A FATAL HUNT.

August Setting Accidentally Shot Sunday Afternoon.

HE LIVED ABOUT SIX HOURS.

A Comrade's Gun in the Hunt Does the Deed.

About half past one Sunday afternoon Charles Lehmon and Fred Kuntuske, living near the Phoenix mills, two miles south of here, started over into G. P. Benton's woods, near Pat Conley's, for a hunt, where they were soon after joined by August Seiting, another neighbor. It was between two and three o'clock when Seiting and Lehmon were walking side by side some six feet in advance that Kuntuske's gun lock caught on the underbrush exploding the charge. The shot took effect in the back of Seiting's right leg just below the hip, severing the main artery. Lehmon and Kuntuske bound up the wound in a way with handkerchiefs and then the latter ran over to Will Meinhardt's, where he worked, and securing a rig conveyed the bleeding man to his home, the first house on the east side of the road north of the Phoenix mills. Drs. Burgess of this place and Kimmel of Plymouth were summoned and after an examination pronounced the injury fatal. They were there between five and six and after administering some narcotics for the sufferer's relief they returned home. Dr. Hatch of Plymouth was soon after summoned and arrived about 7:30 p. m., but Seiting was past all medical aid, though still partially conscious. Nearly every drop of blood must have left his body. Large quantities had flowed from the wound at the woods and during his conveyance home; and now he lay upon the couch in the kitchen almost as they had brought him in. The entire leg had been cut from his pantaloons in order to get at the injury. Great pools of blood were upon the floor, while his clothes and the quilts upon the couch, were in masses of the clotting life fluid. The wound was not an ugly one. The range was so close when the fatal shot was fired that a silver dollar would have covered the entire spot. Not a shot had pierced through the other side, but it mattered not, a knife cut would have accomplished the same sad result—the main artery had been torn asunder. It was only a question of a few hours and he lingered along until about nine o'clock when he passed quietly away.

Young Kuntuske is all broke up over the matter and feels very bad that it was through him his friend met his death. He is about 24 years old and has been working on the farm for Mr. Meinhardt, who have known him for years and who speak very highly of him, for some time past, and as the relations existing among them all were of the most friendly nature, the story of Kuntuske of the accident which is corroborated as far as possible by Lehmon, is not doubted in the least. Kuntuske says he was carrying his double barrel shot gun in his right hand, muzzle pointing towards the ground, when the hammer caught on the brush pulling up the end of the gun and at the same time exploding the charge.

Mr. Seiting was a hard working, industrious gentleman, fifty-one years of age and leaves a wife and two grown children, one of whom was married to Fred Vanvalkenburg of this place four or five weeks ago. The funeral occurred from the home Tuesday afternoon and the remains were interred at Plymouth.

School Matters.

Following from School Director Booth is self explanatory:

Northville, Mich., Aug. 30, '93.

Editor Record:

"The School Board has decided to defer opening school until Monday Sept. 11th, instead of opening next Monday, as before announced. At the annual meeting next Monday evening the Board will present a recommendation to the voters of the district that the school year be nine months instead of ten months.

It might be of general interest for you to bring this before the people of this district so that they may have opportunity to consider the question, and come to the school meeting prepared to act on the subject.

Yours very truly,
CHAS. BOOTH, Director.

At One Way Rate.

Sept. 5th the C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. lines will sell to Chicago and return at one way rate, via "St. Joe Route." All tickets good 10 days including date of sale. Rate from Plymouth will be $6.75. Ask ticket agents for full information as to time of trains etc.

A TOWN CLOCK NEXT

An Unknown Philanthropist Will Present One to Northville.

The following communication which has been sent to Village President Dubuair explains itself:

Northville, Mich., Aug. 25, 1893.
C. L. Dubuair,
Pres. of the Village of Northville, Northville, Mich.

My Dear Sir:—
I am authorized today by a gentleman whose name I am not at liberty at present to give, to say to the people of the village of Northville that he will place in the tower of the Methodist church a tower clock complete with four dials, each dial to be 5 ft. 6 in. in diameter, of ground glass 3/4 in. thick, sufficiently transparent so that the dials may be illuminated from within; in fact a complete outfit placed in the tower ready for use, and guaranteed by the manufacturer for a term of years upon the following conditions:

That the tower shall be raised sufficiently above the present bell house so that the dials can be placed properly above the bell, and that the other carpenter work which may be needed to put the clock in place shall be done at the expense of the citizens of our village, and that an appropriation shall be made by the Council for placing an electric light of sufficient power behind the dials so that they can be seen every night in the year.

I believe that the people of our village will gladly comply with the conditions which the gentleman has imposed, and that they will at once take the proper steps to avail themselves of his generous offer.

Will you kindly take such steps as you deem best to bring this matter to public notice, and have an estimate made of the expense of changing the tower as above outlined so that it may be brought before your next council meeting for their ratification, so far as it is in the scope of their power to do. Please advise me at the earliest possible moment of the result of your efforts so that I may inform you of the name of the proposed donor, and may make the order for the clock at once.

Yours truly,

F. R. BEAL.

The clock will be worth about $300 and will tell out the hours similar to the Detroit city hall clock. The church board as well as people generally throughout the village are unanimous in favor of the idea and there is no reason to doubt but what the council will act upon the matter at their next meeting Monday night. The cost of raising the tower and putting in the clock is carefully estimated to not exceed $200 and it is thought that $150 will probably do it.

This is a gift that is not often tendered to a village and the quicker the action taken, the more appreciation of the favor will be shown.

KEEP IT MOVING.

The Following Exceptionally Sound Logic is From the Adrian Press—

It is money in circulation, that makes business lively.

It is labor employed steadily, that ensures prosperity.

Don't talk hard times.

Don't pull your savings out of banks and hold it in your pocket or hide it in the house.

If you have money in the bank and want to use it, draw what you need and go ahead.

If you have a few dollars you don't need put it into the bank till you do need it.

Never, under any circumstances ask for a deposit if you do not wish to use it.

There's just as much money in the country as ever there was. Go on with your improvements, if you have the cash to pay for them. Pay all bills as fast as you contract them if you have any money about you.

Don't get into any scare over your savings. Banks, to be sound, must lend their money. It is better for depositors that they do lend it. It keeps men at work. It keeps factories running, prevents idleness, makes a demand for everything and brings prosperity.

Idle money means idle men. Idle money comes from lack of confidence. Idle men means loss of wealth. It hurts business. It hurts the farmer who supplies the food products. It hurts the workman, who must have food products.

Any person who takes a dollar out of a bank because he is frightened, helps bring on this business depression. Don't hang on to your cash. Don't oblige banks to hang on to it. Urge them to loan to farmers who want it. Or to business men who need it. Or to industries that require it. Only ask that good security be taken.

Stand by the banks. Stand by business. Give a little credit whenever you can.

Stop groaning about hard times, and go about it to make them easier. If you have a spare dollar to put into improvements set the wage earner at work and keep the money moving.

Your share will come back to you again somewhere. People must live and they must have money to pay for their living and they have only labor to trade for money. Therefore, keep money in circulation, and keep business moving right along. Keep railroads busy moving crops. Keep factories busy making goods.

Have confidence. Don't croak. Leave that to politicians. And demagogue brokers. And to noisy congressmen. Believe in the United States. Believe in its promises. Believe in its money and get all you can of it and use it freely. Don't disparage any kind of United States' money. Don't sneer at silver and deprecate it as a dishonest dollar, a 75c dollar or a depreciated currency. If a man says it isn't as good as gold, tell him he's a liar, and have no more to do with him.

Stand up for every dollar of United States money. Make it more plentiful if possible. You can't make it any better if you try.

Congress can't make good times. It rests with the people, the business men, the wage workers, the farmers.

Go right along just as you always did, and keep money moving. Don't be afraid of spending money. Don't be afraid of your banks. Don't be afraid of paying pensions. Keep money in circulation. Keep interest low.

Keep men at work. Keep your savings in the banks. Keep your mouth shut and your head level.

Keep your mouth shut and your head level.

The Behring sea decision has gone against the United States. Well, the defeat is one that will never bring any hardship to the large majority of the American people.

The people of Cairo salute you with the question, "Do you persevere?" They regard a dry skin as a sign of mortal malady. Therefore, humorists, loitering in Cairo are obliged to carry their jokes in a sweat box or leave them in quarantine. In this way much funny matter is lost to the Cairo press.

OCTAVE THANE pronounces her name, which is a pen one, as if it were every day English. She did not take it from a French novel, nor from a bill of fare, but from a freight car that used to scot, past her cottage door when she was a little girl. Hence, all persons who have begun the study of French are warned not to trespass on her from de plume.

The people of this country are not the only people on earth suffering from a financial pinch. In Germany, where the reichstag has but recently passed an army bill which greatly enhances the tax burden, the young emperor is put to his wife's end as to how to raise enough thalers to meet the increased expense. The long drouth in the country of the Rhine has forced even the importation of hay, to say nothing of the necessary food supplies for man. The Kaiser and the czar have virtually stopped commercial exchange between their respective countries so that a big market for German products is cut off.

BOMBAY is feeling what all India would be likely to feel, if English rule should be withdrawn with the difference that the relations of the combatants would probably be reversed. In Bombay the Muslims have been massacring the Mohammedans, whom they outnumber by three to one, but if the British should make room for a go-as-you-please competitive examination in arms over the whole of India the survival of the fittest would lead to a different result. Islam is the heir of the Indian empire whenever Europe takes its hands off, and if it ever comes into its inheritance the Hindus of Bombay will have cause to remember war.

There is no doubt that cholera has been prevailing more or less in Europe all summer. In fact, there are authentic advices from various European quarters to that effect, notwithstanding the most persistent effort, on the part of European authorities to suppress the facts. It is therefore greatly to the credit of Surgeon-General Wyman and Health Officer Jenkins, who is co-operating with him, that in spite of continual immigration from cholera infected districts the few cases of cholera in New York are essentially controlled. That the plague will get a foothold in the metropolis seems now improbable and this improbability becomes more and more apparent as the season of frost advances.

A MONUMENT to the immortal Abraham Lincoln has been unveiled in the city of Edinburgh, Scotland. The plan for the same originated with Wallace Bruce, United States consul at Edinburgh, and has been carried out by American contributions. It cost $6,100. The monument is fifteen feet in height, sculptured by George E. Bissell, also an American. Mr. Lincoln is represented in bronze six feet four inches in height and in the act of emancipating a slave. His head is erect; the left arm is thrown behind, while the right is extended, holding some sheet of manuscript. The pose was made by Mr. Bissell from a photograph of Lincoln taken when he was delivering one of his speeches. At the president's feet are a freed slave and battle flags, also in bronze. The base of the monument is of polished red Aberdeen granite. This is the first Lincoln monument ever erected outside of the United States.

TALMAGE PREACHES FROM BOOK OF PSALMS.

Put Thou My Tears Into Thy Bottle. 56:8—The Tender Remembrance of a Compassionate Creator—Happiness In Tears.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 27.—Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage chose a unique theme as his subject for today, viz.: "A Bottle of Tears," the text selected being Psalm 56:8. "Put thou my tears into thy bottle."

Hardly a mail has come to me for twenty years that has not contained letters saying that my sermons have comforted the writers of those letters. I have not this summer nor for twenty years spoken on the platform of any out-door meeting, but coming down I have been told by hundreds of people the same thing. So I think I will keep on trying to be a "Bottle of Tears."

The prayer of my text was pressed out of David's soul by innumerable calamities; but it is just as appropriate for the distressed of all ages. Within the past century, travelers and antiquarians have explored the ruins of many of the ancient cities, and from the very heart of those buried splendors of other days have been brought up evidences of customs that long ago vanished from the world. From among the tombs of those ages have been brought up lachrymatories, or lachrymatories, which are made of earthenware. It was the custom for the ancients to catch the tears that they wept over their dead in a bottle, and to place that bottle in the graves of the departed; and we have many specimens of the ancient lachrymatories, or tear-bottles, in our museums.

When on the way from the holy land our ship touched at Cyprus; we went back into the hills of that island and bought tear bottles which the natives had dug out of the ruins of the old city. There is nothing more suggestive to me than the tear-bottles, which I brought home and put among my curiosities. That was the kind of bottle that my text alludes to, when David cries, "Put thou my tears into thy bottle."

The text intimates that God has an intimate acquaintance and perpetual remembrance of all our griefs; and a vial, or lachrymatory, or bottle, in which he catches and saves our tears; and I bring to you the condolence of this Christian sentiment. Why talk about griefs? Alas! this world has its range and how, while I speak, there are thick darknesses of soul that need to be lifted. There are many who are about to break under the assault of temptation, and perchance, if no words appropriate to their case be uttered, they perish. I come on no fool's errand. Put upon your wounds, no salve compounded by human quackery, but pressing straight to the mark, I hail you as a vessel mid-sea cries to a passing craft, "Ship ahoy! and here you are, a board vessel which has faith for a ruler, and prayer for sails, and Christ for captain, and heaven for an eternal harbor. Catherine Rheinfelde, a Prussian, keeps a boat with which she rescues the drowning. When a storm comes on the coast, and other people go to their beds to rest she puts out in her boat for the relief of the distressed, and hundreds of the drowning has she brought safely to the beach. In this life-boat of the gospel I put you to-day, hoping, by God's help, to bring ashore at least one soul that may be sinking in the billows of temptation and trouble. The tears that were once caught in the lachrymatories brought up from Mercurianum and Pompeii are all gone, and the bottle is as dry as the scoria of the volcano that submerged them; but not so with the bottle in which God gathers all our tears.

First, I remark that God keeps perpetually the tears of repentance. Many a man has awakened in the morning so wretched from the night's debauch that he has sobbed and wept. Pains in the head, aching in the eyes, sick at heart, and unable to step into the light. He grieves, not about his misdoing, but only about its consequences. God makes no record of such weeping. Of all the million tears that have gushed as the result of such misdeeds, not one ever got into God's bottle. They dried on the fevered cheeks, or were dashed down by the bloated hand, or fell into the red wine-cup as it came again to the lips foaming with still worse intoxication. But when a man is sorry for his past and tries to do better—when he mourns his wasted advantages and bemoans his rejection of God's mercy, and cries amid the lamentations of an aroused conscience for help out of his terrible predicament, then God listens; then heaven bows down; then sceptres of pardon are extended from the throne; then his crying rends the heart of heavenly compassion; then his tears are caught in God's bottle.

You know the story of Paradise and the Peri. I think it might be put to higher adaptation. An angel starts from the throne of God to find what thing it can do on the earth worthy of being carried back to heaven. It goes down through the gold and silver mines of earth, but finds nothing worthy of transportation to the celestial city. It goes down through the depths of the sea, where the pearls lie, and finds nothing worthy of taking back to heaven. But coming to the foot of a mountain it sees a wanderer weeping over his evil ways. The tears of the prodigal start, but do not fall to the ground, for the angel's wing catches them, and with that treasure speeds back to heaven. God sees the angel coming, and says, "Behold the brightest gem of earth, and the brightest jewel of heaven—the tear of a sinner's repentance."

Oh, when I see the heavenly shepherd bringing a lamb from the wilderness; when I hear the quick tread of the prodigal hastening home to find his father; when I see a sailor boy coming on the wharf and hurrying away to beg his mother's pardon for long neglect and unkindness; when I see the houseless coming to God for shelter, and the wretched and the vile, and the sin-buried, and the passion-blinded appealing for mercy to a compassionate God, I exclaim in ecstasy and triumph: "More tears for God's bottle!"

Again, God keeps a tender remembrance of all your sickness. How many of you are thoroughly sound in body? Not one out of ten! I do not exaggerate. The vast majority of the race are constant subjects of ailments. There is some one form of disease that you are particularly subject to. You have a weak side, or back, or are subject to headaches, or faintnesses, or lungs easily distressed. It would not take a very strong blow to shiver the golden bowl of life, or break the pitcher at the fountain. Many of you have kept on in life through sheer force of will. You think no one can understand your diseases. Perhaps you look strong, and it is supposed that you are a hypochondriac. They say you are nervous—as if that were nothing! God have mercy upon any man or woman that is nervous. At times you sit alone in your room. Friends do not come. You feel an insupportable loneliness in your sufferings; but God knows; God feels; God sympathizes. He counts the sleepless nights; he regards the acuteness of the pain; he estimates the hardness of the breathing. While you pour out the medicine from the bottle, and count the drops, God counts all your falling tears. As you look at the vials, filled with nauseous draughts, and at the bottles of distasteful tonic that stand on the shelf, remember that there is a larger bottle in which God fills with no mixture of earthly apothecaries, but it is God's bottle, in which he hath gathered all our tears.

Again, God remembers all the sorrows of poverty. There is much want that never comes to inspection. The deacons of the church never see it. The controllers of almshouses never report it. It comes not to church, for it has no appropriate apparel. It makes no appeal for help, but chooses rather to suffer than to expose its bitter need. Friends do not go to it, but God, who has his eyes on all, will not submit to constant privation; sewing-women, who cannot ply the needle quickly enough to earn them shelter and bread. But whether reported or uncomplained, whether in seemingly comfortable parlors, or in damp cellars, or in hot garrets, God's angels of mercy are on the watch. This moment those griefs are being collected. Down on the back streets, in all the alleys, amid shanties and log-cabins, the work goes on. Tears of want—tears of hunger, heat, and cold—tears of gold that all men have, and which are jewels for heaven's casket. They are pledges of Divine sympathy. They are tears for God's bottle.

Again the Lord preserves the remembrance of all paternal anxieties. You see a man from the most infamous surroundings step out into the kingdom of God. He has heard no sermon. He has received no startling providential warning. What brought him to his new mind? This is the secret: God looked over the bottle in which he gathers the tears of his people, and he saw a paternal tear in that bottle which has been for forty years unanswered. He said, "Go to now; and let me answer that tear," and forthwith the wanderer is brought home to God. Oh, this work of training children for God! It is a tremendous work. Some people think it easy. They have never tried it. A child is placed in the arms of the young parent. It is a beautiful plying thing. You look into the laughing eyes. You examine the dimples in the feet. You wonder at its exquisite organization. Beautiful play, but on some nightfall, as you sit looking that little one, a voice seems to fall straight from the throne of God, saying: "That child is immortal! The stars shall die, but that is an immortal! Sons shall grow old with age, but that is an immortal!"

Now I know with many of you this is the chief anxiety. You earnestly wish your children to grow uprightly, but you find it hard work to make them do as you wish. You check their noisy behavior. You correct their quarrels. In the midnight your pillow is wet with weeping. You have wrestled with God in agony for the salvation of your children. You ask me if all that anxiety has been ineffectual. I answer: No. God understands your heart. He understands how hard you have tried to make that daughter do right, though she is so very petulant and restless; and what pains you have bestowed in teaching that son to walk in the path of uprightness, though he has such strong propensities for dissipation. I speak a cheering word. God heard every counsel you offered him. God has known all these sleepless nights you have passed. God has seen every sinking of your distressed spirit. God remembers your prayers. He keeps eternal record of your anxieties; and in his lachrymatory, not such as stood in ancient tomb, but in one that glows and glitters beside the throne of God, he holds all these exhausting tears. The grass may be rank upon your graves, and the letters upon your tombstone defaced with the elements before the divine response will come; but he who hath declared, "I will be a God to thee, and to thy seed after thee," will not forget and some day, in heaven, while you are ranging the fields of light, the gates of pearl will swing back, and garlanded with glory, that long wayward one will rush into your outstretched arms of welcome and triumph. The hills may depart and the earth may burn, and the stars fall and time perish, but God will break his oath and trample upon his promises—never! never!

Again, God keeps a perpetual remembrance of all bereavements. These are the trials that leave the soul, and throw the red hearts of men into the cold wine-press. Troubles at the stove may leave at the stove. Misrepresentation and abuse of the world you may leave on the street where you found them. The law-suit that would swallow your honest accumulations may be left in the courtroom. But bereavements are home troubles, and there is no escape from them. You will see that vacant chair. Your eye will catch at the suggestive picture. You cannot fly the presence of such ills. You go to Switzerland to get clear of them, but more sure-footed than the mule that takes you up the Alps, your troubles climb on the tip-top, and sit shivering on the glaciers. You may cross the seas, but they can outstep the swiftest steamer. You may take a caravan, and put out across the Arabian desert, but they follow you like a simoon, armed with suffocation. You plunge into the Mammoth cave, but they hang like stalactites from the roof of the great cavern. They stand behind with skeleton fingers to push you ahead. They stand before you to throw you back. They charge upon you with gleaming spear. They seem to come hap-hazard, scattering shots from the gun of a careless sportsman. But God is in it, and he sends them just right; for God is the archer. This summer many of you will especially feel your grief as you go to places where once you were accompanied by those who are gone now. Your troubles will follow you to the seashore, and will keep up with the lightning express in which you speed away. Or, tarrying at home, they will sit beside you by day, and whisper over your pillow night after night. I want to assure you that you are not left alone; and that your weeping is heard in heaven. You will wander among the hills and say, "Up this hill, last year, our boy climbed with great glee, and waved his cap from the top." "This is the place where our little girl put flowers in her hair, and looked up in her mother's face," until every drop of blood in your heart tingled with gladness, and you thanked God with a thrill of rapture, and you look around as much as to say: "Who dashed out that light? Who filled this cup with gall? What blast froze up these fountains of the heart?" Some of you have lost your parents within the last twelve months. Their prayers for you are ended. You take up their picture, and try to call back the kindness that once looked out from those old, wrinkled faces, and spoke in such a tremulous voice; and you say it is a good picture, but all the while you feel that, after all, it does not do justice; and you would give almost anything—you would cross the sea, you would walk the earth over—to hear just one word from those lips that a few months ago used to call you by your first name, though so long you yourself have been a parent. Now, you have done your best to hide your grief. You smile when asked how you are getting on. But God knows, he looks down upon the empty cradle, upon the desolated nursery, upon the stricken home, and upon the broken heart, and says: "This is the way I thresh the wheat; this is the way I scour my jewels! Cast thy burden on my arm and I will sustain you. All those tears I have gathered into my bottle!"

But what is the use of having so many tears in God's lachrymatory? In that great casket or vase, why does God preserve all your troubles? Through the ages of eternity, what use of a great collection of tears? I do not know that they will be kept there forever. I do not know, but that in some distant age of heaven an angel of God may look into the bottle and find it as empty of tears as the lachrymatories of earthenware dug up from the ancient city. Where have the tears gone to? What spirit of hell hath been invading God's palace, and hath robbed the lachrymatories? None. These were sanctified sorrows, and these tears were changed into pearls that are now set in the crowns and robes of the ransomed. I walk up to examine this heavenly corbel, gleaming brighter than the sun, and cry, "From what river depths of heaven were those gems gathered?" and a thousand voices reply, "These are transfigured tears from God's bottle." I see sceptres of light stretched down from the throne of those who on earth were trod on of men; and in every sceptre point and inlaid in every stair of golden throne, behold an indescribable richness and lustre, and cry, "From whence this streaming light—these flashing pearls?" and the voices of the elders before the throne, and of the martyrs under the altar, and of the hundred and forty and four thousand radiant on the glassy sea, exclaim, "Transmuted tears from God's bottle."

Let the ages of heaven roll off—the story of earth's pomp and pride long ago ended; the Koh-i-noor diamonds that make kings proud, the precious stones that adorned Persian tiara and flamed in the robes of Babylonian processions, forgotten; the Golconda mines charred in the last conflagration; but firm as the everlasting hills, and pure as the light that streams from the throne, and bright as the river that flows from the eternal rock, shall gleam, shall sparkle, shall flame for ever these transfigured tears of God's bottle.

NOVEL ENTERPRISES.

The linen industry of Ireland gives employment to upward of 100,000 persons, and has an estimated capital invested of $75,000,000.

There are now between 13,000 and 14,000 miles of telephone circuits in the metropolitan area of London, a region covering about 500 square miles.

Dr. Koopen in his "Annals of Marine Hydrography and Meteorology," published by the observatory of Hamburg, details the effects upon waves of the sea of different sorts of oil, and comes to the conclusion that soap produces still far superior effects.

Wax figures are slowly disappearing as advertising agencies. The cheap tailors use figures of wire with heads of plaster and paper mache, and the cheap dentists have taken in some of their horrible heads, with staring eyes and teeth that were gnashed by machinery.

Among the large shipments of bones from Mexico to the United States recently made for fertilizing and sugar-refining purposes, were ten car loads of human bones, said to have been obtained from ancient mounds in Southern Mexico, but more probably gathered from various old and abandoned cemeteries.

BALD HEADS!

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

Skookum Root Hair Grower

is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. And it cures the diseases of the hair and scalp, and restores the hair to its natural condition. "Skookum" contains neither minerals nor oils. It is not a dye, but a dandruff and itching remedy, and stimulates the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff, and grows hair on bald heads.

Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions, by the use of Skookum Root Hair Grower. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you send direct to us, and we will forward prepaid, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 6 for $5.00. Soap, 25c. per bar.

PURELY PERSONALS.

C. H. Ball is visiting his parents.
Mrs. Belle Long and son left Wednesday for Chicago.
Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ball leave Tuesday for the world's fair.
Royal Starkweather spent last week with friends at Ypsilanti.
Miss Anna Blair is the guest of Detroit relatives this week.
Miss Minnie Beal leaves tomorrow for her school in Brighton.
Mrs. Mary Murdock is visiting friends in Big Rapids and Ovid.
W. H. Priest of Detroit was a guest of Northville relatives Thursday.
Miss Ethel Johnson has returned from her visit at Lake Michigan.
Peter Connell enjoyed a visit from his Wyandotte brother this week.
Miss Florence Jones of Fenton is spending a few days with the Misses Bovee.
Fred Slater was out from Detroit Wednesday to attend the B. B. C. party.
Brother Belding has been spending part of the week milking cows on the Benton farm.
Harry Leebman and family of Rochester were visitors at Charles Bristol's Sunday.
Clarence English received a call from his mother and sister of South Lyon this week.
Miss Nellie Thompson left Tuesday to assume her position as preceptress in the Nashville school.
Mrs. Mary E. Wait and daughter Mrs. Katie M. Welsh, leave today for the world's fair to be absent two weeks.
Mrs. W. A. Wood of Detroit, a former Northville resident, is visiting at L. W. Hutton's and other friends here.
Mrs. W. Saxony and son of Lansing were visiting relatives here last week and until Monday when they returned home.
Margie Thompson, Ethel Dublar, Mabel Clark and Ralph Horton have all completed arrangements for Ann Arbor.
Dr. W. T. Walline and family moved to Ypsilanti the fore part of the week. They occupy what is known as the Octagon residence.
Alfred Whitehead of Flint is Knapp & Yerkes' new tinner. Mr. Whitehead is well known here having formerly worked for A. W. Carpenter.
R. B. Waterman will move next week to his Sand Beach farm. Mr. Waterman has resided in and near Northville for some fifty years.
Miss Nellie Priest, typist at the Record office, leaves next week for a well earned month's vacation. She will visit in Oakland and Shiawassee counties.
Mrs. Elizabeth Grover of Fowlerville widow of the late Wm. P. Grover, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lucinda W. Houk, Wing street. She will remain for some time.
Supt. Watson of the water works contractors was in town last week inspecting the reservoir which is not yet quite satisfactory to the water board. The tests show it to leak a trifle more than it really ought and Watson says they will fix it.
Miss Lydia McRoberts is back from her vacation and so much improved in health that she has accepted the position of cashier in C. R. Smith's store. We don't know where Mr. Smith could have found a more competent or pleasing lady for the place.
Ralph Horton left Tuesday to test the enduring proclivities of the world's fair. He intends to take the whole of the show in and enjoy the ups and downs of the Ferris wheel. By the way, the wheel sees a good many ups and downs in the course of a day and yet its income is about $6000 every fourteen hours.

Something New in Bibles.

The Rev. H. M. Gallup of Ypsilanti is in the village this week canvassing for a new featured Oxford Bible which contains some very interesting and helpful ideas in addition to the old standard work.

Rev. Francis E. Clark D. D. of Boston, president of the Christian Endeavor society, of this book says: "I esteem it an edition of very great value. The 'Helps' are very fine, and the unique features of self-pronouncing key to hard names of the bible which so often cause young people to stumble in the scripture reading, gives it a peculiar value. I hope it will have a large sale."

These books have a number of good things to recommend them. 3w1
Address, REV. H. M. GALLUP, Ypsilanti, Mich.

"Our Men's Meeting."

Strangers—home folks—young men—we are hoping to see you at our meeting. Come over and help us.

The meeting is increasing in interest and attendance. During August we have maintained an average attendance of fifty-eight.

An ancient saying that "Nothing can hurt me but myself" is very applicable to us in these latter days. Fellows who carouse or waste their time or have no particular occupation are hurting themselves. Fellow workers in the meetings are you helping some other one to keep away from evil ways?

Next Sunday A. L. Parker, General Secretary of the Detroit Association, will address the men. Fill up the room boys, you'll not be disappointed.

"Interest more than ordinary" was the announcement on our dodger and our Sunday's meeting fulfilled that promise. The speaker was Harrison Yerkes and he spoke from words found in Galatians the sixth chapter and the seventh and eighth verses. He compared the dissolute life of Lord Byron with that of the christian life of St. Paul, concluding with Paul's "last words, 'I have fought the good fight, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.'" The band quartette now increased to five pieces added much power to our singing.

ONE OF THE MEN.

Plymouth Races.
What Plymouth will lack in the line of a fair she will make up for in races. They will be held Sept. 7, 8, and 9. Over $1,000 will be hung up in prizes and they will be great days. The Board of Directors are determined to make this the most successful race meeting ever held in this part of the country. The track is in elegant condition; the stalls and other accommodations are second to none.

SALEM.

Ed Rider will teach on the Traverse City high school staff this winter.

The Baptist young people's social at Mr. Burdips last Friday was well attended.

Rev. D. H. Conrad and two little daughters returned on Tuesday from their week's outing at Sand Beach.

Station agent D. B. Perkins returned on Sunday from Kalamazoo, where he has been visiting relatives on his way home from the world's fair.

Dr. Roberts of Ninde M. E. church, Detroit, preached in both Methodist churches on Sabbath. His sermons were eloquent and to the point.

A party of Salemites who attended the Centennial together in 1876, will hold their annual reunion at Mrs. Hamms, about Sept. 12th.

Mrs. L. Nacker left Tuesday for Harbor Springs to visit her sister whom she has not seen for thirty-five years. She will also visit a brother during her stay.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the Ladies' Missionary society of the Cons. church will give a Missionary tea at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Wheeler. Tea served from 6 to 8 p. m.

The following letters remain unfiled for at the postoffice: Luella Clark, Dr. Heasley, Carrie Litzenberger, Fred Slogee, Emma Youngs, Herbert W. Wheeler, H. B. Vanes.

The five Sabbath schools of this township held their union picnic in Smith's grove Wednesday. There was a big crowd present. The Salem cornet band furnished good music, and everybody enjoyed themselves.

The genial manager of the creamery, A. C. Wheeler, is still limping. He wishes those who have not yet asked him "What's the matter?" to be kindly informed that some of Job's comforts have settled on his knee.

The entertainment in the Congregational church on Thursday night was fairly well attended and greatly enjoyed, all the young people taking their parts well. The money realized will be devoted to a Christmas tree.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

Elkhart, Ind., July 1st, 1890: Dullam's Great German Medicine Co. My daughter has been afflicted with Female trouble for over six years and I have paid out over $750 in vain trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised me to secure a bottle of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and she has been completely cured by it. We gave it a fair trial and the results were wonderful. We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted.

Strength and Health.

If you are not feeling strong and healthy try Electric Bitters. It "La Grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on Liver, Stomach and Kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with Sick Headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Large bottles only 50c. at A. M. Randolph's Drug Store.

DON'T GET IMPOSED UPON.

Is a good motto to follow in buying a medicine as well as in everything else. By the universal satisfaction it has given and by the many remarkable cures it has accomplished, Dullam's Great German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney Cure has proven itself unequalled for building up and cleansing your system and for all diseases arising from impure blood. Do not experiment with an untried or untried article which you are told is as good, but be sure and get Dullam's. All druggists keep it.

At the Presbyterian church the following are the announcements for the week: On Saturday at 2:30 p. m. there will be regular services with formal sermon. On Sunday the morning hour will be given to the rite of baptism and communion. In the evening the topic will be "A Hymn of Our Faith." This will be a souvenir service. Beautiful souvenir programs have been gotten out by one of the New York dailies with which Mr. Belding has been connected since '78.

James Slocum of Holly is not usually a forgetful man but as is shown in the following incident he occasionally gets a trifle absentminded. One day recently he wheeled the baby down town, left it on the street, got interested in something, and after a while started back home. When he nearly got there it came to him that he had taken something down town and left it, but to save his life he couldn't tell what it was. He, however, started back, and ran across the baby, sitting quietly in the carriage where he had left it.

While a Flint & Pere Marquette freight train was standing at the depot at Milford, a gang of tramps entered one of the cars and took a number of buffalo robes and fifty pairs of blankets from a box therein. They deposited their plunder on the ground near the track until the coast should be clear for their removal. However, as the train was moving out, a brakeman caught sight of a bundle of the blankets, so the train was stopped and a search made, which resulted in the recovery of all the stolen stuff.

News, news, news, news! It's enough to give a man the blues. Nobody married, nobody dead, nobody broken an arm or a head. Nobody come in to talk of a "crap," no one got boozey and started a scrap, no one got run in for taking a horn, nobody buried and nobody born. O, for a racket, a riot, a fuss. Some one to come in and kick up a fuss, something to stir up the peace-loving air, somebody's comet to give us a scare. Somebody thumped within an inch of his life, some one run off with another man's wife, somebody's baby got choked on a pin; some one to come in and pay up his dues; anything, anything, just so its news.

Some eleven couple of the young people indulged in a farewell social hop at the library hall Wednesday evening. It was a very elite company and the occasion was strictly bon ton and highly enjoyable. The surprise on the young men was later in the evening when their fair partners invited them over to the Park house to partake of an elegant and elaborately prepared supper with the B. B. C's compliments. Landlord Thurlt had also a surprise for all of them in the shape of some handsome and specially prepared menu cards which he had gotten up for the occasion. The young people are loud in their praise of Landlord Thurlt's treatment.

A half hour praise service of marine sacred songs with a talk on "A Drift or a Voyage, Which?" will be the order at the Methodist church next Sunday evening.

The Junior league of the Methodist church has arranged with Mr. Horace Hitchcock of Detroit to give a "stereopticon entertainment" on Saturday evening, Sept. 16. Mr. Hitchcock conducted "The People's Course of Entertainments" in Detroit for three seasons and has the finest outfit in the state. Ratfonize the boys and girls.

The sunflower service last Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church was interesting and instructive. The speaker dealt with this truly American flower from the stand point of science, sentiment and utility. The practical lessons this yellow bloomer taught be drew from private letters in answer to the request for a "sunflower sentiment." The decorations were unique and beautiful and bespoke taste, tone and ingenuity for the committee that had them in charge.

The Milford gun club did dare to come down again and shoot our boys. There was 13 of them and it proved an unlucky number. The score was, Milford 195, Northville 226. Those scoring 20 or above were: R. C. Yerkes 22, Percy 20, W. Kley 20, W. H. Yerkes 22, Harmon 20. The Northville club banquered their defeated foe at the Park house at 7 o'clock and they returned to their home more fully impressed with the expertness of the aim of the Northville club and their ability to entertain.

The taking off of the early F. & P. M. morning-Detroit train is not quite to the liking of Northville people. They could better have spared the 10 o'clock train, had their wishes been consulted.—Record. That's all right, Neal, but it is a good thing for the town. If a citizen of Northville is paid $5, early the next morning he or she would take a train for Detroit and spend it. Might much better spend it at home and this change will probably be the means of keeping more money at home.—Holly Advertiser.

Guess your head's level James.

Carm Benton, his horse, wagon and about forty gallons of milk had a narrow escape Saturday morning. Just as the horse's fore feet struck the track at the Mead's Mills crossing an F. & P. M. freight train struck the cattle guard four feet away. "To cross meant instant death. It was a down grade and the horse could not back the heavy milk wagon. With a quick pull Carm set the animal back upon its haunches and there it rested with its nose grazing along the cars the entire length of the long train. Carm says one such experience in a life time is enough for him.

Prof. Geo. H. Stone, formerly connected with the Pontiac schools, is at present engaged in tracing the old coast line of Lake Huron. He has found that the line enters Oakland county just south of Farmington, then passes in a northeasterly direction through the townships of Farmington and Southfield, crossing into Troy just below Birmingham and passing through Troy into Avon township, thence into Macomb county within a mile of the village of Rochester. In this connection we might add that this line known as the "ridge" is easily traced across the larger portion of the state. It is first noticeable at Adrian village running thence in a northeasterly direction through Ridgeway entering Washtenaw county at the tri-county line of Lenawee, Washtenaw and Monroe. The line passes about two miles south of Ypsilanti, entering Wayne county in the center of the western part of Canton township, passing directly through the village of Plymouth where the burned stores are, crossing the street at the Markham factory. The line is very marked where it passes through the Briggs place and across the road three miles east of here. It enters Oakland county near the Powers cheese factory and proceeds as noted by Prof. Stone. Whether it has ever been traced farther north than Macomb county we are unable to learn. The claim is made that this all goes to show that the lake coast has receded fully 30 miles, and that lakes St. Clair and Erie and the St. Clair and Detroit rivers, as well as the regions around for a number of miles, at one time formed a vast lake.

THE NEWS CHRONICLE OF OUR OWN STATE.

An Ionia County Minister's Wife Loses Her Life to Save Her Family From Cremation—U. S. Marshal Van Buren Dead—Michigan Days at Chicago.

Died to Save Her Boy.
Mrs. Meadow, wife of a minister at Sebewa, Ionia county, was burned to death. The house caught fire, and it seems that her husband was too stupefied to render any effective assistance. She herself first rescued her mother and a child on the first floor, then rushing upstairs grasped her little boy and threw him out of the window, breaking his leg. She started to return but the floor gave way and she fell back into the flames. In a few minutes the house had burned to the ground.
The husband is a United Brethren preacher, but works a farm and operates an incubator. The fire started from a lamp under an incubator. Meadow is nearly crazed with grief. She thinks his wife after throwing the boy out of the window started to arouse the hired man, who was supposed to be sleeping upstairs, but who in reality had not entered the building, having just returned from the village. Mrs. Meadow was but 20 years of age.

U. S. MARSHAL VAN BUREN Passes Away Very Suddenly at His Home in Lansing.

Hon. Wm. Van Buren, United States marshal for the eastern district of Michigan, died very suddenly at his home at Lansing. He had retired after a sleepless night, and at 10 o'clock, when he was awakened by severe pains about the heart, his son hastened for a physician, but before he returned Mr. Van Buren had fallen forward from the bed upon which he was sitting and expired. The cause was heart disease.

Mr. Van Buren was born in Canada in 1842; came to Michigan—Detroit—in the '60s; was foreman of the composing room of the Detroit Tribune; in 1871 went to Lansing; was foreman of the mercantile "Department" of the state printing office under Wm. S. George; became managing partner until the plant was sold to Thorpe & Godfrey in 1885; since which time he was a member of the extensive firm of Jet printers—Thompson & Van Buren. He was appointed United States marshal in March, 1890, to succeed Galusha Pennell. Mr. Van Buren was prominent in politics and was one of the best known men in Michigan. He was mayor of Lansing in 1879 and 1880, and had previously been a member of city council. He was a prominent Mason and his funeral was conducted by his lodge. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

Michigan Days at the World's Fair.
The program has been arranged for the celebration of Michigan's days at the fair, Sept. 13 and 14. Gov. Rich will be president of the day and a long list of vice-presidents has been named, including all the governors, past and present, congressmen and senators, members of the legislature and prominent citizens. The principal address will be delivered by President Thomas W. Palmer and short addresses by ex-Governors Felch, Blair, Alger and Wm. H. Allen. Hon. Dan M. Dickinson, Jas. B. Angell, Congressman J. C. Burrows and Jay A. Hubbell. In the evening a reception will be given to the governor and his staff, with music, refreshments and fireworks.

Child Duverney Dying.
Dying in the Soldiers' Home at Milwaukee is "Child" Duverney, one of the youngest enlisted soldiers in the war of the rebellion. Duverney was only 14 years of age when he enlisted as drummer in company H, First Michigan sharpshooters, at Grand Haven in 1861. He served through the entire war, and showed conspicuous bravery in the engagement in front of Petersburg. To a friend the dying man requested that his body be buried in Grand Haven, his old home. He has no money, but the citizens of Grand Haven will see that the request of their "drummer boy" is fulfilled.

Shot Potato Thieves.
The farmers of Briley township, Montmorency county, have been troubled with thieves taking chickens, potatoes, etc. To cure this David Gillen, a bachelor 66 years old, hid on his haystack nights with a gun. His vigil was rewarded, for he spied two men in his potato patch digging a hill of potatoes. He shot one dead, and the other escaped wounded. The man killed is Charles Burton, married, 45 years old. The name of the wounded man is unknown. Gillen went to Atlanta and gave himself up to the officers.

Powerful Flowing Well.
E. L. Ransom struck a wonderful flowing well in the heart of Traverse City while boring at a depth of 271 feet. The water is perfectly clear, sparkling and cold, flows with great force 25 feet above the ground and fills 1,200 barrels per day through a two-inch pipe. The supply will be put to practical use immediately. Other wells will be started and experiments made in boring a greater depth.

Strange Fatality.
Marion D. Boutell, of Bay City, was at work on the raft-towing tug Annie Molles. One leg slipped into the crank-pit, the pit revolved and Mr. Boutell was terribly mangled. He lived but a few minutes.

Drowned in Gogewic Lake.
Alva Morrie, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, was drowned in Gogewic Lake, Battle Creek. While bathing with companions he was seized with cramps. Morrie was 22 years old, had been there but a few weeks and was a member of the sanitarian training class for nurses.

Young Couple Drowned in Black Lake.
John De Haan, of Muskegon, and a daughter of Capt. A. Anderson, residing near Park, were drowned by the capsizing of a sail boat on Black Lake. The bodies have been recovered.

THE BANK HALF-HOLIDAY.

Attorney-General Ellis Gives an Opinion on Dates of Maturity, Etc.

In response to a request from the local bank clearing house, Attorney-General Ellis has given his interpretation of the new law making Saturday a legal half-holiday for banks. In case the half-holiday is observed, five questions arise, which he answers as follows:

1. Is paper maturing Saturday payable and protestable Saturday or Monday? Mr. Ellis answers Monday or the next secular day.
2. Paper maturing on Sunday is protestable Saturday at noon.
3. When a whole holiday falls on Saturday such paper is protestable on Monday.
4. When a whole holiday falls on Saturday, when is paper maturing on Sunday payable and protestable? Mr. Ellis answers, if negotiable, on Friday; if not negotiable, on Monday.
5. When a holiday falls on Sunday, and Monday is observed, when is paper payable and protestable? The answer is: If Saturday is not a whole holiday, the note would be payable Saturday forenoon. If it is a whole holiday, on the next preceding secular or business day.

Young Couple Killed by a Runaway.
Homer Bards and his wife, of Courtland, while driving home from Cedar Springs, were thrown from their buggy by their horses running away. Mr. Bards received injuries which proved fatal in a few hours, and he will die from the effect of being kicked by the horse. Bards is a young farmer and the couple were married only a few weeks ago.

Dr. Winters Acquitted.
The examination of Dr. T. M. Winters, of Danville, on a charge of criminal assault preferred by Mary Benjamin of that place has been concluded, and the defendant was honorably discharged. The testimony showed a case of blackmail. The reputation of the complaining witness was proved to be very bad.

DEATH AND RUIN

WROUGHT BY A SOUTHERN WIND STORM'S VIOLENCE.

The City of Savannah, Ga., and Surrounding Country Devastated, With Over 40 Lives Lost—Sensational Reports From Port Royal, S. C.—At Other Places.

A Southern Cyclone.
A roundabout telegraph report states that a disastrous cyclone has struck Savannah, Ga. Forty persons are reported killed and property damaged to the extent of $10,000,000. It is impossible to get details.
A large number of buildings were unroofed. Many trees were uprooted. Seventeen lives were lost on the river, Hutchinson Island and Tybee, so far as reported. Elsewhere, vessels were ashore in Savannah Harbor, eight being barks, one schooner, one sloop, and one oyster boat. Six vessels were wrecked outside the harbor. The wind blew 70 miles an hour. All wires are down.

Later reports only add to the list of fatalities as communication is established with the different parts of the storm swept country. The fatalities so far as reported in Savannah alone are twelve in number. Forty to 50 other persons are reported missing and it is supposed, as nothing has been heard from them, that their bodies will be found later. Twelve barks and barkentines which were anchored at quarantine station were blown high and dry upon the marsh and some of them were carried by the storm across the marsh onto an island two miles distant from the station. One of the vessels at Tybee was completely capsized and three club houses on the island were blown entirely down. Others were flooded and the people sought shelter wherever they could find it.

Tybee island, at the mouth of Savannah river, was entirely demolished and at least 20 people were killed or drowned. Houses were blown, buried, washed away and otherwise demolished. The railroad track was blown up along the line like a fence. Rails were twisted and spikes were pulled from the ties. The railroad track was blown up along the line like a fence. Rails were twisted and spikes were pulled from the ties. The railroad track was blown up along the line like a fence. Rails were twisted and spikes were pulled from the ties.

More than thirty wrecks have been reported so far. Fifteen vessels in the harbor and off Tybee were wrecked or badly damaged. More than that number of smaller craft are missing and are believed to have been lost. The schooner Lena Smith reported ashore lies high up on Tybee beach, just west of the wharf. Six unknown vessels were reported ashore on Tybee beach on the outside. Nothing has been heard from the steamship City of Savannah, now many hours overdue.

Reports from Brunswick, Augusta, Waynesboro and other places in Georgia tell of the storm's devastation, and at Blackville, S. C., many buildings were destroyed and a number of people injured.
An Atlantic Coast line train from Charleston, S. C., reported at Richmond, Va., that Charleston was severely wrecked, eight lives were lost and the largest buildings unroofed and several demolished. Startling rumors were also reported which were to the effect that Sullivan's island in Charleston Harbor had been entirely swept clean and that hundreds of lives had been lost. All communication was cut off and there was no means of verifying the rumor.

One Hundred Lives Lost.

A special from Port Royal, S. C., brings the startling information that fully 100 lives have been lost at Port Royal, Beaufort and neighboring points by drowning during the storm. Over twenty-five of these were seen by the correspondent, and his information regarding the others was received from reliable sources. Of the 100 persons killed and drowned only six were white, the others being negroes. The negroes were so frightened and terror-stricken that many were killed and drowned by not leaving their cabins to seek places of safety. Twenty persons were drowned on Paris Island. No news has been received from St. Helena, four miles from Beaufort. It is believed fully twenty-five lives were lost between Port Royal and Seabrook, all negroes. Every house in Beaufort and Port Royal was damaged to some extent and a number of barges and craft were wrecked and blown ashore. The Coosa Mining Co. loses $50,000. The total loss is estimated in the neighborhood of $500,000.

THREE ACCIDENTS.

In Which a Total of Twenty-Four Persons Lost Their Lives.

Two crowded excursion trains of the Long Island railroad were wrecked near Berlin, L. I. A Manhattan train was standing in the depot when a Rockaway Beach train, running at top speed, ran into the rear of it. The Rockaway train plowed completely through the two rear coaches of the first train and partly wrecked the third coach. The engine was dismantled. The large boiler resembled a pin cushion from the timbers of the wrecked cars sticking into it. Upon these timbers were human beings impaled, some dead and others gasping their last. In all 25 passengers were killed outright and about 20 were seriously wounded, six of whom will probably die.

The scene was indescribably horrible. The dead and wounded were massed among the wreckage, besides upon and beyond the tracks. Everything was spattered with blood of the dead and wounded and the cries of the latter rose above the hissing of steam and the calls of the frantic trainmen. It was a foggy night and the engineer saw the red lights of the rear of the Manhattan train only in time to reverse his lever and jump from the train with his fireman.

A Head-On Collision.
A terrible accident occurred on the Harlem railroad, near Dykeman Station, just north of Brewster, N. Y., which cost four lives and possibly more. It was the result of a head-on collision between a northbound express train and the Paving accommodation train. For some reason the accommodation train did not await the coming of the express on a side track near Dykeman station. The Harlem road is a single track, and the express was approaching at a speed of 50 miles an hour. When the accommodation train was sighted "down" brakes, was whistled, but too late. The two locomotives came together with terrific force, wrecking them both and also wrecked the first passenger car on the southbound train. Both engineers and the fireman of the express were killed as was Nellie Ried, a passenger aged 15 years. There was a curve which prevented the engineers seeing each other's engine until too late.

Six Boys Drowned.
George P. Witherbee, of Port Henry, N. Y., and six companions, who were sailing on Witherbee's yacht, the Alpha, were capsized in Lake Champlain. Witherbee and five of the boys were drowned. Joseph Labarge, 12 years old, saved himself by swimming to the Vermont shore. Witherbee was 22 years old, and an all round athlete. He was graduated from Cornell College in June, and was elected captain of the "Varsity" team for that year. He was a competent yachtsman, but the boat was ballasted heavily with iron ore, and when a stiff squall struck her she went over without warning. Witherbee died in a heroic effort to save young Brush's life.

August Seiting and Fred Yunkuffsky were hunting near Northville. Yunkuffsky's gun caught in some underbrush and was discharged. Seiting was struck in the hip and is dead.

HOME.
The prince rides up to the palace gates.
And he over the moorland sweet
For he thinks of the bazaar maiden sweet
Who may never wed with him.
For home is where the heart is,
In dwelling great or small.
And there's many a splendid palace
That snovers a home at all.

The woman comes to his little cot
With a song when day is done,
For his dearie's standing in the door
And his children to meet him run.
For his home is where the heart is,
In dwelling great or small.
And there's many a splendid palace
That snovers a home at all.

Could I but live with my own sweetheart
I'd be richer far than a loveless man
With fame and a golden shore,
For home is where the heart is,
In dwelling great or small.
And a cottage lighted by firelight
Is the dearest home of all.

The Pliepie Never Came Out
She is a poor, tired, overworked woman, with five children and a husband who isn't exactly "shiftless," but who lives in that neighborhood most of the time.

He is always getting offended with his employers and leaving suddenly and at awkward periods.
Just what particular kind of work he wants it would be hard to say, but he never seems to get it.

She hasn't told me this for she is as loyal as most wives, says Polly Pry in the New York Recorder, but I have pretty well built up my edifice from bits that she has dropped here and there, and by using my eyes.

She is such a patient, honest and industrious soul that my heart has quite wanted to her.
Therefore, when I heard through one of the children that they were all going on a picnic the other day I felt quite glad.

I had sent over a few potted things that I fancied they would relish and watched them all fly by my window with much enthusiasm to take the "L" train.

As the husband and father led the procession I guessed that he had had his usual disagreement with his employers and had a free day—several of them, I was afraid.

I regretted to see that he carried no bundle or basket, but left that for the children to do, and I wondered what particular benefit he was going to be-one of the children told me the whole story the next day.

"We was to go to Staten Island," said he, "and we figured it all up.
They wouldn't charge anywhere
for the baby, so that made six fares.
Sometimes they don't charge for Fanny, but generally they do.

"We never tell a fib about her age, you know, if they ask us, but sometimes they don't ask us.
"That ain't 'em, is it?"
I told her that the Lord wouldn't notice that particularly, I didn't believe.

"Well, six fares down and up in the elevated is sixty cents, an' six on the ferry boat is $1.20.
"That made $1.80, an' mamma had $3. Why, we could have had lots of fun with all that."

"And didn't you, dear?"
The merry blue eyes grew a little misty and the sweet lips quivered.
"Oh, you mustn't tell mamma that I told you, Miss Pry, but we never went at all."

"Never went at all, child? Why, what do you mean?"
"Well, when we got to South Ferry we was just too late for the Staten island boat, an' we sat in the ferry house to wait for another."

"Oh, it was awfully hot an' stuffy," said she, "such a lot of tired, hot-lookin' people, an' such crowds. Babies cryin' an' frettin'."
"Papa came an' got the money to buy the tickets with."
"Mamma gave him the whole $3.
Just then some man spoke to papa and papa shook hands with him an'
they walked out together."

children as those I have mentioned.
It's no use. I am not calm. I am not reasonable. How can I be calm under the circumstances?

A Home-Made Refrigerator.

I saw a refrigerator constructed last summer at an actual outlay of so few cents, which did such good work, both in its economical use of ice and its preservation of the food placed in it, that it appears little short of a duty to describe it. Two dry goods packing cases were secured, one considerably smaller than the other. The size of the inner box will represent the capacity of the ice chest, it is to be remembered when choosing a box for this purpose, while the outer box should afford a space three or four inches all around the box to be placed within. It should also afford two inches of space between the bottom of the inner box and its own, and two inches also between the cover of the inner box and its own. All these surrounding spaces, except the above inner box, are to be filled with dry sawdust. The interior of the inner box should be painted white, for if left in the natural wood, butter and some other articles placed in it may have a decidedly "woody" taste.

So far the ice chest has cost but a trifle, but now it will pay to spend a little for a galvanized iron tray to fit exactly into the bottom of the inner box, provided with a tube in one end, of sufficient length to pass down through the bottom of both boxes, which will carry off all water from the melting ice.
This tray can be made of tin, or even sheeting in which case it should be well painted, both within and without, to prevent rusting. The chest mentioned did not have this tray, but it is really very desirable.

Cleats are placed upon the inside of the inner box, and shelves made of slats inserted one above another, with a chance for one such shelf directly over the ice, as it rests in one end of the box. A thick cloth cover kept well drawn over the top of the outer box will help to keep the ice from rapid melting, though without this the case mentioned the ice melted but slowly.

New Cuts in Dust Cloaks.

A dust cloak has become so indispensable that more care than usual has this year been bestowed upon planning and carrying out of this very necessary item of a woman's wardrobe. At one time there seemed to be no limit to the hideousness of dust cloaks. Shape, color and material were alike unsightly. People seemed to have decided that it did not matter what they looked like so long as their garments were protected, just as they were of the opinion that ornament and use could not, by any possibility, be combined in a waterproof.

Nous avons change tout cela, however. In these days a mackintosh may be smart and workmanlike withal, and a dust cloak affords endless opportunities for the exercise of the milliner's art. Pretty cloaks are made of soft silk, accordion-kilted, and simply gathered into ruche of lace at the neck. Other shapes are curved and enormous armholes so as to avoid crumpling the sleeves of the gown.
One of the newest cloaks is composed of a light material, woven in silver-gray and red, and fastened at the throat with long gray ribbons reaching to the feet. It has a little cape, lined with red silk, and inside the collar and under the edge of the cape runs a flame-colored silk ruche, which is revealed as it is blown back by the wind.

The Paper Wedding.

The paper wedding, which may be observed on the second anniversary of one's marriage, can now be made a very charming fete. At one not long ago the bride and guests wore dresses and flowers of paper, the house was decorated with marvelous paper flowers and the plates and napkins were of paper. The guests were requested to come without gifts, but if one wills it otherwise so many beautiful things can be fashioned out of a little crepe paper that it is no grievous tax on one's friends. Lamp shades, articles for the dressing table and table spreads are pretty gifts. Choice photographs, engravings, books and a subscription for a magazine would give a more enduring pleasure at no very great outlay.

She Understood.

Among the many stories told of the childhood of Queen Victoria is one of a visit made with her mother at Wentworth house in Yorkshire. While there the princess delighted in running about by herself in the gardens and shrubberies.
One wet morning soon after her arrival the old gardener, who did not then know her, saw her about to descend a treacherous bit of ground from the terrace and called out.
"Be careful, miss, it's slape!" a Yorkshire word for slippery.
The ever-curious princess, turning her head, asked: "What's slape?" and at the same instant her feet flew from under her and she came down.
The old gardener ran to lift her, saying as he did so: "That's slape, miss."

Lemon Pie.

Mix one-quarter of a cup of soft cracker crumbs with one teaspoonful of melted butter;
add one cup of finely chopped apples, the juice of two lemons and two cups of granulated sugar, stirring until this is nearly dissolved. Beat the yolk of two eggs until light. Beat the whites to a stiff, dry froth, then mix the whites and yolks together.
Stir the eggs into the other ingredients, mix well, turn into a pie plate using only an under crust, and bake for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Goochberry Pie.

Line a two-quart pudding-dish with good pie crust rolled rather thick.
Stem three pints of gooseberries, wash and put into the crust; add a good pinch of sugar, cover with a top crust, pinch the edges well together, bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve cold.

Soup for an Invalid.

Boil a chicken to a jelly and when cold skim off the fat. Add it to a pint of cream, the yolk of an egg (salt boiled and mashed), a little mace, salt and pepper and twenty-five oysters.
Boil slowly fifteen minutes, and when done strain.

SEEN FROM LAGOON.

THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE CITY FROM A LAUNCH.

Bits of Beauty by Land and Water at the World's Columbian Exposition—
The Wonderful Transformation of a Prairie.

[World's Fair Letter.]

A VISITOR TO
the Exhibition
takes a stand at
some point of vantage
in the World's Fair grounds and gives a little time
to the compositions that are presented with whatever bit of landscape—or, rather water-scape—he can barely realize that this great collection
of heroic
structures has been erected in something like two years from a series of low lands subject to occasional flooding, of swamp and morass, and overgrown here and there with stunted oaks and sedge grass. The genius that transformed the area now covered by the White City into wooded islands, lagoons, grand canals, erected the palatial buildings and laid out the broad piazzas beyond comprehension. But it is in moments of resting up from irams through miles of richly lined aisles of these buildings that one commences to take in some of the effects accomplished by the men who did it and who, keeping up a liberal draft on nature's elements—sky, earth and water—proceeded to work this unattainable plot into shape for the architects and painters of the reception of the superb structures which have become the delight of millions.

About the best way to get a general idea of the arrangement of the grounds (after studying up the map in your guide book and getting sufficiently gladdened to be satisfied with keeping still) is to take passage about down one of the electric launches that stop at frequent intervals in the lagoon. A journey of nearly nine miles and about three quarters of an hour long in and out, along the reedy edges of Wooded Island, the marshy slopes of Grand Basin or the grassy slopes at the ethnological exhibits is one of the events of the visit to Chicago that will take a prominent place when recounting the pleasures of the trip. Nowhere else under heaven could such an enterprise as this one that the little voyage unfolds be undertaken, for no other country could or would afford to tackle the difficulties that stood in the way of accomplishing the result. The series of former exhibitions have been in the heart of older settlements and civilization where every resource of shrubby and vegetation has been drawn upon for the adornment of grounds and for a reasonable amount of shaded park, and where natural terraces and broad levels afforded stately locations for the great buildings. The chief of the difficulties of the Jackson Park site was to convert its almost desert waste into a fitting place for the jewels that were to be inserted later, and those who made the journey refer to the longed-for canals or by the balustrades along the walls of the lagoons can say how well that has been overcome. The stone which the builders rejected has become the head of the corner truly; the swamp was deepened into the lagoon and that is now the feature that makes the World's Columbian Exposition unique and pre-eminent.

Now that impoverished expanse has been encouraged and developed—the existing patches of dwarf oaks referred to by the introduction of hardy shrubs, the edges of the lagoon lined with myriads of reedy plants and these provided here and there with generous backgrounds of willows and native bright flowers—is more fully appreciated when one contemplates these magnificent buildings with their unconventional accessories.
Here a bridge of superb proportions, springing apparently from a mass of foliage, spans a canal gay with bright-colored boats and picturesque boatmen, and rests its farther end upon a pier crowned with some noble group of statuary.
Then a broad plaza, skirted by the nearer side by masses of luxuriant vegetation, is crossed and the porch of one of these masterpieces rears its mighty dimensions, the imposing structure itself towering above the palatial gateway.

Before the golden doorway of the Transportation building is one of the same masters. From the recesses of the reeds and spatterdock, which vaguely mark the outlines of that haven of rest for many a footsore pilgrim who has come to Chicago to do the Fair in three days or break something, is heard the noise of a flock of geese out of the lagoon, a fleet of ducks glide beyond and above the trees the great dome of the Administration building, that monumental edifice which is virtually the porch of the Exposition, is conspicuous; when the water is quiet, the Mining building at the end of that vista, starts, seemingly, with its foundations a long way beneath the dark revetment wall and is completed in a slightly lighter effect for like distance above, while above the shrubs edging the lagoon the night the transportation building stretches to the end of the vista and completes a picture of "beauty."

The Court of Honor is, of course, the Mecca of all Chicago pilgrims, and it is into this enchanted area to which the grand basin contributes its magnificent effects, that the enthusiastic Chicagoan delights to introduce the spectacular New Yorker or back number Philadelphia who may come out here to say a few words about the "Centennial." Entering at night by the west door of the Administration building and emerging on the opposite side, the stranger sees the splendours of his famous quadrangle and thanks heaven that he has the chance to do it.
It is an introduction into a new world, the like of which has never before been looked upon. Immediately in front of the visitor will be seen the great MacMonnies fountain, allegorical of the triumph of the republic, through a mist of jets its waters are spouted into the basin which holds it and thence fall into the greater basin below. On either side of this pompous work are the electric fountains, spouting streams of water or cascades of every conceivable color, while beyond that is the grand basin itself, its 1,100 feet in length and 600 feet in width outlined by rows of incandescent lamps which are repeated in the glassy surface enclosed. Towering high at the further end of the basin French's gilded statue of the Republic rises from the water and as the search light on the Manufactures building sweeps around the oblong, her huge features are brought into sharp relief and the high lights and shadows on her gilded form are accentuated by the dazzling rays. The heroic figure of the Republic is outlined against the sky, the sky beyond and with the supporting columns are mirrored in the element which plays so prominent a part in the whole scheme.
It was the design of the architects to have a uniform cornice line on the buildings surrounding the basin and the device is apparent when the visitor takes in the great and almost broken line of lights that define the group, which are also set back from the water's edge a uniform distance of 200 feet. From the main portico of the Manufactures building flourish buildings broad stairs descend to the water and at the west corners of these buildings, where canals separate them from neighboring structures, are monumental bridges over which the "footlights" of the great pyrotechnic display are fire all around the basin.

While it is difficult to imagine what this piece of resistance in the White City's architectural beauty is like, as description never can unfold its splendor, it would be quite as great a man's fancy to conjure up such effects with the Grand Basin as a potential fact in them. Blamlet with the melancholy Dane omitted would be a very real way of stating the case.
Throughout the whole arrangement, the water of the lagoon is the accessory that could not be left out any more conveniently than the gondolier with his broad, colored sash be taken from his place on the deck of his craft. The picturesque whole, which seems to be the multiple, rather than the sum of all its parts would have suffered division, not subtraction, had any other scheme been introduced. And take it all in all, I think every visitor to Chicago

omy our famous Massachusetts Historical society screwed up its library and other offices by some fifteen feet, built in the space underneath and rented it to the city of Boston. This was all very well for the treasurer, but for those of us who had passed that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional cure. Dr. Kilmer's Great Kidney Cure is a natural, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietor has so much faith

Another one of our oldest citizens called away. Chas. Gould Curtiss Sr. died at his residence in this village, 11:30 last week Friday night, at the ripe old age of 70 years and five months. Mr. Curtiss was born in the township of Easton, Fairfield county, Connecticut, March 1, 1823. His early life was spent in work on the farm and charcoal burning. At the age of sixteen he began work for himself by getting out ship timber winters and doing carpenter work summers. In the fall of 1842 he came to Michigan and was married in 1844. He was the father of three children, one of whom died leaving a son, Charles and daughter, Nettie. He had five sisters and four brothers, of whom a brother, (George) in Connecticut and a sister (Louise Smith) in the state of Washington alone survive him. In early life he took a great interest in public affairs and was a member of several patriotic societies and was a strong anti-slavery advocate. For many years he lived in and near Wayne. In 1863 he moved to Sheldon, Canton township, and came to Plymouth in January 1872 where he has since resided. Some years ago he suffered from a severe sunstroke since which time he has been a victim of neuralgia, suffering intense pain. In early life he was politically a democrat then he became a republican, but in late life was a prohibitionist and for many years was an active member of the Methodist church. Charles Curtiss was an upright, temperate christian man, loved, honored and respected by all during his entire life. The funeral services occurred at the home Monday afternoon. Rev. Parrish of Northville officiating. Interment in the Riverside cemetery.

Philauder Parmenter was brought from his home in Northville to his daughter's, Mrs. Jas. Taylor, this place Sunday.

The entertainment as announced in last week's paper to be given by the W. C. T. U. on Sept. 1, has been postponed until Sept. 15.

Mrs. A. L. Chase came back last week and packed up her household goods and shipped them to Flint where she will reside this winter.

The people in this place just at the present cannot complain of the times being dull. This week there are to be only three picnics that they can attend if they wish.
