YARNALL GOLD CURE.

Our New Institute.

The New Cure for Inebriates now Opened for Business.

A walk of three blocks, along one of Northville's most beautiful and shady streets, brings one to the large imposing structure of the new inebriate cure institute. As the corner of the block is reached, one is fairly welcomed in by a handsome arched sign on which glistens, in large gilt letters, "Yarnall Gold Cure." The location, is undoubtedly the most desirable in the village. The building itself, occupying nearly half a square, is a large, roomy two story edifice and seems particularly adapted for just this purpose—the benefit, cure, and comfort of its patients. The lawns are to be beautified and they are already surrounded by beautiful shade trees on either side. As one passes through the large double door into the spacious corridor, the first room to the right is the secretary's room and business office. Here we found that genial, whole-souled, wide awake, Ed. L. Crosby, secretary of the Yarnall Gold Cure. Mr. Crosby is well known in this section of Michigan for his affableness, and business ability and the directors of the Yarnall Gold Cure are to be congratulated upon securing his services. Just off of the secretary's room is the office of the medical director and manager, Dr. Wm. H. Yarnall. Dr. Yarnall is too well known in this special field of work for the Record to add anything in his behalf not already known, and no one could be better adapted for the position of manager of the new institution. Just back of the doctor's office connecting by large doors is the operating room, 18x30, which connects with the corridor. On the west side of the operating room is the laboratory where the Gold cure is kept in stock for treat-formula used by Dr. Yarnall in the treatment of patients is the result of years of study and the numerous cures he has successfully made in the past are ample proof of its merits. The further fact that the Company guarantee a radical cure in every case which they undertake should leave no room for hesitancy in coming forward to take the treatment.

ED. L. CROSBY.

The non-residents of the new institute are President, Hon. T. E. Tarsney, ex-member of congress and well known as one of the most brilliant orators of the Saginaw bar. The treasurer is the well known Louis Quininn, a Saginaw capitalist and real estate dealer.

The former opening will take place next week Tuesday.

The Saginaw Globe clips the Yarnall Gold Cure article from last week's Record and has this to say regarding it: "Saginaw is especially interested in the enterprise. The Hon. Timothy E. Tarsney has been a resident of our city almost from his boyhood days. By hard work he rose up from an engineer to the hall of the American Congress and during all the time he has been recognized as one of the first citizens of our city and state.

Dr. Yarnall has practiced his profession in our city and country for many years and is recognized as one of our physicians. In the curing of many diseases he is a specialist without a superior any where, a man of profound scholarship, a deep thinker, broad in his views, cultured and refined, genial and sympathetic in his nature and disposition. Dr. Yarnall numbers his friends by the thousands here.

Louis Quininn is one of our leading capitalists and business men. Some of the finest business blocks in our city belong to him and he is recognized as a brainy, energetic, public spirited business man.

Louis Quininn has one characteristic that has endeared him to many men. He likes to see the unfortunate get onto their feet and succeed, and many a man in Saginaw owes his success, in a great measure, to the help of Mr. Quininn. That the institute will be a success there can be no doubt. The personal of the men who have put their money

NINE WATERY GRAVES.

EIGHT SCHOOL BOYS AND THEIR INSTRUCTOR DROWNED.

Their Boat Capsized, but all Cling to It Until Overcome by the Cold One by One They Go Down.

Boston special: An instructor and 10 boys connected with the Boston farm school at Thompson's Island were capsized in a sail boat and the instructor and eight of the boys were drowned. The victims were: A. E. Nordberg, instructor; Frank Hisechock, Homer F. Thatcher, George P. Ellis, Thomas Phillips, William W. Curran, Charles H. Graves, Harry E. Low, Albert H. Packard. The rescued boys were Ove W. Clements and Charles A. Lamb. The instructor had been on the city during the day, and the 10 boys, constituting a regular crew of the school, left the island at sunset to sail to City Point to convey the instructor to the island. The trip to the point was made and soon after the boat started on the return trip. At a point supposed to be between Spectacle Island and Thompson's Island, the boat was struck by a small and immediately capsized. The 11 occupants were thrown into the ice-cold water, but being accustomed to strict discipline and the exercise of heroism in the school, they all acquired positions where they could cling to the overturned craft and then began a long wait for rescue which to most of them was never to come. Finally the chill of the water and the exertion necessary to keep their heads above the surface overcame the unfortunates and one by one they were compelled to release their hold. The instructor was the first to go. Each offered a prayer of a word of farewell to the others, as he gave up his hold on life. Some of them endured the unequal contest for nearly four hours and it was quite four hours when the boat with two survivors clinging to it but exhausted, drifted ashore. They were immediately cared for and are rapidly recovering from the effects of their exposure.

No Punishment Can Fit the Crime.

Three masked burglars entered the house of John Daly, an aged soldier at Houghton, to steal his pension money. When he refused to give up the cash, they seized him by the head and feet, threw him into a chair and began torturing him. They stabbed him in the neck with a knife and held a lamp under his ear, burning that organ to a crisp. The old man still refused to divulge the hiding place of his money and one of the men knocked him senseless. They then ransacked the house, chopped up the floor with a hatchet and tore the plaster from the walls, but did not find the money. The men then went to the house of Miss Alice McDowell, an aged woman, dragged her from bed, bound her in a blanket, gagged her and tied her to a bedpost. They then began a systematic torture to make her tell where her money was. They jabbed a knife into her skull repeatedly, and one of the men struck her in the left eye with his revolver, destroying her sight in that eye. It is feared that she will die. The robbers got no plunder, and left no clew as to their identity.

The Behring Sea Patrol.

Several important naval orders have been issued from Washington. The U. S. S. Yorktown and Adams at San Francisco were ordered to proceed at once to Port Townsend and report arrival. The U. S. S. Charleston and Baltimore, also at San Francisco, were ordered to proceed to Astoria, Oregon, to participate in the Columbia river centennial celebration, May 12. While no orders have been given to that effect it is understood that the four vessels named will be employed in patrolling the waters of Behring sea, when the season opens. The United States steamer Mohican, now at Port Orchard, will probably be used for similar duty. The United States steamer Consort, now at Matanzas, has been ordered to proceed to Memphis, Tenn., to take part in the bridge celebration May 12.

Hetherington Is Free.

The consular court at Yokohama, Japan, has acquitted Lieut. Hetherington of the murder of George Gover Robinson. Hetherington's defense was that Robinson had become criminally intimate with Mrs. Hetherington. While Robinson was out driving alone, the lieutenant hailed him, stopping his horse, he was shot by Hetherington. Three days later Robinson was a wealthy Englishman who had been living some time in Yokohama, Japan. Lieut. Hetherington is from Wilmington, Del. The action of the consular court in acquitting Hetherington is final, and he cannot be tried in any other court for the crime. The information of Hetherington's acquittal was received with marked evidences of satisfaction in naval circles.

A $240,000 Campaign.

A New York morning paper has an Albany dispatch dealing with Governor Flower and his official habits in which occurs this: "When he was nominated for governor Mr. Flower gave, as his election statement of probable campaign expenses, $5,000. This promised a new blood campaign. Mrs. Schley, however, sent to Daniel Griffin, his chairman, a blank check on her bankers with directions to fill it out for any amount that might be necessary to serve Mr. Flower's candidacy. The check came back filled out for $240,000, and this enormous sum was cheerfully paid." Mrs. Schley is a sister-in-law to Governor Flower. She is said to be worth $7,000,000 or more.

A Locomotive's Spark.

A spark from a locomotive set fire to the car shops of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad company at Wayne Junction, on the outskirts of Philadelphia, and the structure, with 80 box cars was destroyed, the total loss being about $60,000. The flying embers ignited the residence of Henry Summers, some distance away, and it also was burned, with a loss of $15,000.

A Republican Victory.

Complete returns from all parts of Rhode Island show a vote on the state ticket of 54,745, an increase of about 10,000 over the largest ever polled before. The two parties raked every city and town almost bare of voters and got out an unexpectedly and unprecedentedly full vote, both in actual numbers and in proportion to the possible vote. The finished returns show a Republican victory.

SA new hotel, to cost $1,200,000, is to be erected at St. Louis, Mo. It will be 10 stories high and situated on the site of the old Plater hotel.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

SENATE--Judge Chipman, on the 5th, completed a favorable report on his resolution relative to the treatment of American citizens of Jewish faith in Russia. The report has been adopted by the foreign affairs committee and was presented to the House by Judge Chipman.

SENATE--The session on the 6th in Congress was the arrangement of the administration by Senator Wolcott. The offense for which he cited the President was the exertion of the influence of the administration to prevent legislation for the free coinage of silver, and the Democrats were naturally interested auditors to the criticisms of Senator Wolcott upon President Harrison. The speech of the senator from Colorado was delivered in a perfectly cool and collected manner and from carefully prepared manuscript.

SENATE--Senator McMillan, on the 7th, offered an amendment to the District of Columbia bill--which was under consideration--appropriating $75,000 for entertaining the G. A. R. encampment at Washington, a proviso was contained in the amendment that $60,000 should be raised by popular subscription before the appropriation was available. The amendment was rejected without action. During the discussion on the bill to place wool on the free list and to reduce the duty on woolen goods was received from the House; and after the District bill was laid aside, the wool bill was laid before the Senate by the Vice-President and was referred to the finance committee. The Senate after a short executive session adjourned. House.

SENATE--The District of Columbia, appropriation bill was again under discussion on the 8th. The amendment proposed by Senator McMillan the previous day was taken up and after several amendments were agreed to. The amendment appropriates out of the United States treasury $100,000 to pay for subsistence and quarters of such honorably discharged non-pensioned union soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the war of the rebellion as may attend as delegates or otherwise the 26th annual encampment of the G. A. R. in the city of Washington, the money to be paid to and disbursed by the citizens' executive committee of Washington, having in charge such reception and entertainment under such regulations as may be prescribed by the secretary of war. The bill was then passed and after an executive session the Senate adjourned. House.

SENATE--No session on the 9th. House. The business was suspended to pay tribute to the memory of the late Melbourne H. Ford, of Michigan, who died soon after his election to the 52d Congress. The first speaker was Mr. O'Donnell, who gave a splendid sketch of his colleague's career. He was followed by Rep. Youmans, Judge Chipman, Rep. Whiting, Rep. Weadock and Capt. Belknap.

SENATE--Mr. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, gave a reception on the 11th and congratulated his colleagues on their victory in the recent election. The House bill place cotton ties on the free list was laid before the Senate and referred to the finance committee. Mr. Stewart offered a resolution calling on the secretary of the treasury for information on the purchase and coinage of silver. Mr. Gallinger addressed the Senate on his bill for a commission to select a site for a national sanitarium for pulmonary patients, after which the bill was referred to the committee on epidemic diseases. Executive session adjourned. House. On motion of Mr. DeBurrow, of Illinois, a motion was passed repealing the joint resolution passed in the Fifty-first Congress which authorized the secretary of war to lease a pier at the mouth of the Chicago river. The floor was then accorded to the committee on the District of Columbia. A few local measures were passed and the House adjourned.

Lived on Fish and Frog Legs.

At Jackson's lake Tex., 16 miles south of Waco, in a tent made of an old quilt, a woman and four children were found nearly nude and living on cornmeal mush, fish and frogs. The mother said: "My name is Mrs. Murphy. My husband left me here three months ago, and told me to stay until he returned." The children were nearly as wild as the wolves that prowled around their bivouac. The oldest girl wore one tattered garment and rawhide moccasins of her own make. The family were taken to town and provided for.

Saved Her Life by Pinet.

Miss Ryan, daughter of the postmaster in Barrie, Ont., dropped a lamp on the attic stairs. It exploded and the flames sprang up to the ceiling. Finding escape cut off in that direction, Miss Ryan returned to the garret, and hanging a rope out of the window descended head over hand. She was badly burned about the face and hands. The citizens and cadets of the Royal military college formed a bucket brigade, but were unable to save the house or postoffice. Loss, $3,000.

Thousands of acres near Waterford, N. J., have been burned by a forest fire.

TO KILL PARKHURST.

THE LIFE OF THE BOLD PREACHER IS THREATENED.

Locomotive Bolley Ex. Blodded--Seven Persons Burned to Death at Fort Madison, Ia.

Dr. Parkhurst's Life Threatened.

New York dispatch: Rev. Dr. Parkhurst's life has been threatened if he persists in the crusade against Tammany corruption which he has pushed with a relentless vigor. He has been informed of his prospective fate through anonymous letters, but those which bear business are evidently written by one person. Dr. Parkhurst is afraid that he will be killed on the street at night. The letters are all written on one kind of stationery and in the same handwriting. They are also mailed at the same postal station. The chirographer, which is evidently disguised, is thought to be that of an educated person. Dr. Parkhurst is understood to have received altogether 11 letters. Some promise bodily harm, and one letter threatens to destroy his residence.

Strange Counterfeit.

R. J. Gunning, head of a big sign-painting firm of Chicago, and J. M. Rice, manager of the Household Loan association, were arrested by secret-service officers on warrants sworn out by Capt. Porter. The charge is counterfeiting. Both men are charged with violating sections 3705 and 5185 of the revised statutes of the United States, which prohibits the making in any shape or form any picture or likeness of United States money--silver, gold or paper. Gunning and Rice are charged with being responsible for having had painted an imitation of a $20 treasury note on a bill board. The picture of the bill is four feet long and two and a half feet in width, but the abnormal size of the bill does not in the least tend to mitigate the offense, and the two gentlemen will be prosecuted just as though they were ordinary counterfeiters.

Arbor Day Proclamation.

The following proclamation has been issued by Governor Winans. "In accordance with established custom I hereby designate Thursday, April 27, 1892, to be observed as Arbor Day. The beneficial effect of the observance of Arbor Day has been noticed with interest and pleasure by the citizens of Michigan. Other States may excel us in extent of natural forests, but in fertile plains, smiling valleys and beautiful lakes, Michigan can nowhere be surpassed. Earnestly appeal to all our people to observe Arbor Day by planting trees along the highways and about their homes. Fruit trees, shrubbery and flowers are blessings which all naturally enjoy, and every citizen can do something to render them more abundant."

Locomotive Exploded.

The boiler of a locomotive drawing a working train out of Long Island City, N. Y., exploded and eight men were injured. The names of the victims are: Engineer Walker, Joseph Lush, John Luby, James Kline, Theodore Veore and three unknown. Walker, Lush, Luby and Kline are fatally injured. All the men were badly scalded and bruised and several had limbs broken. They were thrown in all directions from the fire-car on which they were sitting, back of the locomotive. The water in the boiler was the probable cause of the explosion.

Seven Burned to Death.

The two-story frame store building of S. V. Kitchin and the dwelling of John Kitchin at Fort Madison, Ia., were entirely consumed by fire. S. V. Kitchin, his wife, three children, his wife's sister, Miss Sidney Day, and August Kneimer, a boarder, were burned to death. Sam Kitchin and Henry Kneimer were badly burned.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

Ex-Secretary of State Bayard will make the speech putting Cleveland in nomination.

The South Dakota supreme court has declared the prohibition law unconstitutional.

By the capsizing of a fishing boat at New Haven, Conn., three men were drowned.

A new hotel to cost $1,200,000 is to be erected at once in St. Louis on the site of the old Plater's.

PACING STANDARD CHANGED.

Important Action of the American Trotting Register Association.

The most important work done at the meeting of the American Trotting Register association at Chicago was the separation of the trotting and pacing standards. In the future the pacing and trotting will not be registered under the same provisions. The conditions of the new pacing standard are:

Any pacing stallion that has a record of 2:25 or better, provided any of his get has a record of 2:30 pacing or better, or provided his sire or dam is already a standard pacing animal. 2. Any mare or gelding that has a pacing record of 2:35 or better. 3. Any horse that is the sire of two pacers with records of 2:35. 4. Any horse that is the sire of one pacer with a record of 2:25 or better, provided he has either of the following additional qualifications: (1) A pacing record of 2:30 or better; (2) Is the sire of two other animals with pacing records of 2:30; (3) has the sire or dam that is already a standard pacing animal; 5. Any mare that has produced a pacer with a record of 2:25 or better. 6. The progeny of a standard pacing mare when out of a standard pacing mare. 7. The female progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a mare by a standard pacing horse. 8. The female progeny of a standard pacing horse when out of a mare whose dam is a standard pacing mare. 9. Any mare that has a pacing record of 2:30 or better, whose sire or dam is a standard pacing animal. 10. The progeny of a standard trotting horse out of a standard pacing mare, or a standard pacing horse out of a standard trotting mare.

Praises the Pope.

Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., has spoken as follows in regard to Pope Leo XIII.: "The pope is consistently giving new proofs that he is really the pontiff of this age, understanding thoroughly its aspirations and methods while repressing its evils, encouraging its healthful throbbings, blessing its achievements, opening up new vistas to its hopes. He opens his mind in a most cordial letter to a non-Catholic gentleman, bidding God-speed to the gigantic enterprise on the shores of Lake Michigan, which is to bring together, as never before in the universe, the fruits of the earth. The archbishop says that the pope stands by the people and that he entertains a very kindly feeling for America. Ireland speaks of the pope as a great man intellectually."

Five cadets in the Roumanian military school, in the town of Craiova, have committed suicide by shooting themselves with revolvers. They belonged to a secret organization known as the "suicide club," which consisted of 19 members. Weekly Review of Trade.

New York, April 11.--R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Another week brings additional proof of actual increases in business at many points, while slackness at a few is explained by causes obviously local and temporary. The money markets continue abundantly supplied and easy. Theories exist regarding the state of business which find frequent expression. That trade has disappointed expectations to some extent is obvious and there are some who claim that a reaction has begun of unknown duration, which appeared in Europe last year and was only in part deferred here because of extraordinary crops. These have to support them an unusually low prices, and in some departments a shrinkage in sales. Speculation has been stronger, wheat advancing 3 1/2 cts. per cwt. and cotton 1 1/2 cts. with smaller receipts. Oil is 1 1/2 higher, but coffee 3/4 lower. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 208. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 243.

Leo Daie was instantly killed by lightning and his brother was fatally injured during a severe electric storm at Ellingham, Ill. Seven washouts on the Vandalia between that place and Terre Haute, Ind., were caused by the storm. All trains were temporarily abandoned. The Washburn river was the highest ever known and a number of bridges over that stream have been carried away. Heavy wind, snow or rain storms were reported on the 5th from various points in North and South Dakota, Red Lake Falls, Minn.; Bridgeport, Ill.; Cairo, Ia.; Blue Springs and Ogalia, Neb.; St. Marys, O.; Wheeling, W. Va., and a number of other places.

YOU AND ME.

I always knew that we should meet somewhere upon the road called life; for a season pause to rest, away from all the world's wide strife.

MAMMY MULLIGRUB.

Mammy Mulligrub lives at Hoppertown. Now Hoppertown is not a very important place, neither is Mammy Mulligrub a very important personage; but the good-natured old darkey woman fills her own little niche in the great world, and recently with the aid of a cow and a dog she managed to fill it pretty full.

Mammy Mulligrub's cow is the pride of the old lady's heart, and a fine large creature she is too; but like many other animals she sometimes wants to have her own way.

Now Mammy has staked out the old milk factory nearly all summer, and after the cow's offspring got to be some days old, the old lady concluded to resume this custom, so she once more anchored the whey-producer to a birch peg by means of the clothes line.

Toward night Muley decided that her happiness and peace of mind, if not her very life, depended upon seeing that calf immediately, and sooner than that if possible.

A few minutes later a terrific racket at the cow-ranch attracted Mammy's attention, and running to the door to investigate, she saw old Muley pawing and bellowing at the gate.

"Fur de Lawd sake! Ef 'tain't dat ar kyow," said old Mammy as she set her spectacles a little higher up on the broad black dab of flesh that answered her to smell with in order to catch another squirt.

"She's done bus loose and kin fur her calf, an' ef I don't let him out she'll done bury hersef dar fur shuah."

"She's so handy I bes' git a bucket an' strip her," said the old lady to herself; but just as she was going to put her plan into effect, the dog appeared and took a hand in the game.

Now Bossy was not acquainted with old Towser, and what was more he did not feel inclined to get acquainted with animals of a standing inferior to his own; so he let out his hind legs as if the Old Nick were after him instead of Daddy Mulligrub's pet watch-dog.

Muley did not like to stand still, and see herself abandoned in that heartless manner, so she started off in pursuit. Mammy had to wiggle her fat limbs quite rapidly in order to catch the rope before she was completely out of reach.

But Towser's sporting propensities were fully aroused, and after that calf he went as if his very existence depended on getting a calf's tail for luncheon immediately.

The calf took a circle around the excited cow and equally excited old woman, for he did not like to get too far away from his mother.

"It's got ye, you good fur nuffin brack debble, you," she puffed. "Chase dat calf till he's done tucked all out; will ye? We'll see 'bout dat. Reckon I kin fix ye."

"Stay dar while I gits de milk pail, you no-account purp, you," she grumbled. "What daddy wants ter keep sech a worthless ting as you is fur. I can't fur de life ob me 'agine. Ef I had my way I'd out you's bob tail off snug behind yer ears, dat I would."

"De idee ob hitehin' a kyow ter a dawg's neck ter milk her!" snorted old Daddy when he heard the facts in the case.

"See here," said one of them, pausing in the act "which do you put in first, powder or shot?"

"Oh, do you?" was the reply. "Then I don't!"—Youth's Companion.

at the chariot wheel of the conquering cow, so to speak. When Mammy returned with the bucket, there was quite a lively race going on in the field.

"Bress de Lawd! I mus' stop dat caff or he'll run hissef ter deff," she ejaculated as she fell in behind the rather rapid procession.

Ahead of everything went the calf, by this time terrified almost out of his senses, next came the cow, bound to go wherever her offspring went or die in the effort, then old Towser, sometimes one end up, but oftener the other, the dirt flying in every direction as he dug his toenails into the turf in the vain effort to put down brakes, and lastly old Mammy, puffing along, milkpail in hand, as fast as her fat limbs would carry her, and gasping "so dar" as often as she could manage to make her mouth go off.

"Call off dat dog, Mammy," he shrieked; but Mammy only pegged away harder than ever, and all the sound she uttered was the hoarse and husky wail of "so."

"Why de debble don't ye call off dat dawg?" he cried again in a rage, but still there was no reply.

Just then the line of battle wheeled sharply around, and by making a terrific burst of speed across the corner mammy succeeded in catching Towser by his hinder continuation just as her husband fell into line behind her, and she hung to it till it threatened to come unjoined every instant.

"Let go 'dar dawg's handle," bel lowed daddy. "Ye'll done pull it out by the rules ef ye hain't keeful," but mammy's hold never relaxed.

The dog's feet cleared the ground a yard as the cow and mammy tugged on him in opposite directions, and Towser must have thought that he would be twins every minute. But he crisis was at hand.

Spying a small opening in a thorny hedge, the calf darted through it with a glare of terror. After him rushed his mother enlarging the hole some what by streaking her sleek sides with numerous long and bloody scratches.

Well, the caravan was under such headway that Mammy could not have let go of the dog's little end even if she had wished. Through the hedge she also went, speedily coming out again on the other side with a little of her wearing apparel still on in spite of the affectionate clinging of the thorns and briars.

Daddy had crawled through the hedge also, and now he tried his best to head off the strange tandem, bawling away all the time in a terrific bass voice, "co' boss," "git out, Towser," and "stop yer brack ole foot nigger," in about equal proportions.

Suddenly and unexpectedly the whole procession swerved toward the almost exhausted Daddy. He tried his best to get out of its line of march, but his rheumaticky old legs were not spry enough.

He succeeded in dodging the cow, but the clothes line took him across the shins with a violence that shifted ends of him in an instant. He was hurled more than ten feet and came down on his head in a duck-pond, above which two monstrous brogans floated for an instant like twin thunder-clouds above a mountain gorge; then he went under and shut the door.

"Ow! ow! ow!" he roared the very instant his head appeared above the surface again, "de debble's done got me fur shuah. O Lawd, hab massy on dis po' ole good-fur-nuffin brack nigger's soul."

The old man scrambled and floundered ashore in a paroxysm of terror, dragging out the supposed devil who was still clinging to one of his legs; and a worse looking devil probably never was seen—but it was only what was left of old Mammy. She had been snapped off the end of the line when it collided with Daddy's legs, and she also had found an unsavory baptism in the foul and muddy depths of the duck pond.

Slowly and mournfully the demoralized old darkey limped off homeward, and for more than a week it was all that Mammy could do to crawl about the house. The cow, accompanied by her calf, was found the next day in an adjoining township, a small chunk of gristy sausage meat still trailing from her neck at the end of a fuzzy-looking clothes line.

"De idee ob hitehin' a kyow ter a dawg's neck ter milk her!" snorted old Daddy when he heard the facts in the case.

"It is an old story of the man who said when he was offered tea during a visit to an army encampment, 'if my last cup was tea, I'll take coffee; if it was coffee I'll take tea; but if it may still serve to illustrate practical wisdom as well as impudence. Another learner from experience figures in the following anecdote:

Two amateur sportsmen went out together for a day's shooting, and began operations by attempting to load their guns.

"Oh, do you?" was the reply. "Then I don't!"—Youth's Companion.

WORLD OF PROGRESS.

DOINGS AND SAYINGS OF MEN OF SCIENCE.

Some Old and New Ideas in Aerial Navigation—Is it Possible for Man to Fly Through the Water—Scientific Notes.

The sea-tug Saturn, which brought the steamship Federation from Bermuda to this port in February, has just arrived at New York with the steamship Akaba safe in tow from Turk's Island.

The Saturn's work would have been almost impossible in a storm but for the contrivance pictured below.

It is, as may be noted in the illustration, a balancing cable drum. The steam engine is geared to the drum that the normal pressure of the engine cylinders, seen on either side of the drum, will balance the normal strain

On the cable or hawser, but if the strain on the hawser is increased, the drum revolves aft, and the hawser pays out running in again when the strain is relieved.

The principle of the towing machine is that the resistance of the towing vessel is borne entirely by the steam pressure in the cylinders. The wire hawser is wound on a drum which is driven directly by a pinion gear on the crank shaft of the engine.

The machine is fitted with a reducing valve, whose opening enlarges or decreases according as the strain on the hawser opens the reducing valve and augments the pressure in the cylinders until it is adequate to hold the strain. By this arrangement the hawser is freed at all times of any sudden tension.

A Los Angeles physician told us the other day that the most trying time in all his experience was during the past five weeks, when he stood hopelessly by and saw a poor ranchman near Puente die by inches of what is known as progressive paralysis.

The patient was first taken in one big toe. In a short time the limb was paralyzed to the knee. Two physicians were called, and all the known remedies were applied to stay the progress of the debilitating attack, but in vain, says the Pomona, (Cal.) Express.

Hour by hour death moved on its victim. The patient was propped up in an arm chair and fully realized his condition. He awaited the end with the coolness and bravery of a martyr. As the line of death crept nearer and nearer his heart beat made calculations as to how much longer he could live.

He said: "Now it has reached the body," indicating the exact place with his finger. In a little while he said: "It has reached the bottom of my lungs."

Another short wait and he said faintly: "It has touched my heart," and he fell over dead.

The many difficulties which confront the average aspirant after arrangements for soaring through the air has turned the attention of inventors to means of speeding through the water, one of the latest devices for this purpose being shown in the accompanying cut. It consists of propellers adapted to be supported upon the person of the swimmer by means of straps. These propellers are connected by gearing with drums, in which are wound cords connecting with the feet. When the swimmer extends the feet these cords are unwound, causing the drums to revolve and transmitting the motion to the propellers. When the feet are drawn up, coiled springs cause the cords to be again wound around the drums, ready to revolve again when the feet are extended. The inventor of the device makes no mention of the speed possible by its use, nor what effect the water will have upon the mechanism of the propeller.

Over $500,000 for a Torpedo. It is not every inventor who is so fortunate as Mr. Louis Brennan. The Admiralty has paid the last instalment of 16,000 pounds to this gentleman, who has received much more than 110,000 pounds, which the government is supposed to have paid for his torpedo. Eight years ago he was paid a retaining-fee of 5,000 pounds, and engaged for three years at a salary of 2,000 pounds a year and expenses, in return for which he was to devote all his time to the development and improvement of the torpedo, and when that term was over he received for some years a salary of 1,500 pounds.

The Medical Press is authority for the following: A great deal of misapprehension is often found to exist in the popular mind in regard to matters of eating and drinking. The cause of this to some extent is to be traced to old-time sayings, which have come down to us in the form of a concentrated infusion of somebody's opinion upon a subject of which he was woefully ignorant.

One of these misapprehensions to which we may refer is as to the injuriousness of taking fluids with meals. One frequently hears it laid down as a maxim that "it is bad to drink with your meals, it dilutes the gastric juice." By way of explanation we may remark that "it implies that the fluid taken is harmful."

Whence this sagacious postulate originally came we cannot tell, it has quite the ring about it of an "income-tax deduction" formed by a person whose presumption of knowledge was only exceeded by a lamentable ignorance of the subject. Medical men often find much difficulty in dealing with these museum specimens of antiquated science, for even educated persons are disposed to cling to the absurdities of their youth.

An interesting episode is reported to the European papers from Afghanistan. A high official, Mirza Ahmed Jan, was charged with having appropriated some public funds to private purposes. In the course of the investigation it was discovered that the official in question had also been engaged in literary work, and had been indulging in plagiarizing quite extensively.

The Amir of Afghanistan, in pronouncing his judgment, said: "I will not punish you for having appropriated public funds, for this charge has not been proved against you; but your pillage of the sacred poets, Hafiz and Saadi, I cannot let pass by." As a punishment he caused the culprit's tongue to be pierced with needles.

The sad-iron shown in the illustration herewith is the invention of a Western man, who claims for it advantages over any other form of fixed handle iron. It is stated that the coil forming the handle is so arranged that in making the circles just above the body of the iron the metal surfaces do not touch, and as a result the heat is thrown off and does not enter the handle as it otherwise would.

Pronze is Very Ancient. Pronze, spoken of in the bible as brass, is of very ancient origin. We have little or no notion how the ancients got copper; but in all probability large quantities were formerly found in the metallic state, just as we find it now in the neighborhood of Lake Superior in America and Baikal lake in Siberia. This would only have required melting to yield a tolerably pure metal.

A Good Washing Fluid. Dissolve one pound of sal-soda and half a pound of lime in five quarts of water, and boil for a few minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from the fire, and allow it to settle; pour off the clear liquid into a stone jar and cork for use. Half a teaspoonful of this fluid added to a half boiler of boiling water on wash days will save a great deal of labor.

Paper Horse-Shoes. A new system of shoeing horses has recently been invented in England. By it the iron shoes are fixed to others made of sail canvas, which are then cemented to the hoof. Shoes fixed this way have been worn quite thin without moving. The process has been patented in England.

What Might Happen. If the motion of the earth were suddenly arrested the temperature produced would be sufficient to melt, and even volatilize it; while, if it fell into the sun, as much heat would be produced as results from the combustion of 5,000 spheres of carbon of the size of her globe.

Rubber Blinders for Horses. Blinders for horses are now made of rubber moulded in imitation of the leather article, even the fine row of stitching appearing around the edge of the leather blinders being imitated. They are found to be much cheaper than the ordinary sewed-leather blinder.

HOW THEY FISH IN ASIA.

A QUEER SPORT AS CARRIED ON BY THEIR METHODS.

Think of a Fisherman Diving Into the Water for His Game—Man-Eating Crocodiles Looked on as Brothers in Trade.

The Chinese have many very curious ways of catching fish," said a piscicultural sharp to a writer for the Washington Star. "In winter they dive for them. A certain species demanded in the market seeks shelter during the cold season under rocks at a considerable depth. They can not be got with hook and line, and so the fishermen go down into the water after them, plunging from a boat. Three dives are made each hour, and a fire is kept up on board the boat for the purpose of warming those at work between dives. Not infrequently they come up bleeding from the lungs and rheumatism and skin diseases render them disabled by the time they are 40 years old.

It was the Chinese who invented the well-known plan of capturing ducks and other water fowl by wading toward them with a basket over the head and dragging them under water before they knew what had caught them by the legs. Their is the idea of employing cormorants to aid them in fishing. You have heard, doubtless, how the birds used for this purpose have collars around their necks to prevent them from swallowing the game they capture. At a signal given by their owner they plunge into the water after the prey. Whatever they get is taken from them, and they are rewarded for every success with a bit of fish small enough for them to eat. They are forced to work very hard all day long, but great care is taken of them, and they are nursed most attentively when they are sick. A bird is usually good for service until it is 10 years old. The cormorant fishermen are organized into societies, the birds belonging to each association having a peculiar mark.

In India also the natives employ many methods of fishing, which seem odd to us. There is in the district of Oude a species of so-called "walking fish" with snake-like heads which are often seen floating on the water as if asleep. The people shoot them with cross-bows. Usually they sink when they are killed so that they have to be dived for afterward. In the India, the Ganges and other streams are numerous fish-eating crocodiles which attain a length of more than twenty feet. Except when near their nests and anxious to defend their eggs they run away from human beings. Of fish they catch an enormous number, and it has been thought very strange that the fisherman should not destroy such rivals in their own business. But they regard the mere suggestion of such an idea with horror, saying that the crocodiles are brothers in trade.

The man-eating crocodiles of those rivers are regarded as sacred and are never harmed. Of late years they have destroyed more lives than formerly, owing to the prohibition by law of the ancient practice of consigning corpses to the streams. It was the good old way to fill the mouth of the defunct respectfully with mud and leave the cadaver to be swept away by the current. Upon such supplies of food the great saurians depended largely, and being deprived of them, they lie in wait to snap up living people and cattle. Five persons have been known to be carried off in one year at a single pool. However, the country is overpopulated, but one would not think it an agreeable death to die.

The Buddhists in India have a horror of eating the flesh of animals, believing them to be incarnations of human beings' souls; but they permit themselves the luxury of fish, usually getting around the difficulty by saying that the fishermen take away the fishes' lives, and are responsible. On the walls of their temples are numerous frescoes vividly depicting the terrible tortures which fishermen will have to endure in a future state. In these paintings fires are represented stirred up by devils, who are dragging the fishermen into the flames in nets, hauling them by hooks and lines and prodding them from behind with fish spears.

There is a story of a Buddhist priest who lodged for some time at the house of a fisherman. The latter had recently returned and was pursuing another occupation. After two days the guest asked why no fish were served upon the table, and being informed that his host was withheld by conscientious scruples from catching them, he expressed his approval in high terms. At the end of the week, however, he felt a craving for fish strong upon him and inquired how far the fisherman's net stretched across the neighboring stream. He was told that it extended one-third of the way across.

If that is the case," said the priest, the fish have their choice as to whether they will be caught or not. So if they choose to be taken nobody else is responsible. Therefore, you will do right to try and catch some."

Accordingly the priest was served thereafter with fish, of which delicacy he would have been deprived had it not been for the wisdom which sacred books had taught him.

The Astronomers are Puzzled. One of the most mysterious changes witnessed in the ever changing solar system is the variation in the brightness of the moons of Jupiter. Two of the four satellites occasionally cross the planet's disc as dark objects, although it is known that their sunny sides are presented to us and should appear no less brilliantly illuminated than the planet itself. The third and fourth satellites often make these dark transits, and the first is sometimes seen as a brown object, but the second has never been noticed otherwise than as a bright disc. The phenomenon still remains without satisfactory explanation.

ALLIGATORS.

They Are very Numerous in Paraguay, There Being No Hunters.

Of course, there being no hunters to kill them, wild animals are very plentiful; it is not uncommon to see jaguars and deer, even from the deck of the steamer. But most of all alligators abound, writes Herbert H. Smith in St. Nicholas. When the waters are highest they roam over the flooded land, seeking the small animals, water-birds and fish, on which they live; at that time they are not so common along the river channels, and only now and then may one be seen in the shallows, with but the top of his ugly head above the surface of the water.

In the dry season, as the waters recede, they gather in the rivers in such amazing numbers that I can compare them only to tadpoles in a pond. I have counted over sixty on a small sand bank, literally piled one over the other; while all around, the water was full of them. They lie thus for hours, basking in the sun, and quite still; but if a steamer approaches, the mass begins to move, there is a great rattling of scales as they hustle each other to reach the water, and in a moment only five or six are left, who raise their heads and stare at the vessel until it has passed them. These more courageous fellows are generally the larger ones, and offer tempting spots. I am no sportsman, but my brother-in-law, who was traveling with me, killed many from the steamer's deck using only coarse shot.

It is not so easy to kill those that are seen on the surface of the water, shot, and even a bullet, will glance off from the hard skull unless the eye be hit. The top of the eye-socket is never more than two or three inches above the surface, and as they are usually at rather long range, even a skillful marksman may be pardoned for a miss.

Though so numerous, the alligators are not generally regarded as dangerous. I have often seen the young negroes and Indian boys swimming within a few yards of them, and the natives paid little attention to their play. Cattle, too, wade about the flooded grass lands, in search of pasture, and are rarely molested by alligators. In fact, unless driven to bay or ravenous with hunger, they dare not attack man or the larger animals; but they are always on the watch for smaller prey.

A Little Slave Who Thought It Might War a Twin War.

"Yes," said the old Georgia colonel, "I think that up to the age of fourteen negro children learn quite as well as the white—better, perhaps; but there they seem to come to a halt."

"I recall a boy I owned before the war who was as sharp as a steel-trap and a great pet of myself and family. At the time of the incident I am about to relate he was about ten years of age and so full of mischief that it bubbled out of him."

Whenever he broke out of bounds and got unbearable I sent him with a note to the overseer, with instructions to flog him, always indicating the weight and number of stripes.

"Seeing the unfavorable consequences of carrying that bit of paper to the overseer, he said to me one day: 'Maussa, ken dat papa talk?'

"It can," I replied. "It tells when you are idle and won't work."

"But you don't nebbah work ez I sees," he said.

"Oh, I replied, I work with 'my head, and that is the hardest kind of work."

"The next time I gave the boy a note to take to the overseer he went off stroking his head."

"I soon learned that he had destroyed the note instead of delivering it. So I called him up and asked him why he had not obeyed me."

"Wa'al, maussa," said the boy, with a twinkle in his eyes. "Ize done been doin' some 'inkin' fo' mysef, an' I've allowed as how I'd start an' work wid my head, too!"—Buffalo News.

A Dog's Reason. A lively demonstration of canine reasoning occurred at Keeler, Cal., recently. A small brown dog, with a most intelligent head, familiarly known to the lower country residents as Barney, has been in the habit for a long time past of following the Darwin stage, never missing a trip. Changing the drivers makes no difference; he clings to the route and not the man. On off days he occasionally makes a visit to Cerro Gordo, and in doing so recently was set upon and whipped by a dog there. Attached to Boland's store at Keeler is a big strong dog that has quite a reputation as a scrapper. On the morning of the next Cerro Gordo trip Barney was noticed playing with the big dog. When the stage started Barney followed, and as his companion seemed averse to going forward, he would run back and play, then forward, and finally persuaded the John L. Sullivan dog into going too. Arriving in Cerro Gordo, the little dog made a dash at his former antagonist. John L. "stood in" and the bully was soundly thrashed. Barney wore a broad grin of satisfaction when he returned to Keeler; but he does not visit Cerro Gordo any more.

An Important Difference. She—Dueling is barbarous and irrational. The General—It's just like war, but for numbers. She—No, it isn't. In war you can lie in wait or get behind something—Life.

There has also been shipped from this station 70,000 yearling trout, aggregating more than one ton. These fish and eggs went into nearly every state in the union, besides to many foreign countries.

By all means investigate this before you go snooping into the merits of the Keeley cure, Mr. Legislature.

EDITOR RECORD—Having read your numerous articles in the past in regard to supporting home merchants I am led to offer the following thoughts. While your paper advocates such patronage, and craves the whip over those who believe it to be their interests to trade elsewhere, occasionally you cannot refrain to give to one of your numerous readers who think otherwise. Is it not my duty to buy where I can buy the cheapest? Where I can have a larger stock to select from? If I have anything to sell am I to let some one at home have it cheaper than I can get for it elsewhere? Is it not a duty I owe to myself and family to trade where I can do the best?

The other day while reading a paper published in a neighboring village I read the advertisement of one of our merchants soliciting trade from that place. I also saw a bulletin board nailed through the village saving club to Northville to trade. Is it not soliciting citizens of other places to trade here with the same one who are grumbling because some of our citizens go elsewhere to trade at the solicitations of other merchants? Why object to just what they complain of in cities?

We have frequently noticed the families of our merchants coming back from the city with articles purchased there that they could have got of our position merchants here at home. They give as an excuse that they could get what they wanted at wholesale rates in the city. Why not buy of home dealers and not keep up the "leeches" of the city? Why set such an example to us and then complain because we follow it?

I notice you speak of merchants contributing to the improvements of the Baptist church and expecting part of the money to flow back into their coffers. Those who are not fortunate enough to be merchants, but have contributed their mites to the improvements of said church have a right to expect the best bargain to be made with this money donated. All confidence would be lost in churches if they did not use money placed in their hands to the best advantage and if they believed they could do better by buying elsewhere they would have been untrue to their trusts if they had not done so.

HOME TRADE.
EDITOR RECORD—With your usual zeal in the interest of home prosperity, your last week's article, which really set our ideas on edge, is a good reason in favor of a structure upon one of our churches for not doing the impossible. Any one who has had experience knows how unsatisfactory, if not impossible, it is to carpet a church by sample. And as to wall-paper the goods that properly go to improve a church are not, and cannot be carried by a merchant in a small town. On the other hand, no reasonable person will demand of a Northville merchant that he carries a complete stock from a paper of pins to a bridal trousseau for an actor. For one make it a point never to purchase anything in Detroit which I can purchase in Northville, and I believe all good citizens will do the same, yet repeatedly our merchants have given me a letter of introduction to firms in the city for the purpose of purchasing goods a village merchant is not expected to carry. May I not be permitted to remind our readers of the fact that no class of people in and about Northville purchase so many goods in the city as the families of the merchants of Northville. In fact some of them refuse to patronize home tradesmen because they do not wish to encourage competition. Should not righteousness in this matter begin at the place of trade? Let the merchants of Northville form themselves into a "Home Trade" club, pledge themselves and their families to patronize home establishments whenever it is possible, a fine following a failure to do so, and other citizens will join such a club, and do all in their power to make it a success. All that is herein said applies to the support of the RECORD by the people of Northville, and not a "wild cat" sheet, which not only has no just call upon our community, but also never misses a chance to do our town an injury. Mr. Editor, continue the war, but be careful not to shoot our friends in the back.

If the Baptist church is in the wrong then it only stands where the other churches have stood.

A Mystery Explained.
The papers contain frequent notices of rich, pretty and educated girls eloping with negro, tramps and coachmen. The well-known specialist, Dr. Franklin Miles, says all such girls are more or less hysterical, nervous, very impulsive, unbalanced; usually subject to headache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, immoderate crying or laughing. These show a weak nervous system for which there is no remedy equal to restorative perrine. Tria bottles and a fine book containing many marvelous cures; free at Geo. C. Hueston's, who also sell and guarantee Dr. Miles' celebrated New Heart Cure, the finest of heart tonics. Cures fluttering short breath, etc.

Height of Cruelty.
Nervous women seldom receive the sympathy they deserve. While often constantly ailing, to withhold sympathy from these unfortunate is the height of cruelty. They have a weak heart, causing shortness of breath, fluttering, pain in side, weak and hungry spells, and finally swelling of ankles, oppression, choking, smothering and dropsy. Mr. Miles' New Heart Cure is just the thing for them. For their nervousness, headache, weakness, etc., His Restorative Nervine is unequalled. Fine treatise on "Heart and Nervous Diseases" and marvelous testimonials free. Sold and guaranteed by Geo. C. Hueston.

Mothers and Daughters.
Over twelve years ago I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, I can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years and am now sixty years old, but feel as young as at thirty.—SI a bottle, June 2, 1890. THE RECORD. EMBLEM OF TRIUMPH.

R. S. NEAL, Publisher.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN.

Let it be borne in mind that the cords of love which bind hearts so closely together that neither life nor death nor time nor eternity can sever them, are woven of threads no bigger than a spider's web.

If you think you can temper yourself into manliness by sitting there over your books it is the very silliest fancy that ever tempted a young man to his ruin. You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must forge yourself one.

You have been a great deal happier since you have given up thinking about what is easy and pleasant and being discontented because you could not have your own will. Our life is determined for us; and it makes the mind very free when we give up wishing, and only think of bearing what is laid upon us and doing what is given us to do.

When we stop to consider that about one-third of the population of the country are youths under 21 years of age it becomes a very serious question as to what shall be done with the boys and girls. The children of the poor are worth developing and it is not necessary to accept the old theory that there is a permanent criminal element in our population by the law of heredity.

The greatest heroes are the least known in the world and those who have made the loudest din are the cowards who have fled from their own passions to fight with other men. Hence the difficulty of moral government, and hence also the common concept of the world to leave the government of the passions to a man's own self unless when they interfere with the rights of the person or the rights of property.

Is this indeed the real standard? The head not the heart? The intellect as distinguished from the emotions? May it not be said truthfully that the criterion of the age is not either head or heart but pocket? The one unailing standard in America appears to be money. When youths in this hustling age are told to emulate success the example of success presented is old Money Bags. How money bags made it is not in the inquiry.

People of large cities where the custom is uniform among doctors of giving prescriptions to their patients to be subsequently filled by the apothecary enjoy an advantage which is denied people of the country where the physician is not only compelled to prescribe, but to fill the prescriptions also. This advantage consists in the valuable check which the druggist amounts to whenever he admits the physician's prescription. There are absent-minded doctors just as there are absent-minded lawyers and preachers and business men. It often happens that a doctor writes one thing when he means to write another.

No question has attracted more general attention in late years than that of how cities shall care for the youth that is drifting toward depravity. Emerson has said: "The truest test of civilization is not in the success nor the size of its cities nor the crops, but the kind of men the country turns out." Civilization has come to accept Emerson's definition and this question of how to take care of somebody else's boys or girls who are not cared for at home and make good citizens of them, is no longer left to those who are called philanthropists, preachers and teachers. Business men have come to regard it as one of the great questions which they must help to solve. They have been compelled to do this often by their interest in their own successful conduct of business.

SALEM is a reminder, not only that we have something uncanny to look back to, but that we are already, even in the short space of two hundred years so far out of that era that it seems more remote by reason of present conditions than by lapse of time. Not that we have outgrown superstition, for it springs up in form so nearly like the old bugbears that it seems as though humanity would never learn to cast it out; but that intolerance, at least of a sort that can harm, is gradually dying out. The humbugs of all sorts that go a thriving business in our midst prove this and it is not a thing to be ashamed of excepting that it implies an untutored gullibility in the public. The pretended or actual sorceries of to-day are far more noxious than those which were supposed to be practiced by the Salem days, but nobody gets scratched for them, excepting in reputation. It is one department of life in which we seem to have learned that it is no use to punish the offender as long as the offense is so readily marketable.

DR. TALMAGE ON THE MARCH TO JERUSALEM.

The Triumphant Entry of Jesus and the Despoliation of the Palm Graves—Every Victory Must Have Its Carnage.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 10.—This day is recognized as Palm Sunday throughout the world, and that fact gave direction to Dr. Talmage's sermon, "Among the byzans sung, was the hymn."

Clad in raiment pure and white, Victors palms in every hand, They took palm branches of palm trees and went forth to meet him.

How was that possible? How could palm branches be cast in the way of Christ, as he approached Jerusalem? There are scarcely any palm trees in Central Palestine. Even the one that was carefully guarded for many years at Jericho has gone. I went over the very road by which Christ approached Jerusalem, and there are plenty of olive trees and fig trees, but no palm trees that I could see. You must remember that the climate has changed. The palm tree likes water, but by the cutting down of the forests, which are leafy prayers for rain, the land has become unfriendly to the palm tree. Jericho once stood in seven miles of palm grove. Olive was crowned with palms. The Dead sea has on its banks the trunks of palm trees that floated down from some old-time palm grove and are preserved from decay by the salt which they receive from the Dead Sea. Let woodmen spare the trees of America, if they would not ruinously change the climate and bring to the soil barrenness instead of fertility. Thanks to God and the Legislatures for Arbor Day, which plants trees, trying to atone for the ruthlessness which has destroyed them. Yes, my text is in harmony with the condition of that country on the morning of Palm Sunday. About three million people have come to Jerusalem to attend the religious festivities. Great news! Jesus will enter Jerusalem today. The sky is red with the morning, and the people are flocking out to the foot of Olivet, and up, and on over the southern shoulder of the mountain, and the procession coming out from the city meets the procession escorting Christ, as he comes toward the city. There is a turn in the road, where Jerusalem suddenly bursts upon the vision.

Long before that morning the palm tree had been typical of triumph. Herodotus and Strabo had thus described it. Layard finds the palm leaf cut in the walls of Nineveh, with the same significance. In the Greek athletic games the victors carried palms. I am very glad that our Lord, who five days after had thorns upon his brow, for a little while, at least, had palms strewn under his feet. Oh, the glorious palm! Amarsinga, the Hindoo scholar, calls it "the king among the grasses." Linnaeus calls it "the prince of vegetation." Among all the trees that ever cast a shadow or yielded fruit, or lifted their arms toward heaven; it has no equal for multitudinous uses. Do you want flowers? One palm tree will put forth a hanging garden of one cluster counted by a scientist containing 207,000 blooms. Do you want food? It is the chief diet of whole nations. One palm in Chile will yield ninety gallons of noney. In Polynesia it is the chief food of the inhabitants. In India there are multitudes of people dependent upon it for sustenance.

Oh, the palm! It has a variety of endowments, such as no other growth that ever rooted the earth or kissed the heavens. To the willow, God says: "Stand by the water courses and weep." To the cedar, he says: "Gather the hurricanes into your bosom." To the fig tree, he says: "Bear fruit and put it within reach of all the people." But, to the palm tree, he says: "Be garden and storehouse and wardrobe and rope-walk and chandlery and bread and banquet and manufactory, and, then, be type of what I meant when I inspired David, my servant, to say: 'The righteous shall flourish like a palm tree.' Oh, Lord God, give us more palm trees—men and women made up for nothing but to be useful; dispositions all abloom; branches of influence laden with fruit; people good for everything, as the palm tree. If kind words are wanted, they are ready to utter them. If helpful deeds are needed, they are ready to perform them. If plans of usefulness are to be laid out, they are ready to project them. If planes of usefulness are to be forwarded, they are ready to lift them. People who say, 'Yes! Yes!' when they are asked for assistance by word or deed, instead of 'No! No!' Most of the mysteries that bother others, do not bother me, because I adjourn them, but the mystery that really bothers me is why God made so many people who amount to nothing so far as the world's betterment is concerned. They stand in the way. They object. They discuss hindrances. They suggest possibilities of failure. Over the road of life instead of pulling in the traces, they are lying back in breechings. They are the everlasting No's. They are branble trees; they are willows, always mourning, or wild cherry trees, yielding only the bitter, or crab apple trees, producing only the sour, while God would have us all flourish like the palm tree. Planted in the Bible that tree always means usefulness. But how little any of us or all of us accomplish in that direction. We take twenty or thirty years to get fully ready for Christian work, and in the afterpart of life we take ten or twenty years for the gradual closing of active work, and that leaves only so little time between opening and stopping work that all we accomplish is so little, a snail of God, needs to exert himself to see it at all. Nearly everything I see around, beneath and above in the natural world suggests useful service. If there is nothing in the Bible that inspires you to usefulness, go out and study the world around you this spring-time, and learn the great lesson of usefulness.

Notice that it was a beautiful and lawful robbery of the palm tree that helped make up Christ's triumph on the road to Jerusalem that Palm Sunday. The long, broad, green leaves that were strewn under the feet of the colt, and in the way of Christ were torn off from the trees. What a pity, some one might say, that those stately and graceful trees should be despoiled. The sap oozed out at the places where the branches broke. The glory of the palm tree was appropriately sacrificed for the Savior's triumphal procession. So it always was, so it always will be in this world—no worthy triumph of any sort without the tearing down of something else. Brooklyn Bridge, the glory of our continent, must have two architects prostrated, the one slain by his toils, and the other for a life-time invalidated. The greatest pictures of the world had, in their richest coloring, the blood of the artists who made them. The mightiest oratorios that ever rolled through the churches, had, in their paths, the sighs and groans of the composers, who wore their lives out in writing the harmony. American Independence was triumphant, but it moved on over the lifeless forms of tens of thousands of men who fell at Bunker Hill and Yorktown and the battles between, which wore the honorages of the nation. The Kingdom of God advances in all the earth, but it must be over the lives of missionaries who die of malaria in the jungles or Christian workers who preach and pray and toil and die in the service. The Saviour triumphs in all directions—but beauty and strength must be torn down from the palm trees of Christian heroism and consecration and thrown in his pathway. To what better use could those palm trees on the Southern shoulder of Mount Olivet and clear down into the Valley of Gethsemane put their branches than to surrender them for the making of Christ's journey toward Jerusalem the more picturesque, the more memorable and the more triumphant? And to what better use could we put our lives than into the sacrifice for Christ and his cause and the happiness of our fellow creatures? Shall we not be willing to be torn down for us? Can we not afford to be torn down for him? If Christ could suffer so much for us, can we not suffer a little for Christ? If he can afford on Palm Sunday to travel to Jerusalem to carry a cross, can we not afford a few leaves from our branches to make emerald his way?

The process is going on every moment in all directions. Christ is again on the march, not from Bethpage to Jerusalem, but for the conquest of the world. He will surely take it, but who will furnish the palm branches for the triumphant way? Self-sacrifice is the word. There is more money paid to destroy the world than to save it. There are more buildings up to ruin the race than churches to evangelize it. There is more depraved literature to blast men than good literature to elevate them. Oh, for a power to descend upon us all like that which whelmed Charles G. Finney with mercy, when, kneeling in his law office, and before he entered upon his apostolic career of evangelization, he said: "The Holy Ghost descended on me in a manner that seemed to go through me, body and soul. I could feel the impression like a wave of electricity going through and through me. Indeed it seemed to come in waves and waves of liquid love. It seemed like the breath of God. I can recollect distinctly that it seemed to fan me like immense wings. I swept along with joy and love. These waves came over me, and over me, one after another, and, until, I recollect, I cried out: 'I shall die if these waves continue to pass over me.' I said: 'Lord, I cannot bear any more.' And, when a gentleman came into the office and said: 'Mr. Finney, you are in pain?' he replied: 'No, but so happy that I cannot live.'"

My hearers, the time will come when upon the whole church of God will descend such an avalanche of blessing, and then the bringing of the world to God will be a matter of a few years, perhaps a few days, or a few hours. Ride on, O Christ! for the evangelization of all nations. Thou Christ who didst ride on the unbroken colt down the sides of Olivet, on the white horse of eternal victory ride through all nations, and may we, by our prayers and our self-sacrifices and our contributions and our consecration, throw palm branches in the way. I clap my hands at the coming victory. I feel this morning as did the Israelites, when on their march to Canaan, they came not under the shadow of one palm tree, but of seventy palm trees, standing in an oasis among a dozen gushing fountains, or as the Book puts it: "Twelve wells of water and three score and ten palm trees." Surely there are more than seventy such great and glorious souls present to-day. Indeed it is a mighty grove of palm trees, and I feel something of the raptures which I shall feel when our last battle fought and our last burden carried and our last wept, we shall become one of the multitudes St. John describes "clothed in white robes and palms in their hands." Hail thou bright, thou swift-advancing, thou everlasting Palm Sunday of the sinner! Victors over sin and sorrow and death and woe, from the hills and valleys of the heavenly Palestine, they have plucked the long, broad, green leaves, and all the ransomed—some in gates of pearl, and some on battlements of amethyst, and some on streets of gold, and some on seas of sapphire, they shall stand in numbers like the stars, in splendor like the morn, waving their palms!

ANECDOTES OF SPURGEON

He Co. did Not Preach With His Wife Looking at Him.

Among the crowd of apocryphal anecdotes concerning Mr. Spurgeon let me record two for which I can personally vouch. writes Edmund Yates in the London World. At the Surrey Gardens Music hall, if I mistake not, in the year 1856, where I heard Thackeray's four lectures on the Georges and where Spurgeon preached regularly before the tabernacle was built, there were French windows opening out into the grounds. The place was crammed one hot Sunday morning, and these windows were many of them left open, so that a fringe of the congregation was standing half in and half out of the great building.

New comers gradually edged some of the others onto the floor, some of whom remained covered, as they were justified in doing so long, and no longer as their standing ground was in the gardens. These unfortunately Mr. Spurgeon spoke at thus from the pulpit before beginning his sermon, in an easy, friendly manner, but in those magnificent tones which vibrated through the building: "I regret to see that there are some present who are so unaccustomed to attend public worship that they have quite forgotten it is the practice to take off their hats!" This I heard, and shall never forget its effect in the immediate doffing of male headgear and in a sort of smothered hum of amused approval from the crowd.

Another personal experience of Mr. Spurgeon was at the Crystal Palace, where he preached to 25,000 people. Seated near to the pulpit, I observed Mrs. Spurgeon take her place just before her husband appeared and that she was visibly affected by the mighty concourse of souls, all with upturned faces and fixed gaze, upon one man, and all about to be thrilled to the core by that man's impassioned appeals to them to be saved alive.

While Mrs. Spurgeon was cooing her emotion as best she might—in other words, dealing faintly and shyly with her pocket handkerchief—I saw the pastor beckon far off with his forefinger to one of the deacons, a stout and solemn gray-haired man of rubicund complexion and a defect in one eye, which I remember made me speculate whether it was natural or acquired. He was in the very glossy black which was the orthodox dissenting uniform in those far-off days and walked with a limp which made his progress up to the pulpit, or rather platform, start tantalizingly slow.

Some brief but evidently important instruction was at last whispered by Mr. Spurgeon in the same man's ear, and 25,000 people were at once agog with curiosity to know what this could possibly be at such a time when the whole vast place was quivering with anticipation and suppressed emotional excitement. I happened to be seated so near to Mrs. Spurgeon that when the worthy deacon "made-for-her" in his crab-like ponderous way, it was unavoidable that I, at least, out of that vast and silent crowd of expectant souls should hear what had delayed the pastor, and what the urgent matter was he had, at such a critical moment, to communicate.

"In a hoarse, fleshy whisper I heard this: 'Mr. Spurgeon's wife' (could I help, listening?)—the interlude was serious and even dramatic, and my ears craned that way whether I would or not)—'Mr. Spurgeon says, please, will you change your seat so that he will not be able to see you, it'—(it was doubtless Mrs. Spurgeon's obvious emotion)—'makes him nervous,' and the lady moved immediately to another seat not visible from the preacher's place.

Shaving for Baldness. Shaving the head, for baldness is a delusion and a snare. When quite a young man the exchange editor of the Philadelphia Times found himself growing bald, and by the advice of a barber, which advice was also indorsed by a wig-maker, he had the top of his head shaved regularly twice a week for six months.

During this time he wore a $30 toupee bought of the wig-maker. Six months was the time he was to shave his head to effect a cure, but at the expiration of this period he found that the toupee, or something else, had killed all the roots of his hair and he was hopelessly bald.

In telling his tale of woe the editor always removes his hat as he approaches the climax and thus the absolute truth of it is flashed, like a great white light, upon the hearer.—National Barber.

The First Letter Envelope.

An article in the Washington Post gives May 6, 1841, as the date when postage stamps were first introduced. England having taken the lead in this improvement. Now, will any body tell us when letter envelopes as now in use were first made?

I have the proof sheets of what Sir Rowland Hill informed me when he presented it to me at his house in London on the 17th of June, 1867, was that of the first envelope ever invented, writes Horatio King.

It is commercial note size, and the upper side and each end are illustrated by various pictures, the leading interpretation of which would seem to be the spread of intelligence throughout the world.

HOW ANIMALS "CHARM."

It is Possibly a Form of Hypnotism—Well Authenticated Instances. The power attributed to the snake and feline families of "charming" their victims seems to me past dispute. Is it not merely a case of hypnotism? questions a writer in Science. Livingston tells us that when at one time seized by a tiger he felt neither terror nor pain; all his senses seemed to be benumbed. Bates in his "Naturalist on the Amazon," states that one day in the woods a small pet dog flew at a large rattlesnake. The snake fixed its eyes on the dog, erected its tail and shook its rattle. It seemed in no haste to seize the dog, but as if waiting to put the dog into a more suitable condition for being seized. As to the dog, it neither continued the attack or retreated, could not or would not move when called, and was with difficulty dragged away by its master.

I have seen one case of a snake charming a bird, but I had a better opportunity to study a cat charming a bird and probably the process is much alike in both. The cat placed itself on the outside sill of my window near to a pine tree. A bird presently lit on the pine tree, no doubt not observing the cat. The cat fixed its attention on the bird. The cat's eyes were widely opened and shone with a peculiar brightness; its head was raised and intent, the fur on its neck and about its face slowly stood up as if electrified. Except for this rising of the fur and a certain intensity of life about the beast, it was as still as if cut from stone. The bird quivered, trembled, looked fixedly at the cat and finally with a feeble shake of the wings, fell toward the cat, which bounded to seize it.

A lady tells me that she "does not believe that cats can charm birds. She has seen a cat try to charm a parrot, and the bird, greatly alarmed, scolded loudly." This proves nothing, the parrot in general, or more probably, that particular parrot did not prove a good subject for the mesmeric power. I have seen people who cannot be hypnotized; they resist the effort, and nervous action becomes intensified.

A Story of Great Heroism. I recall to mind a story of an officer in the emperor's army which was besieging a fortress. Their number was small, and a relieving army was coming up. It was of immense moment that they should know how long the fortress could hold out. It must capitulate for want of supplies within a week they could stay and win the campaign for the emperor. A young Japanese nobleman volunteered to go into the fortress and ascertain how long the fortress could hold out. He disguised himself, and in passing learned that they had food and water for only two days more.

As he was going out with his precious information he was detected and the enemy said to him: "We are going to crucify you, but we will let you go on one condition—that you will go to the wall and tell the people that we have supplies for a week." He said: "Very well," and went to the wall. His wife and children in the besiegers' camp saw him, his friends were there also, and he held up both his hands and said: "There are supplies but for two days. Continue the siege and you will take the place." He died by a hundred spear points, but he had done his duty to his general.—Sir Edwin Arnold.

OLD BLUCH. A Bull Dog Who Enjoyed a Bit of Sport as Well as the Boys. Years ago the boys of Frankfort, Ky., used to go swimming in the Kentucky river just above the L. and N. bridge, where there is on the west shore a high ledge of rocks abruptly rising from the edge of the water. They had a rope fastened to the limb of a tree near the brow of the cliff, and would in turn catch this rope, give a short run, swim out over the deep water and drop off to enjoy the plunge, swimming back to the shore to repeat the operation.

Following the boys every hot summer afternoon to this famous bathing spot was a big brindle bull-dog, owned by the late William H. Gray, bearing the euphonious name of Bluch. Old Bluch seemed to relish the sport as much as the boys. He would, in turn with the rest, seize the rope in his teeth, make a short run down the slope toward the edge of the bank, swing out over the water and drop off, just as the boys did, with a big splash into the stream below. Swimming back he would await his turn in eagerness, and no one dared to cheat him out of his place in the line; if they attempted it his fierce growls and display of teeth showed his readiness to fight for his rights. Poor Bluch! Like his owner and many of those who used to take the afternoon plunges with him, he is now resting peacefully under the sod.—Forest and Stream.

East. Sea Urchins. Coast Indians of the Pacific shores of British America devour raw sea urchins with great gusto, crushing them in their fists, sucking out the orange colored cluster of eggs, which constitute the only edible part amounting to one or two teaspoonfuls, and then throwing the thorny case aside. The minute eggs taste much like oysters and have been a favorite food of the natives of the bleak coast of Alaska, for ages.

Ro Spoke. An amusing incident occurred in the circuit court at West Point, Miss. A negro boy being tried for stealing two pairs of trousers and having no lawyer, Judge Campbell asked him if he desired to speak. He promptly replied in the affirmative and spoke: "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck" to the judge and jury.

Johnny—No, papa, I didn't break any rule, but the teacher hit me so hard that she broke her'n.—Harvard Lampoon. "This rug doesn't look like an antique," said the purchaser. "It is, though," said the salesman. "Let's take it," said the purchaser's wife. "Well, put it in the nursery for a week and let the children play on it. The better the quality of the manure the less the cost of handling. Deafness Can't be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure it, and that is by the use of natural remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this use gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Ertel & Co., challenge anyone to produce a machine that will even compare with the Victor a material or workmanship, or will equal it in symmetry, simplicity, durability, ease of management, effectiveness of power, fast and neat baling. If you intend purchasing a baling machine (and every farmer ought to have one) look well to your own interest and examine carefully the merits of the New Victor. Remember they make but the best and do not pretend to compete with the cheap, worthless presses now on the market. You can buy a Victor with perfect confidence from a firm established for over twenty-five years, who will ship anywhere to operate on trial against any competitor. The following testimonial is but a sample received from its thousands of friends: F. M. Abbott, Sutton, Va.: The Victor Press I purchased of you this fall is giving universal satisfaction. It is very easy to operate and makes more compact bales than are usually made by other presses, which is a great advantage in carrying, as you can put in from 12 to 14 tons to the car. Can press from 5 to 10 tons per day. The Patentees and Manufacturers, George Ertel & Co., Quincy, Illinois, U. S. A., will mail large 56 page catalogue free, to any address.
