with $10,000 capital. Work has already commenced on the patterns and will be pushed. Mr. Stanley, the patentee, has moved with his family from Plymouth.

The poles were distributed around town Tuesday and Wednesday for the electric light wires. There will be a little delay in the starting of the light. It was expected to be ready by Oct. 10, but it will not be as the dynamo is delayed. It is expected here to-day and the new engine to-morrow. An addition will be built to the present engine house at the Globe furniture factory's works where the dynamo and engine will be placed. Mr. Beal hopes to have the village as far up as the business part lighted Saturday evening, Oct. 12.

F. R. Beal with his accustomed liberality offered to furnish the means for one-half of a large flag to be placed on the school house. The Detroit Tribune started the movement for the city and it has spread through the state and is going through the country. It is well that our national emblem be displayed over every place of learning in the country. Nothing will tend more to inspire patriotism in the young and old also. It is well to be as patriotic in Northville as elsewhere and a movement is already started to raise the balance among the children at the school. It is a very commendable movement.

Read this, teachers from the School Journal: "Means are not ends. Grading should not be an end, spelling, reading, writing, history and geography are not ends; they are only means. When they become ends they do not educate. The end of school work is not to make good readers, good spellers, good parsers, not at all, but to make good men and women. Since we cannot attain the highest good without a knowledge of technical things, we must have it, but only as a stepping-stone to something higher and better."

CONSTIPATION.

Do you know the meaning of this word from experience? Do you comprehend the results that come from it? Do you think liver and stomach the cause thereof? If so just step into Macomber's Wednesday, October 9th, and get Dr. Bennett's experience. Then judge his theory with old ones and see which is the most sensible. Mind you he cures these cases and the majority of chronic ailments is the result of this constipation. This is all that

I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all Alcoholic liquors, including wine, beer and cider, as a beverage, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use and traffic in the same.

NO WOMAN SUFFRAGE—NO PROHIBITION.

Editor Christian Advocate: "With little fear of being discounted as a false prophet, we record the prediction that ten years from now woman suffrage will not exist in any state of the Union, except some of those having the least population, and those mostly of the newest regions of the west. The ground of this prediction is that a large majority of the women of this country do not wish it, and a large majority of the men do not believe in it."—Christian Advocate, July 26, 1889. Another even stronger ground than the double one given above might have been mentioned, namely, that the great liquor power, which at present is all but omnipotent in the politics of this country, is bitterly opposed to it. Give the liquor traffic its choice between woman suffrage and prohibition, either statutory or constitutional, and it will take the latter without hesitation; for it well follows that let woman suffrage be established, prohibition will promptly follow—follow to stay and to be forced—while without woman suffrage there is good reason to hope that prohibition may not prohibit.

Not long ago I read an excellent editorial in the Christian Advocate upon learning from one's enemies. Here would seem to be an opportunity to put into effective practice the wise suggestions of that article. Read the bitter expressions of the saloon organs against woman suffrage; watch the bacchanalian, torch-light processions; listen to the drunken rejoicings over its defeats; then let prohibitionists honestly, solemnly, prayerfully, ask themselves whether they should not learn from their enemies how to treat woman suffrage. Christian editors and ministers may well hesitate to march under the same banner with the liquor host, even though that banner bears the motto: "Any Thing to Beat Woman Suffrage!"

Besides, the statement that "a large majority of the women of this country do not wish it," it may be well to place a few facts for consideration. Without doubt "a large majority" of the women of India do not wish to escape the bondage of the Zenana. They have been trained from the cradle to believe that in it lies their only protection from even more complete and abject misery in this life, their only hope of a more tolerable existence hereafter. The Mormons claim that "a large majority" of their women prefer polygamy. Southern slaveholders before the war claimed that "a large majority" of the slaves preferred slavery to freedom.

"A large majority of men do not believe in it." Yes, so long as there is an army of Satans whose special mission it is to disrupt the home, to destroy the "strong staff" and the "beautiful rod," to set snares and pitfalls for the little feet, so long will that army be the undying enemy of woman, the natural guardian of home. Never, never will it trust the ballot to her whom it well knows no bribe or threat or party affiliation can ever shake from her loyalty to home. That host can always be relied upon to be solid against Woman Suffrage, and so long as it can recruit its ranks with those of its enemy who dare not trust womanly virtue and good sense if set free from their self-constituted guardianship, or who fear that their breakfast will not be so well cooked, their homes so tidily kept, and their own headship so humbly recognized if their wives are granted the ballot, so long will there be "a large majority" of men opposed to Woman Suffrage. Nevertheless, with little fear of being discounted as a false prophet, I record the prediction that National Prohibition will never come until Woman Suffrage does and further, that both will come at no very distant day. STATE OF MICHIGAN.—Circuit Court for the county of Wayne, in chancery. Lester B. Sutton, complainant vs. Lucy Sutton, defendant. At a session of said court held in the city of Detroit, on the ninth day of September 1889. Present, Hon. Henry N. Brevoort, Circuit Judge. It satisfactorily appearing to the court by affidavit on file that the last known place of residence of the defendant, Lucy Sutton, was in this state but that it cannot be ascertained in what state or county she now resides. On motion of W. W. Wendell, complainant's solicitor, it is ordered that said defendant, Lucy Sutton, do appear and answer to this cause within five months from the date of this order; and it is further ordered that within twenty days from the date of this order, the said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the Northville Record, a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said county, that such publication be continued therein at least once each week for six weeks in succession, or that he cause a copy of the order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant at least twenty days before the expiration of said five months. (Signed) HENRY N. BREVOORT, Circuit Judge.

Plymouth voted to build a council room, opera house and jail combined. Contracts have been let for its construction but some kickers are going to ask the courts for an injunction to stop it as they claim the people have no right to vote a tax for such purposes. Their village needs just such a building but a few chronics may prevent it.

Michigan has 3,345 miles of railroad of one mile of railroad to every 9.25 square miles. In the whole United States there are 149,902 miles of railroad, or one mile to every twenty square miles of territory. The amount of money invested in railroads is appalling. There is at present invested in the roads of this country, $8,129,787,781.

Michigan through its legislature has in addition to providing a house for her disabled veterans, provided for the care of their families, outside the home. It authorizes a soldiers relief fund in each county, the members of the commission to be appointed by the judge of probate, to consist of three persons, two at least to be old soldiers, their term of office being three years. A tax not exceeding one tenth of a mill on all taxable property creates the fund, and the commission, together with a representative from each township, village or city board, meet annually before the first of May to determine the amount necessary and the amount to be paid per month to each old soldier or sailor entitled to aid.—Ex.

What is it? A large black animal, about the size of a yearling calf, with eyes as large as teacups and shining like coals of fire, has been scaring the life out of some of the citizens north of this place. In one instance a young man was going to the barn to put out his horse when the animal attacked him, but he succeeded in hitting it a smart blow with the whip and the beast started for the woods, leaping over a five board fence as easily as a man would a small ditch. Some claim it a regular "man eater," but as yet we have heard of no one being devoured by his beastship. As the parties who relate their experience with this strange animal are not in the habit of getting intoxicated we don't see any other way than to believe that there is some monster roaming around this section of the country.—Belleville Enterprise. Mrs. Alexander.

Very few English novel writers are better known on this side of the Atlantic Ocean than Mrs. Alexander, and we dare say our lady readers will be pleased to see the portrait of one who has so often given them pleasure. Alexander is only a nom de plume assumed by her before she was sure of her literary success; her real name is Mrs. W. Hector. She is already a middle-aged lady, with a rather heavy face, and looks more like a good homely housewife than a woman who is able to draw upon her imagination for any amount of difficult characters such as we find in her novels. Her most successful works of fiction are: "Her Dearest Foe," "The Wooing O. T." and "Ralph Wilton's Heir."

About four years ago Father Butler, a Catholic priest of Jersey City, N. J., eloped with Miss Brady and was married to her. He has now reached the nether depths of the soul's anguish, and humbly petitions the bishop to be permitted to enter the seclusion of a monastery where he may devote the future to doing penance. It is inevitable that when a priest allows worldly passions to overcome religious scruples, and yield the surrounding convictions of a life time to the impulse of a moment, that he will have occasion to repent his lapse from virtue with torture of spirit. Men may not with impunity outrage all the moral guards to their nature; and no greater violence to the spiritual grace that lifts man above the beast can be done than is done when priest or clergyman sacrifices his holy function to the weakness of the flesh. The outward visible sign of the hell within may not be always distinct, but no man lives in peace with himself who is conscious of honor's loss, or whose conscience whispers to him, "Recreant, recreant."

There has been considerable talk lately about the embarrassed financial condition of the Johns Hopkins university of Baltimore, and the probability of its being closed. It is true the school has suffered heavy loss by the shrinkage of Baltimore & Ohio railroad stock, but its finances are in much better shape than the alarmists who have raised the cry suppose. The president of the university says that there is at present sufficient money to meet all demands for the next three years, and that it is absolutely certain that means will be provided to allow the school to continue the same broad and generous plan as it has always maintained for the education of American young men. The citizens of Baltimore have too much pride in the university to allow it to suffer for want of funds.

Washington Territory women have enjoyed the right to vote under the territorial form of government, but at the coming election the lords of creation propose to ignore the women altogether. The women, however, have risen in their might and propose to fight the matter. The election officers do not intend to accept the votes of the weaker sex, so the women propose to have separate ballot boxes in which to deposit their votes, and then ask the court to decide whether or not their ballots shall be counted. It will be a nice question of law for the judges of the new state to decide, and the outcome is awaited with much interest. The women are determined and have a well organized force to see that every woman does her duty.

FARM AND HOME.

Harvesting the Corn Crop.

No crop is given more labor during growth than corn, and from the beginning of harvesting of the crop until it is stored in the barn the grain and fodder require handling several times. In fact, the corn crop is a double crop, as the fodder is fully as valuable as the grain, if properly saved, and must be handled with a view of saving labor at all stages. The early corn requires planting, seeding and frequent cultivation, while the matured corn entails the labor of cutting the stalks, shocking, husking and hauling. When two or more of these duties can be done at one operation the cost of harvesting is lessened.

In this section the corn is cut and shocked in the fields; the work of husking being done after the winter sets in by handling the stalks in the shocks. It is not only a laborious operation, but one that exposes the farmer in winter, and the practice belongs to former generations rather than to this. Much of such labor may be saved by cutting down the stalks so as to make roads through the corn for the purpose of using wagons. The corn so cut should be carried to the barn and used, grain and stalks, as an early supply. The corn should then be pulled from the stalks and thrown in heaps to be loaded in the wagons. It can then be husked in the barn during rainy weather or other leisure time. The pulling off of the ears can be done so easily and quickly that a large field can be gone over in a day. After the corn is hauled off only the stalks and fodder will remain to be stocked or shocked, and all work in the field, except hauling the fodder to the barn, will be avoided in winter, while the damage that usually happens to the grain from fallen shocks, dampness, mice, birds, etc., will also be avoided, which is a saving more than equivalent to the labor of securing the grain. In this manner the grain is at once removed from the stalk, and thereby kept dry and protected from cold. It will cure better, and be more palatable to stock.

It is as important to store the fodder under cover as it is the grain, but the fodder is left in the field for convenience in husking, as it is a bulky crop in the barn and not easily handled, but if the grain is pulled before cutting down the stalks the fodder can be stored in the barn without the necessity of handling it again except to feed it to stock. Stored as soon as it is cured, and when in a bright, clean condition, it will be found more acceptable to stock and be more valuable for feeding. It can be passed through a fodder-cutter, cut, the stalks shaved or crushed (if suitable cutters are used), and the work of harvesting finished before winter approaches.—Philadelphia Record.

A Remarkable Year.

This year, besides being prolific of all classes of farm crops, is especially remarkable for its exemption from insect pests. Preceded by two dry years favorable for the production of chinch bugs, Colorado potato beetles, cabbage worms, grasshoppers and other destroyers of the vegetable and fruit crops, with a remarkably mild, dry winter, which is considered favorable for perpetuating the insect tribes: But after all of the circumstances which farmers consider omens of evil to their crops, from insect plagues, this year is remarkable for their absence. Though there was a fearful looking for the ravenous chinch bug he has not come. The potato bug, which has heretofore wearied the back and tried the patience of the potato raiser, his wasting of that crop has scarcely been seen in all of the land. The cabbage worms which the past three years have caused Hans to import his sauer kraut from Holland, have made no impression on the cabbage this year. That excellent vegetable is abundant and of a very superior quality everywhere. Cabbage will be plenty and cheap. The white-winged moths which deposited the eggs for these worms have scarcely been seen. Even the common grasshopper, which is nearly every year a burden, is not plenty enough to fatten the turkeys.

And the worms, bugs, caterpillars, etc., which usually infest and destroy apples, plums and small fruits, are remarkable for their absence. And as a consequence there is an unparalleled crop of apples for Iowa. Apples are plenty, of a superior quality all over the state. The farmers complain that there is no market in the towns and cities for their ducness, early harvest, red June and other early apples. Fall, choice apples are selling at 25c per bushel. This, therefore, is a remarkable year for large crops of grain, grass, vegetables and fruits, and scarcely an enemy to molest them in the least.—Des Moines Register.

Save Sound Seed Corn.

During the season of husking is the time usually taken to save seed corn.

There is no better means of selection where the perfectly ripened corn is husked on the stalk. If the fair ears, well capped over the ends, upon being stripped, show sound instead of being husked, these should be snapped off. In unloading, in place of throwing these ears into the crib, they should be put aside, and then stripped off so the most perfect selections can be braided together, or quickly and thoroughly dried in some other way.

Many persons are in the habit of selecting seed from the shocked corn as husked. The difficulty here is, especially in large shocks, cut perhaps rather green, that the drying has been imperfect; often the butts of such corn are entirely unfit for seed from incipient mold. But when no other means of saving corn is at hand all ears that show damp at the butt should be thrown aside, and that selected should be either traced up or placed in a warm, airy loft, where it may dry perfectly and quickly. The perfect drying is essential.

There is too little care exercised, as a rule, in the wintering of seed corn. It is never safe to select seed in the spring from the wide cribs. The corn is liable to more or less heating, as every farmer knows. Corn properly saved, every grain should germinate, if it has been well ripened. We do not, and never have, advocated the selection of unripe ears from the field, trying up and drying. While it is a fact that corn so saved will germinate kindly if followed up it will result in a gradual weakening of the stamina. It is true that any grain not thoroughly ripened, if dry, will make excellent flour or meal, but the pabulum to sustain the young plant is not there. The seed grain must only be fully mature, but must be made thoroughly dry in order to preserve the full germ power of the future plant.—Prairie Farmer.

Farm Notes.

In driving horses on the road let them drink at every opportunity; a dozen times a day in summer is not too often.

Clover hay can be used to advantage as summer feed, if the crop is large. Hay should not be sold but fed on the farm.

Dahlias fall to the ground if the growth is rank. To grow them properly they should be planted in clusters, with a wire on the outside.

As soon as the peach and pear crops are off cultivate among the trees to kill out the grass and weeds, in order to save labor next season.

Next month lawn grass seed may be sown for the next spring crop of lawn grass. Spade the ground well and rake the seed in, but cover very lightly.

As soon as the sweet corn becomes too hard for family use the stalks should be cut down, as the fodder is then in the best possible condition for stock.

In saving tomato seed select the largest, smoothest and ripest specimens, and reject all that are not solid. By so doing they will improve in quality each season.

Do not store beets, carrots and parsnips until the weather becomes quite cool. All root crops can endure a slight frost, and keep best when stored late in the season.

It costs less to raise a colt than may be supposed. The colt requires attention, however, as it must be carried and properly stabled, but with plenty of pasture but little other food is required, except an allowance of grain daily. If well bred the colt should bring a good price when 3 years old.

The Household.

DELICIOUS WAFFLES.—Half a pint of cold-boiled farina; half a pint of rice flour, two tablespoonfuls of wheat flour, one pint of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, two eggs, well beaten.

ICED CAKE.—Make a delicate sponge cake and bake in a deep, square mold; make frozen custard. Take off the top of the cake and take out the center, leaving the bottom and sides an inch thick. Fill with frozen custard; put the top back. Serve with Mocha sauce.

FROZEN BROWN BREAD.—Toast and dry four thick slices of brown bread; pound and sift through a fine sieve; boil a pint of cream; sweeten with half a pound of sugar; pour in a pint of fresh cream and let cool; when cold turn into a freezer and freeze; when frozen beat in the brown bread; take out the darker; repack the tub, cover and stand aside to harden.

BISCUIT GLACES.—Put a quart of cream on to boil. Beat half a pound of sugar with the yolks of six eggs together until very light; stir them with the boiling cream, and stir over the fire until it begins to thicken. Take from the fire and put aside to cool. When cool flavor with vanilla and freeze. Whip a pint of cream very stiff and stir in the frozen mixture. Fill paper cases with the biscuit, pack in salt and ice, and freeze.

FROM EIFFEL'S TOWER.

Lessons from the Exposition on the Banks of the Seine.

The great exposition in Paris, toward which the whole world has been moving, will illustrate what patriotism and national pride can accomplish. The vast palace built by Frederick the Great after the seven years' war to show Europe that Prussia was not bankrupt was a bagatelle to this triumphant achievement of France. One stands appalled at the financial resources of a nation which has for thirty-five years poured out its blood and treasure in one continuous stream, yet here, in the year of our Lord 1889, can present a universal exposition of such magnitude and grandeur that it is safe to say that all other national efforts in this direction are now surpassed.

The buildings, or rather palaces, erected for this exposition are a sufficient study without considering the treasures they contain. The daring engineering feats, the unique combinations of warmly tinted terra cotta and iron for vertical walls, the enameled domes, the colossal figures and decorations in high relief, the charming and tasteful colorations of interior surfaces, all testify to the transcendent, artistic, inventive and executive ability of the wonderful French people.

The engineering exploits, violate in many cases what might be called axioms. An arch has always been rigid at its crest; a tower has always been broad, thick and solid at its base; and just in proportion to the span of the arch or the height of the tower have the keystones and base been ponderous. Here in the hall of machines, with a truss arch span of 500 feet, the crest of the arch is in no way united, but the two elements of the arch simply lean against each other, a transverse steel roller receiving the enormous pressure of contact.

The base of the arch, instead of widening out and being heavily grounded in masonry to stand lateral stress, comes down to a point and rests daintily on a cast-iron plate with a circular bearing. These audacious contrivances are to permit expansion and contraction, and the whole vast roof, over a sixth of a mile long rises and falls with every change of temperature. The usual conception of a tower a thousand feet high requires a base so dense and broad that vision and circulation would be obstructed, yet here is the great Eiffel tower resting on light, airy arches of such stupendous proportion that the eye has unimpeded range and thronging thousands stream beneath it in every direction.

A description even of the chief merits of the interior display is well nigh impossible. A most wonderful and complete exhibition is made in every department of human effort. The students of science, art, mechanics may here find material for exhaustive monographs. One may see in a building devoted to the liberal arts the development and progress of every industry illustrated by a wealth of material and ingenuity of demonstration that is bewildering. It would be enough, for example, to show a series of violins from the earliest form to the perfected Stradivarius; but here we behold not only the successive stages in the development of the violin, but the well-worn workroom of the violin-maker, with benches, tools and all the appliances involved in the construction of the instrument, as well as different portions of the violin in various stages of completion.

The successive stages in the history of man are shown with a skill little short of marvelous. To Mr. Haüy, director of the Ethnological Museum of the Trocadero, the exposition is indebted for this instructive exhibit. Lifesize models, strikingly realistic, give one an idea of paleolithic man hammering out his rude stone implements at the mouth of the cave, and round about are scattered bones of extinct animals and other accessories to complete the illusion. Graphic figures of men of the neolithic and bronze and iron ages are encountered as you pass through this great building devoted to the development of humanity as shown by the various industries and arts.

The student of ethnology finds ample material for study. Not only the life of prehistoric and ancient peoples is set forth in that ingenious and picturesque way in which the French excel all others, but the living examples of various races are seen here moving and acting. This department covers a large area; with negroes of various tribes in huts made by themselves; Cochon Chinese, with buildings as brilliant in color as they are grotesque in form; Japanese, with their strange music and dancing; Tonkinese, performing feats on horseback, and many trades of these races are carried on to the delight of admiring crowds.

In the main exhibition grounds one may walk through a Cario street lined with buildings, many of which have been brought from Egypt. Here is the metal worker, the potter, the wood turner, with his head bent down within an inch of his big toe, with which he holds the turning chisel. Barbaric sounds come out from buildings where troops of Morocco musicians, Abyssinians, Egyptians, with wild music and barbaric dancing, entertains an ever-changing audience.

Something may also be learned from the history of habitation. Under the direction of Mr. Charles Garnier an attempt has been made to give full-sized models of the houses of various races, ancient and modern. A Persian house, constructed after the suggestions of M. Dieulafoy, an ancient Assyrian house, an Egyptian house, and, indeed, all nations are represented to a ridiculous traversery of a North American Indian's wigwam. Some of these reproductions are doubtless correct, but, judging from the house of the Japanese, it is evident that M. Garnier did not take the trouble to consult any competent authority. He has endeavored to answer adverse criticisms by saying that he intended to represent a Japanese house 2,000 years ago; but this makes the caricature laughable. His Chinese house is equally inaccurate and unworthy.

The application of fictile ware to building purposes occupies a large space. The importation of this material, which never decays or corrodes, becomes most impressive as we look at the immense range of uses to which it can be adapted. Among the objects are a large variety of roofing tiles; some with glass inserted in the tile and others made entirely of pressed glass, and mouldings, friezes, basins of terra cotta, ordinary bricks with one end glazed, and a great variety of useful and ornamental devices, illustrating the employment of fired clay in building in ways generally undreamed of.

The exhibition of the city of Paris occupies two large buildings; and here is displayed, all the paraphernalia of city administration. Fire engines, ambulances, models of schools, pedagogic material, hospitals, full-sized models in the ground showing pipes and traps; maps of Paris showing by different shades of color the vital statistics of the city, such as the percentage of deaths by disease, suicide and violence, make a most wonderful and instructive display. The maps showing high death rate, illegitimate births and violent deaths have some correspondence indicating the kind of people with which these conditions are associated, while suicide indicates another class in a different part of the city. The contents of these two buildings alone would repay a month's study.

Viewed from the summit of the Eiffel tower, that marvelous achievement of modern engineering, the scene is overwhelming. The Champ de Mars, the colossal structures that invade it, the vast areas inclosed, the Seine imprisoned and its bridges confiscated, the Trocadero attached, the Invalides assimilated. The bewildering outburst of color, the inconceivable gaiety and animation of the scene, all produce an impression on the mind such as no humanly contrived spectacle ever effected. All the occasions of spectacular delight that have ever been known, whether they sprang from the industry of a people or the pride of a conqueror, pale into insignificance before the display now made in Paris. To see it and to absorb its variety, day by day, is a liberal education and a most potent and irresistible incentive to progress and endeavor. Over a quarter of a million persons have visited it in a single day; and it is not too much to say that each one was better for it, had added to his sum of knowledge and derived some new and wholesome impulse.—New York Sun.

To Enter a Room.

In these days, when instruction is to be had in every branch of education, it is singular that one of the minor accomplishments should be entirely overlooked. Youth is taught to be musical, to dance, to ride, to be athletic, to be everything, in short but graceful. It may be this list of accomplishments necessarily includes grace and deportment, and if girls have gone through courses of polishing they must come out veritable swans of motion. Such is not the case, judging by the carriage of most American girls. Precious few know how to enter or leave a room. A trifling matter if the young person is good and pretty, let say, and of no consequence provided she has the desired "pas," and a fortune behind her in the eyes of many uncritical observers. For those of us who regard externals as evidences of character, a graceful, unconscious bearing is one of the cardinal virtues.—Ex.

Synopsis of Platform.—Ticket Nominated.

SARASOTA, N. Y., Sept. 23.—The New York republican state convention was held here to-day. Chairman M. Depew was chosen temporary chairman, and briefly addressed the convention. Among other things he said that the cash in the treasury, which has constituted so large a factor in discussion and attempted legislation still exists and increases. All parties admit its evils, and its dangers are transparent, but the surplus is not money to be frittered with or squandered. It belongs to the people and represents unnecessary taxation. The surplus will be reduced by removing unnecessary burdens and adjusting taxation upon private lines. He referred to the growth of the South American states, almost unnoticed by the United States, but fostered by England, and to Mr. Blaine's control of the nation's foreign affairs and attention to South American commerce. The platform adopted indicates the national administration and reaffirms approval of the doctrine in the national republican platform of 1888, namely, the protection to American industries and labor, the fostering of American shipping interests, liberal pension, a national election law, the purification and elevation of the civil service, also announcing trusts and demanding the maintenance of the canal system of the state. The remainder of the platform is devoted to the criticism of Gov. Hill's administration. The report was unanimously adopted, and the nominations ensued, the result being: For secretary of state, John I. Gilbert of Malone; for comptroller, Martin W. Cook of Monroe; for state treasurer, Ira W. Hedges of Rockland; for attorney-general, Geo. James M. Varnum of New York; for state engineer, William P. Van Rensselaer of Seneca; for judge of the court of appeals, Judge A. Haight of Buffalo.

A $10,000 HAUL.

The Baltimore sugar refinery company has been incorporated, with a capital of $1,000,000. Judge Nelson of the United States court in St. Paul, declares the meat inspection law of Minnesota unconstitutional, and a hindrance to commerce. The strike at the Columbia rolling mills in Lancaster, Pa., is at end. The strike lasted seven months. Judge Edward Lewis of St. Louis is dead. He was a blood relation of George Washington. Prof. George H. Cook, state geologist of New Jersey, is dead. The chief of the bureau of statistics reports that the total number of immigrants arrived at the ports of the United States from the principal countries, excepting the Dominion of Canada and Mexico, during the eight months ending Aug. 31, 1889, was 490,534, against 392,942 during the same period last year. The Toledo, Findlay & Springfield Railway Company has been organized at Findlay by the Standard Oil Company from building their line through or near to any of the lands owned by the Standard, and used for storage purposes. The injunction was granted by Judge Sawyer, and will stop work on the road until the matter is settled. The situation of the shoemakers' strike in Cincinnati is unchanged. Both sides are firm. A meeting of the Ohio wool growers' association has been called to meet in Washington on the day when congress convenes. All the employees of the Bellair, O., steel works, 400 in number, struck a few days ago because of the refusal of three brothers named Brant to join the employees' association and the management's refusal to discharge them.

Masked Men in Control of a Train.

Five masked men boarded a train ten miles south of Fort Worth, Texas, on the other night, two of whom got on the engine and at the muzzle of two revolvers compelled the engineer and fireman to stop the train. Then the robbers cut the engine, baggage, mail and express cars from the rest of the train and made the engineer pull on half a mile further. Two of the men boarded the express car, and ordered the messenger to show them the money, and when three bags of Mexican silver had been pointed out to the robbers threw the bags out to their tails. In all the robbery about $10,000 was taken. After ordering the engineer to couple on to the rest of the train the robbers decamped.

THE BOTTOM FELL OUT.

A terrible accident happened at Carnegie's Edgar Thompson's steel works in Braddock, Pa., the other night. One of the largest blast furnaces on the bottom of the bottom of the bottom metal escaped. Capt. W. R. Jones, general manager, and a number of men were at work near the base of the furnace, and the burning fluid poured over them. Capt. Jones was so badly burned that there is no hope of his recovery, and the men at work with him are so seriously burned that they may die.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

Five Men Killed by Explosion of a Saw Mill Boiler. The boiler in the sawmill of Pritz in Berlin, Pa., exploded the other day with terrific force. The following five young men, all well known in that vicinity, were instantly killed: John Pritz, Edward Pritz, Oliver Ross, David Ross and David Baker. Twin brothers named Brant, who were near the mill, were severely injured but may recover. The mill was completely wrecked.

A LUCKY BARBER.

Hank Monroe Talbot, the well-known colored barber and sanitary policeman of Lima, O., is thought to be the missing heir to a fortune of $3,000,000. The property was originally owned by his father, and consists of the real estate upon which the city of Logansport, Ind., is located. He has employed counsel to prove his claims. The other heirs, 10 children in all, have already employed ex-Congressman Hill of Indiana to prosecute their claims and have received an offer of $5,000,000 from different railroads entering into Logansport as payment for the lands occupied by their trucks, depots and freight houses. The obstacle in the way has been the missing heir, a son named Henry, who had been lost track of by the other heirs. Henry Talbot asserts that he can fully establish his identity, and if he does so will get his share of the fortune.

The Orders Reversed.

The acting commissioner in the Pension office has reversed Commissioner Tanner's order directing that pensioners who receive a less rate than $4 per month, can be examined for re-rating. The order that the evidence of one reputable private soldier would be sufficient to establish the cause of disability of an applicant has also been rescinded, and the old practice requiring the evidence of one commissioned officer or 2 privates, resumed.

A Mexican Skirmish.

It is reported that Mexican citizens had a desperate battle with Mexican officers and soldiers, in which 400 participated, and many were reported killed. It is said the citizens succeeded in routing the soldiers when the governor appeared upon the scene to assist in quelling the rebellion, but he was forced to leave or lose his life. The trouble was over the collection of enormous taxes.

Leave Revolvers at Home.

While at a dance in Kertessville, Ferdinand Bischo removed a revolver from his inside coat pocket to place it in his hip pocket. The weapon fell from his hand to the floor and was discharged, the ball striking Miss Lizzie Smith in the hip, inflicting an injury which will probably prove fatal. Mr. Bischo is one of the most prominent young men in that vicinity.

GENERAL.

Edward Fountain, a blood relation of Patrick Henry, has been pardoned out of the Ohio penitentiary, where he was serving a sentence for robbing a post office. Anarchists in America are proposing to honor the memory of the five martyrs (1) who were hanged in Chicago November 11, 1887. Victor Baughman, the present incumbent, is the democratic nominee for comptroller of Maryland. Forty-four bodies in all have been taken from the debris of the Quebec landslide. Kentucky has voted by 53,931 majority to hold a constitutional convention.

Mrs. Josie Gurley of Joliet, Ill., has been sentenced to the state penitentiary for 10 years for abducting little Annie Redmond. Mrs. Gurley says she stole the child to make an actress of her.

Joe Kemp, aged 72, was dug from the Quebec landslide, after being buried five days, alive, and he may recover.

Holford, Clark & Co., book publishers of Chicago, have failed for $400,000. Assets $200,000. It was the largest book publishing house west of New York.

Gold has been found almost within the city limits of Tacoma, W. T. There is great excitement over the discovery.

A Fairy Tale.

A famous woodsman once boasted that he could find his way through a wilderness and return by the same path. Being tested, he carried with him a silver thread, which should serve as a guide for the return trip. Reaching the end of his journey, he lay down to rest. While he rested came the genius of industry and breathed upon his thread and changed it into two shining ribbons of steel. It was a railroad. Throngs of people whirled past him in luxurious cars, and he read upon the train the mystic legend: "Wisconsin Central."

Won Big Money.

St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Sayings, Aug. 29. At the recent drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, $35,000 of the first prize was won by three St. Louisans, and $3,000 of the third capital prize of $50,000, also came to two lucky St. Louisans.

August Kaltmeyer, who is the proprietor of a saloon at the southwest corner of Sixth and Franklin avenues, had a quarter twentieth part of the $30,000 prize. A Star-Sayings reporter called upon Mr. Kaltmeyer at his saloon this morning, and found him in excellent humor. Mr. Kaltmeyer said: "I never played the lottery in my life before, but just a few days prior to the last drawing a friend of mine, whose name I cannot mention, came to me, and he said: 'Henry, poor people are getting rich in this lottery game.' I said I knew that, and he said: 'Let us go in a half dollar each on a ticket this morning.' The next day he purchased the ticket—the number of it was 75,332—and I was never so astonished in all my life as when I heard that it drew $2,500. I got the money a week ago, and gave my friend his half. I intend to keep the money in my business, but my friend, I guess, is having a good time for I haven't seen him since."

Mrs. Amelia Partheimer, who resides at 912 Monroe street, was also a winner to the extent of $2,500, she having held another twentieth ticket of the $30,000 prize. Mrs. Partheimer, in conversation with a reporter to-day, said: "It was a great surprise to me to win that much money, but I believe that you are bound to win at it some time, sooner or later. I have not played the lottery much; but I thought I would play it last month, at all hazards. My husband was very glad when he heard that I had made the winning. I guess I will use a good deal of the money on more lottery tickets."

Under the new tax law, the board of review is to be elected by the people, two members to act with the supervisor, one elected each year, and to hold office two years instead of being appointed by the town board as heretofore. At the election next spring, there will be two members elected, one for one year and the other for two years.

As October is one of the worst months for typhoid fever the state board of health have issued circulars on the cause and prevention of that disease. We copy the following: "The frequent outbreaks of this disease which are traceable directly and unmistakably to a contaminated water supply, seem to point to this as the chief source of danger. The disease has also been traced to milk diluted with infected pumpwater, and apparently in some cases to emanations from sewers and cesspools. It seems to prevail most in times of drought, in the fall of the year, especially after a period of high temperature, and when the water in wells is low and its contaminations most concentrated. Filth and bad sanitary condition of premises generally, probably increase the danger of spreading typhoid fever." * * * "Immediately on the appearance of typhoid fever a careful examination should be made of the surroundings of the house, and particularly of the source of the water used, to determine, if possible, whether it has been contaminated by leachings from privies or other sources of filth. If the sick person has been at home, and not away where the disease might be contracted, it will be safest that water from the same source as that used by the sick person immediately before having been taken sick should not be used for drinking or culinary purposes unless it is boiled. It is believed that thorough boiling will destroy the germs or poison of the disease. Ordinary filtering will not do so."
