Knapp and Yerkes have just put a new Peninsular furnace in the Presbyterian church and it works exceedingly well and gives entire satisfaction.

The annual meeting of Oakland county pioneer association will be held in Pontiac Feb. 22. This meeting promises to be one of the most interesting ones for years.

Dr. Keeley, of Dwight, suggests a treatment for the grip which he claims to know is nearly specific as well as innocent. It is simply asafetida, given in four-grain pills, one pill four times a day.

Lucinda Smith, an old resident of Farmington, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mrs. Julia Wolcott January 18th 1892, aged 87 years. Funeral services were held at the house Thursday.

Emile Leadbeater, of the village of Plymouth, who commenced a $5,000 damage-suit against John Sutton some time ago, filed her declaration today. She alleges breach of promise.—[Detroit Times.

South Lyon has ripe subjects for the Keeley Institute. If Northville will send over their ambulance we'll help load 'em in.—Excelsior.

You do the "loading" and we will "shoot" them here.

A Rochester boy has been sent to an insane asylum because he labors under the delusion he can sing. If the Rochester standard is adopted here it will drive into retirement a large proportion of our leading young society men.—[Adrian Times.

The $100 that T. G. Richardson lost, as noted in last week's RECORD was found alright. It seems that Willson and Peter Ely, Mr. Richardson's two chief clerks, got it. His ad on the inside page will explain it.

The Dubuar m'fg. co. have engaged the services of Ed. L. Crosby, of Plymouth to manage and push along their air gun business. Mr. Crosby has had years of experience in this business and will no doubt make the department another of Northville's hustling industries.

More boarding places are needed at once for the Keeley institute patients. Our citizens must hustle around and open up their houses. Don't wait for the committee to call on you, but send your names, accommodations, and prices at once to some one of the committee; they are T. G. Richardson, B. A. Wheeler and F. S. Neal.

Detroit is chosen as the place for holding the next annual meeting of the Michigan Press association, the date to be fixed by the executive committee. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Junius E. Reel, of Ann Arbor; vice president, Theo. E. Quiby, of Detroit; secretary, James Slocum, Holly; treasurer, L. M. Sellars, Cedar Springs.

A Buffalo concern has submitted to the postmaster-general a slot-machine for the sale of postage stamps, so designed that a one cent or two cent stamp can be secured by dropping the necessary coins into the slot. The beauty of the device lies in the fact that when it has no more stamps to sell it locks itself and refuses to take more money. Postmaster-general Wanamaker will entertain a proposition for the adoption of the machine by the government.

"Seeing is believing," we should like to change that, and say "trying is believing." For you never will believe how much benefit can be obtained from twenty five cents invested in a bottle of Hartzell's Cough Syrup, until you "try it," at G. C. Hueston's.

Two thousand five hundred couple were married in Wayne county last year.

Don't forget Prof. Reynolds' entertainment at the opera house Feb. 1 and 2. Large crowds have greeted him in all the large cities in the United States.

As will be seen by the council proceedings published this week, W. H. Ambler, J. A. Dubuar, and F. N. Clark have been elected as board of water commissioners.

Brown & Co., have put in some new improved machinery for the manufacture of picture frames. They now occupy the entire second floor of the Randolph building.

The Eagle steam printing house has received a new 18x36 Gordon Job Press, and 30 fonts of type of the latest design and will now compare with any jobbing house in the state.

The ladies' Missionary society will hold a Thank offering service in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, Jan. 24. A pleasing program has been provided by the children and young people.

The RECORD would like very much to see some of those papers, read at the Mich. press meet, at Ann Arbor last week, in print, for the benefit of some of our poor editors who couldn't raise money enough to attend.

Union Council No. 5, O. C. F. will install their officers for the ensuing year on Tuesday eve, Jan. 26. All members of the order and their families are cordially invited to be present. Refreshments will be served by the ladies. T. F. Payne Dept. Supreme Councilor will be present.

South Lyon has a news-boy we would like to see matched; he is 13 years old and weighs 154 pounds.—[Excelsior.

We don't want to brag any, but Northville has a boy 11 years old, who could act in this same capacity, who weighs 203 pounds. This would nearly match two of your boys, Bro. Roarbacher.

There are 40 patients under treatment here at the Keeley Institute. No other institution of the kind in America can boast of such flattering results and so bright prospects for being open but four weeks. A number have been cured and discharged, and they are loud in their praise of the institution, its management and treatment; the beauty and attractiveness of our village and the hospitality its citizens.

Mrs. Almira-Dobbins-Wight died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cass Sanford near Novi, of general debility. She was a little past 78 years of age. Mrs. Dobbins settled in Northville in 1832, and was the oldest member of the Northville M. E. church at the time of her death. She was well known in this section and highly respected by all. We believe there are but two children living: Mrs. Sanford as above mentioned and Chas. H. Dobbins of Buffalo, N. Y. Undertaker Forter had charge of the funeral which occurred from the home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Bradley officiating. The remains were interred in the Knapp-cemetery.

RESOLUTIONS.
Resolved: That the Michigan Bichloride of Gold club, of Northville Mich., extend a vote of thanks to all the people of Northville Mich., who have so kindly opened their doors, and extended the hospitality of their homes; also to those who have worked hard to find homes for the patients, under treatment at the institute at Northville.
Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be printed in the Northville RECORD.

Those Who Came Yesterday, Here Today, and Gone Tomorrow, as it Were.

Prof. Reynolds, the mesmerist, will visit Northville next week after next.
Mrs. John ... has been spending a week at the Detroit friend.
Mrs. Lydia ... has been sick for two weeks.
Mrs. Lydia ... and is still very ill.

C. H. Debbins, of Buffalo was called here last week by the sickness and death of his mother.
W. B. Thompson, of Los Angeles, Cal., is spending the winter with his father, J. J. Thompson.

Geo. Wager and family, who have been undergoing a siege of the grip are masters of the situation again.

Tonsorial Artist Sutherland is repairing two chairs in his shop now. Mr. Pearce from Flint is his new assistant.

Editor Miller, of the Mt. Pleasant Democrat, visited the Keeley institute, and other Northville attractions Saturday.

A. Power of Kent City who was called here last week to attend the funeral of his brother, A. D. Power has returned home.

Tom Junkins, an employe of the Western Newspaper-Union, of Detroit, a former Northville boy, Sundayed with friends in our village.

Mr. Shum Cook, Arthur Coe, Miss Silva-Meritt and Carrie Benham of Ypsilanti spent Sunday with the Messrs Howlett's at this place.

Mrs. Geo. Stark, who has been at Ann Arbor for eye treatment for some time past, returned home Saturday. Both eyes were successfully operated upon and she is in a much improved condition.

Charley Gardner, known far and near as "the sweet scented drummer," arrived home from New York Saturday where he had been for new samples. Charlie travels for Riksecker's great New York perfume house, and prior to the holidays last year sold more orders for perfumes than the house could fill, and they telegraphed him to go home and wait till they got caught up. What Charley lacks in stature he makes up in "get-thar-ness."

Just as we go to press we learn of the death of Mrs. C. H. Johnson. She died last night.

A Centenarian's Record.

Henry Edick, the well-known centenarian of St. Joseph is reported to be dying at Grass Lake, Ill., at the age of 103 years. Mr. Edick was a remarkable character. He was born in Deerfield, Oneida county, N. Y., in 1780, and from appearance none would have judged him more than 75. When he was 60 years he cut his own wood with a crosscut saw and grubbed two acres of heavy white oak, walking four miles every day to do the work. He has always been a farmer. At the age of 90 he worked during harvest time in the field, binding and keeping up with the cradles. Five years ago, at the age of 97, he husked corn and his work continued until within a few years. He is especially delighted in telling "trapping and hunting anecdotes of his early days to the children. He was accustomed to come every day to see him. Mr. Edick never took a drop of medicine in his life, but he has used tobacco ever since he was 25 years of age, always using the home-grown weed. He never wore a pair of spectacles and until recently could read without trouble. He retired at 6 o'clock and never rose later than 5 in the morning. He never used liquor. On his hundredth birthday he walked to the Hotel Watercomb where he was banqueted by his relatives and friends.

Boiler Explosion. The engine and boiler-houses of the North Pitt in mining company at Iron Mountain, were blown into kindling wood by the bursting of one of their large boilers. At the time of the explosion Superintendent John S. Buddie was sitting in his office within 10 feet of the battery of boilers. When seen an hour after the explosion he said the first he knew of the accident was when he was drawn from under a pile of boiler tubes and shattered timber. His escape seems to have been miraculous. John Hughes of Hurley, a fireman, was blown a distance of 100 feet, the shock breaking his neck and all his limbs except one leg. James Carney, master mechanic of the mine, was in the bucket, descending the shaft and was about 15 feet from the water of which the shaft held about 160 feet. When the explosion occurred the bucket broke the bucket rope and he was carried into the water, escaping by way of the shaft timber with serious injuries. The explosion occurred at an hour when nearly all hands employed about the surface had gone to dinner. Had it taken place a few minutes earlier many lives would have been lost. The entire hoisting plant of machinery, compressor and buildings is a complete wreck.

Prince Albert Victor Dead.

Special from London: Prince Albert Victor, the duke of Clarence and Avondale, is dead.

The news of the death of the duke caused widespread demonstrations of the public feeling everywhere. On all public buildings flags are displayed at half mast and throughout the whole of London the sad intelligence has been received with expressions of the deepest sorrow. On receipt of the news the lord mayor at once gave orders to have the great bell in St. Paul's cathedral tolled and also sent the following message to the prince of Wales: "We are profoundly moved by the sad news and have commiserated it to our fellow citizens. We tender our deep and respectful sympathy with your royal highness in this great sorrow and national calamity."

Prince Albert Victor Christian Edward was born Jan. 2, 1864, and was therefore 28 years old. He was the eldest son of the prince of Wales, and consequently in direct line of succession to the throne. He was educated at Trinity college, Cambridge, and at the Royal Naval College, at the death of the duke of Clarence and Avondale the next person to the throne of Wales, in the line of direct succession is Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert of Wales, brother of the duke. He was born June 8, 1865.

On Dec. 25 last the court journal contained the official announcement that the marriage of his royal highness Prince Albert Victor to his serene highness Princess Victoria Mary, of Teck, would take place at Sandringham, Feb. 27, at St. George's chapel, Windsor castle.

Laid Aside the Cardinal's Hat. London cable: Cardinal Manning is dead. The intelligence over which all Catholics is mourning.

Henry Edward Manning, cardinal priest of the Holy Roman church and archbishop of Westminster, born in England, July 15, 1808, was educated at Harrow and Balliol college, Oxford; was appointed rector of Loughton and Cranham, Sussex, 1834, and archdeacon of Chichester in 1840. These preferments were signed in 1851. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon him at Rome, and the office of provost of the Catholic archdiocese of Westminster, presiding apostolic vicar of the vicar general to the pope. After the death of Cardinal Wiseman, Monsignor Manning was consecrated archbishop of Westminster, June 8, 1865. Pope Pius IX. created him a cardinal priest March 15, 1875, the title assigned him being that of St. Andrew and Gregory on the Coelian Hill. The same pontiff invested him the cardinal's hat at a consistory held at the vatican, Dec. 31, 1877.

A special cable from Rome says Cardinal Simeoni has died of influenza.

Does the President Mean Fight? The publication of the testimony of the sailors of the Keweenaw and Baltimore creates a great stir at Washington and the feeling expressed is that nothing is to be given until a sound thing is done. The cabinet at a recent meeting considered the Chilean situation for a long time. It is understood that the president expressed himself earnestly that this government cannot longer delay demanding immediate reparation. He stated that all the published statements as to overtures for peace on the part of the Chilean government are not founded on facts. On the contrary Chile has shown a disposition to remain in the same relations and will apologize for the capture of a merchant ship. The cabinet situation for a long time. TO-NIGHT.

Night, gentle mother, holy night,
In robes of darkness dressed,
With noiseless footsteps, slow and light,

OUR LIGHTNING JERRY.

I am Lightning Jerry, I'm a typographical tourist and I want to throw in a case or rush up a few sticks in order to get something to eat.

Old Lightning was verily a jewel. He couldn't put up as much type, perhaps, as he could have done thirty years ago, but he set a clean proof and speeded superbly.

He had a rich fund of reminiscence and spoke as familiarly of Horace Greeley, James Gordon Bennett, "not the fellow" he always explained, engagement mentioned in the beginning of this article.

The old man was a sincere devotee of the "art preservative" and always placed the business at the head.

Lightning had often spoken of his stay in a printing office in Talequah, and admitted that he had "learned to talk Indian equal to the greatest buck in the nation."

One morning he failed to show up at the office, but came in at 11 o'clock, and to use his own expression, "fetched a yawp" that would have done credit to an untamed Comanche redskin.

Poor old Lightning Jerry! He possessed qualities of mind, which if rightly directed, might have entranced a nation.

The world looks, in such cases as his, for a life history—an unfortunate love affair in youth, or a cherished ambition, killed by the early frosts of disappointment.

"Well?" queried the detective from headquarters, who had climbed three pairs of stairs on Griswold street, in response to a call from an insurance office, says the Detroit Free Press.

The old-time shipbuilders in New York are indulging in the hope of a revival of their industry within the next few years.

A Winter Night, OR, Found in a Snow-Drift.

"What a misery it is to have to sneak away like thieves in the night," said Pierce, as he settled Dorothy in a first-class carriage.

"I suppose I was foolish to travel with you, darling, but I could not bear the idea of your enduring the long journey alone."

"I am glad to see you so well," said Dorothy, as she looked at Pierce's face, which she had not seen for so long.

FLYMOUTH.

Spencer has returned to the compartment in which he was.

He felt uneasy on her account.

He thought he should easily find her when the train stopped.

But somehow he could not rest, and kept looking out first of one window then the other.

Once he fancied a smothered cry floated to him.

This led the train slackened speed, and when he felt the train slacken speed, he was almost inclined to get out and walk along the footboard, as guards do, till he came to the right carriage.

But the idea of grinding his legs between the platform and the train kept his impatience in bounds.

Still, he hung out as far as he could. In the distance he could see the simple posts, their lights looking like huge gas.

Then, oh horror! he saw two carriages in front of him, a door fly open, and a man spring out with a struggling woman in his arms.

The train was then running past a big snow-drift, piled together in clearing the line.

He saw the two forms huddled in a heap, a sickening sight, suggestive of broken bones, and thanked God the people fell clear of the train.

He was quick to raise the alarm, but the train did not really stop till it got into the station.

Pierce's excited account of what he had seen was gravely listened to by the guard and men sent at once to search the spot where the snow-banks were.

Pierce, in his anxiety, was about to follow the men, but the thought of Dorothy's alarm at not seeing him decided him to forego the adventure till he assured himself of her safety.

He hastened along the row of carriages till he came to the one he fancied he had seen her in.

He sprang out again in great alarm, but could not find her.

They came the terrible idea that it was her he saw flying from the carriage in the arms of the man.

Alarm seemed to lend wings to his feet; he flew rather than walked, to where a crowd of people stood over two prostrate forms.

The light of a lamp fell on their faces; the man's was livid with the hue of death, the woman's white as the snow on which she lay.

Once before had Pierce seen that fair face on such a chill pillow.

He found her just so on a heap of snow. He fell on his knees beside her and called her by name.

He gazed at it all night of the handsome deathlike face beside her.

"I am a doctor," said a kindly voice, "let me see what aches these people, have you any?"

An old man pushed through the crowd, and he set down to make a brief but comprehensive examination.

He attended to Horace Middleton first, because he, he said, was the most hurt.

"Baffled broken just above the ankles— injury to the head, what besides I can't tell. Come, my men, get a hurdle and carry the poor fellow to some place of shelter, his is a serious case. Now let's look at the young lady. Come, come, this is more encouraging; there are no bones broken that I can find; she has swooned from faint, a little brandy will revive her."

He spoke truly, Dorothy was uninjured, and after Pierce had satisfied the officials as to his right to her, they were allowed to resume their journey, leaving Horace Middleton, of whom they had given a brief history, to the care of a kindly doctor, who took him to the infirmary and tended him with his own kind hands.

A week later there was a simple wedding in the sombre City church; Pierce, changing the law, took his darling into his own tent, kept kneeling, cheered by his good friends and bridegroom set out for the United States, accompanied by Jeff Garth and Jane.

Dorothy was pale and unbraced by the recent events, but the sea-breezes soon brought as bright a bloom to her cheek as was ever called there by her fond husband's caresses.

They had a very fair passage and arrived in the great Republic in good health and spirits.

The news from home was to the effect that Mr. Middleton was recovering, but could never hope to be anything but a cripple all his life, and had told Dr. Steel that he bitterly regretted the past, and was willing to resign the management of the former estates into Mr. Penfold's hands, if he would consent to hush up the part he had played as cruel guardian to Dorothy.

Directly after this he received notice that Lee's Circus would perform in New York on a given date, and that it was believed that the child they had lost was among the performers.

"Poor baby! what could they make her do?" said Dorothy, tears in her sweet eyes, as he said this.

"I will take a couple of detectives with me, and see for myself. My poor baby! God give you back to me, and there is no other blessing I need ask of Heaven, except his care for my dear ones."

Pierce obtained the aid he needed, and started off, full of vague anger and excitement.

One of the detectives paid for their admission.

The money was taken by a handsome gipsy in a flame-colored satin dress, shrouded with Spanish lace.

The sight of her almost unnerved Pierce. It was Alison, more handsome than ever, with a proud exultant grace about her that spoke of success.

"Miss Thistle-down, aged three, would show the Americans how easily the British Lion was led," etc.

When the time arrived for this performance, Alison entered the ring for the first time as the Lion Queen.

She led in a huge sleepy-looking lion, who was guided with a silver cord by a woman dressed as the Grand Old Man, a woodman's axe in hand, and a miniature tree over his shoulder.

The figure wore pepper-and-salt trousers, white shirt, and a pair of slippers, and bore a mimic lion which was a splendid likeness to the Grand Old Man.

After going round to slow music, the lion lay down, and the child jumped off his back, lifted off the mask, tore off her outer clothes, and stood confessed a perfect fairy princess in a scalv suit of silver mail.

After the performance, which elicited a storm of applause, the child stood alone, bowing prettily and kissing the tips of her fingers.

The music ceased, and the child was about to bound away, when a man rose up with a heart-rending cry of:

"Little Lily!"

"Papa, papa, papa!" cried the mite, flying to the spot whence the sound proceeded, and was clasped to her father's heart, his

Obituary.

After an illness of but one week

Arthur D. Power died at his residence four miles east of Northville, last week

Wednesday at 5.30 p. m., of pneumonia.

Mr. Power was born at Farmington

May 27, 1827, thus making him age which was 65 years of age.

She took the tiny, quiet, Amy to her heart, and cried over it quietly for the first and last time in his life.

Eighteen Hundred forty one and 73-100

Penfold fainted away.

Inside the circus all was confusion; the people would have the scene explained, so front and gave his own version of the affair, which was that it was all a part of the performance, a dramatic situation to interest the public in the clever little actress, etc.

But the old man looked anxious when he left the ring and found his daughter weeping like a madwoman at the loss of her child.

After this Alison fretted herself into a fever, and her old father grieved over her as over the most faithful and virtuous daughter of the world contained.

Thanks to his nursing, she came back to life, a different woman though, broken in health and spirit, with but a ghost of her old superlative beauty.

Pierce lost no time in returning to England and taking possession of the Gower estates; but poor faithful Jen did not return with them.

At the last moment, he wrote to say he had gone with his relatives, the Lees, to leave the horses.

"Poor Jen, he may as well sell his soul to the devil as to follow that freely of a woman in hope of any reward. Well, I'll send him a handsome cheque, he deserves it for faithful service to me."

For once Pierce reasoned wrongly. After years of deep loving devotion old Jen dismissing Alison to her care, and she, feeling lonely, took pity on the faithful fellow and married him.

She made him a better wife than many a childless woman; and when sturdy children were born to her, loved her great band, and helped to make the circus a success than ever.

Years have passed and it is Christmas

again, and the world is white about Castle

Gower, a beautiful place on the summit of a wooded hill.

Inside the grand old house all is mirth and revelry; a stately lady stands, the center of a rosy group of beautiful children, her handsome husband leaning over her, and by her side a slight dark-eyed maiden who calls her "mother" with as true affection as her brothers and sisters.

Pierce and Alison kissed his wife under a hough of mistletoe, and tells his guests, among whom Dr. and Mrs. Steel are the most honored, that Dorothy is a priceless treasure that he once found in a Snow-

Drift.

THE END.

How Nero Disposed of Rivals.

Britannicus, his brother by adoption,

a boy of 14, in the way, he is poisoned, thanks to Locusta's art, at a dinner given by Nero. Suetonius records the popular belief that the motive for the crime was no less a professional jealousy of his ambition. The first dose only maddo the boy very sick, whereupon

Nero sent for Locusta and chastised her with his own hand. She excused herself, a stronger dose would have been a quicker method certainly, but a more politic. "As if," replied Nero,

"the Julian law had terrors for me," and compelled her there and then to concoct the strongest and most effectual mixture she knew. This was offered to a goat; the goat lived five hours to their great disappointment.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is "purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

What Makes a Beautiful Woman. Over twelve years ago I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German-Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now sixty years old, but feel as young as at thirty.—$1 a bottle. RESOLUTIONS Adopted by the W. C. T. U. of Northville.

Whereas, God in his all-wise providence has deemed it just to take from us, our work "For God and Home and Humanity," our honored member and ever willing helper, Mr. Arthur D. Power, therefore be it resolved:

That we tender our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the afflicted family; that in the death of our brother the state has lost a useful and efficient worker, and we can only hope that God will raise up another to fill the important place so sadly vacated by one who loved the temperance work.

That we as members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Northville, will each strive to profit by his example in his zeal and devotion to the cause of humanity, trustfully looking forward to the time when our work is ended and we too shall enter the haven of rest.

Obituary.

After an illness of but one week Arthur D. Power died at his residence four miles east of Northville, last week Wednesday at 5.30 p. m., of pneumonia. Mr. Power was born at Farmington N. Y., Jan. 27, 1827, thus making him but a few days less than 65 years of age. He was the son of Ira and Amy (Lapham) Power, the later being still alive, though in feeble health. There were eleven children in this family of whom two brothers and two sisters are living. When Arthur was four years of age his parents moved to Livonia township and settled on this same farm where Arthur had continuously since resided. In 1852 he married Miss Maria Hart, of Battle Creek. There was born to them two sons and one daughter; one son died in infancy and the other, Sumner G., is a resident of Detroit, and the daughter, Mary H., resides at home.

A. D. Power was one of the best known, and highly respected citizens to be found in this part of the country, and was always ready and more than willing to lend a helping hand to a needy person or any worthy object. He was one of the founders of the Prohibition party of Michigan, and was for years a member of the state central committee, and chairman of the committee, in 1884, when the party cast its largest vote; was the party's candidate for congress from this district in '86 and made a very strong canvass against so heavy odds.

Mr. Power was one of the most successful cheese manufacturers in Michigan, and his factory, through his personal energy, and mode of doing business, has gained a state reputation second to none. And thus one by one they pass away. The wife has lost a good husband; the children a kind and loving father; the neighbors an ever obliging and ready friend and the community at large a valuable citizen and business man.

The funeral, under the direction of Undertaker Porter, was held from the late residence Saturday afternoon, Rev. L. G. Clark officiating, and the remains laid at rest in Rural Hill cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of the late Arthur D. Power wish to sincerely thank all the kind friends who in any way assisted them during their recent bereavement.

Mrs. M. H. POWERS.

YES! those elegant Gold Dollars, that I told you I had lost, has been found, and this is "Just how it all happened." One year ago I told you that I had sold more goods the previous year than any other year in all my business life; and I then told "Will the Dry Goods man" and "Slim Pete" that if during last year (1891) they would beat that record, even by a single dollar, they would each receive $50.00 IN GOLD at the close of the year, and by the look on their faces I could even then see I had LOST ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS IN GOLD, for they just "took off their coats" and went to work, each with gold dollars in their eyes, and beat it they did by a good many dollars. And this is how, when, and where, I Lost One Hundred Dollars in Gold, and these Hands will give you pointers as to the ones that found them. Yours as ever, T. G. RICHARDSON.

And now we, "Dry Goods Will" and "Slim Pete," most humbly make our bow and thank our friends and patrons for so kindly helping us win the prize, and you will always find us ready and willing to show you through the store where you can buy DRY GOODS, BOOTS and SHOES, and CLOTHING, cheaper than at any other place in town, or in other words at the store that "T. G." built.

THE RECORD

F. S. NEAL, Publisher. NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

ENDEAVOR to always be patient of the faults and imperfections of others; for thou hast many faults and imperfections of thine own that require a reciprocation of forbearance. If thou art not able to make thyself that which thou wishest to be, how canst thou expect to mould another in conformity to thy will?

THOUGHTFUL persons of much experience know that the way to be happy is to give up all attempts to be so. In other words the cream of enjoyment in this life is always impromptu—the chance walk, the unexpected visit, the unappreciated journey, the unsought conversation or acquaintance.

A YESTERDAY, Mass., young lady rode several miles on a bicycle at breathless speed to give an alarm of fire, and the department responded quickly enough to save valuable property. This is encouraging. Instead of being a mere fad, the utilitarian side of bicycle-riding will doubtless soon become the most prominent. By the opening of the century it may be a common occurrence to see a messenger boy on a wheel and in a hurry.

Our civil war was a great destroyer of American patriots. Troops from all parts of the North were thrown together and all kinds of angles rubbed down, often to the vanishing point. Even the North and the South were somewhat unified, albeit they met only as mortal enemies and gun in hand. But large as our own country is and peopled originally from such different sections of England, it has no such extremes of provincialism as, according to Arnold, may be found in the mother country.

The most ignorant monk who ever twisted and played together the language of the gospels and his own ignorant ideas of the poetical meaning of classical myths was a teacher for Shakespeare. He begged of him and received gifts from him as from the very poorest of the poor—ballad-makers whose productions were hawked about the streets to supply the intellectual needs of the coster-mongers and fish-wives. Into the company of these, the very lowest of the low in the intellectual world, Shakespeare went and there sat as one of them to receive the gifts they were receiving, counting nothing common or too low for him if it only supplied this intellectual hunger for knowledge of the ceasing human life of which his was a part; a part which could only grow larger in the whole and approximately comprehend the whole through this begging importunity, born of poverty of spirit.

Some of these good people of whom there seem to be so many in England, who have nothing better to do than to carry on aimless debates in communications to the newspapers, have been lately discussing in a London daily, "Are women naturally impolite?" The answer to this ought to be self-evident and the question unnecessary. Of course women are naturally impolite. So are men. Politeness is not a natural virtue. It is acquired. In a state of nature no such virtue is recognized. There every man is for himself. It is when men agree to live together under a social order that some sort of consideration for others becomes necessary and, as civilization advances, is gradually developed into a habit. It may become an hereditary or race habit among favored nations, and so far we can speak of natural politeness; but in general politeness is the result of education of contact with the world of association with polite people.

WANT can be minimized only when one producer gives his surplus to another producer in exchange for his, that the needs of both may be supplied by the surplus of both. Alms-giving to the poor, the building of hospitals, libraries and almshouses by those who have accumulated more of the medium of exchange than they can use in exchange diminish want only in a few individual cases. For the great masses of the struggling, suffering, lacking producers of the world it can only be minimized by the largest possible production, accompanied by, as it is always dependent on the freest possible exchange. To bring this about is worthy the best efforts of any man's life. It is work for the unconsidered millions of humanity who in all ages have suffered as producers because as producers they were not allowed to relieve their own wants by relieving the wants of others through fair exchange. To work for this object is to work in a practical way for a practical and the greatest possible production, the widest possible distribution, the greatest possible prosperity, the least possible need, discomfort and poverty.

THE ECHOES.

THE SUBJECT OF DR. TALMAGE'S LATEST SERMON.

The Sounding Again From the Mountains, from Ezekiel 7:7, Paraphrases a Theme for an Instructive Discourse—Echoes of Bad and Good.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 17, 1892. Dr. Talmage gave a new illustration in his sermon this morning of his mastery of the art of drawing spiritual lessons from common natural phenomena. His subject was "Echoes," and his text: Ezekiel 7:7, "The sounding again of the mountains."

At last I have found it. The Bible has in it a recognition of all phases of the natural world from the aurora of the midnight heavens to the phosphorescence of the tumbling sea. But the well-known sound that we call the echo, I found not until a few days ago I discovered it in my text: "The sounding again of the mountains." That is the Echo. Ezekiel of the text had heard it again and again. Born among mountains and in his journey to distant exile he had passed among mountains, and it was natural that all through his writings there should loom up the mountains. Among them he had heard the sound of cataracts and of tempests in wrestle with oak and cedar and the voices of the wild beasts, but a man of so poetic a nature as Ezekiel could not allow another sound, viz., the Echo, to be disregarded, and so he gives us in our text "the sounding again of the mountains."

Greek mythology represented the Echo as a nymph, the daughter of Earth and Air, following Narcissus through the forests and into grottoes and every whither, and so strange and weird and startling is the Echo I do not wonder that the superstitious have lifted it into the supernatural. You and I in boyhood or girlhood experimented with this responsiveness of sound. Standing half-way between the house and barn, we shouted many a time to hear the reverberations, or out among the mountains back of our home, on some long tramp, we stopped and made a declaration with full lungs just to hear what Ezekiel calls "the sounding again of the mountains." The Echo has frightened many a child and many a man.

It is no tame thing after you have spoken to hear the same words repeated by the invisible. All the silences are filled with voices ready to answer. Yet it would not be so startling if they said something else, but why do those lips of the air say just what you say? Do they mean to mock or mean to please? Who are you and where are you, thou wondrous Echo? Sometimes its response is a reiteration. The shot of a gun the clapping of hands, the beating of a drum, the voice of a violin are sometimes repeated many times by the Echo. Near Colobetz—that which is said has sevenfold echoes. In 1766, a writer says that near Milan, Italy, there were seventy such reflections of sound to one snap of a pistol. Play a single note on a Lake of Killarney and the tube is played back to you as distinctly as when you played it. There is a well 210 feet deep at Carisbrooke Castle in the Isle of Wight. Drop a pin into that well, and the sound of its fall comes to the top of the well distinctly. A blast of an Alpine horn comes back from the rocks of Jungfrau in surge after surge of reflected sound, until it seems as if every peak had lifted and blown an Alpine horn. But have you noticed—and this is the reason for the present discourse—that this Echo in the natural world has its analogy in the moral and religious world? Have you noticed the tremendous fact that what we say and do comes back in recited gladness or disaster? So, also, the Judgment day will be an echo of all our other days. The universe needs such a day for there are so many things in the world that need to be fixed up and explained. If God had not appointed such a day all the nations would cry out, "Oh, God, give us a Judgment day." But we are apt to think of it and speak about it as a day away off in the future, having no special connection with this day or any other day. The fact is that we are now making up its voices, its trumpets will only sound back again to us what we now say and do. That is the meaning of all that Scripture which says that Christ will on that day address the soul, saying, "I was naked and ye clothed me, I was sick and in prison and ye visited me."

My subject advances to tell you that eternity itself is only an Echo of time. Mind you, the analogy warrants my saying this. The Echo is not always exactly in kind like the sound originally projected. Lord Raleigh says that a woman's voice sounding from a grove was returned an octave higher. A scientist playing a flute in Fairfax county, Va., found that all the notes were returned, although some of them came in raised pitch. A trumpet sounded ten times near Glasgow, Scotland, and the ten notes were all repeated, but a third lower. And the spiritual law corresponds with the natural world. What we do of good or bad may not come back to us in just the proportion we expect it, but come back it will; it may be from a higher gladness than we thought or from a deeper woe, from a mightier conqueror or from a worse captive, from a higher throne or deeper dungeon. Our prayer or our blasphemy, our kindness or our cruelty, our faith or our unbelief, our holy life or our dissolute behavior, will come back somehow. Suppose the boss of a factory or the head of a commercial firm, some day comes out among his clerks or employees, and putting his thumb in the armpits of his vest, says, with an air of swagger and jocosity: "Well, I don't believe in the bible or the church. The one is an imposition and the other is full of hypocrites. I declare I would not trust one of those very pious people further than I could see

TELL YOUR LANDLADY.

What a Grocer Learned by Looking Into a Corn Factory.

"Ain't you got no corn like we've been havin'?" That you sent me this mornin' ain't sweet corn at all. It's nothin' but cow corn."

"Let's see," said the grocer, replying to the woman's complaint. "What kind of corn have you been havin'?" "Why, you called it 'Honey Drop,'" answered the woman, "according to the New York Times."

"And what kind did we send you to-day?" "The label was jest the same." "Well, madam, both lots is from the same factory, but there may be a little difference in the doping." "The doping? What's that?" "Why, the sweetening! Put a little sugar in the next lot you cook and then it'll taste just like the old."

"Put sugar in corn?" exclaimed the woman, greatly astonished. "Why, certainly, there's sugar in every can of corn put up. Didn't you know that? Probably not. Most people don't know it, but it's a fact all the same. It's sort of a trade secret that I found out for myself."

"I used to think that all the difference was in the corn itself, but that's bosh. Of course some corn is better than other corn—tenderer, juicier and sweeter—but none of it is sweet enough to can without the use of sugar."

"Dear me, I never heard of that before," murmured the woman. "Probably not," responded the grocer, "but it's so. There are lots of canning concerns down in Maine, and only lately I had a chance to look one over. It's a great business and no mistake."

"The farmers bring in their corn by the wagon loads, and dump it in the yard. Then the husters go at it—men and women and children—about half the town in that one yard. The husked ears are put into baskets and carried into the factory. The corn is taken off the ear by a machine that works quicker than lightning. Before you could say 'Jack Robinson' the cob falls out of the window, leaving behind in a pan every bit of the corn with which it was covered."

"Then comes the packing into the cans thousands every day, an enormous number. And now listen to this: Into every single can there goes a quantity of sugar. When the corn is a choice lot, there is little sugar needed, but when it's inferior or has been kept over night, they dope it in great shape."

"So, madam, use the sugar, and I'll guarantee that your boarders will like that corn as well as any they ever ate." "Well, I'll try it," said the woman, "and if it works well I'll be a grand good thing to know. Perhaps I'll be able to buy cheaper corn hereafter." "May be," answered the grocer, but he looked a little bit dubious.

THEY DON'T.

Why It Is That Lobsters and Crabs Turn Red.

"What makes lobsters and crabs turn red when they are boiled?" said the observant fish man in reply to a question. "Well, strictly speaking, they don't. The lobster or the crab is just as red before it is put in hot water as it is afterward, only it is subdued by a mingling of blue in its makeup that gives it a grayish-blue appearance. The blue and red of a live lobster or crab are pigments in the shell. As long as they are there together the red becomes gray. But both of these pigments are not fast colors. The blue won't wash, but the red is there to stay. If it were possible to keep lobsters or crabs alive for any length of time in the sun the blue would fade out as quickly as the same color does out of a cheap flannel suit, and the shells would be a vivid red as if they had been boiled. It is not an uncommon thing to catch live lobsters and crabs more frequently the latter, that are entirely red. It has been determined, however, that this eradication of the blue pigment is the result of disease. Live red crabs and lobsters are never put on the market. So the reason a crab or a lobster turns red as the saying is, when it is boiled, is because the hot water instantly washes the fugitive blue coloring matter out of the shell and leaves only the fast red. It does not take long boiling to change the color. If you were to rescue a lobster from its hot bath two seconds after it is submerged you would find it as red as if it had been boiled for an hour."—New York Sun.

A Definition. "Can anyone in the class give a definition of the word 'parasite'?" asked the teacher. "There was no response and she proceeded to define it herself. "A parasite is a creature that lives on its fellow-creatures. Now, remember children, what is a parasite?" And a little boy with a thoughtful, Emersonian cast of countenance stood up and said: "A parasite is a cannibal."—Chicago Tribune.

Seeing Birds in Oregon. An association for the importation of song birds has been formed in Oregon, and a consignment of linnet, skylarks, thrushes and bullfinches has recently been received from Europe. There is every prospect that the experiment will be successful, as the climate and forests of the Northwest are peculiarly adapted to the needs of these delightful songsters of the woods.

"August Flower"

The Hon. J. W. Fennimore is the Sheriff of Kent Co., Del., and lives at Dover, the County Seat and Capital of the State. The sheriff is a gentleman fifty-nine years of age, and this is what he says: "I have used your August Flower for several years in my family and for my own use, and found it does me more good than any other remedy. I have been troubled with what I call Sick Headache. A pain comes in the back part of my head first, and then soon a general headache until I become sick and vomit. At times, too, I have a fullness after eating, a pressure after eating at the pit of the stomach, and sourness when food seemed to rise up in my throat and mouth. When I feel this coming on if I take a little August Flower it relieves me, and is the best remedy I have ever taken for it. For this reason I take it and recommend it to others as a great remedy for Dyspepsia, &c."

OVER FORTY YEARS AGO

HOW THEY TRANSFERRED LARGE SUMS IN 1849.

Carrying $10,000 From Atlanta to Newnan, Ga.—Passing a Night of Terror—A Georgia's Remarkable Story.

"On the last Sunday evening in October, 1849, I went over to my father's, who was in rather bad health, and found his family physician there to see him before he left for Milledgeville the ensuing week as a legislator," says Benjamin Leigh of Newnan, Ga., in the Atlanta Constitution.

"In course of conversation I mentioned that I was going to start next morning with a load of cotton to Atlanta. The doctor said to me that he expected that he had a package of $10,000 awaiting him there and for me to call on John F. Mims, the agent of the Georgia railroad, for it.

So next morning being Monday, I started with my load of seven bales of cotton to Atlanta and arrived there on Tuesday evening and next morning sold my cotton, bought what supplies I needed, and when ready to start home, I walked over to the Georgia railroad depot, which stood there where the new one does now, stepped into Mr. Mims' office, which was crowded with wagoners waiting for freight from all parts of the compass at least two dozen of them. I said to Mims: "Dr. Terrell has requested me to call on you to see if you did not have a package for him; and if you have send it by me."

"Mims answered in the affirmative and stepped back to the safe, which he opened, and took out the package and as he walked back to me, cautioned me to take good care of it, as there was $10,000 in it. This declaration nearly gave me the horrors, as the eyes of every man in the large room immediately turned on the package and me.

"At first I hardly knew whether to take it or not but I soon recovered, and just then Mims asked me how far I lived from Bob Burch. Bob, before that was an old Tallapoosa county friend of Mims. I replied that he lived on an adjoining plantation. He then said he had $441 for him, and asked me if I would carry it to him, to which I replied in the affirmative. He then stepped to his money drawer and counted out the money to me in the presence of all present. I just thought that I was in it and that I would carry it to Atlanta.

"I opened my long calf-skin pocket-book and put Burch's money in it in view of all, and put the ten thousand-dollar package in my right-hand overcoat pocket, and left the depot and soon was out of town accompanied by no one but my old wagoner, who knew nothing of the money I had with me. I met that day a great many wagoners going to Atlanta, many of whom were from Corveta, and some of them my neighbors. I reckon I looked back a hundred times to see if any of those who were in the depot at the time I got the money were pursuing me.

"Just after sundown I reached a camping place which now is about the western boundary of Fairburn. The weather was just such as we have had for the last month, clear, dry and cool, with the moon at its full. As soon as the mules were unharnessed and fed my wagoner made a fire and boiled coffee, and already having bread brought from home, I soon ate my supper, had my pallet made down on the ground, which was always my custom in camping out, and soon laid down and got to thinking about the probability of being robbed, if not murdered, before day.

"There was not a breeze in the forest, and a cricket could be heard almost a quarter of a mile, and the moon shined almost like day, and while yet in this mood, I heard a whip crack in the direction of Newnan. I then knew I would have some company through the night. Directly two heavily loaded wagons, with cotton, drove up and formed a sort of semi-circle around my camp-fire, which was still brilliant. You can better imagine than I can describe my relief of mind when I saw two heavy, well-set colored wagoners and their young master, Jennings, from Troop. I had no further fear of robbery through the night, and I slept well all through the night, not having any fears of robbery from outside the camp or inside it, because I was the only one that knew of the amount of money that was in the camp.

"I got up early next morning and started for Newnan, at which place I arrived early in the afternoon, and delivered my ten-thousand-dollar package according to instructions to Batty H. Mitchell, and returned home—four miles—before night and next day turned over the $441 to my friend and neighbor, Burch.

"Those were the good old days of honesty and security from robbery and murder. There is not enough money in the universe to induce me to take that much money now or my person and start for Newnan with the same mode of travel."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, promoted the disease. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Cheney's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. F. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It offers one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DONALD KENNEDY Of Roxbury, Mass., Says:

Strange cases cured by my Medical Discovery every day. Here is one of Paralysis—Blimbly and the Grip. Now how does my Medical Discovery cure all these? I don't know, but the bright lights of heaven, to whom I make all honor.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEVADA, Sept. 28, 1881. Donald Kennedy—Dear Sir: I will state my case about five years ago I was paralyzed in my left side, and the doctor said I was never to get up again, and I was advised to try your Discovery, which did the work, and in a few months I was restored to health. A month or two ago I became blind in my left eye by a spotted catarrh. Last March I was taken with La Grippe, and was confined to my bed for three months. At the end of that time, as in the start, it struck me on my right eye, and the doctor said I was never to get a better eye, and before I was half gone, I was able to go to my work in the mines. In regard to my eyes, at first my left eye, and about six months ago my right eye became affected with black spots on the white, and the left eye—perhaps some months of that—but since I have been using your Discovery they all my right eye has been cured, and the bright lights of heaven, to whom I make all honor, I am wonderfully strengthened in it, and thank God and your Medical Discovery.

Yours truly, HANK WHITE.

All gone

—woman's suffering and woman's weakness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription puts a stop to it. It's a remedy for all the delicate derangements and disorders that make her suffer, and a cure for all the diseases and disturbances that make her weak. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens. For bearing-down pains, displacements, all the functional irregularities peculiar to the sex, it's a safe and certain remedy.

Other medicines claim to cure? That's true. But they don't claim to do this: if the Favorite Prescription fails to give satisfaction, in any case for which it's recommended, the money paid for it is refunded.
