BROKE HIS HIP.

John Jackson Meets With a Bad Accident.

While walking from the barn to his house Tuesday afternoon, John S. Jackson had the misfortune to slip on the ice, falling in such a manner as to fracture the right hip. He was soon discovered in his helpless condition, half reclining and half sitting, about as he had fallen, and by neighboring aid was at once conveyed into the house. Dr. Swift was immediately summoned and pronounced the thigh bone broken square off near the socket.

Mr. Jackson is a man well along in years and the injury will prove not only serious but of long duration.

ANOTHER HOTEL.

Northville Will Probably Have a New One This Year.

There are all kinds of rumors in the Northville air just now relative to a new hotel being built here in the spring. The location is not yet decided upon, but we are assured that a handsome new building for this purpose will be erected, and in operation before July 4th. Parties have been in the village the past week looking over locations, and some negotiations are now pending toward the end in view. It is understood that some solid business men, not of Northville, are at the back of the project and we are informed that whatever is accomplished will be an ornament and a credit to our beautiful village.

UNIFORM RANK.

Knights of Pythias Have Elected New Officers.

At a regular meeting of the Northville division, No. 48 U. B. K. of P. held Monday night the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Capt.—B. G. Filkins. Lieut.—B. C. Stark. Herald—A. K. Dolph. Recorder—W. J. Kingswell. Treasurer—W. H. Strak. Installing Officer—C. A. Hutton. A committee was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions of sympathy for Sir Kt. W. H. Nichols and family. The resolutions to express the sincere sympathy of the division in his illness and an earnest wish for his speedy recovery. The new officers will be installed March 6.

ANOTHER BIG DAY.

The Horse Races Again Attracts Hundreds of Visitors.

The streets of Northville were again thronged with people last Saturday to witness the racing and trotting races on Dunlap street. The track this time was in a splendid condition and there is probably not another long straight-away course in the state in as nice shape for speeding as this avenue. It is estimated that there were a thousand people in town that day from the country and neighboring villages. Every available place in the village was occupied by one or more teams. The business men and others had put up a purse of $50, divided in to a "free-for-all" and "green" race, $25 in three prizes for each. In the first, Bud Seward's horse, Farmington, won 1st; Geo. Van Vleet, Plymouth, 2nd; Geo. German's, Franklin, 3d. In the green race Joe Grace's, Farmington, horse won 1st; Will Lockwood's, Novi 2nd; Geo. German's, Franklin, 3d. German's pacer in this race was a three year old colt and the speed the young animal showed in the race leads one to believe that it will yet make a remarkable record. There will be two more races this week Saturday for a purse of $50, first three straight heats taking a $25 prize.

ABOUT VISITING CARDS.

What to Put on Them and What to Do With Them.

It is correct: To use perfectly plain visiting cards, of fine pasteboard, engraved in plain script.

In an emergency, if obliged to use a written visiting card, to write one's name with pencil rather than with pen and ink, since the use of the latter would seem to imply deliberate purpose.

For a gentleman to use a smaller card than a lady and one narrower in proportion to its length.

For a gentleman to prefix "Mr." to his name on a visiting card.

To use the full name on a visiting card, as "Mrs. Joel Cotton Smith," Miss Clara Howard Jameson.

For a lady to prefix "Mrs." or "Miss" as the case may be, to her name on a visiting card.

For a married lady to use her husband's full name or last name and initials.

For a gentleman, a married lady, or a young lady who has been for some time in society to have his or her address engraved on a visiting card.

For a young or single gentleman to put the name of his club on his card rather than his own residence, if he prefers.

For residents in a small suburban town to put the name of it on their cards in order to avoid confusion.

For the oldest single lady belonging to the oldest branch of a family to use "Miss Esmond" on her card, or for the oldest daughter of a younger branch to do so, where there are no single women in the older branch.

For a young lady to have her name engraved below that of her mother on the same card, as:

Mrs. Leonard Smith.

Miss Smith.

For husband and wife to have each a separate visiting card.

To leave cards without turning down their corners or ends.—New York World.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the common council was held Feb. 7, 1893.

President, pro tem, J. M. Swift in the chair.

Present Trustees Swift, Miller, Vanzile, Johnson and Rayson.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

Globe Furn. Co. lights $75.48

F. Adams wood 4.50

Palmer & Slater rent for engine 37.50

John Bay cleaning cross walks 5.00

Lansing & L. works sewer 24.00

The street committee reported in favor of laying the bill of the Globe Furn. Co. $75.48 for sewer grates and the bill was allowed and ordered paid.

A communication rec'd from E. N. Root assg that the amount of $5.89 be refunded to the estate of S. C. Root, that the amount paid for taxes on property outside of the village.

The council appointed to negotiate for the loan $3,500 report having done so, that bank having been secured from the Northville State Savings Bank.

Trustee Swigave notice that he would at some future meeting offer a resolution to pay a marshal when an itemized bill was presented and audited instead of pay him a salary.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved that this council hereby give notice to all parties in the village of Northville, that after Feb. 15 A. D. 1893, the finance respecting the cleaning of sidewalks in the village will be enforced said ordinance being sec. 13 and 14 chapter 9 of the revised ordinances.

THE RECORD.

F. S. NEAL, Publisher.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN

DR. PHILLIPS-BROOKS, the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Boston, whose death was lately announced, after having read Bishop Spalding's recent article against exhibiting obscene pictures and improper amusements, said: "This is a great article, a grand work, that ought to be memorized and preached by every minister throughout the land."

The woman with the broom has again put in her appearance. Wielding that dangerous feminine weapon, Mrs. Frick attacked two robbers armed with pistols and drove them both from her husband's shoe store. Woman's puissance with the broom bids fair never to be disputed. If the king of Dahomey had armed his amazons with brooms he might have swept France out of Africa.

The judiciary of Connecticut grows weary of the divorce business. It receives from New York, and one of the judges has just refused to grant a decree where the applicant was forced to admit that she had invaded the Nutmeg state to get one. This will have a tendency to help out the South Dakota dabbles in this industry and produce a boom at the trade centers. It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.

The number of immigrants arrived in this country last year was 543,487, against 590,666 in 1891, a decrease of 47,179. The decrease during the last half of the year was 75,883, from which it appears that there was an increase during the first half of the year, and that there would probably have been an increase for the whole year but for the measures adopted to defend the country against cholera.

Sometimes this custom of wearing crapes in commemoration of our dead is the very ghastliest surviving relic of barbarism. It has filled the world with senseless gloom through countless generations. It is ugly, stupid, depressing and unhealthy. There is nothing to recommend anything to discredit it, morally, physically and sentimentally. The spectacle of a woman walking along a public street, shrouded from head to foot in gawsome crapes is painful and shocking in the last degree. Not only does it sadden others, but it crushes the wearer herself under indescribable woe.

DELAWARE still retains the system of appointing judges who hold their office for life or during good behavior. The chief justice and one of the associate justices of the supreme court of that state have become incapacitated from their duties by age, with attendant physical and mental weakness. The Delaware constitution empowers the legislature to remove by joint resolution judges who from infirmity or other causes are not desirable occupants of the bench. This course has been adopted at the general request of the state bar, to remove the superannuated jurists who persisted in holding their seats to the total paralysis of the administration of justice.

It is not the bicycle rider or the light buggy that cuts up the roads, makes the deep ruts, and causes the annual expense for necessary repairs, but the heavily loaded teams of the farmer and of the owner of the mills and factories that have located in the country. It is true that the latter went there in many cases because their expenses would be less, than in a large city or town, but most of them have benefited the town by furnishing employment, by bringing in an increased population, and by the taxes they have paid. Yet they would be saved much more expense if they had better roads for transporting their goods, and not many of them would be ought to object to paying their share of the expense of the improvement of the town.

The knowledge that lies concealed under many a humble hat would, if disseminated, save the world from much misery by enabling mankind to foresee and provide against impending evils. For instance, it is now disclosed that the avian men last fall noted the preparations the bees were making for a severe winter. The drones were killed earlier than usual. This demonstrated that to the prophetic souls of the bees a period of polar weather was a certainty. Yet the bee-keepers were mum; at any rate, they did not make their invaluable information generally known. If the massacre of the drones at the beginning of autumn had been instantly announced, coal men would have filled their yards with the "fixed sunshine," every cellar would have been crammed with fuel, the windows of every house listed, the fur trade would have flourished—in short, people would not now be shivering and praying for spring.

THE COYOTE TRAPPER.

MAKING THE ROUNDS OF THE TRAPS WITH HIM.

Visiting the Many Devices for Catching the Wary Wild Animals—How They Are Baited and Cleared With Alcohol.

George Peck is an old-timer, having come to California some time in the early fifties, and has had the usual experience of fortune and misfortune, mostly misfortune. He has long since quit hoping for a "strike" and is now a wandering, poverty-stricken old char, keeping himself as much as possible out of the way of the world, never looks at a book or paper, mines "at odd spells," and the greater part of the year. Late he has been trapping along the Yuba, and has pitched his tent on a little flat known as the Keystone, says a writer in the San Francisco Chronicle.

There are no valuable furs to be obtained in the lower foothills, but coyotes are numerous on the Keystone, and as the state pays a bounty of $5 for each scalp an expert trapper can make enough to keep body and soul together and have a little left over. But he must be an expert. The gaunt, hungry, snarling coyote is more difficult to catch than a fox, and his habits, likes and dislikes, runways and nocturnal prowlings must be learned by the trapper before he can expect to take more than an occasional scalp.

"Coyote" Peck, as he is called, thoroughly understands the habits of the coyotes. When I met him, a week ago, he was carrying four traps on his back and doing his best to keep out of sight behind a clump of manzanita bushes. At first he was surly and gave short replies to all queries, but persistent efforts thawed the iciness of his manner, and he asked me to accompany him and see how coyote trapping was carried on.

We tramped on for half an hour, and then, leaving the canyon, crossed a little ridge where the undergrowth had been burned away and a few scrubby pines and oaks clustered about a little spring. Handing me his traps Peck stole cautiously ahead with his rifle, and a minute later made a rapid shot at something sitting in the shade not far away. The shot was a jack-rabbit.

"I nearly allus gits one here," said the old man. "They're the best kind of bait for coyotes. I've tried venison, an' beef an' all kinds of meat, but jack-rabbit beats 'em all."

As Peck talked, he gathered his traps and the jack-rabbit, together, threw them over his shoulder and trudged on again. We had easier walking now, and it was not long before another hare started up in front of us. Peck dropped his traps, and as the jack, which had not been much frightened, loped softly up the hill, shot it dead. It was a fine shot and well worth praising, but the old hunter smiled knowingly and said: "That's nuthin'. A boy can do that—after he knows how. That makes bait enough for these four traps, so we'll jist set one of 'em here."

With a swipe of the hunting knife one of the jack-rabbits was neatly divided and then one-half was fastened to an oak sapling about four feet from the ground. A few bits of the flesh were scattered about the foot of the oak, and then a trap was set directly under the hanging bait and made secure with the chain. No effort at concealment was made and I asked Peck about it.

"Lord, man, what's the use?" If I digs a hole an' buries my trap eve, so nice, the coyotes'll see there is something buried there an' they'll get suspicious right away. No, sirree."

"Now," said Peck, "if you don't mind goin' we'll take a look at the traps as was set yist'aday."

Again we set off across the low, rolling hills, at right angles with the canyon, and, tramped through a tangled mass of chaparral until we reached the lower edge of the Keystone range. As we skirted the flat the pungent aroma of the mephitis was wafted to us, and Peck swore long and loud.

"Another of them darned skunks! I've caught more'n twenty this week an' it pears like there's twenty thousand of 'em left."

Sure enough, the first trap held a skunk and the little animal, which had pulled and squirmed for hours, was standing still, looking at us with piteous eyes and trembling with pain. The smell was sickening, and Peck stopped me at a safe distance.

"You stay here, lest you get the smell on yer feet, an' I'll fix 'im."

A well-directed shot killed the skunk, and the old man pulled it from the trap and heaved it away with a grunt of disgust. Then he untied the trap and taking from his pockets a flannel rag and a bottle with a large neck rubbed the contents over the trap.

"What is that stuff?"

"Alcohol and assafitfy," returned Peck, testily. "It kills the smell, some of it, an' the coyotes like it, too, but 'tain't as good as might be."

The disinfecting process did not require much time, and when it was finished Peck had acquired a new flavor, which was not pleasant, but he did not seem to mind it. The trap was taken up and carried to a new location and set in a runway without bait.

"It'll be a day or two afore I catch anything in that trap," said Peck. "Some fellers buries their traps to make 'em clean, but I jist uses alcohol and assafitfy. The best stuff for cleanin' is sulphuric acid an' water, 'cause that cuts off everything, but you've got to put assafitfy on anyway to kill the smell of the acid, see?"

an' I've caught some by dragging a little bag of it over the ground for a mile or so an' then settin' down with my rifle to watch the trail. They'll follow it sure if it's early in the mornin' an' the grass is damp."

Nine more traps were visited. Five of them held skunks, one a fox, two were not sprung and one had captured a coyote. The skunks and the fox were killed at once, and Peck was fairly wild.

"It does seem's though there ain't nethin' here but skunks! If they was worth ten cents apiece and didn't smell so infernal I'd make a fortune, sure. The oncy things is jist swarmin', and they gits caught to spite me. I know it!"

The coyote was a large specimen of muscular starvation. The long, lithe body, with its shaggy hair, the small, furtive eyes and sneezing, snarling mouth made a threatening picture. Long before we reached the trap we could hear the chain rattle as the coyote, frantic with fear and pain, sprang back and forth in fruitless efforts to escape. Peck was in a better humor now, and when he had shot the captive, taken off the scalp, flung the carcass away and reset the trap he talked "coyote" at a rapid rate.

"It's funny they allus gits caught by the fore feet—alrus. Now, a fox or a leon or a wildcat'll git caught by the hind legs sometimes, but a coyote never does. It's alrus the front foot that goes into the trap."

SALVINI'S FIRST APPEARANCE.

He Plays a Part at the Age of Fourteen and Has Stage Fright.

The Bon and Berlaffa company alternated in its repertoires between the comedies of Goldoni and the tragedies of Alfieri.

One evening the "Donne Curiose" by Goldoni was to be given, but the actor who was to take the harlequin's part, represented in that piece by a stupid slave called Pasquino, fell sick a few hours before the curtain was to rise. The company had been together for a few days only, and it was out of the question to substitute another play. It had been decided to close the theater for that night when Berlaffa asked:

"Why couldn't poor Tom take a part?"

My father said that there was no reason why he shouldn't, but that Tom had never appeared in public, and he didn't know whether he had the courage.

The proposition was made to me and I accepted on the spot, influenced to no little extent by a desire to please the managers, who in my eyes were people of great importance. Within three hours, with my iron memory, I had easily mastered my little part of Pasquino, and, putting on the costume of the actor who had fallen ill, I found myself a full-fledged if a new performer. I was to speak in the Venetian dialect; that was inconvenient for me rather than difficult, but at Forte, where we were, any slip of pronunciation would hardly be observed.

It was the first time that I was to go on the stage behind the dazzling footlights, the first time that I was to speak in an unaccustomed dialect, dressed up in ridiculous clothes which were not my own; and I confess, that I was so much frightened that I was tempted to run back to my dressing-room, to take off my costume, and to have nothing more to do with the play. But my father, who was aware of my submissive disposition toward him, with a few words kept me at my post.

"For shame!" he said, "a man has no right to be afraid. A man! I was scarce fourteen, yet I aspired to that title."

The conscript who is for the first time under fire feels a sense of fear. Nevertheless, if he has the pride of his sex, and the dignity of one who appreciates his duty, he stands firm, though it be against his will. So it was with me when I began my part. When I perceived that some of Pasquino's lines were amusing to the audience, I took courage, and, like a little bird making its first flight, I arrived at the goal, and was eager to try again. As it turned out, my actor's malarkey grew worse, so that he was forced to leave the company, and I was chosen to take his place.

A Lightning Calculator.

Professor Truman Henry Safford of Williams college, says the Boston Globe, is said to be one of the most remarkable lightning calculators now living. One day a gentleman, who had heard of his powers and wished to make a test, said to him: "I have a problem for you, Professor Safford. I was born August 15, 1852, at three o'clock in the afternoon; this is June 20, 1893, and it is just three o'clock. Now, can you tell me my age in seconds?" The professor frowned, bent his head, and began to walk rapidly up and down, twisting his moustache and clasping and unclasping his hands in a nervous way. After a moment or so he returned the answer, which was somewhere in the billions. The gentleman produced a paper containing the problem worked out, and said, with a superior smile: "Well, professor, I'll give you the credit for great genius, but you're several thousands out." The professor stretched out his hand for the paper, and, running over the calculation, said, contemptuously: "Humph, you've left out the leap years."

German Forests.

About $40,000,000 is paid every year in Germany for the creation and preservation of forests. 200,000 families are supported from them, while something like 3,000,000 find employment in the various wood industries. The total revenue from the forests amounts to $14,500,000, and the current expenses are $3,500,000.

A GIRL GAME-SHOOTER.

A DAUGHTER OF CALIFORNIA BEATS THE RECORD.

This Gentle Maiden Kills Nearly One Thousand Birds With Her Rifle In One Season—Mollie Is Death on Geese.

Miss Mollie Morgan is probably as pretty a girl as ever blossomed on the Colusa plains, and is decidedly more distinguished as a rifle shot than any of her sex in California. She can tell stories of her work in shooting geese that would make the most credulous doubtful unless he heard the adventures from her own lips.

"Do you want to meet the greatest girl shooter in the world?" asked Michael Francis Donleavy, of a San Francisco Call man.

The desire of meeting such a noted personage was readily admitted, and in a few moments she was found in the hotel at the corner of Fifth and Mission street.

She was in the parlor, standing before a window and gazing out upon the dismal prospect as the rain fell in torrents. While approaching her it was noted that she had her arms up as if she were in the attitude of firing at something with a gun.

When addressed Miss Mollie turned suddenly round and on being introduced she blushed deeply and laughed saying:

"You have caught me in the act."

"And what a it is that?"

"Oh, of shooting geese. This is the time of the year we shoot geese up in Colusa, and I should be there to help."

"Do you shoot geese?"

"Certainly. I have been a shot-gun and rifle shot since I was twelve years of age."

"And you are now—ah, beg pardon," and her interviewer was thinking of blushing when she stopped the rush of blood to her cheeks by replying:

"Seventeen. That's all right. It's no transgression with me to inquire my age. You are a reporter and want to know something about herding geese in Colusa, your friend says," she rattled away in the most composed manner.

"Well," she resumed thoughtfully, "it's lots of fun for me at least. I've never met a real live reporter before. I suppose, though they're no worse than millions of other geese I've met. But then I had a gun."

Her father, who in at this juncture and hearing the last remark, laughed. Several other people also laughed.

Fearing that she might get a gun, Miss Mollie was quickly asked:

"Did you say millions?"

"Exactly," was the answer. "Don't be alarmed at that. I'm inside the limit because I have it down to a mathematical certainty. I have seen over 5,000 acres covered with them, and, estimating 1,000 birds to the acre, there would be 5,000,000, and I am putting it low. Because I do not want to be accused of exaggerating."

"You don't," was the only response that her questioner could summon up, as her large black eyes sparkled with merriment at the amazement she had produced.

"That's right," chimed in the proud father. "Now, Mollie, tell him what you did last year."

"Yes, sir, but it may not be believed. You see I now shoot a rifle altogether—a Winchester. Formerly I used a shotgun, but soon learned by experience that I could not get within range. The object of course was simply to keep the geese of the growing grain."

"My father hired four men to do this, paying them $35 for their services. They used old army muskets loaded with shot. It was seldom that any of them ever killed a goose. All they wanted to do was to frighten them. When the bounty was offered by the county for the head of each goose, I adopted the Winchester. Father paid me $20 a month, and I sold my heads to the county at the rate of two cents per head."

"Last year was my largest record. The season began in November and, as usual, lasted three and a half months or thereabouts. During that time I hunted every day and I killed 9,855 geese. I wanted to make even $200 in bounty money but could not quite reach that sum. This year I expected to do better, but now I have lost three days because I had to come down here and help father do some business."

With this last remark Miss Mollie or Mary Elizabeth Morgan as she writes it on the back of her photographs, heaved a sigh. "But I will be up there to-morrow."

"That is a large-sized story, Miss Mollie," was suggested. "It would be awful to ask you how many you ever killed at one shot."

"I really could not tell," was the reply. "I have crept up through a swale or waterway onto acres of geese and emptied my entire sixteen shots into the flock before they got out of range."

"And you picked up—"

"Just sixty-seven. You know sometimes one shot went through half a dozen of them. That is the largest work I ever did without reloading. When there is a small flock I do some fancy shooting by taking their heads off. I can do that forty-nine times out of fifty at the range of 100 yards."

"If you don't believe it come up there this winter and we'll show you. Get off at Maxwell and it's only seven miles. We'll treat you well."

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC. The Best Remedy. In this world, says J. Hoff, of Syracuse, N. Y., is Pastor Koening's Nerve Tonic, because my son, who was partially paralyzed three years ago and attacked by spasms not had any symptoms of them since he took one bottle of the remedy. I most heartily thank for it.

PETER HARTIG, Oct. 17, 1890. Some time ago a snuffbox so adorned my heart that at times there beyond control, eyes were dull and with expression, and a twitching of the muscles face and almost continual movements of the head and arms, especially the left side. It was impediment of speech, and at times was so overcome with dizziness as to be unable to stand. Heard of Koening's Nerve Tonic, and at once bought and tried another, and can say that I am enjoying perfect health, steady nerves and a gossamer, which I had lost entirely before using your medicine. FRANK L. GRACE.

FREE A Value in Nervous Diseases, free in any address and postage can also obtain this for the free of charge.

This remedy has been prepared by the Reverend Pastor Koening, of Forstheim in 1876, and is now prepared under his supervision.

Alluding to the fact that Jay Gould died before his sixty a New York correspondent's Commodore Vanderbilt once him that had he died at sixty he would never have heard of him the great bulk of his money made later. The same correspondent thinks that if Gould could have died as long as Vanderbilt did he would have left at least $600,000,000.

The average cost of production in the three prominent silver mines of Colorado but twenty-five cents per ounce, two of them can produce 8,000,000 ounces per annum, and the profit from last year was $1,000,000 on an investment of only $200,000 while at latest points it was paying dividends at rate of $150,000 per month. The Gibson mine in Aspen was produced October at the rate of 2,500,000 ounces per year, and at a cost of only fifteen cents per ounce. The Granite Mountain mine in Montana paid 50 dividends to the amount of $2,000,000 and last year paid $1,400,000.

Those Who Come and Those Who Go.

Wait, oh, wait till coal is cheap. Wait till love is true. The promises are made to keep. And notes are paid when due. Wait till the sun grows leader, cold. Wait till your ship comes in. Wait till the unwed maids grow old. And virtue conquers sin. Wait till life is a happy dream. And men are deceivers never. Wait till things are what they seem. Wait—and you'll wait forever.

P. S. Porter is sick.

Henry Hilborn is on the sick list.

Will Palmer visited Ypsilanti friends over Sunday.

A. W. REED'S

BARGAIN STORE, Northville, Mich.

T. G. Richardson has been missing for several days from town. He is evidently disappointed at not being able to get out of "trade" at the end of 20 years, and is bound to have a little vacation before beginning a new term.

Will, his advertising man, says "T. G." don't like the idea of five more years hustling a little bit, but thinks when he sees the RECORD this week that he will appear upon the scene again.

RACE ECHOES.

CONTRIBUTED.

Over one hundred subscribers to the race fund last Saturday.

"Who says we cannot have a lively Saturday, instead of a dull one?"

Two thousand people witnessed the races Saturday.

Every Merchant, except three, subscribed to race fund.

During our races Saturday all our stores were filled with shoppers taking advantage of Saturday's cut rate prices.

By request of several subscribers to our race fund we refrain from publishing last week's subscription list again as intended.

Teichner & Co., who by our error was left out of our list of subscribers toward our races published last week, was one of our most liberal donors.

Miss Eva Bovee, Northville's most popular milliner, was our only lady subscriber to our race fund. We wish we had more ladies like her.

Solicitor—(presenting subscription sheet second races to popular citizen who subscribed the week before and whose name appeared in last week's issue) "Will you help us along with our race fund this week Mr.?" Citizen—"Say, what did you have that list put in the paper for? You ought to have been up to my house last night when my wife read my name in the RECORD. Great Scott! well, the cat and dog left; clock stopped; knobs fell off the doors and if there had been but one bed in the house, I should have had to sleep on the floor. Yes, here is a quarter, put it down cash, but don't put my name in the RECORD again in connection with a horse race."

Solicitor—(presenting sheet to another citizen second time whose name did not appear on first subscription list) "Will you help us along with our race fund this week Mr.?" "Oh, the d—, get out!" and starts off so fast he comes near slipping down. Same man was right up in the front rank of spectators all the afternoon at both races. Still he did not believe in it. Not in the donation part.

PHYSICIANS OUTDONE.

My wife has been suffering with female trouble of the severest kind for over three years. I have paid twenty five dollars during the last three months, and she has had no relief. She had doctored continually with the best of physicians. I bought three bottles each of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and Dullam's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure, and can say today that she is entirely cured.

MADDER'N A MARCH HARE!

"T. G." or Crazy Man

Yes, "T. G." is mad clear through, and just because he couldn't get out of business at the end of 20 years; and as time wouldn't wait he had to begin another term, and consequently made it a 5-year term, as he told you last week. Well, the more he thought of it the madder he became until he couldn't stand it any longer and hitched up his horse and disappeared. We haven't seen him for several days, but think if he should see a copy of The Record this week that he will want to make his appearance in short order, for "when the cat is away the mice will play," and we are going to reduce this stock as much as possible before he returns. So here goes, not for play, but for business:

In the Dry Goods Department:

Judging from the way some of the pupas' and mammas' act one would think they were "just as young as they used to be." They all load into a sleigh drawn by the "festive mules" and start off for some where, unknown even to the driver. After riding about town a while they at last stop at some neighbor's home and have a grand old fashion time. A week ago last Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johns were the ones this load called upon and gave a pleasant surprise, and last week Friday night (for this festive team goes every week) Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Rice were their victims.
