That Is the Amount of Northville's Improvements So Far This Year.

THIRTY-ONE NEW RESIDENCES.

A New Brick Block and Many Other Business Improvements.

It is safe to say that in no village in the state has there been such a show of enterprise; such an advancement or such an amount of building and improvements as there has in Northville this year. So far thirteen new residen ces have been completed and eighteen others are now under course of construction, with several more contemplations in sight. In addition to this four new stores have been built-Union block; a brick addition and veneered front on the Globe furniture works; a second story and tower on the city hall; Ambler Mercantile Co.'s ice house and lumber sheds; C.L.Dubuar's lumber sheds; Dubuar Mfg. Co.'s bendingand store room, to say nothing of Joy's new battery and Carmer's new shoe shop. The building improvements so far known, in addition to the water works system, will foot up in round numbers adout $58,550, as follows: ... adout occidences. $ 2,000 E Carrington

The beauty of Northville's enterprise and growth now, as it always has been is that in nowise has it been the outcome of any soap-blubber boom The advancement has all been brought about by natura, healthy causes—the direct result of the successful management of our manufacturing industries and the constant increase of their business. In this connection the Hanrahan refrigerator works has played an important part this year.

Old People's Day

Our seniors in general, and all over sixty years in particular, are cordially invited to attend the old people's ser vice at the Methodist church at 10:30 a. m., Sunday Sept. 10th. The invitation is meant to include the aged in the country, far and wide. Let all our friends stand ready to volunteer carriages and help even the feeblest to the house of God. Come, fathers and mothers, a hundred strong, and bless our altars by your presence. A cordial all the satisfaction they can obtain in committee will receive you, a happy congregation will welcome you, a sympathetic pastor will do his best to cheer and comfort you and God will richly bless you every one. Come one and all and let this day be a worthy tribute to our pioneers while we commune together regarding "The Indian Summer of Human Life." PASTER.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

Ten Months School-Water Works-Officers Elected.

All interest at the annual school meeting Monday night centered on the question of whether the recommen dation of the board for a nine month's term of school instead of ten as at present, should be adopted or not. When it came to a vote it was decided by a voice of 35 to 15 that ten months was the proper thing.

It was voted to raise $1,250 for the following purposes; Fuel, $250: janitor $300; incidentials, 500; library, $100; new floors, $100. From the incidental fund will be used enough to put water from the water works system into the two main halls of the building.

When it came to the election of new officers, C. L. Dubuar was elected to fill Dr. Burgess' place and Dr. J. M. Swift to succeed himself.

Northville had a $6,000 fire last week, but its new water works, which was tested for the first time in this fire could not quench the flames until the limit of the fire insurance was reached in damages.—Wayne Review.

Supposing this to be a fact, which it is not, we didn't let the whole town burn up, and even it only the "limit of the fire insurance was reached," what's the dif'; only so much the more money paid into the hands of Northville workmen for labor in rebuilding. The facts are the insurance was $6,500 and the damage settled for $4,500, which wholly covered the loss. There is no better water works system or fire protection in the world than Northville's and there is plenty of money here that says so, too.

"No Danish no t's mame has gained a higher reputation all over the world that that of Hans Christian Andersen. His life throughout was like a wonderful fairy tale. He was born of a very poor family in the little market-town of Gdense' in 1805. NEW PREFECT OF POLICE

He Is a Man of Long Experience and Great Energy and Determination. Although he is said-to be not at allpopular with the Faris municipal councilors there is no doubt of the eminent qualifications of M. Lepine, the new prefect of police, for his office.

He is a man of extraordinary energy and determination and has had long and valuable experience in police work.

M. Lepine made. his administrative debut in 1877 as sub-prefect at La Palisse, then he Palisse, then he was at Montpri-on, Langres, and Fontainebleau, whence partment L'Indre.

M. Loze the loss of the police prefecture.

The unpopularity of M. Lepine with the municipal council results from the energy he displayed as secretary general. The council fins always been opposed to the intrusion of the prefecture in the city saffairs.

M. Lepine was born at Lyons in 1846. He is of middle height, with lyng's eyes and a gray mustache, though the hair on his head has retained its dark color. He looks somewhat like a cay color. He looks somewhat like a cay alry officer. He was decorated with the military medal in 1871, af er having served in the army during the Franco-Prussian war, and it was while he was prefect of the Loire that he had to superintend the trial and are are already to superintend the trial and are are as the superintend the supe to superintend the trial and execution of the famous anarchist Ravachol.

complaints Against the Umpires. Tresident Young is having more than the court was closely divided on the question of the constitutionality of the law, and Justice. Harlan did not sit in the case, as be was abroad at the time the arguments were made. It is understood that he believes the law oppressive and unconstitutional. It is no new thing for the supreme court to reverse decisions in important cases affecting political questions. It at first decided that greenbacks issued after war time were unconstitutional. After President Grant appointed Justices Strong and Bradley this decision was reversed, the new judges siding with the old minority.

A MONTREAL couple have just finished a wedding journey that began a year ago and extended around the world. It must be embarrassing to have the honeymoon come to an end before the wedding journey's through.

OUR FROZEN ANCESTORS. Primeval Man May Yet Be Discovered in a Glacier. "Was he arboreal, and did he live upon fruit?" It has been suggested mild that he was driven from thes ways by the cold of that unpleasant time when glaciers covered the earth. The trees died and the fruits perished, and the ancestor, climbing down, began with rats and mice, and finished with cannibalism, to avoid perishing likewise. Also, he invented fire. Also, the cold made him use language. But this is rather an unsubstantial speculation, since Professor Prestwich, for instance, believes that there were men before the glaciers. At any rate, he tells us that at Sevenoaks, in the very old pre-glacial "plateau drift" above the downs, he has found instruments of flint.

It is not impossible that those heetle-browed persons, the paleolithic men, the remote men who chipped out weapons of unpolished stone and knew the uses of neither cattle, clay, nor corn, were less human looking than their skeletons would lead us to francherr sketcons would lead us to fancy. There is, a hint in one rude scratching on a bone that they were thickly hairy. There, is a remote chance yet at least it is a pleasant lancy to entertain—that we with our, own eyes may yet, see this hairy ancestor of ours in the flesh. Every one has heard of the entire mammoth, skin and flesh complete, frozen up inside of a Siberian river and enduring to our days. The flesh was so fresh that the dogs fell upon it and ate it without ill results.

Now, these preglacial men of Pro-fessor Prestwichmust have been contemporaries with those mammoths and they may have ventured, too since they hunted the mammoth, into high latitudes. The discovery of a refrigerated ancestor is by no means impossible.

It is necessary for any one who has read "The Frozen Pirate" to earb his imagination here. In all humanity we must home the encestor when ity we must hope the ancestor, when thawed, will be dead. Fancy the shock of Rip Van Winkle, intensified by 10,000 generations. If he is dead he must, of course, be promptly stuffed by all the best taxidermists in council, and placed in a command-ing position in the museum a relic and true portrait combined.

"I wish I were able to write all the go-to-sleep stories that are told-to the little folks all over the land-every night," said a tender-hearted mother to a Philadelphia Press, man the other day. 'It makes me pos-itively sad to think of the smell brains that are filled with distorted images, hodgoblins, ogres, giants, and the like; just as reason is losing its hold upon them for several hours. I don't think mothers realize what an influence upon a child's life, and even upon its life after it has ceased to be a child, is exerted by this apparently trifling matter of how it goes to sleep. Every night when I watch my thoughts that sweep over her brain, as her tired body begins to relax while her mentality seems to be briefly and proportionately stimu-lated, I tremble to think of the harm that could be done to her, or any child-for Mabel is not an abnormal child in any way—by an ignorant rune or thoughtless parent. The fact that every normal child cries, out for a bedtime story shows that its mental nature needs it just as its physical nature graves sweets. You want to give your child pure candy, so give him the unadulterated story. Leave out the fearful personalities, the grim and gigantic figures—these. even if they are properly vanquished by the gallant hero, are too distinct for the crib-side tale. Sit down by your little one's bed and speak low and evenly. Weave a fanciful but quiet story that tells of pretty fairies and birds and flowers and droning bees and loving little boys and girls—these woo sleep to the weary but active brain, not with the suffocating pressure of the gathering storm lit clouds of the sunset horizon that change from rosy pink to tender enwith lurid flashes, but with the soft veloping gray, and gradually deepen into restful gloom."

Managing Pattl.

Patti was to sing on a certain date at Bucharest, but at the last moment she declined to leave Vienna. It was too cold; snow everywhere; she would not risk catching her death of cold. M. Schurmann, the impresario, was in despair, until a brilliant inspira-tion came to him. Quickly he telegraphed to his advance-agent in the Roumanian capital: "At whatever cost, Fatti must receive an ovation at Bucharest station from the Italian aristocracy. Send me by return the following wire. The members of the Italian and Roumanian nobility are preparing to give Mme. Patri a magntificent reception. The ministry will be represented. Processions, torches, and bands. Telegraph the hour of arrival." The advanceagent carried out this instruction. and, when the telegram dictated to him over the wires arrived in Vienna, it was handed to Patti with the desired effect. "How charming!" murmure 2; "what time do we start?" -Argonaut.

The First Woman is the Greeks.

Pandora, according to the Greeks, was the first woman; her name signities "every gift," as she was supposed to have received a gift from each of the gods. Venus gave her beauty and fascination; Mercury inspired for with the desire of pleasing and taught her insinuating words; Minerva instructed her in all works of female skill.

The maiden gave a little scream as I turned. She apologized. Could I tell, her whereabouts Mr. Joseph Rupard's chambers were? I could not, for you may live seven

I should never forget anything you I should learn from you in half. higa the time I should learn from anyone else. ·That is a glerious idea, Maggie, he replied. I will You are so quick and clever, you are sure to make rapid progress. But where shall I see you? I cannot stay at Hatton after Lord Stanleigh is gone." Her beautiful eyes were looking into his her loyely rose flushed face nestled nearer to him, her hands met "Carlos," she whispered, 'do not leare me again. I love you so much that if anything partied us naw I should die. Do not leave me. I have a presentiment that if you do your mother will part us. Oh. Carlos. do not leave me now that I have learned to love you with all my heart!"

Do you love me with all your heart, Maggle? he asked.
Do I! She echoed and she was by no means reticent in her expressions of affection for him. He was young open to flattery and madly in fore. He refor everything except that he loved this beautiful girl who clung to him with such passionate prayer; and tears. He promised that he would never leave her again. Maggie Thave thought of a plan. "he said. It is perhaps stealing a march on dear mother; but all is fair kaid. march on dear mother; but all is fair in love. I will go away for six months; but I will marry you and take you with me. We will spend six months abroad and during that time I will finish your education. I will teach you all these little niceties which I suppose my mother considers. a part of a woman's high training. At the end of six months I will take fou to her and when she sees the im-provement she will be anxious for me to marry you. Then we can show her how true our love was how well it has stood the test, and she will enjoy the surprise.'

Maggie entered heart and soul into the plot. She will be seurprised Nothing could be better. see that you were right and she was wrong. She will see too that she has been mistaken about me."

=No difficulty stood in the way. Lord Stanleigh would be in Spain, and Lady Curew would never dream of such a thing as a secret marriages while as for John Waldron if he thought his daughter sale; he would not bestir himself. There was indeed. thought Sir Carlos, nothing to fear. Tell your father that you so not like country life," he said, and that you will try to get a situation in London. I can arrange for letters to be forwarded to him at intervals, and he will not know but that you are there. We will be married in London by special license. Maggie and I will take you to Paris. No, not to Paris; we should meet somany English there. We will go to Italy. We will have a beautiful little villa beside one of the lakes, and for six months we will be happy as no other couple has ever been. What do you couple has ever been. of the plan?!'

In ecstasy she throw herself into his arms. They talked for hours of the surprise it would be to Lady Carew when in the graceful plished daughter-in-law presented to her she should recognize Maggie.

They not only talked of the scheme, but they carried it out. Maggie told her father that she was tired of a country life and that she should get a situation in London. He was unsuspicious and easily deceived Carlos went nome and told his mother that he intended to spend the next six months in Italy, and that then he should have a surprise for her Everything favored Sir Carlos and Maggie's plan. They were married in London and started for Italy without a misgiving as to their future happiness.

Sir Carlos and Maggie had been married three days and as yet there had not been the faintest snadow of a cloud to mar their happiness. A thousand times each day Sir Carlos thanked Heaven that he had followed his own inclination. It was so sweet to teach his beautiful girl wife, so delightful to watch her rosy mouth with its graceful curves so blissful to be loved with such passionate devotion. Ah, if he had done as his mother said, if he had spent six months away from Maggie, he would have lost the very happiest time of his life! "If you want a woman to be trained in any particular way, train her yourself, thought Sir Carlos. He spent a week of perfect bliss. He had bought Maggie a magnificent trousseau as they passed through Paris. Every requisite and every luxury that was needed for a lady was there; and Maggie's delight had been boundless. However, it did rather jar upon him when, every time she glass in Europe at the present time, according to the latest statistics, is It annoyed Sir Carlos, but he did something like 1.850.008 square not like to tell her so. He began to yards. In the mirrors of to-day the find that his beautiful Maggie had a temper, and that she did not like to be found fault with. He had taken a luxuriously furnished villa on the shores of the Lake of Como—the Villa Molteni, belonging to the duke of that name, who had gone to the East. Sir Carlos had no trouble as to servants, for they had all been there for some years; and his time was all his own for making love and teaching. He could not help smiling at the array of books he had brought with him; but, Maggio rarely opened one of them.

Sir Carlos was perfectly happy for teaching her had died out. some rew days. He never wearied or watching Maggie and the more he her the more beautiful he her. How right he had been thought her. after all he reflected! A few little eccentricities were less than nothing when compared with her wonderful beauty.

One day Sir Carlos drove his wife to the city of Como. as she had ex-pressed a wish to see it. He ordered a recherche dinner at the hotel where they alighted; and it happened that among other things a dish of green peas was served.

"Peas" cried Maggie when she saw the dish "I am very fond of them. My sunt always said I could never have enough of them."

The continual mentioning of her aunt as the highest earthly authority began to aunoy him. He was fastidi-ous too, and did not-like to hear a lady speak with enthus...sm of eating. This was the least part of the shock he was destined to suffer. Maggie nelped herself most liberally to green peas; and presently her hus oand looking up suadenly, saw his beautiful wife using her knife instead of her fork

Maggie, he cried angrily, what are you doing

Her face flushed, but she looked deflantly at him.
'I know,'' she said.

But I must use my knife; I cannot help it _I am sure Miss Pierson was very particular in teaching us never to use a knife when eating peas; but look at this fork—I cannot eat peas with it."

Then go without them. It is un heard-of vulgarity. Never do tha ngain Maggie; it has horrified me."
And I am so fond of them," she answered peralently. What can it matter? There is no one here to see

"I am here" he said. "and you are here. You must respect my presence and your own; you should never do when you are alone what you would not do if any one was with you. The laws of good breeding are always the same whether we are alone or with

That is all nonsense!" cried Mag-

Her husband looked at her in dismay. Nonsense or not when you dine with me I shall expect you to observe the same etiquette at table that I ob-serve myself."

"You do not love me; if you did you would not find fault with me." said Maggie. There proved my love " he re torted; and she finished her dinner in sulky silence. This was the first disagreement

The second arose from a similar cause. Maggie had never been accustomed to wine, and she liked it perhaps a little too much. She would drink glass after glass—quite uncon-scious certainly, of the effect it would have—until she grew sleepy, and stupid. Her husband spoke to her about it kindly enough, but firmly; and she bitterly resented his interference He lound too that he could not correct her inaccuracies of speech, her mistakes in pronunciation. If there was an improvement one day she was worse the next: that which the glamour of love had hidden from him was glaringly apparent now.

He had not been three days in fall-ing in love; he had not been married three weeks before he discovered that his mother's verdiet was a true one. His love had been a young man's fancy. Time would have proved it to be so; but he had not waited for time

It was not many weeks before, the unhappy Sir Carlos saw that in the wife he had chosen there was no charm save that of her beautiful face. He had thought he would be able to orin her mind; it was already formed. He lancied he could educate her; she was already educated. He had be lie ed he could train her; she was al ready trained. The conviction came to him at last that his hasty, ill-advised marriage had been a fatal mistake; and he had to go through all the hor rors of his distillusion.

When Maggie perceived that he grew weary of her society she went through every phase of jealous fury. Nothing could have been more unfortunate for them than their isolation and soltitude, for if they had been surounded by friends and acquaintances they would have seen much less o each other.

Maggie was no companion for him: she never read, never opened either book or paper. She had no experience of life, save such at she had met with in her aunt's shop. If she told an incodote its coarseness and vulgarity disturbed him. When she had talked to him about her new dresses. about the impression she intended to make on Lady Carew, and her plans when she could live at Firholme, she had no more to say.

Her vulcarity jarred mon him a hundred times each day. She had no taste. She never looked well dressed: she wore inharmonious colors and spoiled the effect of the most artistic costume by wearing the wrong orna-

He had told her frequently that she had never looked so well in anything as she had looked in her pretty pink prints. Then Maggie would cry with age, believing that he meant to insuit

Sir Carlos knew nothing of this girl whom he had married save that she had a most beautiful face. He knew nothing of her character and disposition. She was sullen and obstinate when he was displeased her she made a point of sisting in that which annoved him and did her utmost to yev him, and as a rule, succeeding admirably.

He tired of her at last. He chafed at the long hours that he had to spend alone with her and hated the seclusion of the pretty villa that had once been to him like Paradise. He asked himself in wonder if he had been mad. What was he to do with this undisciplined, ill-regulated nature? All hope of training Maggie and would not even listen to him.

Miss Pierson told me that years ago," she would say to him when he corrected any glaring inaccuracy until he was ready to authematize Miss Pierson.

Perhaps his greatest horror was the continual use she made of the word genteel." and gave to some words a culiar accent for the same reason. Carlos began to detest the very sound of the word. She could be goodtempered when she chose; but when she preferred to be sulky or silent she could be equally disagreeable.
Sir Carlos now recognized the fact that although his wife was beautiful enough, she was coarse and vulgar. He had not believed that such a contradiction could exist

They went from bad to worse when Maggie found that his love was waning. She became jeasous; she was sure, she sold him, that he loved some one else; either he cared for one he had left in England or he had met some Italian girl. He never praised her now never called her beautiful," never said he loved her. What had she done? What did he mean by it? - while he carsed the obstinate folly which had ruined his life. "The Curse of the Carews" was upon of his own self will and it had brought him to such a pass, that he was tired of his life. He dared not go to Firholme. How could he take that sulkey, vulgar, uneducated woman home to Lucy Carew?

FEATHERS ON THE FARM. ossible Profit in Saving and Carefully

If the feathers from all sources on the farm should be carefully cared for and sold, suggests the Breeder and Horseman, they would amount to a neat little sum in the course of a year. While geese and duck feathers are preferable, yet there is a demand for chicken feathers when properly assorted. In doing this the shorter and softer feathers should be put by themselves and cured either in the sun and air or by artificial heat. It is very necessary to cure the green feathers in order to keep them from spoiling as the quills and yielding a bad odor that might ruin the whole lot.

We priced some pillows recently, in a furnishing house, and were considerably set back at the price asked for them. Three dollars for a couple of pillows that weighed only four pounds and the feathers were only second class at that. The best qual-ity of home-grown put up at a factory at Nashville, were quoted much high-er. The first quotation was on pillows made in Chicago, and simply guaranteed to emit no unpleasant olor. The feathers in them felt bunchy and harsh. Prime good feathers bring fifty to seventy cents a pound. White or Pekin duck feathers sell nearly as high to goose feathers. watered as the State of California where water fowl may have the ad yantages of the very best and most natural surroundings it would pay well to raise ducks and geese for their feathers and meat. The latter can certainly be sold at cost of production. which would leave the feathers produced as clear profit.

Wigs and Christianity.

A century and a half ago wirwearing was at its height, and little boys 4 or 5 years of age submitted to having their heads shaven preparatory to donning their false head-dresses. A Leydon professor—Rivers by name -shocked all churches by declaring that a Christian must necessarily wear a wig or be eternally lost. On the other hand Dr. Thiers, a cele-brated Catholic, assailed the wigwearing priests in a good-sized volume. The ancient Egyptians all wore wigs, and the early Christians from A. D. 427 to A. D. 317 considered a false head-covering a badge of distion to Tertullian who in vain declared them devices and inventions of the devil, and Clement of Alexandria who warned his hearers that when the sacred hands of the clergy were laid on their heads the blessing would not penetrate through the false hair.

Intense excitement was created here for a short period, about 7 o clock Mon day evening, by the cry of fire. Upon locating the spot it was found to be on the roof of Oscar Punches' old bakery. With prompt assistance the blaze was oon extinguished with but slight damage to the roof. The fire caught from a spark from the chimney.

The fourth and last quarterly confernce meeting was held at the Plymouth Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday, Rev. J. L. Hudson, presiding elder of the Detroit district being present. The following trustees were elected for this place and the Newburg church: Plymouth—T. C. Sherwood, E. P. Lombard, W. J. Stewart, C. G. Curtiss, Jr. and J. R. Rauch. Newburg-E. J. Norris, Wm. Smith, James King, Benj. assage and Clarence W. Ratler.

The Methodist quarterly conference nade a unanimous vote to the presiding elder requesting that Rev. N. N. Clark be returned to this charge another year. Mr. Clark has been a hard working and well loved pastor and it is hoped by all that we will see his face among us the essuing year. The labor of our presiding elder Rev. J. L. Hudson will cease when the annual conference meets at Defroit the 20th of this month. Probationers will be taken into full membership of the church, both here and at Newburg next Sabbath.

All the money issued by the governfamine, though there is as much of the medium of exchange in the country as ever. The thing to do to break the money stringency is for everybody to pay his bills, and let the banks have the surplus as usual. Hardly a bank has suspended since the first of January from insolvency. The trouble is the locking up of currency in small quantities. It is aggravated by putting off the payment of little accounts

The exercises given by the ladies foreign missionary society last Sunday evening was listened to by a very large audience. There were some fine selections in reading, rendered by Mrs. N. N. Clark and Miss Helena Chilson; also some recitations by the younger people Miss Dean, a former missionary to Persia, exhibited the different customs worn by the ladies of that country, after which she gave a lecture on the ways and doings of the people of Persia in general. It was very interesting and much enjoyed by all. The singing was by the Plymouth Glee Club.

The school meeting was held in the school building Monday evening with a good number in attendance, including a number of iady voters. Nathan Shy not being present L C. Hough was chosen chairman. The terms of C. A. Frisbee and Crawford Safford, trustees. had expired and they were re-elected for the coming year. There is $1,600 to be raised by tax for teachers salaries this year, $1,200 for the contingent fund Ovenshire Building, ## and $200 for insurance. The commitee on investigation for purchasing three acres of land back of school house was called upon and reported that or pricing the land they found that the owner of said property asked $700 per acre. It was thought that $2,100 was too much to put into a play-ground at the present day and the idea was aban doned and the committee discharged.

The following are the teachers for this year: Geo. Curtice, principal; Lina Durfee, preceptress; Delia Entrican, grammar dept; Gertrude Tafft, 2d intermediate; Minnie McGrann, 1st in termediate; Anna Smith, 2d primary Nellie Church, 1st primary. The at endance at the school last year was 388; this year the attendance is 402.

'Our Men's Meeting.

Teach by your lives.

Mrs. Parker accompanied her hus band here, and they were entertained by C. A. Hutton and family.

Any man who is young in keart, no matter how many his years, is welcome to our meeting. We gladly greet you.

Beware, brother, that you carefully note your daily conduct. Young men are going astray through the influence you are exerting over them.

Young man, where do you spend tur evenings? "As ye som, so shall w ap." You cannot gather grapes from thistles. The harvest time is coming; what does it agnify to you?

Sunday's meeting was the best one yet. Secretary Parker was present and conducted the service. The words spoken were full of power and came liome to the hearer's in a couvincing way and we trust with profit. In poins of attendance we went beyond any other record, there being 105 pres ent. Ed. George Carmody, of Caledonia, was arrested on a charge of deadiy assault preferred by Rob Kennedy, a saloon-keeper of that village. It is stated that Kennedy tried to stop a game of cards in his place, and was so badly kicked in the stomach and face by Carmody that his life was endangered. David Gillen, the old man who caught Charles Burton stealing potators from his potato field and shot him dead, was discharged by Justice Irwin at Atlanta. The evidence gave Burton a tough character. Settlers in the western part of the county are jubilant, and Gillen is regarded as a hero.

Great Catholic Congress at Chicag Very Interesting.

The Catholic congress which assembled in Chicago was a large gathering of people interested in the meeting and desiring to see the moted man who had been sent to the United States as the representative of Pope Leo-Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, of the New York supreme court made an address as the representative of Pope Leo-Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, of the New York supreme court, made an address of welcome to the high pontifical officials. Bishop Watterson, of Columbus, O., was the first speaker, and spoke of the social conditions which confront us. Before addressing the congress, Mgr. Satolli the papal delegate had been conducted to a great black towering chair of honor of curious ancient workmaship, said to have been brought to America in one of the expeditions of Columbus. Here with much majesty and with his mentor, Archbishop Ireland, on a lower chair beside him the papal delegate spoke in his own tongue, the Italian, and his words were after translated eloquently by Archbishop Ireland. Mgr. Satolissid the first great Catholic congress, the ideal and model for this and every such gathering was when Christ surrounded by the children of Israel delivered his great discourse on the mountain—the burden of which was "Seek first the kingdom of God and his justice and all other things shall be added unto you." The delegate said that here in America was the key of the future, and the pope had changed him to speak words of hope and blessing. "In the name of Leo XIII, I salute the great #American repub ic, and I call upon the Catholics of America to go great #American republic, and I call upon the Catholics of America to go forward, in one hand bearing the book of Christian truth and in the other the constitution of the United States."

BROOKLYN. Sopt. 3.—Rev. T. DeWitt Tal-nage in selecting a topic for to-day chase one of practical value to all chasses, viz: Week-Day Religion." The text is from Proverbs 3:6, the all thy ways acknowledge him."

There has been a tendency in all lands and ages to set apart certain days, places and occasions for especial religious service, and to think that they formed the retim in which religion was chiefly to act. Now, while holy days and holy places have their use, they can never be a substitute for continuous exercise of faith and prayer. In other words, a man cannot be so good a Christian on Sabbath that he can afford to be a worldling all the week. If a steam start for South me car-anora to be a worlding an the week. If a steamer start for Southampton, and sail one day in that direction, and the other six days sail in other directions, how long before the steamer will get to Southampton?

Just as soon as a man, will get to heaven who sails on the Sabbath day the storard that, which is good, and the toward that which is good, and the other six days of the week sails toward the world, the flesh and the deril You cannot eat so much at the Sabbath banquer that you can afford religious abstinence all the rest of the week

Genuine religion is not spasmodic does not go by fits and starts, is not at attack of chills and fever—now cold until your teeth chatter, now hot until your bones ache. Genuine religion marches on steadily up steep bills and along dangerous declivities. its eye ever on the everlasting hills crowned with the castles of the blessed. I propose, so tar as God may help me, to show you how we may bring our religion into ordinary life, and practice in common things—yesterday. to-day, to morrow.

And in the first place. I remark: W

And in the first place. I remark: We ought to bring religion into our ordinary conversation. A dain breaks and two or three villages are submerged, a South American earthquaker swallows a city and people begin of talk about the uncertainty of huse they are engaging in religious service, when there may be no religion at all. I have noticed that in proportion as Christian experience is shallow, men talk about funerals and deathbeds and hearses and tembstones and epitaphs. If a and tembstones and epitaphs. If a and tembstones and epitapps. It as man have the religion of the gospel in its full power in his soul, he will talk chiefly about this world and the eternal world and very little comparatively about the insignificant pass between this and that Yethow seldom it is that the religion of Christisa welcome theme? If a man full of the pospel of Christi goes into a religious circle, and begins to talk about sacret things, all the conversation is hushed, and things become exceedingly awkward. As on a summer day, the forests full of song and chirp and carol, mighty chorus of bird harmonies, every branch an orchestra—if a hawk appears in the sky, all the voices are hushed, so I have sometimes seen a social circle that professed to be Christian, silenced by the appearance of the great theme of God and religion. Now, my friends, if we have the religion of theirst in our soult we will talk Now, my friends, if we have the religion of Christ in our soul, we will talk about it in an exhibatant most. It is more refreshing than the waters, it is brighter than the sunshine; it gives a man joy here, and grepares him for averlasting, harminess. before the everlasting happiness before the throne of God And yet, if the theme of religion be in-the theme of religion be introduced into a circle, everything is sile icen-silenced unless, berhaps; an ared Christian man in the correr of the room, feeling that something ought to be said, puts one foot over the other and sighs heavily, and says, "Oh, yes; that's so?" My friends! the religion of Jesus Christ is, not something to be groaned about, but something to talk about and sing about, your face irradiated. The trouble is that men professing the faith of the gospel are often so inconsistent that gospel are often so inconsistent that they are afraid their conversation will not harmonize with their life. We can not talk the gospel unless we live by the gospel. You will often find a man whose entire life is full of inconsistencies filling his conversation with such expressions as, we are miserable six "the Lord bless you," interlarding their conversation with such phrases, which are mere canting, and canting is the worst kind of hyporisy. If a man have the grace of God infus heart dominant he can talk reare afraid their conversation will influs heart dominant he can talk religion and it will seem natural, and men, instead of being repulsed by it, will be attracted by it. Do you know that when two Christian people tank as they ought about the things of Christ and heaven God gives special attention, and he writes it all down. Malachi 3:16: "Then they that feared the Lord hearkened and heard, and a book of remembrance was written."

But I remark again. We ought to remembrance was written."

But I remark again: We ought to bring the religion of Jesus Christ into our ordinary employments. "Oh!" you say "that's a very good theory for a man who manages a large business, who has great traffic, who holds a great estate; it is a grand thing for bankers and for shippers, but in my thread and needle store, in my trimming establishment, in my insignificant wors of life, you cannot apply those grand gospel princaping. in my insignificant wors of life, you cannot apply those grand gospel principles." Who told you time? Do you know that a faded leaf on a brock's surface attracts God's attention as certainly as the path of a blazing san, and that the moss that creeps up the side of the rock attracts God's attention as the tops of the contracts. tion as certainly as the tops of Gregor pine and Lebanon cedar, and that the crackling of an alder under a cow's hoof sounds just as loudly in God's ear as the snap of a world's confagration, and that the most insignificant thing in your life is of enough importance to attract the attention of the Lord God

My brother, you cannot be called to do anything so insignificant but God will help you in it. If you are a fisherman, Christ will stand by you as he did by Simon when he dragged Gennesaret. Are you a drawer of water?
—he will be with you as at the well one, when talking with the Samari-tan woman. Are you a custom house officer?—Christ will call you as he did Matthew at the receipt of custom. The man who has only a day's wag a in his pocket as certainly needs relisticks; the muses have retreated before the emigrands ax and the trapper's gun and a Vermonter might go over the Alleghany and the Rocky Mountains add see neither an Oread nor a sylph. The grows where the gods used to dwell have been cut up for fire codd, and the man who is looking for great spheres and great scenes for action will not find them. And yet there are Alps to scare and trere are Hellesponts to swim, and they are in common life. It is absurd for you to say, that you would serve God if you had a great sphere. If you do not serve him on a small scale, you would not on a large small scale, you would not on a large scale. If you cannot stand the bite of a midge, how could you endure the breath of a basilisk?

Our national government does not think it belitting to put a tax on pins, and a tax on shoes. The individual taxes do not amount to much, but in the aggregate to millions and millions of collars. And I would have you, O Christian man, put a high tariff on every annoyance and vexation that comes through your soul. This neight not amount to nuch, in single cases, but in the aggregate it would be a great revenue of spiritual strength and satisfaction. A bee can she's honey even out of a nettie; and if you have the grace of God in your heart, you can get sweetness out of that which would otherwise irritate and annoy. A returned missionary told me that a company of adventurers rowing up the Ganges, were venturers rowing up the Ganges, were stung to death by flies that infest that region at certain seasons. I have seen the earth strewed with the curcasses of men slain by insect annoyance. The only way to get prepared for the great troubles of life is to conquer these small troubles of life is to common these small troubles. Suppose a solder should say, "This is only a skirmish and there are only a few exemice—I won't load my gun; wait until I can get into some great general engagement." That man is a coward, and would be a coward in any sphere. If a man does not serve any sphere. If a man does not serve any sphere. If a man does not serve itement, and call our friends around us, and they congratulate us; and we his country in a skirmish he will not in a Waterloo. came rolling down over the soul.

This brings me to another point.
We ought to bring the religion of Jesus Christ into all of our trials. If we have a bereavement if we lose our fortune, if some great trouble blast like the tempest, then we go to God for comfort; but yesterday in the little annoyances of your store, or office, or shop, or factory, or banking house did you go to God for comfort? You

My friends, you need to take the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ into the most ordinary trials of your life. You have your misfortunes, you have your anxieties, you have your gexations. "Oh!" you say, "they don't shape my character. Since I lost my hold since I lost my nowarty. I have

You go into an artist's studio. You see him making a piece of sculpture. You say, "Why don't you strike harder?" With his mallet and his chisel he goes click, click, click! and you can hardly see from stroke to stroke that there is any impression made upon the stone, and yet the work is going on. You say, "Why don't you strike harder?" 'Oh!" he replies, "that would shatter the statue; I must make it in this way stroke by stroke."

And he continues on by week and month until after a white every man that enters the studio is fascinated. Well, I fied God dealing with some man. He is shaping him for eternity. I say, "O Lord! why with one tremendous blow I the throne. And some one replied, "Ah! the best one has been left for you." Ulysses, said, "What's that?" and the reply was, "The body of a common man doing a common work, and for a common reward." A good and for a common reward. A good fable for the world, and just as good fable for the church.

But I remarks again: . We ought to But I remark again. We ought to bring the religion of lesus Christinto our ordinary blessings. Every author the President of the United States and the governors have proclemation, and we are called teacher in our church to give thanks to God for his roodness. But every day ought to best hanks giving day. We take most of the blessings of life as a matter of course. We have had ten thousand blessings this morning. for which we have foot thanked God. We must see a blin'l man led along by this dog before we learn what a grand thing it is to have one's eyesight. We must see a man with St. Vitus' dance before we learn what a grand thing it is to have the use of our physical energies. We must see grand thing it is to have the use of our physical energies. We must see some soldier crippied, limping along on his crutch, or his empty coat-sleeve pinned and before we learn what a grand thing it is to have the use of all our physical facultie. God.

Who thinks of thanking God for the water gushing up in the well, foaming in the cascade, laughing over the rocks, pattering in the shower, clapping its hands in the sea? Who thinks to thank God for that? Who thinks to thank God for that? Who thinks to thank God for the air, the fountain of life, the bridge of sunbeams, the path of sound, the great fan on a hot summer day? Who thinks to thonk God for this wonderful physical organism, this sweep of vision, this chime of harmony struck into the ear, this crimson tide rolling through arter es and veins, this drumming of the heart on the march of immortality?

I convict mysel, and I convict every one of you while I say these things, that we are unappreciative of the common mercies of life. And yet if they were withdrawn the heavens would withhold their rain and the earth would crack open under our feet, and famine and desolation and sickness and woe would stalk across the earth, and the whole earth would become a place of skulls.

O, my friends, let us wake up to an appreciation of the common mercies of life. Let every day be a Sabbath, every meal a sacrament, every room a holy of holies. We all have burdens to bear: let us cheerfully bear them. We all have buttles to fight; let us convaveously fight them.

re all have bittles to high; let us courageously fight them.

If we want to die right, we must live right. You go home and attend to your little sphere of duties. I will go home and attend to my little sphere of duties. You cannot do my work: I cannot do your work. Negligence and indolence will win the hiss of everlasting scorn, while faithfulness, will gather its garrands, and wave its scepter, and sit-upon its throne long after the world has put on ashes and effernal ages have begun their march. eternal ages have begun their march.

If a baking pewder is not uniform in strength, so that the same quantity will always do the same work, no one can know how to use it, and uniformly good, light food cannot be produced with it.

All baking powders except Royal, because improperly compounded and made from inferior materials, lose their strength quickly when the can is opened for use. At subsequent bakings there will be noticed a falling off in strength. The food is heavy, and the flour, eggs and butter wasted.

It is always the case that the consumer suffers in pocket, if not in health, by accepting any substitute for the Royal Baking Powder. The Royal is the embodiment of all the excellence that it is pessible to attain in an absolutely pure powder. It is always strictly reliable. It is not only more economical because of its greater strength, but will retain its full leavening power, which no other powder will, until used, and make more wholesome food. -
