The Gold Cure.

"A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

This pungent sentence, in that wonderful
"Sermon on the Mount,"
preached by a young man from Nazareth,
who has since been recognized as the world's greatest preacher, has been exceedingly helpful in the right solution of many vexed problems, as to the good or evil character of certain teachers and teachings that have made their appearance from time to time in the history of our race.

A remarkable institution known as "The Keeley Institute" for the cure of persons afflicted with the liquor, opium,
or tobacco habit, was established a few years ago at Dwight, Ill., by Dr.
L. E. Keeley, a physician of that place, who claimed to have discovered a treatment that would certainly give deliverance to a very large per cent of those who are slaves to these habits.
Recently this parent institute and its several branches now established in other states, has attracted world-wide attention. Various opinions have been expressed as to the character of this now famous "gold cure" as it is called.

Some unhesitatingly pronounce it an evil, and a fraud; while others are confident that it is an unspeakable blessing to the world, one of the most beneficent institutions established among men. Some seem to regard the distinguished Doctor who has made this discovery as a man who most certainly belongs to that class of persons of whom Christ speaks when he says,
"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravening wolves." Others are quite as certain that Dr. Keeley deserves, and will ultimately have a foremost place among those who are accounted the world's greatest benefactors.

Now, both of these conclusions can not be correct; manifestly one or the other must be false. Which?

This is the question before us, and it is a question of no small importance;
a question involving so much that is vital to the best interests of the state,
the home and the church, that it would be extremely unwise, if not absolutely sinful, to lightly pass it by with a self-complacent smile or a supercilious jeer.

Is "the Keeley cure" good or evil?
Is this unique institution in our midst,
a upas tree? or is it (in a large and true sense) "a tree of life, the leaves of which are for the healing of the nations?"

Of course, it is not expected that at so early a date in the history of this movement a final, definite and unqualified answer to this question will be attempted by one who is in no wise personally interested in the enterprise,
the character of which is under consideration.
Yet, guided by the wise principle given to us by the great Teacher in the words quoted above, it affords me great pleasure to say, that I believe there are already "unmistakable indications that the Keeley Cure is a good tree; such a tree as all good men and women have been hoping and praying would make its appearance somewhere and in some way, that the weary desert waste of intemperance that spreads desolation and misery so far and wide in this fair land, and other lands as well, might be restored.

The indications of which I speak,
are the results, which have been accomplished by this treatment. This tree has already brought forth some fruit; and from personal observation,
as well as from the trustworthy testimony of many others, who have had good opportunity to make careful observation as to the real facts in the case, I am convinced, that so far, the fruits are good in a most wonderful degree.

At Dwight alone more than 50,000 people have received treatment, ninety per cent of these we are assured have been permanently cured, and we have no reason to question the truth of this statement. What does this signify?
Not alone joy and gladness restored to these 50,000 individuals, but to all the multitudes who were interested in them as well.

This cure gives new life and hope in the heart, in the home, in business everywhere.

About 150 persons have received treatment in the Northville Institute.
Among these have been men of marked ability, and high social standing, men who, but for the blight of intemperance, might hope to fill places of honor and usefulness.

Many of those who come (doubtless in response to the earnest solicitation of friends) seem to have but little faith or hope at first, but in a few days, at most their faith is strong, and their hope is exceeding bright. They believe that they can and will be cured, and feel an assured hope that they shall be men again, free from the terrible thralldom which they have come to abhor but could not break.

As the days and weeks pass, their confidence in the cure increases so at the close of three or four weeks' treatment they uniformly feel assured that the awful habit has been effectually broken; that the poison has been thoroughly eradicated from the system; and that if they again become slaves to drink, it will be because they wantonly seek to cultivate a taste for liquor
after all craving for it has been taken away. And as there are few, if any persons, who having once been cured of the deadly bite of a venomous reptile will needlessly expose themselves to its bite again, so there are but few of these men who do or will (having once been delivered by this wonderful cure) seek again the bondage of drink, for they know by long experience that
"at last it is like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

Let all Christians, let all who profess to love God and humanity, pray earnestly and work hard for the continued success of the "Gold Cure" for drunkenness.

REV. J. G. CLARK, in Mich. Christian
Herald. Northville, Mich. March 1892

Plymouth, Mich March 28, 1892.
To the editor of the Northville Record.
Mr. Editor—

As there appeared an article in the last edition of the Plymouth Mail headed "There are queer people" a part of which was calculated for my digestion, I will now allow me to give the columns of your paper to the editor of said Plymouth Mail a few pointers regarding the facts of the case in question. In the first place, he accuses me of wanting to utilize the columns of his paper for advertising, and not wishing to pay for same. Now the Editor is either laboring under wrong information or else he is willfully trying to conceal the truth; as I put this question straight to the gentlemen in attendance whether or not he desired pay for the insertion of the article in question and was answered in the negative. In the next place the said article was not an advertisement but simply a request. "That the party who was seen taking certain articles of clothing from a clothes line would please return it and thus save further trouble." This perhaps might from certain standpoints be called an advertisement but how much more gentlemanly would it have been to have inserted the ad. and then presented his bill, especially when I am getting work done at the office right along. In the next place he seems to put considerable stress on my calling when he was not in. Now I would like to ask how he expects a man who has to labor every day from 10 to 12 hours to call when he is in, when he lives in one village and tries to run a newspaper in another. If the Editor would only consider how contemptible it looks in the eyes of the general public for him to spend his money in one place, and make it in another I do not think he would censure people for "calling when he is out"; furthermore if he had been a resident of Plymouth, as he certainly should be, and subject to all the petty thieving that has been carried on in our village recently, I do not doubt for a moment but my article would have appeared in his paper as it certainly is for the public weal that those things be made known, but our Editor not having the interest of the village at heart, but only that of his own pocket, did not allow said article to appear. The Editor further states that the columns of his paper are his own, and proposes to make it as he pleases but surely he will find out sooner or later that if he does not try to please his patrons his paper must necessarily be short lived. Truly as our Editor says there are queer people and the Editor of the Plymouth Mail is not an exception. Now Mr. Editor having trespassed on your space more than I intended at the outset I remain yours respectfully
ANOTHER OF THE QUEER ONES. WJP

He was the eldest of five brothers, three of whom survive him with their aged father, one in Georgia one in Ill. and one in Detroit. He was married to Miss Mary Harley, of Morristown N. Y., in 1864, and the following year they came to Farmington, and remained there a few years and then moved to Detroit, where he kept the Peninsula house, as many of the old settlers will remember. Thinking that a change of climate might be beneficial they moved to Ogdenburg, where he kept a first class hotel for several years, and then they returned to Detroit where he kept the Franklin house. From there they came to Northville where he kept the hotel for eight years. Two years ago they moved to Novi. Though being of a very quiet disposition he was a very firm business man, knowing how and when to say no. He was an honored and respected citizen, and made host of friends where ever he went, and especially in Northville and Novi. His death is mourned by a widow and daughter, and many friends. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon by Father Carson, and by request of the deceased, Rev. J. S. Boyden made brief remarks and prayer before leaving on the 8:20 train for Detroit, where interment took place Saturday morning.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

UNDER our present school system the true object of education—the development of the mental powers, and acquisition of useful knowledge, with drilling of the hand, the voice and the behavior—are overlooked. A wild spirit of emulation is infused, with the effect of crazing some of the sensitive young minds and disheartening more. If the studies proper are adhered to, and affection and regard for the teacher is the stimulus, all advance almost equally, and always safely and pleasantly.

Each country has its own peculiar method of conducting schools. There is no country that cannot learn something from nearly all others. Time was when provincialism so dominated the world that it made little difference whether the child in Russia learned that there is an England or that the child in England obtained even nodding acquaintance with a spelling book. That age has long been past. Prussia has largely influenced the pedagogy of the whole world, especially in primary teaching. Education, like all other pursuits, needs for its promotion that its professors shall be enabled to study comparative methods, appliances and results.

A MAN'S occupation or condition has a good deal to do with making his facial expression. Intellectual pursuits, like studies or scholarly professions, when coupled with temperate and moral habits of life, brighten the face and give a person a superior look. Magnanimity of nature, or love of grandeur and arts, will make a bright, glad face; but contrary to this a man may have a face that does not please anybody, because of a love of self to the exclusion of all others, notwithstanding his learning and worthy shrewdness. Soldiers get a hard, severe look, overworked laborers constantly look tired, reporters look inquisitive, mathematicians look studious, judges become grave even when off the bench, the man who has had domestic trouble looks all broken up.

NO MORE fatal mistake can be made by the broken and despondent than that of insisting that everything they see and hear shall be set in a minor key. If every maimed one is to cry that no one shall be brutal enough to dance, every deaf person to insist that no happy lovers shall whisper sweet secrets into one another's ears—in their presence at least—what a lugubrious world this would get to be! The only exhilarating sports left would be those of the "Two blind men who want to see two cripples run a race." No! nothing so helps the weak as a spirit of disinterested enjoyment in specimens of health and power; nothing like the feeling: "If I am miserable I am glad some one else is happy." What but the lowest kind of comfort can a victim of asthma, who can breathe in but a gill of oxygen, derive from getting angry with a broad-lunged man who can take in a gallon!

VERY often a man is called on to listen to a sermon or lecture from some speaker of strong digestion, abnormal sleeping powers, and pre-eminent success in his chosen career, on the theme of what a delightful experience life still continues to be at the age, say, of only 50. Of course, any generous minded listener would readily respond: "I am glad, my dear fellow, you find it so, and only wish that everybody felt as you do. Perhaps if you could hand over to them your sound sleep, tonic prosperity, delight in work and cheer of social surroundings, they, too, would exultate just as eloquently on the subject in a lecture or sermon." Indeed, very amusing and very pathetic would it be if only one could get at the internal comments that are going on all the time in the minds of much-exercised listeners while such a speaker is enjoying as fine a sense of elation at the thought of how he is carrying all before him.

THERE are certain occupations which predispose to the occurrence of consumption. It is common amongst stone masons, grinders and polishers of steel, dressers of flax and feathers, straw plaiters, iron and coal miners, tailors and sempstresses. In many of these the inhalation of foreign particles into the lungs sets up irritation, which proves injurious and deteriorates the constitution. In others the result is occasioned by the combined operation of sedentary employment, pure air, exhaustive work, and bad food. On the other hand, cooks, butchers, tanners, tallow-chandlers, and soap boilers enjoy to a great extent an immunity from this terrible scourge. They get good wages, and as a concomitant have plenty to eat and drink, whilst the constant contact with oil and fat is probably not without its influence. A consideration of these facts may in some instances be of service in deciding on the choice of an occupation.

THE ELECTION LAW.

THE OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL ELLIS ON THE SUBJECT.

As Applying to Local Elections and Town Meetings—The Booths, Tickets and Other Information.

Attorney-General A. A. Ellis has issued from his office the following information relative to the application of the general election law to local elections and town meetings:

Act No. 199 of the Public Acts of 1891, known as the general election law, as limited by Act No. 194 of the Public Acts of the same year, applies to all local elections held in the various cities, villages and townships of this State. That such elections must be held according to the provisions of said general law, so far as the same are applicable thereto. It is provided among other things, in section one of Act No. 194, that "all the provisions of such general law relative to the board of election inspectors, the arrangement of polling places (which would include the providing an arrangement of booths), the manner of voting and receiving of votes, and the canvass and declaration of the result of such election, are made applicable to such municipal and township elections," but the time for opening and closing of the polls shall not be affected by reason of Act No. 190.

The time for opening and closing of the polls in township elections is controlled by section 704 of Howell's Statutes, which provides that: "The polls shall be opened at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and shall be closed between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and the inspectors shall cause proclamation to be made at least one hour before the closing of the polls, that the polls of the election will be closed at or within the specified hour, naming it."

Section 2 of Act No. 194 provides that:

INSTRUCTIONS.—First, mark or stamp a cross [X] in the square under the name of your party at the head of the ballot. If you desire to vote a straight ticket, nothing further need be done. If you desire to vote for candidates on different tickets, also erase the name of the candidate on your ticket you do not want to vote for, and make a cross in the square before the name of the candidate you desire to vote for, or write his name in the space under the name erased. If you desire to vote for a candidate under the party name, write his name in the space under the party name, and erase the name of the party column, name, not erased. Before leaving the booth, fold the ballot so that the initials may be seen on the outside.

NAME OF OFFICE VOTED FOR.	DEMOCRATIC.		REPUBLICAN.
	[X]		[ ]
STATE.
Governor.....	[ ]	Edwin B. Winans.	[X]	James M. Turner.
Lieutenant Governor.....	[ ]	Frederick Braastad.	[X]	Lemuel G. Dufau.
Secretary of State.....	[ ]	Daniel E. Soper.	[ ]	Washington Gardner.

"The township board of each township, and such persons as shall be elected therefor by the common council of the various cities and villages in this State, shall constitute the board of election commissioners for such township, city or village respectively, and shall perform such duties relative to the preparation and printing of ballots as are required by law of the board of election commissioners of counties, and the like duties and privileges as are enjoined and granted by the laws governing general elections, upon the various committees of the different political organizations, are hereby prescribed for the city, village or township committees. In elections held pursuant to said act, except that no caucus or heading for the ballot, other than the name of the party shall be necessary."

It will be necessary to hold the caucuses for the nomination of candidates at least five days before election day, as section 3 of the act provides that "the names of candidates shall be given in by the committees of the various political organizations, to the board of election commissioners of such municipality, not less than five days before each election, and the proof copy of the ballot shall be open to the inspection of the chairman of each committee at the office of the township clerk, or city or village clerk or recorder, not less than two clear secular days before such election."

The ticket must be printed in the same form as is provided in the general law, and the board of election commissioners for the township, city or village, must furnish the ticket. They can get the printing done at such place as they choose.

The words "political organizations" or "political party" used in this act, must be construed to mean any respectable body of citizens who are electors of any township or election district, and who assemble themselves together in the manner provided by the law, and hold a nominating caucus or convention. Hence it is only necessary in order for a person to have his name printed upon the ticket, that he should be nominated by a respectable body of electors properly assembled, who are entitled to vote for him at the election. Any person who is not nominated, or who is placed in nomination by persons who reside outside of his election district, would not be entitled to have his name printed on the ticket. It is not intended, however, that any person who desires to run for office shall be prohibited from furnishing clips, or seeking within the provisions of the law, to have his name written or ratted on the ticket by electors when they are preparing their ballots in the booths. All such votes and the votes for any person, when on the ballot should be counted under the same directions as govern the counting of votes for regular candidates whose names are printed on the ballots.

By section 4 of Act No. 190, it is provided: "No election district or voting precinct under the provisions of this act shall contain more than 500 electors according to the poll-lists of the last preceding general election. When any election district or voting precinct shall contain over 500 electors it shall be the duty of the township board in townships, and the city council in cities, to divide such voting precincts into two or more election districts."

In case the division is made in a township or incorporated village, the provisions of chapter eight of Howell's Statutes, as to the application and govern such division. If the division is made in cities, and there are no special provisions in the city charter existing relative thereto, then the division, the election commissioners, and the election inspectors, and all matters arising by reason of the division, must be provided for by ordinance of the common council. The common council has power to make all necessary rules and regulations in connection therewith, to fully carry out the provisions of the law. In all voting precincts in cities where there are special provisions in the charter for designating inspectors of election, in cases of division of voting precincts, such inspectors should be designated as directed in the charter, and would be the inspectors of election under the law.

Further Explanation. Inquiries have been received since the above was sent out asking fuller information, and the following is given as a reply to a letter embodying all of the important questions arising:

DEAR SIR—You favor duty received. I repeat your questions and give answers as follows:

1. "Does the County Board of Election Commissioners have anything to do with our spring election?" Answer—If there are no candidates for township officers, I answer, no. The printing of ballots is to be done by the Board of Election Commissioners of the township, city or village.

2. "Does each party have to have their own ticket, or for any or do all parties have to have the names of their candidates on one ticket?" Answer—The tickets of the various parties must all be printed on the same ballot as indicated in the public acts of 1891, page 261, with the exception that the X is not required.

3. "In case of the election board are candidates for office, who will assist voters who ask assistance to fix their ballots?" Answer—Such a case must not exist. If all the regular members of the election board are candidates for office, the board must appoint some disinterested elector as a member of the board, to assist voters in the preparation of their ballots.

4. "Does a voter have to put a cross opposite the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for at the spring election?" Answer—The same rules for the preparation of ballots govern, as are provided in the general law. If an elector desires to vote a straight ticket, all that is necessary for him to do is to put a X (cross) in the square under his party name.

A X in the square under the name indicates that the elector votes for every man whose name is not erased on the ticket under the X on his ticket.

A person is not obliged to put a X under the head of the ticket at all, but if he does not put a X under the head of the ticket his vote will then only be counted for candidates on the ticket who are marked with a cross.

A. If a person puts no X at all at the head of his ticket there is no necessity of striking any names off from the ticket, the vote would only count for the names actually indicated by the X opposite the name. If, however, he puts a X under the name of the party, it is absolutely necessary that he erase from the ticket under the X the names of all persons for whom he does not desire to vote, otherwise, inasmuch as the X under the party name indicates that he votes for all of the men on the ticket, if he checks any other names, on any other ticket, the result will be counted for two men for the same office, in which case neither vote will be counted.

A person who desires to vote for a person on another ticket, and who has put a check under his party name on his ticket, can only do so by erasing from his party ticket the name of the candidate for whom he does not desire to vote; otherwise the checking of the opposite candidate will be treated as voting for two men for the same office, and neither vote will be counted.

A person may be careless even do worse than voting for one man on his own ticket, for instance, if there are three men running on a local ticket for trustee for full term, and a person puts a X at the head of his ticket, and then checks one of the men on another ticket for trustee and placed a X opposite the name of such trustee and omitted to strike off from his own ticket the name of the candidate for trustee, he would not desire to vote, the vote cannot be counted for anyone of the four persons for whom he has voted. By voting for a man on the other ticket and not indicating on his own which man he would reject, it is impossible for the inspectors of election to tell which one of the four trustees was his choice. He was only entitled to vote for three trustees, he has voted for four and all must be rejected.

The same result would be reached in many counties in voting for Circuit Court Judges, or for members of the board of election, and in all townships at the coming spring election where four constables will be on each ticket. If a person checks the head of his ticket he votes for each constable on the ticket, and if, without striking off one of the constables, he places a X opposite the name of another constable under another party head, he would be voting for five constables, and his vote would have to be thrown out and treated as a blank as to all its consequences.

One of two rules must be observed where a person does not desire to vote a straight ticket:

1. Put a X under your party name, and strike off from your ticket the names of the candidates for whom you do not wish to vote, and place a X opposite the names of the candidates on the other ticket for whom you desire to vote.

2. Do not put any X at all under your party name, and an X on the tickets opposite the name of each candidate for whom you desire to vote.

A person who observes either of these two propositions will have no trouble at all in voting.

Respectfully,
A. A. ELLIS, Attorney-General.

PHOTOGRAPHY'S WORK.

HOW DECEITFULS ARE AIDED AND DETECTED BY IT.

Regular Effects Produced by Using Lenses at Different Angles—The Wonderful Strides Lately Made in the Art.

The writer has often been asked whether photography can lie, and he answers in the London Tid Bits. The fact that it now plays an important part in life renders the question rather a serious one, and one that I am certain many would like to have answered. Well, then, photography can lie and be bad enough to bring a blush to the cheek of the worthiest disciple of Ananias.

The wonderful strides made by photography during the past few years have not only enabled men to achieve great things by its aid, but it has also unfortunately assisted others to deceive and defraud their fellow-creatures.

Photography assists the forger in so closely imitating bank notes as to deceive the most experienced, but it also assists the scientist to detect these forgeries, and in some cases, has aided justice to discover the offender.

An amusing case appeared some time ago in one of the law courts. It was a dispute between two persons about a wall. The plaintiff complained that the defendant's wall obstructed the light to which he had a right. Defendant denied the charge.

The most amusing part of the case, however, was when the complainant handed the judge some photographs of the obstructing wall, and the judge observed that it was evident from them that the wall certainly did obstruct the light, and was apparently of unnecessary weight and size.

Then up rose the counsel for the defendant, and with a smile handed to the learned judge his photographs of the same wall. The learned judge was perplexed, and well he might be. In the first set of photographs the wall was of immense size, towering above all the windows; in a second, however, it was of illiputian dimensions—a most insignificant thing, unworthy of any dispute.

For these different effects can all be brought about by using lenses of angles—that is to say, lenses which collect and throw a more or less amount of view on a plate of given dimensions.

A wide angle lens is one that includes a lot of view in a picture, and, as the angle is a long way different to that of the human eye, the picture in no way gives a correct representation of the scene.

Readers should beware of house agents' photographs of the houses and property they have for disposal. They are nearly all taken with a wide-angle lens. With such an instrument it is possible to make a small London park garden resemble a large open park. The reason is that it causes all objects near at hand to appear very large, and those a little distance away to recede far away in the background.

The writer had in his possession a photograph of a man playing chess with himself and looking on at the game. There were, of course, three figures in the picture, but all of the same person in different positions.

The writer used to do something similar to this when making long panoramic views. A little slit runs along the sensitive plate and makes the exposure, and it is quite possible to include the same person in the picture in a dozen different places and in different attitudes.

By photographing three persons arranged between two mirrors placed in a position thus, a photograph will be produced of thousands and thousands of persons crowded close together.

Spirit photography is another form of deception. Photographs are made of a sitter with a figure leaning over him. The figure retreats when the exposure is half over, and thus has a misty, weird appearance in the picture.

By composite photography almost anything can be done. This is accomplished by cutting out different parts of several photographs, arranging them together and rephotographing them.

The society lady when she goes to her photographer would be horrified if she were to see her photograph as it is first produced by photography. The negative is, however, placed in the hands of the retouching artist, whose duty it is to take out all the wrinkles, spots and blotches in the face, make the mouth a little smaller, the eyes brighter, and perhaps the eyebrows a bit darker and the nose a bit shorter. Large lumps are then carved out of the waist and the figure otherwise improved.

When the finished portrait is handed over to her ladyship she is charmed with it. Perhaps the appearance is not exactly the same as that shown by her looking-glass, but she consoles herself with the reflection that photography can not lie—oh, dear, no; impossible!

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE GREAT DIVINE ON BIBLE PROVERBS.

Men Who Have Consecrated Their Wits as Well as Their Wisdom to the Cause of Christ—Abhorring Small Sins and Rockiest of Large Thefts.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 27, 1899.—The tendency to formalism in religion and to hypocritical pretense in society received a severe castigation from the pulpit of the Brooklyn tabernacle this morning. Dr. Talmage made a vigorous onslaught upon it, basing his remarks on the text, Matt. 23: 24: "Ye blind guides, who strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

A proverb is compact wisdom, knowledge in chunks, a library in a sentence, the electricity of many clouds discharged in one bolt, a river put through a mill race. When Christ quotes the proverb of the text, he means to set forth the ludicrous behavior of those who make a great bluster about small sins and have no appreciation of great ones.

In my text a small insect and a large quadruped are brought into comparison—a gnat and a camel. You have in museum or on the desert seen the latter, a great awkward sprawling creature, with back two stories high, and stomach having a collection of reservoirs for desert travel, an animal forbidden to the Jews as food, and in many literatures entitled "the ship of the desert." The gnat spoken of in the text is in the grub form. It is born in pool or pond, after a few weeks becomes a chrysalis, and then after a few days becomes the gnat as we recognize it. But the insect spoken of in the text is in its very smallest shape and it yet inhabits the water—for my text is a misprint and ought to read "strain out a gnat."

My text shows you the prince of inconsistencies. A man after long observation has formed the suspicion that in a cup of water he is about to drink, there is a grub or the grandparent of a gnat. He goes and gets a sieve or strainer. He takes the water and pours it through the sieve in the broad light. He says, "I would rather do anything almost than drink this water until this larva be extirpated." This water is brought under investigation. The experiment is successful. The water rushes through the sieve and leaves against the side of the sieve the grub or gnat. Then the man carefully removes the insect and drinks the water in placidity. But going out one day, and hungry, he devours a "ship of the desert," the camel, which the Jews were forbidden to eat. The gastronomer has no compunctions of conscience. He suffers from no indigestion. He puts the lower jaw under the camel's forefoot, and his upper jaw over the hump of the camel's back, and gives one swallow and the bromedry disappears forever. He strained out a gnat, he swallowed a camel.

While Christ's audience were yet smiling at the appositeness and wit of his illustration—for smile they did in church, unless they were too stupid to understand the hyperbole—Christ practically said to them, "That is you." Punctilious about small things; reckless about affairs of great magnitude. No subject ever withered under a surgeon's knife more bitterly than did the Pharisees under Christ's scalpel of truth. As an anatomist will take a human body to pieces and put them under a microscope for examination, so Christ finds his way to the heart of the dead Pharisee and cuts it out and puts it under the glass of inspection for all generations to examine. Those Pharisees thought that Christ would flatter them and compliment them, and how they must have writhed under the "red-hot words as he said: 'Ye fools, ye whitened sepulchres, ye blind guides which strain out a gnat and swallow a camel.'"

There are in our day a great many gnats strained out and a great many camels swallowed, and it is the object of this sermon to sketch a few persons who are extensively engaged in that business.

First, I remark, that all those ministers of the Gospel are photographed in the text who are very scrupulous about the conventionalities of religion, but put no particular stress upon matters of vast importance. Church services ought to be grave and solemn. There is no room for frivolity in religious convocation. But there are illustrations, and there are hyperboles like that of Christ in the text that will irradiate with smiles any intelligent auditory. There are men like those blind guides of the text who advocate only those things in religious service which draw the corners of the mouth down, and denounce all those things which have a tendency to draw the corners of the mouth up, and these men will go to installations and to conferences and to associations where their pockets full of fine sieves to strain out the gnats, while in their own churches at home every Sunday there are fifty people sound asleep. They make their churches a great dormitory, and their somniferous sermons are a cradle, and their drawled out hymns a lullaby, while some wakeful soul in a pew with her fan keeps the flies off unconscious persons approximate. Now, I say it is worse to sleep in church than to smile in church, for the latter implies at least attention while the former implies the indifference of the hearers and the stupidity of the speaker. In old age, or from physical infirmity, or from long watching with the sick, drowsiness will sometimes overpower one; but when a minister of the gospel looks off upon an audience and finds healthy and intelligent people struggling with drowsiness, it is time for him to give notice the benediction. The great fault of church services, to-day, is not too much vivacity, but too much somnolence. The one is an irritating gnat that may be easily strained out; the other is a great, sprawling and sleepy-eyed camel of the desert. In all our Sabbath schools, in all our Bible classes, in all our pulpits we need to brighten up our religious message with such Christ-like vivacity as we find in the text.

I take down from my library the biographies of ministers and writers of past ages, inspired and uninspired, who have done the most to bring souls to Jesus Christ, and find that without a single exception they have consecrated their wit and humor to Christ. Elijah used it when he advised the idolaters, as they could not make their god respond; telling them to call louder as their god might be sound asleep or gone a hunting. Job used it when he said to his self-conceited comforters, "Wisdom will die with you." Christ not only used it in the text, but when he ironically complimented the pharisees, saying, "The whole need not a physician," and when by one word he described the cunning of Herod, saying, "Go ye, and tell that fox."

Matthew Henry's Commentaries on the first page to the last, gorgeously illustrated with summer clouds with heat lightning. John Bunyan's writings are as full of humor as they are of saving truth, and there is not an aged man here who has ever read Pilgrim's Progress who does not remember that while reading it he smiled as often as he wept. Chrysostom, George Herbert, Robert South, John Wesley, George Whitefield, Jeremy Taylor, Rowland Hill, Nettleton, George G. Finney, and all the men of the past who greatly advanced the kingdom of God consecrated their wit and their humor to the cause of Christ. So it has been in all the ages, and I say to these young theological students, who cluster in these services Sabbath by Sabbath, sharpen your wits as keen as scimitars, and then take them into this holy war. It is a very short bridge between a smile and a tear, a suspension bridge from eye to lip, and it is soon crossed over, and a smile is sometimes just as sacred as a tear. There is as much religion, and I think a little more, in a spring morning than in a starless midnight. Religious work without any humor or wit in it is a banquet with a side of beef and that raw, and no condiments and no dessert succeeding. People will sit down at such a banquet. By all means remove all frivolity and all bathos and all lightness and all vulgarity—strain them out through the sieve of holy discrimination; but on the other hand, beware of that monster which overshadows the Christian church to-day, conventionality, coming up from the Great Sahara Desert of Ecclesiasticism, having on its back a hump of sanctimonious gloom—and vehemently refused to swallow that camel.

Oh, how particular a great many people are about the infinitesimals while they are quite reckless about the magnitudes. What did Christ say? Did he not exhort the people in his time who were so careful to wash their hands before a meal, but did not wash their hearts? It is a bad thing to have unclean hands; it is a worse thing to have an unclean heart. How many people there are in our time who are very anxious that after their death they shall be buried with their feet toward the east and not at all anxious that during their whole life they should face in the right direction so that they shall come up in the resurrection of the just whichever way they are buried. How many there are chiefly anxious that a minister of the Gospel shall come in the line of apostolic succession, not caring so much whether he comes from Apostle Paul or Apostle Judas; They have a way of measuring a gnat until it is larger than a camel.

Again: My subject photographs all those who are abhorrent of small sins while they are reckless in regard to magnificent thefts. You will find many a merchant who, while he is so careful that he would not take a yard of cloth or a spool of cotton from the counter without paying for it, and who if a bank cashier should make a mistake and send in a roll of bills five dollars too much would dispatch a messenger in hot haste to return the surplus, yet who will go into a stock company in which after while he gets control of the stock, add then waters the stock and make $100,000 appear like $300,000. He only stole $100,000 by the operation. Many of the men of fortune made their wealth in that way. One of those men, engaged in such unrighteous acts, that evening, the evening of the very day when he watered the stock, will find a wharf-rat stealing an evening newspaper from the basement doorway, and will go out and catch the urchin by the collar, and twist the collar so tightly the poor fellow cannot say that it was thirst for knowledge that led him to the dishonest act, but grip the collar tighter and tighter, saying, "I have been looking for you a long while; you stole my paper four or five times, haven't you?—you miserable wretch." And then the old stock gambler, with a voice they can hear three blocks, will cry out: "Police, police." That same man, the evening of the day in which he watered the stock, will kneel with his family in prayer and thank God for the prosperity of the day, then kiss his children good-night with an air which seems to say, "I hope you will all grow up to be as good as your father." Prisons for sins insecute in size, but palaces for crimes are immense in proportion, but great leniency for mastodon iniquity.

Rathite, a New Material. Rathite is the name of a new rubber preparation that comes from France. It is made of vulcanized caoutchouc and silk, and has, it is said, high elasticity.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DESERT.

One of the Several Strange Corners of Our Country.

The great American Desert was almost better known a generation ago than it is to-day. Ten thousand of the hardy Argonauts on their way to California had traversed that fearful waste on foot, with their dawning teams and hundreds of them left their bones to bleach in that thirsty land. The survivors of those deadly journeys had a very vivid idea of what that desert was; but now that we can roll across it in less than a day in Pullman palace-cars, its real and still existing horrors are largely forgotten. I have walked its hideous length alone and wounded, and realize something more of it from that than great many railroad journeys across it have told me. Now every transcontinental railroad crosses the great desert which stretches up and down the continent, west of the Rocky mountains, for nearly two thousand miles. The northern routes cut its least terrible parts; but the two railroads which traverse its southern half, the Atlantic and Pacific railroad and the Southern Pacific—perceive some of its grimmest recesses.

The first scientific exploration of this region was Lieutenant Wheeler's United States survey about 1850; and he was first to give scientific assurance that we had here a desert as absolute as the Sahara. If its parched sands could speak their record, what a story they might tell of sufferings and death; of slow-plodding caravans, whose patient oxen lifted their feet ceaselessly from the blistering gravel; of drawn human faces that peered at some lying image of a placid lake and toiled frantically on to sink at last, hopeless and strengthless in the hot dust which the mirage had painted with the hues and the very waves of water.

No one will ever know how many have yielded to the long sleep in that inhospitable land. Not a year passes, even now, without record of many dying upon that desert, and of many more who wander back in a delirium of thirst. Even people at the railroad station sometimes rove off, lured by the strange fascinations of the desert, and never come back; and of the adventurous miners who seek to probe the secrets of those barren and strange hued ranges, there are countless victims.

A desert is not necessarily an endless level waste of burning sand, according to Charles F. Lummis in the St. Nicholas. The Great American Desert is full of strange burnt rugged mountain ranges, with deceptive, sloping broad valleys between—though as we near its southern end the mountains become somewhat less numerous, and the sandy wastes more prominent. There are many extinct volcanoes upon it, and hundreds of square miles of black, bristling lava-flows. A large part of it is sparsely clothed with hardy greasewood; but in places not a plant of any sort breaks the surface, as far as the eye can reach. The summer heat is unbearable, often reaching 136 degrees in the shade; and a piece of metal which has been in the sun can no more be handled than can a red-hot stove. Even in winter the mid-day heat is insufferable, while at night ice frequently forms on the water-tanks. The daily range of temperature there is said to be the greatest ever recorded anywhere, and a change of 80 degrees in a few hours is not rare.

Japanese Carving. Japanese art is supreme in wood and ivory carving. Sir Edwin Arnold declares in "Seas and Lands" there is nothing known to him in Europe that comes near what Japanese workmen can achieve. A specimen of ivory carving was shown to him which represented a bag of rice with two or three dozen rats in and upon it.

Every rat was an individual in character, position and action, as if a special portrait had been taken of him; and the web of the bag, the glistening grains of rice, and the sleek fur of the rodents could not have been better expressed in painting.

At an art store in Yokohama he examined a piece of wood carving representing two life-sized wrestlers struggling in the ring. Every muscle and every vein were delineated; every tendon and ligament were anatomically perfect.

He drew a constant crowd, and a policeman informed the proprietor of the store that if he intended to continue the wrestling on his premises he must engage a posse of policemen to restrain the crowd. He was invited into the store, and melted into smiles when he saw that the wrestlers were carvings in wood.

A Modest Editor.

The Avalanche is left on my hands to run or dispose of, as I may think best. * * * I am left with an elephant (to me) to manage. I know nothing about the business whatever. * * * To my brother editors (I think that is the term used by the craft) I would most respectfully make my bow and simply say—don't make fun of me, for I feel the magnitude and profundity of my position. It is a great thing to be an editor and see your thoughts and words in print. I know it must be, for I have seen numbers of boys and young men in the business that seemed to be pulled up with their intelligence. I trust the "pulling up" will not attack me. I am pulled enough already.—Lay City Avalanche.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

A Brilliant Discovery in Dermatology.

It is said that superfluous hair can be permanently removed without pain. An interesting and valuable discovery has recently been made by John L. Woodbury, of 123 West 23d Street, New York City. It is a remedy for the permanent removal of superfluous hair, consisting of a fluid which is applied to the hair follicle by means of an electric needle. It is designed to be used by patients at their homes, and is used to be fully as effective as electricity. Full particulars in reference to this valuable remedy are found in a little book of 128 pages, which is sent to any address for 10 cents on application to the discoverer.

There are 282 miles of street railways in operation in Philadelphia.

Arsenic and American Apples.

Lowest, January 9, 1891.—The Horticultural papers are covering their articles on apples, on the ground that they contain arsenic, and the attacks are being generally copied in the press. The charge is that growers do not know their trees so as to prevent the ravages of a moth which eats nothing but apples and pears. All the papers do not take the same side and do not point out the weakness of the charge, as arsenic would not be applied when the trees are in fruit. The editor of the Horticultural Times is the author of the "arsenic scare," as it is called here. Immense quantities of American apples are sold in England and in other foreign lands, which perhaps explains the reason for the attack.

Spraying fruit trees, plants and vines for the prevention of the ravages of insects and fungus diseases is no longer an experiment, but a necessity, in order to get large crops of perfect fruit. For full information on this subject, address William Stead, manufacturer of the Spraying Outfit, Quincy, Ill., who will send, free, a full and complete treatise on this subject.

A Fatal Mistake.

Physicians make no more fatal mistake than when they inform patients that their heart troubles come from the stomach and are of little consequence. Dr. Franklin Miles, the noted Indiana specialist, has proven the contrary in his new book on "Heart Disease," which may be had free at Geo. C. Hueston who guarantees and recommends Dr. Miles' unequalled New Heart Cure, which has the largest sale of any heart remedy in the world. It cures nervous and organic heart disease, short breath, fluttering, pain or tenderness in the side, arm or shoulder, irregular pulse, fainting, smothering, dropsy, etc. His Restorative Nervine cures headache, fits, etc.

How To Succeed.

This is the great problem of life which few satisfactorily solve. Some fail because of poor health, others want of luck, but the majority from deficient grit—want of nerve. They are nervous, irresolute, changeable, easily get the blues and "take the spirit down to keep the spirits up," thus wasting money, time, opportunity and nerve force. There is nothing like the Restorative Nervine, discovered by the great specialist, Dr. Miles, to cure all nervous diseases, as headache, the blues, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, neuritis, St. Vitus dance, fits, and hysteria. Trial bottles and fine book of testimonials free at Geo. C. Hueston.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and tonic, acts directly on the vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils and gives a good complexion. ### JONATHAN NEAL.

The Last Living "Pioneer of Novi Township Now in His 92d Year.

NORTHVILLE, March 23.—The last living pioneer who located and settled on government land in the township of Novi is Jonathan Neal. Mr. Neal is now in the 92d year of his age, and is a native of New Jersey. He came to this state in 1832 and entered at the Detroit land office a quarter section of land on section 32, township of Novi, then Farmington.

After locating his land he returned to New York where he worked out by the month until the spring of 1833, when he married a Miss Miller, came to Michigan, built a log cabin on his place and commenced housekeeping.

At this time most of the government land in Novi had been taken and most of it settled, but with the exception of Mr. Neal, all these settlers have been "gathered to their fathers."

Mr. Neal has added to his original purchase forty acres, making his farm consist of 200 acres of choice farming land and three miles from this village.

There has never been a mortgage on his farm and never will be while the present owner lives. By industry, frugality and economy Mr. and Mrs. Neal acquired a competency.

Four children were born to them, three of whom are living. Mrs. J. Whiting, of Grand River avenue, Detroit, is one of his daughters. He also has one brother who lives in Detroit.

To such pioneers as Mr. and Mrs. Neal fair Michigan owes her proud position to-day among the glorious sisterhood of states. Mrs. Neal died some thirty years ago, highly esteemed for her many virtues.

Since the death of his wife Mr. Neal has made his home with his children and the tenants on his farm. Mentally and physically Mr. Neal is very strong for one of his age. He frequently walks to the village from his farm and returns. He is a quiet, unobtrusive man of strict integrity, knows but little, and cares less about the business of others and bids fair to enter the next century. "He has experienced prosperity and adversity. He has seen families and kindreds rise and fall. He has seen peace and war succeeding in their turns; and the face of his country undergoing many alternations."

Having passed fourscore and ten years he awaits the call of his Master to join the majority.—E. S. Woodman in Free Press.

SUCCESS.

Separate from the many holding great possessions, those who by inheritance or alliance have had possessions thrust upon them, and having done this, it will most likely be found that those remaining will impress you with the fact that the winning qualities of the successful are about the same in all. These latter are the thinkers—the workers; the leaders; and it is safe to say they are worth to the rest of us, more than is indicated by the accumulations which represent the pecuniary reward of their services. They have anticipated the conditions of the to-come, and put same in shape—with the result that they are the winners. Illustrations? Why, they are around us. In every reputable business concern there certainly is something of this character, or it would be sans reputation. Now for instance, the D. & N. Railroad; yes, and the West Michigan;—something distinctive, about them, hard to say just what, but the proof of their passenger perfection is in their patronage. Of course in all communities there are those who once attracted toward a certain thing and then properly treated become adherents, and perhaps predilected in favor of this or that party, but they are not of sufficient numbers for a railroad, to depend on. Besides, the railroad lives on forever. They die in time, and it is a physical impossibility to enforce upon their heirs, their prejudices, with other savings. So, there's only one course toward the end desired, and that is to keep up with the procession; find out what the people want, and give it to them, and where they lag in coming forward to get it, go and meet them. That's our theory and we don't mind confiding it to you. If you think it is a proper notion on our part, kindly encourage us. It is your benefit so to do. You can do so by using our lines when you go to Chicago, Detroit or Traverse City or Saginaw.

Did it ever occur to you that there are some things in this world better than others? Well, there are a good many things and one of them is Hartzell's Cough Syrup. It is better than the best of its kind, and what is more, the proprietors warrant it. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston.
