IN MEMORIAL

The following lines were written up on the death of the late M. S. Northrop:

Called to a brighter mansion far,
Upon a sunnier shore, Where darkened shadows never fall,
And sorrow comes no more.
Weep not for me, that spirit cries:
I've done with toils and fears, And entered on the blissful course Of heaven's eternal years.

IN AID OF THE STARVING PEOPLE OF RUSSIA

Detroit, Feb. 27, 1892.

To the Citizens of the State of Mich.
The undersigned, having been appointed by Gov. Winans in his proclamation of Feb. 22d, Commissioners to receive and forward donations of money, provisions or clothing contributed by the citizens of this State for the relief of the famine sufferers of Russia, have organized for the duties assigned to them by the election of Rufus W. Gillett, chairman; John S.
Gray, treasurer, and Geo. M. Lane, secretary.

The appeal made by Gov. Winans is heartily endorsed by the undersigned, and they urge the people of Michigan to contribute freely of their abundant for the relief of the starving and the destitute of that unfortunate country. It is requested that donations of money be forwarded directly to John S. Gray, treasurer. Associations or individuals having other contributions will please address Geo. M. Lane, Sec., before shipping, who will give all needed information. The best and about the only article of provisions that it is wise to send, is low grade flour. Second hand clothing, well packed, would also be acceptable.

New Depot.

The F. & P. M. will be asked to Construct a New Railroad Depot Here.

The citizens of Northville have decided to ask the F. & P. M. railroad company to construct a new depot in place of the old concern, which has done duty here for so many years.
The citizens will promise, on their part, to have the old mill pond near the depot transformed into a place of beauty, which can easily be done. To this end the following petition has been drawn up and will be at the council rooms Monday where every voter is requested to sign it after which it will be forwarded to headquarters.

To the Honorable President and Board of Directors of The Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad.

Gentlemen:
Knowing that the prosperity of our village is largely dependent upon your road, and that in a measure the converse is true, we therefore, with hope of success, appeal for the construction of a new Depot at this station, feeling that it will not only add to the appearance of our town, but will also induce some to cast with us their citizenship. That we may also do our part in this improvement, it is the intent of the citizens to cleanse the mill pond adjoining your property here, and to transform it into a place of beauty.

To this end we the citizens and voters of Northville humbly petition your honorable body.

THE BENCE ENTERTAINMENT.

The entertainment at the opera house Saturday night called out a large and appreciative crowd. Miss Bence's selections were excellent and finely rendered and the audience were highly pleased. Miss Bence is but 17 years of age and with the accomplishments already acquired she has a brilliant career before her. She is withal, everything a lady and is spoken of very highly by Detroit papers, and society people where she has assisted in, and gave, many recitals for private and public parties, churches, etc.

The Crocker children, Seth, Rosa and Violet, also assisted at the entertainment and sang three songs in their usual charming manner and this was another treat for the crowd. Their typical song on the Keeley cure took the house down and the audience were not satisfied until they returned and repeated the chorus. The management of the opera house presented the Crocker children with $10.75 as their share of the receipts; this includes a portion of Miss Bence's share which she kindly presented to the children.
This purse was a total surprise to Mrs.
Crocker and the children as they had tendered their services to sing two weeks ago and not until last Thursday night's RECORD came out were they aware that they were to receive any remuneration.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, since the last meeting of patrons of the factory, its proprietor and superintendent, Arthur D. Power, has passed away, and, whereas, in our long intercourse with him as neighbor and friend as well as in business relations, we have ever found him an earnest capable and honorable man; therefore, be it resolved that we place on record these words, as a tribute of respect to his memory, and an evidence of our sincere sorrow at his death.
Resolved, that we tender to his family our sympathy and regard and to his many friends throughout the land our regret at their loss, and further that these resolutions be spread on the books of this institution, and published in the Northville Record.

Obituary.

As noted in last week's RECORD "Aunt" Amy Power, as she was so well known, died at the home of her son, Ethen Power near Novi, Feb. 29.

Mrs. Power was born in Macedon, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1803, so that she was in her 90th year. She was married to Ira Power, at that place, in 1824, and six years later they moved to Michigan and settled on the farm in Livonia township, where her son, Arthur D.
Power, recently died. Michigan was a wilderness at that time and pluck indeed, must they be who dared brave the perils, privations, and difficulties of those pioneer days. A journey from the Empire state to Michigan, in those days meant as much as a trip around the world would now. We, who today, enjoy the results of the hardships endured by the early day settlers can hardly appreciate what they passed through.

Eleven children were born to them; and the mother our lived them all excepting four. Mrs. Richmond Simmons, who lives a few miles north-west of here, Mrs. Lee of near Wixom; Ethen Power of Farmington, and A.
L. Power of Kent City. The husband died about 34 years ago.

Mrs. Power spent a number of years in Ypsilanti in educating her children in the schools at that place. The balance of her life she spent in Farmington, and in, and near Northville. Mrs. Power had been for nearly all her life an earnest christian woman and worker, and for more than thirty years was a member of the Methodist church. She took great pleasure in revival work and her only regret seemed to be that in her declining years, she could not do more active work along this line. The last intelligible words she uttered were:

"Jesus lover of my soul."
"Safe into the haven."
"O! receive my soul."

She was honored and highly esteemed by all her neighbors and friends; loved and revered by her children and relatives; she has gone to meet her reward.

Mrs. Power, like most other people, had her peculiarities and one of hers was to make, sixteen years ago, her burial clothes, and when ever she went upon a visit of a week or more she always took them with her. On opening the package after her death a letter was found inside and on the envelope was written, "To be opened and read after my death." The letter is dated Farmington, Jan. 29th 1876, and reads as follows:

"To My Dear Children, Grand children, Nieces and Nephews, and those living with my children, that by their kindness and respect to me have won my love and esteem toward them, I leave to them also a memento of respect in the form of quilts, which I do solemnly in the sight of Him who seeth not as man seeth, but regardeth the prayer of the humble slave, that you may each so regard my wishes and your own best interest as to let go every thing that holds you away from that blessed Savior who has done so much for me. O! may the continued prayer of your dear mother, aunt, and friend be answered in making us undivided families in glory.
I pray let no jealousy be felt by those who do not get a quilt but remember my good wishes and prayer is extended to them as long as God gives me life and health and I will do all I can in reaching all my dear nieces and nephews."
AMY POWER.

The funeral occurred from the Northville M. E. church, of which she had been a member for a number of years—last Thursday, her pastor, Rev. F.
Bradley officiating; and the remains were laid at rest in Rural hill cemetery.
Her grand sons acted as pall bearers.

A TALE OF TWO CITIES.

Three weeks ago the grip attacked me.
Like the dickens, too, it racked me;
In the ice they would have packed me, But for the trifling circumstance that I had sense enough to get on a Wabash train and go to Hot Springs, Arkansas, where I speedily regained my health.
By the way, if you make this trip go via the Wabash. I bought my sleeping car ticket right through and had no worry about observations.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions adopted by the W. F. M.
S. of the M. E. church of Northville.
Whereas: After a long life of devotion to his cause and his work among us God has called to her reward our loved and honored member "Aunt" Amy Power, therefore be it resolved:

That the Womans Foreign Missionary Society tender the afflicted family and her many friends the sympathy which it so sincerely feels for them, knowing that "What is our loss is her gain."

Resolved: That as members of the society in which she loved to work we will emulate her love for the spread of the gospel, her zeal in Christian work, her loving Christian character and her purity of her, for "The pure in heart shall see God."

Resolved: That these resolutions be printed in the Northville RECORD, also a copy of them be kept in the records of the society.

Mary had a little lamb.
It used to play and skip;
It won't do so any more,
Because it had the grip.
The Plymouth fair will be held this year on Sept. 27, 28, 29 and 30.
Sackett-Kenzie comedy co., at the opera house, March 21, 22 and 23.
Jarvis Palmer received last week from Canada a pair of fine blooded Lanishang chickens.
The Baptist people have raised over $700 towards repairs and improvements for their church.
When in Detroit stop at the Wayne hotel opposite the M. C. depot. You will be well cared for.
There will have been some 25 new patients received at the Keeley institute this week. Five new ones came Tuesday.
Miss Emily Currier's dancing scholars will give an exhibition of fancy and society dancing at the opera house some time next month.
W. Pitt Johnson brought down from Pt. Huron last week several span of very nice draught horses. We believe he disposed of them all.
Have any of our readers a copy of the Record of Dec. 10, 1891, or Feb. 18, 1892 to spare? We should like a copy or two if they are obtainable.
The Record recorded four births last week and four this week. At this rate there will be 182 births in North-Northville in 1892 instead of 16 as per 1891.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. B. Hayes, a girl; to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Waltherhouse, a boy; to Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Tinsam Jr., a girl; to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mooney, a girl.
T. G. Richardson purchased two fine Percheron work horses near Holly last week. They are four years old and will make a little the nicest team in this section of the country.
The water works reservoir will be located on Henry Whitaker's hill near ly direct north of Chas. Woodman's residence. The pipes will then be laid direct down through by Mr.
Woodman's house to Randolph street.
The Sackett Comedy Co. played here three nights this week, and the company is one of the best that has been here for a long time. Benn Sackett in his German character reminds one of Joe Emmett. [Charlotte Leader, Mar. 5.] Hon. Henry Watson who has been seriously ill at the Park house for two weeks past was able to be removed to his home in Greenville Monday. It was thought for a week that the chances were against him but everyone will rejoice at his recovery.
Undoubtedly the most attractive spot in Northville, for visitors, is the U. S. fish hatchery, and during the wet seasons of the year it is a difficult point to reach on account of the mud and no side walks. There should be no detractions from this place for want of a few dollars expended in needed walks.
G. A. Flasher and wife, who have been spending the winter in Toledo, Detroit and Hillsdale have returned to Northville and are now visiting at J. S.
Teeples. Mr. Flasher contemplates going into the cigar manufacturing business in our village providing our merchants will agree to patronize a home manufacturing of cigars.
Holly seems to be growing worse instead of better, though the newspaper there is doing its best for its reformation. Here this from last week's Advertiser: "There is about a half dozen young men in Holly, whose chief aim in life is to fill up with bug juice and make fools of themselves. It isn't necessary to mention their names as every man, woman and child in town know them."
The wholesale dealers of the various cities are sending circulars broadcast urging everybody to write to their member of congress asking for one cent postage. The jobbers however seem to be the only ones who really favor it. The post-office department is just getting to be self-sustaining again under the two cent act and the general public believes two cent postage to be low enough. What we need more than that, we believe, is better service and every presidential post-office made free delivery.

The Northville cheese factory will be in full operation April 1. The Kator building, owned by A. B. Smith on Main street is now being fitted up for that purpose. The factory will be under the management of F. L. West, an experienced cheese maker. We believe some Northville capital is also interested in the concern and it promises to be a valuable industry for our village.

Dr. W. H. Yarnall, surgeon-in-chief at the Keeley institute here since its start, was asked to resign last week and Dr. Poole of Detroit has the appointment in his stead. Dr. Poole is a graduate of the Detroit medical college and a son of the Rev. Dr. Poole, the Methodist minister of that city.

The water works board have disposed of the bonds to the Union Trust Company of Detroit, at five per cent. They have also advertised for bids for the construction of the system and said bids will be opened tomorrow, Friday.
Everything is in ship-shape now and the board informs the Record that they expect to have everything completed and in running order before the 4th of July next.

Some thirty or more of the Keeley institute patients with their wives and daughters dined at the Park house Sunday, the guests of Dr. Yarnall, and Lambert-Rutler. The dinner was a very sumptuous affair and hugely enjoyed. After the dinner, speeches were included in by Dr. Yarnall, Col.
Smiley and others. Through courtesy of Mr. Butler and Dr. Yarnall, the editor and wife were present and partook of the good things.

Mr. Henry Watson wished to express through the Record, his sincere thanks for the kindness and attention shown him by many friends, though strangers, during his stay in this village under such trying circumstances.
His care at the Park house and the token of regard from the W. C. T. U. were especially mentioned by him, while the assistance rendered by many others and the anxiety of all will be remembered by him and his family with much gratitude. His friends will be pleased to learn that he reached home in safety.

The little village of Orion has four free express deliveries per day, and in addition to that the company make one delivery a day during the summer season to the cottages on the various islands and around the lake. Northville, it is safe to say, does more business in the express line in a week than Orion does in three months and yet every one has to pay extra for every package brought from the depot to the village. The superintendent of the American express company informed the Record last November that he would have the matter of free express delivery in Northville looked into and if the business would warrant, it would be forthcoming. This is the last we have heard of it.

Presiding Elder J. S. Smart, of the Flint district, who died at Flint last week, was well known here—the Northville church being in his district until two years ago when it was transferred to the Detroit district. Dr.
Smart was also once resident of our village. When he came to Michigan, in about the year 1845, he drifted to Northville and secured work from a Mr. Robinson, who had the contract for building the embankment and dam on what is known as the Ambler mill pond, in the south-west part of the village. While at work shoveling here he secured the school in, what was then known as the Yerkes district north-east of the village. There are several old residents here who attended his school nearly a half century ago. The old building still stands, having seen but few repairs since that time and shows more signs of age than did the Rev. Dr.

As will be seen in another column, the Plymouth township board have, as required by law, divided district No. 1, the Northville district, into two voting precincts, Nos. 1 and 2. The dividing line is Center street, running from the base line due south three miles to the old division line of district No. 2. The Plymouth district remains unchanged.
A new voting place will be established in Northville for those who live on the east side of Center street and Center street highway, and the old voting place in the council rooms will be used as heretofore for those who live on the west side. The new place this year will probably be in the Joslin store on Main street, if it is not occupied previously to that time. The change will require no new registration on the part of voters. The clerk will attend to that.
Of course our readers will understand that this change has nothing to do with the village election. That will not have to be divided until there are more than 500 registered electors.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

THERE can be no life without result, although there are many without purpose. Those who will not work for an end of their own choosing, one which conscience approves, become incontinent enlists on the side of the powers warring against order and peace. No man lives to himself, however much he may think he lives for self.

THERE is a moderation that is not negative, but positive; it is not the toning down of energy, or the blunting of desire, or the decline of hope; it is rather the building up of these things on a firmer and broader foundation. Neither is it the simple avoidance of two extremes, and the simple occupancy of a middle ground. It may eventually in this but it comes through understanding and appreciating all that is good in both extremes, and forming out of them a more perfect and rounded whole.

If the novel tells over again the old story of love it still does it under new conditions and to new readers; to souls none the less humanly interested than the many generations that have preceded them. It is, one of the charms of a literary form of expression that it always invests the varied forms of life with a new face. And this is true, whether it is the drama, which in one form or another has been accepted for thousands of years for the poem which never dies nor grows old, or the novel which for the past hundred years has been growing in importance. It has been found necessary to do over the work of writing the history of human lives for each generation of men. Most of the books which presume to record this die; but most of the books containing the scribbles or verbiages from the earliest days have died.

It is not unusual to hear people complain that they do not have good sleep, and in the same sentence explain that they are taking sulfonyl or any one of a dozen other concoctions, that are held up as being perfectly harmless and generally beneficial. It is difficult to restrain an almost equal indignation and regret for the ignorance of the human system which complacently resorts to these dangerous and pernicious drugs, or the strange conception of medical responsibility that prescribes them. That there are conditions under which narcotics must be used is no apology for this frequent use, which is becoming more and more habitual, and whose effects are seen in disordered nerves and a multitude of evils. Proper attention to a rational quantity and quality of food, a walk in the open air, and a glass of hot water on retiring, will be found effectual sleep-producers, with increasing good effects rather than disastrous ones afterward.

THE trouble with Carlyle was not that he lacked generosity, but that he abounded in spleen. He was not a great man. He was only for the most part a bad temper. When a man goes about the moral, political, social and literary world with his temper he is liable to be a determined partisan every moment, and as he approaches new phases of things perpetual spleenetic activity impairs his memory, inflames his imagination and keeps him free from at least the vice of fools, in consistency, no matter how many more voices may become his. As his great countryman, "George Eliot," says of her "Touchwood" determination of partisanship by temper has its worst effects in the career of a man by getting him enthralled by his own words, so that he looks into facts and questions "not to get rectifying knowledge, but to get evidence that will justify his actual attitude, which was assumed under an impulse dependent on something else than knowledge."

It is perhaps not to be wondered at that many young persons are adverse to moderation, as they conceive it. Intense in their feelings, strong in their affections and antipathies, hopeful and enthusiastic in their undertakings, confident in their powers and assured in their opinions, it is hardly to be expected that they should welcome the spirit of moderation, which to them appears merely the toning down of all that is interesting, until life itself becomes humdrum and commonplace. They point significantly to persons of weak will, of languid emotions, of insipid character who are too indifferent to go to extremes and too easily influenced to exercise any original power, as examples of moderation which they neither envy nor admire. The mistake they make, however, is in confounding the mere absence of force with true moderation. Feebleness of will and of character, it is true, may not go to extremes, because it cannot; but it is utterly unlike the moderation which is born of knowledge, wisdom and experience.

THE DAUPHIN'S DEATH.

ONE THOUGHT POSSESSES THE MIND OF THE CHILD.

His Power Can Keep the King of Terror at Bay—He It, Then, Nothing to Be Dauphin—Nothing Awaits.

The little dauphin is ill; the little dauphin is dying. In all the churches of the kingdom the holy sacrament remains exposed night and day, and great tapers burn for the recovery of the royal child. The streets of the old capital are sad and silent; the bells ring no more; the carriages slacken their pace. In the neighborhood of the palace the curious townspeople gaze through the railings upon the bearded with gilded panaches who converse in the courts and put on important airs.

All the castle is in a flutter. Chamberlains and major-domos run up and down the marble stairways. The galleries are full of pages and courtiers in silken apparel who hurry from one group to another, begging in low tones for news. Upon the wide perrons the maids of honor in tears, exchange low courtesies and wipe their eyes with daintily embroidered handkerchiefs.

A large assembly of robed physicians has gathered in the orangery. They can be seen through the panes waving their long black sleeves and inclining their periwigs with professional gestures. The governor and the querry of the little dauphin walk up and down before the door awaiting the decision of the faculty. Scudious pass by without saluting them. The querry swears like a pagan. The governor quotes verses from Horace.

And meanwhile over there in the direction of the stables is heard a long and plaintive neighing; it is the little dauphin's sorrel, forgotten by the hostlers and calling sadly before his empty manger.

And the king? Where is his highness the king? The king has locked himself up in a room at the other end of the castle. Majesties do not like to be seen weeping. For the queen it is different. Sitting by the bedside of the little dauphin, she bows her fair face, bathed in tears, and sobbively loudly before every body, like a mere draper's wife.

In the bed, embowered with lace, the little dauphin, whiter than the pillows on which he is extended, lies with closed eyes. They think that he is asleep, but no, the little dauphin is not asleep. He turns toward his mother, and seeing her tears, he asks:

"Madame la Reine, why do you weep? Do you really believe I am going to die?"

The queen tries to answer. Sobs prevent her from speaking.

"Do not weep, Madame la Reine. You forget that I am the dauphin, and that dauphins can not die thus."

The queen sobs more violently, and the dauphin begins to feel frightened.

"Holloa," says he, "I do not want death to come and take me away. I know how to prevent him from coming here. Order up on the spot forty of the strongest lansquenets to keep guard around our bed! Have 100 big cannons watch day and night with lighted fuses under our windows. And woe to death if he dares to come near us!"

In order to humor the royal child the queen makes a sign. On the spot the great cannons are heard rolling in the courts, and forty tall lansquenets, with kalberds in their fists, draw up around the room. They are all veterans with grizzled mustaches. The little dauphin clasps his hands on seeing them. He recognizes one and calls:

"Lorrain! Lorrain!"

The veteran makes a step toward the bed.

"I love you well, my old Lorrain. Let me see your big sword. If death wants to fetch me, you will kill him, won't you?"

Lorrain answers: "Yes, Monseigneur." And two great tears roll down his janned cheeks.

At that moment the chaplain approaches the little dauphin, and pointing to the crucifix, talks to him in low tones. The little dauphin listens with astonished air, then, suddenly interrupting him:

"I understand well what you are saying, Monsieur l'Abbe, but still, couldn't my little friend Beppie die in my place, if I gave him plenty of money?"

The chaplain continues to talk to him in low tones, and the little dauphin looks more and more astonished.

always characterized you, and that you now stand on an eminence placed there by your own rectitude of heart, you have nothing to fear. You had not the influence of wealth, nor the "God speed you" of powerful friends; but you had more—a heart fixed and determined, and this has made you what you are. Go on—add virtue to virtue—look steadily at the goal before you, and at last your best teachers and artful companions will acknowledge your superiority and feel proud of being among the number of your friends. The man who is resolved to be something in the world, should have nothing to fear, and when he little dreams of it, honors are gathering about his head and an influence goes out from him, which is exerted silently but surely for the good of thousands.

MADE HIS OWN STORY.

Installed a Man, Killed Him and Wrote His Obituary in One Day.

A desperate duel was fought one day in August 1883, by two girls about 18 years of age—Dorita Espinoza and Morena—employed at the tobacco factory in Seville, that workshop in front of which the first act of "Carmen" is supposed to eventuate.

Their seconds were men, who furnished each girl with a dirk after which they were blindfolded, and placed in an unlighted room for half an hour and commanded to "Fight!"

Then the room was locked and the seconds joined the other employees at dinner, after which they opened the door and found both girls alive, but mortally wounded.

One of the combatants was cut in twenty-seven different places and was bleeding to death, while the other received severe wounds in ten and fatal ones in two places. The seconds tried to escape, but were arrested and sent to prison for six months. The girls never spoke after the door was opened, but one of them lived in great agony for several hours, says the Chicago Herald.

Near Madrid, December 10, 1890, Captain Romero and Captain Murillo fought with sabers, and both were frightfully injured and maimed for life. Subsequently the principals and their seconds (all officers) were arrested, and the former were dismissed from the army and the latter fined. One of the latter, after paying his fine, challenged the magistrate who fined him, who accepted and received three wounds. He again fined the officer, and was again challenged and fought with pistols, killing the officer at the first fire.

It is a fact, although I cannot present names or dates, that a Parisian scribe grossly insulted an army officer in the morning edition of his paper, fought and killed him at noon, and published a graphic description of the whole affair in his evening issue.

Quite as good a little story is that in which, at an aristocratic party in Vienna, a lady dropped a bouquet and a gentleman following in a waltz kicked it to one side so that it would not be stepped upon, and was challenged and wounded by the escort of the lady who dropped the flowers, and was afterward pursued by and married to the lady herself.

A Tribune reporter recently witnessed an amusing incident at a railway station in New Jersey. A waiting passenger stepped over to the counter where newspapers, knickknacks and tobacco were sold, and bought a cigar. This he lighted and strolled composedly out about the room. Presently the porter approached him and with emphatic Hibernian brogue asked:

"Can you ride?"

"Quite fairly," replied the passenger.

"Then what does that sign read?" demanded the porter, pointing to one of the ticket-sellers' boxes.

"No smoking," responded the pilgrim in a deliberate tone.

"Well, that's the rule, d'ye mind?"

"See here," said the transgressor, "can you read?"

"Indade I can, shure."

"Well, what does that big sign by the cigar case over there say?"

"It says, 'Smoke the King of Clubs Cigar.'"

"That's exactly what I was doing. Now, what sign must I obey?"

"By the powers, man, but ye have the best of it, and I'll report that Shaney to the company, so I will!"

About the Telephone.

Some interesting and rather surprising statistics on the use of the telephone in European countries have been collected. In London, the greatest commercial city of the world, only 1.5 persons in 1,000 use the telephone. The telephone is used most in countries where the service is owned or controlled by the state. In Germany, Switzerland, Norway and Sweden from 100 to 400 persons in every 100,000 of the population are subscribers. In Great Britain only 58 persons in 100,000 use the telephone. In Berlin 11, and in Paris 1.2 out of every 1,000 inhabitants use the telephone.

Wonderful Kentucky Negro.

There is a colored man here in Dixon county, Ky., who goes by the name of Isaac Brooks. He does not know A from B, and it is well known that he cannot read a word; but you may read any chapter you please in the Book of Daniel or Revelations, and he can tell you what chapter you are reading and tell the meaning of it much better than the best of our preachers who are well read. He is said to be the deepest divine we have in our county.—Globe-Democrat.

THE WIVES OF AUTHORS.

LITERARY MEN VERY MUCH LIKE OTHER MEN.

Sometimes Marry, Pretty Simpletons, Sometimes Poss as Martyrs, and Once in Awhile Contract An Ideal Marriage.

Men of genius are popularly supposed to adore pretty little brainless simpletons. Fiction is apt to represent them as needing in a wife a sort of mental pillow—a restfully vacuous mind which will not weary their own great brains by demands on their thinking forces.

That is the reason usually given when a man of marked mental power allies himself to a fool, as he sometimes does. The world regards these occasions with great satisfaction, says the Saturday Evening Post, for in its heart of hearts it esteems genius a kind of lunacy on which public opinion has set a premium, and finds it proper that it should wed imbecility.

When Bulwer's love letters were given to an amazed reading public, and it perused with unquenchable laughter dozens of letters in which that great novelist addressed the object of his affection as "my doggy," and subscribed himself to the extreme satisfaction of the reader as "Puppy," our reverence for the man trembled on its foundations, and he seemed scarcely more a hero to us than he possibly did to his valet.

Keats' letters to his sweetheart, Fanny Browne, while they rise at times to a mournful power, at other times are as commonplace as the billet-doux of any schoolboy, while Fanny Browne herself did not seem to appreciate the distinction of being the lover of a poet. We are told she was "dark, sensuous and leopard-like."

Perhaps the only pure and sincere passion that ever graced the stormy life of Byron was his boy-love for the beautiful Mary Chaworth, and there was said to be an element of dignity about it that checked the onlooker's inclination to treat it with the lightness usually accorded to the fancies of youth.

The literary man with an invalid wife is a well-known social type. It is he who is ministered to with the hottest cups of tea and the coolest seats at "afternoons" by the gushing and sympathetic young girl. And there are so many of them! Men men referred to are often tenderly spoken of as "hampered" by the demands on their time from the valetudinarian.

Some of them cannot write in the room with her; some cannot write in the house with her. She so affects those supersensitive literary nerves. She becomes more and more a myth to society at large. She is still amably inquired after by his hostess who watches with overflowing admiration what we once heard a lady characterize as "the sweet patience of that brave soul's smile," and as a rule the brave soul goes to receptions and accepts feminine homage and pity with all the valor imaginable, and his glory is greatly enhanced by his supposed sufferings.

The old proverb that "two of a trade can never agree" has been very successfully set at naught by the lives of the Brownings and many others.

No woman ever had more magnificent lines written to her than Robert Browning addressed to his wife in "One Word More," and those who were privileged to know them intimately speak of theirs as the absolutely perfect ideal wedded life, for they were each an inspiration to the other.

Who can ever forget the poignant agony of David Copperfield, allied to the foolish little Dora, who, for all her natural sweetness of temper, was about as fit to be the wife of such a man as a butterfly would be, and who, too, can ever forget the scene in which for the first time he realizes with terrible clearness that there can be no greater ban to conjugal happiness than with uncongeniality of thought and purpose?

And the Doras in real life do not all die so opportunely as did the sweet simpleton of the story; and with each passing day the literary artist spends with such a woman the breach widens. They are one flesh, but not one soul; he finds that remorseful tenderness is all he can bestow; and torn by the conflict and worn with mental suffering and lack of broad and sympathetic comprehension, his work suffers—he grows morbid and introspective.

We have heard of one hapless man of letters married to a woman of materialistic temperament, and whenever he was depressed and smoldering under an adverse press review or a rejected manuscript, this excellent lady would plead with him to take Peruvian bark! A tonic was what he needed, she averred. Heaven help the man of imagination wedded to a woman like this!

How Often the Watch Ticks.

Many watches make five beats per second, 300 each minute, 10,000 every hour, or 432,000 per day. Thus it will be seen that a half-dozen turns of the key once a day, taking up but a few seconds of time, stores up a modicum of power in the spring which is cut up into nearly a million of beats. If we multiply the daily beats by 365, the number of days in a year, we find that the watch ticks 157,788,000 while the earth is making one annual trip around the sun.

DIFFERENT FROM THE AVERAGE.

"That Skimmerhorn is the strangest fellow I ever met."

"About the average, I guess."

"Average?" I was telling him for two hours about my cold, and he never even so much as hinted at giving me a sure cure for it. Never saw a man like him."—Phila. Times.

Hon. Tim Tarsney of Saginaw stopped off at the Keeley institute for a few hours Sunday night and gave the boys a three-quarter hour talk which was highly appreciated.

Dr. Patterson who has been very ill for a week or so is still in a critical condition, with grave fears for his recovery. We shall hope to record his convalescence ere another issue of our paper.

J. D. Yerkes and Henry Dunlap returned from Florida Thursday last. Mr. Yerkes had been there about two months and Mr. Dunlap nearly a year. They report that the winter there has not been so pleasant as usual.

Will Gorton, of Detroit, spent a few days this week at the home of his parents M. D. Gorton and family. Will has been in the employ of J. L. Hudson of Detroit for ten years past, but left yesterday for Ypsilanti where he will engage in business for himself in the near future.

Miss Duke closed her term of school in the John Gardner district, last Friday, and in the evening gave an entertainment. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, and bad roads, a large number were present who felt amply paid for braving mud and weather. The selections were well rendered and the music furnished by John, Frank and Earnest Merritt, was especially fine.

Merit Wins.
We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. A. M. Randolph Drugist.

Will Be Given Away.
Our enterprising druggist Geo. C. Hueston who carries the finest stock of drugs, perfumeries, toilet articles, brushes, sponges, etc., are giving away a large number of trial bottles of Dr. Miles' celebrated Restorative Nervine. They guarantee it to cure headache, dizziness, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, the ill effects of spirits, tobacco, coffee, etc. Druggists say it is the greatest seller they ever knew, and is universally satisfactory. They also guarantee Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure in all cases of nervous or organic heart disease, palpitation, pain in side, smothering, etc. Fine book on "Nervous and Heart Diseases" free.

A Million Friends.
A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at A. M. Randolphs Drug Store. Large bottles 50c. and $1.00.
