A FIRE AT LAST.

Ely Dowel Co's Works Completely Guttered by Fire.

LOSS ABOUT 6,000 DOLLARS.

The Water Works and Fire Company Get in Their First Work.

The Ely Dowel Mfg company's works caught fire about 12:35 yesterday noon and in less than one hour it was a mass of ruins. Engineer Dell Calkins and Walt Smith who were sitting in the front door of the factory smelled smoke and upon opening the door to the engine room the flames burst forth upon them. They immediately gave the alarm, but as the building was full of flammable material it seemed all ablaze at once. The Globe company's 750 feet of hose was soon coupled to a hydrant and this was soon followed by the village's 1,000 feet and the fight commenced. It was six streams of water thrown with terrific force from the best water works system in the country, handled by men who were earnestly heroic in their endeavors against a seething mass of glaring flames. Everybody worked like demons but the fire had got too big a start and every object inside the factory was of just the sort to feed the destructive element to its largest possible extent. The water works system was tested to its fullest extent and it proved beyond a doubt its worth. The fire was soon under control and finally extinguished but not until the whole building with almost its entire contents was a total wreck.

The west and north sides of the factory are still standing and in no place is any of the building or contents reduced to ashes and although the dowels and a larger portion of the machinery are a loss through fire and water together the proficiency of the water works system is shown. By it $1,000 worth of lumber piled around the factory, the office and books are saved and Mr. Ely thinks the engine and one or two dowel machines may not be greatly damaged. In addition the Globe's big lumber piles were also safely protected and well if Northville had not had the fire protections she has the damage that might have been done is unestimable.

There was $5,500 insurance on the buildings, contents and lumber. There is about $1,000 worth of the later and it is practically all saved. This insurance is carried by several different companies and, if all can be collected, will cover the loss.

Seven or eight men are thrown out of employment. Mr. Ely says the prospects are he will rebuild.

That Is Northville's Population Today.

THERE ARE 458 FAMILIES.

A Goodly Gain Since the U. S. Census.

Our spare time during the past two weeks has been busily engaged in taking a census of this village. The canvass has been very thorough and carefully made, and is correct.

We find there are just 1,721 persons who make their home in this village. There are 458 families and they occupy 434 residences, 23 containing two families and one sheltering three. There is but one vacant house the small Collins house way up on Rogers street and that will doubtless be occupied before this item appears in print. The average falls a little short of four to a family. In Bealton there are 50 families with a population of 208. Northside has 83 families with a population of 324. The balance of the village contains 326 families with a population of 1194.

The U. S. official census of 1890 gave Northville 1,573. We made a thorough canvass in 1891 and found 402 residences, 416 families and 1520 people. Thus in two years we have gained 32 residences, 42 families, and 200 in population. Besides this as will be seen there are 17 residences now under course of construction not included in this report.

NO SHUT-DOWN HERE.

President Beal Gave the Employees a Cheerful Talk Saturday Night.

Each daily paper for the past few months has been bringing news of the closing of factory after factory, until the air of Northville had become impregnated with rumors, which in turn had grown into an almost belief, that the Globe factory would shut down for at least ten days or else lay off a number of employes. There was no occasion for such a rumor, still it was hard to believe that Northville would be almost the only village in the country to not feel this great depression of business.

When the more than 200 employes gathered into the office for their pay Saturday night President Beal was there to meet them and he gave them in substance, the following cheerful talk: "There seems to have been some rumors afloat to the effect that our factory was going to shut down; a ten days lay off or something of the kind. Now this is all sheer nonsense. We are not going to shut down. For the six months ending August 1st we have done $18,000 more business with $5,000 less expense than for the same period of 1892. We have today over $100,000 worth of orders ahead, and they are steadily coming in. Does this look like a shut down? Today, on account of the scarcity of currency, we are compelled to pay some $200 or $300 in checks to patch out. We did not like to pay our employes in this manner but there was no other alternative this time. It may possibly happen once more and it may never be occasioned again."

At the conclusion of Mr. Beal's remarks the employes made the building ring with a round of cheers for the Globe factory and its president.

President Dubuar of the Dubuar Mfg. Company says that this is always the dull time of the year for their business and though it is perhaps unusually so just now, at the same time they are not running much short handed and have not the least idea of even a temporary shut down.

With such industries and such men to keep them running along in that smooth and successful channel, Northville should be, and indeed is, proud.

BROKE HIS COLLAR BONE.

A Bad Accident Meets With Two Well Known Northville Men.

While returning from his farm Tuesday, Lyman Yerkes' horse very unexpectedly shied. The shy was a quick one, and in a second Mr. Yerkes and Clint Cady, who was with him, were thrown from the wagon with considerable force. Mr. Yerkes was only slightly jarred, but Mr. Cady sustained severe injuries, his left ear being nearly torn off, his left collar bone broken, and his shoulder badly bruised. His physician stitched the nearly severed ear back to place again, set the fracture and he is now as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances.

Old People's Day.

The Methodists are arranging for one of those beautiful and fitting "Old People's" services. It will occur on the morning of Sabbath, Sept. 10. All over sixty years of age will be the special guests of the occasion. If any are to feeble to walk to the church, conveyances will be provided. Appropriate decoration, music and address by the pastor will be the order at the church. The service will not exceed one hour and a quarter so that none may be wearied.

Like No Other Love.

By Charlotte M. Braeme. CHAPTER VIII—CONTINUED.

On their way Lady Carew reminded her son of Penicenis and his mad love for Miss Costigan, and spoke lightly of the wisdom of those who parted him from his idol.

He had sent the girl a few lines on the previous evening saying that his mother, Lady Carew, would be at Armytage on the morrow, and that he should bring her to the cottage for an hour or so.

"Look your best and sweetest," he added, and the girl's heart beat fast as she read the words. She could imagine what would follow if he brought his mother there. For some reasons it was not wise of him to have written.

"Had she been taken by surprise, Maggie would have been ten times more at her ease and more graceful. As it was, the idea that Lady Carew was coming made her feel nervous."

"The cool muslins and pretty prints were discarded, as not being good enough for the occasion; they were all very well for a lover who had no eyes for anything but her face; but thanks to the notions of gentility that had been impressed upon her, she knew better than to receive a visit from Lady Carew in a pink print dress."

She had a hideous crimson merino elaborately trimmed, with shining black beads, which had been purchased by her aunt a year before for a tea party, a dress that would have made any lover of good taste shudder. This was her state dress.

So far as it could, it robbed her beautiful figure of its grace—it changed her from a lovely girl to a vulgar but beautiful woman.

Not content with this, and to do honor to her illustrious visitor, Maggie put on a necklace of coral beads. She also wore a few common rings, which made her hands look redder and coarser than they otherwise would.

So far as it lay in the power of dress, she made herself look vulgar and gaudy; but she could not spoil the peerless beauty of her face.

It was an anxious time for her. Disquietude deepened the rose bloom of her cheeks and gave fresh luster to her eyes. This was, she believed, the most eventful hour of her life.

Mother and son talked pleasantly as they drove along. "This is the house," said Sir Carlos, and then Lady Carew grew pale and trembled. What would she be like, this girl whom her son meant to marry, and who was to take her place?

Sir Carlos went into the cottage first. Lady Carew could hear the murmur of loving words; and then her son came out, his face radiant with happiness.

"Make haste, mother!" he cried. "Every moment seems to me an hour!" He led her into the little house, through the narrow passage into the small parlor, where Maggie stood awaiting her.

Lady Carew's first glance was one of wonder and dismay—wonder at the brilliant loveliness of the girl's face, dismay at the vulgar dress, the red hands and tawdry ornaments.

"Exceedingly beautiful, but unquestionably plebeian," was her first comment to herself. She smiled in her sweetest fashion. "My son Carlos asked me to call and see you," she said, "as I was passing by."

It was one thing to charm and fascinate a young man by the display of pretty affectations, and another and far more difficult to please a well-bred, refined woman.

"Maggie asked Lady Carew to take a seat. Her voice just because she tried to make it sweet, sounded hard and unmusical.

Lady Carew's heart sunk within her. Could it be possible that her son, who might have chosen from the loveliest and best-bred girls in England, had given his heart to this girl? "She has a beautiful face," said Lady Carew to herself, "but if he marries her he will tire of her in three weeks. She has had no education, she is unintellectual, and without refinement. When the first glamour of love is over he will hate her."

Lady Carew thought she would not ask too many questions; she wanted to see if Maggie would talk to her spontaneously. But no, she was very silent. They did not like each other—that was soon seen. Maggie thought Lady Carew cold and proud. She neither understood nor appreciated her, good-breeding and refinement.

Lady Carew saw at a glance that Maggie was beautiful, but uneducated, quite commonplace and vulgar in taste and manner.

Even to the enraptured Sir Carlos the conviction came at last that there was a vast difference between the two women who sat together—a difference as great as that between day and night.

"Your house is prettily situated," observed Lady Carew. "What fine old trees!"

"Yes, they are very well," answered Maggie; "but I like them. There is no society here like society. When I lived with my aunt I saw plenty of life."

She wished Lady Carew to understand that she herself was ill-content with country quiet and well-fit to take her part in a society.

"I should like," she continued, "to live where I could go to balls and parties. My aunt always said I ought to have been born a lady."

"What charming simplicity!" said Sir Carlos to himself. "What terrible vulgarity!" thought his mother.

"I think no life so beautiful as the sweet peaceful life of the country," said Lady Carew.

"Perhaps you have had enough of the other," replied Maggie. "I have had none."

"That would make a great difference, certainly," laughed Sir Carlos. Then Lady Carew, wondering what else she could possibly say, thought of books, but after a few minutes was filled with fresh dismay. Maggie had read nothing but a few fourth-rate novels; and of these, she spoke in raptures.

"A virgin page," thought Sir Carlos, "on which I may write what characters I will."

"More ignorant even than the general run of uneducated girls," was Lady Carew's comment.

She could only see that her son was more infatuated than ever. The ugly, vulgar dress and tawdry ornaments had made no difference to him. He saw only her face, and lost himself in its loveliness.

"Could anything make her presentable?" Lady Carew asked herself. She pictured Maggie in the grand old home, where some of the fairest ladies in the land had lived and died, where no vulgar woman had ever reigned.

The Carews had always married well; there was no record of one having married beneath him.

Was it reserved for her son, the handsome, gallant Sir Carlos, to bring this shadow on the old home? The bare idea of it was intolerable to her. Lady Carew felt that she would rather die than see this girl her son's wife.

The two hours she spent in the little house were, perhaps, the most miserable of her life.

She was the first to rise. They had been quite alone; John Waldron had gone many hours since to attend to his duties, and the old servant was at Armytage. Nobody knew anything of their visit, and they had met no one during the drive to the house.

with her son for the first time. This made her very loving and affectionate with him during dinner, listening with sweet patience to all that he had to say. When dinner was over, she said: "Let us go out, Carlos. You can smoke your cigar under the cedar, and there we can talk without interruption."

"She told herself that she must not shrink from her duty. It would be the first request she had ever denied him; but she must be firm. She shuddered as she thought of the girl she had seen being called Lady Carew."

She threw a lace mantle over her head and then sat down under the cedar and waited for her son. When she saw him coming, she prayed as she had never prayed since she knelt by Sir Antony's side.

"Now, mother," said Sir Carlos, as he threw himself at her feet. "My suspense will soon be over. Tell me what you have to say."

"My dearest Carlos, you will not care to hear it; I am sure you will not like what I am about to say. I grant that the girl, Maggie Waldron, is beautiful, but she is in every way unfitted to be your wife."

The brightness died from his face and a sullen gloom overspread it. "Tell me in what way she is unfitted."

"You own that you have seen no one more beautiful."

"Yes, but at the same time she is quite uneducated. She is—you must not be angry, Carlos—I must speak the truth—she is by nature unrefined—inclined to be coarse and vulgar."

His face flushed with anger and he bit his lip. If a man had said those words he would have fared badly.

"You judge her hardly!" he cried. "I judge her correctly, Carlos," she rejoined. "The glamour of love lies over you; it does not over me. I see her as she is, you as you believe her to be. If you marry her, you will be disappointed in a few weeks and end by hating her."

"I should never tire of her!" he cried. "I would live with her in a desert and never care for the sight of another face."

WONDER IN DISTANCES.

What the words "Twenty Billion of Miles" really mean.

It requires but little effort to estimate what the words "twenty billions of miles" really mean. A billion is one million millions, and I shall endeavor to convey an idea of this amount by a few simple illustrations.

If we were to take a sum equal to five times the amount of our national debt and were to expend it in 2-cent postage stamps, we would get about 1,000,000,000 of them.

Now draw a line around the great city of London, including every house in the suburbs, and then take an area of equal size, cleared and arranged for the purpose, and stick your billion stamps side by side, touching each other over the entire area, and you will not be able to get them all on.

After every inch of that immense surface has been covered you will have countless thousands of your billion stamps left. That star is 90,000,000,000 miles away.

What a wonder in distance! We can not grasp it in our imaginations; nor are we more successful if we try to make a map of it. Suppose we proceed by first laying down the sun, and then placing the earth one inch from it, that being the relative distance. Then, if we require at what distance to put your star, using the same scale, we will find that it must be placed at a distance of eleven miles.

OLD GOLD IS SCARCE.

Refiners Compelled to Buy Coin to Be Used for Mechanical Purposes.

Old gold is in great demand. It is bought by the refiners for mechanical purposes and is paid for in spot cash of the greenback variety. Old gold is very rich, says the Boston Herald, not only in monetary value but in strange and interesting suggestions.

Most of it is in the shape of dilapidated jewelry. A worn band of gold comes in. It was once a wedding ring and must have been held as precious beyond all price by the bride who wore it during her honeymoon.

In after years it was worn and worn till it was almost worn away, it must have fluctuated many times in value. The ring does not say whether its owner is happy or not. The link of gold may have bound together a loving husband and wife, or it may have connected a widow with heaven, or with the coldness of steel it may have held her like a galley slave chained to a companion she hated.

The ring tells none of these things. It is old-fashioned and worn, and that shows that it has seen long service. Perhaps it was worn by strangers, being superseded by another wedding ring, or, perhaps, it was a precious family heirloom, handed down from generation to generation. The purchaser rubs it on a smooth stone until it leaves a yellow mark. A drop of nitric or compound acid discolors this mark so that the expert assayer can tell the purity of the gold. Then it is carefully weighed and paid for at the rate, perhaps, of three or four cents a karat.

All sorts of curious things are sold for the precious metal, they contain. Old watches that are broken beyond repair, old seal rings and rings that were once set with gleaming gems. A broken locket once contained a miniature, and probably holds the secret of a romance. A brooch is made of light-colored gold of over 100 years ago, and still holds a lock of somebody's hair. It was bought, hair and all, and will go into the melting pot, with its story untold, some of the gold comes already melted into lumps, some of it is the goldfilling of teeth and dentists' scraps, and some of it is in the form of old plates, with artificial teeth still sticking to them.

Hood & Reynolds, the assayers on Tremont street, say that old gold is very scarce and they have had hard work to collect the amount needed in their business. The old jewelry and scraps are melted down and refined, then rolled out into gold. The gold foil is bought by dentists and put into the teeth of their customers, and in most cases goes back into the ground with the owner of the teeth when he dies.

Some day when Boston is a howling wilderness, an enterprising miner will wash out the earth of the cemetery, and reap a rich harvest.

But that is a matter of speculation. It is a matter of fact that one firm of refiners here in Boston uses up $2,500 worth of old gold every week, and lately has been compelled to buy coin to make up the supply needed for mechanical purposes.

A great deal of the jewelry is soldered to brass, lead and other metals. The quality of the gold is tested just as in the case of solid jewelry, and the stuff is weighed in bulk and paid for at the rate established by averaging the results of different weighings. Even plated jewelry is taken, but when pure brass comes in the purchasers are forced to draw the line. A good deal of the old silver is sold in the same way, but instead of being in demand it is a drug on the market. It is not so interesting, either, as it usually comes in the shape of spoons, knives and watches. When the dealers get more silver than they can use they send it to the government mints as quickly as they can.

Not a little platinum is sold as old metal, and usually comes in the form of bits of wire and scraps from broken incandescent lamps.

"The Tree of the Thousand Images." The title alone might suggest several queer inquiries: Is it a tree worshipped by pagans and made the repository for their numerous idols? Or is it a tree whose knots, bark and branches bear thousands of crude carvings? According to the travelers Hue and Gabet it is a much greater curiosity—a botanical wonder, the leaves of which are by nature literally covered with the outlines of queer images resembling men, animals and birds, as well as trees, flowers and even letters, all being delicately delineated by net works of veins and nerves in the leaves. "The letters of the Tibetan alphabet," says Father Hue, "are so perfectly reproduced in the veins of this tree as to make me suspect fraud. After repeated observations, however, I was convinced that no fraud existed, but that the images and characters were simply a wonderful freak of nature." The tree of the thousand images grows only in the mountain regions of Tibet.

Her Point of View. Miss Upton of New York—One does not mind running across to Europe now a bit.

Miss Hill, of Brooklyn, a few minutes later—When are you coming over to see me, dear?

Miss Upton—Oh, dear, I don't know. You live so far away.

Cannot Be Hidden. "Beauty is only skin deep," said Miss Homeleigh to the handsome Miss Fairleigh.

"Quite true, my dear Miss Homeleigh," was the reply. "But the important part of it is that everybody's skin is on the outside, where it shows."

There are two times when a man thinks a woman's hat too high. One is when it is in front of him at the play, and the other is when it is his wife's and he has to pay for it.

RINGING SOUND IN THE EARS.

In Many Cases That Is the First Indication of Coming Deafness.

The normal ear is capable of hearing considerably better than is necessary for the ordinary purposes of civilization; in fact, it is endowed with what may be termed "superfluous hearing." Proper tests will discover the loss of even a small portion of this superfluous hearing and warn us that we are gradually becoming deaf—in fact, already partially deaf—although we may not have noticed the slightest "efficiency." This is referred to by the Popular Science Monthly as explaining why it is that many victims of certain forms of chronic deafness believe their complaint to have been sudden in its beginning, when in reality it has been progressing several years; the longer time having been occupied by the gradual loss of the "superfluous hearing," and the patient's attention not having been directed to his affliction until the "necessary hearing" was encroached upon. The great majority of all forms of deafness are dependent upon and directly resultant from affections of the nose and throat. The earliest symptoms of beginning deafness in many cases is a ringing sound in the ears. Many patients describe it as a noise all through the head rather than in the ear itself. It was at first intermittent and occasional. The ringing may be present for some time, scarcely perceptible, when suddenly the sound will change, becoming much louder, and the notes jumping high up in the scale where it will continue to ring quite loud for some minutes, and gradually die away, to appear again some time afterward. It may reappear in a few hours, as the trouble with the ear progresses. Ringing in the ear may also be the prelude to an acute attack of earache; but it is here very soon followed by pain, which so predominates over the ringing that it is no longer heard. If the hearing is properly tested just as soon as the ringing in the ear has become more or less constant, some degree of deafness will be detected. As the case progresses, even before all the so-called superfluous hearing has been destroyed, the patient will realize that he is becoming deaf.

For this condition there is nothing to be done by the patient himself. Advice from a physician should be obtained just as soon as diminution of hearing is suspected. Much can be accomplished, however, by the patient toward preventing the deafness becoming worse. Careful attention should be devoted to the general health, to keep the nose and throat in as healthy condition as possible—to prevent "taking cold," especially colds in the head. Exposure to changes in the weather should be avoided; the feet never being allowed to become wet, or if they do become wet the shoes and stockings should be changed for dry ones as soon as possible. Turkish baths and plenty of outdoor exercise are strongly recommended to stimulate the circulation and insure the system to changes of weather.

ONE VIEW OF IT.

Women Are the Slaves of Clothes Year in and Year Out.

The longer I live the more firmly convinced I am that men have the advantage of women in everything in life, and we shall never be their equals in the struggle till we can have many more of their privileges than custom is willing to grant us now. For instance, if a man wants a new spring suit he simply goes to see his tailor—the same tailor he has patronized for years. The tailor shows him a piece of cloth. The happy man gives a quick but comprehensive look at the goods, selects that which suits his taste from the group of materials that suits his pocket, and they deed is done, says the Chicago Record. He relies on his tailor's judgment as to whether the coat shall be sack, cutaway or frock, and so walks off.

It never occurs to a man to get samples of the goods and then run around to every other tailor shop in town to see if he can't get a bargain or a little bit cheaper material that would "look just as well." It never occurs to a man to "talk it over" with every male friend, to discuss the new cut in trousers and whether such a color would be becoming to him. He relies on his tailor to furnish not only a reasonably good style to his suit, but also one that is suited to his customer's individuality.

Imagine a man going on a street car and meeting two men friends and producing a lot of samples, saying: "Oh! Charley, I want to show you some samples I got of my new coat. Now, don't you think I'm too dark to wear that color? But it's so cheap," etc., while Charley and Francis gave their opinions and suspected the samples. Wouldn't it be funny?

Then Charley should say (to make the scene complete): "Yes, but that's old. Why, they were goods like that all last year. John Jerome had some trousers just like that."

In Boston, of Course. Johnny—I wonder why I can't make my kite fly? Elder Sister—Perhaps the caudal appendage is disproportionate to the superficial area.

Johnny—I don't think that's it. I believe there isn't weight enough on the tail.—Texas Sitings.

Glass Bangles. Both Hindoo and Musselman women wear glass bangles and in the Northwest provinces they are regarded as sacred objects. If a glass bangle be accidentally broken its pieces must be gathered together and kissed three times.

VERY MUCH SURPRISED.

I have been afflicted with neuralgia for nearly two years, have tried physicians and all known remedies, but found no permanent relief until I tried a bottle of Dullam's Great German Liniment and it gave me instant and permanent relief. 25 cents per bottle. A. B. Snell, Hamilton, Mich. April 11, 1890. For sale by C. R. Stevens.

DON'T GET IMPOSED UPON.

Is a good motto to follow in buying a medicine as well as in everything else. By the universal satisfaction it has given and by the many remarkable cures it has accomplished. Dullam's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure has proven itself unequalled for building up and cleansing your system and for all diseases arising from impure blood. Do not experiment with an untried or untried article which you are told is as good, but be sure and get Dullam's. All druggists keep it. For sale by C. R. Stevens, Druggist, 4

It Should Be In Every Home.

J. B. Wilson, 372 Clay St., Sharpburg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with Pneumonia after an attack of "La Grippe" when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksport, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for Lung Trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. Free Trial Bottles at A. M. Randolph's Drug Store. Large bottles, 50c. and $1.00.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well-known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the Liver, and Kidneys will remove Pimples, Boils, Salt Rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. He pressed his lips upon her hand, She said 'twas out of place; He rectified the error And kissed her on the face.
The topic at the Presbyterian church for Sunday morning is, "Kissing and Cleaving."
Little Paul Parmenter, who has been so seriously ill the past week is recovering.

The U. S. pension examining surgeons will hereafter meet at Dr. Burgess' office.
Yerkes Bros. are about putting into their mill here a new 73 horse power Buckeye engine.

The O. E. S. will serve ice cream and cake in Richardson's new store, Union block, tomorrow, Saturday, evening.
The F. & P. M. will sell excursion tickets to Saginaw and return Sept. 1 and 2 on account of the international bicycle races.

The stock of bakery and confectionery goods of A. S. Huff were seized by F. Hulet, mortgagee, and sold at auction yesterday.
Charles Yerkes has twelve acres of corn that is said to be the best within one hundred miles. Corn has suffered greatly by the drought.

This week's issue of the RECORD would be a good one to mail out to your friends. We have about 100 extra copies on hand if they are desired.
The fire committee of the council are looking after some sort of a fire alarm to put in the new tower. A bell or triangle will be provided very soon.

No man is more interested in farm work than L. A. Yerkes. His "peaceful valley" farm claims nine-tenths of his time. He is constantly making improvements.
The Presbyterian church will be open Saturday afternoon and evening. The committee will meet in the evening. If you have sunflowers to spare send them to the church at that time.

Lost—In the village Saturday afternoon, open face silver watch, gold chain attached. Watch valuable only as keepsake. Finder will be suitably rewarded by returning to Mrs. S. E. Carrington.

A charming responsive service, entitled "An Evening with Jesus," will form the basis of the worship at the Methodist church next Sabbath evening to be accompanied by a short "Twilight Talk."

The RECORD is justly proud of its corps of correspondents. Not a paper in the state has a better lot of them. They are regular as clocks. The quantity of their items is remarkable and the quality, excellent.

The present silver dollar to melt up would be worth about 55 cents. We should be glad to received them however for a year's subscription to this paper, in quantities up to $1,000 for which we will allow par.

A very neat as well as convenient thing at the depot is a U. S. mail box, compliments of the American express company. Agent Lake extracts the letters dropped therein and hands them aboard the mail trains.

The Northville cornet band was billed to play at the reunion at Carleton last week Friday, but owing to the rush of business at the Globe factory where they are all employed they could not be spared for even one day.

Because the RECORD stated last week that among others there were bad walks along some of C. J. Ball's property, he got mad and stopped his paper. The duce of it was Ball was owing us about a dollar back subscription which he didn't pay.

Next Sunday evening a special service will be held in the Presbyterian church. The pastor will preach an appropriate sermon upon the sunflower. These old yellow discs will constitute pulpit and church decoration. The service will doubtless be one of real interest.

The unique printing which has been gotten out at this office for the Men's meeting the past four months is being greatly admired. The designs are almost entirely the work of Paymaster Dolph of the Globe Furniture Company and are certainly exceedingly tasty and catchy.

Nothing prettier can our city boast of than the grand native elm and maples that adorn our streets and lawns. Some one with the head of a peanut and the brains of a cucumber has suggested cutting down the grand stately willow on Atwater street. Such a person is dangerous and ought to be jailed.

F. R. Beal who has been quite ill this week is out again.

Mrs. I. N. Starkweather and daughter May are on an "up the lakes" trip. Mr. Steif is short about $14 which he had in the bottom of his trunk instead of in the bank.

The reservoir lowered but eleven inches during the fire fighting yesterday afternoon.
Miss Zora A. Thompson of Milford is making a two weeks visit to her brother Edgar and other friends here.

Yesterday's fire was the first real conflagration Northville has had for fifteen years, when Stevens' drug store burned.
Mrs. Flora Larkins is appointed state delegate to the International Sunday school convention which meets at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30—Sept. 7.

Five minutes lost yesterday because of no hydrant wrenches demonstrates that a few of those necessities left conveniently around the town and especially at the factories may some time save much valuable property.

V. O. Whipple is finishing off the second story of his new store for a party hall. The floor is No. 1 three inch hard maple and the room will be finished complete with all modern conveniences. It will make an elegant dancing or party room and lovers of such amusements will welcome just such a place.

The manager of the opera house expects to play Seaborn's, "Under a Spell" here sometime during the week of Sept. 4. This is a first class company and includes specialties in the way of mesmerism, magic, hypnotists, mind readers, musicians and singers. They come well recommended. "Irish Neighbors" September 29.

Here's that snake we were looking for! It was a rattler from rattlesville. Had seven bells on its tail, was over three feet long, (about an hundredth part of an inch over) and was slain right near Dr. Swift's cottage, Walled lake, this week. Some of our townsmen are now climbing down out of the hay mows and making for the lake.

Mabel Stark is just one dress short. The one she had on Tuesday got saturated with oil and took fire. The little girl was not the least bit injured but her dress was minus a front. It was a very narrow escape and only for the prompt action of Miss Cummings in smothering the flames the pretty young lady would have been disfigured for life, if not fatally burned.

On Thursday August 31st the F. & P. M. railway company will sell excursion tickets to Petoskey or Traverse City and return for $5.00. Train leaves Northville at 3:40 a. m., arriving at Traverse City at 1:25, and Petoskey at 3:05 p. m. Tickets good to return on any train up to and including Sept. 11. This is the last chance to visit these resorts this season at cheap rates.

Some of our merchants are forgetting themselves and paying Detroit and Toledo jobbers with cash. All wrong gentlemen. Don't let a dollar in currency unnecessarily go outside of the village. Give them a check or step into one of our banks and get a N. Y. draft. This does not cost you a cent, and the jobbers would just as soon have it as the cash. It is for your own interest to do this. Don't forget it.

We are told that "money is scarce," but is it? Isn't it more likely that it is simply being hoarded? The paper and silver money always remains in the country, and paper and silver are the only money that are commonly used in business. As soon as the people recover from the temporarily insane condition in which they now are money will again be plentiful enough, and the country will be once more prosperous.

Landscape Gardener McKay certainly forgot beauty in his all absorbing utility. His fine crop of pears are hemmed in like the Israelites the night of the Exodust, amid mountains of fencing and barb wire, high enough and sharp enough to divest a thousand pairs of breeches of seats. Our quiet townsman must have suddenly recalled those happy days when the pears ripened in his boyhood. Where would the golden memories have been had cruel barb wire been brought in hostile array?

Rev. J. M. Belding organized the Crusade army at the parsonage. This is a temperance army of young people who will meet every other week and have a delightful time. The following are the officers for the present: General J. M. Belding; Major General, Harvie Root; Brigadier, Ethel Johnson; Colonel, Arthur Johnson; Captain, Grace Yerkes; 1st Lieutenant, Carrie Bovee; 2nd Lieut., Claude McCan; Sergeant, Vivian Lake. The army will meet again with the General next Monday evening and after corps business will enjoy an hour of games.

The new board of U. S. pension examining surgeons met for the first time here yesterday at Dr. Burgess' office. Dr. Burgess was elected chairman and Dr. Walker re-elected secretary. Dr. M. A. Patterson is the new member.

Burglars are fast getting on to the fact that people are drawing their cash from deposits and are hiding it about their home and every paper you pick up nowadays tells just how thieves are putting it into circulation. People of this kind who suffer loss are not to be pitied in the least. Some Northville people possibly may take warning.

Superintendent Palmer at the milk condenser has quit and succeeded by Ed. Simonds. John Nice is back from Canada and takes Simonds' place. Tom Lee the truckman is also out of a job there and the other employes will have his work to do between them. It is rumored that Geo. Alworth will return in the course of a month or two and resume his old position at this factory. Mr. Palmer has won many warm friends in Northville during his stay here and all who know him will be very sorry to have him leave town.

There are many people in the world who never pay an honest debt if they can get out of it. They are always ready to beat everybody and keep all they can lay their hands on whether it belongs to them or not. Such men can safely be branded as liars, for selfishness and dishonesty make them such. Reader, did you ever test men and learn their true nature? Here is a pointer. When you present a bill to a man, watch his countenance and language. If he is honorable and a gentleman, he will receive you pleasantly, and either pay or give a good excuse. If he is not honorable his face will show anger and his language will correspond with his looks. Still there is another class who never owe any one. They can be set down as the "salt of the earth," whose example is worthy of imitation.

Co. D, 5th Mich. Cavalry held their 7th annual reunion here yesterday. Capt. E. K. Simonds' home, High street, was headquarters, and if anything was left undone for comfort and enjoyment it was not noticeable. An elegant dinner was served by the captain from 12 to 1, after which the usual routine of business was transacted. Those present were: Andrew Houk, E. S. Hastings, J. K. Lowden, E. K. Starkweather, E. S. Horton, Hiram Lunt, H. M. White, Capt. E. K. Simonds, Northville; B. Miller, Eureka; W. D. Macomber, A. C. Blair, Detroit; J. M. Gardner, Holly; E. Munson, Howell; R. Brown, St. Johns; G. S. and S. C. Wheeler, Salem, of Co. D. J. J. Hubbard, Co. B., Davisburg; W. S. Horton, Co. H., Commerce, Mrs. Blair, Dexter White, J. Preston, J. R. Nash, The Record, Rev. J. Parrish and Belding, Northville; J. Hayward and wife, Mesdames Wheeler, Hubbard, Gordon and daughter, Salem, Mrs. Hubbard, Davisburg, were present as guests. The daughters and wives of the "vets" assisted Mrs. Simonds in entertaining and serving the feast. Little Lulu Peck presented all the guests with a handsome button-hole bouquet.

THE NEWS CHRONICLE OF OUR OWN STATE.

Accident in a Pontiac Brickyard.—The Usual Story of a Gasoline Explosion.—Drowning at Gogue Lake, Battle Creek.—Labor Leader Killed.

Fearful Accident in a Brickyard.—William Johnson, Jr., an employe in Osema's brickyard, Pontiac, sustained what may prove fatal injuries by being crushed under the sweep of a brick-making machine. He had stepped upon the edge of the mud box and was looking over into the machine when the sweep caught him and pinned him down to the top beam. Before the horses could be stopped the sweep had passed over him, nearly crushing out his life; the space between the sweep and beam being less than five inches.

To Protect Local Business Men.

The city council of Saginaw, on request of business firms, has passed an ordinance licensing the sale of goods, wares and merchandise by transient traders and dealers, and making the license $20 per day and the fine for violation $100 as the maximum. The ordinance does not apply to the sale of food or products of farm or dairy when offered by the producers thereof.

Probably Fatal Runaway.

While Lyman Yerkes, of Northville, and Clinton Dady, of Ypsilanti, were out riding at Northville, their horses became frightened and ran away. Both persons were thrown out of the buggy and Mr. Dady was seriously, if not fatally, injured. One ear was cut nearly off and his face and head were badly cut and bruised. Mr. Yerkes was only slightly hurt.

When to Sow Wheat.

T. Dubois, a well-known Saginaw nurseryman, who has attained considerable local fame as a prognosticator of the right time to sow wheat gives out that he has figured out that the right time to sow wheat this year would be Sept. 16, 17 and 19 and within a week thereafter there would be a beautiful rain to bring it up nicely.

Fatal Gasoline Stove Explosion.

By the explosion of a tank attached to a gasoline stove Mrs. James Cooper, Battle Creek, was fatally burned and her husband seriously burned on the hands. Three-fourths of the surface of Mrs. Cooper's body was burned. Mr. Cooper's lungs are badly affected by inhaling the flames.

A Strange Fatality.

William A. Hyde, a resident of Grand Rapids since 1845 and first chief of the city fire department, was killed by the breaking of a piston upon which he was working in a machine shop. He was one of the earliest movers in the organization of the Knights of Labor in that city.

Drowned in Gogue Lake.

Alva Morrill, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, was drowned in Gogue Lake, Battle Creek. While bathing with companions he was seized with cramps. Morrill was 22 years old, had been here but a few weeks and was a member of the sanitarium training class for nurses.

SPRINGER DEPOSED.

Speaker Crisp Makes Radical Changes in House Committee.

Speaker Crisp sprung a big surprise upon his colleagues in the House when he announced the committees for the ensuing term. No one was prepared for the radical changes that were made in the personnel of some of the important committees.

Springer, of Illinois, gives way to Wilson, of West Virginia, as chairman of the ways and means committee and the Illinoisan is given the chairmanship of the committee on banking and currency.

Holman, of Indiana, the venerable "watch dog of the treasury," is deposed from the committee on appropriations in favor of Sayres, of Texas, and is given the head of the committee on Indian affairs.

Bland of Missouri is retained at the head of the committee on coinage, but the free coinage people are disappointed in the committee being so changed as to leave much doubt whether the free coinage people are not in the minority, and whether the financial policy of the administration may not find a majority in the committee.

The following are the chairmen of the important committees: Elections, O'Ferrall, Virginia; ways and means, Wilson, West Virginia; appropriations, Sayres, Texas; judiciary, Culberson, Texas; coinage, weight and measures, Bland, Missouri; banking and currency, Springer, Illinois; foreign affairs, McCreaty, Kentucky; interstate and foreign commerce, Wise, Virginia; rivers and harbors, Blanchard, Louisiana; merchant marine and fisheries, Fithian, Illinois; agriculture, Hatch, Missouri; military affairs, Onthwaite, Ohio; naval affairs, Cummings, New York; postoffice and postroads, Henderson, North Carolina; manufactures, Page, Rhode Island; mines and mining, Weadock, Michigan; education, Enloe, Tennessee; labor, McCarty, Illinois; invalid pensions, Martin, Indiana; pensions, Moses, Georgia; civil service, De Forest, Connecticut; election of president and vice-president, Eitch, New York; alcoholic liquor traffic, English, New Jersey; immigration and naturalization, Geissenhainer, New Jersey.

On the leading committees, the Michigan members are discussed as follows: Ways and means, Whiting and Burrows; banking and currency, Stephenson; elections, Thomas; military affairs, Gorman; Pacific railroads, Weadock; education, Thomas; militia, Aitken; irrigation of arid lands, Richardson; war claims, Arery; ventilation and acoustics, Linton; expenditures on public buildings, Moon; public lands, Moon; territories, Avery; manufactures, Gorman and Linton; mines and mining, Weadock, Richardson and Stephenson. Of the last named committee, Weadock is chairman, being the sole Michigan member to secure such an honor.

Trouble Between France and Italy.

The massacre of 50 Italian workmen at Algeus-Mortes, France, has caused an intense anti-French feeling in Rome, says a cable dispatch. The newspapers are demanding that the government exact satisfaction from the French. The people are in an ugly mood, and to show their resentment against France, a mob attacked the Santa Chiara seminary of French priests. The windows were smashed and the scutechions torn from the front of the building. Only the arrival of the police prevented the destruction of the building. The mob threatened to sack the French embassy, and a strong company of police were stationed to guard it. In Milan and Paris, the people are agitated, have issued incendiary manifestoes.

Later cables: popular ferment arising from the Algeus-Mortes affair shows no sign of subsidence. The agitation is spreading in the provinces. At Milazzo, on the north coast of the island of Sicily, a mob paraded the streets and acted in a most disorderly manner. Finally the leaders of the rioters proposed that an attack be made upon the French consulate and the proposal was greeted with shouts of approval. Arriving there, the mob, with others, commenced the mob marched to the consulate and smashed about every window in the building. The scutechion of France over the doorway was torn down and taken possession of by some of the mob. An attempt was then made to burn it, but the police somewhat tardily arrived and drove the rioters off. Some of the officers escaped the scutechion and rushed into the crowd and recaptured it. There was a renewal of the looting at Genoa, during which an omnibus was totally wrecked. Troops have been sent to Genoa.

Game Warden Hampton is After "Em- State Game" Warden Hampton is very indignant at the arrest and imprisonment of his deputy, Chas. F. Kennedy, by An Train authorities. Kennedy is charged with dropping a prosecution for a consideration. Mr. Hampton says he has a confidential letter written by Kennedy's accuser, A. P. Huskins, to a friend, in which a "put-up job" is conspired. Kennedy's arrest is outlined. He believed the law-breakers and terrorists are at the bottom of the whole thing and he is going to prosecute Huskins for violating the deer law and for perjury as well. He is also going to back Kennedy up in a suit for false imprisonment.

The big Havenmeyer sugar refineries, in New York, employing 4,000 men and effecting about 15,000 persons dependent upon them, have resumed work.

JUDGE CHIPMAN DEAD.

THE CONGRESSMAN FROM THE FIRST DISTRICT.

Passes Away at Harper Hospital, Detroit, From a Severe Attack of Pneumonia.

Brief Sketch of his Career as Lawyer, Judge and Statesman.

Hon. J. Logan Chipman, four times elected to represent the First district of Michigan in Congress died at Harper hospital, Detroit, after fighting through a very severe attack of pneumonia, which left him in a very weak condition. The end was caused by suffocation.

John Logan Chipman was born in Detroit, June 5, 1830. He was educated in the schools there and in the University of Michigan and was admitted to the bar in 1854. One of his first legal achievements was to assist in making the treaty of Detroit with the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians of Michigan. He has always been prominent in the profession, taking an especially high stand as a pleader.

Judge Chipman was always active in politics, a Democrat and a friend of the workingman. In 1855 he was assistant clerk in the Michigan house of representatives. In 1856 he was elected city attorney of Detroit, and held that office until 1861. Two years later he was elected a member of the state legislature.

In 1865 he was made a member of the Michigan bar of Detroit. He was elected for congress first in 1866, but was defeated. He was elected judge of the superior court in 1870, and was re-elected at the end of six years. His congressional career began with the Fifty-third congress and continued until the time of his death.

Judge Chipman was the son of Judge Henry Chipman, of Michigan, and the grandson of Judge Nathaniel Chipman, of Vermont, who was for years a senator of the United States.

Judge Chipman received unusual honors for a new member when he became a congressman. During his first term he was a member of the committee on judiciary and of the committee on foreign affairs. He was a member of the special committee of the House to investigate the famous Reading strike and the report of that committee was his work. He was also a member of the committee on pensions, of which he became chairman before the close of his term by reason of the absence of the regular chairman. He was zealous in behalf of the bill to pension the dependent soldiers and their widows. He carried through the house the bill for lighthouses, fog signals and lines, several of them in the vicinity of Detroit. In the last days of the Fifty-third congress the bill for the appropriation of $1,500,000 for the Detroit public buildings was passed, and Chipman being largely instrumental in bringing about that result. In the succeeding congresses the member from the First district of Michigan was prominent. At home Judge Chipman was one of the most familiar figures in Detroit.

The body of Hon. J. Logan Chipman lay in state in the city hall, at Detroit where a catafalque had been erected by the Detroit Lodge of Elks, under whose auspices the funeral was held. At least 20,000 people passed the bier to take a last look at the deceased statesman.

The funeral was conducted with great ceremony and an estimate of 30,000 people attending the different parts of the service and viewing the procession would fall short. The crowd which attended St. John's church to hear the funeral service, by Rev. Wm. L. Sagres, Rev. C. L. Arnold and Rev. W. Warner Wilson was a cosmopolitan one composed of workmen, business men, men of wealth, politicians and all classes were represented and crowded the building—and filled the streets.

When the remains were brought from the church the various military companies and other organizations began moving slowly down Woodward avenue. The line was as follows: Police escort with detail of two sergeants, four roundsmen and 32 patrolmen; Nineteenth infantry band; Nineteenth United States infantry; Fourth regiment, M. S. A.; St. John Episcopal Cadets; other uniformed military companies and societies; veteran corps of Detroit Light Guard; Fourth regiment band; Detroit Lodge of Elks, escorting remains; active palbearers; the deceased's family; honorary palbearers; the Congressional party composed of a committee representing the Senate and House of Representatives. The honorary palbearers were: Supreme Justices John W. McGrath, C. B. Grant; U. S. District Judge Henry H. Swan; Judges Henry N. Brevoort, George Gartner, C. J. Reilly, George S. Hosmer, Robert E. Frazer, Edgar C. Duffee, F. H. Chambers; Police Justices P. J. Sheahan, John B. Whelan; Justices of the Peace James Schellenberg, Thomas W. Fitzsimmons; Don M. Dickinson, Mayor Pingree and 63 other prominent fellow citizens and friends.

The street along the route of the procession—over 2 1/2 miles—was very densely crowded with people, all traffic was suspended and it took one hour for the line to pass a given point. At Elmwood cemetery the throng was as dense. The closing ceremony was very impressive. The Episcopal service was read and was followed by the beautiful ritual of the Order of Elks read by the exalted ruler of the order and closed with custom of each member dropping a boutonniere of immortels and ivy leaf upon the lowered coffin, significant of the immortality of the soul and brotherly love. An Elk funeral ode followed by a volley over the grave by the Light Guard of the Fourth regiment closed the services and the vast concourse of people slowly departed from the sad scene.

Douglas Curtis, a Chicago switchman, had been on a three weeks' spree, neglecting his wife and 7-year-old daughter till they were almost starving. His wife entreated him to stop drinking and go to work. He appeared to be much affected, but when he left the house he again began drinking. And when he returned home spread a blanket on the floor. He then put a revolver to the mouth of his child and fired a bullet into her brain. Then lying upon the blanket, he fired into his own head. Father and daughter were killed instantly, but Mrs. Curtis was recovered.

The census of Lansing taken in connection with the school census, shows a population of 19,612. This is an increase of 8,564 over the census of 1890. There are 5,211 children of school age.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

SENATE.—Tenth day.—The usual number of petitions were received for and against the repeal of the Sherman act. The congressional case was taken up by Mr. Lasco, Chandler and Call opened the right of Mr. A. M. Little to the seat by appointment of the executive. Dubois and Call opened the case. Ore upheld the appointment. The case went over. An amendment offered by Mr. Gorman was not taken up. Mr. Call provided that any national bank desiring to withdraw any part of its circulating notes shall, in writing, at least 30 days before the proposed withdrawal, make application to the comptroller of the currency and that no such withdrawal shall be made unless such application be approved in whole or in part, by the secretary of the treasury; but no more than $500,000 of national bank circulation shall be withdrawn within any calendar month. An executive session was held and a joint resolution passed by the House and Senate, providing that Mr. Chipman's resignation be accepted. A message was received from the House announcing the death of Judge Chipman. Resolutions were offered by Mr. McMillan, Mr. Proctor, Mr. Gibson and Mr. Call, were appointed a committee on the part of the Senate to attend the funeral of the deceased with respect to the memory of the deceased the Senate adjourned. The chairman, Mr. Haddaway, spoke of the death of Judge Chipman in a feeling manner and invoked the Divine protection upon the bereaved family. Resolutions were offered by Mr. Call and Mr. Call spoke on the memorial question. Mr. Weadock, of Michigan, announced the death of Judge Chipman and announced the formal resolution was agreed to, and the speaker appointed a committee to take action upon the memorial. Mr. Weadock, Mr. Whiting, Mr. Call, Mr. Gorman, Mr. Cannon, Mr. Call, Mr. Power, Mr. Haugen and Mr. Aitkin. The House adjourned on the 10th of the month to the memory of the deceased adjourned.

SENATE.—Eleventh day.—Mr. Voorhees reported from the committee on finance a bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, providing for the issue of silver bullion and declaring it to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of silver as a medium of exchange. Mr. Vest on behalf of the minority in the finance committee, presented a substitute bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, in the silver coin of the United States—644 grains of pure silver, per dollar, and 36 grains of copper, nickel and zinc, and dimes. The bill and substitute were placed on the calendar. The bill for the issue of national bank circulation was then taken up and Mr. Allen of Nebraska advocated the adoption of an amendment to suspend interest on the bonds on which the national bank circulation is based. The bill would commit the country to the policy of a continuance of the present system, and he believed that the time had come when safety required the overthrow of that system and the issue of national bank circulation as possible. Mr. Stewart addressed the Senate and gave a history of recent developments in the financial situation of the country. He declared that the Sherman act must not be repealed until the whole question was discussed and the condition of the country as a whole was provided for. Mr. Johnson, a member of the finance committee, also spoke. He advocated the amendment as calculated to defeat the whole measure. Mr. Anderson also spoke. He advocated the adoption of the bill, and the removal of an unconstitutional tax on notes of national banks issued under the act of August 20, 1870. He stated that the removal of that tax would be less than from that sort of circulation that there was today from the national bank circulation. He stated that a great many of the national banks would have to go. Their deposits would be lost and they would no longer number the earth. The people would be compelled to take the matter of their money into their own hands. Mr. Johnson's amendment was rejected; yeas 11, nays 23. The next question was on the amendment offered by Mr. Cochran of Utah, providing for the redemption and to issue of national bank circulation. The amendment was opposed by Mr. Johnson and by Mr. Sherman. Mr. Butler offered an amendment to the bill, providing that the 10 per cent tax on the notes of state banks, Executive session adjourned.

SENATE.—Twelfth day.—The bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, providing for the issue of silver bullion and declaring it to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of silver as a medium of exchange, was taken up. Mr. Johnson, a member of the finance committee, presented a substitute bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, in the silver coin of the United States—644 grains of pure silver, per dollar, and 36 grains of copper, nickel and zinc, and dimes. SENATE.—Thirteenth day.—The bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, providing for the issue of silver bullion and declaring it to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of silver as a medium of exchange, was taken up. Mr. Johnson, a member of the finance committee, presented a substitute bill to amend the act of August 20, 1870, in the silver coin of the United States—644 grains of pure silver, per dollar, and 36 grains of copper, nickel and zinc, and dimes. The amendment was opposed by Mr. Johnson and by Mr. Sherman. Mr. Butler offered an amendment to the bill, providing that the 10 per cent tax on the notes of state banks, Executive session adjourned.

SENATE.—Fourteenth day.—Mr. Allen gave notice of an amendment which he would offer to the bill reported by the committee on finance, providing for the issue of silver bullion and declaring it to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of silver as a medium of exchange. Mr. Allen proposed to add to the repealing clause of that bill a provision that the act of August 20, 1870, shall be continued in force in relation to the coinage of gold; and that the secretary of the treasury shall, without unnecessary delay, cause the silver bullion owned by the government to be coined into standard silver dollars, to be legal tender. Mr. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, then took the floor and addressed the Senate in advocacy of the bill reported by him discontinuing the purchase of silver bullion by the government under the Sherman law. Mr. Voorhees first illustrated the power and duty of the government to furnish a reliable and constant money. He then said he was confronted by a law without parallel or precedent in American history. A law enacted to induce the owners of silver to surrender their right to free coinage for a compromise which was only intended to delude and dishonestly to gratify the greed of the precious metals. Mr. Voorhees said he voted against the Sherman act and would vote for its repeal. The outcry that those who voted for the act were enemies of silver was false and absurd. Silver would never be demoted and the first step to be taken was to measure up to the coinage of silver on a footing which Cleveland had been restored to the presidency. Mr. Voorhees said he was ready to go on for by his bill to repeal the Sherman law. Mr. Voorhees first illustrated the power and duty of the government to furnish a reliable and constant money.
