THIS IS BUSINESS.

A Large Brick Block to Go Up on Main Street.

WILL PROBABLY COST $10,000.

The Unsightly Wood Buildings Will Come Out.

E. S. Horton bought, last week, a portion of the Perrin estate property on Main street. In the deal, Mr. Horton comes into possession of the store now occupied by Rockwell's jewelry store, Sutherland's barber shop and the alley to V. O. Whipple's store, a frontage of 36 feet. Now, Mr. Whipple, who owns a frontage of 20 feet and Mr. Highland 32 feet, will join Mr. Horton in the erection of a fine brick block, to extend from the store occupied by A. W. Reed to the Harrington & Kellogg building occupied by Nevison.

The old wood buildings now on this valuable frontage will be removed and work commenced at once upon the new buildings. They will all extend back some 70 feet, two stories high and with their handsome plate glass fronts will present a decidedly handsome appearance.

Mr. Horton's will be finished off up stairs as a hall and it will make a fine one too. The first floor will be for stores.

Mr. Whipple will continue to occupy his first floor for his harness shop and will finish the up stairs either as a hall or living rooms.

Mr. Highland's, as mentioned two weeks ago, will be for his meat market with a residence up stairs.

This will be a big improvement to that side of Main street as well as greatly adding to the beauty of the village.

A GREAT BIG SUCCESS.

That's What the Ladies' Auxiliary Club Benefit Was.

The "Spy of Gettysburg," by home talent, at the opera house last week Thursday and Friday nights was a grand success, both as to quality and finance. Everybody said so, and as everybody was there they ought to know. There was not a break or a hitch. Everything moved along as smooth and nice as a pneumatic bicycle.

H. F. Brown, the Federal scout, as a dutchman, was great. So perfect was his disguise and talk that one did not wonder the reb's were fooled. Brown, his wig, his mustache, his pipe and the patch on his pants, come in for a good round of applause.

When Timothy Tapley, in the shape of Geo. Waterman, came on the stage, he looked a trifle embarrassed, and when he started to speak, the audience thought he was stage struck. But he was not a bit so, and the people were not slow in catching on to the fact that in assuming Tapley's eccentric character, the fellow who stuttered, but who had a heart as big as a world's fair building, Waterman was carrying it out to a perfection. It wasn't but a few moments before George had not only Lottie Evans but the whole audience in love with him.

E. B. Thompson has been seen on the amateur stage in nearly every performance of the kind given in Northville the past fifteen years. He is always a hearty, earnest worker in this line and always ready and willing but never did Ed. appear to so good an advantage as he did as Moses Mulvey, a relic of the Mexican war. His hearty laugh, his expression, his talk and gestures captured us all.

W. H. Hutton, in some way or another, always gets the villain part. Will is by nature the best fellow in the world, but so well did he carry out his title, Cyrel Blackburn, "the black sheep of a noble southern family," that the audience were down on him from start to finish and when he at last met his untimely death everyone seemed relieved and glad.

As Solomon, the independent "Coon" B. G. Filkins, was the hit of the evening, and he kept the audience in a very distinguishable audible smile every moment he was on the stage. In a "Coon" character, it is safe to say, Mr. Filkins has but few equals on the amateur stage.

Miss Carrie Babbitt as Mabel Meredith, "a true-hearted girl," was perfect. When she scorned the proposals of the villain Blackburn she was at her best and won a hearty applause for her meritorious work. Miss Babbitt has a fine voice and uses it to its best advantage.

Lottie Evans, personated by Miss Emma Alexandre, was another part perfectly taken. Miss Alexandre is certainly a charming little actress and as the mischievous lover of the stuttering Tapley she was simply super. She quickly won the hearts of the audience as well as Tapley's.

Mrs. Anna Waterman took the part of Mrs. Mulvey, "with a mind of her own," in a very commendable way, and W. J. Kingswell, as Capt. Warren, a Federal staff officer, and Thad Knapp as Jenison, a willing tool of Blackburn's, did not have much, but what they had they did well.

The opera house was well filled both nights and the auxiliary club are the richer by some $65 or $70. We understand the company will take the play to some neighboring towns and if they do, they will certainly merit a liberal patronage.

PLYMOUTH'S FIRE.

Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

WAS IT INCENDIARISM?

Many Hold to This Opinion—The Matter to Be Investigated.

The most serious and damaging fire which Plymouth village was ever visited with since 1856 occurred early Tuesday morning. It was first discovered about midnight in the tailor shop, or where one had recently been, in the Lauffer estate building over Geo. Van De Carr's barber shop. A general alarm was quickly given and though the fire had already made considerable headway still only a slight damage would have resulted had there been any means at hand for the purpose of fighting the flames.

Everyone turned in and lent a hand here and there where ever it could aid. Water had to be carried from long distances and it could only be obtained in small quantities at best. A telegram was quickly sent to the Detroit fire department for help. They responded promptly, but were unable to load their engine at the Union depot and had to come over the Central via Wayne and by this and other delays, they did not reach the scene of the conflagration until 3 a. m. when the fire had practically stopped of its own accord.

The barber shop is about the middle of the block and the fire spread both ways until every one of the seven stores, from John Gale's on the corner, south to Miller's saloon, were complete in ruins, not even a wall being left standing.

Those burned out were John Gale, drugs and groceries; A. Dibble, shoes; Basset & Son, furniture; 1st Nat. Bank Geo. Van De Carr, barber shop; Chaffee & Hunter, drugs and groceries and Linton's hardware store. The saloon building of Miller's was also badly damaged. With the exception of Chaffee & Hunter, the merchants saved a large portion of their stock.

The prevailing opinion is that the fire was set by some unscrupulous villain or villains and steps are being taken to see if the party cannot be located.

All the property was fairly well covered by insurance.

ARBOR DAY.

In compliance with an honored custom and with public sentiment I hereby designate Friday, April 23, 1893 to be observed as Arbor Day.

The general observance of this day by the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers is most earnestly recommended. In this way our homes, highways and public places may be improved and adorned, and future generations benefited. It is further recommended that the beneficent object of the day be impressed upon the minds of youth by appropriate exercises in our schools.

Given under my hand and the great Seal of the State, at the Capitol in Lansing, this tenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety three, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and seventeenth.

Love in Lodgings.

BY FLORENCE WARDEN.

CHAPTER I.

An Intrusion.

"Do you believe it?"

"Well, I don't want to. But—"

"That's just it—"

"It seems to be awfully likely, just what was to be expected, in fact."

"And if it's true it means—"

"Smash. Utter smash for the whole lot of us. You will have to leave the army; there'll be no practice for me, no bar for the Idol. We shall all have to go into stockbrokers' offices or drive cabs or something."

"Oh, rubbish! There'll still be fifteen hundred a year!"

"What's fifteen hundred a year to the governor? Why, he's been living on his expectations for ever so long. His debts will almost swallow that up."

"Can't they prove undue influence?"

"I don't think so. Look here: Everybody knows that for years before he died he was on good terms with the governor. Then this Hutchinson woman, this housekeeper, and her daughter were too artful to shut him up. Nobody can prove anything against them. It wasn't as if they'd got him to leave them everything; that would have been suspicious, and much better for us. As it is, it looks natural enough that he should leave these people the house he lived in with them, and half his income, and only the other half to the son he was not on good terms with. See?"

"His brother did see, and he nodded. The two young men were traveling down from Victoria to Westmore. Temple Monk, the elder, a fair, slim fellow, with the full amount of admiration and respect for himself which a young man who has just entered the army ought to have, had taken the tickets and had been reproached by his brother for going first class.

"There's the Idol," said Cameron, as he jumped out.

The tall, lean figure turned slowly round, and nodded to a dignified and melancholy greeting.

He handed a letter to Temple, the eldest, with a solemn air. His brother took it with a condescending nod, while Cameron gave the Idol a hearty slap on the back which made the latter shake like a reed.

"Well, old chap, you are looking well! Nothing like profound thought, for keeping off superfluous flesh, is there? Wish I could get that underfed look! But there, it wouldn't do to make the receipt too cheap, would it?"

It was the Idol who suggested, jocosely, that they had better see after their luggage. So they all turned, and joined in the general scurry which was going on in front of the luggage vans. The Idol stood at the outer edge of the group, watching the struggles of his brothers, their skirmishes with the porter, their tussles with stout mamma. When, however, Temple and Cameron, having recovered one portmanteau, paused in their efforts and had time to look round, they saw the rest of their luggage in a pile beside the Idol, who, was standing in a picturesque attitude with his right foot upon it.

"Hallo!" cried Temple.

And Cameron said angrily: "Why didn't you sing out?"

But his brother merely shrugged his shoulders at the vulgar suggestion, and made no offer of help as Cameron seized his own property and hurried off with it, while Temple, who would have rather died than be seen carrying his own luggage, remained washing his energy in commands to overworked and unheeding porters. When the brothers met again it was on the pavement outside the station.

"No cabs yet?" said Cameron. "We must wait."

"Better go back to town," said Temple gloomily, as he handed to his brother the letter which the Idol had brought.

"Why, what's up?" He looked at the handwriting, and at the heading of the letter:—"Hotel du Louvre, Paris. My darling son."

"Here, what does she say? It's all crossed, and on this foreign paper: I can't make it out."

Temple proceeded to read the letter aloud:

"I am in such great trouble about your father that I can scarcely write, but I hope you will be able to make this letter out. I must tell you that he seemed greatly the better for his stay at Como, and when he heard of your grandfather's death he bore all the trouble and fuss very well. So that when Temple suggested that we should all meet at Westmore and spend a month together in your grandfather's house and arrange matters, I thought he could bear the journey and get ready to start."

"But then came the shocking news about these upstarts Hutchinsons and the next will they have brought forward—destroying all your poor father's hopes and yours after all these years! I am quite sure it will come out to be a forgery—your grandfather could never have been so wicked as to put aside his own flesh and blood in favor of these shameful impostors! But this, of course, will have to be proved—and the worry and shock have made your dear father ill. He now lies in bed. We fear brain fever, and at the best we cannot hope to continue our journey for a week or ten days! I have had to send for Amy to help me nurse him; so you will have to manage as best you can for a few days. I cannot send you any money at present, as with your poor father to care for in his illness I shall need all the little I have. And in view of the expensive lawsuit which will now have to be brought, we must all be extremely careful. I trust to my darling boys to help me in this. If you should be in urgent want of money, Temple had better apply to Mr. Westmacott; being his grandfather he will not be likely to refuse him.

"Be sure the beds are well aired before you sleep in them. But as the house has been occupied so recently I daresay you will not find it damp. I shall come as soon as ever I can. God bless you all, my own dear boys. I will write to Harry in a day or two and am most anxious to hear how my poor boy got through his first experience of being away from his mother. I am afraid he found Eton rather a dreadful place after home."

"Your ever-loving mother."

"P.S.—We have just heard that the new will is not a forgery. I don't know what we shall all do!"

"Well, what are we going to do?"

"Go on to Seaview, take possession of the house, and hold it against the enemy."

Some cabs had by this time driven up, so the three lads got into one of them, and in ten minutes found themselves at the garden gate of a large house, detached but standing in a row, the back of which faced the sea. All three eyed the residence up and down with much disfavor.

At that moment a very tall boy of thirteen or fourteen, in an Eton jacket, which he was rapidly outgrowing, came through the tradesmen's gate at the side of the house, and stood beaming at the new arrivals with a seraphic smile. He was blue-eyed, fair, with a pretty, girlish face, and an expression of guileless innocence and sweetness. The spirits of his three brothers seemed to revive at sight of him. The Idol and his two older brothers were agreed upon no other subject, but in a common bathing of the Cub they were as one. Poor Mrs. Monk, adoring her children, had spoiled them all with lavish indulgence, stirring up thereby many petty feuds and jealousies; so that upon the youngest, as the most spoiled of all, the wrath of all the rest was unadvisedly poured.

"Hallo!" began Cameron aggressively, as he jumped out of the cab.

"Hallo!" echoed the Cub, in a melodious and gentle voice, as he came down to the gate.

"Come and take the luggage in."

But the Cub leaned upon the high gate, caressing two of the spikes on top, and continued to smile.

"Did you hear what I said? Come out and take in the luggage," went on Cameron.

"Yes, I heard what you said," answered the boy as sweetly as ever.

And he turned the key in the gate. Temple and Cameron remained for a moment silent, gazing at the change which a term at Eton had made in the shrinking, whining "mother's boy." The Idol stood a little apart, rather amused at the turn things were taking. Temple took up the cause of the discomfited Cameron.

"Come, do you mean to say," he began, in deep, eldest-son-of-the-family tones.

But the boy cut him short.

"I mean to say," said he, "that I didn't mind lagging at Eton, but I don't mean to do any more of it at home. And I mean to say that this house is shut up, but that I've found a way in. And if you fellows choose to treat me properly, and call me by name and not the Cub, why then I'll choose to let you in. But if you don't, why then you may just stay out there till you're tired, that's all or else spike yourselves getting over the railings."

And dodging Cameron's avenging fists, he stepped back placidly into a flower bed and awaited the decision of his brothers.

CHAPTER II.

The Garrison in Extremities.

Temple came up to the gate and temporized.

"Come, Harry," he said, "don't be a fool. We're all in the same boat now. Haven't you seen the mate's letter?"

"Yes," said Harry.

"Well, then, open the gate and let us in! If you've got any quarrel with Cameron or me, you can have it out, when the governor and mater come back."

"All right. But with the key in his hand the boy turned to Cameron.

"Is that a bargain?"

Cameron nodded impatiently. "Oh, I suppose so. Make a bargain on the safe side of the gate, there's a dear little niminy-piminy gingerbread babykins," he added mockingly.

"I'm no more gingerbread than you are," said Harry in his sweet voice, as he turned the key and let them through the gate. And perhaps I'll prove it to you some day."

"Hildred says you've found a way in," said Temple in a conciliatory tone, as he examined the doors and all of which seemed to be as securely fastened as those in front.

For answer Harry began to swarm up a slender waste-pipe by means of which he, being slight and nimble, managed to reach a covered balcony on the first floor. Then, opening one of the windows with his penknife, amid the suppressed applause of his brothers from below, he made a burglarious entry into the shut-up house, ran down stairs, and admitted the rest through the back door.

They went over the whole house, and at last found their way into the kitchen. Here, as in the rest of the house, everything was in perfect order, neatly stowed away as if for a long rest. The sight of cooking utensils aroused in Cameron the remembrance that he was hungry.

"I haven't had anything to eat since breakfast," said he.

"No more have I—except some cocoanut ice and sausage roths on the way, coming down," added Harry.

Cameron turned out his pockets, revealing three penny "automatic" match boxes, a torn pocket handkerchief, some tram tickets, some other tickets which he put back hastily, and which Temple affected not to recognize, a sixpence, a pipe, a bit of string, a pocket book, five halfpennies, a dog whistle, a cough lozenge, and half a handful of tobacco dust.

"Temple," he said, "you must take the mater's advice and write to old Westmacott."

His brother, who was sitting astride a wooden chair, shook his head ruefully. "No good," said he, affecting an air of nonchalance. "I quarreled with him last week."

Cameron looked aghast. After a few moments' blank despair he started up and seized his hat.

"Very well, then, I'm going straight to the nearest hotel and ask them to take me on as waiter."

"But you can't wait!" suggested the Cub's sweet, shrill voice, as he put himself in the doorway to detain his desperate brother.

"Then I'll go around and sing in the streets," rejoined Cameron firmly.

"Well, if you can't sing any better than you used to, you'll be taken up for making a disturbance in a public thoroughfare, and we shall be rid of you."

And the Cub made way for him. Finding himself no longer opposed, Cameron hesitated.

"I can't go back to town," he said gloomily. "I could paper my chamber with writs."

This boast filled his younger brothers with fearful admiration, but Temple greeted it with incredulous laughter. Hildred, who was leaning on the dresser in a beautiful attitude, threw back his head and spoke.

"It is merely a question of dinner," he said, dreamily. "I am prepared to solve it, on the understanding that such sums as I now expend shall be reimbursed by mamma out of your several allowances. And it must be conceded that I obtain repayment direct from her."

"There is coal in the cellar."

"There is also wood," interrupted the Idol in contemplative tones.

"Do you expect me to eat cheese at eightpence or ninepence a pound?" inquired Temple, who had been listening to these details with lofty disgust.

But Hildred replied that plain living and high thinking was his ideal, and suggested that Harry do the marketing. The Cub had risen so enormously in the estimation of his brothers since making a stand for his own position that no opposition was offered to this. Hildred doled him out ten shillings. Cameron presented him with the spare half sheet of a dining letter, on which the things he was to get, and the prices he was to pay for them were quite illegibly inscribed with a very thick pencil; and the boy started, with an air of proud and sober responsibility. Hildred, however, gazed after him with a thoughtful look.

"If it were not that the sight of a customer with any claims to distinction of person has a tendency to increase prices, I should have thought it wiser to accompany my list," he murmured.

"Oh, he's all right," said Cameron, as he tore up Temple's "Truth" to light the fire with. "I had no notion the boy had so much gumption as he showed to-day. Here, Temple, you and Hildred might be getting the luggage into the house."

But Temple said testily that there was no hurry; they could leave the things outside till it was dark.

"We don't want to be seen dragging in our own luggage, like footmen," he added.

Cameron, who had succeeded in lighting his fire, stepped back from the range, and stared at his brother.

"Why, what on earth does it matter?" he asked, in amazement. "And if it did, who knows us here?"

"One never knows who may see one, down at those places," objected Temple, unreasonably, not meeting his brother's eye.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" said Cameron, contemptuously. "We're afraid of being seen by Colonel Frere and his daughter, are we?"

A Fossil Elephant.

A fossil elephant has been found ten kilometers from Brioude, in France, on the slope of an old volcano, the Seneze, which rises from the central plain. It is the skeleton of an elephant meridionalis, and is nearly entire. Active volcanoes, so destructive of life, are sometimes good preservers of animal remains, as, for example, at Pompeii, where the fine ash kept the object from being washed away.

Twenty Years' Experience of Your Neighbor.

I suffered with dyspepsia and constipation for twenty years, and tried doctors and most of the so-called remedies for those troubles without receiving any material benefit. About a year ago I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Leane's Dyspepsia Pills, and soon found they were helping me. After using several more bottles, as usual, and now, my meals as I had not before in years, they cannot be recommended too highly. S. W. ALEXANDER, Watchmaker and Jeweler, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

PERSONALS.

Those Who Come and Those Who Go.

Chas. Parmenter has been ill for a week past.

Miss Alice Beal is in attendance at Albion college.

Silas Clark was at Willis Friday inspecting timber.

Miss Lettie Johnson spent Sunday with friends at Clyde.

Will Groner goes to Milford to engage in the Laundry business.

Homer Ely went to Detroit Saturday evening, returning Monday.

Frank Sutton is out again from an attack of grip and sore throat.

Miss Edith Webster visited Detroit relatives a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Wood were with their son Fred over Sunday.

Mrs. A. E. Rockwell and daughter, Inez spent last week in Detroit.

Mrs. M. J. Murphy returned to her home in Cleveland Friday afternoon.

J. W. Fuller is home from the Detroit hospital much improved in health.

Mrs. Mary Emery and daughter Lizzie of Detroit are visiting in the village.

Frank Fry has been elected secretary of the Epworth League in place of Miss Jessie Ely, resigned.

Clarence Clark and John Blackwood U. of M. students, are home this week for a brief vacation.

Miss Lou Reed, for the past two years with the Caylord News, is home for the summer.

Frank Groner will reside in Plymouth this summer. He will finish learning the mason trade.

Clarence English, foreman in the Record office, was home, So. Lyon, over Saturday and Sunday.

C. E. Huff is home from the Ypsilanti business college and will assist his brother Abe in the restaurant.

Chas. Filkins and family, Will Palmer, A. E. Tower, and Bert Morey were over at Ypsilanti viewing the ruins of the cyclone.

Carl Capell and friend, Chas. Fordham, of Detroit were out here over Sunday. They came out on their wheels Friday night.

If you haven't done so, just notice the far away expression on the countenance of Will Ambler. Why is it? Well he is building a house.

C. R. Walters, formerly of this place, but who has been sup't. of the water works of Essex, Ont. for the past year, has resumed his old place at the factory.

Remember, Mrs. Gen. Custer, in her famous reading, Garrison Life on the Plains, Friday evening April 25th in the Northville Methodist church. Admission 35 cents; children 25.

Eugene Riggs, brother of Ed. L. Riggs the clothier, is now employed at one of the chairs in Peter Connell's barber shop. Riggs is a first class workman.

Geo. B. Yerkes of Detroit spent Sunday with his parents in this place. His wife and child, who have been visiting here for a week past, returned home with him Monday morning.

Bert Stark, H. F. Brown, H. Teichner, W. H. Hutton, M. A. Porter, Sam. Cranson, Dr. Blanchard, Ed. L. Riggs, Geo. Waterman, C. C. Yerkes, L. A. Babbitt and Ed. Laphman saw Joe Jefferson in Rip Van Winkle at Detroit last evening.

The Misses Edith and Minnie Reed, Nellie Thompson, Minnie Beal and Winnie Walline arrived home from the Normal school, Ypsilanti, Friday night, for a week's vacation. Miss Whipple of Novi also came home with them. The young ladies say that their first knowledge of Wednesday night's big cyclone in that city was gleaned about five o'clock the following morning when a neighbor came over to their boarding house and invited them to go down and see the ruins.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nantala of South Finland are Northville visitors for a week or two. Mr. Nantala is sent to this country by the Finland government to investigate the fish hatcheries. Mrs. Nantala is a delegate to the temperance congress of the World's fair. She addressed the W. T. U. last Wednesday and told of the custom and work in her home and her father was governor of South Finland. While here they are guests at E. B. Reed's.

THEY ARE THANKFUL.

We, the members of Northville Fire Co. herewith wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our ex-chief, James Hoar, for his valued services as chief of the Northville Fire Co. No. 1, as an efficient officer, as a hearty co-worker, as a general gentleman. We shall long remember him and regret his resignation.

FOR MEN.

(Edited weekly by one of them.)

Many of our workers received copies of the last quarterly issued by the state secretary of Y. M. C. A. It is full of facts.

Discouragements like giants stand in the way. Even the faith of the workers runs at low ebb at times, but while the world stands, such things will be.

Detroit has a magnificent Y. M. C. A. building thorough in its equipments and a delightful place to go. Should you have a leisure hour, when in the city why not go in there? You will be heartily welcomed.

Why will men smoke those detestable cigarettes? They are the vilest smelling and most harmful items in the tobacco line. Then too we have seen those who professed to be gentlemen use the cigarettes in the presence of ladies. It's ill mannerly to say the least.

The most splendid meeting of our new departure took place Sunday. Mr. Venn of Detroit gave an excellent talk about "The Ideal Young Man in Business" taking as the basis of his remarks the words, "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." It was the largest attended of any of our meetings. Eighty-three were present. Thanks to Prof. Bliss for securing to us the good talk.

Boy's Brigade Talk. Mr. F. R. Beal gave the usual monthly practical talk to the Boy's Brigade last Friday evening. The subject was "The Boy who Wins." You can faintly imagine the interest of such a theme at the hands of one who not only discussed but illustrated his theme. The following is an outline of the talk: The boy who wins must be Truthful, Respectful, Useful, Slow to Anger, Thoughtful, Watchful, Obedient, Ready, Trusty, Hopeful, Yoked with good company. As these items appeared on the blackboard one above the other, it will be noticed that the initials sum up the whole story, Trustworthy.

We commend these principles to every boy in Northville. Mr. Beal expressed the hope and confidence that there are not a few boys in our village who are working just this program. He said further that the open doors to usefulness and success are just as numerous and easily swung as ever. This is just one item in the work of the Boy's Brigade. Every well-behaved boy in Northville between ten and twenty-one years of age may become a member.

LOCAL GLEANINGS.

Things Said and Did in the Liveliest and Prettiest Village in Michigan.

Louis A. Beal has purchased a fine Victor bicycle.

Morning topic at the Presbyterian church, "Abraham's Trust."

Mrs. Geo. Lake has moved into her house recently purchased of Al. Blair.

Alvin Vandyne has moved into his Cadz street home, and Mrs. Ray occupies his former home.

The printing of envelopes by the government for business purposes will be abolished September next.

Northville fire company will have a drill Tuesday, April 25. All members are requested to be present.

F. H. Beatty and Miss Vina Smock of Farmington were married by Rev. W. T. Jaques at the Presbyterian parsonage, Detroit, yesterday.

Remember, Mrs. Gen. Custer, in her famous reading, "Garrison Life on the Plains," Friday evening April 28th, in the Northville Methodist church. Admission 35 cents; children 25.

The Northville fire company is now newly organized and officered as follows: W. T. Gurr, chief; F. D. Adams, foreman; C. A. McCullough, 1st asst foreman; W. H. Safford, 2d asst foreman; J. W. McCully, secretary; Ed. Simonds, treasurer.

Miss Mabel Clark gave a special critical before the class of '94 and some forty invited guests last evening. She recited each of the six numbers in a very creditable manner eliciting a hearty applause from the guests. Miss Clark has a sweet voice and her manner and gestures were very commendable.

Order of exercises at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening are:

- Hymns—169, 113.
- Responsive reading with Gloria.
- Duet—"One Day Nearer Home."
- Hymns and Prayer—78
- Scripture Lesson.
- Anthem—"O, Morning Land."
- Hymn—206.
- Sermon—"Joseph Sold in Egypt."
- Hymn—232.

These services are in the interest of the young people.

Too much cannot be said in praise of "The Gettysburg Spy" drama as produced by home talent at the opera house here last week. The way in which the play was handled and the effects of its production could hardly have been surpassed on the professional stage. The club, for they have since organized as such, are to be congratulated upon the success achieved. Members of the Northville Dramatic Club, the RECORD is proud of you.

In every city and town in the country the people are directly and strongly interested in having an honest, capable and efficient postmaster to handle their mails, and the whole country is interested in having such a postmaster in every town. For every post office there are many applicants. Some of them are competent, and some are not. But the person or persons in Washington who must make choice among them cannot possibly know, in the great majority of cases, which are fit and which are unfit. And if they seek advice it must come in most cases from men with political interests to serve, which are wholly apart from the interest of the postal service. Would it not be wiser to alter our system of choosing postmasters? Should we not get better men and a more efficient service if we left the choice of these purely local public servants to the people immediately concerned? Is not the suggestion to make postmasters elective a thoroughly wise one? What sound objections are there to it?

If you want first-class reliable nursery stock, just let me know. MONROE THORNTON.

Already there are 13 water taker applicants.

The Milford city dads have raised the saloon bonds from $3,000 to $5,000.

When in Detroit stop at the Wayne hotel and enjoy the best dinner you ever tasted.

DRESSMAKING—Miss Celia Corwin is prepared to do sewing by the day. Inquire at B. Freeman's Cady St. 2w.

Gov. Rich has appointed April 25th as Arbor Day. By the way this is the same day that Mrs. Gen. Custer will be here.

Al. Blair has put in water works at his place on Rogers street, and has moved in his new barn until his new house is completed.

The Orion Review now presents a decided improved appearance. The reading matter has been greatly added to, both as to quality and quantity.

Yerkes Bros. have a change of ad this week. They are making a speciality of feed grinding and have put the price down to such figures as to draw in farmers for miles around.

Quarterly meeting services at the Methodist church next Sabbath. The love feast will be held at 6:15 p. m. when the roll of the church membership will be called and each expected to respond in some way to his or her name.

Note the following from a private letter to Pastor Parrish: "Rev. F. W. Ware took Walled Lake by storm Sabbath Morning. Your people will have a treat on a very timely subject. I hope they will turn out en masse."

D. B. MILLAR, Pastor M. E. Church.

Hear him at the Methodist church tonight.

Our school board has tendered all the teachers of the school their same positions for another year. Each department, except the two grammar rooms, are to have a raise of salary. Prof. Bliss gets a raise from $950 to $1,000; the preceptress formerly received $400, she will receive $500 next year. The four rooms down stairs are raised from $350 to $50, and the two grammar rooms remain the same, $350.

Negotiations are now pending whereby it is likely that the Labadie-Bowell dramatic company will be at the Northville opera house the last of May. They will play "Damon and Pythias" and as they are one of the best companies now traveling, they will no doubt receive a warm welcome. Hubert Labadie, May Loranger and C. C. Curmilla who will be remembered as playing here last winter have now joined this company.

One of the best entertainments of the season was that given at the opera house Monday evening by the Pigott sisters, of Detroit. By their charming, modest, and unassuming way they won the hearts of the audience at the very outset. The young ladies are talented musicians and are certainly deserving of the success and praise they are receiving. Nearly every number on the program received a hearty encore which was gratefully responded to. Should they visit Northville again they will receive an ovation.

Recently a minister was heard to remark that a newspaper that told the truth could not be a pecuniary success. The minister who will at all times and under any circumstances, tell the whole truth about his members, alive or dead, might not occupy the pulpit more than one Sunday, and in some cases might find it convenient to leave town. The press and the pulpit go hand in hand with the whitewash brush and pleasant words, magnifying little virtues into big ones. The pulpit, the press and the grave stones are the great saint making triumvirate.

Now if the council will appropriate a reasonable sum with which to pay the fire company for drill, and work, there is no reason why Northville should not have one of the best fire companies, and the best fire protection system in the state. The first thing now needed, however, is some sort of a fire alarm system. To this we have called the attention of the council no less than fifty times the past year and a half. Every tax payer in the village with whom we have talked are unanimous in saying, arrangements should be made for something of the kind at once. Thousands of dollars worth of property is daily hazarded for want of such a system. Prompt action has often saved much valuable property. Let the village be divided off into wards, say four of them, Bealtown, Main, Northside and west. Let there be a different series of alarms for each ward, either from bells, whistles, or some understood signal. By this means the fire company knows at once, day or night, just what to do and where to go. Northville will not always be as lucky in respect to fires as she has been in the past. They are drawing near—Belleville, Wayne, Plymouth and Holly are recent sufferers. Will Milford and Northville come next? "In the time of peace prepare for war."

Now that the fire company has been reorganized and newly officered, great results may be expected from them. The election of Chas. Booth, assessor by the council last week, in place of Mr. Northrop resigned, every man on the "Citizens" ticket now holds office. Mr. Booth will, without doubt, make a very capable officer. It is now Marshal P. E. White. The council made the wise selection Thursday evening. Mr. White is a man who, in the matter of duty, knows neither friend nor foe. In years gone by he made one of the best marshals Northville ever had and that he will prove as efficient this year, goes without the saying. In reply to a query whether she would like to meet admirers of Gen. Custer after her reading, here next week Friday night, Mrs. Custer writes us that she always endeavors to stop after her reading and speak with those who knew or admired Gen. Custer and that she will be glad to do so at Northville.

Friends of the Sabbath Attention. A grand rally of the churches and friends of the Lord's Day will be held in the Methodist church this Thursday evening, April 20th. Rev. F. W. Ware, Field, Secretary of the Michigan Sabbath Union will address the meeting. Mr. Ware is a master of the subject and will discuss many phases of the problem of Sabbath observance. Let Northville respond to this call. Bring the boys and girls and fire them with ardor for the Sabbath of our fathers. REV. J. M. BELLING, REV. F. R. PARRISH.

DR. BENNETT.

The cases of Martin Boyce, George Bryant, Mrs. D. Shaffer, and others which have been reported in these columns, as remarkable cures by Dr. Bennett, are those of reliable persons whose integrity and veracity are unquestionable. They are only a few among the many. A distinguishing feature of Dr. Bennett's work is his complete eradication of the root cause in the system, successfully treating Chronic Diseases, which have been by eminent and skilled Physicians, previously pronounced incurable. His method discards the old-time remedies Alteratives, Blood Purifiers, Diuretics and Tonics. Files, Cures, Fissures and all Rectal troubles he cures without the knife, ligatures, clamp or cauterization. His original method is derived from the clinical experience demonstrated daily, in his work of treating Chronic Diseases. A detailed explanation will be given free also Consultation, in German and English, by Dr. Bennett at the Macomber house, Wednesday, April 26.

STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

YPSILANTI, ROYAL OAK, REA AND OTHER PLACES.

Torn up by a Terrible Tornado—Two People Burned to Death in the Ruins of Their Home.

A cyclone of the Western Kansas stripe paid Ypsilanti a flying visit and left unmistakable evidences of its visit and character. As a result of this hurried call a large portion of the business section of the town was badly demolished. It was just growing dark when the Ypsilantiites observed a dark bank of clouds moving up from the southeast, but it was thought to be an April shower and no particular attention was paid to it. Soon the wind began to blow, and before the people knew what had happened houses, barns, roofs, trees, etc., were flying in all directions. This lasted less than three minutes, and all was silent and dark. The electric light wires had been blown down, and there was no light. Rain added to the terror of the people, but soon the sky cleared and a beautiful calm settled down over the scene of desolation.

An investigation of the damage done was made as soon as possible. Prof. J. C. McClintock's handsome residence was the first building struck, and it was razed to the ground. Chicago avenue was made a scene of desolation. The main building, which was torn from the ground, fences leveled, Behr's hall was destroyed, Wm. Drisley's house unroofed. Then a large double brick dwelling was entirely demolished. Cleary's Business college unroofed, and otherwise seriously injured. H. M. Curtis' Carriage factory leveled to the ground and Drapers' opera house entirely ruined. Scenes in the Hawkins house were very lively; a number of guests were eating a late supper when suddenly without warning the whole upper portion of the wing where the dining room is located fell in upon them. Several dining-room chairs and several guests were in the room and all escaped with hardly a bruise. Yost's livery barn was unroofed as was the Dolson block and Worden's store building. The Laible block was unroofed and the telephone exchange nearly destroyed. The Occidental Hotel and Fairchild's meat market were damaged. The north wall of the Bucklin block was torn out and the wind tore up a barn standing in rear of the block and, with its contents, including three horses, landed at the foot of the hill on meadow land near the Haron River.

Continuing its eastward course, the storm cloud swept across the river moving a path through that residence portion of the city, badly damaging dwellings and barns that lay before it. Coming at an hour when the streets were lined with people, it seems like a miracle that no one should have been killed.

Two People Cremated in the Ruins. At Royal Oak the storm just grazed the village proper. Nearly everything in its path was leveled to the earth. To the southwest a fire soon started, to add misery to the destruction wrought, and but a few minutes later another blaze was seen to the north of the village. The inhabitants turned out with their lanterns, but could do little save to help extricate the live stock from some demolished barns, and express their sympathy to neighbors who had suffered losses.

The first fire referred to was that of the residence of Christian Brick, on the town line road. The house was utterly torn to pieces, and to add to the desolation the creek took fire. Mr. and Mrs. Brick and their three children were in the house at the time. The children managed to extricate themselves, but the father and mother were actually burned alive before their children's eyes.

The barn of a Mr. Kleinaw was wrecked and Mr. Kleinaw went out with a lantern to extricate his horses, this lantern was kicked over and the debris set on fire. This was the second blaze spoken of above. Other places destroyed about Royal Oak were: David Evans' home, and the homes of John McClure, Andrew Campbell, Ira Barnum, Frank Knowles, and L. D. Funn. Several other residences were damaged but not destroyed.

THE STORM ELSEWHERE.

Miraculous Escape of Passengers in a Fast Train Wrecked on the Grand Trunk.

A cyclone struck Chesterfield, a small town on the Grand Trunk railroad between Port Huron and Detroit. Its course was across the track near the depot. Two freight cars standing on a side track were blown across the main track just a few minutes ahead of the Toronto express. This train does not stop at Chesterfield, but passes through at a terrific rate of speed. The engineer on the express saw the freight cars on the main track, but before he could slacken speed he had run his train into them with a great crash. The express was thrown into the ditch and the three coaches piled upon each other. The baggage man was the only one seriously hurt. He was badly cut about the head and internally injured. The passengers all miraculously escaped.

Lake Rates on Ore.

The question of lake freights remains unsettled yet, but every indication points to the highest ore freights for the past five years this season. The vesselmen are masters of the situation. Were it not for the action of vesselmen in asking high freights several times as much as has yet been sold would have been contracted for this season's delivery.

Bert Spafford, of Cadillac, formerly a deputy sheriff in Wexford county, has been appointed hall master at the Jackson prison to succeed Eugene Meehan, who goes to Marquette as deputy warden. This is the first important appointment under Warden Chamberlain.

Samuel D. Gage, of Saginaw, has been appointed chief train dispatcher of the Flint & Pere Marquette as successor to C. S. Cheney, resigned. Mr. Gage was one of the best known and most popular passenger conductors on the road and his appointment will give general satisfaction.

Charles Devoe, a Detroit, Lansing & Northern brakeman, lost his right foot at Lyons. He attempted to take a fire-alarm can of oil from the train as it passed the station and fell between the platform and car. His leg was amputated below the knee. His wife and two children live in Grand Rapids.

The body of a man was found in Emory's boom at East Tawas. It had on a pair of heavy shoes fastened with overshoe buckles, a two-bladed pocket knife, and an empty tobacco pouch. It is supposed that he is one of the two lost off the J. M. Spalding Nov. 17, but he may be a man lost off a steam barge there last fall.

Owosso was very much wrought up over the mysterious death of an infant. A little body was found in the river, and no one could tell where it came from or to whom it belonged. It was a nice-looking child, weighing about six pounds. The physicians, upon examining it, came to the conclusion that it was alive when thrown into the water.

A fine mare belonging to Patrick O'Toole, of Merrill, was killed in a singular manner. The animal stepped on the end of a piece of board, which flew up and struck her just inside the stifle joint. So violent was the blow that the sharp part of the board was forced clear through the mare's body, protruding at least six inches. The animal bled to death in a few minutes.

Four of the oldest employees of the water board, of Detroit, have been discovered to be short in their accounts between $1,200 and $1,500, and have resigned at the request of the board. The men are Anthony T. McLogan, Harris L. James, Max F. Greuner and Albert W. Goodsell, assessors for the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Sixteenth Wards. They admit the defalcation.

The Zion German Evangelical church at Bay City has withdrawn from the Michigan conference and engaged Rev. H. Snyder as pastor. Meanwhile the conference has instructed the old pastor, Rev. J. G. THE DETROIT HUMMER.

THE FASTEST CRUISER IN THE WORLD OF HER CLASS.

The Test on Long Island Sound Showed an Average Speed of 13 1/2 Knots an Hour—Other General News.

The new cruiser Detroit is a grand success. During her final run on Long Island Sound she developed an average speed of 13 1/2 knots an hour. To this the additions and deductions in consequence of the tide will be made by the naval officers, and it is safe to say that a speed of 19 knots was maintained. Having made this record, the Detroit bears the distinction of the fastest of her class in the world. Contracted for to develop 17 knots an hour and having developed 19 knots, the Columbia Iron Works & Dry Dock company, of Baltimore, the builders, will receive a premium of $200,000.

At 11:45:18 o'clock the starting point was reached. The steam gauges showed a pressure of 163 pounds on the boilers, and the Detroit crossed the line with Capt. Thomas at the helm. The course as laid down by the navy department instructions was from a point two and fifty-five hundredths nautical miles south of Stratford shoal light-house to the intersection of the Saybrook range with line joining Faulker Island and Plum Island light-houses. The course is 35 99-100 nautical miles long, and the entire run of 71 99-100 miles was made in three hours 54 minutes and 48 seconds. The time allowed by the government was four hours, therefore when the finishing point was reached the Detroit had six minutes and twelve seconds to spare, greatly to her credit. During the run the average run of a mile was three minutes and 21 seconds. The fastest mile was made in three minutes and four seconds, which was the first mile run after the Detroit was turned off Stratford shoal.

The personnel of the cruiser will consist of 22 officers, 30 lieutenants, 25 mates, and 135 sailors, making a total of 262 men. The rig of the vessel is that of a three-masted schooner, having a yard on the foremast, the spread of canvas being 6,300 square feet. The boat outfit will be one steam cutter, one sailing launch, one whale boat, two cutters, one gig and two dinghies. The working boats will be carried on skid-beams over the quarterdeck, for the handling of which two derricks are fitted. The steering apparatus will consist of a steam steering engine, which is located underneath the water-tight deck immediately abaft of the engine room, and is arranged to be worked by hand as well as by steam, and is connected with the pilot house and conning tower.

Fatal Wreck on the Ann Arbor.

A collision occurred on the Ann Arbor road about four miles north of Farwell about a work train and the northbound passenger train. Two men were killed, several badly injured and one missing. None of the passengers were injured.

The men killed in the collision are: William Unger, Owosso; Esau Ruskwell, Owosso; and Frank Mitchell, Owosso. The injured are: Frank Thompson, Elsie, thigh broken and otherwise injured. May die. O. S. Croutiers, Owosso. James Pickering, of Farwell, badly bruised. Several other laborers were slightly bruised and cut.

The work train had been picking up some wrecked cars and was backing up when the passenger train struck it. It is impossible to say who was to blame for the accident.

Achior Day's Proclamation.

In compliance with an honored custom and with public sentiment, I hereby designate Friday, April 28, 1894, to be observed as Arbor Day. The general observance of this day by the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers is most earnestly recommended. In this way our homes, highways and public places may be improved and adorned, and future generations benefited. It is further recommended that the beneficial object of the day be impressed upon the minds of our youth by appropriate exercises in our public schools.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state, at the Capitol in Lansing, this 16th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and seventeenth.

JOHN T. RICH, Governor.
JOHN W. JOHNS, Secretary of State.

The Golden Eagle.

The Michigan grand lodge, Knights of the Golden Eagle, held its annual meeting at Detroit with 40 delegates in attendance from nine different cities. Officers were elected and a gain of four castles and a gain of new membership of over a hundred was reported. In the evening a banquet was held at Lieders Hotel. The officers elected were: grand chief, F. A. Vandervoort, of Grand Rapids; grand vice-chief, J. B. Tegan, of Detroit; grand high priest, F. G. Crose, of Detroit; grand sir herald, P. A. Sanford, of Grand Rapids; grand master of the records, J. G. Stewart, of Detroit; grand keeper of the exchequer, D. D. Carl, of Pittsford. The retiring grand chief was C. H. Gale.

Baptist Sunday School Convention.

A state Sunday school convention, under the auspices of the Michigan Baptist Sunday school board was held in Charlevoix. Addresses were delivered by Rev. A. S. Carman, of Ann Arbor; G. H. Champan, of Chicago, president of the Baptist Young People's union of America. About 75 delegates were present.

Women Want in the Agricultural College.

A. T. Linderman appeared before the state board of agriculture at Lansing and presented the claims of the state for a dormitory and a course of instruction at the Agricultural college. The board will consider the matter. Geo. A. Hilton wanted the board to continue the experiments in bee-keeping at the college. President Clute was authorized to select four employees to look after the college exhibit at the World's Fair. The resignation of Prof. E. A. Bennett, to take effect in August, was accepted.

THE LEGISLATORS.

SENATE—Sixty-eighth day.—The committee on judiciary reported a substitute bill providing that justices of the peace take bonds to the sum of $100 for the appearance of drunks and disorderlies, and may suspend sentence on condition that the drunk cure themselves and remain sober for a period of 60 days. IS THIS A REVOLUTION?

BELGIAN WORKING CLASSES FIGHT FOR THE BALLOT.

Thousands of Rioters Cause Alarm—A Plot to Overthrow the Government—Bloodshed in Brussels.

For some time the working classes of Belgium have been agitating universal suffrage and the question had become a favorite theme with all labor organizations and socialists and numerous disturbances have resulted in various places. One of the most serious disturbances that has occurred during the present agitation against the universal suffrage bill took place at Jolimon. In a fight between the strikers and the gendarmes one woman was killed and three of the strikers seriously wounded.

Brussels, the capital, is in a state of terror such as characterized the opening of the "reign of terror" in Paris. All places of amusement are closed and large throngs of riotous strikers crowd the streets day and night. Mayor Buis, while walking to his home on the Avenue Louis, was attacked by strikers and knocked to the ground by a heavy blow on the head with a club. He fell bleeding and unconscious to the side walk, and half a dozen shots were fired at the prostrate form. The turbulent crowds fought the police in several districts of the city. In the Rue de la Barriere near the Maison du Peuple the mob became so threatening that mounted soldiers charged them with drawn swords. The rioters threw jars of green fire and repeated volleys of stones among the police. Many of the mob were cut or trampled upon. Twelve were arrested. Several policemen were burned and bruised. The city is as if in a state of siege.

The situation in the provinces is grave, and reports of strikes, disorder and struggles between the people and the military are being received from various directions. At Trazevignes, near Charleville a severe conflict took place, the working people strenuously resisting the orders of the police and military to disperse. The soldiers at length charged upon the mob, killing one workingman and wounding a woman. The situation in the smaller cities is even worse than in Brussels. The capital was almost in a panic over reports that the socialists of Ghent, many thousand strong, were marching on the city.

King Leopold is strongly averse to violence as long as it can be averted, and would not consent to any extreme use of the military arm unless it should appear to be absolutely necessary. He is said to be arriving, however, at that conviction. It is reported that the Belgian authorities have information showing that a conspiracy exists for the overthrow of the monarchy and the establishment of a republic, and that the conspirators count upon French support. Certain it is that the crisis in Belgium cannot longer be kept from a decisive issue. There must be either war or yielding on the part of the bourgeoisie or governing class within a short time. The first guns of what threatens to be a revolution have already been fired. Dispatches become hourly more alarming and there is some reason for fearing that it is already too late to check the rising demand for the ballot.

Annals at Honolulu.

The steamship Alameda, which arrived at Honolulu brought among her passengers Paul Neumann and Prince David Karamanikoff, the deposed queen's envoys to Washington, Wm. B. Castle, one of the Hawaiian commissioners, and Harold M. Sewell, former United States consul-general to Samoa. Honorable E. C. Macfarlane, another of the exponents of the queen's side, was also on board. Neumann said: "I went to Washington in the interest of the queen to prevent, if possible, injustice being done. I favored the appointment of a commissioner to examine into the state of affairs before judgment was pronounced and have secured my point. I have brought back no assurances to the queen, but I believe her best assurance lies in the fact that Mr. Blount was appointed and has been sent here. If annexation were possible I should be in favor of it, but I don't consider it possible at present. I don't think it practicable and I don't believe the United States would annex the islands unless it were practicable. If it is feasible I am rather in favor of a protectorate, which I think would settle the question one for all."

Commissioner Castle said there was no denying that a reaction had set in in the United States to a certain extent against annexation but he saw no reason to infer that Cleveland was hostile to an annexation policy.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

The troubles in the state of Chimborazo arising from the refusal of the peasants to pay tithes has assumed formidable proportions.

A fall of nine stories was given elevator boy Fred Noake at the Security building, Chicago. He was picked up dead, nearly every bone in his body being broken.

Two miners were killed and three others seriously injured by the caving in of the Champion Coal Mine at Woods Run, Pa.

J. W. Flood, 27 years cashier of the Donohoe-Kelley Banking company, of New York, has been arrested. His accounts are said to be short $25,000.

A plot to destroy with dynamite the whitening works of E. V. Crandall at Mospath, N. Y., has been disclosed to the police by a prisoner in jail at Long Island City.

Tramps who call on Dundee on their pilgrimages are given the best shelter, food and board of any village in southern Michigan. A stone pile and a 10-pound sledge also await the festive rambler.

Baron Houghton, lord lieutenant of Ireland, has issued an order limiting the importation of arms and ammunition to Ireland. Arms and ammunition must be imported only at certain ports, and all consignees must, previous to consignment, obtain a permit of the importation from the customs officers giving particulars of the arms consigned.

PROTECTORATE WITHDRAWN.

Hawaiian Commissioner Blount Orders the American Flag Down at Honolulu.

Information from Honolulu says: The stars and stripes, which for two months have floated over the government building here have been hauled down. The forces of the United States cruiser Boston have been sent aboard and nothing remains that indicates American authority save the presence of Minister Stevens and Commissioner Blount. The mission of the latter has been made known; though he still sits cogitating in his easy chair in his cottage. On April 1, in the presence of 2,000 persons to the notes of a retreat "old glory" was hauled down and the flag of the monarchy hoisted. Mr. Blount gave as the reason for declaring the protectorate off that the Washington administration did not think it necessary. The United States however would brook no interference in Hawaiian affairs by any outside nation. This latter assurance rendered the professional government to submit. President Dole says he hopes the affair will not be made a partisan political matter in America. There are a great many rumors about the probable action of Japan and a great deal of mystery.

Noble East Indian.

The Bramo Samaja caste, the highest of the four castes of India, is represented among the students of Battle Creek college by Swamee K. Nand. His father is a member of Jindhur, a province about as large as the state of Pennsylvania. During the centennial the governor was in this country, and became acquainted with the late Col. Elliot S. Shepard. The latter took an interest in young Nand when he arrived in this country to complete his education. He had graduated from the university of Calcutta, a college in Bombay, and received an A. M. and a Ph. D. After spending at Col. Shepard's advice, some time at Yale and the university of Pennsylvania, he came to Battle Creek to do himself for a mission. He embraced the Christian religion several years ago.

City Destroyed by an Earthquake.

Advices from Athens say: The island of Zante, one of the principal islands, was visited by a most destructive earthquake resulting in great loss of life and property. The shock appears to have been most violent in the city of Zante, the greater part of which was destroyed. The streets are impassable, being filled with masses of stone and timber, the wreckage of the houses which were thrown down. The number of persons injured runs up into the hundreds.

Advices from the interior show that the whole island has been devastated. Many villages have been destroyed, and it is thought the loss of life has been very great. The Greek government acted promptly in rendering aid.

Killed by His Own Carelessness.

Ralph Crawford, the 15-year-old son of Clarence H. Crawford, a prominent citizen of Grand Rapids, met with a fatal accident while attempting to board a freight train which was in motion. He slipped under the wheels and his left leg was crushed in a terrible manner. The leg was amputated above the knee, but the boy could not recover from the shock and died shortly after the operation.

The Central Traffic association has published a list of the round trip fares from important points in its territory to the World's Fair. The rates, which are on regular trains only, are figured at 2 cents a mile for the entire distance covered, coming and going. A few of the rates are as follows: Detroit, $12.40; Grand Rapids, $8.65; Kalamazoo, Mich., $6.40.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

New York, April 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The ruling fact in the business situation is the outflow of gold, $1,000,000 last week with the prospect of a large amount this week. Treasury gold is again reduced below $2,000,000 in excess of the outflow fund and there is more talk of bond issues with the old doubt whether the e would meet the real difficulty, which is the enormous excess of imports over exports of goods. In speculative markets cotton is a quarter lower, the price of enormous stocks here and abroad being felt as should have been expected, while reports of increased acreage come from the south. On wheat the Chicago corner for May above 90c while 7c would buy at New York, and receipts at western ports were nearly 2,000,000 bu. in four days. Prices here advanced only 1/4c, while corn declined 1/2c and oats advanced 1/2c. Pork products are a shade stronger and also oil, but no real work. At nearly all points, both north and south, collections are rather slow with somewhat more active demand for money at most. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 29. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 25.

Auditor Ackerman has made a report showing that that building of the World's Fair has already cost $16,705,826, twice the sum expended for the Paris exposition, and more yet to be paid out.

Thousands of Texas cattle are being unloaded in the Cherokee strip. Most of these are driven overland to the Osage reservation, but their presence will, it is asserted, so infect the strip with germs of Spanish fever that all native or northern cattle taken upon the land will take the fever and die. The prospective settlers are indignant that the government should allow this.

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

'August Flower'

"I have been afflicted with biliousness and constipation for fifteen years and first one and then another preparation was suggested to me and tried, but to no purpose. A friend recommended August Flower and words cannot describe the admiration in which I hold it. It has given me a new lease of life, which before was a burden. Its good qualities and wonderful merits should be made known to everyone suffering with dyspepsia and biliousness."

LOVE WILL TRIUMPH. It was a beautiful morning in May. The landscape, clad in luxuriant verdure, was like a pleased child in a new and becoming dress.

His mood the next morning was cheerful. He busied himself in his dooryard, in order that he might see Miss Yoland when it was time for her to go for the mail.

The longer Mr. Chadwick thought the more he became convinced that the principal blame should be attached to Mr. Yolombard. Nevertheless the young man concluded that the indignity which he had sustained required that he should assume a greater indifference than Miss Yoland had yet manifested.

"You do not understand me, I fear," Mr. Chadwick said. "The fact is, I have all of my life been surrounded by so much tiresome luxury and have mingled so much in artificial society that it is a positive relief to me, and affords me great pleasure at last to live in the country and enjoy its simple pleasures."

At first she thought she ought to obey her father and treated Mr. Chadwick accordingly, although such a course was repugnant to her feelings. Later she learned why her father so disliked Mr. Chadwick, the reason being what the young man had suspected, and she was ashamed of her father because he was not magnanimous.

Yoland had plighted their troth, but he believed that Mr. Yolombard would desperately oppose the match. "I do not think he will if I tell you a secret and you tell it to him," was the old lady's singular reply.

"Please read," replied the young man, as he produced the manuscript. Mr. Yolombard read a few minutes, and then turned very pale.

The wedding took place the next May at the millionaire's country residence, and the ceremony was performed in a room that was tastefully adorned with apple blossoms. Mr. Yolombard's son and wife now live in the country the most of the year, and the young man manages the two farms, 400 acres in all, in a profitable and sensible manner.

Two ways are practiced for mounting the trunk, according to Frank Leslie's monthly. In the case of a small tree, or at an odd moment, the man works up the trunk, keeping his feet flat against it and throwing his weight back from it as much as possible, retaining his position at the same time by the tension of his arms.

Matthew Arnold went to see him on his arrival, and it is needless to say that Whitler derived sincere pleasure from the visit; but Arnold's delightful recognition of Whitler's "In School Days" as one of the perfect poems which must live, gave him fresh assurance of fulfilled purpose in existence.

Not Mischief. Bishop Leonard tells a good story on himself. He was teaching a Sunday-school in Utah and asked a little girl if she knew who Christ was. She replied: "Oh, yes, sir; He was a man." Fearing that she might have an impression that Christ was more human than divine, Bishop Leonard asked her what kind of a man He was, and if Christ was anything like himself.

The favor with which the new bread made with Royal Baking Powder instead of yeast, has been received by our best housekeepers and most expert bread makers is really wonderful.

The great value of this bread arises from the fact that in it are preserved all the most nutritive elements of the flour, some of which are decomposed and destroyed by the action of yeast.

How the Natives Manage to Climb These Cocoanut Trees. The native proverb says: "A cocoanut tree is a bride's dowry, and really they many uses to which the palm and its productions are put are wonderful. They provide a family with food, shelter, fuel, house utensils and, if need be, clothes."
