A LIVELY MEETING.

At the Council Rooms Last Monday Night.

The council had quite a lively meeting Monday night. A petition was received from Messrs. Joy, Huff and Nevison, requesting the council to either let them sell ice cream, cigars, etc., on Sunday or stop the milk wagons from selling the frozen article, and the hotel and other places from selling cigars and tobacco on that day. The council immediately voted that the marshal be instructed to see that the ordinance was complied with. Just before the close of the meeting Marshal White read the riot act to the council. After they carried a motion to reconsider the question, they voted to lay the matter on the table. Aldermen Burgess and Clark thought the lines could be drawn too close and said the selling of milk, the delivering of Sunday morning papers and the like would all come right along this line, and thought it a good idea to leave good enough alone.

Alderman Wheeler motioned that the time for collecting taxes be extended 30 days. The extension had already been made to July 15 and whether the new motion means 30 days from July 3rd, the date of the council meeting, the public may guess. For remodeling the council room Bovee & Smith bid $1,055, W. W. Blair $1,175, W. J. Lanning $1,585. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

THE 4TH AT PLYMOUTH.

A Large Crowd Witness the Sports.

Plymouth's celebration was witnessed by a large crowd and though it was like most 4th of July celebrations of today, everybody seemed to have a good time and we believe they did. The decorations were very scant and one had to hunt a long time to find a flying flag. At one residence opposite the park a large bunting flag fluttered to the breeze and the front of the Berda house piazza was decorated with bunting and evergreens, in addition to these there were a few, a very few one cent flags scattered here and there about the village. Old Plymouth has hardly soured from her ashes.

In the ball game Plymouth vs Northville the score was 15 to 11 in Plymouth's favor.

Hon. J. W. Donovan delivered a very fine address on "farmers' boys" at 1:30 and then the races commenced. In the "free for all" race Rogers' "Geo. Napoleon" won first; "Nellie G." 2d; Adams' "Corbet" 3d. Best time, 2:30. In the "Named" race, VanVleet's "Finley" won 1st; Stewart's May F. 2d; "Thornbell" 3d.

In the "Running" race Westfall's "Fred" won 1st and Trussell's "Edenburg" 2d.

Fred Shultz of Wayne captured 1st prize in the bicycle race and Ward Liden of Plymouth 2d. There were six starters, Thad Knapp of Northville holding 4th place.

In the foot race Geo. Gibson won 1st in the boys' 100 yard dash, Will Peck won 1st and Frank Blair 2d; in the kid, boys under 12, Steve Jewel won 1st and Geo. Creger 2d.

In the 1 mile Consolation bicycle race M. Armstrong won 1st.

Low Rates to Bay View.

The attractions at Bay View will be greater than ever this year. The summer university will open July 12th, and the assembly on the 19th, continuing until August 16. The usual half rates, or one fare for the round-trip, will be made by the C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. Lines (popular routes to Bay View), tickets will be sold every day from July 10th to 19th, good to return until August 17th.

Rate from Plymouth is $7.95. Full information regarding Bay View, the expense of a sojourn there, University and Assembly programs, etc., are given in the University Review, which will be sent to any address upon application to Jno. M. Hall, Bay View, Michigan.

If you have never been to Bay View you ought to go this year. If you have been there, you will want to go again, and when you go, don't forget to get your tickets via the "Scenic Line" the Chicago & West Michigan Ry.

THE TROUBLE OVER.

A prominent man in town exclaimed the other day: "My wife has been wearing out her life from the effects of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and Indigestion. Her case baffled the skill of our best physicians. After using three packages of Bacon's Celery King for the Nerves she is almost entirely well." Keep your blood in a healthy condition by the use of this great vegetable compound. Call on C. R. Stevens sole agent, and get a trial package free. Large size 50c. No 8.

Vive Le Yerkes.

On the beautiful grounds of Robert Yerkes there was a grand gathering of the clan on the afternoon of the 4th. Immediately after dinner friends began to assemble and by four o'clock the lawn was alive with the guests. Matched games of croquet, which the profane and wicked worlding some times dubs Presbyterian billiards, were indulged in by Rev. W. T. Jaquess, Clem, George, and Robert Yerkes, all of them professionals. The games were hotly contested and every point fought for. At six o'clock supper was announced and such a spread! and such appetites! After supper, being filled with rich bits, enough to spread dyspeptic symptoms through a hungry regiment, while a few cleared off the wreck of what at sun-down was a bountiful board, the cheery picnickers fell to entertaining each other in the prettiest way imaginable. Pord and "Tip" discussed old Gettysburg, of just three decades ago, while the younger of the stock respectively listened. The afternoon passed most pleasantly—the whole affair was goeherche. Those present were: Revs. W. T. Jaquess, wife and son, J. M. Belding, Will Holcomb, wife and daughter, Sumner Powers, wife and son of Detroit, L. W. Simmons and wife, Fred Smith, Jennie Smith, Dexter White and wife, Gertrude Swift Flossie Palmer, Maud Fitzgerald, Wm. Pinkerton and wife, Emma Pinkerton and the following Yerkes: R. C. and wife, L. A., wife, son and daughter, Charles sen. and wife, W. G., Carl and Grace, C. C. and sister Nettie, Geo. and wife, Robert and wife, Wm. W. and wife, Mrs. Wm. H., Mrs. Don, and Harrison and wife.

AGONIA.

When our delight is desolate,
And hope is overthrown,
And when the heart must bear the weight
Of its own love alone;
And when the soul whose throes are deep,
Must guard them unrelieved,
And feel that it is full, but keep
That fulness calm and sealed;
When love's long glance is dark with pain—
With none to meet or cheer,
And words of love are wild in vain
For those who cannot hear;
When earth is dark and memory
Pale in the heaven above,
The heart can bear to lose its joy,
But not to cease to love;
But what shall guide the choice within,
Of gain or of a loss,
When to remember is to sin,
And to forget to die?

HER OPPORTUNITY.

When Mrs. Babbs was courted by Mr. Babbs that estimable young farmer experienced no difficulty in encircling her supple waist with his strong right arm. Even after several years of married life her slender figure was the pride of her heart and the delight of her eyes. Then, for no well-ascertained reason, Mrs. Babbs began to grow stout.

Not long after this mournful discovery Mr. Babbs was brought into the house in a dying condition. He had fallen from a load of hay and impaled himself in a picket fence, though why it should not have been just as easy to fall on the side farthest from the fence Mrs. Babbs could never satisfactorily determine.

Physically Mrs. Babbs bore her affliction bravely. Grief seemed to agree with her and she thrived amazingly under its leaden sway. But her temper suffered proportionately. It enraged her that she could not divide sadly away and droop disconsolately and look sweetly interesting, as Mrs. Loretta Barnes had done when her lamented spouse was ferried over the Acheron.

She swallowed untold measures of vinegar with her soup and beans and rigidly eschewed potatoes and butter and other such generators of adipose matter; but it was of no avail. Week by week she increased in globularity and weight.

Her mighty step made the windows rattle again in their sashes and the circumference of her waist, or at least that part of her anatomy encircled by apron strings and popularly supposed to be her waist, was a secret which her dressmaker alone possessed.

One day, however, a faint streak of silver edged the dark-hanging clouds of Mrs. Babbs' despair. A newspaper paragraph, setting forth the wonderful cures of undue corpulency, no matter by what superinduced, effected by an extraordinary physician in an adjacent city, fell under her crocheting eye and hope eternal once more sprang up in her capacious breast.

She opened a correspondence with the man of miracles, gently hinting at her ample girth and the unhappiness it caused her. The modern Hippocrates was honored by Mrs. Babbs' application. He would cure her or refuse all recompense for his services; but as Mrs. Babbs declined visiting him, he would be under the necessity of visiting her, and taking her measure for divers electro-magnetic braces, belts, and pads, of which his course of treatment consisted.

A day or two after Mrs. Babbs had dispatched her summons, a middle-aged gentleman with very red whiskers and a necktie to match made his appearance at her door. Mrs. Babbs was very much pleased with the eminent doctor's promptness and made colossal haste to admit him.

"Mrs. Babbs, I presume," said the red-whiskered stranger.

"Yes, sir. Walk right in, doctor," answered Mrs. Babbs with a bulky smile.

"So you expected me?" inquired the doctor, taking a seat in the parlor opposite Mrs. Babbs and carefully arranging his glowing tie.

"Oh, yes. Not quite so soon, perhaps; but I thought it wouldn't be long before you'd come."

"Hum," said the doctor looking slightly perplexed, yet gazing at Mrs. Babbs with a critic's eye. "Only twenty-five stone or so," he murmured to himself disappointedly. "I was in hopes she was larger." Then aloud to Mrs. Babbs: "How old are you, ma'am?"

"I dunno as that's got ennything to do with the matter," she rejoined with some asperity.

"Oh, no offense, ma'am, no offense. I only wanted to know in order to better estimate your chances."

"I won't be 44 till next November," she whispered huskily.

"Good heavens! As old as that!" exclaimed the doctor, strangely startled.

Mrs. Babbs, it is due to her to say, had an acutely disheartening sense of being a little too full blown to quite deserve this compliment; yet she did not openly disclaim it, but on the contrary cast her eyes down in very fair imitation of the coy embarrassment of tender youth.

This little bit of acting was, unfortunately, lost upon the doctor, who was pulling absently at the lobe of his ear and muttering to himself.

"Too bad," ran his thought. "If she'd been ten years younger now, there might have been some hope. But forty-four! Too old, too old, I fear."

Then producing a leather memorandum book, he made a short entry in it.

"Will you oblige me by standing, Mrs. Babbs?" he asked, sucking the end of his pencil and holding his book open with a rather dirty thumb.

"I should like to study your entire proportions all at once."

Mrs. Babbs coughed confusedly. It seemed to her that the doctor had a very blunt and disagreeable way of putting things. Nevertheless, with an effort, she assumed a perpendicular position and stood swaying upon her mountainous toes in painful similarity to a balloon tugging at its guyropes before being set adrift.

"Hum," said the doctor with a curious sound of indignation. Then, peering at her through his half-closed eyes with critical computation: "About five foot four, I should say, Mrs. Babbs."

"If you mean my height, that's just it," replied Mrs. Babbs, growing red again and gazing with disquietude at the memorandum book, in which the doctor was making another entry.

"Weight?" inquired the doctor, holding his book in readiness for still another entry.

"Must you know how much I weigh?" exclaimed the poor lady piteously.

"Most assuredly, ma'am. That ranks above everything in a case such as yours."

"Oh, dear! Well, if I must tell, I must," replied Mrs. Babbs with the logic of despair, and getting out her handkerchief and covertly wiping away a tear that would persist in dimming her right eye. "The last time I weighed myself, I teched 331 pounds, an I know I've gained since then. I kin tell it by my—my dress."

"Hum, hum," said the doctor, a gleam of satisfaction shooting from his eyes. "So you think you're gaining all the time do you?"

"I'm sartin of it," answered Mrs. Babbs with hopeless conviction and making pensive preparations to resume her chair.

"Don't sit down yet, if you please, Mrs. Babbs," said the doctor, hastily rising. "I should like to measure you first."

Mrs. Babbs sighed. The doctor took a tape-measure from his pocket and approached her.

"Let me see—the waist first. I think yes—the waist—first. Fifty-one inches! Why, that's not bad, not bad at all. I must put that down," calling the memorandum book into play again. "Now the arm, Mrs. Babbs—above the elbow. Not quite eighteen inches," he exclaimed, disappointedly. "You ought to have a better arm than that with such a waist," he added with some severity.

"Why, why what do you mean, doctor?" inquired bewildered Mrs. Babbs, sinking helplessly into her chair.

"Let me see, said the doctor with an abstracted air, paying no attention to Mrs. Babbs' remark. "Let me see. Age, forty-four; height five foot four; weight, three thirty-one; waist, fifty-one inches; arm, seventeen and three-quarters. Won't do. I'm afraid. Too old for such improvement and height's against her. Pity, too. Good material, but not cultivated properly. No care taken of it—too bad. Do you eat plenty of good fattening food, Mrs. Babbs—potatoes, mash and so on?"

"Goodness gracious me!" gasped Mrs. Babbs. "What air you talking about, doctor? Do you s'pose I want to get any fatter in I am? I thought you was going to do suthin' for me that would lean me down? I can't understand you!"

Mrs. Babbs clutched the arms of her chair in dire confusion of mind and looked anxiously at the doctor for a comforting reply.

But that individual retreated hastily to the other side of the room.

"The woman's as mad as a March hare!" he ejaculated, peering about for some convenient exit in case of necessity.

Mrs. Babbs arose from her chair quivering like a huge moulou of jelly with rage.

"See here," she said sternly, transfixing the unhappy man with her flaming eyes. "I want to know what all this performance means. Hev you come here to make game of me or hev you come to measure me? fer them 'lectric things you made sech a fuss about in your letters as bein' so wonderful great in gittin' rid o' fat?"

"God save us, madam!" answered the bewildered doctor. "I know nothing of the electric things you are pleased to mention."

"What!" screamed Mrs. Babbs, recoiling from him. "Ain't you Dr. Magnito?"

"Good-Lord! No madame, no! My name is Grampus—Eugene Grampus, veterinary surgeon and general manager of Ripp & Tipp's great collection of living curiosities."

"Wh-what!" gasped Mrs. Babbs, more dazed than ever. "Then what bizness hev you to be a-masur'ing me an' askin' all—all sorts of impudent questions about me, I sh'd like to know?"

"Why, my dear madame, I thought you expected me. I thought, by the kind reception you gave me, that the young man who informed me of you had also informed you of my intended visit."

"Young man? Errand? Explain yourself, sir. I'm sure I can't understand you," said Mrs. Babbs, mopping her dripping brow.

"Why, a young man from this place—I can't recall his name at this painful moment—whom I met in the city, told me of you; how—how large you were; and as we are out of a fat woman just at present, I thought I'd run down and take a look at you."

"Me! A fat woman in a circus!" shrieked Mrs. Babbs, growing quite purple in the face. "Why—I—you—Why—"

"No offense, I hope, my dear madame," interrupted Dr. Grampus, humbly. "I sincerely hope no offense. I really thought you desired the position—a good, lucrative one, I assure you, if you were eligible—or else I would not have been so abrupt. I beg a thousand pardons for my intrusion—ten thousand of 'em. I assure you not a syllable of this—this most-unpleasant affair shall ever be whispered by me."

"Oh, I—see it all now," sobbed poor Mrs. Babbs, sinking into her chair again and weeping bitterly. "Some mis'able scamp has been makin' game of my misfortune."

"Ain't I remember his name now. It was Hankton, John Hankton. Do you know him?"

"There ain't nobody in town of that name," sobbed Mrs. Babbs. "He must have given you a false one, the scoundrel!"

"Well," said the doctor, glancing at his watch. "If I ever lay hands on the fellow, Mrs. Babbs, I'll make him a beautiful subject for Ripp & Tipp's collection. I assure you."

"Saying, Dr. Grampus shook Mrs. Babbs' trembling hand with much display of sympathy and started for his door.

"Here! Here!" cried Mrs. Babbs, in quick alarm. "You ain't goin' off with all them figgers 'bout me in your pocket?"

"Oh, I had forgotten that," replied the doctor, returning hastily. He tore two leaves from his memorandum book. On one he scribbled a few lines and then handed both slips of paper to Mrs. Babbs. "There, my dear Mrs. Babbs, there is the wretched souvenir of my lamentable blunder, and with it a slight atonement in the shape of a family pass to Ripp & Tipp's great collection of living curiosities, which I rejoice on your behalf but regret on my own, you are not destined to adorn."

With this graceful sentiment and a queer smile on his face, Dr. Grampus made his bow and withdrew.

When a few days later, the great Dr. Magnito, descended upon Mrs. Babbs with all his elaborate apparatus for anatomical measurements, he was considerably astonished at her minute investigation of his personal identity. It is reported that he was even obliged to exhibit the marking on his arm before her anxious suspicions could be fully allayed. And after all, after all the tribulation of mind and person to which Mrs. Babbs had been subjected, the wonderful electro-magnetic braces, belts and pads of her no-white-of-good. She continued to wax exceedingly great and increase in substance daily. —N. Y. Mercury.

MAKING A RAISE OF SALARY.

How a Chicago Clerk Played It Smart on His Employer.

There is a certain business man in Chicago who is as cranky as he can well be and is at the same time very careless in his business affairs. Says the Detroit Free Press. But he is very rich and has a big establishment and not an employee likes him.

About a year ago one of his clerks, getting $1,000 a year, approached him on the subject of an increase of salary. The old man got hot in a minute.

"How much are you getting now?" he asked.

The clerk was about to tell him when a happy thought struck him. "Two thousand a year," he replied firmly.

"Ur-um," he said, "you are a good clerk and I'll see what can be done for you."

Then he dismissed the clerk and called in the manager.

"Make Jones' salary $1,800 a year," he said.

The manager was about to offer an explanation.

"Does I tell you," said the old man. "I'll teach the young upstart to come in here dictating to me how much money to pay my people."

By this time the manager had comprehended the situation and he forthwith put Jones on the $1,800 list, and six months later, when the old man found how he had been worked, he called Jones in and told him he would restore him to the $2,000 list, and Jones was shrewd enough to take the twinkle in the old man's eye in good faith and say nothing.

His Last Will and Testament.

The most remarkable experience which I had abroad," said a woman just home to a New York Times writer, "happened before I touched a foreign shore. At Bremen, where we landed, we were taken off in a tug, as we were steaming to the wharf we approached very close to a vessel crossing our path, and for a few seconds a collision seemed imminent. A man whom I had noticed on the passage over, but did not know at all, completely lost his head at this crisis. He was sitting near me; but he suddenly rose, took off his high hat, put it in my lap, and, with the hasty exclamation, 'Please keep this,' leaped overboard. Though every attempt was made to rescue him, he was drowned there before our eyes, and I landed a short time later carefully holding his silk hat, which, by his last will and testament, was certainly mine."

An Unexpeted Turn.

Frater Parent, making preparations to chastise his unruly boy—So you tied a tin kettle to the dog's tail, did you? And stoned the neighbor's goat, and turned the garden hose on the minister when he was coming up the walk—huh! And you expected you wouldn't be found out, eh?

Penitent Son—No, I told grandma.

Frater Parent—For told your grandma? And what did your grandma say?

Penitent Son, whimpering—She said I was a chip off the old block, and that my father was just like me when he was a boy.

Frater Parent, growing very red—Huh! I tell you what, young man. You'll have to do better or I'll be obliged to whip you some of these days. Now you can go back to your play.

"STEALING THE BRIDE."

Where the Connecticut Kidnapers Were the Surprised Parties.

One of the queer customs of the early days in Connecticut was known under the name of "stealing the bride." It is illustrated in the following tale told by the New York Tribune: Eliza Griswold, of Simsbury, a descendant of old Windsor, used in his latter years, to relate with much glee the particulars of one of these bride stealings in which he was a principal actor.

It seems that a certain couple were to be married in Simsbury, and Mr. Griswold, with others of their acquaintance who had not been honored with an invitation, resolved upon retaliation by stealing the bride. Accordingly, on the evening of the wedding, having first ordered a nice supper and engaged the music, etc., very privately at a tavern, at Turkey Hills, himself, with two or three others, went into the neighborhood of the bride's residence. Here they reconnoitered, but as the party was large and the rooms crowded, they were obliged to watch for some time before the favorable opportunity presented itself.

At length, however, the evening being warm and beautiful, the company gradually withdrew from the house and dispersed through the grounds and gardens that surrounded it. Through a window they could see the bride, distinguished by her bridal dress, almost alone in the parlor. Now was their chance. One or two of the surprise party quietly entered the dwelling by the back door. To seize the bride and bear her out to where their confederates were holding the horses and to place her behind one of the party on horseback was but the work of an instant.

In another moment they were speeding over the road to Turkey Hills with a swiftness which almost defied pursuit. But to their surprise the whole wedding party seemed also to have sprung to their saddles, and were almost immediately in pursuit, as their horses' hoofs plainly told.

The race was exciting; their laboring horses seemed not to gain one inch on their pursuers; but at last they reached the tavern, dismounted, carried their fair prize into the hall and had just time to arrange the dance when the wedding party arrived. The music struck up, the dance began, but the astonishment of the gallant captors can scarcely be imagined when they discovered that the supposed bride wore men's boots, and that her movements were altogether too masculine and aufer to comport with the dress and known retirement of a real bride. The company dispersed at a very late hour—the kidnapers paying all the expenses.

HE DIDN'T CATCH ON.

The Warning Cry Was Heard, But He Did Not Understand.

We were riding slowly and carefully down a steep hill in the Sierras. The road was barely wide enough for two horsemen abreast.

Suddenly a cry rent the air. In a second it was repeated and sounded nearer.

The judge, my companion, uttered an emphatic sentence which I did not catch, and galloped back in desperate haste, leaving me perplexed and amazed.

At that instant the sharp, weird cry was repeated and immediately I was confronted by the head of a long, heavily-laden mule train. The mules, with their panniers, monopolized the entire width of the road. The animals, painfully laboring, were on the run, impelled by the muleteers' cries and whips. Before I realized my danger or could turn to avoid it the caravan was upon me with irresistible impetuosity. It doubled up my mule and whirled him around as if he had been a child's toy or a wisp of hay.

Fortunately the saddle-girth broke and I was spilted on the opposite side of the collision, says the writer in Home and Country. How I rose and clambered up that perpendicular wall in time to avoid being trampled to a pulp beneath the remorseless heels of those panting beasts I could not comprehend at that time, nor have I ever been able to do so; but there I was and there I adhered, as if glued to the rock, until both mules and danger had disappeared. The muleteers never cast even one "longing, lingering look behind."

To my astonishment my poor mule was unhurt and by and by the judge returned, looking unfeignedly anxious.

"Why in the name of common sense did you not ride back with me?" he demanded.

"I heard a diabolical cry," I replied, "but I did not understand it and I did not understand you, and there it is," said I.

Accounted For.

"But you are not French; you are Irish. I want a French nurse."

"Sure, mim, an' O' in Frinch."

"Nonsense. I can tell from your brogue that you are Irish."

"Ah, mim, that's doo to me havin' been employed in Dublin for tin years."—Harper's Bazar.

Cause Enough.

He—I am in great trouble. I kissed a girl the other night, and now she won't speak to me.

She—Did you kiss her more than once?

He—Oh, no.

She—No wonder she is mad.

Cold, Calculating Coquette.

Young Mr. Fitts—You know the evening I proposed to you—

Mrs. Fitts—Yes; I remember the exact words you used.

Mr. Fitts—I'll be hanged if I ever could.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedy. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound or impediment in hearing, and when it is fully closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

sharp point in the foot and making a painful wound.

Fred Hintzman of So. Lyon and Mrs. Julia Morgan of this place were married last week Friday night
by Rev. J. M. Belding.

The counter attraction of the world's fair prevented Northville from celebrating the 4th this year. In 1894 she will most likely fall into line.

Topics next Sunday at the Presbyterian church: Morning, The Authenticity of the New Testament; evening,
An Eastern Rose Garden.

We see that W. J. Stark, who left here to engage in the meat business at Detroit, has since moved back to Highland, his former home.

Saturday evening the ladies of the Presbyterian church give a lawn social on the parsonage grounds. A program of interest will be arranged for.

Thirty years ago Monday occurred the battle of Gettysburg. Hiram Lunt remarked that the difference between the 3rd of 1863 and '93 was marked.

Don't forget the lawn party tomorrow night at the Presbyterian church.
If the evening be damp cream and cake will be served in the parsonage.

Mrs. Douglas, nee Barber, was arrested here last week by Sheriff King of Stanton, Montcalm county, on charge of obtaining money under false pretense.

On account of ill-health, W. H. Nichols was obliged to resign as vice-chancellor of the Northville Knights of Pythias lodge. M. A. Porter has been elected in his stead.

There was no meeting of the Uniform rank, K. of P., Monday night on account of the close proximity of the 4th. Capt. Filkins will soon call a special drill meeting instead.

The Ely Dowel works have just received an order from A. J. Phillips & Co., Fenton, for a car load of dowel pins. This will alone keep the wheels grinding through all this month.

Special services were held at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening last. The order of exercises consisted of the national songs, the reading of Paul Revere's Ride, by Mabel Clark and Barbara Fritchie by Inez Rockwell. The sermon was very patriotic.

After a brief review of the causes leading up to the Declaration of Independence, the speaker sought to show the value of real American citizenship.
He spoke of the foes menacing our country's welfare such as Mormonism, anarchism, combines and trusts, greed of mammon and intemperance and claimed that only a christian patriotism could successfully cope with and overcome these foes.

dations when in Detroit stop at the John Blackwood graduated in the Mechanical Engineering department of the U. of M. last week and is home for the summer.

Johnathan Neal who has passed his 92 birthday is quite well and hearty.
Last week he walked into the village to purchase a hay fork. He is as spry as a lark in the hayfield.

The Epworth League has just issued a very neat quarterly program, dating from July 1st to Sept. 30. It is a little tri-fold, tastily planned by C.
A. Dolph, the local president of the society.

We trust that subscribers who are in arrears for their paper, and there are at least 400 of them, will hand in their dollars during our absence in Chicago.
We will no doubt need them badly upon our return.

Marie Knibloe, of Boston, the widely known monologue artist and impersonator will give one of her delightful entertainments next Saturday evening July 15, in the opera house, in behalf of the improvement fund of the Presbyterian church.

The services at the Methodist church
last Sunday were conducted by Rev.
S. P. Warner of Wayne. The subject of the morning sermon was "Love" and in the evening an address to young men. The attendance was large and the interest good.

While John Palmer was taking in the fire-works at Plymouth Tuesday evening his horse and buggy, which was hitched in a shed at the fair grounds, were stolen, and also his overcoat that was in the buggy. No trace of them has yet been found.

The Presbyterian people issued a regular 4th of July program, not including fire-works; for the last Sunday evening service. It was nicely arranged by the pastor, and contained, besides the regular order of exercises, the three national hymns that were sung.

While Verne Hastings was firing off a "bugger chaser" Tuesday afternoon the fire flew into a bottle of powder which he held in his other hand and a startling explosion resulted, burning his face and eyes in a terrible manner. He will probably lose his left eye, though the doctor is not sure but he may possibly save it if inflamation does not set in.

If Northville did not celebrate and if she did present a deserted appearance the decorations were equal to that of some neighboring villages that did celebrate. The clean sprinkled streets and green lawns presented a striking contrast to the dirty dusty streets of our sister village, Plymouth. When Plymouth gets her water works, this will all be changed.

What is the difference between a milk wagon and an open store on Sunday? Well, one supplies us with necessaries as it stops at our door, the other furnishes a twelve hour rendezvous for idlers and gives the stranger and passerby the impression we are an immoral and godless community.
The congress of our best judgement should once and forever settle this matter.

School Commissioner McLellan hates like the old herry to give up the office to Mr. Sinclair, who was elected in his place this spring. McLellan has had a couple bouncers in the office since last Saturday, when Mr. Sinclair's term of office commenced, and at the point of a prize fighting system, adopted by McLellan, Mr. Sinclair was kept out. McLellan, who also run for the office at the same election, claims the election to have been illegal. Archibald wants throwing down stairs four or five times to learn a thing or two.
Prosecuting Attorney Frazer advises Mr. Sinclair to rent another office and go ahead as he will draw the salary and Mc will soon tire of paying his own expenses for simply thinking he is still commissioner.

The Holly Advertiser says, evidently referring to the Durand Express,
"Beats all how some editors will lie."
We trust some of our brother quill pushers will make a note of this and quit it.

Bert Seely of Orion was either too proud or too lazy to wheel his trunk to the depot and Hon. P. T. Butler of that place set him a good example by taking the job and earning the quarter-which Seely was to pay a drayman for the work.

The Ploverville Observer has been purchased by W. H. Peek, formerly of Plymouth. His first issue dropped down on us last week like a gentle zephyr. It is a "good looking," and its newsy columns show that the new editor had been peering 'round after a good lot of news and found it. May the Observer continue to observe and be observed. May Peek continue to peek and be always at the peak.

Out in Homer they have arrested a man for selling cigars, another for keeping open his "restaurant" and another for selling liquor on Sunday;
then the arrested ones had a dentist arrested for pulling a tooth on Sunday and the marshal was pulled for selling a neighbor a pint of milk on the Sabbath. The proper thing to do now is to arrest the chap who goes around Sunday to see if any one is breaking the Sabbath.—Adrian Press.

Northville's crack shooting club was defeated by the Milford club on the grounds of the latter recently on a score of 295 to 273.—So: Lyon Excelsior.

The editor of the Excelsior will save his reputation and perhaps a first-class whaling by making an immediate contradiction of the above assertion.
The Northville club was not defeated;
it has not been defeated this year and it never will be. The Milford club went down before its mighty power like all others.

The Plymouth Mail's Northville
correspondent says:

"The facts are the correspondent of the Plymouth Mail did write an article describing the memorial service at Northville, but for want of time to set it up, it was not published."

The balance of the half column article is devoted to throwing mud at the Record. We think the regret of the Lodge was that the Northville services were not mentioned in the correspondence and not because that the correspondent was absent, as his article seems to infer.

behalf so others may try it and get cured. Warren E. Russell, Flint, Mich.

A POSITIVE FACT.

Ladies do not delay your valuable time by waiting and suffering, but secure a bottle of Dullam's Great Ger-mat Female Uterine Tonic and be cured of your trouble either in old or young. It is the very best prescription I have ever prescribed in my extensive practice. It has given the best results in the greatest number of cases of female troubles of any medicine that I ever used. I do not make a practice of using or recommending patent medicines, but this remedy is prepared by a very competent physician and chemist of my acquaintance and I can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it as the best.

A SAGINAW FIRE WHICH COST FOUR LIVES.

The Village of Augusta Loses Sixteen Business House by a Big Fire.—
Other Michigan News.

A fire insignificant in its financial loss wiped out an entire family with a single exception at Saginaw. Catherine Neumann and four children occupied a small two-story frame building at 127 North Jefferson avenue, within a stone's throw of the business part of the city. Mrs. Neumann was a widow and with her older daughter lived on a millinery store on the ground floor and the family resided in the second story.

The fire originated in the store and had gained such headway that the exit of the family, who were all asleep, was cut off by the time the alarm was turned in. The fire department responded quickly, ladders were put up and the inmates taken out, but not until Mrs. Neumann was fatally burned, and three of her children smothered by the smoke and flames.

The victims are: Tilda Neumann, aged 20 years; Lena Neumann, aged 15; Frank Neumann, aged 12; Mrs. Catherine Neumann was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. She is terribly burned about the head and face and will die. The only person in the building saved was Alma Neumann, aged 17, who was taken out, having sustained only slight injuries. The financial loss will not exceed $5,000, and is partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Catherine Neumann, the fourth victim of the awful fire at Saginaw died at the hospital. She was frightfully burned and her case was hopeless from the first. A brother and sister are all that now remains out of a family of six.

THE CARAVELS AT DETROIT.

The Fleet of Spanish Vessels Spend a Great Day at Detroit.

The three vessels which are the counterpart of the fleet in which Columbus sailed on his voyages of discovery spent one day at Detroit while on their way to the World's Fair at Chicago. While in Detroit the officers and crews were the guests of the city in general and the Michigan Yacht Club in particular. The entire river front was a mass of moving colors every class of vessel endeavoring to do its share in the rousing welcome as the vessels were towed to steam.

The steam yacht Vita met the caravels below the city with an officer from the U. S. steamer Fessenden, an officer from the 19th U. S. Infantry at Fort Wayne, Detroit, Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, and Vice-Commodore Heames, of the Michigan Yacht Club on board. They were taken aboard the flagship, Santa Maria and the protection of the navy and army was offered by the officers, the freedom of the city tendered by the mayor and the hospitality of the Michigan Yacht Club by Mr. Heames. The caravels were escorted to the Yacht Club anchorage by the U. S. steamer Fessenden, the new Detroit fire boat, the Inland Club of steam yachts and hundreds of other craft. The club-house on Belle Isle park was a mass of Spanish colors, American flags and beautiful flowers and plants when the club reception to the officers of the caravels, the city officials and prominent invited guests was held. In the afternoon and evening the doors of the club house were thrown open to the public, and thousands of people accepted the hospitality and inspected the generous club's beautiful home and the strange vessels. All in all the reception was an event such as the Spaniards had not witnessed before since their arrival in this country, and which it will lustle the "windy city" denizens to surpass.

AUGUSTA IN RUINS.

A Kalamazoo County Town's Business Houses Destroyed by Fire.

The village of Augusta has lost her entire business section by fire. Both sides of the main street from the depot as far as the park are in ashes. Fifteen stores burned and eight families are rendered homeless. The fire caught in Church's bakery from a heated oven. The fire spread so rapidly that it was with great difficulty that many escaped with their lives. The loss on buildings and merchandise will foot up $30,000. The amount of insurance is $15,000. Seth Gregory lost $1,500 in money secreted in the hardware store, and while trying to save it was seriously burned about the face and hands.

Battle Creek and Kalamazoo fire departments responded to the call for help. Most of the postoffice and official documents are lost. Wood's dry goods store was saved by the earnest work of the firemen.

August is a town of 60 inhabitants at the crossing of the Michigan Central and Cincinnati, Jackson, Mackinac Island and Kalamazoo county. It is actually 10 miles west of Battle Creek and is a bustling town. It has a flouring mill, cannock handle, excelsior and wire factories, a fruit evaporator, a sawmill, a bank, a graded public school, three churches, a fine new hotel and many well-stocked stores.

Old Upper Peninsula Mines Closing.

Orders have been received to close down the Winthrop mine, at Ishpeming. This will throw about 400 men out of employment. Only two big mines are left in working order in that section, and it is thought that one of these will close down. The cause of the closing down of all the mines is said to be the over-production of the past year. The product of Lake Superior mines last year was 9,000,000 tons, an increase of 2,000,000 tons over 1891. This spring there were 2,500,000 tons of unsold ore in eastern ports. Of the other mines, many have been unable to pay expenses during the past few years.

TO CONSIDER SILVER.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND CALLS AN EXTRA SESSION.

August 7 Set as the Day for the Extraordinary Session of the 53d Congress to Convene.

Congress Convened August 7.

The puzzling silver question which has so long been such a strong point of contention among financiers, politicians and almost every other class of people is on the high road to a settlement, of some sort and the financial situation is somewhat relieved.

The pressure which was brought to bear upon the President for an extraordinary session of congress to consider the silver and financial questions has had its result and the President has issued the following proclamation:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON.

Whereas the distrust and apprehension concerning the financial situation which pervades all districts have already caused great loss and damage to our people, and threatens to cripple our merchants; stop the wheels of manufacture, bring distress and privation to our farmers; and withhold from our workmen the wages of labor;

And, whereas, the present perilous condition is largely the result of a financial policy which the executive branch of the government finds embodied in unwise laws, which must be executed until repealed by congress.

Now, therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, in performance of a constitutional duty do by this proclamation declare that an extraordinary session requires the convening of both houses of congress of the United States at the capital in the city of Washington on Aug. 7, next, at 12 o'clock noon, to the end that the people may be relieved from legislative burdens now present and impending danger and distress. All those entitled to act as members of the Fifty-third congress are required to take notice of this proclamation and attend at the time and place above stated.

Given under my hand and the seal of the United States at the city of Washington, on the 30th day of June, in the year of our Lord 1894 and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and seventh.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The question confronting congress will be unmistakable and other matters must be relegated to the rear until the silver question is eliminated from the financial algebraic problem or is permanently engrafted upon our monetary system. The issue cannot be dodged, and no effort will be made to that direction. Of course a vigorous attack will be made upon the Sherman silver purchase act and it will be repealed in response to the hue cry against it if possible, but the silver men will fight such action to the last.

Under the rules of both houses of congress the vigorous minority, consisting of the friends and champions of the white metal, can obstruct and delay legislation for an indefinite period. Unless there shall be radical changes in the rules of both houses of congress it will quite a difficult matter to secure final action on the Sherman act within a reasonable time. In view of this fact pressure will be brought to bear during the first days of the opening session to so change the rules of the House that the majority cannot be unduly obstructed by the minority. This subject will precipitate the first test of strength between the friends of silver and the majority of the House.

A Blaze at Ann Arbor.

Fire started in Rev. P. P. Farnham's barn in Ann Arbor spread to five other buildings, and caused a total loss of upwards of $12,000, beside leaving several families homeless. The district is not well supplied with fire protection and the department was compelled to lay more than half a mile of hose to the nearest hydrant before any water could be turned on the blaze. The fire is supposed to have started from children playing with matches in a barn.

FOUR KILLED IN BATTLE.

Convicts Try to Escape From a California Prison but are Stopped by Hot Shot.

Three convicts dead, one or two fatally wounded and several others more or less badly hurt are the net results of a battle between the authorities and fugitive convicts at Folsom, Cal. Not an officer or guard was hurt. The officers fired from all sides at the men hiding behind rocks and when the fight was over it was found that the dead men were literally riddled with bullets from a Gatling gun and Winchester in the hands of the officers.

The convicts had laid plans for escape from prison with great ability. They seized a guard in the stone quarry and hurried up a hill. The guards did not dare fire for fear to kill their companion. But the captive guard after a desperate struggle with his captors succeeded in breaking away from them before the summit of the hill was reached and jumped down the bank of the river carrying one of the convicts with him. Then the brave guard, Braine is his name, struggled with the convict and finally overpowered him.

Meanwhile the battle on the hill had begun and ended. A large number of firearms were found where the convicts had taken refuge.

Gov. Altgeld Attacked.

A sensational squelch to the front as an echo of Gov. Altgeld's release of the Haymarket anarchists. The Chicago Journal raises the question whether he is legally governor of the state of Illinois, or a citizen of the United States. It is asked are his acts legal as governor, particularly the pardon of the anarchists.

The opinion is expressed that the famous Gov. Boyd case of Nebraska, may be re-enacted in Illinois with John P. Altgeld as the principal actor. The Journal says: "Gov. Altgeld bases his claim to citizenship on the simple statement that his father was naturalized while the son was a minor child. John P. Altgeld was born in Prussia in 1848, and came to this country with his parents when a boy, his father settling on a farm near Mansfield, O. If the father of Altgeld was made a citizen while the latter was under 21, always providing that the father was legally naturalized then there can be no question as to the governor's title to citizenship; but if Mr. Altgeld, senior, waited until his son was over 21 before taken out papers then, most assuredly, the title of the governor to citizenship is badly clouded."

The Journal continues and says that Altgeld's claim to citizenship is without proper proof, and if he cannot establish his claim his official acts—including the pardon of the anarchists—are not legal.

Gov. Altgeld in reply to this attack says that his parents came to this country when he was only a few months old and his father took the steps necessary to become a citizen at Mansfield, O., soon after their arrival there, and that anyone interested can satisfy themselves of his citizenship by a little investigation.

Michigan Weather and Crops.

The state weather and crop bulletin announces that the rainfall last week was below the normal, with the temperature slightly above. In the northern tiers of counties the week was generally favorable for the growth of crops and vegetation, but rain is needed for pastures, potatoes and grasses. Fruit trees are in good condition. In the central tier grasses and pastures are in fine shape; oats on rolling land promises full crop, but on low land are reported scalded in a few localities. Barley, peas and corn are backward in St. Clair county. Strawberries, cherries, plums and pears are doing well. Hay has begun on clover meadows in some counties. In the eastern portion summer fallows and root crops need rain. In the western portion the weather has been very favorable for corn and potatoes. Wheat is reported as being "smutty" in Barry county. In the southern section potatoes are in bloom, wheat and grass have made a rapid advance, and mowers are cutting timothy and clover in some counties. Early corn has made good progress, wheat looks better but is thin. Potato bugs have injured the crop in Barry county, and grape worms are cutting the leaves on grape vines. Oats will be a short crop in some counties. In St. Joseph county the weevil is doing injury to beans. Showers are needed in the eastern portion of this section.

ON GETTYSBURG FIELD.

DEDICATION OF NEW YORK'S MONUMENT

On That Historic Spot, Aptly Called the Turning Point of the War.—Gen. Sickles Speech.

With bright sunlight above and the field on which Gettysburg's decisive battle was fought stretching out below, New York state's handsome monument to the heroes who fell in the fight was dedicated with impressive ceremonies. It was the great day of the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the three days' fight. Seven thousand New York veterans, the governors of two states the surviving generals of the battle, and thousands of veterans and visitors from other states were present to lend impressiveness and moment to the scene. Rev. O. W. Severance of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh New York volunteers opened the proceedings of the morning with a prayer. The veterans then sang "America." Gen. Avery then introduced Major-General Henry W. Slocum, who made an elegant address. He was followed by Gen. Green and Gov. Flower.

Then came the words for Sickles and when the grizzled old hero of Gettysburg came to the front on his crutches there was cheering loud and long. Portions of his speech are given:

"There is a day and an hour in the life of every nation when its destiny hangs on the issue of a battle. Such a day and hour 30 years ago, was the crisis in the battle of Gettysburg, on July 2, 1863. Of the effective force of about 90,000 men on our side engaged in the battle, 27,000; almost one-third, were New York troops. And of the total loss in the union army, 23,000, our loss was 6,700. Apart from this battlefield, hundreds of military and naval monuments already placed in many towns and cities in our state. There is no better way to prepare for the next war than to show your appreciation of your defenders in the last war."

Eighteen states have erected monuments on this field in honor of the services of their citizens in the war for the preservation of the union. Over forty memorials have already been placed here, and the list is not yet completed. The time has come when the battle-field should belong to the government of the United States. It should be made a national park, and placed in charge of the war department. Its topographical features, not yet destroyed by the vandals, who even now defacing it, must hereafter remain unimpaired. The monuments erected here must be always guarded and preserved. The act of congress for these purposes, which I shall make it my duty to advocate, should contain a clause establishing a military post at Gettysburg, including the battlefield among its dependencies, to be garrisoned by at least one company of artillery, with the appropriate equipment, to the end that the morning and evening gun may forever salute the flag and the union of the United States, which were so heroically defended upon this historic ground."

If the sacrifices made on this field were greater than in any other combat of the war, the results were compensatory. The men who fell here, standing alongside of their fallen comrades on a thousand battle fields, gathered together today in the spirit land can say, "We fought the good fight." They unite with Lincoln, the martyr, now in rejoicing over a union saved, and a nation perpetuated, on whose soil the foot-print of a slave shall never again be seen."

HAWAIIAN NEWS.

Minister Blount Wouldn't Help Celebrate the Fourth—Farring to England Now.

A communication from Honolulu gives the following interesting news: American tongues have been wagging in various quarters of late at Minister Blount's refusal to participate in the Fourth of July celebration. Not only did the American minister refuse to attend a meeting of Americans to arrange for the proper observance of their national day, but he also declined to make an address to his countrymen as part of their demonstration.

The barkentine Pilo, from San Francisco, brought news of Minister Thurston's interview with President Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland's address is regarded here by the annexationists as an indication that annexation will not be considered by his administration. Now that hope of becoming a part of the United States is on the wane, the leading men in charge of the government are casting about for something else. They apparently decided that annexation fails they will not accept a protectorate until overtures have been made to England to secure a stable government. If England will have none of it, and the provisional government finds that it cannot stand alone, it will come back to the United States for a protectorate.

Killed in a Horse Race.

Racing at the Kansas City, Mo., fair grounds was marred by a fatal accident. Eddie Carr had the mount on Top Gallant and as the horses were coming down the stretch his stirrup cup broke, and being unable to regain the equilibrium thus lost, he fell to the ground. Beecher, the horse behind him, struck him with both front feet. The blow inflicted by one hoof fractured the skull just behind the left ear and caused an injury from which Carr died.

The heirs of the rich Norwich estate of England think they have now sufficient evidence to get the property. A new association has been formed, with Miss Harriet Hyde, of Ypsilanti, as secretary.

Vice-Admiral Sir Michael Culme Seymour, commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean station, has been appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Sir George Tryon, who lost his life with the battleship Victoria. He served in the Burma war of 1825, in the Baltic and Black seas during the Crimean war and in the China war. He was formerly naval aide de camp to the queen. From 1887 to 1889 he was commander-in-chief of the Pacific station, and in 1890 was appointed commander-in-chief of the channel squadron.

NEW TAX LAW UPHELD.

Supreme Court Says Certificates Must be Issued Before Deeds are Recorded.

The supreme court has handed down the following memorandum in the case of Van Housen vs. Heames, involving the construction of section 135 of the new tax law. The mandamus asked for by Van Housen was denied, the court holding:

Section 135 is valid. The certificate required by the statute is not the lien or lien held by the state or individuals, but only the fact that liens or titles are held by the state or by individuals or by others. The existence of such liens or titles does not prevent the recording of a deed or plat unless the lien held by the state is a lien for taxes becoming due within a year previous to the date of the instrument.

2. If the certificate shows that all the taxes have not been paid for five years previous to the date of the deed or plat, it is not entitled to record.

3. If a general annual tax sales the land has been sold to satisfy the taxes, and payment, so far as the state and municipality are concerned, and is payment within the meaning of the act.

The act includes those taxes and those only which when not paid to the collector, are returned by law to the treasury. The collector's return and when not paid to him are by him to be returned to the auditor-general. It does not contemplate that either the collector or the auditor-general, or any other officer, shall make any examination outside the records of their own offices. Unless such records show non-payment the presumption is that the taxes are paid, and the certificate that all taxes are paid as shown by their records.

Berry Won the Cowboy Race.

John Berry, riding his celebrated horse, Poison, is the winner of the cowboy race from Chadron, Neb., to Chicago. He reached his destination, Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, at the World's Fair grounds, ahead of all competitors. He covered the last 150 miles of the distance in 24 hours. Emmet Albright was second in arriving. The president of the Illinois Humane society, John G. Shortall, and his eight assistants were at the Wild West show at the time of the arrival. President Shortall says the horses could not be in better condition, and as far as they know at present they are perfectly sound. Col. Cody said: "The horses are in fine condition and could not feel better."

Physicians' Opinion.

New York, July 3.—Of 60 physicians representing all schools, and using the Amick Cure for Consumption, interviewed today, 32 agreed with Amick that the bacillus microbe is produced by the disease, and 28, while admitting Amick's treatment is the only successful one, believed with Koch that the bacillus is the cause. A special from Cincinnati says: Dr. W. K. Amick, when shown the above, said: "I will continue sending test medicines to these and all other doctors for each new patient until all realize their success could not come from any false theory."

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILED! La Grippe Baffled!

The After Effects Cured

Mr. Kilmer writes: "I had a bad attack of the Grippe; after a time caught cold and had a second attack; it settled in my kidneys and liver, and I had such pain and misery in my back and legs."

The Physicians' medicine and other things that I used made no impression, and I continually grew worse until I was a physical wreck, and given up to die.

After I bought a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT, and before I had used it all of the second bottle I felt better, and to-day I am just as well as ever. A year has passed and not a trace of the Grippe is left. SWAMP-ROOT CURED MY LIFE.

THE TWO MYSTERIES

By MARY MAPES DODGE

We know not what it is, dear, this sleep so pale and still. The folded hands, the awful calm, the cheek so pale and still.

The lips that will not lift again, tho' we may call and call. The strange, white solitude of peace that settles over all.

We know not what it means, dear, this death that heaves its pale, cold, deadly way and walks in its agony.

We know not to what sphere the loved who leave us go. Nor why we're left to worship still, nor why we do not know.

But this we know: Our loved and lost, if they should come to life, what life? Should come and ask us: "What is life?" not one of us could say.

Life is a mystery as deep as death can ever be. Yet, oh, how sweet it is to us, this life we live and see.

Then might they say, those vanished ones, "What is death?" and we should answer: "Death is the end of all." We may not tell it to the quick, this mystery of death.

Ye may not tell it if ye would, this mystery of death. The child that enters life comes, not with knowledge or intent. So tho' a child, death must go, as little children go.

Nothing is known, but I believe that God is overhead. As life is to the living, so death is to the dead.

The Woman Preacher

There seems to be no objection whatever to women taking control of Sunday schools, benevolent institutions, church fairs, festivals and all other means of caring for the sick and filling the ecclesiastical, exchequer, but when it comes to women in the pulpit there is trouble at once. This is only another of the relics of barbarism.

In old times if the church could get control of the women, and little children they felt pretty sure of their ability to manage the rest of the human family.

Half a century ago a woman doctor was scarcely recognized in reputable circles, and a woman lecturer was a monstrosity. Contrasting that with the change in sentiment from one decade to another, it is scarcely too much to expect that by another fifty years we shall see a most wonderful revolution in matters of this sort. It is safe to predict that before the end of the first decade of the next century, the woman preacher will be no more of a novelty than the woman doctor now is.

Woman is specially fitted for such work, and even were she not so it would only be the strictest kind of justice to give her some of the honor as well as most of the hard work of the church.

When once it dawns fully upon the minds of the people of this generation that there is no sex in intellect or moral achievements, the first and most difficult part of this knotty problem will have been solved.

By all means open the pulpit doors to woman as well as those of the Sunday school room; the hospital and the executive committee.

Work of a Marriage Bureau

The Berlin Marriage Bureau, which has ramifications all over the world, has in the last eleven years received 19,959 applications from all civilized countries.

In 12,706 cases husbands were desired, in 7,253 wives; 5,104 men communicated direct with the main office; the rest men desired their wives through agencies.

The youngest woman who asked for a husband was 16 years and 4 months, the oldest 72. The corresponding ages of male applicants were 18½ and 79. The average of the women was 28½, of the men 29½.

Matches were brought about for 4,399 women applicants and 5,417 men. The average fortune of the men was $3,500, of the women $1,500. The smallest purse offered by a woman was $5. It was the whole fortune of an applicant of 21 years.

The largest fortune of a woman applicant was $300,000. The properties of the men in search of wives varied between $50 and $150,000.

There were 616 women and 506 men who communicated with the bureau who had apparent physical deformities. There were 2,311 men and 1,499 women who had been married; 1,129 men wished second wives to care for their first wives' children.

The occupations of the men were: Tradesmen, 3,062; members of learned professions and artists, 700; army officers, 63; State officials, 503. The rest of the candidates did not give their occupations. Of the women, 1,505 had their own business establishments.

A Forgetful Woman

"It's curious how forgetful some folks are, now ain't it?" inquired Mr. Jakes, the village barber, carpenter and sheriff, in a rumbling tone. "There's people that'll forget arrants an' jobs an' bills an' days of the week an' soon; an' I've even heard tell of folks that would forget their own names now an' again."

HAT THE VAST majority of the visitors to the World's Fair have not come simply to stare at wonders is proved by the crowds that eddy through the government building. Whatever is herein displayed is chief of educational interest. It is not to the senses that direct appeal is made, but to the intellect. Objects of beauty, grace and simple are rare, but marvels of the skill of the best hands and of the best thought, the highest minds of the nation are shown everywhere.

The postoffice department, for instance, has provided for the benefit of those interested not only a complete exponent of the methods of the present, but by models and relics, the history of the past.

In the extreme southwest in corner of the government building is located the work in position of the Exposition. Herein are transacted all the affairs of an office of the first class; the only difference between the office in Jackson Park and that at the street of the same name being in magnitude. The clerks are helped in their work by all the latest devices, including letter-stamping machines, while the working of the railway mail-carriage is shown in a model exposed to view by an open side.

This is one of the most interesting features of the exhibit. The sorting tables and pigeon holes are to be seen, as well as the racks supporting the mail pouches, into which the letters, papers and packages are thrown. As illustrative of the progress in carrying the mail a number of wagons are shown. One is an old Concord coach, weather-beaten and travel-stained, which ran between Helena and Bozeman, Mont. It has an interesting record. In 1877 it was taken by the Indians and re-captured by Gen. Howard and his forces. Garfield, Arthur and Sherman have ridden in it; and the mail sacks on the top and in the boot show the connection with postoffice affairs. Next to the old coach is one of modern make, used for service in the Yellowstone National Park. It is a fine vehicle. Next to this is a mail wagon, similar to those with which dwellers in cities are familiar, and a mail collection wagon with step and entrance from the rear, that a man may drive and still be able to gather the contents of street boxes. A working model of a mail car is shown, that those of a mechanical turn may be enabled to inspect at their leisure the workings of the various devices.

Models are also shown of an ocean steamship, a Mississippi river steamer, a light tug, a vessel, and of the first steamboat to carry United States mails. One of the most interesting features of the exhibit is a toboggan drawn by three dogs and followed by the driver, this being illustrative of the method still more or less in use in the far North. The driver is dressed in Canadian vagabond costume, and is provided with snow shoes. This was sent by the postmaster at Sault Ste. Marie.

In a glass case are to be seen life-sized figures, showing the uniform of letter carriers and clerks of the railway mail service.

Another feature of the service is shown in a figure of a boy mounted on a bicycle. This is a special delivery messenger equipped as in Washington, D. C., and in other cities in the country. THE WOMAN AND HER PARASOL

"Did you ever see a woman carry her parasol so as to protect herself from the sun's rays where they strike her most foribly?" said a man as he looked after two summer girls going on the board walk. The parasols raised over their heads, and with the sun streaming on their backs, I have never seen out with a girl yet who hasn't carried her sunshade in just the same ridiculous manner. Perhaps, after an hour of troling, she will exclaim: "Where is the sun, anyway?" and for two minutes will carry the protector in the way it should be done, but after that it gets out of gear again, and she holds it gradually at the back, while the sun streams in her eyes or over the right shoulder, when every sunbeam is doing its best to blister the left one.

"Then did you ever notice what irresponsible creatures they are, these dainty bits of feminine loveliness, when the summer weapon was placed in their hands to work havoc in crowds, tearing out bonnets, knocking aside hats and just going on the sight of many a person whose face grows red with their threatening contiguity. A cow with a musket would be as harmless as a day-old baby in comparison with the holder of this feminine bit of war are, for, though unreasoning, the gentle Mollie is awkward and would be apt to miss fire, but the girl and her weapon get there every time."

German Crisps

One cup of butter beaten to a cream; add two cups of fine granulated sugar gradually, yolks of three eggs well beaten, grated rind and juice of one lemon, pour to make of sufficient consistency to roll out, and the well-beaten whites of three eggs. Roll out thin, cut into rounds with cake cutters, brush the tops with white of egg slightly beaten, sprinkle with sugar from the dredger and chopped almonds, and bake in moderate oven.

To Make Crackers

Take a piece of well risen light bread dough about the size of a half pint cup. Work into it a piece of fresh butter the size of a walnut. When it is worked in break the dough into bits as large as a nutmeg. Flour the board well and roll very thin. Prick with a fork all over and bake quickly in a pale brown. Do not scorch them in the least. These crackers are entirely different from those made with risen dough, and are especially nice for an invalid who has wearied of the taste of other bread.

The Next Centennial

Miss Sabrina Nelson of Peakville had been over to Centerville to attend the centennial celebration of the settlement of that town, and she was tired out.

"How did you enjoy it, Sabrina?" asked one of her neighbors the next day.

"O, 'twas pleasant enough if anybody likes sech goings on," replied Miss Nelson, loftily. "Once seen' it is about all I want of it. I made up my mind last night I wouldn't ever go to another centennial in Centerville, not if I lived to be 80 years old!"

ILLITERACY AND CRIME.

The School House a Better Preventive Than the Penitentiary.

Does education help morals? is a question that has frequently been discussed. It is somewhat astonishing in this age, to find persons replying in the negative to this proposition, and holding that our schools are having very little effect in reducing the amount of crime and vice in this country, and they even point to criminal records in support of their view; and to the large number of crimes committed in Boston and other cities where the school systems are practically perfect, and where every one can get a good education.

If we examine the criminal and police statistics, however, as the United States commissioner of education, Mr. W. T. Harris, has done, we will find that they make no such showing as is pretended; but quite the contrary, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There are, of course, some educated as well as illiterate persons arrested, but the difference in the number of arrests of these two classes shows how great is the effect of the schools in the elimination of crime.

The number of prisoners confined in seventeen states which have complete statistics on this point—fourteen of them Western or Middle states—is 110,558, and among these the illiterates, in proportion to numbers, contribute six times their quota. The record in the towns show an even greater proportion of crime among the ignorant and the illiterates, for the whole country furnishes to each thousand of persons eight times as many prisoners as those who can read and write.

It is plain from these facts that our schools have already greatly reduced the amount of crime, and that when we shall have succeeded in getting rid of all illiteracy we will still further reduce the number of criminals.

Lying in Wait for Jack Fenelope—Have you seen Jack Dashing lately?

Perfidia—About two weeks ago.

Fenelope—Well, when you see him again remind him that we are engaged, will you, dear?

Domestic—Yes, mum.

Next Housekeeper—Well, it doesn't look so. Dust it again, and breathe hard while you are doing it.

"This dollar doesn't sound right," said the smart clerk, rigging the coin on his counter. "Humph!" said his coarse customer, "what do you want for a dollar anyway? An operatic solo with orchestral accompaniment?"

"You can go to work at once," said the woman who was engaging a servant. "I will go down to the kitchen presently to see how you are getting along." "Excuse me, ma'am," was the reply, "but I recave on Thursdays."

Morgan's Keeper—Looking for anyone? Visitor—O'm lookin' fur me dear friend, Mollie Moolighan, who's mysteriously disappeared. It 'ud break my heart to find him dead. O' loved that man loike a brother. "Has he any marks by which you could identify him?" "Yis, he do have a big scar on his forehead where O' hit 'im wid a brick."

Chicago and Buffalo rank next to New York in the handling of water freight, and are surpassed by only three European ports.

A well-to-do wine-grower from California, who is on a visit to the Eastern cities, declines to commit himself on the Chinese question—if there is a question. He says: "My personal dislike to the Chinese is as strong as anybody's, but that doesn't blind me to the fact that we Westerners would be nearly helpless without them. They have built our railroads, laid out our streets, hewn our wood and drawn our water for us, and to-day we depend on them to run our farms and gardens, do our housework and cook our food. They do for us what women servants do for you in the East."

Lord Granville, who died in 1846, with a great reputation for courtliness of manner, held for many years the post of Ambassador at Paris, and the only objection which could with any show of plausibility be brought against him while holding that conspicuous post was that he was sometimes inclined to be indolent. He was addicted to play, and often ran over to London for a little of his favorite amusement at Crookford's. White's or Graham's, but almost as frequently returned to the French capital with the loss of a considerable sum of money. He was one of the four noblemen who lost $5,000,000 at Crookford's in one night.

Injured by Gas.

Gas consumers often complain that books, furniture and pictures are injured by the small quantity of sulphur which, despite all precautions, passes through the burners. But Dr. Odling, F. R. S., and Prof. Lewis, in giving evidence before Lord Sandford's Committee on the Crystal Palace gas bill, declared that this idea was an error. The damage was not due to the sulphur, but to the heated zone of the atmosphere above the chandelier. The sulphurous ingredient was so small that four ordinary lucifer matches struck in the course of six hours would yield as much sulphur in a room as the burning of 100 feet of gas.

THE NEW LIBERTY BELL.

It Rang at Chicago July 4th—The Echo Taken up Throughout the Land.

The following sketch regarding the new Columbian liberty bell cannot help but prove of deep interest to every reader of this paper.

The work of getting the people interested in this bell has been enormous. The idea originated some time ago and a committee was organized with members from every State and Territory, several foreign countries, Daughters and Sons of the American Revolution, the Lyceum League of America, the Society of German Patriots, the Human Freedom League, and kindred organizations.

The material fused to make the bell consists entirely of metal that has been associated with the fight for freedom, or which has historical interest. It is proposed that this magnificent bell shall ring at each sunrise and sunset; at 9 o'clock in the morning on anniversaries of days marking great events in the world's progress toward liberty, at 12 o'clock on the birthdays of creators of liberty, and at 4 o'clock it will toll on the anniversaries of their death. Thus the bell will continually remind those listening to its sound of men and women who led in work of liberty and peace, and the anniversaries of great events resulting from their efforts and sacrifices.

It would require a large volume to give a complete list of all the various pieces of metal melted to make the bell, so we can give only a few of them. There are 250,000 pennies from school children. There are two bullets which met in midair during the war of the rebellion. One was shot from the South and other from the North. When they came together they formed the letter "U" which stands for union. There is also a piece of Washington's surveying chain, a lock from Jefferson's musket, and nails taken from the room in which he wrote the Declaration of Independence. Every state and territory has sent articles, closely associated with its cherished memories.

The bell will weigh about 13,000 pounds, or ten times the weight of the old Liberty bell. The inscriptions upon it will be "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another" "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof," and "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good will toward men."

The desire is to have this bell rung for the first time on July 4 at the fair grounds and also that all the bells throughout the land ring at the same time, 12 o'clock, was practically accomplished. Mrs. Marge Morris Wagner, of San Diego, Cal., gave the bell the first stroke as commemorating the union of all nations in brotherly love, for that we believe is what the world's fair signifies. Mrs. Wagner was chosen for this office, for it was she who wrote a poem on "Liberty's Bell" in San Jose about ten years ago, and happening to see a copy of it in Independence Hall a few years ago was what first conceived the idea of getting the people interested in such a bell for the people.

It is intended to have the bell remain in Chicago until the close of the fair, when the proposition is to start the bell on its journey, which will include not only every state in the union but every country to which it is possible to send it. It is not intended that it shall have a permanent home, but that it may fulfill its destiny as the missionary of freedom it will be ever on the move wherever a great affair is in progress; whenever a memorable event is to be celebrated it will preach, "Freedom and the people's rights." It will go to the fair to be held at Paris and to Jerusalem. The anniversary of liberty's birthday in each and every republic will hear its voice. It will never rest. It will stand for freedom and America, the cradle of personal liberty.

In this connection we might add the bells of our churches were rung with that lusty good will that must have characterized the old finger in the Philadelphia tower the afternoon the declaration was adopted. Some of our ladies were so enthused they stood in their doors and swung dinner bells.
