Vol. XXIII, No. 40.

Northville, Mich., Friday, May 20, 1892.

$1.00 per year, in advance.

THE WINNER!

AND now this is the month of May, and next comes June, and as the weather begins warm up, my Salesmen warm up with it. That makes more trouble for me, for they both want bargains and lots of them for their friends and customers and both want this space at the same time, consequently the only way to settle it was to draw cuts, which they did, and "WILL the Dry Goods Man" was the winner, so here he goes Bang 'Te Smash with two of the Biggest Bargains the Ladies of Northville have yet witnessed. First, he will place on sale;

Saturday, May 21,

1300 Yards of

Genuine Indigo Blue Prints

that every Lady knows to be worth 7c and 8c regular price, and we shall close the entire lot

At 5c per Yard

Think of it! Only a Nickle a Yard.

And now listen! He will also place on sale at the same time a big long line,

15 Dozen Fast Black Silk Mitts,

that are beauties and very fine and worth 25c to 35c regular price and they go at 17 c'ts per Pair.

Now think again and then come to this sale early, for you can't afford to miss it.

P. S. If I should happen to hold the cuts in my hand next week look out for "Slim Pete."

W. V. Kerry of the Clare Democrat was a Northville visitor a few days this week.

"I am not in the habit of prescribing patent medicines or proprietary of any kind," said a prominent physician the other day, "but a sample bottle of Hartzell's Hindoo Oil cured a very troublesome case of persistent neuralgia of the stomach for me a short time ago, and therefore can speak from experience as to its value in all similar cases." It is unsurpassed for pain either internal or external. Try it. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston.

Great Ball Game.

It was a cool day last Friday but when the game was called at 2 o'clock there was a large number of players, an umpire and at least 100 spectators on the grounds to take part and witness the sport. The lady's grand stands were both comfortably filled, and standing room around the back stop was at a premium. Umpire Jaques called the game promptly at time and took his place back of the pitcher, and if any thing was successfully accomplished it was the umpiring. In fact there was not enough kicking done to make the game real interesting, for it is anything a base ball crowd admires its an occasional kick. The Merchants have made some changes in their team since a week ago. L. Beal has been signed for the season's pitching and Mark Ambler as catcher. They did some very commendable work, and many was College boy who fanned the air four times and took his seat. R. C. Yerkes, the former pitcher, will hold down tag No. 2 for the balance of the season. Ed. Lapham did some good work at 1st and might have done more if he had been ten or fifteen feet taller, when several wild throws swept whizzing over his head. For the Blue Stockings the same old battery did service and did it well. Orr Webster throws some awful crooked balls and the catching of young DeBree was perfect. The College team has engaged Fred Slater of the Belle Branch league to play 1st and Fred is a whole on that bag. He did work there, and at the bat which would have done credit to Dan Brothers a few years ago. "It's better to be lucky than to hit a five bager" says Hoyt Woodman. He made five big runs and one base hit. Woodman can't hit the ball much, or run very fast, but gee whizz he can make scores though, and that's what counts in a ball game. The following is the score:

MICHIGAN WOOL.

Michigan's interior newspapers should let up on the free advertising they are giving Boston wool buyers. Every season for the past three years the sharp eastern buyer has sent out circulars stating that Michigan wool was simply something awful, and that they would probably not buy it at all this season, etc., etc. The facts of the case are that Michigan farmers take just as much pains with their wool, both in the washing and tying, as do the producers in any other state and it is more than likely that just such purported letters and circulars are being sent into Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other states. It's only a scheme to get the newspapers to do a big lot of free advertising for these sharp, far-sighted, bean-eating, wool buyers and to influence the farmer toward selling his wool at a low price. The Michigan farmer should not be alarmed in the least but what his wool will be in just as great demand this season as any other year and at just as good an average figure as the prices paid in neighboring states, where they have such elegant wool according to Boston buyers. It is only surprising that so many of the state papers have not caught on to the scheme before this, but are lending their columns gratuitously to further it.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.

On Decoration Day, May 30th, the Detroit, Lansing & Northern R. R. will run a special excursion train from Grand Rapids and Ionia to Detroit, at low rates.

W. C. T. U.

The annual meeting of the State W. C. T. U., will convene in Detroit May 24 to 27, in the Plymouth Congregational church, cor. Trumbull ave., and Baker st. This promises to be a very interesting and highly entertaining meeting. Miss Frances Willard, president of the National and World's W. C. T. U. and Mary T. Lathrop, State president will be present and lend to the attractions. The celebrated Silver Lake quartette will also be there and take part in the meeting. The railroads will offer reduced rates to parties of ten or more. The church is reached by Trumbull ave., and Baker street cars.

L. O. T. M.

State Organizer Miss Bina M. West organized a hive of lady Macahees here Friday night with twenty five charter members. The by-laws governing this auxiliary are the same as in the L. O. T. M.'s and they also have the insurance clause. The auxiliary is separate from the parent order inasmuch as it is governed entirely by the ladies. They control their own insurance business and in this respect it has nothing whatever to do with the L. O. T. M. The following are the officers of the Northville hive:

B. C.—Mrs. A. E. McCollough.
Com.—Mrs. Wm. Neilson.
L. Com.—Mrs. A. M. Ritter.
M. of A.—Miss Ella Rash.
Ass't M. of A.—Mrs. Levi Landy.
Chap.—Mrs. Chas. Bristol.
R. K.—Mrs. Wm. Kingsteele.

Sexton.—Mrs. Dr. Patterson.
Pickett.—Mrs. Madison.

Trout Fishing!

SEASON OPENED SATURDAY.
The new Extension of the Chicago & West Michigan R. R. from Traverse City to Elk Rapids, is twenty miles long and penetrates a region in which are numerous trout streams that have heretofore been too remote. The line passes through Mitchell, Acme, Williamsburg, and Angels, at or near to any of which there are good streams that have never been fished to any extent. If you would rather go farther off, you will find a steamboat running regularly from Elk Rapids through Elk Lake, around Lake Torch River, past the mouth of Rapid River and up the entire length of Torch Lake. Into all these waters directly from the trout streams that are now for the first time made convenient.

Geo. DeHaven,
General Passenger Agent.

"A YARD OF PANSIES."

Here's a chance for everybody to get, free of cost, an exquisite Oil Picture 35 inches long, a companion to "A Yard of Roses," which all have seen and admired. This exquisite picture, "A Yard of Pansies," was painted by the same noted artist who did the "Roses." It is the same size, and is pronounced by art critics to be far superior to the "Roses." The reproduction is equal in every respect to the original, which cost $300, and is being given free with every copy of the June number of Demorest's Family Magazine. This June number is a grand souvenir number in celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the birthday of the publisher, and is worth many times the cost, which is only 20 cents, as every purchaser will get, practically free, an exquisite picture; and to those who already have "A Yard of Roses" "A Yard of Pansies," will be doubly valuable, especially as accompanying it are full directions for framing either the "Pansies" or "Roses" at home, at a cost of a few cents. You can get the June number of Demorest's Family Magazine, containing "A Yard of Pansies," of any of our local Newsdealers; or send 20 cents to the publisher, W. JENKINS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th St., New York.

OUR COUNTRY.

The power that broke their prison bar
And set the dusky millions free,
And welded in the flame of war
The Union fast to Liberty.

Shall it not deal with other ills,
Redress the red man's grievance, break
The Crook's cup which shame and kills,
And labor full requital make?

Alone to such as fitly bear
The civic honors bid them fall,
And call thy daughters forth to share
The rights and duties pledged to all?

With peace that comes of purity
And strength to simple justice due,
So runs our loyal dream of thee;
God of our fathers, make it true!

—John G. Whittier.

PAT'S LOYALTY.

He lived on Rat row. He had been born there, and moreover he expected to die there. He hoped to do so at any rate, for to him there was no place on earth that could vie with that alley in all that makes life worth the living.

Such glorious times as he had had there! What a wonderfully large amount of fun had been crowded into the nineteen years of his existence!

He had been in various parts of the city, but he always returned to Rat row with a feeling of gratitude in his heart that there was his home. No place else were the families so closely huddled together. No place else did the men get so gloriously drunk and beat their wives so brutally. No place else did the women swear so loud and so much and fight so fiercely, and in no other place did the children, from the mere toddlers of 2 years to the lad and lass of 15, give utterance to such vile language as could be heard at any time in Rat row.

Oh, yes, it was a delightful place to live in.

He had breathed the atmosphere of the narrow thoroughfare for so long that the elements of which it was composed had been infused into his very life blood and had become a part of himself. He couldn't imagine what any other life could be like, and he didn't want to find out. Give him Rat row forever.

Often in the evening he and two or three of his boon companions would stroll up South Clark street, trying to find some amusement there, but it was so dull in comparison with the scenes to which they had been accustomed that they always went home with increased affection for their own noisy, crowded alley.

But one night he went out alone, and as he stood on a corner looking vacantly before him his attention was attracted by the sound of approaching music, and soon the Salvation army went marching by.

Mechanically he followed them, and when they entered the barracks he hesitated a moment then made his way into the crowded room and went forward, not stopping until the front seat was reached.

It was the first time that he had ever been in any place of worship in his life, and as he looked at his dirty hands, bare feet, and torn, dirty clothes a sense of shame, hitherto foreign to his nature brought a flush to his face and for a few moments he heartily wished himself away.

But when they commenced to sing, joyfully

"Are you washed? Are you washed? Are you washed in the blood of the lamb? Though your sins are crimson, they may be like snow."

All personality was forgotten and he leaned forward to catch every word that was uttered by the happy choir.

He did not know what organization it was. He had never heard of the Salvation army. More than that he did not care what it was. He only knew that the music which to him was a sense of sweet happiness and exultation, as though it had been harmony waited to him from the spheres. Really it was almost as good as anything he had ever heard at Rat row. And then, so great did his excitement become that he wanted to sing, too.

So when the pretty brown-eyed girl in front of him shouted forth triumphantly, "Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" he clapping his hands and keeping time with his bare feet repeated the words with a vim that brought an amused smile to the lips of those who sat near him.

The brown-eyed girl heard him and smiled, too, but not derisively. Leaving her place in the ranks she went up to him, and taking the grimy hand in hers she said:

"I'm glad that you are enjoying our meeting. Don't you want to join the army?"

"What army?"

"Our army."

"This ain't no army, is it?"

"Why, yes. Didn't you know? We are the Salvation army. Didn't you read it on the uniform?"

"No," he replied, doggedly, blushing with the wave of shame that again surged over him as his thoughts were brought back to their ordinary level.

"I can't read."

"Can't you?" she exclaimed, looking at him wonderingly. "How did you happen to come to the barracks?"

"I saw yer on the streets, an' I folloed. Gee-whiz, but it's nice! I never seen anything like it before."

"Where do you live?" she asked, pityingly.

"On Rat row."

"Rat row! Where's that?"

"Why, don't yer know?" he said, surprised, that anyone should be ignorant as to the whereabouts of that famous locality.

"No, I am sorry to say that I never heard of it."

"Well, that beats—"

He stopped, seeming to perceive, instinctively, that for the first time in his life he was talking to one to whom he dared not utter the word with which he had been about to finish the sentence, and in a continued in a respectful manner.

"It's down by the river, miss, a rum-good place 'tis, too."

"Do your people live there?"

"Naw. Ain't got no peo. I shift 'round with the other fives."

"And you like our meet' to-night, you will come again?"

"You bet I will. I never miss anything jest like it down in Frow. It makes a feller feel like he aint ter get up and fly."

In his dreams that night he shouted "hallelujah," and talked to a down-eyed girl, and the next day thords which he had heard the pious evening recurred to him fully, and though he did not exact comprehend their meaning, they seemed to make Rat row present an appearance different from that which had formerly been accustomed.

He went to the meeting, again as a had promised, and every other nig for a week, and then he joined the my.

Never did any volunteer feel prouder when first donig his uniform than did Pat Terrow, when, arrayed in his army co's, he marched through the streets in his comrades to the tune of fough your sins are crimson, they be like snow if you'll wash in the blood of the Lamb."

He didn't know anything out religion. He didn't know, in fact, what the army was for, but he knew that the sound of the drum and of marching feet made his blood leaping in his eyes, and that was sufficient.

There's only one thing I w now to make me the happiest feller on earth," he told the brown-eyed girl as he looked proudly at his uniform, "an' that is ter carry a banner, so yer s'pose it could be fixed up mehows so's I could?" She told him s would see about it and so it was, when a month later they moved to the new barracks the raw recruits elevated to the dignity of standard-bearer in the faithful army.

In the meantime trouble, a been brewing in Rat row. Pat, he had been a leader of the young lugs in the alley, who tried for sometime in a reluctant way, he guarding his in-ming and outgoings get a clue as to where his friends were spent. But one night he was spotted by two boys, and the next day conscription signed through, the alley when their report was gen. He had "got religion," the boys said, and had joined some kind of band uptown. They had seen him wringing all dressed up in red, yellow, and blue, and more than that, he carried a flag and sang, and east sheep's cry at a pretty girl, who blushed whenever he chanced to look that way.

Then there was a mass-meeting of the young bloods, and that being before Pat started away they told him what their intentions were. He must leave that crowd up town and return to Rat row at once or they would lick him within an inch of his life. They didn't intend to have one of their gang forsake them just because he could push into another get had could put on a little more style than they could. It was something that had never been done before and wouldn't do now.

"I won't come back," Pat answered defiantly. "Either Rat row ain't like it used ter be or I ain't, I s'posed ter be. Anyhow, I'm 'kin' that there's lots o' places bein' 'n it is an' I'm going to quit it. I play soon for good. An' as far as that feller girl, I'm goin' to marry 'er after 'ile of she's willin'."

"It's all right," he responded. "We'll give yer jest f' hours ter come ter us an' say yer play ever left us. Ef yer don't do well—yer knows what yer'll git."

It was with a feeling of relief that Pat left the barracks that night and started toward Rat row. He was not a coward, but he knew, all well that the promised "licking" as no idle threat, and he was also fully well aware what such a punishment meant for he himself, he helped to administer it to many an offender against the code of law that prevailed in Rat row.

Thinking to impress the forcibly upon the minds of his old-time comrades the fact that he intended to remain true to the army, he wore his uniform home that night, and carried the banner, instead of leaving them at the barracks as he had been wont to do, for he had known what the result would be when once they learned of the course he had chosen.

At the corner, where he first turned into the alley, they met him, a score or more of the gang of which he had been captain so long.

"Well, what yer goin' ter do?" they shouted, gathering around him.

"We said we'd give yer four hours. Time's more'n up, but ef yer willin' ter ax our pardon fer leavin' us, we'll let yer off yit." They paused, waiting for an answer, but he only drew his breath faster and held the banner more closely to him.

"Hand over that rag, yer carryin'," they commanded, as they crowded nearer. "Haul off dem feller duds."

There was another pause. He hugged the beloved banner more closely to his breast, and then a dozen rough hands seized him, a chorus of voices shouted "Give it to 'im!" and the fun commenced. When a splendid pounding they gave him, a little fairly bursting with impatience, he met out punishment to the delinquent captain and Rat row had never witnessed such a brilliant affair.

"That's enough, boys," cried one of them at last. "We don't want ter hurt 'im too bad. That'll teach 'im how ter fool with us. I guess yer'll never go back on us agin, will yer, Pat?"

They drew back and looked at him as he lay there in the dim light. The body was bruised and bleeding, the uniform was tattered and soiled, and the banner portions of which were still held firmly in the clinched hands was rent into shreds. Yes, it was enough, quite enough.

The next morning the daily papers contained a short account of the affair under the headlines:

"The Salvation Army Again—One of Its Members Gets Drunk and Is Killed in a Mad Carousal With His Former Associates."

But the brown-eyed girl had faith in him, and knew that a soldier on the field of battle never died more bravely in defense of his colors than did the standard-bearer from Rat row.

THE USE OF A ROLLER.

The Most Valuable Machine Employed in Road Making.

Every day it is becoming more firmly established that a good road-roller is the most valuable piece of machinery employed in the road-maker's art, and indeed, without it, neither can the foundation or subsoil of the roadway be made uniformly hard and reliable, nor the surface layer be given that uniform compactness and solidity which give excellence to the road and insure a perpetual economy in the cost of maintenance and repairs. To one who has seen a heavy road-roller used in compacting the soil of a new roadway, writes Isaac B. Potter in the Century, these facts will be very evident. If a length of one thousand yards in an ordinary earth road be cut to an exact and uniform grade, one foot below the original surface of the road, it will be found in most cases that the new surface thus exposed will present an appearance, which, to the ordinary observer, is of a uniform material and even hardness from end to end, but the passage of a roller weighing from ten to fifteen tons over this new surface will soon disclose the defects and soft spots located at irregular intervals throughout the length of the work, and as the process of rolling continues, the uniformity of the grade will disappear, and what at first appeared to be a tolerably satisfactory surface will develop into a succession of humps and undulations. In the using of the roller in actual work these depressions and soft spots are carefully filled and brought to the line of the required grade, while the successive passing of the heavy roller over the filling gives to the entire road that form and consistency which is so essential to every good highway.

Personals.

Those Who Came Yesterday, Here Today, and Gone Tomorrow, as it Were.

Mrs. A. Vradenburg is recovering from a two weeks sickness.

Milo Reed has gone to his wife's home.

Dever and his wife are to soon leave for that place.

Mrs. C. J. Dowdell of Algonac is visiting at her sister's, Mrs. Rev. F.
Bradley.

A. W. Reed has leased Milo Reed's house and expects to move therein shortly.

Miss Millie Murdoch is back in the Record office again after a two weeks vacation.

Mrs. E. A. Neal has been spending a few days with her son, F. S. Neal, and family.

City to serve as U. S. court reporter for a week or so.

Miss Bell, stenographer at the Keeley Institute for some time past, has returned to Detroit.

Mrs. Andrew Longwell of Penn Yan, N. Y. was a guest at F. R. Neal's a few days last week.

S. S. Eddy is taking a few months vacation for his health at various places north of here.

Clarence Clark has been spending a week with his parents. He returned to the U. of M. Monday.

Miss Ella Adams of the Lyron, who so ably assisted in this office for a couple weeks past, has returned home again.

Spencer L. Lester of the Detroit Christian Herald, was in town Monday and made the Record office a pleasant call.

Charles Reed has rented that part of the house recently occupied by Lou Van and will shortly move his family here from Richmond.

M. A. Root of Bay City spent a few days here with his brother, A. W. last week. Mr. Root conducted until he disposed of his business a few years ago the pioneer meat house of that city. He has now retired to enjoy life with competence meritoriously gained by hard earned labor.

H. P. Adams returned from the meeting of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, at Jackson, Wednesday night. H. P. came within an ace of being elected Grand Warden.
Mr. Adams is one of the best drilled Knights, and one of the best posted Masons in the state and we shall yet see him a Grand Officer and he deserves it too.

C. M. Joslin may be handling a thin line of goods but he himself nor his sales are very thin. C. M. travels for the largest wall paper house in the west, located at Chicago, and his books show the largest sales of any drummer travelling for their firm. Mr. Joslin is now home for a vacation. He has signed with the same firm for another year at an increase of salary.

F. N. Clark, gen'l sup't of U. S. fish hatcheries for Michigan, leaves for Washington Saturday to further the plans etc. for the new improvements to be made at the Northville station.
Mr. Clark will also attend the annual meeting of the National Fish Culture society at New York before his return.
Mr. Clark is down for a paper on fish culture which he reads at this meet.

George Coldron is just home from the west where he has been spending the last year and a half among relatives and friends. Mr. Coldron says that all the western states which he passed through are suffering by the wet weather considerably more than we are here.
He says the ground along the route was to a great extent covered with water and apparently had as yet seen little or no cultivation.

E. S. Woodman, of Northville, was in attendance on the circuit court at Pontiac, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, as attorney in the case of Fry vs. Stafford. Mr. Woodman is one of the old pioneers of Oakland county, and always an active participant in the proceedings of the pioneer association. He is now a power in the prohibition cause at Northville. Though one of the oldest members of the bar, with that wonderful energy that has enabled him to do so much, he still continues to be a power in the community.

What makes a Beautiful Woman.

ELKHART, IND., July 1st, 1891.

My daughter has been suffering with Female trouble for over six years and I have paid over $750 in vain, trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised her to secure a bottle of Dr. Williams' Great German Female Urinary, and she has been completely cured by it. We gave it a fair trial and the results were wonderful.
We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted. BENJAMIN GAN-GHER. For sale by Geo. C. Hueston.

Heart disease is usually supposed to be incurable, but when properly treated a large proportion of cases can be cured.
Thus Mrs. Elmina Hatch, of Elkhart, Ind., and Mrs. Mary L. Baker, of Ovid, Mich., were cured after suffering 20 years. S. C. Linburger, druggist at San Jose, Ill., says that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which cured the former, "worked wonders for his wife."
Levi Logan, of Buchanan, Mich., who had heart disease for 30 years, says two bottles made him "feel like a new man." Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold and guaranteed by Geo. C. Hues-

TALK OF LYNCHING.

A Negro Assaults Xpian Women and May Pay Dearly.

YPSILANTI, Mich., May 17.—Mrs. Hiram King, the wife of a respected citizen employed by O. E. Thompson & Sons, while on her way home was grabbed, choked and dragged into a ravine where her clothing was torn from her body. Her screams brought assistance, and her assailant made his escape without accomplishing his intention, her face and parts of her body being badly bruised. About 5 o'clock yesterday a colored man named Jacob Griffin came out of the woods west of the city, having no clothes on excepting a shirt and went into the house of a farmer named Ellisworth; at sight of him he went back into the woods again. From a description given by Mrs. King he is thought to be her assailant. The police think him the person who committed the three cases last summer. He is about half-witted. Excitement runs high and lynching is mentioned.

Arrested for Forgery.

BAY CITY, Mich., May 17.—W. N. Sampson, a fine appearing young man, pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery when arraigned before the police court.

Sampson is a traveling agent for Pitts & Woods, of Detroit, state representatives for a Chicago engraving and publishing house. The crime consists in forging the signatures of several citizens to orders for work to be done by the Chicago firm. The arrest was made on complaint of Sanford M. Green, ex-circuit judge of Bay county. Sampson was married last August to a daughter of Dr. Tracer, of Detroit.

Fight With Strikers.

ESCANABA, Mich., May 17.—Yesterday 120 union men from this town went to North Escanaba and attacked the non-union men who were turning a vessel at that place, with firearms. A lively skirmish ensued and bullets from both sides flew thick and fast for a few minutes. Clark Williams, a non-unionist, was shot in the leg and back and may die. Charles Hamilton was also hit by a bullet, but the wound will probably not prove fatal. After these men were shot the mob of union men fled. No arrests have been made.

Mistook Him for a Burglar.

SAGINAW, Mich., May 17.—Earnest Seel, a young man of good family, was shot by City Controller Schwartz who mistook him for a burglar. Seel was intoxicated and it is not believed that he was aware of what he was doing. Mr. Schwartz was aroused from his sleep by Seel attempting to raise his bedroom window and while handling his revolver it accidentally discharged, the ball striking Seel in the thigh inflicting a flesh wound. If no complications set in Seel will recover.

An Old Man Killed.

VASSAR, Mich., May 17.—Oliver Edwards, an old gentleman about 67 years of age, while crossing Cass river on the Michigan Central bridge yesterday was struck by the southbound passenger train and hurled from the bridge into the river. His body was recovered about noon and was found to be horribly mangled from the force with which the train struck him. The deceased came here but a short time from Romeo, Mich.

Careless Health Officers.

CALUMET, Mich., May 17.—Jessie, the 8-year-old daughter of Ed Burgess, a professor of the city schools, died Sunday of scarlet fever. Yesterday the health officers were fumigating the apartments occupied by the deceased child when the house caught fire and was totally destroyed. The building was occupied jointly by two families, both losing their entire effects.

A Serious Joke.

LANSING, Mich., May 17.—Jonathan Farrier, of King's Mills, this county, is the victim of a practical joke and he would now like to see the joker. While suffering from some ailment he was advised to chew poisoned snuff which he did, and his mouth and hands are now in a terrible condition and he may be laid up for some time even if nothing more serious results.

His Body Sent Home for Burial.

BAY CITY, Mich., May 17.—A dispatch was received announcing that the remains of Geo. A. Wellman, who was recently murdered in Wyoming, will reach Chicago today. Relatives of the deceased went to Chicago where they met and took charge of the body. The funeral will be held here Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity.

Strikers Successful.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 17.—The brewers here have struck for higher wages and won. They quit work Monday morning and repairing to a hall, sent a committee to negotiate with the bosses. Last night their terms were consented to and they go to work today with wages advanced $1 a week.

Drowned at Cheboygan.

CHEYBOYGAN, Mich., May 17.—While the tugboat Cayler was towing a loaded lighter down the river a man named Woods fell from the boat into the river and before help reached him he was drowned. The body has not yet been recovered. He was unmarried and had no relations here.

Knights Templar Conclave.

JACKSON, Mich., May 17.—The thirty-sixth annual convocation of the Grand Commandery Knights Templar meets here today. The entertainment of the guests is the program for today, the work of the session being done Wednesday.

State Congregationists Meet.

JACKSON, Mich., May 17.—The 51st annual meeting of the general association of the Congregationist church and ministers of Michigan is to be held in this city, beginning today and continuing for three days.

TRAVELS UNDER WATER.

SUCCESSFUL TRIP OF DETROIT'S SUBMARINE BOAT.

Under Water for Over Two Hours Without Inconveniencing the Passengers in the Least.

A severe test was made with Geo. C. Baker's new submarine boat in the Detroit river. The test was impromptu and those who happened in the neighborhood witnessed the novel exhibition. Mr. Baker, the inventor of the boat, and Electrician Goddard went inside the craft and started for the middle of the river and spent two hours in practical tests, going down and up, forward and back and around. Neither of the gentlemen on board had a knowledge of the river and were without a compass thus making it necessary to come to the surface frequently to obtain their bearings. The steamer Albany and tug Winslow stopped while passing and witnessed the exhibition, the crews cheering enthusiastically at each reappearance of the boat.

After two hours the boat was returned to its boathouse and on opening of the hatch the inside air was found to be perfectly pure and fresh and the passengers felt not the slightest inconvenience. Mr. Baker was well satisfied with the experiment and will give a public exhibition with his novel craft in a short time.

Like Notes.

A new 14-inch Worthington pump was tested on the dock at the foot of Griswold street, Detroit. The work was performed by the Quin Brothers and the results were entirely satisfactory. This pump has one feature which is entirely new, and which it is thought will prove to be of great value. It is having the inlet into the pump through an elbow on the side of the same principle as a rotary. The capacity of the new pump is 2,400 gallons per minute.

FALSE CHRIST IN TROUBLE.

Teed, the leader of the Koshonites to be Brought to Time.

Dr. Teed, the leader of the so-called Koshon community which has established "heavens" in the Chicago suburbs of Washington, Heights and Normal Park, is made defendant in a $100,000 damage suit brought in the circuit court by Sidney E. Miller, manager of the National Publishing company. Mr. Miller's claim, his attorney says, has been prematurely turned gray through trouble brought about by Teed. The plaintiff's wife, it appears, somehow fell under the influence of the Koshonite teachings, and became one of Teed's followers, leaving her kind husband and a beautiful home. It is said a number of similar suits are about to be brought against Teed, and at least one action of a criminal nature. An indignation meeting of citizens of Normal Park was held last night to consider Teed's invasion of their neighborhood.

Crazed by Coffee Drinking.

A case where a man has become insane through excessive indulgence in coffee was discovered at Chicago when Peter McKeever, a restaurant keeper, was taken to the detention hospital by his wife for examination. While the doctors were proceeding with their investigation McKeever became violent, and before he could be controlled he had torn his clothes almost entirely from his body. Mr. McKeever says: "For the past two or three years my husband has taken scarcely any solid food, but has subsisted almost entirely upon coffee. He could not leave it alone." Dr. Wade said there seems to be no other reason for his insanity than the one assigned by his wife.

Fifteen-Year-Old Suicide.

Della Winters, a 15-year-old daughter of Freeman Winters, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart with a revolver. Despondency, caused by sickness, is thought to have been the cause. A note was found written by her to her mother in which she prays for forgiveness, desires to be buried in the Catholic church, and that belongings should be distributed. She had obtained a book on physiology and carefully located her heart. The shots alarmed her family, who rushed into the room. After exclaiming: "Oh, Emma, I could not help it!" she expired.

Minister Asks Big Damages.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Ellis has begun suit against Hugh Frazer and other members of the San Francisco, Cal., presbytery to recover $100,000 in damages. Dr. Ellis was formerly pastor of the Central Presbyterian Tabernacle in this city, and in March, 1921, was arraigned by the presbytery on charges of misappropriation of funds, entrusted to him for the benefit of the church, and for deception and falsehood. The case resulted in Dr. Ellis losing his pulpit, and he now brings suit for damages on the grounds of conspiracy and libel.

Tunnel Cave In.

A mining disaster occurred at Cherokee, 12 miles from Oroville, Cal. Three young men named Jack Powers, Jr., J. C. Hall and L. P. Hall were mining in the old tunnel when it caved in and killed all three. Hall brothers came from Montana recently while Powers was born in Cherokee. The latter was married but the other two were single.

A Triple Sunday Drowning.

A drowning accident occurred at Ste. Canegonde, Que. Three young men named St. Cyr, the sons of a well-known hotelkeeper of the place, went out boating and their boat capsized, precipitating them into the river. Before assistance could be given them they were drowned.

The three Saginaw military companies will combine and organize a battalion.

The big tract of pine land just purchased by J. T. Hurst, of Wyandotte, from Gratwick, Smith & Fryer, of Saginaw, will result in 30,000,000 feet of logs being sent by rail to the mills of the latter city for manufacture this season.

As a result of a fire at Red Jacket Michael Johnson is minus a tenement house and a three-story brick block. The total loss is $20,000, with an insurance of $12,000. Jim Korby, general merchant, and L. Mason, photographer, are heavy losers.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

SENATE.—Mr. Manderson, who occupied the chair on the 11th, presented a resolution passed by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church assembled in Omaha, Neb., (representing 2,500,000 members and 10,000,000 adherents), heartily approving the World's Fair appropriation bill, "provided expressly that it be conditioned on closing the exposition on Sunday." Bill appropriating $10,000 and authorizing a survey of a ship canal to connect Lake Erie and the Ohio river from Conneaut Harbor on Lake Erie to Pittsburgh, passed. A message from the President transmitting the report of the commissioner of labor was received. Executive session. Adjourned. HOUSE.—In considering the sundry civil bill in committee of the whole two surprises were sprung on the members. The appropriation of $720,000 for commencing the erection of a new mint at Philadelphia was stricken out. Mr. Bland sought to force the silver question by offering an amendment requiring the coinage and issue of the silver "bullet" in the treasury payment of the appropriations. The amendment was ruled out, but Mr. Bland announced that he would renew the amendment later on. The conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was agreed to. The silver lead ore bill and the bill to encourage silk culture were referred to the committee of the whole.

SENATE.—Among the bills introduced and referred on the 12th were the following: Authorizing the President to proclaim a general holiday on October 12, 1892, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America. To encourage American shipbuilding, extending the same privileges to the steamship China as to the City of New York and the City of Paris. The China plies between San Francisco and China and at present carries the British flag. Requesting the President to open negotiations with Spain for the purpose of inducing that government to consent to the establishment of a free and independent government on the island of Cuba. The message of the President on the subject of the international conference of the naval architects, to be held in London, England, on the 12th of June, 1922, was agreed to. Executive session. Adjourned. HOUSE.—A resolution was adopted ordering an investigation of the Pinkerton detective agency, which furnishes bands of armed men for corporations in time of labor troubles; these men having on several occasions shot down innocent men, women and children—as in Albany, N. Y., during the New York Central strike. The House then went into committee of the whole on the sundry civil bill. Mr. Burrows objected to the proviso admitting articles for the use of the lighthouse establishment free of duty and the objection was sustained. The appropriation for the life saving service was increased $31,000, and pending further action the committee arose.

SENATE.—On the 13th the river and harbor bill was reported back from the committee on commerce with amendments. The discussion of the naval appropriation bill was resumed. The part of the bill authorizing the construction of more war vessels was taken as an opportunity by Mr. Gorman to decry the rapidly growing expenditures of the government. Several other members also spoke on the subject. HOUSE.—The bill for the relief of the heirs of Hiram Sibly, the inventor of the Sibly test, was the cause of a day wasted; the bill directed the court to render judgment for any amount not exceeding $37,500, but the Republican members desired that the court of claims be instructed to render its decision to Congress. The Democrats would not agree to this amendment and the entire day was spent in filibustering.

SENATE.—On account of the funeral services of the late Senator John S. Barbour, of Virginia, no business was transacted on the 16th except such as was incidental to the funeral. These services were conducted by Bishop Keane and were of a striking and imposing character, being conducted in accordance with the rites of the Roman Catholic church, with bishop, priests and acolytes in attendance attired in the gorgeous vestments of the church and with every accompaniment of crucifixes, candles and incense. The distinguished concourse present included, besides the Senate and House of Representatives, the members of the Cabinet (with the exception of Postmaster General Vannaman), the justice of the supreme court, the general of the army and senior admiral of the navy and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, and other members of the diplomatic corps, but with the Chinese minister noticeably absent. All the galleries were densely crowded, except the diplomatic gallery, which was unoccupied. The families of the Vice-President and of many other high officers of the government were in the reserved seats. HOUSE.—After attending the funeral of the late Senator Barbour, the members returned to the House and proceeded with the consideration of the sundry civil bill, disposed of 10 pages of it and adjourned.

Michigan Man's Crime.

Yesterday D. A. Schofield, of Ewing, Mich., shot and instantly killed his wife at Duluth, Minn., and then shot himself in the breast and cannot live. They had been married several years. Several months ago Mrs. Schofield came to Duluth, intending to desert her husband, who was a drunkard. He followed her last week and at first made threats of murder and then tried to make peace. She refused to live with him, and in the ensuing quarrel he shot her in the breast, killing her almost instantly, and then shot himself.

Charles H. McGurra, of Kalamazoo, official reporter of the ninth judicial district of Michigan at St. Paul, Minn., broke the world's fast type-writing record, writing 200 words in one minute.

Controller Jacob Schwartz, of Saginaw, shot a young man named Slick. Slick with two companions, all under the influence of liquor, were prowling around Schwartz's residence when the latter awoke and, mistaking them for burglars, fired. He shot Slick through the leg. The wound is not considered serious.

During a pouring rain storm at Allegan the other day a team was seen dashing up the street without a driver. All business was suspended and volunteers galloped rushed out into the rain to stop them. When they were at last stopped the driver crawled from under a tarpaulin and the air smelled sulphurous for some time.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

MANY ITEMS OF MORE OR LESS IMPORTANT NEWS.

The Garza Revolution Believed to Have Been Put Down by the Mexican Government.

LAREDO, Tex., May 17.—It is believed along the border that the recent fight near Alvar, Mex., between the government troops and Garza's men, in which 10 of the latter were killed, has completely wiped out the so-called revolutionary movement. It is generally conceded here that Catarina Garza is either in England or Canada and that he has given up all hope of accomplishing the overthrow of President Diaz. He is now under indictment by the United States court at San Antonio on the charge of violating the United States neutrality laws. Three charges of a similar nature hang over him at Brownsville. The work of arresting the so-called revolutionists who have sought refuge on the Texas side continues. The jails of all the border counties are filled to overflowing, while at San Antonio there are no less than 40 of the offenders confined. Indictments have been found also against 60 others, who have not been arrested.

Egan's Mysterious Disappearance.

CHICAGO, May 17.—S. W. Egan, sent here from Fairport, Ohio, by the Lake Carriers' association to open a shipping office, has disappeared. He has not been seen for a week and it is feared he has been made away with. His clothing and effects are still in his room untouched. He had $600 with him when last seen. No trace of Egan can be gained by police or newspapers. Various theories are afloat, the plausible one of which is that Egan became frightened at the prospect of a big fight with the Seamen's union and left town. Egan is about 55 years old; he sailed a number of years and for the past few seasons was delegate for the vessel owners' association. He has one son living at Cleveland, who believes his father was scared out but will turn up all right. Shipping Master Rumsey was satisfied that Egan is alive.

An Important Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—A judgment of great interest in its construction of what, under the interstate commerce act constitutes an unlawful discrimination, was rendered by the United States supreme court yesterday in the case commonly known as the Baltimore & Ohio railway theatrical rate case, involving the rights of the railway company to sell at a reduced rate tickets to parties of 10 or more persons. The court in an opinion by Justice Brown sustained the decision of Judge Jackson refusing to issue an injunction to restrain the railroad company from continuing the sale of party rate tickets. The general ground of opinion is that it is not an unjust discrimination for a railroad company to sell tickets at wholesale cheaper than at retail.

An Aged Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mrs. Mary Larsen, 31 years of age, was found dead in her bedroom at her home at Williamsburg yesterday. An explanatory scrawl on a piece of paper and some rat poison made the circumstances surrounding her death of an apparently clear nature. Mrs. Larsen is the miser who in March last was dragged, bound and bobbed of $5,000, which she carried sewed up in her corsets. The supposition is that the loss of money so preyed on her mind that she took her life in consequence. At the same time she was by no means indigent. The police found nearly $12,000 in securities and cash in her rooms.

Our Army Superior to Germany's.

Lieutenant Powhatan H. Clark of the Tenth United States cavalry, who went abroad a year ago under leave of absence with permission to serve in the German army, has just arrived in New York city. He served from May 1, 1921, until the present month in the Eleventh Hussars, a Westphalian regiment of cavalry stationed in Dusseldorf. "To sum it all up," he said, "I come back much more satisfied with our services and with our discipline than when I went away. Our men are better fed and better treated than those in the German army. I found much to admire over there. In some respects their soldiery excels, but in others it does not equal our own."

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Richardson silk company, of Belding, employing between 300 and 400 hands, 250 of whom are girls, had an annual output of $550,000 last year and will increase it by $200,000 this year.

The reports that Daniel Coughlin is critically ill are stated by the prison officials at Joliet, Ill., to be untrue. They state that he is troubled with tape worm, and the doctor is treating him for its removal.

At Memphis, Tenn., Thomas F. Madden made the phenomenal dive of 140 feet from the great bridge into the Mississippi river, thus eclipsing Steve Brodie's leap from Brooklyn bridge.

Madden jumped from the iron girders that rise on either side of the roadway. He did not drop as professionals do, but leaped feet down.

Frank J. Crane, a salesman in a Cincinnati dry goods store, shot and fatally injured Miss Hattie Hagedorn, a saleswoman in the same store, Monday and then shot himself. He died soon after. Miss Hagedorn's wound is pronounced fatal.

Foon Chuck, a Chinaman out a naturalized citizen of Mexico, has been arrested at San Antonio, Tex. He entered the United States in violation of the exclusion act. Chuck is known throughout Northern Mexico and is worth $100,000. He is a contractor and owns an extensive ranch in Mexico.

FAIR PROSPECTS IN MICHIGAN.

Excessive Rain and Lack of Warmth Keep Crops Backward, However.

LANSING, Mich., May 17.—The crop bulletin of the Michigan weather service shows that excessive rains, have done some damage to wheat on low ground, but oats and barley have been more extensively injured. Corn planting is far behind. In the central counties all classes of farm work have been retarded. In most of the counties of this section wheat, grain, and pastures are doing well and promise a heavy crop. A week or two of warm weather would put crops of all kinds in good condition.

Fruit prospects are excellent and the growers are sanguine of a full crop.

Big Time at Ann Arbor.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 17.—Today all is hustle and hurry the occasion being the national convention of the American Republican college league. The program for the day comprises a big open air meeting to be addressed by Gen. Alger and Maj. McKinley; a huge torchlight procession and a banquet which nearly 1,000 people will be seated. Among the speakers at the banquet will be Gen. Alger, Maj. McKinley, Judge John M. Thurston, J. Sloan Fassett, William E. Mason, of Illinois, A. H. Humphrey and John M. Langston, of Virginia.

Nicaragua Canal Delegates.

LANSING, Mich., May 17.—Governor Winans today appointed ex-Congressman W. C. Maybury, Jesse H. Farwell, R. G. Butler and James W. Miller of Detroit; Honorable Edwin F. Uhl, Grand Rapids, and Wellington R. Burt, of Saginaw, delegates to the St. Louis convention, June 20, for a discussion of the improvement of the Nicaragua canal.

A Rat's Revenge.

A Mrs. McIntosh, living in Watson, Allegan county, caught a large-sized rat, and, not being satisfied with dispatching the rodent in the ordinary manner, saturated him with kerosene and then touched a match to him. Result: The rat, bound to have revenge, started in a bee-line for the barn, about 10 rods distant, and ran under it. Barn contents were burned and a fine house narrowly escaped. Loss, $600.

The steam barge Peace and barge Planet ran hard aground at the head of Stag Island. Tugs have been sent to them.

JENNIE'S SECRET.

Jennie has a secret. She is loth to tell. Even to the mother. Whom she loves so well. 'Tis not shame that kindles. Roses on her cheek; 'Tis of joy the deepest. Jennie dare not speak.

Jennie's step is lighter. Jennie's songs more sweet; And the good-night kisses—She will not reject. By these many tokens She cannot repress, Jennie's precious secret. Mother'll surely guess.

Mother eyes are watchful. As these signs appear; Mother love is faithful. 'Tis one so dear. All these sweet dissemblings, All this pretty show, Seems a pretty story. Written long ago.

'Twixt her heart and Jennie's Love has brought eclipse. Mother feels, however Silent are her lips. Tell-tale blushes flitting Over brow and cheek. Whisper Jennie's secret. Though she does not speak. Josephine Pollard in N. Y. Ledger.

HIS REPENTANCE.

The chateau of Ploruef was the terror of the Breton people. The country folk made the sign of the cross as they passed by, and murmured, "There is the accursed one's castle."

About the walls that surrounded the grounds was a brier hedge, which no one dared to cross. The servants passed each other by like shadows, afraid to speak above a whisper. No one dared to address the master. Only the young Count Robert found favor in the eyes of the lord of the manor, the old Duke de Kerberzoff, his uncle.

At the time when this story begins, Robert was seated at the old man's feet. He was seated in the great ducal chair, his chair; his face was livid, his eyes gleaming, and his countenance distorted with fear. He was listening intently, one would have said that he was the ghost of terror.

Beside him on a porphyry column burned a small golden lamp set with precious stones. Behind it stood a tall negro, who, as each minute passed, let fall a single drop of oil upon the flame. Close to the old man's withered hand lay an ax, and the negro would have atoned with his life for a single forgetfulness of duty.

The duke was even paler than usual; his long white hair was matted upon his temples, and from his terror-stricken eyes great tears rolled down into his silver beard.

"My dear lord, is your suffering worse?" asked Robert gently.

The duke shuddered; he was still listening intently.

Then the old duke rose up like a specter.

"Listen, Robert!" he said. "Listen!" The old man had not spoken for twenty years. His sepulchral voice echoed through the great hall, and the ancient armor hanging on the walls gave forth a metallic sound. The young count was petrified with fright.

"Twenty years ago I had a son; he was handsome, brave and generous. He loved a young peasant girl and wished to marry her, but I refused my consent; I could not countenance such an outrage. My son pleaded with me, but I was inflexible; my esquirehood would have been eternally disgraced. I was wrong, my boy, I was wrong! Never give way to pride! This is a mortal sin!" Sobs choked the old man's utterance, but he continued:

"The maiden was beautiful and virtuous. I offered her money; she refused it. Then I had her carried off and imprisoned in the tower of the castle. Several months passed; my son was faithful to his word, I lo the maiden. So I sent word to her secretly to escape at the first opportunity. A silken ladder was given her, and she was carefully instructed as to its use and how to fasten it to the window. She prepared for flight. Then I arranged an infamous trap for her. Listen, Robert! listen! I had the stones of the window sill loosened, so that it would give way beneath her weight, carrying the unfortunate girl with it; as it fell, and she would be dashed to pieces upon the marble floor of the court-yard below.

That night I fell asleep in the fear of God. Then I was transported to an immensity of clouds. Innumerable arches followed each other in never ending succession. Beneath these arches small golden lamps were swinging gently to and fro, so numerous that it would have taken years to count them. Some burst suddenly into flame others were as suddenly extinguished. Some burned with a fierce light, others flickered for a long time before they died out completely.

Each one of these lamps was guarded by an angel. All the new lamps were tended by fair, white angels with faces of unspeakable beauty; by others stood black angels, ugly and evil, looking and these seemed to await with impatience the moment when the flames should be finally extinguished.

"What is all this?" I asked my guide.

"These lamps are the souls of men," he replied. "The ones which start suddenly into flame are the souls of new-born infants, and spotless angels guard them. Here are the souls of those who have reached the time of life when they can think for themselves, and the Spirit of Evil and the Spirit of Good dispute their possession. Those lamps which are flickering and fading out are the souls of the dying." See? he cried, pointing out several flames which were on the point of extinction, see! at the supreme moment the soul almost always turns to the Spirit of Good!

"Then I asked him to show me my own lamp.

"Come!" said the strange being who conducted me.

A LITTLE IRISH GIRL.

By "The Duchess."

"As you will, of course," says Eyre, very stilly. Has all his chivalry come to this that she will none of him, surely he is as modern as a Don Quixote as one may hope to find! "You really wish to return?"

"I do! I do indeed!" says the poor child, clasping her hands imploringly. Mr. Eyre makes but one answer to this impassioned and distinctly unflattering appeal—he returns to her her bag. To the man in the dusk beyond, watching them with a livid face, this act seems unprecedented.

"Has it occurred to you how you are to get back?" asked Eyre, in a tone calculated to freeze a salamander.

"I shall be able to manage that," fevershly. "I shall, indeed! Oh! there is your train," at that snorting machine dashes into the station. "Go!"

"I shall go, certainly sooner or later," says he, sullenly. "Though considerably later than will please you, to judge by your manner. But before I oblige you I shall see you safe into your home."

"If you do, you will miss your train. Do—do you think of that?" says she, in a small agony. "See—they are shutting the doors, and—oh! breaking off with a little gasp of hope that almost ends in a cry, "there is Andy! Andy!" calling out aloud. "There! Don't you see him? just running into the station? I'd know his legs anywhere! Andy! Andy!"

"Is, indeed, Andy, in the flesh and out of humor. All day long, ever since his memorable encounter with her in the vegetable garden he had decided to keep an eye upon her, and an eye he had kept, without blinking; that is, so long as the daylight lasted. But when 5 o'clock came and the short winter day was at an end, he had relaxed his vigilance, and decided to consider himself off duty.

He had been wondering would she come to tea with him, as usual, in the old schoolroom. Perhaps she would; perhaps, too, she wouldn't. As the hour struck he had gone there and waited.

He waited for quite an hour without a misgiving. He waited another quarter of an hour with considerable misgivings. At a quarter to six he waited no longer, but went three steps at a time, p starts to old Bridget to ask her if she knew where Miss Dulcinea was.

Mrs. Driscoll had no idea. She put down her knitting, and wrinkled her brows so strongly that Andy, who had not believed them capable of another crease, gazed at her astounded. Wasn't she down in the schoolroom, then? No; she wasn't. She hadn't come in yet, then?

Come in?

Andy's heart began to beat a little quickly. What was it she had said?—that she would let him see? Did she begin to let them see when she went out? But when was that?

"When did she go out?" asks he.

"Faix, not so long, then," said the old nurse, in a little frightened fashion. "Have ye anything on your mind, Master Andy? If you have, speak out! I mind me now she kissed me in a queer, mad, disturbin' sort of a way, when she was lavin'." I mind, too, that I told her it was a bit late for a rambles, and she laughed strange like, and said may be she'd never have a chance of a rambles again, so she might as well have it now as not. Oh! werra! werrastrue! What'll I do if harm has come to her beauty?"

Andy had cut her short. It was evident her mind ran on suicide. His mind ran on Eyre. He knew that latter was leaving this evening, and the suspicion that Dulcinea, in a mad, angry moment, had agreed to go with him, seized upon him and held him. He left the old woman rocking to and fro, and praying to every saint in the calendar.

It didn't take him two minutes to find his hat and rush out into the chill night air en route for the wayside station.

"Andy!" cries Dulcinea frantically, in a subdued and piercing tone that reaches not only Andy's ears, but those of Anketell in his distant corner. His are unnaturally strained.

"Well, here I am!" says Andy, calling out, too, in a distinctly indignant tone.

"He hears me!" says Dulcinea, with a little sob of delight, turning excitedly to her companion. "He is coming! Oh! before he comes, go! go! Do you hear me? See, the train is on the point of leaving! If you wait another moment, you will be left behind, and I—Oh! do go!" giving him a frenzied push. "I will write—I will explain—only go!"

"Write—explain?" Eyre feels as if his senses are deserting him. The girl he has put himself in this false position to save from abominable tyranny is the one who now deliberately may, passionately, repudiates his assistance. Explain? There is no explanation—none! stammers he, hardly knowing what he says. Righteous anger is burning in his breast.

"Oh! but I will write!" declares she, growing desperate as she sees Andy approaching. "There! be quick!" Again she pushes him toward the now almost moving train, and Eyre, confused, angry, puzzled, obeys her touch, and springs into the carriage nearest to him.

Almost unconsciously he had sprung into it, the door is banged by a passing porter, and presently he finds that he is under way, and leaving Dulcinea forever!

The train disappears into the night. Eyre leaning back in his corner—the corner usually coveted, but undisputed in this empty train—gives him up to thought. It is a revelation to him, and presently that he is feeling far more angry than miserable. Pathos upon pathos!

Up to this, indeed, he had regarded himself as a pious cavalier—à la Don Quixote. He had exulted in his role of Knight of Woful Damosels, and here—here is his reward! Lo! when it came to the point, the captive maiden had declined to be rescued, and clung heroically, if unpoetically, to the tyranny she might have escaped.

There must be something wrong somewhere. Eyre, enveloping himself in his rug, makes a mental vow to abjure distressed damsels for all time, and devote himself for the future to worldly reasonable beings who hitherto have been the sole of his existence.

CHAPTER X.

"Those who injure must suffer, for they must be."

Our chastisement of recompense." Dulcinea, left alone upon the platform, turns with a quick breath of mingled fear and relief to Andy, who has only just joined her.

"Nice bit of business, this," says that young man.

"Oh! don't talk here, Andy! Come outside; come beyond the gate. I—I don't see what going beyond the gate will do," says Mr. McDermott, looking like adamant. "May as well have it out here where I can see you, as the dusty road."

"I'm tired, Andy," says she faintly, with a vague but fruitless effort of softening him.

"Not too tired to come here in the middle of the night, anyway?"

"In the middle of the night! Oh, Andy! Why, it can't be more than half-past six!"

"How well you know the hours of the train! Who?" (malignantly) "taught you? My word! all I can say is, that you have done it this time, at all events."

"Done what?" (more faintly still).

"Do you want me to put it into words?" says her cousin, regarding her in the dim dull light of the station lamps with a disgust hardly to be put into words. "You are a fool, Dulcinea!"

"You don't know anything!" says Dulcinea, taking all the courage she has into her hand and preparing to do battle with it. "You accuse me; you say things—but" (incoherently) "you know nothing! Nothing! I came out only—to—to" (desperately) "see if I could match some wool in the village down there, and I wandered on here, and—"

"What a banger!" says her cousin. "Is that the best you can do? To match wool by this light! Why not say you came to meet a young lady? There would be a pretty color about that at all events."

"It was wool," persisted Dulcinea, dismally.

"With a pretty color about it, too!" with growing scorn. "Oh, no! it won't do, my good Dulcinea. Dye that! I can't see how the land lies? Wait! till you see Bridget! She's got a word or two to say to you, believe me! She's got it hot and strong for you, and no mistake."

"Bridget will say nothing to me," says Dulcinea. "She, at least" (unsteadily), "has always been kind to me."

"Your quarter's up, there," says Andy. "Expect no grace. She's only waiting to see you to give you the biggest bit of her mind on record."

"Take me to her," says Dulcinea, in a low tone, suggestive of intense fatigue, bodily and mental.

"What makes you so tired?" asks her cousin, trying to see her face.

"You seem done up. What?" as the thought dawns upon him. "do you mean to say that you walked here? Marched every step of the way through the cold and damp to meet that fellow?"

Dulcinea nods her head; words now are almost beyond her.

"By George! you must be fond of him!"

"I am not!" says Dulcinea, with a faint, a very faint return of her old spirit.

"You expect me to believe that and yet you certainly come all this way for the mere sake of giving him a parting word, of seeing him safely off."

"Yes—yes," says his cousin, with such an over-zealous confession that she opens his eyes to the full truth:

"To go off with him!" says he slowly.

"If that it, really? Oh, Dulcinea!"

There is such reproach, such surprised reproach in his young voice that Dulcinea gives way beneath it.

"Oh, it is all true, Andy—all every word you have said. Father, Sir Ralph—even you, were unkind to me. And he—though I didn't care for him he was kind; and he asked me to come away from all this trouble!"

"You mean to say you spoke to him—you complained to him of Sir Ralph—of your father?"

"I did. I know now it was hateful of me; but—he was very kind and I was unhappy. And Sir Ralph was so cold, and so lecturing-like—and—She breaks off.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it of you," says Andy, shaking his head gloomily. "And Anketell such a good sort! However," (pulling himself together) "the one thing now to be considered is how you are to get home. It will take a long time to get a car up here from that beastly hole below; and by the time we reach the house the governor will be in such a fume that there will be no holding him."

"I'll wait," (eagerly).

"That will occupy even longer. I suppose, I know what girls are—stumbling over every stone and shrieking at every shadow. No; that would take hours, and set the governor's back up an inch or two higher. He'd be all alive O, with a vengeance, like the cockies, if we didn't get home before that."

"What shall we do, then?" says Dulcinea, glancing round her.

"I wish I knew. Better stay here until I run down to the village and bring back a car of some sort. 'Pon my soul' (moodily) "you have done it for once, and handsomely when you were about it."

At this moment it so happens that Dulcinea in her remorse and grief and despair, changes her position. She had thought of escaping her cousin's eye—which is sharp, to say the least of it; but, not understanding the eccentricities of the station lamps, so turns that he can see her even more distinctly.

Perhaps it was a wise move, if unsteady. The dull, dead lamp over there shows Mr. McDermott such a pale, tear-stained and miserable little face, that all his wrath dies down before it.

"After all," begins he hurriedly, and in a considerably milder voice,

"Here's one thing in your favor—I don't forget that. When it came to the scratch you didn't go with him. You caved in at the right hour; and no wonder, too. The barrel-organ business wouldn't be good enough for you. I say, Dulcinea, old girl, don't—don't cry, whatever you do! Keep it up; you pecker; leave it all to me, and I'll pull you through; I'll square it with the governor if he finds you out, and I'm afraid he's bound to do that, as you are very considerably out, not only of your house, but your reckoning. Ha! ha! that's a joke! D'ye see it?"

In this melancholy way he seeks to cheer her; but Dulcinea is beyond seeing anything. She is like Niobe—"all tears."

"You'll be in hysterics in a second, if you don't keep a tight rein," says her cousin in a horror-stricken way. "Look there!" (glancing apprehensively around him); "You'll be heard if you go on like that. I wish to goodness there was some way of getting you home in a hurry; we could then put it on the pins or the wool-work safely; but—By Jove!"—starting—"there's Sir Ralph!"

CHAPTER XI.

"To know to esteem, to love—and then to part. Makes up life's tale to many a feeling heart."

"What?" says Dulcinea. She stands still, as if turned into stone. Her tears cease. She feels frozen. He—he, of all men, here! Had he seen—guessed—

"Sir Ralph, by all that's fortunate," "Where?"

"Just over there; evidently come this moment in answer to my prayer." In fact, Sir Ralph, who had been going away from the platform, having seen all he never wished to see, had turned at the last second to speak to a porter; and had, therefore, when Andy's eyes fell on him, all the appearance of one coming toward, instead of going away from him.

"Was there ever such luck? O! somehow he's got a trap of some sort. He'll drive you home," I say, Ah! he'll—"

"Oh, Andy!"—grasping his arm—"Oh, Andy! Don't! don't!"

"Don't what?"—angrily.

"Don't make me go home with him!" (in an agonized whisper).

"But, why—why?"—impatiently.

"Oh, not with him! Supposing he was here all the time, and saw—"

FOUND AT LAST!

The American Citizen Might Be Searched, But Was True to His Country.

Some years ago, when Sir Charles Smith was traveling by special train in Dakota, he told his private secretary to instruct the conductor that he should not say "Mr. Smith," but "Sir Charles" in speaking to so great a man. Next time the conductor came round he said: "Well, sir—Charles—the next station is Glyndon." And always thereafter, he continued to use the same form, "Well, sir—Charles."

Last year, when Sir James Homlake and a number of other prominent Englishmen were traveling in this country as guests of the American Iron and Steel Institute, the company had a special train. The porter of the car in which Sir James traveled, for two days was a singularly polite but slightly deaf negro. He always addressed Sir James as "Misser Omelette."

After this had occurred several times, Sir James, whose sense of personal importance is well developed, said, in an appalling loud tone: "My good fellow, you must not speak to me in that manner. When you address me you are to say Sir James Homlake—Sir James Homlake—remember that!" "Porter" have you remembered to say Sir James Homlake?" asked one of the Americans the next day, when he happened to meet the darky where the knight was not. "Oh, no, sah! I don't say no such thing. Dis yer's a free country."

"What do you call him, then?" "Jus' Misser Omelette, yessah. Jus' Misser Omelette, sah." "Ain't you afraid?" "Yessah—scared mos' to deff, but I'se a 'Merican citizen, sah."—The Argonaut.

Absent-Minded.

Professor Kunstler was an old German pedagogue, noted for his absent-mindedness. He and a friend, another old professor, used to take a daily walk together. One day, when walking was very bad, Professor Kunstler was on his way to the corner at which he and his friend always met, when he encountered a young student whose face he recognized dimly, having seen it every day for some weeks in his morning class. The professor hailed the boy, who was wading through the mud to get across the street. "Have you seen Professor Muller?" he asked.

"Yes, Herr Professor," replied the student, pausing in the midst of a mud puddle to remove his cap respectfully; "the Herr Professor Muller is at the corner, waiting for you."

"Good!" replied Professor Kunstler, looking amiably at the lad over his spectacles; "I thank you; you may be seated."—Argonaut.

Height of the Atmosphere.

Curious evidence shows that a cubic inch of air at sea level contains about 350,000,000 molecules. If the law of regularly diminishing density holds good, a cubic inch of air at the height of 100 miles will contain about 350,000 molecules and at less than 222 miles only one molecule. Opinions differ, however, as to the actual height of the atmosphere's upper surface. Prof. Young declares that no definite upper limit can be stated, while Prof. Forster of Berlin contends that a thin air, connected with that of the earth, pervades the whole solar system.

Can be counted on to cure Catarrh—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's nothing new. For 25 years it has been doing that very thing. It gives prompt and complete relief—but you want more than that. And you get it, with this Remedy—there's a cure that is perfect and permanent. The worst chronic cases, no matter of how long standing, yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. "Cold in the Head" needs but a few applications. Catarrhal Headache, and all the troubles that come from Catarrh, are at once relieved and cured.

You can count on something else, too—$500 in cash.

You can count on it, but it's more than doubtful whether you earn it.

The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy, in good faith, offer that amount for an incurable case of Catarrh. Don't think that you have one, though.

They'll pay you, if they can't cure you. That's certain.

But they can cure you. That's just about as certain, too.

W. H. Priest and wife of Detroit visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Priest, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

We are pleased to see our old friend J. D. Covert once more upon our streets. Mr. Covert has been undergoing a long sickness.

On the Wayne Hotel register at Detroit the past week we notice the following well known men from Northville and vicinity: L. A. Beah, B. F. Spinger, A. Waring, Northville; N. H. Power Farmington; G. S. Curtis, Plymouth.

L. F. Newman, Gen. Sec'y. Y. M. C. A., Detroit, says: "One year in the Rebel Army" was a hitherto unpathetic stirring, thrilling lecture delivered by Rev. J. M. Barkley before a thousand people in Association Hall. No gaudy gun could fire cartridges faster than did Mr. Barkley discharge eloquence, humor and pathos. The lecture, talk, sermon, oration, address, whatever one wants to call it, was filled with tears and laughter. At the Presbyterian church this Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. France of Detroit came out on their week Wednesday evening to attend the stockwatering-Johnson wedding. They were caught in the shower, but, like the Chicago-New York relay riders here on time, Mrs. France, nee Clark, was a former resident of Northville and is well known here. Mr. France is now train dispatcher for the Lake Shore railroad company and for four years the editor of this paper worked the wires with him, and it was a treat to talk over old times again. While here they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Adams. They returned home home yesterday by train.

H. H. Dumas has opened rooms in the Macomber building, where no ready to give prompt attention to all patients desiring the services of a physician.

Mr. Dumas has had long experience and is the highest testimonials of his skill from a number of people who have received treatment at his hands and derived marked benefit from it. Callers from two o'clock until five, and from seven until ten p. m. daily.

Things Said and Did in the Liveliest and Prettiest Village in Michigan.

Council meeting next Tuesday night.

Mrs. Capt. Simonds is rapidly recovering.

Riggs, the clothier, has a change of

ad. for this week.

The prospects are for great quantities of fruit this season.

Benton's milk route has reduced prices to 4 cents per quart. See ad.

When in Detroit try the Wayne

Hotel. You will be exceedingly well cared for.

Frank Brown, the tonsorial artist, has been purchased A. D. Cunningham's bath-rooms.

Those new signs in front of Sands &

Porter's and Stark Bros. stores are very neat and unique.

D. K. Shaffer has just completed a very pretty box in the construction of which there are 2700 pieces.

That was a very fine address which

Rev. Jaques delivered to the Knights

Templars Sunday morning.

F. H. Best, proprietor of the Main street restaurant, has an ad. in this week's paper. Do not fail to read it.

A sister of Mrs. Geo. Wager in Ohio sent a box of very beautiful flowers last week to be strewn on her mother's

Mrs. Dunne's grave.

C. A. Downer received an inquiry from California last week for his house and lot which they had seen advertised in the Record.

A large number of men are at work excavating and laying pipes for the water works system and the work is being rapidly pushed along.

Gordon & Kendrick sold two lots this week. W. E. Ambler bought one and a lady in California, daughter of L. Charter, purchased the other.

Rev. J. M. Barkley, a popular speaker of Detroit will give his "One Year in the Rebel Army" at the Presbyterian church this Friday night. Admission

25 cents.

The attention of our readers, who were a choice cigar, is called to the ad.

of Messrs. Rathbun & Fleischer in another column. Their R & F cigar is a choice article.

There will be preparatory services at the Presbyterian church at 2:30 Saturday afternoon followed by a congregation of Elders and a meeting of the session. Sunday morning there will be communion services.

Dr. Obetz of Detroit, assisted by Dr. Patterson of this place, suc-

the knee, of Louis Loomis of South

Lyon, Tuesday. The operation was performed at Grace hospital, Detroit.

The Methodist association of Detroit clergymen have accepted an invitation from E. Roscoe Reed to a "strawberry reception" at their residence here Monday, June 20. The occasion being the 60th birthday anniversary of Mr.

Reed's father, Rev. Seth Reed, P. E.

Thirty K. Ts in uniform under command of Past Eminent Commander Adams attended Ascension Day services at the Presbyterian church

Sunday morning after which, escorted by the Northville band, they marched to the cemetery and decorated the graves of deceased Sir Knights.

prettiest appearance.

Regular meeting of the U. R. K. of

P. next Monday night. A full attendance is requested.

Electric lights have been placed in Cauley & Crother's planning house in the Opera House block.

Rev. Bradley's Memorial address at the Baptist church Sunday evening was pronounced one of the best ever listened to by a Northville audience.

The house was filled to overflow.

The D. L. & N. railroad have just issued a very handsome Summer book entitled, "Tours in Michigan." It is full of good reading and finely illustrated.

Copies can be obtained of the passenger department of that railroad.

Ypsilanti may be a bad place for a Keeley institute. One of the cured ones returned here Saturday of last week and another Monday of this week dead drunk on Ypsilanti mineral water. They will be "shot" again.

Dr. M. A. Patterson of this place and Dr. Obetz of Detroit removed a deformed nasal septum from R. C.

Yerkes' nose, at Grace hospital, Detroit, Tuesday. The operation was highly successful and Mr. Yerkes is doing nicely and will return home again today.

2,800 feet of 18 inch pipe is soon expected to arrive here for the U. S. fish hatchery. It will be used to pipe the water from the new reservoir to the hatchery. About forty new rearing pools will be put in at once and this with the new reservoir, pipes, etc.,

will probably use up the $5,000 ap-proportion.

Messrs. Cauley & Crothers have now opened up for business in the Opera House block. Both young men are practical plumbers and steam fitters

and come well recommended. Mr.

Cauley was inspector of the Dayton Natural Gas company and Mr.

Crothers held a like position with the Mich. Gas company. The attention of our readers is called to their ad. in another column.

Rev. G. W. Barlow, Pastor Calvary

Presb. Church, Detroit, says: "No

lecture ever delivered in Calvary

Church gave greater delight to our people than Rev. J. M. Barkley's "One year in the Rebel Army." The speaker was frequently interrupted by hearty applause and peals of laughter and when he closed, the "Boys in Blue" stepped promptly to the front to shake the "Boy in Gray." At the Presbyterian church this Friday night.

Workmen employed in repairing

Miss Cunningham's house on Dimlap street last week found an old dagger-reedy picture of a young man which had been dropped down behind the base-board years ago. The picture is a good one, well preserved and on the inside of the back bears these lines:

"Aged 21 years. Parsons, photographer, Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 17, 1862. The house was occupied at that time by John Harrington, so the old residents say, but no one recognizes the likeness.

Did you ever notice that along the south side of Main street west there is not a fence in front of a single residence, and how much prettier that side of the street appears than the other which is considerably fenced. As long as animals are not allowed to roam the streets, and they certainly do not do so in Northville, fences are not a necessity and if taken down, the lawns, residences and streets are made much more attractive. A glance at some of the beautiful homes in our village, where no fence obstructs the view or ham & Co. will pay four (4) per cent interest, from date of deposit, for full months.

The attention of the Council is called to the need of the side walk from the Milk condensery to the U. S. fish hatchery.

It is said by those who claim to know that for the last 48 days there has not 24 hours passed without rain in Northville.

Arrangements are being made for a free lecture by the Hon. Tim Tarsney at the Northville opera house for next week. This will be a treat for Northville people.

Photographer H. F. Brown presented Allen M. Harmon Post G. A. R.,

last Friday night, with an elegant 3X3 picture of Gen. James A. Garfield, elegantly framed in oak and gold.

Mr. Brown was afterwards made an honorary member of the Post.

Northville and Plymouth Knights of Pythias will hold memorial services

Sunday, June 2. The Northville lodge will leave for Plymouth at 12 o'clock where they will be met by Plymouth lodge, under escort of the Uniform

Rank of that place, and proceed to the cemetery. After decorating the graves there, both lodges escorted the by division will return to Northville and decorate the graves of brother knights buried here.

STRANGE SIGHTS.

Scenes Witnessed in London's Streets a Century Ago.

There were certain dangers and inconveniences walking along the streets. The finest dress might be ruined by the carelessness of a dust-man or a chimney-sweep; the custom of exposing meat on open bulkheads led to many an irreparable stain of grease. Bullies pushed the peaceful passenger into the gutter—it was a great time for street swaggers; barbers blew the flour into wigs at open doorways, causing violent wrath among those outside; mad bulls, careered up and down the streets; men quarreled, made a ring and fought it out before the traffic could go on; pickpockets were both numerous and dextrous; footpads abounded in the open squares of Lincoln's Inn, Bloomsbury and Portman; highwaymen swarmed on all the roads; men servants were insolent and disrespectful; the noise in the leading streets was deafening; in a shower the way became impassable from the rain-spouts in the roofs, which discharged their contents upon the streets below.

We who now object to the noise of a barrel-organ in the street, or a cry of milk or a distant German band, would be driven mad by a single day of George II's London streets. Hogarth has touched the subject, but only touched it. No one could do more in a picture than indicate the mere fringe of this vast subject. Even on the printed page we can do little more than the painter. For instance, the following were some of the more common and everyday and all-day-long noises:

Many of the shopkeepers still kept up the custom of having a "prize" outside bawling an invitation to buy. This day butchers in Chancery market out at their stalls all day long. Buy! Buy! Buy! In the streets of Northville, there passed a never-ending procession of those who bawled for sale.

There are a few of the things they are conscious that it is a C. C. Chadwick, S. Andrews estate, Hannah Gardner estate, Martha Neal, John Hirsch, J. M. Swift, Yerkes Bros., Yarnall Gold Co., Orange Butler, Clover Con. Milk Co., E. P. Kellogg, B. A. Wheeler, T. G. Richardson, Dubois Mfg. Co., Keeley Institute, J. S. Lapham & Co., Globe Furn. Co.

In the smaller streets the good wives sat with open doors, running in and out gossiping over their work; they liked the noise; they liked this perambulating market, it made the street lively, it brought the neighbors out to talk and it pleased the baby. Then the wagons went ponderously grinding over the round stones of the road, says Harper's Magazine, the cart's rumbled, the brewers' sledges growled, the chariot rattled, the drivers quarreled, cursed and fought. The late Mr. Dowell spoke of the continual murmur of London as of Niagara afar off. A hundred years ago he would have spoken of the continual roar.

Good as an Alarm Clock. Mail carriers in Morocco are said to avoid the risk of losing their places by "over sleeping" by tying a string to one foot and setting the end of it on fire before going to sleep. The string, they know from experience, will burn so long and when the fire reaches their foot it is time for them to get up.

Will Sadly Lack Birthdays. There are many people now living who will have only one birthday to celebrate for nearly twelve years to come. This strange circumstance is due to the fact that they were born on Feb. 29, and to the further fact that the year 1900 will not be a leap year.

Pattern from a Flood. Little son—Uncle John told Aunt Mary yesterday at breakfast to imitate the flood. What did he mean, papa? "When he told her to imitate the flood he meant she should dry up, my son."—New York Herald.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

Electricity in its various forms of application, is said to give employment to 5,000,000 persons. It is seriously proposed to purify the Thames by importing a school of crocodiles to act as river scavengers. Over 50,000 tons of cottonseed oil are consumed annually. Not many years ago cottonseed was thrown away.

One of the finest opals in the world is worn on his cap by the Chinese minister at Washington. It is as large as a pigeon's egg, and is surrounded by diamonds. The value of the cap, with its ornaments, is placed at $5,000.

So great has been the development of the petroleum fields in Peru that pipe lines have been run from the main wells to the coast. The opinion is expressed that the Peruvian field will soon be able to supply the demand of all the west coast of South America.

The forms of sea life in the upper portion of the ocean waters may descend to a depth of 1,200 feet or so from the surface, but there then succeeds a barren zone, which continues to within 360 to 300 feet from the bottom, where the deep sea animals begin to appear.

The citizens of Chelan, Wash., are building a dam across the Chelan river so as to secure a navigable low water depth and admit of steamers reaching that point from the lake. The damming of the river it is said, will raise the body of the lake six or seven feet. The lake is sixty miles long and from one to three miles wide.

The revised edition of the German Bible has been published at last! After eighteen meetings of eleven days each, the revision committee produced the so-called proof Bible of 1893. After two years allowed for criticism the final revision began, and the last conference was held in 1890 at Halle by all who had taken part in the theological and linguistic work.

FACTS FORTIFIED.

The clock tower of the houses of Parliament is 320 feet high. The largest fresh water lake in Europe is Lake Ladoga which covers an area of nearly 7,000 square miles.

In the Bank of England at least 60 folio volumes or ledgers are filled daily with writing in keeping the accounts. Lilies are raised as a regular field crop in the Bermudas. In one of the largest fields over a hundred thousand may be seen in bloom at the same time.

Of the fifty women who are engaged in active newspaper work in the state of Michigan, five publish their own newspaper independent of any association. The populations of the five continents of the earth, as estimated by M. Emile Levasseur, are as follows, stated in millions: Europe, 360; Africa, 153; Asia, 824; Oceania, 38; North America, 88; South America, 34; total, 1,497 millions.

The Maxim gun is said to hold the record for quick firing, for it can deliver 750 shots a minute, or 13 1/2 a second. But an even higher rate of discharge is claimed for the new Winchester gun to be brought out shortly—no fewer than 900 shots a minute.

There are 15,000 women typewriters between North street and the Battery, in New York, two-thirds in number of the regular army of the United States. The employment office of one of the machine companies finds places for 250 women a month, and through its various offices for 10,000 women a year.

It has been proposed to place the complete roster of the Grand Army of the Republic within the Grant monument at New York when it shall have been completed. According to Gen. Horace Porter there are 500,000 veterans now enrolled in the organization. The New York legislature has enacted a law which will delight hotel-keepers more than their guests. Hereafter a man could deposit his valuables in the safe of the hotel and the proprietor was responsible for their return, regardless of the value. The new law limits the responsibility to $200. If there is a loss from any cause the owner must stand all beyond the amount of $200.
