THE PLYMOUTH RACES.

The Most Successful Races Ever Witnessed on This Track.

ONE GRAND ROUND OF SUCCESS.

Everybody Satisfied—the Attendance Was Large.

The Plymouth races opened last Thursday with a very fair attendance for the first day. They were without a doubt the best races ever in Plymouth. The program commenced at 2 o'clock and 15 minutes, with a 3:00 minute trot, which was a very exciting race. Fred Judson owned by Chas. Judson of Brighton, taking first money, and Allen K. owned by R. Kenney of Detroit, taking 2nd. Best time 2:31.

The next race was a 2:35 pacing race. Judge Sterling, owned by J. Dickering of Milford, took first in three straight heats. Mr. Elliott, owned by J. S. Carty of Detroit, took second place and Nellie G., owned by Geo. VanVleet, of Plymouth, taking third. The third heat of this race was a very pretty and exciting race between Judge Sterling and Nellie G. taking second in this heat.

Next on the program was John Scipio and his celebrated dog, Prince. Prince was feeling pretty gay, but did very nicely until about one quarter around, when he suddenly made up his mind to spill off the driver, which he accomplished very nicely; but was immediately recaptured and finished the rest of his part on the program.

The 5 furlong running race came next and was composed of ten entries. Medium of Detroit, owned by A. Tack, took first money; Fred W. of Flat Rock, owned by W. Walters, taking second, and Col. Bliss of Detroit, taking third. Time 1:04. Col. Bliss took first in the first heat, but injured his ankle and was unable to appear in the last two heats, but was given third place.

The number in attendance was estimated at 1,200 people.

FRIDAY.

The races commenced Friday p. m. with 3,000 people present. The free-for-all trot was first. Jim Smith of Detroit, owned by Wm. Smith, took first place; Huron Boy of Stockbridge, owned by J. L. Roch, took second, and Freddie J. of Detroit, owned by W. A. Bowers, third place.

The next was a 2:40 class novelty race. Mr. Elliott of Royal Oak, owned by J. S. Carty, took first; Skye of Lake View stock farm, was distanced; Dolly F. of Detroit, owned by John Finn, took second, and Baby Coaster of Detroit, owned by Jas. McCoil, took third.

The race between T. G. Richardson's pony and John Scipio's dog Prince was won by the dog and created considerable amusement. Time 2:02.

Col. Bliss took first money in the 6 furlong running race; Medium of Detroit, taking second, and Message of Detroit, third place. Time 1:20.

SATURDAY.

This day witnessed another big crowd but the gate receipts proved to be $10.00 short of Friday's. The free-for-all pace where $200 started the horse-men in the face was the great attraction. In this race Mitchell's Dolly W. and Jersey's Tootsie D. tied for first and the 1st and 2d prizes were put together, each taking half. Carty's Mt. Elliott winning 3d. Best time made was 2:24. These were all Detroit horses.

In the 2:33 trotting race there were six starters for the $125 prizes. In the second heat Gordon's Monroe and Sharon's Mason Boy were both "distanced." At the wind-up it stood Finn's John Rose 1, Hewett's Fellowcraft 2, Finn's Dolly F. 3, Kenney's Allen K. 3. Fellowcraft was a Milford horse, the others, Detroit. Best time 2:31.

There were three, (all Detroit), starters for the six-furlong running race and they finished as they started: Spear's Col. Bliss 1, Tack's Medium 2, DeLish's Message 3. Best time 1:21.

And thus ended the greatest and most successful races ever witnessed in the village of Plymouth. A credit to the town and the management of the association.

Another Sunday Excursion to Detroit.

People seem to like to go to Detroit on Sunday. The last excursion was a success. We want to try it again, and will run another on Sept. 24, for the benefit of those who did not go last time, as well as those who want to go again. Train will leave Plymouth at 10:10 a. m., arriving at Detroit at 11:30 a. m. Returning, leave Detroit at 7:00 p. m. Round trip rate 50 cents. GEO. DEHAVEN, G. P. A.

AT HYMEN'S ALTER.

A Very Pretty Wedding Tuesday Evening.

The marriage of Miss Jennie B., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blair of Dunlap street, to Mr. A. L. Rich of Lansing occurred at the bride's home, 6:30 Tuesday evening in the presence of about fifty invited guests. At the appointed moment the couple stepped under an overhanging arch of lace and flowers and Rev. P. Ross Parrish, after a few well chosen remarks, pronounced the words that made them one.

The wedding was a very neat affair and the handsome couple added grace to the occasion. The bride wore a dress of blue albatross trimmed with cream silk lace, en train, and carried cream tea-roses. The presents were numerous, useful and pretty. The supper served was delightfully enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich left mid showers of rice, mingled with good wishes, on the 9 o'clock train for Lansing. They will return here Sunday or Monday and remain until the last of the week when they leave for their new home, Hudson, Ind., where Mr. Rich is in the employ of the Wabash railway.

Among those present from a distance were Mrs. L. Rich, mother of the groom, Ed. Blair and wife Lansing; Mr. and Mrs. Derke, Ypsilanti; Miss Canfield, Kalamazoo.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

What Three Well Known Y. G. C.'s Say.

Among the Yarnall-Gold cure patients who are just about finishing their treatment this week, is a lawyer and two physicians; one a graduate of the Dwight Institute, one of the Michigan Keeley and the other started on the Dunlap cure. The RECORD, to learn views of various treatments, asked the gentlemen how they thought the Yarnall cure compared with the others. "The Yarnall," said the Blackstone man, "is the cure." I took the Dwight treatment one year ago. The first ten days I was there were the sickest ten days of my life. I thought I would die. I had been a hard drinker and the taking away of the liquor with nothing to particularly stimulate went hard with me. The beauty of the Yarnall treatment is the personal supervision of the attending physicians. I feel better after a three week's treatment here than I did when I left Dwight. "No, I have never been sick here." "Yes, you have the prettiest village in the state."

A leading physician of another town said: "I had taken a partial treatment of the Dunlap cure, and while I have no reason whatever to disparage that treatment still I do not think it can compare with the Yarnall. Before coming to Northville, I investigated nearly every treatment in the world, and I was, as I am now, fully satisfied that there is none to compare with the Yarnall." "Oh, Northville is a lovely village. We find the people very hospitable indeed."

A well known physician from one of our neighboring cities said: "I was one of last patients to receive treatment at the Keeley in this village just as they moved to Ypsilanti. I returned home. I was obliged to take stimulants in order to keep up at all. For some reason the cure didn't seem to cure me and I gradually went to drinking again. I have been here about five weeks now and feel that I am thoroughly cured. I felt better after being two weeks at the Yarnall this time than when I had finished at the other institute. In my estimation there is no comparison whatever between the two treatments. In my city there are eleven gold cure graduates. Six from the Keeley treatment are back drinking again, five from the Yarnall are straight as a string." "This village? Oh, you know I had been here before, and I really hate to leave. Such a pretty village and the people are so sociable."

These statements were given the RECORD in an off-handed manner by these gentlemen during a conversation and we give them as a matter of interest and news. The RECORD is only too glad that it may with much pride point to the wonderful gold cure.

An unknown philanthropist announced through a friend that he will present a four-sided town clock to Northville if the citizens will hoist it into the steeple of the Methodist church and light it with electricity. Thus people while marking time are reminded to prepare for eternity. —Adrian Press.

This is a very timely and striking remark on the part of the Press.

The Vassar Times says that Geo. Burgess of that place has lost a white pig. Bet a dollar that is the same one we saw a mile east of here one day last week. It answered the description exactly. —Holly Advertiser.

Pig, exactly answering this description, was seen half a mile south of here yesterday. We raise Bloccum's bet four shillin'. Dollar and a half it was George's pig as per Times' describe.

And now Northville proposes to have public tick. The last RECORD contains an offer from a citizen too modest to allow his name to be known, to place in the Methodist church tower of that village a town clock, free of all expense, provided the citizens agree to make a few changes in the tower, light the dials at night and take proper care of the clock. If Northville ever stands back, and lets any other town pass it, just tell us about it, will you? —Ann Arbor Courier.

In comparison with these latest honors the premiums they have received at local fairs fade into insignificance. —Milford Times.

THAT plot to reinstate monarchy in Hawaii was a deserved fizzle. There is still a second-hand throne for sale in Honolulu, but it must not be used on the premises.

The financial distress in New York has reached a pass that almost baffles comprehension. A pawnbroker failed the other day, and people are even looking with suspicion on the most prominent faro banks.

SEVERAL persons have of late laid stress on the point that ministers work Sundays for pay. Clergymen can easily ward off further attacks of this sort by preaching free and raising rates on the midweek prayer meeting.

It is not true that a reward has been offered for a woman's scrap book that does not contain the poem that begins:

"Beautiful faces and those that wear—but if it were, the chances are that the reward would never have to be paid."

They figure in Europe that the world's production of wheat this year will be 2,279,040,000 bushels, and yet Europe will need all she can buy of us to provide the needed food supply. There is a goodish number of mouths to feed in one country or another.

ENGLISHMEN have long accused Americans of being too careless of human life. The fearful railroad catastrophes which so frequently happen in this country very seldom happen in England. If they can be avoided there, can they not be avoided here?

The bankruptcy of the Nicaragua Canal company should stimulate the effort to have the canal constructed as a government enterprise. Now that the company is in the hands of a receiver it can hardly secure very high figure on its vested rights. The government should be able to buy out its concessions on reasonable terms and carry the enterprise through.

FRANCE is playing the roll of a swash-buckler, and if she doesn't have a care some nation with a big navy and a big army will bring her to book. With her high-handed usurpation in Siam, her killing 400 Italians through the agency of a French mob, and her recent open defiance to Great Britain by further Siam encroachments she may be able to get what she does not want. It looks much as if war were played out only theoretically.

Tax folding bed can be robbed of all its terrors by the simple process of securely fastening it open when it is not desired to close it up. No nicely adjusted weights or springs that operate with a touch, even though the touch is inadvertent will answer. If folding bed manufacturers were as responsible as sleeping car companies one case of smothering would have resulted in the adoption of a device which would have prevented effectively any second catastrophe from the unexpected closing of this useful economizer of household space.

It is customary for English newspapers and magazines to sneer at what they are pleased to term the recklessness of American newspapers in their statement of fact. These flings may be warranted in some instances, but no American newspaper makes mistakes in geography which could be avoided by looking into a gazetteer or an atlas. The last number of the Pall Mall Budget, a cheap, popular illustrated London weekly, speaking of the yacht Narahoe, which has been participating in the Covés regatta, declares that "the name Narahoe is that of an American state." This is nothing unusual, however, for the Budget, which a few months ago announced that Utah was the only one of the American "states" that had refused to issue paper money!

The beautiful city of Charleston seems to have apportioned to it more than an ordinary share of misfortune. It is but a few years since a devastating earthquake so far laid it waste that the generous people of the whole nation came to its citizens' relief. And now the fearful cyclone that swept upward from the Gulf, carrying destruction along the Atlantic coast, seems to have spent its utmost fury upon the same spot. Hundreds of lives and millions of dollars have disappeared before the breath of the storm, and again a brave-hearted people must set to work to repair their shattered fortunes. Their injuries this time are less severe and lasting, for the worst of the tempest was concentrated upon the shores and low-lying islands, distant from the busy center of industry and the store houses of capital.

CHINESE smuggling across our Canadian border has received a temporary check. But it is doubtful if 3,000 miles of boundary line can be so guarded that this kind of smuggling can be entirely prevented. When Canada is annexed all these problems will settle themselves.

It has been many years since Lew Wallace brought out "Ben Hur," and not until recently has he brought out another book. It is better to write a few books worth reading than a hundred that are good for nothing.

THE MATE WAS STOPPED.

AS SHORT AS IF CORBETT HAD COUNTERED ON HIM.

Cissy McDowell's Ghost It Was Who Sailed With Him on the John E. Burton Brig and Came Back to Keep Him From More Murder.

When I was a little over 17 I shipped from this port on a vessel well known to Philadelphians, particularly the younger ones, says a Times writer. I hadn't been aboard her two hours when I got it straight that I had best give a wide, sheer to Mr. Andrews, the mate, for he'd give a man double duty for nothing at all, sock him in the brig for half as much and when his hellishness took that bent him him about with fists or feet or even belaying pins or anything his head came to. There were some pretty black spots in his history, my mates told me, and one was of a man he'd laid out several years before on the John E. Burton brig by knocking him down and splitting his skull against a ring-bolt. The poor devil had come athwart the ugly mate's bawse by being dumb about orders. Andrews was tried and got off through lack of evidence against him, but you can't run up against a sailorman to-day who ever heard of the case, but what'll tell you the mate's a murderer.

I was at the wheel one night in the first watch. The air was warm and springy and the moon and stars were out pretty bright, except for a few scudding clouds with their bellies full of showers. About half an hour after four bells, just as I was trying to whistle and think of something pleasant, the pucker came out of my lips and my heart plopped down like a sounding-lead when I heard screams. They were close by, like they were under the vessel's counter and mixed with them, was another sound like a drowning man gurgling in his throat and trying to get out words that went the wrong way.

The noises stopped all of a sudden and when I raised my head my eyes looked into the eyes of a man I knew was not of our crew, though he was dressed like a common sailor with a brown Tam O'Shanter on his head and a red shirt on. His position was the queer thing, though. I couldn't see his feet and legs and his arms seemed pressed close to his sides, but the upper half of his body stuck out from behind the mizzenmast at an angle of almost forty-five degrees. He had blue eyes, straggly, uncurried looking whiskers, and very broad shoulders. I'd pick him anywhere for a North Scotman. He was looking straight at me with a sad, pitiful expression and I stood looking back till I read in his eyes that he would give the world to speak, but for some reason couldn't. But even then I wasn't satisfied there wasn't some hokey-pokey going on, so I put the wheel in backets and went forward to get Dan Blake, mate of my watch, to take it for a few minutes while I squinted about. As I went forward the figure swung slowly round the mast, keeping its eyes upon me till I turned my back on it to speak to Dan. I got him to take the wheel on an excuse and climbed the rigging for a squint down the mizzenmast, but when I squinted the thing was gone and neither it nor the noises came again.

First thing next day I had to slush down the foretopmast, and, in going up the rigging, I clumsily upset a pint or so of oil on the freshly holly-stained deck. The mate bore down on me in a jiffy, cursing and damning while I cleaned the mess up. He kept it up as I climbed the rigging again, and yells "You cursed young son of a— If you do that again I'll brain you!"

I'm pretty patrician, but this was too much for me, and, almost before I could think what I was doing, I turned my bucket upside down and dumped the whole business on the clean deck below. He went clear crazy with rage and started up the opposite ratlines after me.

"Hold on, Mr. Andrews," I said. "You needn't come up! I'm coming down."

When I got down he was frothing like a mad dog and came at me with an iron belaying-pin. There was deadly murder in his soul as surely as it was in his eyes, and I knew it and didn't care as I waited for him with five inches of my clasp knife to stick through his cowardly heart, for mine was like a flint for that word about my mother. On he came till he was well within a fathom of me and I was just leaning to spring on him and give him the steel, when we both suddenly stopped short. Why he stopped I don't exactly know. Why I did was because a large, irresistible hand at the end of a very strong arm put its flat palm against my breast and held me, brace as I did with all my strength against it. I could feel the heel of it, the ball of the thumb and every outspread finger—but see nothing.

I stopped striving against it when I saw the change in Andrews' face. He had turned white as death with the body sweat starting out all over. He was looking my way, but not at me—apparently over my right shoulder—with such a look of fearful horror as I hope to never see again on a human face. Slowly his arm came down, the pin dropped from his fingers and he backed away, with his staring look still over his shoulder, in such an awful agony of terror that I actually pitied the man who, only a minute gone, had it in heart to kill me. Finally he got to the companionway, down which he stumbled or fell, and that was the last I saw of him on board or since.

FOSSIL FORESTS.

Silicified Stumps of Trees Which Bloomed Thousands of Years Ago.

Three weeks ago, on the city river front, I ran against a mahogany-faced, turtle-backed Scotch sailorman, who, I discovered, had been with Andrews aboard the John E. Burton.

"Did you know the man the mate killed?" I asked him.

"Ay, I mind him well," said he. "Poor Clancy McDowell—a broad-shouldered lad, with fussy red whiskers and a wistful look in his blue eyes."

So I make no more doubt about it than I do I'm living that it was the ghost, spook, wraith, spirit or whatever you like to call it of poor Clancy that saved me that day from being killed or killing.

These standing silicified stumps and fallen trees were found varying in diameter from one to seven feet, says a writer in the Popular Science Monthly. Two sections of trees were found so perfect that the rings of annual growth throughout could be counted, except a few, fifteen or twenty, near the heart and bark. One tree measuring three feet in diameter, had 222 rings of growth; and another of three feet five inches in diameter, had 243—this without any allowance for a few missing rings at the center and toward the bark. The larger of these trees was only about half the size of the largest seen. Many were found varying in diameter from five to seven feet, but none of this size was seen exposing the rings throughout the entire section. Judging from the closeness of the rings in certain well-preserved portions of these larger trees many of them must have been at least 500 years in attaining their growth. If the rings were truly annual, taking one-half this number, 250 years, as the more probable age of the successive forests at this point, it is seen that the earliest of these trees were living more than 2,000 years before the last, during which time there were alternating conditions of growth and accumulation of volcanic material. This estimate makes no allowance for the time necessary for the formation of a soil upon the volcanic material, which at first sight would seem necessary for the support of such a vigorous vegetation. It is not probable, however, that any considerable time was necessary for this purpose, for, with rare exceptions, each succeeding forest took root and began to grow very promptly after the destruction of its predecessor. In most cases the "destroying" flood consisted of mud, ashes, conglomerate, and other volcanic material, which formed an excellent basis for vegetation, and it was doubtless covered with a luxuriant growth as soon as it was dried or cooled sufficiently, and this would require only a short time.

Early Mention of Niagara Falls.

The first historical notices of Niagara Falls are given in Lescaur's record of the second voyage of Jacques Cartier, in the year 1535. On the maps published to illustrate Champlain's discoveries, date of maps either 1613 or 1614, the falls are indicated by a cross, but no description of the wonderful cataract is given; and the best geographical authorities living to-day doubt if explorer mentioned ever saw the falls. Brin-son's work is the only one, notwithstanding, standing. Father Hennepin is believed to have written the first description of the falls, that was ever penned by one who had personally visited the spot. The editor of "Notes for the Curious," owns a map, dated 1657, which does not figure either the Great Lakes or the falls—St. Louis Republic.

OUR MEDALS GO ABROAD.

STATE DEPARTMENT REWARDS FOREIGNERS.

People Who Care for Our Sailors Earn the Gratitude of Uncle Sam—An Annual Appropriation of Five Thousand Dollars.

The state department sent abroad a few days ago the most ornate set of tributes ever awarded to those who have saved the lives of American sailors in foreign waters. They consisted chiefly of watches and medals of gold and silver. But there was one vase among them which was to go to Abdol Kachman Modlam, Shah, sultan of Livigga, Rhio, which was a gorgeous affair, well worthy of the great nation which presented it.

The state department chooses for itself the form of reward and the chief clerk chooses the gifts which seem to him most appropriate to the service rendered. There is only one limitation on their selection. If they take the form of medals, they must be struck off at the mint in Philadelphia. There is a die at the Philadelphia mint, designed by Morgan, from which all of these medals, whether gold or silver, are struck. The engraving appropriate to each medal is done by a Washington engraver.

The design of the medal is very quiet but very effective. The only faulty feature of it is the cross-bar. On this cross-bar, which is a simple oblong, is the inscription: "E. Pluribus Unum." The letters are in relief. Just at the middle of the bar is a small and rather squat shield which covers part of the word "Pluribus." The medal suspended from the cross-bar on a swivel is perfectly round. The obverse has the head of Columbia in the center surrounded by the words "Presented by the President of the United States."

These medals are of silver when they are intended for seamen and of gold when they are to be sent to officers, says the Philadelphia Times. Whether of gold or silver, they are engaged in morasses and rest on dainty pads covered with maroon satin. They are kept in a steel safe in the inner office of the chief clerk, until the time fixed for shipping them abroad. In that safe to-day are several medals awarded by the state department but never delivered. Our representatives abroad were unable to find those for whom they were intended. One of these medals was designed for one of those who rendered services to the survivors of the ill-fated Jeannette expedition. It is not likely that these medals will be delivered. They will probably be turned back to the mint and melted over for use in making other medals, and the state department will be credited with their value.

The state department has to pay the treasury department for each of these medals. Many of the departments in Washington have running accounts with each other.

Sometimes the presents sent by the state department are in the form of money. These are to poor seamen to whom the money would be of much greater use than a vase or medal.

Very often the gifts which are sent by the department are gold or silver watches. Sometimes they are very fine field glasses or marine glasses. These are not American, but are of the best French make.

The award of these medals and other tributes of appreciation is made on the recommendation of the chief of the consular bureau at the suggestion of our ministers and consuls abroad. When a consular report shows that an American vessel has been shipwrecked in foreign waters and that aid has been rendered to her sailors by any one, the chief of the consular bureau reports the circumstance to the chief clerk of the department, if he thinks the case a worthy one, and the chief clerk then makes a selection of a medal or watch or whatever seems to him appropriate. This gift is carefully packed and sealed at the state department and shipped to our representative at the court of the country of which the beneficiary is a citizen. Our minister takes the gift to the foreign office, and there presents it with much formality and a little speech. The chief of the foreign office receives it and acknowledges it formally, undertaking to have it delivered to the person for whom it is intended. Sometimes it has to be sent to another part of the world. Not long ago some American sailors were rescued from drowning by the people of an island over which the Netherlands had jurisdiction. And after our minister to the Netherlands had presented the gifts intended for these people they had to be shipped across the ocean again before they reached their destination.

In every case a receipt is taken, and this goes back through the same channel until it reaches the state department. Either the receipt or the gift must be returned.

A Hint to Inventors.

Professor Bell thinks the time occupied by inventors in working out the problem of aerial navigation by the usual inflated gas bags and methods of steering them is wasted. He thinks a feasible means of propelling and directing an airship would be by a kind of trolley system where the rod would hang down from the car to the stretched wire instead of extending upward. He recommends the idea to inventors.

"They don't like to tantalize the horses by saying 'Hay!'"—Harper's Bazar.

THE BATTLE IS OURS.

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES FROM THE GOSPEL OF KINGS.

The Warning of the World's Deliverance. "And the Children of Israel Pined Before Them Like Two Little Flocks of Kids."

BROOKLYN, Sept. 10.—This forenoon Rev. Dr. Talmage preached to a large audience in the Brooklyn Tabernacle. The keynote of the service was one of gladness. Many of the audience were here during the summer and had returned for this service. The pastor commented on passages of Scripture depicting the morning of the deliverance. The subject of the sermon was: "The Battle Ours," the text being 1 Kings 18:26: "And the children of Israel pined before them like two little flocks of kids."

With thirty-three kings drunk in one tent, this chapter opens. They were allies plotting for the overthrow of the Lord's Israel. You know that if a lion roars a flock of kids will shiver and huddle together. One lion could conquer a thousand kids. The battle opens. There are a great multitude of Syrians under Ben-Hadad, strong as lions. The Israelites are few and weak, like two little flocks of kids. Who beats? The lions, of course. O no, the kids. For it all depends whether God is on the side of the lions or the kids. After the battle, one hundred thousand Syrians lay dead on the field, and twenty-seven thousand attempting to fly came along by a great wall, which toppled and crushed them to death.

Which was the stronger weapon—great Goliath's sword or little David's sling? David had five smooth stones from the brook. He used one, and striking down Goliath. He had a surplus of ammunition; he had enough to take down four more giants if they had appeared in the way. It all depends upon whether God is on the side of the shepherd boy or on the side of the giant.

There have been many in our day who have felt that the religion of Christianity is falling back, and that in fifty years it will be extinct. They found their opinion on the assumed fact that the Bible is not as much of a book as it used to be, and that portions of it are repulsive to the people. I reply by asking, which one of the publishing houses of New York, Philadelphia, London or Chicago is publishing the Bible to-day with the omission of a single verse or chapter? Are not our publishers intelligent men? And would they, contrary to their financial interests, continue to publish the Bible without the omission of a single chapter or a single verse if it were becoming an unpopular book and the people did not want it? If Harpers, or Putnam's, or Scribner, or Lippincott should publish a Bible with the omission of one chapter they would not sell ten copies in ten years. The fact that throughout Christendom there are hundreds of printing presses printing the word of God without the omission of a chapter or a verse, proves that the Bible is popular, and that it is being more and more being printed in this decade than in any other decade, proves that the Bible is increasing in popularity.

I go through the courts of the country. Wherever I find a judge's bench, or a clerk's desk, I find the Bible. By what other book would they take solemn oath? What is very apt to be among the bride's presents the Bible. What is very apt to be in the trunk of the young man when he starts for city life? The Bible. Voltaire predicted that the Bible during the nineteenth century would become an obsolete book. Well, we are pretty nearly through the nineteenth century, the Bible is not obsolete yet; there is not much prospect of its becoming obsolete, but I tell you that that is the very room in which Voltaire wrote that prediction—some time ago was crowded from floor to ceiling with Bibles for Switzerland. Suppose the congress of the United States should pass a law that no Bibles should be printed in the United States. If there are 30,000,000 grown men and women in the country there would be 30,000,000 people armed against such a law. But suppose the congress of the United States should pass a law that Macaulay's History, or Charles Read's novels should not be read—could you get half as large an army? In other words there are, as you know and I know, a thousand men who would die for their Bibles, where there are fifty men who would die for any other book. The fact that there are now more Bibles being printed than ever before, that publishers find it a financial interest for them to continue the publication of the Bible, proves that this book is still the most popular book on the planet.

But, say those who are antagonistic to Christianity, falling back, from the fact that the church is not as much respected as it used to be, and is not as influential. In reply to that with the statistic that one denomination—the Methodist church—according to a statistic given me by one of their bishops, dedicates on an average a new church every day in the year. Three hundred and sixty new churches in one denomination in a year, and over a thousand new churches built every year in this country. Does that look as though the church were falling in its power, and were becoming a worn-out institution? Around which institution in our communities gather the most ardent affections? The postoffice, the hotel, the court, the city hall, or the churches? Why, when our old tabernacle was burning, there were hundreds of men standing in the streets who never went to church, tears raining down their cheeks. It is because the church of God stands nearer the sympathies of the American people than any other institution. Men may caricature the church and call it a collection of hypocrites; but when their children are swept off with the diphtheria, for whom do they send? To the postmaster, to the attorney-general, to the alderman, or to the pastors of the churches? And if there be not room for the obsequies in the private house, what building do they select? The Academy of Music, the hotel, public hall, court house? No, the churches, and if they want music on the sad occasion, do they select the Marseillaise Hymn, or "God Save the Queen," or our own grand national air? No; they want the old hymn with which we sang their old Christian mother to sleep; they want the Sunday school hymn that their little girl sang the last Sabbath afternoon she was out before she was seized with the awful sickness that broke father's heart and mother's heart. Oh, you know as well as I do—I shall not dwell on it any longer—the church of God, instead of being a worn-out institution, stands nearer the sympathies of the people than it ever did and eclipses all other institutions.

But our antagonists go on and say that Christianity is falling back, in the fact that infidelity is bolder now and more blatant than it ever was. I deny the statement. Infidelity is not near so bold now as it was in the days of our fathers and grandfathers. There were times in this country, when men who were openly and above-board infidels and antagonistic to Christianity could be elected to high office. Now, let some man wishing high position in the state proclaim himself the foe of Christianity and an infidel, how many states of the Union would he carry? Not many counties; how many wards in Brooklyn? Not one.

Ah! my friends, infidelity in this day is not half as bold as it used to be. It comes now, it is apt to come under the disguise of rhetoric or fantastic sentimentality. I know if a man with great intelligence, does become an infidel, and begins an attack on Christianity, it makes great excitement. But of course it does not lead to the conclusion, weak-kneed Christians come to the conclusion, that everything is going overboard because some man of strong intellect assails Christianity.

If a man jumps overboard from a Cunard steamer, he makes more excitement than all the five hundred passengers who continue in the berth of or on the decks, but does that stop the ship? Does that wreck all the five hundred passengers? It makes great excitement when a man leaps from a platform or a pulpit into infidelity, but does that hinder our glorious Bible from taking its millions into the skies? I tell you infidelity is not half as bold now as it used to be.

Do you suppose such things could be enacted now as were enacted in the days of Robespierre, when a shameless woman was elected to be goddess, and she was carried on a golden chair to a cathedral, and the people bowed down to her as a divine being, and burned incense before her—she to take the place of the Bible and of Christianity, and of the Lord Almighty? And what ceremony was going on in the cathedral, in the chapels, and in the corridors, adjoining the cathedral, scenes of drunkenness and debauchery and obscenity, such as the world had never seen. Could such a thing as that transpire now? No, sir. The police would swoop on it, whether in New York or in London. Infidelity is not half so bold now as it used to be.

But say our antagonists, "Christianity is falling back because science, its chief enemy, is triumphing over it." Now, I deny that there is any war between science and revelation. There is not a fact in science that may not be made to harmonize with the Bible. Said Hugh Miller, so said Joseph Henry, so said Prof. Huxley, so said Prof. Silliman, so said Prof. Mitchell, Joseph Henry, the leading scientist of America, better known as a theorist in the royal societies transatlantic than any other American, lived and died a believer in the religion of Jesus Christ. Joseph Henry knew all the facts of geology, and yet believed the book of Genesis. He knew all the facts of astronomy, and yet believed the book of Joshua, the sun and moon standing still. Joseph Henry knew all the anatomy of man and fish, and yet believed the book of Jonah.

If the scientists of the day were all agreed, and they came up with solid front to attack one Christianity, perhaps they might make some impression upon it; but they are not agreed. It is often said that the religiousists are failing in our advocacy of Christianity because we differ in our theology. I tell you we do not differ inside the church in theology half as much as they differ outside the church in science. If they reject our religion because we differ on some minor points, we might just as well reject science because the scientists differ; but as far as I can tell, the religiousists are failing in our advocacy of Christianity because we are antagonistic to each other, and as far as I can tell, it is going to be a war between telescope and telescope. Leyden jar and Leyden jar, chemical apparatus and chemical apparatus. They do not agree on anything.

Do you suppose that this Bible theory about the origin of life is going to be overthrown by men who have different theories—fifty different theories—about the origin of life? And when Agassiz comes out and puts both feet on the doctrine of evolution, and says in regard to many scientists, "I say that these young naturalists are adopting as theories in their things, which have not passed under observation." Agassiz saw what we all see—that there are men who talk very wisely who know but very little, and that just as soon as a young scientist finds out the difference between the feelers of a wasp and the horns of a beetle, he begins to patronize the almighty, and go about talking about culture as though it were spelled c-u-l-t-u-r-e-c-u-l-t-u-r-e.

It makes me sick to see these literary fops going down the street with a copy of Darwin under one arm and a case of transfused grasshoppers and butterflies under the other, talking about the survival of the fittest and Huxley's Protoplasm, and the Nebular Hypothesis, and talking to us common men as though we were fools. If they agreed in their theories and came up with solid front against Christianity, I say perhaps they might make some impression; but they do not agree. Darwin charges upon Lamarck, Wallace upon Cope, Herschel even charged upon Ferguson. They do not agree about the gradation of the species; they do not agree about embryology. What do they agree about?

Herschel wrote a whole chapter on what he calls the "Errors in Astronomy." La Place says that the moon was not put in the right place; that it had been put four times the distance from our world, there would have been more harmony in the universe. But Lionville comes up just in time to prove that the Lord was wise, and put the moon in the right place. How many colors woven into the light? Seven, says Newton. Three, says David Brewster. How high is the Aurora Borealis? Two and a half miles high, says Liss. One hundred and sixty-five miles, says Twing. How far is the sun from the earth? Seventy-six million miles, says Lacaille; eighty-two million miles, says Humboldt; ninety million miles, says Henderson; one hundred and four million miles, says Mayer. Only a little difference of twenty-eight million miles! These men say we do not agree in religion. Do they agree in science? Have they come up with solid front to assault our glorious Christianity? Even mathematicians do not agree. Taylor's Logarithms are found to have faults in them. The French metric system has wrong calculations. Talk about exact sciences! They are inexact. As far as with my little knowledge I have been able to explore the only exact sciences, Christianity, there is nothing under which you can so appropriately write, "Quod erat demonstrandum."

Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict? The court or the clerk says to the jury, having been out all night, on coming in, have you agreed on your verdict? Not many counties; how many wards in Brooklyn? Not one. If they say, "No, we have not agreed," they are sent back to the jury room. If one jurymen should say, "I think the man is guilty of murder," and another jurymen should say, "I think he is guilty of manslaughter," and another jurymen should say, "I think he is guilty of assault and battery with intent to kill," the judge would lower his patience and say, "Go back to your room now, and make up a verdict agree on something."

Well, my friends, there has been a great trial going on for centuries and for ages, between Christianity, the plaintiff, versus Christianity, the defendant. The scientists have been impaneled and sworn on to the jury. They have been gone for centuries, some of them, and they come back, and we say, "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" They say, "No, we have not agreed." Then we say, "Go back for a few more centuries, and then come in and see if you can agree, see if you can render a verdict." Now, there is not the meanest prisoner in the Tombs, court who would be condemned by a jury that could not agree, and yet you expect us to renounce our glorious Christianity for such a miserable verdict as these men have rendered; they themselves not having been able to agree.

But my subject shall no longer be defensive; it must be aggressive. I will show that instead of Christianity falling back, it is on the march, and that the coming religion of the world is to be the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ ten thousand times intensified. It is to take possession of everything of all laws, all manners, all customs, all cities, all nations. It is going to be so mighty as compared with what it has been, so much more mighty that it will seem almost like a new religion.

I adopt this theory, because Christianity has gone on straight ahead notwithstanding all the bombardment, and infidelity has not destroyed a church, or crippled a minister, or rooted out one verse of the Bible, and now their ammunition seems to be getting exhausted. They cannot get anything new against Christianity, and if Christianity has gone on under the bombardment of centuries and still continues to advance, may we not conclude that the powder and shot of the other side seem to be exhausted. Christianity going on with more rapid stride.

Find an encouraging fact in the thought that the secular press in this day and the pulpit seem to be in the same team for the proclamation of the gospel. To-morrow there will not be a banker on Wall street, or State street, or Third street, who will not have in his pocket or on his table treatises on Christianity, calls to repentance, and scripture passages, twenty or thirty of them, in the reports of the Christian churches of this city and other cities. What thing would have been impossible a few years ago. Now, on Monday morning and Monday evening, the secular press spreads abroad more religious truth than all the tract societies of the country spread in the other six days. Blessed be the tract societies, they have them and we have these others. I say it would have been impossible a few years ago. Hundreds of letters would have come to the secular newspaper offices, saying: "Stop my paper; we have religion on Sunday; don't give us any through the week. Stop my paper." But I have been told that many of the secular papers have their largest circulation on Monday morning, and the whole population of this country are becoming readers. Besides that, have you not noticed that papers proclaiming themselves secular almost every week have religious discussions in them?

Go back a few years, when there was not a decent paper in the United States that had not a discussion on the doctrine of eternal punishment. Small as it may seem, I know, but there was not an intelligent man in the United States that was not a result of that controversy in regard to eternal punishment did not ask himself the question, "What is to be my eternal destiny?" and so some years ago, when Tyndall offered his prayer gauge there was not a secular paper in the United States that did not discuss the question, "What is to be my eternal destiny?" May the creature impulses of the world are not all these facts encouraging to every Christian and every philanthropist? Besides that, the rising generation are being saturated with gospel truth as no other generation, by this international series of Sunday school lessons. Formerly the children were expected only to nibble at the little infidel scripture stories, but now they are taken from Genesis to Revelation, the strongest minds of the young, try explaining the lessons to the teachers, and the teachers explaining them to the classes; and we are going to have in this country 5,000,000 youth forestalled for Christianity. Hear it! Hear it!

Besides that, you must have noticed if you have talked on these great things, that they are being out that while science is grand in its revelations, worldly philosophy grand in its directions, they cannot give any comfort to a soul in trouble. Talking with men on steamboats and rail-cars I find they are coming back to the comfort of the gospel. They say: "Somehow human science don't comfort me when I have any trouble; and I must try something else;" and they are trying the gospel. Take your scientific consolation to that mother who has just lost her child. Apply the doctrine of the "Survival of the Fittest;" tell her that her child died because its life was not worth as much as the life of one that lived. Try that, if you dare. Go to that dying man with your transcendental phraseology, and tell him he ought to have confidence in the great "to be," and the everlasting "now," and the eternal "what is it?" and go on with your consolation and see if it is comfort to him.

Go to the woman who has lost her husband, and tell her it was a geological necessity that that man passed out of existence, just as the megatherium disappeared in order to make room for a higher style of creation, and go on with your consolation and tell her that there is a possibility that ten million years from now we ourselves may be geological specimens on the geological shelf, petrified specimens of the extinct human race. And after you have got all through with your consolation, if the poor afflicted soul is not utterly crazed, I will send out the plainest Christian from my church, and with one-half hour of prayer and the reading of scripture promises, the tears will be stayed, and the consolation and the joy in that house will be like the calmness of an Indian summer sunset. There will be a glory flooding the house from floor to cupola. Oh! people are finding out themselves—and they all have troubles—they find that philosophy and science do not help them when there is a dead babe in the house. They are coming back to our glorious old-fashioned sympathetic religion.

O, young man! do not be ashamed to be found on the side of the Bible. Do not join those young men who in this day put their thumbs in their vest, and swagger about the streets, and the stores, talking about the glorious nineteenth century, about its light being sunnier without any Bible and without any Christ, and without any God. The time is coming—we may not live to see it, but I should not be surprised if we did see it—when this whole country is to be one great church, the forests the aisles, the Allegheny and the Rocky mountains, the pillars, the chain of inland lakes, the baptistries, and the worship in the Allegheny Church unto him who was and is and shall be forever. O, come over to the majority—come under the banner of Emmanuel.

Vernon was the son of an English squire. He was brought up in great elegance. There was a man working on the place by the name of Ralph. Vernon used to get on terms with Ralph. The squire's son when off to college, and came back with his mind full of scepticism. He talked his scepticism to Ralph the workman. After a while Vernon went from home again, was gone for years, came back, and among his first questions when getting home was, "Where is Ralph?"

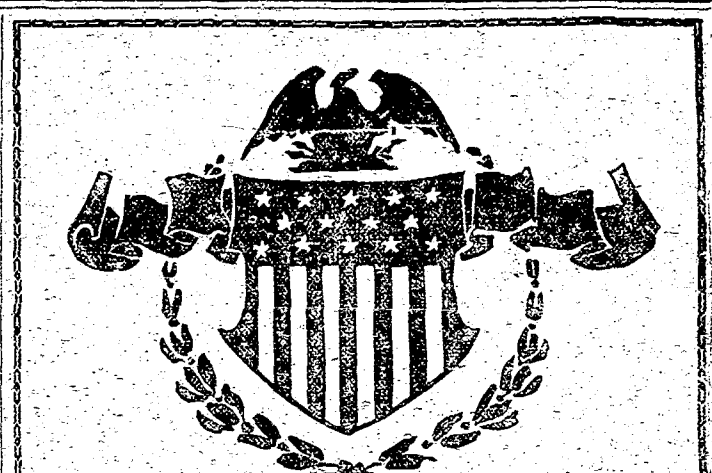

"Oh," said the father, "Ralph is in prison waiting for the day of execution." Vernon hastened to see Ralph. Ralph, looking through the window of the prison, said, "Vernon, how good you are to come and see me! I am glad to see you. I hardly expected you would come and see me. I don't blame you, I don't blame anybody; I only blame myself; but, Vernon, I want you to promise me one thing. Will you?" Vernon replied, "I will." Vernon went to prison, never to talk scepticism in the presence of anybody. You see it might do them harm. When you use to say there was nothing in the Bible, and it didn't make any difference how we lived, we would come out happy at the last, somehow it had a bad influence upon me, and I went from bad to worse until I am here, and I must die for my crimes. My mind is so much better since the Bible was changed, and he was to be transported to another country for life. The ship going there was wrecked on Van Diemen's Land. Among those who perished was Ralph, the victim of Vernon's scepticism. Vernon tells the story to-day with tears and a broken heart; but it is too late. Oh! do not talk scepticism, do not talk scepticism. Let God be true, though every man be found a liar.

I had suffered with indigestion and constipation in the worst form for a number of years, and tried many so-called remedies without relief. I finally was given some of the famous Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although having used them but a short time I have been greatly benefited. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer with those troubles, as they are doing for me what all other remedies failed to do.

Give the Boys a Chance!

The Men's Special Suit Sale last week was a decided success and the special lots advertised have been nearly exhausted but a few remain and we will close the balance at the same rate until all are closed at just 1-2 price. Our next move will be to Give the Boys a Chance.

Now, Boys Look Out!

Saturday, September 16,

We will place on the bargain list a Lot of Boys' Suits, that are broken in sizes but are all right every other way. We can fit every boy that comes, but not in every kind advertised, for we have but two or three left of each kind, (some only one kind), but each boy can get a nice New School Suit, lower than they ever heard of before, for on the above date we will place on sale the entire line of Broken Lots and sell them for 1-2 off from the regular price. If it should be inconvenient for the parents to bring the boys you may send them and we will take Special care to give them a good fit, and take even more pains with them than if they should have a guardian with them. "Give the Boy a Chance" and he will save you money by buying his clothes at the "Busy Big Store." Remember, boys, a suit for 1-2 Price.

The band will discontinue some new musical selections. Let every one who can, come.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

Over twelve years I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, can say I am in better health than I have been for 24 years and am now sixty years old, but as young as at 30. It is hoped that the good people of Salem will show their appreciation of the efforts of the band boys to become skilled players by giving them a liberal benefit. It should be remembered that their instruments, music and instruction require the expenditure of considerable sums of money, which some of the boys can ill afford to spare. Remembering this let their be a good attendance on Saturday evening.

In 1876 a party of Salem people visited the Philadelphia fair in a body and for several years past they have had a reunion early in the month of September at the home of some one of the party. Mrs. Christian Brummer is the happy possessor of a new organ. As herself and her good man are quite advanced in years it was probably purchased for the use of their friends and neighbors, who ought to give the old people the pleasure of hearing it as often as possible.

It looks as though Henry Gilbert had beaten the crowd as a new beginner in cycling. Just a week after getting his pneumatic safety, he made a trip to Detroit, 26 miles, in two hours and a half, returning the same day, though not making the return trip in quite so short a time. Considering the fact that his own was the first wheel he ever rode, and that he is working on a farm by the month, it seems like pretty fast time in learning to ride. Who can beat it?

Veteran's Day.

The old people's day at the Methodist church last Sabbath morning was in every way a memorable success. The day was a perfect September product. The decorations consisting of goldenrod, autumn leaves, sun-flowers, corn, ripened grain, etc. were apropos in significance and tasteful in arrangement. Deputations of young people welcomed the seniors and decorated them with badges, while others secured their names and ages for the register. The service of song, reading and sermon was in perfect harmony with the purpose of the day. Miss Addie Spalding gave a neat welcome for the congregation. The sermon was on the theme "Old Age" from Prov. 16, 31. When President Dolph of the Epworth League gave the report at the close it showed sixty-five persons present over 60 years of age. Mr. F. H. Banks, 90 years of age, years represented was 4,600, the average being 71 years. Denominationally they stood thus: Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, Free Will, Universalist, Catholic and no church. A bouquet souvenir, happy greetings, pleasant memories and delightful anticipations of the next old people's day marked their departure from the church.

"Our Men's Meeting."

Rev. Parrish gave a splendid talk to the forty-two men who were in attendance at Sunday's meeting. The absence of the quartette was very notable. Mr. Harper presided at the organ.

Those who have the work at heart ought to turn out more promptly and willingly when a business meeting is called. We have to plan wisely and it needs numbers to make enthusiasm.

The speaker for Sunday is Dr. J. M. Swift. Come and hear him. Spend an hour with us. Seats free. Good music.

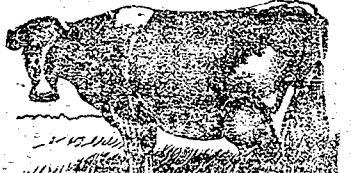

Have you invited many to come to our Sunday meetings lately? Some are waiting for you. Will you do your duty?

TRICKED HER AGED LOVER.

The Shrewd Game of a North Carolina Girl Spoiled.

In North Carolina lives Samson Edwards and Jennie Culbertson. Samson is hale, hearty and 62 years old, and handsome for a man of that many years. Jennie is 25 years old, and is a remarkably pretty girl.

As the world goes, the old man wanted a "darling," and the "girl" wanted a slave. They courted. Jennie being without worldly goods, told Samson that if he would give her $275 she would marry him, and with the money she would buy a tract of land and take the deed in her name, and that this would suffice in place of dower in case she survived her aged lover. Samson gave her the money. She bought the land and the deed was made to Jennie Culbertson.

Old Madam Eve then appealed. It appears that a younger man had been going to see Jennie on the sly. The wedding day with Edwards was set. The preacher engaged and the license procured. On the day before that set for the wedding Jennie and her younger lover journeyed to Pittsburgh, the county seat, and there they were married. They returned and took up their abode on the land paid for with the money of Edwards.

The frame of mind of Edwards is better imagined than described in cold type. He sought his lawyer and brought suit to recover the land. The case was a noted one, and the whole country was present in Pittsburgh when it was tried. The superior court has decided that Jennie perpetrated a fraud on Samson and violated her contract of marriage; that the transfer of land to her was without consideration, and that the land must be sold to pay the debt of Edwards.

How Liszt Captured the Town.

In 1838 Liszt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L— to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared upon the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liszt stepped very calmly to the front and bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable: the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my program." The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liszt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert, the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

A curious incident was brought to notice in connection with the recent marriage of the heir apparent of the Judhpore state. It appears that, according to the custom in vogue among native chiefs, a kharita of invitation to the royal wedding was ordered to be sent to the maharaja of Gwalior. The official who wrote the kharita did not know the mode of addressing the ruling chief of Scindia, and therefore referred to old records of the state, in which the name of the late grandfather of the present chief was mentioned. The official copied the address word for word and sent it off to Gwalior by a daroga. On the kharita being presented to the maharaja of Gwalior he refused to open it, saying he could not open a kharita addressed to his grandfather, who died before the mutiny, and asked the man to take it to his samad, three miles out of Gwalior. None of the representatives of the Gwalior state attended the wedding on this account.
