JACK, THE RIPPER.

Northville Has One Who Slashes Cushions.

The peace and law abiding propensity of our village is again ruthlessly invaded. Less than three weeks ago, Floyd Northrop's new carriage cushions were slashed with a sharp knife and ruined by some devilishly inclined person or persons, and this is now followed by an even more disreputable deed, if there could be one, than even that.

As a storage place for carriage seats, cushions and the like, John Hirsch uses the stone school house, which is a part of his factory buildings. When he went in there for some material the other day he found four new carriage seat cushions and three backs ripped across with a knife, completely ruined. The ripping had been done in much the same manner and style as young Northrop's was and the probabilities are, the same hand did both jobs. Entrance to the shop was gained through a corner of the old building where a portion of it had fallen away. It is sincerely hoped that the guilty party will be yet found and summarily dealt with.

THE NEW CITY HALL.

Engine House, Council Room, and Jail Combined.

Work on the overhauling and remodeling of the old city hall is progressing finely, and when completed the building will present quite an improved appearance.

The first floor will be devoted to the use of the fire department and apparatuses, and the cells in the rear will be left as they now are to be used in locking up desperate criminals. Beside the regular entrance at the front, there is a large double door opening, to run the hook and ladder trucks, and hose carts out and in.

Easy stairs will lead from the engine room to the floor above, which will be fitted up for use of the council and general meetings of the village's servants. A thirty foot tower and bellfry will be added to this story for use of the fire company in drying hose and in the bellfry will be placed a fire alarm that will awaken the very hills and valleys of the village should necessity call it into action.

A Source of State Pride.

"The Michigan State Normal School is justly regarded as one of the leading educational institutions of its kind in the United States," recently remarked a gentleman from New York, who had been officially connected with the schools of that great state for years. "In the quality and character of its instructions, the strength and adaptability of its courses and by reason of the very successful results secured, your State Normal School at Ypsilanti is easily entitled first place in the list of Normal schools of our country." This is an intelligent estimate of the work and value of one of the educational institutions of our state which we are proud to call an reader.

It is a fact, a satisfaction to the people of Michigan, that the State Normal School has constantly confined its efforts and ambition to the purpose for which it is established and for which it is willingly supported—the development and training of teachers for a profession which has properly come to be regarded as the highest and most important to which the life of any man or woman can be dedicated.

It is also an important fact in connection with the State School; that expenses of its students are less than at any other educational institution in the state. Good board and rooms at Ypsilanti can be obtained at prices ranging from $2.50 to $3.00 and $3.50 per week. Free admission to the State Normal is given to all students who present certificates of appointment from the legislative representative or senator of their district, and an admission fee of but $5.00 per term is charged students not holding such a certificate.

Persons desiring further information concerning the State Normal School are requested to send for a catalogue, or address the Clerk of the school at Ypsilanti, Mich. The State Normal school belongs to the people of Michigan, it is generously supported by them, and it is the desire of the State Board of Education, under whose control the school is, that no citizen of our state shall lose or be deprived of its unusual advantages by reason of lack of information concerning such advantages.

Around The Country

A sign displayed over the door of a Walled Lake hotel reads, "Cure for Ager; take it every hour."

The following remarkable item appeared in last week's South Lyon Excelsior:

"Born to Mr. & Mrs. J. Sessions a son and yams like a regular southern planter."

Editor Jennings of the Fenton Independent is trying to make out he is awfully honest by advertising a "found" silk umbrella at his office. The fact of the matter is there's a name painted on the inside of that bumbershoot.

N. H. Leet killed a rattlesnake on Saginaw street in front of McKean's store on Monday. His snakeship had evidently dropped from a load of hay. —Pontiac Post.

The Post neglected to say that the snake was nine feet long, measured eight inches in diameter and had thirty nine rattles on its tale.

The Milford Times complains of the disgraceful scenes of disorderlies and drunks on the village streets of a Saturday night. This is quite a contrast to the peaceful and gentlemanly conduct of the people upon the streets of Northville, where even a quiet drunk is seldom seen. We do not call to mind seeing a single one the past year.

Here is a conundrum that a lady asked the other evening: "Why is the wind blind?" And here is the answer she gave after everybody acknowledged their inability to guess it: "The wind is a breeze; a breeze is a zephyr; a zephyr is a yarn; a yarn is a tale; a tale is an attachment; attachment is love and love is blind." Do you wonder no one solved the puzzle?

An eastern editor says that a man in New York got himself into trouble by marrying two wives. A western editor replies that a good many men have done the same thing by marrying one. A northern editor says that quite a number of his acquaintances found trouble enough in barley promising to marry and not going any farther. A southern editor says that a friend of his was bothered enough when he was simply found in company with another man's wife.

If Fenton people want to do any sprinkling from their water works system, they must do it between 5 and 9 mornings and evenings. They have 255 takers and the supply does not seem to be quite up to the demand. Northville now has something like 100 takers, the sprinklers are running day and night and there is enough overflow water from the reservoir to drown two or three villages like Fenton.

Morenci, a small town in western Michigan, of about 1250 inhabitants, has voted an electric light plant. Wayne with a population of nearly 2,000, has not even a sufficient number of kerosene lamps. —Wayne Review.

If Wayne has 2,000 population, Morenci has about 3,000 and besides this the Review perhaps does not know that, with the exception of Northville, Morenci is just the liveliest, hustling and prettiest village in Michigan.

Milford has a wife-beater. The fact is sad but true, that the village harbors at least one of this cowardly class. A recent importation from Canada, who does business on Main street, comes in for a big share of righteous indignation from those who have been unwilling listeners to and witnesses of martial infelicities and his indulgence of Sullivanistic propensities. —Times.

Milford should send down and get Northville's marshal for about a week. We will guarantee there would be a general clearing out that would surprise some of the people in that town.

Monroe man has adopted the very latest way of treating bicyclists who persist in crowding people off the sidewalks. He throws tacks all over the walks. In that way destroying the tires of the wheels. —Carleton Gazette.

A Monroe villian you mean. How about the barefoot boy and the lady with the paper soled shoe? The man that sowed those tacks should have an air pump inserted down his back, via inside his neck, and after being pumped up to the required pneumatic resistance, dropped on a handful of shingle nails for about fifteen minutes standard time.

Thirty persons suicided by jumping from the Eiffel tower, but thus far no life has been lost by its counterpart at the Columbia fair—the great Ferris wheel. The wheel isn't in it with the Eiffel tower, but the cold storage tower crowds the Eiffel record pretty close.

Egypt's khedive seems to have a glimmering idea that the land over which he nominally rules ought to be something more than a mere dependency of England. This young ruler will speedily realize the vast difference that exists on occasion between "ought" and "is."

It is all very well for the world's fair managers to be figuring on royal visitors from Europe. But it will pay them a great deal more to arrange for great excursions at cheap rates from all parts of this country. Royalty has an unpleasant faculty of wanting everything for nothing.

When a New York woman named Hunter accidentally received a letter from her husband, addressed "Dear Mrs. Brown," he explained that he had written it merely to arouse her jealousy. The subsequent procurement of a divorce indicates that a more successful attempt than his was never made.

Several exchanges are gravely discussing the question of whether or not a lawyer can be a gentleman. Doubtless to a gentleman is among the possibilities open to a member of the legal profession, but once having started on his career, he seems generally to prefer to keep right on being a lawyer.

Several of the railroads propose to carry their employees and their families to the world's fair free of charge. That is very good as far as it goes, but this act will not absolve them from the duty of making a rate to the general public which will enable the people to see the greatness at Chicago at a cost which comes within their means.

Court etiquette on the Pacific coast seems to be approaching the point of efficiency. By the latest ruling from the bench gentlemen are expected to unbutton their pockets of firearms before entering. A man with a gun within reach will say things that otherwise he would not. The ruling of the court seems to be an insidious thrust at the much-vaunted freedom of speech.

Once the story of a Philadelphia blackbird killing and devouring one of the pestiferous sparrows that had attempted to invade her nest is verified and every community in this country that hears of the blackbird's heroic treatment of his enemy will at once want to encourage the cooling of many more than four and twenty blackbirds. If the impudent and persistent sparrow has found his match in the blackbird, America will be apt to want to canonize him.

MANY honorary titles have been granted by colleges this year, titles which, doubtless in most instances, have added honor to the men upon whom they have been conferred. But a man is most worthy of honor after all when he is so great that no title can add distinction to him. William Shakespeare, LL D, Ph D, or Abraham Lincoln, A M, or Dr. George Washington would not have half the significance of the plain names of Shakespeare, Lincoln and Washington.

It is not an uncommon thing for municipal authorities to find themselves called upon to prevent would-be suicides doing themselves violence. Policemen have frequently rescued from drowning people who had thrown themselves into the water, but to be called for to prevent a man from having himself buried alive is something unique in police or municipal authority history. That is what the Chicago police are engaged in doing. They are preventing a man who claims knowledge of an Indian occult science from having himself put in a grave alive from which he promises to emerge in September alive and well.

In a recent majority report made by a committee on the code of ethics of the American medical association it was recommended that physicians be permitted to patent mechanical devices and to consult with all legal practitioners. This is a step in the right direction. Why should mechanical genius in the medical profession go unrewarded any more than in any other and why should not a homeopathist and an allopathist and an eclectic consult together? Surely a case of cramp colic in a patient is no less painful whether observed by one school of medicine or another. Pathology is the same whether sugar-coated pills, roots and herbs or what not are used.

The only inkling of good fortune in connection with the Victoria disaster seems to have befallen Vice Admiral Tryon. It seems, according to high English authority, that by drowning he saved himself the ignominy of being shot.

PRESIDENT VASQUEZ of one of the little fly-by-night republics down south has just had sixteen of his prominent opponents stood up in a neat row and shot. This is not exactly politics, but it has the savor of business.

TALMAGE PREACHES A SERMON IN WISCONSIN.

A Great Throng Assembled at Monona Lake to Hear the Celebrated Preacher. Orator Diagnose a Certain Scriptural Passage.

MADISON, Wis., July 23.—A great throng of many thousands from all parts of the North and West are gathered at the Monona Lake Assembly, a chalet-like building near this city. Rev. Talmage this forenoon preached to this great multitude on "Sharpened Axes," the text being I. Samuel 13:19-21: "Now there was no sword found throughout all the land of Israel."

"My loving and glad salutation to this uncounted host of Christians, Christ's Endeavorers, gospel workers, and their friends from all parts of Wisconsin and America, saints and sinners! What a glorious opportunity! What a scolding subjugation the Israelites were suffering! The Philistines had carried off all the blacksmiths, and torn down all the blacksmiths' shops, and abolished the blacksmiths' trade in the land of Israel. These Philistines had a particular grudge against blacksmiths, although I have always admired them, and have sometimes thought I ought to have been one myself. The Philistines would not even allow these parties to work their valuable maces of brass and iron, nor might they make any swords or spears. There were only two words left in all the land—'peace, peace, peace, peace, until they had taken all the grindstones from the land of Israel, so that if an Israelite farmer wanted to sharpen his plow or his axe, he had to go over to the garrison of the Philistines to get it done. There was only one sharpening instrument left in the land, and that was a file. The farmers and the mechanics having nothing to whet up the collier, and the good and the pious, save a simple file, industry was hindered and work practically disgraced. The great day of the Philistines was to keep the Israelites from sharpening their axes and their swords. They might get from out of the hills to make swords of, but they would not have any blacksmiths to weld them. If they got the iron welded, they would have no grindstones on which to bring the instruments of agriculture or the military weapons up to an edge. Oh, you poor, weaponless Israelites! reduced to a file, how I pity you! But these Philistines were not forever to keep their heel on the neck of God's children. Jonathan, on his hands and knees, climbed up a great rock beyond which were the Philistines' and their armorers, and he said to them, 'I am making up the same rock, and these two men, with their two swords, how to pieces the Philistine. The Lord throwing a great terror upon them. So it was then, so it is now. The two men of God on their knees mightier than a Philistine lion-tion their feet."

"So it is in the Church of Christ today. We are too willing to give up our weapons to the enemy. The world boasts that it has gobbled up the schools, and the colleges, and the arts, and the sciences, and the literature, and the printing press. Infidelity is making a mighty attempt to get all our weapons in its hand, and then to keep them. Oh, how it is making the bones, all the time, and after awhile, when the great battle between sin and righteousness has opened, if we do not look out, we will be as badly off as these Israelites, without any swords to fight with, and without any sharpening instruments. I call you, on the superintendents of literary institutions to see to it that the men who go into the classrooms and the lecture halls, and the electric batteries, and the microscopes or telescopes, be children of God, not Philistines. The avowed thinkers of this day are trying to get all the intellectual weapons of this century in their own grasp. What a war is being waged! Christians to capture the scientific and scholarly Christians to capture the secular-bip, and philosophic Christians to capture the philosophy, and lecturing Christians, to take back the lecturing platform."

"We want to send out against Schenckel and Strauss and Renan of the past, men like the late Theodore Christlieb of Bonn, and against the infidel scientists, a Go-whipping Silius and a Hittcock and Agassiz. We want to capture all the philosophic apparatus, and swing around the telescopes on the swivel, until through them we can see the morning star of the Redeemer, and with the meteorological hammer discover the 'Rock of Ages,' and amid the fogs of the realists find the 'Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the valley.' We want a clergy, learned enough to do course of the human eye, showing it to be a micro-copie, and telescop in one instrument, with eight hundred wonderful contrivances, and lid-closing 30,000 or 40,000 times a day; all its muscles and nerves and bones showing the infinite ski luffan infinite God, and then winding up with the peroration, 'He that is med the eye, shall he not see?' And then we want to discourse about the human ear, its wonderful intermembranes and vibrations, and its chain of small bones, and its auditor, nerves, closing with the exclamation: 'He that planted the ear shall he not hear?' And we want some one able to expound the first chapter of Genesis, beginning to the geology and the astronomy of the world, until, as Job said, 'The stones of the field shall be in league with the truth, and the stars in their courses shall fight against them.' Oh, Church of God, go out and recapture these weapons. Let men of God go out and take possession of the platform. Let all the printing press of this country speak out for Christ, and the reporters, and the type-setters, and the editors, and publishers swear allegiance to the Lord God of truth. Ah, my friends, that day must come, and if the great body of Christian men have not the faith, or the courage, or the consecration to do this, then let some Jonathan, on his busy hands, and on praying knees, climb up on the rock of hindrance, and in the name of the Lord God of Israel, slash to pieces those literary Philistines. If the men will not be converted to God, then they must be destroyed."

"Again, I learn from this subject that we sometimes do well to take advantage of the world's sharpening instruments. These Israelites were reduced to a file, and so they went over to the garrison of the Philistines to get their axes and swords and their plows sharpened. The Bible distinctly states in the next text that they had no other instruments now, with which to do this work, and the Israelites did not when they went over to the Philistines to have their grindstones. My friends, is it not a grand opportunity for the world's grindstones? If there be any sharpening facility on the other side, let us go over and employ it for Christ's sake. The fact is, we fight with too dull weapons, and we work with too dull implements. We back and we maul when we ought to make a clean stroke. Let us go over and employ sharp business men, and among sharp business men, and find out what the Philistines are doing, and then transfer it to the cause of Christ. If they have science and art it will do us good to rub against it. In other words, let us employ the tools of the world, and let us use them to their music, and let us watch their science, and we will borrow their philosophical apparatus to make our experiments, and we will borrow their printing presses to publish our bibles, and we will borrow their rail trains to carry our Christian literature, and we will borrow their ships to transport our missionaries. That was what made Paul such a master in his day. He not only got all the learning he could get of Dr. Gamaliel, but a forward, standing on Mars Hill, and in a crowd of his outcasts, quoted their poetry and grasped their logic, and wielded their logic, and employed their mythology, until Dionisius the Areopagite, learned in the schools of Athens and Helopolis, went down under his tremendous powers. That was what gave Thomas Chalmers his power in his day. He got the world's scientific knowledge and compelled it to ring out the wisdom and greatness of the Lord, until for these old times the morning stars sang to each other and all the sons of God shouted for joy. That was what gave to Jonathan Edwards his influence in his day. He conquered the world's metaphysics and applied it to the service of God, and not only the old meeting houses in Northampton, Massachusetts, but all Christendom felt thrilled by his Christian power. Well, now, my friends, we all have tools of Christian usefulness. Do not let them lose their edges. We want no rusty blades in this fight. We want no counter that cannot rip up the globe. We want no axe that cannot fell the trees. We want no gold that cannot start the fairy team. Let us get the very best grindstones we can find, though they be in the possession of the Philistines, compelling them to turn the crank while we bear down with all our might on the swiftly revolving wheel until a few energies an faculties shall be brought up to a bright, keen, sharp, glittering edge."

"Again, my subject teaches us on what a small allowance Philistine industry puts a man. See these Philistines with the money and the tools they took the spars and the swords, and they took everything but a file. Oh, that is the way sin works; it grabs everything, it begins with robbery, and it ends with robbery. It despoils the faculty and that faculty, and keeps on until the whole nature is gone. Was the man eloquent before? It generally thickens his tongue. Was he fine in persona appearance, it mars his visage. Was he eloquent, it sends the sheriff to sell him out. Was he influential, it destroys his popularity. Was he placid, and genial, and loving, it makes him spleenetic and cross, and so utterly it is changed that you can scarcely recognize him, and that the Philistines have left him nothing but a file. Oh, the way of the transgressor is hard. His cup is bitter. His night is dark. His prayers are deep. His eyes are terrible. Philistine iniquity says to that man: 'Now, surrender to me, and I will give you all you want—music for two dances, swift steeds for the race, imperial couch to slumber on, and you shall be refreshed with the rarest fruits, in baskets of golden Niagara.' He lies. The music is made up of twisted snakes. The couch is a grave. Small allowance of rest, small allowance of peace, small allowance of comfort. Cold, hard, rough—nothing but a file. So it was with Voltaire, the most applauded man of his day."

"The Scripture was his 'best book,' whence he drew Bon mots to gall the Christian and the Jew. An infidel, when well, but what when sick! Oh, then a text would touch him to the quick. Seized with hemorrhage of the lungs in Paris, where he had gone to be crowned in the theater as an idol of all France, he sends a messenger to get a priest, that he may be reconciled to the church before he dies. A great terror falls upon him. He makes peace all round about him so dismal that the nurse declares that she would not for all the wealth of Europe see another model die. Philistine iniquity had poisoned him all the world's grandlands but in the last hour of his life when he needed solacing, sent him across his conscience and his nerves a file, a file. So it was with Lord Byron, his wickedness in England only surpassed by his unkindness in Venice, then got on to end his brilliant misery at Missolonghi, fretting at his nurse, Kitcher, fretting at his wife, fretting at the world, fretting at God, and he who gave to the world 'Childe Harold,' and 'Sardanapalus,' and 'The Prisoner of Chillon,' and 'The Siege of Corinth,' reduced to nothing but a file. Oh, how great a facility for making promises, but it is just as great a facility for breaking them. A Christian life is the only cheerful life, while a life of wicked surrender is remorse, ruin, and death. It is painted in sepulchral ghastliness. In the brightest days of the Mexican empire, Montezuma said the felt gawing at his heart something like a cackler. Sin, like a measter wild beast of the forest, sometimes licks all over its victim in order that the victim may be more easily swallowed; but generally sin raps, and falls, and tears, and upbraids, and galls, and it is not so good, as the world says, but it is so. 'The way of the wicked, he turneth upside down.' History tells us that when Rome was founded, on that day there were twelve scoundrels flying through the air, but when a transgressor dies, the sky is black with whole flocks of them. Vultures! When I see sin robbing so many people, and I see them going down day by day, and week by week, I must give a plain warning. I dare not keep it back lest I risk the salvation of my own soul. Rober the pirate pulled down the warning bell on the Cape rock, thin skin that he would have a chance to despoil vessels that were on the rocks; but on a gale his ship crashed down his rocky rock, and went down with all his cargo. God declares, 'When I say to the wicked, thou shalt surely die, and thou givest him not warning, that same man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thy hands.' 'I learn from this subject, what a sad thing it is when the church of God loses its metal. These Philistines saw that if they could get all the metallic weapons out of the hands of the Israelites, all would be well, and therefore, they took the swords and spears. They did not wait to them to have a single metallic weapon. When the last of the Israelites gave their sword to the Philistines, this is the trouble with the church of God today. It is surrendering its courage. It has not got enough metal. How seldom it is that you see a man taking his position in pew, or in pulpit, or in religious society, and holding that position against all oppression, and all trial, and all persecution, and all criticism. The church of God today is a more backbone, more defiance, more consecrated bravery, more metal. How often I see a man start out in some good enterprise, and at the first blast of newspaperdom, he has collapsed, and all his courage is gone. Forgetful of the fact that if a man is right, all the newspapers of the earth, with all the columns pounding away at him, cannot do him any permanent damage. It is only when a man is wrong that he can be damaged. Why, God is going to vindicate his truth, and he is going to stand by you, my friends, in every effort you make for Christ's cause and the salvation of men. I sometimes say to my wife: 'There is something wrong; the newspapers have not assailed me for three months! I have not done my duty against public iniquities, and I will stir them up next Sunday.' Then I stir them up, and all the following week the devils are and fowls, showing that I have hit them very hard. Go forth in the service of Christ and do you whole duty. You have one sphere. I have another sphere. 'The Lord of hosts is with us, and the God of Jacob is our refuge. Selah.' We want more of the determination of Jonathan. I do suppose he was a very wonderful man, but he got on his knees and clambered up the rock, and with the help of his armor-bearer he hewed down the Philistines; and a man of very ordinary intellectual attainments, on his knees, can storm anything for God and for the truth. We want something of the determination of the general who went into the war, and as he entered his first battle, his knees knuckled together, his physical courage was quite up to his moral courage, and he looked down at his knees, and said: 'Ah, if you knew where I was going to take you, you would shake worse than that!' There is only one question for you to ask and for me to ask. What does God want me to do? Where is the field? Where is the work? Where is the anvil? Where is the prayer-hearing? Where is the pulpit? And, finding out what God wants us to do, go ahead and do it—all the energies of our body, mind and soul enlisted in the undertaking. Oh, my brethren, we have but little time in which to fight for God. You will be dead soon. Put in the Christian cause every energy that God gives you. 'What thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might; for there is neither wisdom nor device in the grave, where we are all having. O, it is not high time that we wake out of sleep? Hallelujah! God, lift up your head at the coming victory! The Philistines will go down, and the Israelites will go up. We are on the winning side. Hear that—on the winning side. I think just now the king's horse are being hooked up to the chariot, and when he does ride down the sky there will be such a hosanna among his friends, and such a wailing among his enemies, as will make the earth tremble and the heavens sing. I see now the plumes of the Lord's cavalrymen oscillating in the air. The archangel before the throne has already sounded his trumpet, and then he will put his golden lips to his own, and he will blow the long, loud blast that will make all nations freeze. Clasp your hands, all ye people! Hark! I hear the falling thrones, and the dashing down of demolished iniquities."

Ten Little Chickens.

TUNE—"TEN LITTLE INKINS."

Ten little chickens under a vine;
Hen stepped on one—then there was nine.

Nine little chickens staid out too late;
One caught cold—then there were eight.

Eight little chickens left out of eleven;
One in a water trough—then there were seven.

Seven little chickens in an awful fix;
Mink took one—then there were six.

Six little chickens before a fire;
Bee stung one—then there were five.

Five little chickens on a barn floor;
Horse hit one—then there were four.

Four little chickens under a tree;
Cat wanted one—then there were three.

Three little chickens all wet with dew;
Croup took one—then left only two.

Two little chickens—see how they run!
Here comes a hawk—Now there's one.

One little chicken left all alone;
Coyote came by—and now there's none.

Big Chunks of Coal.

A kind of rivalry has been in progress between the coal mining companies of this country. New South Wales and England, as to which should exhibit the largest lumps of coal at the World's Fair. The result, as now set up for display in the Mining Building, is something startling to see. Two blocks from New South Wales were the first to arrive. When placed in position, one resting above the other, they towered to a height of ten feet and weighed a number of tons each.

The fitting response on the part of the coal men of this country to this great modern challenge came from the anthracite mines of Hocking Valley, Ohio. With great labor and care an enormous mass was quarried there, and finally hoisted to the surface. It contained fully five hundred cubic feet, and was found to weigh 22,250 pounds.

Eleven and a half tons of coal in one lump!

Protected by a strong frame of joists, it was loaded upon a special car and sent to Chicago, in the expectation that nothing larger could be produced. Here, indeed, was coal enough in one chunk to last a family an entire year.

To prepare a safe and adequate foundation for the mass to rest on has required an outlay on the part of the exhibitors of nearly $700.

England still remained to be heard from. Early in the month of April they arrived on one of the Leyland line steamships, billed for the World's Fair, Chicago, U. S. A., a single cyclopedic block, the bare sight of which must prove an object-lesson in humility to the Hocking Valley men.

In the English mining vernacular, it is described as "a cob of cannel coal."

A cob, indeed!

As hoisted from the hold of the steamship, it weighed hard upon thirty thousand pounds. Divested of its casings and packings, it is understood to contain eleven tons. (English)—fifteen hundredweight. As originally quarried, moreover, the cob weighed sixteen tons, but was chipped down to its present size at the request of the World's Fair management.

At the present writing no one, at home or abroad, has asked for the privilege of exhibiting a larger lump.

Two Friends.

Some crustaceans hide their shells under another sea creature, apparently to protect themselves. A certain hermit crab found in the Mediterranean Sea is fond of a sea-anemone, and it is unusual to find a shell which a hermit has chosen for his house unprotected by his anemone friend. A gentleman relates that he captured and put in a large aquarium one of these sea-anemones, on a shell in which was a hermit crab who seemed already to have outgrown his house.

"All went well for a while," he writes, "then the hermit grew so large that he had to leave his shell and abandon his friend. An hour after the hermit left his old shell I looked at the aquarium again, and was surprised to find the sea-anemone on top of the now-shell which the hermit crab had adopted as his dwelling. They both seemed very well satisfied."

"How had the anemone come there? I soon found out. I had cautiously lifted the shell to the surface of the water, and let the anemone fall to the bottom of the aquarium, then I put the shell down near it."

"Hardly had the crustacean touched bottom before he seized the anemone with one claw, then with two, and I saw at once what he intended to do."

"With great care he went to work to replace the anemone on the shell. He found the anemone upside down, and he took great pains to sit it upright again. Then he grasped it firmly with two claws, and raised it and placed it on the shell. For twelve minutes he remained perfectly motionless, pressing it firmly on to the shell all the time. Then he cautiously took away first one claw, and then the other."

"I was pleased to see that when he moved the sea anemone remained in place, as firmly fixed as the energetic little crab could wish."

Historic Homes.

If tradition may be believed, Lafayette and Washington each slept in a house, enough to furnish forth a metropolis. Ellegrense blatter tells of another sort of house, which perhaps may be found in even greater numbers.

Guest to hotel-keeper, who has just handed him his bill: "Tell me, is not this the house where the poet Schiller lodged for one night before he wrote his play, 'The Robbers'?"

Spotted a Catastrophe.

A few weeks ago, while the United States cruiser "Philadelphia" was engaged in a sham battle near Baltimore, a cartridge exploded prematurely on deck, severely injuring the heroism of a young gunner, a state saved the vessel and all on board from destruction. Down the iron chute leading to the room where powder and cartridges are kept fell a pile of burning canvas. A single spark in contact with a grain of powder might have touched off the whole magazine and blown up the ship. Everybody in the magazine ran for the deck with the exception of this gunner's mate, a young man of 22. With his feet and bare hands he extinguished the fire, and when men arrived with water, all danger was over.

The young man was Harry Ellers. For his brave act he was raised to the rank of gunner, decorated with a medal and complimented by the Secretary of the Navy. Lives may yet be risked for the good of others.

Who Is a Gentleman?

In response to a prize offered by a New York paper for the best definition of a gentleman, the following among other replies were received:

"A manhood framed."

"The American gentleman is he who lives up to the constitutional ideas of equality, liberty, fraternity."

"One who always practices the golden rule."

"One who is manly among men, gentle among women."

"One who regards his duties as scrupulously as his rights."

"A gentleman."

"A candid, courteous, considerate and courageous man."

"A man whose being whose egoistic and artistic tendencies are in a state of stable equilibrium."

"A man true to his loftiest ideals, at ease with himself, and gracious towards others."

"An honorable man of perfect breeding, whose courtesy is but the flowering of a kindly heart."

"My idea of a true American gentleman is one who respects others, respects himself, loves his country, and defends his religion."

"He is a gentleman who is gentle without weakness, brave without boastfulness, courageous without timidity, and who strives after the ideals of refinement and good breeding, not for his own sake, but from a noble desire to elevate and ornament his kind."

A Helping Hand.

This is the mission Sunday school. The pretty young teacher was just giving her class of small girls a new set of "mite boxes" for the foreign missions. One of the tiniest girls in the class looked most distressed and pined up. "We just filled a mite box, teacher." "Yes, I know, dear," was the reply. "But this is for summer, and I want to see what little girl will give the most pennies." "See what pretty boxes they are!" Still the child was disoriented, and a closer inquiry elicited the information that "Mrs. O'Haderty in our alley is going to get a divorce, and I promised to save my pennies to help her."

All who try to make others happy get paid for it in heaven's money.

Selfishness always drags down.

The only real good is the good of all.

Life is not worth living unless we live for somebody else.

Money lost can be recovered, but time lost is gone forever.

Whatever God does means something for our good and his glory.

The best investment any man can make is to give as God expects him to.

Puzzling.

On a certain Western railroad, for convenience, the locomotive is made to push the train down to the terminus, instead of, as on the return trip, pulling the train after it.

This circumstance occasioned great bewilderment of mind to a freshly made citizen of the place, who was of Milesian origin.

"I kin aye understand," he observed, after watching this phenomenon on one day, "how the engine pulls them cars over, but I'm bothered in vain to understand how they them cars pulls the engine down."

A Few Left.

A little girl, aged 4 years, grown tired of play, was unusually thoughtful.

"Mamma," she said, very solemnly, "we will all die some time, won't we?"

"Yes, my dear," answered the mother.

"Everybody will die but the hack-drivers," mused the little one.

"Why, what makes you say that?" questioned the mother, between amusement and wonder. "The hack-drivers must die, too."

"There will have to be somebody to bury the folks, won't there?"

As Authority on Dante.

Mrs. Ellen M. Mitchell of Boston, has made a special study of Dante, and has delivered a course of lectures before the University of Denver and elsewhere on this subject. She is the author of a work called "A Study of Philosophy," dealing chiefly with Greek philosophy, and is one of the little group of Hegelian students of this country—the school of thought which Prof. William T. Harris is one of the most prominent members.

Like No Other Love.

By Charlotte M. Brnema
CHAPTER III.

"I should like to go to Oxford, mother," said Sir Carlos, one lovely spring morning.

On the previous day his tutor, the Reverend Mr. Pierce, who had spent two years at Firkholme, had left abruptly. He had fallen in love with beautiful Lady Carew, and in some way the young her had discovered his tutor's love for his mother, and he resolved that the Reverend Mr. Pierce should leave Firkholme at once.

"My mother, sir," said Sir Carlos haughtily to the astonished gentleman, "is a lady and an angel. My mother thinks as much of my father as she did when he was living. There is just as much his wife now as she was when he was here at Firkholme with her." His passion seemed to gather with his words. "Do you know," he continued, "that although he and death divide us, my mother talks to my father? I have heard her; and she talks about me."

"You are very selfish," returned the tutor, "you would have your mother devote her whole life to you."

"Certainly I would," rejoined Sir Carlos. "My mother has but me. Do you think she is so light of mind and of heart as to think of dream of another man in her father's place?"

"I do not see why your mother should not marry again as well as other people," said the tutor, gloomily. "I do," replied his pupil, with flashing eyes. "My mother belongs to my father and to me—we will fill her life. And remember this, that if she should marry again, she could and would choose from the noblest in the land, and not—I have no wish to insult you—not such a man as you."

"I have good blood in my veins, and my family is as good as your own," Sir Carlos cried the irate clergyman.

"That may be, but ladies like my mother do not marry the tutors of their sons. You must leave Firkholme, Pierce—you cannot remain here another day."

"I shall not take my dismissal from you, Sir Carlos."

"I think you will," said the young heir. "I am sixteen, and no man remains twenty-four hours in the place who dares to make love to my mother."

"I have not made love to your mother."

"Not yet," interrupted Sir Carlos. "But you would if you remained. You have been presumptuous, and you must go. I will teach myself for the future. My mother and you indeed."

In a state of great indignation Sir Carlos went to his mother's boudoir. She was seated there in the midst of flowers and books, calm, serene, beautiful as the morning itself. As usual when she saw her idolized son, every other thought went out of her mind; her book fell to the ground, and she rose from her seat and went up to him with murmured words of love and tenderness.

"She stopped suddenly, for there was something in his face she had never seen before."

"What is the matter, Carlos?" she asked, passing her hand caressingly over his hair.

"Mother," he said abruptly, "would you ever marry again?"

Her face paled, and a shudder as of horror passed over her.

"I marry again, my son? Most surely not!"

He laid both his hands on her shoulders and looked into eyes that had never expressed anything save love for him.

"Is it not true that you talk to my father though he is dead?" "Lead," he hardly knew what the word meant. "But he is not the same to you as though he were living with us?"

"Yes, the same, but dearer," she replied in wonder. "What had caused her son to speak to her in this strange way?"

"I know it," he said proudly. "Mother, that tutor of mine must leave to-morrow. There must be no indecision about it; he goes to-morrow."

She accepted what he said without a word. She looked at him in vague wonder as he went on.

"Do you know what he has done, mother—what he has dared to do?"

"I dashed across her mind that the tutor had probably tried in some way to correct his pupil and she suggested it."

"Correct me!" cried Sir Carlos with flashing eyes and flushed face. "Correct me I have corrected him, and to-morrow he must go! I have taken it very quietly—far more quietly than I thought I should. His offence is against you—not against me."

"Against me!" Exclaimed Lady Carew, whom no person had ever yet offended.

"Yes; he has fallen in love with you, mother, and to-morrow he must go."

"What a strange—what a very unpleasant thing, Carlos," said Lady Carew, wondering what her son would say if he knew how many offers of marriage she had received and refused already.

He threw his arms around her and drew her closely to him.

"Never mind, mother," he said tenderly; "do not let it trouble you. I will take care of you. No one shall tease or vex you while I am alive. If any man dares to make love or talk nonsense to you, I will call him out and shoot him."

Though Lady Carew smiled as she felt the quick beating of his heart, her eyes grew dim with tears. It was so sweet to hear this boy whom she loved so dearly say he would defend her and to see him take upon himself the airs of manhood for her protection.

"He goes to-morrow," repeated Sir Carlos. "We will treat him handsomely; he shall have a year's salary; but he does not remain here twenty-four hours."

"So you do not think, Carlos, that we should consult Dr. Elsdale?"

"Certainly not, mother; it must be as I wish," and by those few words and by that one act he seemed suddenly to have stepped from boyhood to manhood.

She looked at him with wondering eyes. Was this the baby boy whom Sir Antony had held in his arms when on his death-bed, he who dismissed tutors who declined to consult the rector who took her under his care and protection?

They seemed suddenly to have changed places. She was no longer the protectress and guardian; she was the one cared for.

"You do not object mother?" he said quickly.

It might have been better had she chided his eagerness, had she asserted her own authority or that of the rector, had she refused to allow him to have his own way entirely. But all she felt was intense delight at the idea of her son protecting her.

He looked at her admiringly.

"Why, mother," he said, "I have always felt that you were beautiful; now I see I have never thought about these things before; but you look so young; there is not a line on your face; it is as fresh and unwrinkled as a girl's, and to think that a man should ever dream of asking you to be his wife! There are some imperfections too great even for comment—this is one."

Had ever mother such a son, such a defender? Ah, Sir Antony need not have feared leaving her! How good heaven was to her!

"Write the check out for me now, mother," he went on, "and you shall be saved the pain of seeing the Reverend Mr. Pierce again."

All the unfortunate tutor's protestations were in vain.

"I should never like you again," said Sir Carlos. "You can no longer remain in the house with me and my mother. You might with as much reason have fallen in love with an angel as with my mother."

"I know it, but I think you might be sorry for me," returned the tutor gloomily.

"Yes, I am sorry for you," said the young heir cheerfully, "but that doesn't make any difference; you know."

It was in the early morning that the tutor and pupil parted. In vain did Mr. Pierce solicit the favor of saying good-by to Lady Carew. Her son would not hear of it.

"My mother is tired, and she will not be down yet. You had better start early; the servants will think then that you have been sent for suddenly. I am sure it is better for you that you should not see my mother again."

They walked to the court-yard together, the boy who had so suddenly become a man and the tutor who had been the first to feel it. The morning was bright, and the grand pile of buildings and the magnificent terraces were bathed in the golden light of the rising sun.

The two stood for a few minutes by the sundial in the court-yard. Near it, shadowed by the spreading branches of some lime-trees, was an old well, the stones around which were covered with thick green moss and always damp.

Lady Carew had wished to have the courtyard clear and paved; but not so Sir Antony; he had loved the old dial, the spreading limes and the mossy well. He had ordered seats to be placed under the lime boughs; and one of these Sir Carlos sat on this bright morning when he wished his tutor farewell.

"It may be all for the best," said the tutor to the boy. "Still you have taken matters with a very high hand. Remember this, Sir Carlos; you have sent me away, and henceforth I shall lead a lonely life, a life that will never be cheered by one glimpse of her ladyship's beautiful face. You are prosperous and happy now, Sir Carlos; the tutor went on; but if the time ever comes when your mother needs a friend, I will give my life for her, and if you are ever in distress or want a friend, I will do all I can for you for your mother's sake. Good-by."

CHAPTER IV.

It was after the dismissal of the tutor that Sir Carlos declared his intention of going to Oxford. Dr. Elsdale, highly approved the plan, but would have been better pleased had the proposal come from Lady Carew herself. He did not like the way in which young Sir Carlos had taken the matter into his own hands.

However, it was a relief to him to know that the boy, who would so soon be a young man, would be under proper authority for the next two or three years. So Sir Carlos went to Oxford, and for the first time in her life, Lady Carew was parted from her son.

Many times during the next three years she went from Firkholme to Oxford. There was one thing she could not help admitting to herself when she reflected, and it was that she had never really thwarted him. They had not once come into collision; and she was compelled to own that the reason was she had never opposed him. She had always foreseen where they would disagree, and avoided the cause. The most tender love existed between mother and son, and as yet it had not been shadowed by disagreement.

The three years that Sir Carlos spent at Oxford were passed by Lady Carew in preparing for his majority. Never had Firkholme been more prosperous than under her gentle rule. A large sum of money was saved during the young heir's minority, and the promise of no young man's life could have been better.

When he left Oxford, he traveled for a year and a half, his mother going with him, and then he came of age.

The countryfolk round Firkholme still talk of the glories of that day. It was of all days in the year the one best suited for a birthday, the twenty-first of June. The roses were in bloom; the golden laburnum and the purple lilac had given place to the warmer hues of summer flowers.

Sir Carlos stood, soon after sunrise, looking round over the home that was his inheritance. On the night before, his mother had taken him into the room where his father died. She told him of the curse of the Carews, of the obstinate self-will that had brought so many of them to a sudden and violent death. He had listened, and seemed deeply impressed.

In the silence of that room where her own solemn promise had been given to her dying husband, she spoke to her son with the utmost tenderness and eloquence, and he was more touched than he had ever been in his life before. On the morning, she told him, he would take his life into his own hands, with all its grave responsibilities and important duties. She did not ask him now for a promise of obedience to her. That which she had not exacted from him as a child she could not ask now that he was a young man. But she implored him to take counsel and advice when he was in any difficulty, and not be headstrong. He was deeply touched.

Mother and son knelt together in the great tapestried chamber, and he promised that he would do his best to check the self-will that had brought so many of his race to an untimely end.

"I will be a blessing to you, mother," he said, "not a trouble, and I will do what I can to remove the curse of the Carews."

No mother in England was happier that night than gentle Lady Carew.

Sir Carlos rose with the sun, and went out to look at the magnificent home that on this day became his by inheritance. He stood on a grassy knoll in the park which overlooked all the lower ground. His eyes glistened as they roamed over the noble park with its superb trees, the winding stream where the cattle stood knee-deep, the picturesque pile of buildings standing in the midst of luxuriant foliage, and the sheet of water called the Holme Mere.

THE PRESIDENT'S FLOWERS.

Something about the White House Conservatory and its Management.

The White House conservatory occupies about an acre of ground, states the New York Sun. There are eight greenhouses devoted to the growing of plants. The conservatory proper is divided into two parts, tropical and temperate. The system of heating, lighting and ventilating is as near perfect as could be devised. All of the buildings are under glass. There are nearly 5,000 varieties and 50,000 plants. Hundreds of very rare tropical plants are to be seen as well as all the native or more common known flowers. The rose reaches its most perfect state in those grounds. On an average 100 roses a day are placed in the White House. The president gets a bouquet almost every morning for his office. Occasionally the supply runs short and something else is substituted. A fine basket of roses decorates the White House dinner table five or six days every week. Each lady at the table receives a half dozen, and each gentleman a boutonniere.

B. A. Wheeler has been at the Michigan capital this week on business.

Mrs. R. C. Yerkes of Milford was at her home here several days last week.

Miss Ida Dibble of Plymouth visited Mrs. W. H. Nichols a few days this week.

Miss Kate Sands of Milford has been the guest of Miss Baehner, the past week.

Miss Edna Dean of Detroit was the guest of Miss Anna Clarkson over Sunday.

Miss Allie Crowley of Leslie is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCullough this week.

John Noble of California, a law student at our university is at E. R. Reed's this week.

Miss Flora Garfield is with friends at Pontiac where she expects to remain for some time.

Harold and Ralph Beal are enjoying their vacation with friends in Greenville, Grattan and Ionia.

Mrs. Rawdon and son Walter left for the east after a ten days visit here with Rev. J. M. Belding and mother.

Miss Ella Wilcox left Wednesday for a two or three week's visit among relatives in Detroit and Grosse Ile.

Dr. A. L. Blanchard has been doing the world's fair with Harry Teichner the last week or two. He's home now.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth, Misses Alice and Minnie Beal left Monday to do the world's fair. They are stopping at Mr. Jenkinson's So. Chicago.

Miss Rutledge, B. City, enroute home from the world's fair, is resting for a week or so with her sister, Mrs. Chas. Reed, North Center street.

Geo. Waterman expects to leave for California some time in September, taking in the world's fair, Salt Lake City, Utah and other points, enroute.

Miss Belle Palmer of St. Clair, a cousin of Hon. T. W. Palmer of Detroit, was a guest at E. L. Riggs' a few days this week. Miss Palmer is a teacher in the Minto waterworks schools.

Mrs. T. G. Richardson, T. Banks and Misses Lottie and May Howlett, Nellie Gillett, Maude Richardson, Messrs H. Teichner and Dr. Blanchard are home from the fair.

C. M. Joslin and family are back from the world's fair and in addition to being foot-sore, tired and weary, bring with them the lasting remembrance of having seen the greatest show on earth.

A party, consisting of Rev. J. M. Belding and mother, Mrs. Rawdon and son Walter and Mrs. Asa Randolph spent Wednesday at the lake. Mrs. Stout and grandson were also guests at the cottages.

W. G. Lapham and Prof. Fred Taylor, of the university, have spent the week in the vicinity of Highland fishing. Their recent success at Union lake only whetted their appetites for more of the same kind of sport.

Mrs. J. R. Doels of Mt. Vernon, Ohio is visiting with her mother here for some little time. Mrs. D. tells us that John is flourishing finely and is having all the business he can possibly attend to; all of which we are glad to learn.

Some time next week, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Beal expect to take a resting trip up the great lakes. They will be absent several weeks and we shouldn't be surprised if they wandered on over to the big fair, though Mr. Beal now says not.

Miss Margie Thompson left Battle Creek, where she has been spending a week, Saturday, for the world's fair. She will spend a week or so with an aunt in Chicago after which she goes on to Denver, to while away the time until September.

"Our Men's Meeting"

Our work ought to be represented at the state convention of the Y. M. C. A. at Battle Creek in October. Shall we send a delegate to learn some of their methods of work?

There are 1,185 general secretaries employed in this country by the Y. M. C. A.'s. The position requires careful training in business and in the method of association work.

Talk of great opportunities for young men! The weeks that go by here in quiet Northville, present some of the greatest ones ever born—say, brother, just think about that.

Next Sunday's program is sure to please and instruct. We renew our past invitations and add further that we shall endeavor to make you feel at home. Fine music; inspiring songs; good fellowship.

Don't say you ought to have the time on Sunday afternoon to rest and make that an excuse for not attending the meetings. You have no right to borrow from your sleep during the week and then pay the debt on Sunday morning.

Carlos R. Doyle spoke Sunday and all voted it a good talk; helpful to him and to those who listened. Sixty were present. In securing these talks each Sunday our president is planning hard and you are called on to contribute. Do not say you cannot. Don't despise the one talent.

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald!

Skookum Root Hair Grower

Is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither minerals nor oils. It is not a dye, but a delightfully cooling and refreshing Tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads. Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions, by the use of Skookum Skin Soap. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair. If your druggist cannot supply you send direct to us, and we will forward prepaid, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; for $5.00, Soap, 50c per jar; 6 for $2.50.

AROUND THE STATE.

WOLVERINE NEWS RELATED IN BRIEF MANNER.

The Village of Ewen Destroyed in a Conflagration Said to Have Been Incendiary, and the Man Who Started It Is Reported to Have Been Lynched.

The village of Ewen, eighty-five miles west of Ishpeming, on the main line of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railway, was almost wiped out by fire. The town is only five years old, being built on land opened to settlement in 1899. It was the largest town in Ontonagon county, and had a population of about 2,000. The business blocks were of wood, and the fire spread rapidly beyond the control of the local fire department. Every business house in town but two were burned, also a great number of residences. The loss is variously estimated at from $150,000 to $250,000. The insurance is light, and in most cases none, as rates were considered too high. So far as known, no lives were lost, though there were several narrow escapes.

A special from Duluth says: A private dispatch received in the office of the train dispatcher at 11:15 p. m. at the union depot, says that a mob at Ewen, Mich., has caught the man suspected of starting the fire which destroyed the town, and has hung him to a tree.

A later dispatch from Ishpeming says: Stories about the lynching of an incendiary at Ewen are baseless. The fire caught in a hotel kitchen; the fire department failed to find its hose until nearly all the business houses were gone, but saved the big mill and the residence district. There will be little suffering except temporary inconvenience caused by the loss of the entire food supply of the town outside of private larders. The loss will exceed $400,000, with $15,000 insurance.

A Sad Drowning at Harbor Springs.

Herbert Bergen, aged 18 years, was drowned while bathing near the Harbor Point club house, Harbor Springs. Bergen was unable to swim, and while wading out with a companion stepped in a deep hole and went down. His companion, John Hair, made a heroic effort to save him, but he struggled so violently in order to save himself Hair was obliged to release him. But for the prompt assistance of his father he too would probably have met the same fate. The unlucky young man was a student of Princeton university and son of Dr. J. S. Bergen, of New Jersey, who was at one time a missionary to India.

Three Bodies and Part of a Wreck Found.

The lighthouse keeper at Big Duck Island, in Lake Huron, found the dead bodies of three unknown men. The top of a cabin and part of a pilot house were also discovered on the south side of Manitoulin Island, 14 miles north northeast of the Duck Islands. There was no name on either to show to what vessel they belonged. One of the men was fastened to the portion of the cabin, with his legs through the stove-pipe hole, and the others were found on the shore. All were buried on the beach by fishermen.

Great Day and Great Men at Jackson.

The trades unions of Jackson are making preparations for a great Labor Day celebration on Sept. 4. Excursions will be run from various points. The union people of Battle Creek, Albion, Lansing, Ann Arbor, Adrian, Dexter, Chelsea, Marshall and a dozen other places will be there in great numbers. President Campers, of the American Federation of Labor, and General Secretary McGuire, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, will deliver addresses.

Morebody Gored by a Bull.

Frank Konkke, living three miles east of Allegan, was instantly killed by a vicious bull which he was leading. The animal was enraged and ran wildly from side to side and suddenly made for Konkke, striking him and knocking him down. As he attempted to rise the brute again struck at him, hitting him back of the ear, crushing his skull, the horn penetrating through the top of his head. Konkke was 40 years of age and leaves a widow and five children.

He Had Two Pairs of Pants.

A little child of Gardner Eddy, of Saranac, while playing with matches, set fire to the barn filled with hay, which soon burned to the ground. Mr. Eddy, with his brother, was working in a field, and saved some large wheat stacks only by heroic work. Mr. Eddy's brother had changed his trousers, which contained $85 in cash, a gold watch and valuable papers before going to work, and was unable to save his nether garment from cremation.

Broke Kent County Jail.

Two prisoners took leave of the Kent county jail at Grand Rapids. They were James Brinson, burglar, and Arthur Forbes, in for larceny. They were confined in the third story, and with the help of a shoe they sawed through two cell door staples and two heavy iron bars, going down from the window by the back door route. Their escape was discovered an hour later by a patrolman on the outside.

An Aged Man Struck by a Train.

Charles Clair, aged 64, an old resident of Coldwater was struck by a passenger train at the depot. His right arm and foot were crushed and his leg broken. The arm and foot were both amputated and he is not expected to recover.

Albert Dykhuys, of Holland, was thrown from a load of hay alighting on a pitchfork, the tine penetrating below the shoulder blade, making a gash a foot long. He cannot recover.

J. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, made Detroit a visit. He remained but two days, the guest of his brother, Wm. D. Morton, and then went to Chicago to visit his sons.

Martin Messinger, of Unadilla, found a contrivance consisting of kerosene oil and a string in his barn. When he went to cut his clover he found it strewn with wires.

MICHIGAN MAN LYNCHED.

He was a Dentist and Outraged a Lady While She Was Under Chloroform.

Dr. E. W. Humphrey, a dentist formerly of Iowa, was hanged by a mob at Nehart, Mont., for outraging a lady who had placed herself in his power as a patient. The patient was in the operating chair and under the influence of chloroform when he accomplished his design upon her. He has been arrested and his trial set for the next term of the Meagher county circuit court. The citizens of the town were too much aroused to await the action of the law, and he was taken from the jail and lynched by a mob which included many of the most prominent men of Nehart.

Humphrey's record in Michigan is not an enviable one. The young man's parents are highly respected residents of Iowa.

Over 100 Families Burned Out.

Two entire blocks of buildings in Long Island City, N. Y., were destroyed by fire. The new St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, just completed at a cost of $300,000, is totally destroyed. The parsonage was thoroughly gutted by the flames. The costly new parochial school, which had never been used, was also destroyed.

The flames started in Gray's refrigerator factory on Fourth street, and spread rapidly through the large stock of dry timber. A southerly wind carried the fire, and soon the whole block was burning. After burning nearly an hour the flames leaped across to the opposite buildings on Fourth and Fifth streets, and the firemen were powerless to check their progress. The burned blocks made up the business portion of the first ward. More than 100 families have been rendered homeless. The loss is about $800,000.

Fed Starving Miners.

Boone, Ia., had a visit from 150 Colorado miners on their way east. They captured the Chicago & Northwestern fast train at Council Bluffs and took possession. The railroad company made no effort to eject them. The city authorities of Boone were notified that the men were coming and further that they were hungry and had nothing to eat since the day before. The city authorities had ordered 100 loaves of bread, 100 pounds of bologna sausage, 40 pounds of cheese, and 50 gallons of coffee. The men were orderly and took the first train out, the railroad company permitting them to ride.

Nature's Strange Work.

A. Nyack, N. Y., physician reports the death, after seven hours existence, of triplets, which must be classed with the most remarkable ever born. The mother's name is withheld. The triplets, weighed in the aggregate 15 pounds. There were two boys and a girl. The boys were joined by a ligature almost precisely like that which united the Siamese twins, and were otherwise perfect. The girl was joined to one of the boys by a band of flesh from the hip of each. When the death of the girl and one boy had occurred an effort was made to save the life of the other child by cutting the ligature, but death ensued.

Four Held for Trial by the Grand Jury.

The grand jury at Washington, D. C., found a true bill against Col. Frederick C. Ainsworth, chief of the record and pension division of the war department, George W. Dent, the contractor employed to make the excavation for the postoffice, and Francis Sasse, engineer of the building, holding them responsible for the old Ford's theater disaster of June 9 last, in which 23 persons lost their lives and a large number of others were injured.

World's Fair Excursion Wrecked.

A most serious accident occurred on the Pittsburgh & Western railway at Monroeville, about seven miles north of Akron, O. The second section of an excursion train, loaded with excursionists from New York state bound to the World's Fair, was thrown from the track by the spreading of the rails, and three of the coaches loaded with excursionists rolled down a 15-foot embankment and two were derailed. Twenty-one persons were seriously injured, three of them fatally.

Four Killed by a Naphtha Explosion.

A can of naphtha exploded in the sweatband factory of J. D. Campbell, 211 Westworth street, Brooklyn, killing four persons. The building was completely wrecked. It was a two-story frame structure. There were twelve persons employed in the factory. All excepting five were in the basement and escaped without injury. The noise of the explosion was heard several blocks away and caused consternation in the neighborhood. The street was littered with the debris.

A Blaze at the World's Fair.

A fire started in the north end of the Transportation building at the World's Fair. It was extinguished before much damage was done, but for a few minutes the crowds in the building were almost panic stricken. They made a great run for the doors, evidently having yet in mind the horror of the cold storage warehouse fire. The rush of engines and patrol wagons and the clanging of their bells greatly alarmed the people on the grounds.

Monument to Ind. an Fighters.

Fort Riley, Kas. was in gala attire and from early morning till sunset the city was presented with the appearance that would be expected of a fort during war times. The occasion was the dedication of the monument recently erected to the memory of the Seventh Cavalry who fell at the Wounded Knee and Drexel-Mission fight during the last Sioux outbreak Dec. 29, 1890.

Mail Clerk Killed.

The New York mail train of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad was wrecked at Dogeville, Mass., by running into a freight car, which was left on the main track. The engine and forward mail car were badly demolished. A mail clerk named C. J. Miller, of New York, was instantly killed and another clerk seriously hurt. Several passengers were slightly injured.

Fenton and Long Lake, it is reported, are likely to be connected by an electric railway. The company to build it has not yet been formed.

LOOKS LIKE FIGHT.

FRANCE ULTIMATUM TO SIAM ANSWERED.

Siam Offers a Large Indemnity for Injuries to French by Siamese Officials, but will not Relinquish Her Territory—France Still Unsatisfied—The Situation.

Cables from Paris give the following information on the Franco-Siamese difficulty: The Siamese government has replied to the demand of France for heavy indemnity for the injury of French subjects by Siamese officials and for the relinquishment of Siam's claim upon territory which the French claim as their possessions in northern Cambodia. The reply is signed by the Siamese commissioner of foreign affairs and says that the king of Siam is not only willing but ready to accede to the demands for indemnity and will deposit 3,000,000 francs to cover such claims as would be awarded by a mixed commission, as regards the territory in dispute.

His majesty regrets that no precise definition has been given him of what his majesty is to understand by the expression "rights of the empire of Annam and of the kingdom of Cambodia on the left bank of the Mekong river and of the islands of the Mekong river." His majesty has been ready to abandon all the territories over which the existence of these rights could have been proved, and he has been ready to submit to international arbitration. No one submits to a pressure of circumstances in the name of justice. The Siamese government has no intention of making any concession to the numerous commercial interests at stake in this country. His majesty therefore insists on a definition of the rights of the empire of Annam and of the kingdom of Cambodia. All the territory on the left bank of the Mekong river and of the islands of the Mekong river, which has been occupied by the Siamese military posts, recently occupied by the Franco-Siamese troops to another point situated in the same latitude—that is, on the 14th degree north latitude—will be regarded as Annamite and Cambodian territory. The line of separation between the neighboring states as far as to the point at which the Siamese military posts are situated will be the boundary of the Siamese empire. The Siamese military posts will be evacuated within a month.

Paris cable: The 15th parallel of latitude mentioned in the Siamese government's reply cuts the Mekong River, in a line with Khan Muon, where Capt. Luce is now operating with a French force. The French claim, in fact, the 23rd parallel as "the northern boundary." As the northern frontier of Cambodia is along the 14th parallel, Siam in her reply grants only half of the French demands. If Develle had a long conference with Premier Dupuy. It is stated that M. Develle has notified Admiral Hamann to proceed at once to declare the blockade.

The Paris newspapers, led by the Temps, are conducting a vigorous campaign in favor of the government's full demand, and are warning Great Britain against any interference in the present complication. Dispatches from Bangkok say that the territorial demands of France are regarded there as excessive. Siam, although intensely excited, is displaying great self-control.

The Siam comments thus in an extra edition on Siam's reply: "Siam concedes only the least important of the conditions put by France. Her resistance is due obviously to English influence. M. Develle would do well to speak clearly and firmly to Lord Dufferin."

LATER Cable: The government has notified the powers that it intended to establish a blockade of the Siamese coast, without prejudice to the other measures that may be taken with the object of securing to France the guarantees to which she is entitled. The French government is making arrangements with another government for the protection of French subjects in Siam during the absence from Bangkok of M. Pavie, the French minister.

Washington special: So far as the State Department is informed there are no American citizens residing in Siam, except about a score of missionaries. It is not believed to be necessary to take any special measures for their protection. If the welfare of our missionaries should be threatened, which is unlikely, they can, without doubt, secure protection upon application to the minister of some other nation, as will be the case with the French residents. The commercial interest of the United States in Siam are insignificant, the experts being very few and the imports being made up of teak wood used in ship building and some trifles of oriental and Malayian decorative work.

Cable from Bangkok: M. Pavie, French minister resident, has lowered the flag over his offices and left the city to go aboard the French warship Inconstante. He requested the government to provide pilots to conduct the boat and Comete down the river. French subjects in Bangkok will be placed under the protection of the Dutch consul. England has been asked to protect Italian subjects. The situation is extremely critical.

Two Killed by Flying Rock.

While contractors were blasting rock at the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-second street and Fourth avenue, New York City, an explosion sent a huge mass of rock weighing about two tons crashing through the side wall of 61 East One Hundred and Twenty-second street, killing two people and seriously injuring three, who will probably die.

Peter Jackson to Train at Mt. Clemens.

New York special: Parson Davies has decided to take Peter Jackson to Mt. Clemens to train him for the big fight with Champion Corbett. He says Corbett has told him positively he would not fight Mitchell before the Columbian club. No other reason than that he had been unfairly treated in Chicago was given by the champion.

Two Girls Killed by Lightning.

Lightning struck the house of J. B. Laundry, in Clarence Creek, Russell county, Ont. Mrs. Laundry was sitting in the kitchen with her two daughters, aged 13 and 10. The girls were killed, but the mother was not seriously injured.

It is again reported that T. V. Powderly is going to resign as general master workman of the Knights of Labor, to take up the practice of law. It is said the membership of the order has fallen off so much that the per capita tax is not sufficient to pay the salaries of the officers.

BARBAROUS REVOLUTIONISTS.

Fire Upon a City Full of Women and Children Without Warning.

A special from Managua, Nicaragua, says: Two of the steamers seized by the Leon revolutionists appeared off Managua at 4 o'clock in the morning. They opened fire at once and continued to shell the city until 8 o'clock. Considerable damage was done to public buildings and private houses, and two persons were killed. No notice of the proposed bombardment was given, the shelling being begun before the women and children had a chance to leave the city. One shell burst near the house occupied by United States Minister Baker and his daughters. Mr. Baker has sent a protest to the leaders of the revolution against the violation of the rules of civilization in shelling without first giving notice.

Killed by Handing "Live" Wires.

Harry Rockwell, aged about 25, a lineman for the Bay County Electric company, was instantly killed while at work on a pole at Bay City. He had his left hand on a live wire and threw his leg against another, forming a circuit. Harry Woods, who was working on the same pole, pulled his leg away from the wire and held the body suspended until a ladder was procured and the dead man lowered to the ground. The terrible spectacle was witnessed by hundreds of people. This was the first death in Bay City by electricity.

Brazilian Troops Caught.

A special from Riviera, via Valparaiso, says that the Brazilian government has unearthed a plot among some of the officers of the troops stationed in San Gabriel to surrender that city to the revolutionists of Rio Grande do Sul. The plot was discovered just in time to prevent its execution, and the officers have been sent as prisoners to Porto Alegre. In an engagement near San Luis the revolutionary forces were defeated.

Saginaw's Gas Light.

The Saginaw Gas Light company tested a bushel of coal taken from the new coal mine in Albion township, Saginaw county, and it contained 85 cubic feet of gas which is five cubic feet better than any coal in use in any part of the country. It also made a fine charcoal. The result of the experiment is highly gratifying to the owners of the mine and readily establishes a field for the output.

WOMEN WITH ROTTEN EGGS.

Enraged Creditors of a "Busted" Lakeview Bank Want Vengeance.

The failure of the Mather bank at Lakeview has created great excitement which is further intensified by reports that the assets are only half of the liabilities, and the fear that E. R. Mather, the cashier, would skip. In a conference with a committee of his creditors Mather offered to turn over his property in Grand Rapids and Lakeview if they would forego their claims, but after the paper was drawn he refused to sign. Criminal warrants have been sworn out for Mather and his wife and should they attempt to leave town they will be arrested. The failure is attributed to Mather's extravagance in fitting out his home in Grand Rapids and in the lumber business. Creditors expect to recover 50 per cent at the utmost. Many women collected eggs with which they threatened to pelt the family, but were persuaded not to resort to violence.

Farmer's Son Succeeded.

Peter Athoefes, the son of a wealthy farmer living about three miles west of Monroe, committed suicide by hanging with a chain. The lifeless body was found by his father about noon hanging to a large oak tree. Athoefes was single and about 30 years old. The act, it is thought, was caused by a fit of despondency.

Aged Farmer Overcome by Heat.

James Robinson, aged 73 years, a farmer near Grand Rapids, was prostrated by the intense heat and died within an hour. The day was one of the hottest of the season, the mercury marking 90 deg in the shade.

Frank Smith, aged 14 years, met his death by drowning in the Grand river at Grand Haven while bathing.

A man named Thomas Ferris, supposed to hail from Grand Haven, died in the jail at Corunna, of delirium tremens.

Charles Gushaw, of Adrian had his jaw broken and lost a dozen teeth by a well bucket falling on him while he was at the bottom.

William Austin, aged 19 years, employed in a Grand Rapids furniture factory was drowned in the West Side canal while bathing.

The Western Union Telegraph company is stretching a copper wire from Detroit to St. Ignace. There will be no intermediate office.

Selling, Hanson & Company have purchased 30,000 feet of pine timber within six miles from Grayling and are putting up a band mill.

What a Queen Cannot Do.

We had contemplated sending Queen Victoria the RECORD, but we have received notice that it would be of no use unless it was put up with gold fringe on silk print and we were just out of both the silk and gold. Here is the way they do it over there:

Queen Victoria is not allowed to handle a newspaper of any kind, or a magazine, or a letter from any person except her own family, and no member of the royal family or household is allowed to speak to her of any piece of news of any publication. All the information the queen is permitted to have must first be strained through the intellect of a man—whose business it is to cut from the papers each day what he thinks she would like to know. These scraps he fastens on a silk sheet with a gold fringe all about it, and presents it to her unfortunate majesty. The silken sheet with gold fringe is imperative for all communications to the queen.

Anyone who wishes to send the queen a personal poem or a communication of any kind (except a personal letter, which the poor lady is not to have at all) must have it printed in gilt letters on one of those silk sheets with a gold fringe, just so many inches wide, and no wider, all about it.

These trappings will be returned to him in time, as they are expensive, and the queen is kindly and thrifty, but for the queen's presence they are imperative.

Over and Back for the Fare One Way.

On Tuesday, August 1st, the popular C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. route will sell tickets to Chicago and return, at one fare rate, via St. Joseph and the Graham & Morton steamer. ##### A POSITIVE FACT.

Ladies do not delay your valuable time by waiting and suffering, but secure a bottle of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and be cured of your trouble either in old or young. It is the very best prescription I have ever prescribed in my extensive practice. It has given the best results in the greatest number of cases of female troubles of any medicine that I ever used. I do not make a practice of using or recommending patent medicines, but this remedy is prepared by a very competent physician and chemist of my acquaintance and I can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it as the best.

FOR THE LAND'S SAKE!

and for your own sake, buy some land. Good village lots are the finest investment in the world. The failures of banks or the depredations of thieves cannot affect them as they can ready cash. The fluctuations of the money market cannot depreciate their value in such a thriving village as Northville, but, to the contrary, is certain to steadily increase with time. The lots we are offering have everything to recommend them—beauty of location, good soil, proximity to stores & cheapness
