OUR CITY FATHERS

What the Councilmen Have Accomplished.

As Thanksgiving week is almost upon us—before another week's issue it will have passed and as the old year is just drawing to a close we feel the opportune moment has arrived in which to note some of the work which our village council has had a hand in promulgating this year.

The water works were finally finished, costing some $40,000. There are over 100 takers now enjoying the benefit and comfort of this luxury, besides some 440 houses being protected by one of the best systems in this country.

A second story has been put on the city hall and a tower built thereon in which a serviceable fire alarm has been placed. The building has also been painted.

An appropriation of $150 was made for the purpose of erecting a public drinking fountain on Center street near Main. This will be erected in the early spring under the direction of the water board.

The streets have been put in the best condition they have been for years. The cross walks are all in good serviceable condition and the side walks are in fairly good shape except in a few places where it will apparently take a lawsuit against the property owners to replace or repair them. The repeated notice of the side walk committee having had little or no effect as yet.

The present council have the credit of accomplishing more good improvement for the village than several of the past executive bodies. In fact they have done all that people have asked them to do and more. We can conceive of but one more thing that Northville now really needs and that is the cleaning out and beautifying of the mill pond at the depot. The present council have done so much to better the village that the RECORD is not inclined to ask anything more of them this year in the way of improvements. We are in favor of leaving that great question which has for almost ages been the one great eyesore of our people, the great puzzle of which has been how to get rid of it, for our future municipal government to solve.

In conclusion gentlemen of the council, and we include our honored president as well, the people of the village are proud of you as citizens and village trustees, and of the work you have accomplished.

Good Tidings

Plans are fast being perfected for union evangelistic meetings in Northville under the joint auspices of the Baptist Methodist and Presbyterian churches. In view of the proposed repairs and by invitation of Pastor Parrish, Rev. J. M. Belding will preach in the Methodist church next Sunday evening. On Thanksgiving evening, Thursday Nov. 30, a union service will be held in the Baptist church, the Methodist pastor preaching.

On Sunday evening Dec. 3, the continuous series of meetings will begin with a joint service in the Methodist church, Rev. Arnold preaching. Varied services will be held in the respective churches during the week under conduct of the pastors.

On Sunday Dec. 10, the singing evangelists, Smart and McLachlan will re-enforce the corps of local workers and it is believed that a meeting of great power and blessing is just at hand.

Let every Christian prepare thoroughly for the work. Get right with God and man; remove stumbling-blocks; clear the decks as far as possible of social and secular engagements. Plan! Pray! Push!

Let each church, every society in church and every member consecrate themselves anew and count in this campaign.

If you can sing, join our volunteer chorus choir. The Young Men's League, W. C. T. U. and all other organizations and persons who love our common Lord are invited to cooperate. The country people especially invited. "Beloved, the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

PASTORS ARNOLD, BELDING, PARRISH

Around the Country.

Fourteen drummers a day is no uncommon thing for Dundee.

The college professor at Milford is also a preacher of no mean quality. Ed. Kennedy of Northville was held up in Ann Arbor Tuesday evening of last week by colored footpads and robbed of his watch. It was a "dark" deed.—Albion Press.

Who's Ed. Kennedy? The weather bureau has presented the Wyandotte Herald with a current chart of the great lakes and the editor now wants to know, "how does the gul durned thing run anyway?"

The Northville tower town clock will be ready to run, in about ten days. The delay was caused by having to dig and cement a cellar sixty feet deep for the pendulum to swing in.—Albion Press.

Ernest L. Green of Grenada, N. Y. will preach in the Union church in the town of Livonia in the Briggs District next Sunday morning at half past 10 o'clock. Subject: Everlasting Punishment. Text, Matt. 25, 46.

At an early hour Monday morning Mrs. Jas. O. Eddy, while in a somnambulistic state, fell down stairs and fractured her limb twice just above her ankle. Mrs. Eddy is the wife of the township clerk at Plymouth.

The Wayne Pilot editor can't ride a bicycle and says no other jumpin' jack is going to monkey-ride him off the sidewalk in that village any longer. Its getting so that the villagers are compelled to take to the woods and wagon roads.

A couple of organ swindlers got hold of the wrong people at Morenci last week and while they got the farmer's $300 note alright, they also got into jail before they could get it cashed. On their persons were found receipts for settlements signed by the Pontiac courts showing where a number of Oakland county farmers had been fleeced. We understand that two well known Northville people went over to Pontiac last week to settle up some ill-fam catch which had been innocently dropped upon them. We wonder if that too was an organ deal?

Referring to our doubt of Holly's ticket agent selling 1,000 world's fair tickets the Advertiser says:

Mr. Henderson is a great big fellow and can eat Editor Neal up in a minute and yet wonder what became of him. We have called Mr. Henderson's attention to the above and he says that he sold over 1,000 tickets to Chicago during the world's fair. Tickets were sold to parties as far south as Northville. A majority of the people from Milford and this way on the E. & P. M. went to Chicago via Holly. Further, we have a much larger territory to draw from than other near towns. When it comes to railroads, etc., Holly is strictly in it. Flint only sold 2,300 tickets to the fair, and we understand that only sixteen were sold at Northville, and those via Holly. Come off your perch, Bro. Neal.

Alright, we take it all back. Mr. Henderson is a gentleman and a scholar and any doubts we may have entertained as to his statements have vanished. We are thankful that the Advertiser even allowed as many as sixteen tickets as sold here. Just think how humiliating it would have been had Mr. Slocum said thirteen—besides how unlucky.

Northville can no longer sing "our fire company is the best company," for she hasn't any. They have all resigned.—Ann Arbor Courier.

Now this is unkind of the Courier. Northville never sang any such a song. Northville doesn't claim everything its got as the best. For example we admit that Ann Arbor has a better newspaper, a better university, a better city hall, a better telephone line, a better street car system and a better mill-pond, but when we want to brag a little we respectfully point Ann Arbor people to our factories, the church furniture factory being the largest in the world; our fish hatchery, the most important, in the way of trout-fish hatchery, in the world; our water works system, one of the best in the United States; our Gold Cure; our fire alarm; our public drinking fountain; our $500 tower clock, etc. etc. etc. Those last three "etc's." do not mean anything in particular, they were just added to fill out the line.

Chas. Millan visited friends in Saginaw Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Mouffles was in town the first of this week.

C. G. Dreper, our jeweler, visited in South Lyon Saturday.

The Sherrard residence is receiving a much needed coat of paint.

Chauncy Rauch visited friends at Wixom Saturday and Sunday.

Oliver Westfall and wife of Ypsilanti are visiting friends at this place.

Rauch is now closing out chenille draperies at greatly reduced prices.

Charles Boch formerly of Detroit, lately of Plymouth has moved away.

F. E. Lamphere has been elected chief of the fire company by the water works board.

H. C. Bennett expects soon to put in a line of shoes in the front part of J. R. Rauch's grocery store.

Quite a number of our citizens are connecting to the main water works pipes before the cold weather sets in.

The "Hotel de Plymouth" of Chicago, will continue their opening all winter. They have thirty seven rooms rented at present.

There was a very pleasant surprise party at Mr. at home on Thursday evening for Mr. Heald of the firm of Nickham & Heald.

Joe Gale has taken possession of his new store in the Coleman block. Chaffee, Hunter and Laffier will also open up Saturday.

Mrs. Phoebe Skinner who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. J. R. Rauch for the past two weeks returned to her home at Wixom Saturday.

Go to Rauch's for bargains in men's and boys' clothing. You are sure to get a notorious bargain. Also a great reduction on the prices of macintoshes.

Geo. VanDeCarr, our tonsorial man commenced work in his new shop Saturday. We think he ought to be well patronized as he has an elegant parlor.

Chas. Merritt has purchased Geo. Vandicarr's old barber shop and will move the same just west of the Masonic building where he will start a meat shop.

You will now find J. R. Rauch situated in his new store in the Penniman block with a full line of ladies' and gents' furnishing goods and clothing and also a full line of plain and fancy crockery and groceries.

The entertainment given under the auspices of the Presbyterian ladies at the village hall Tuesday evening was fine. There was a fair attendance although the night was stormy. It seems strange however that Plymouth cannot show up a far better audience than there was in attendance last Tuesday evening to such fine singing as Mrs. Mischeena and her sister, Miss Flora Maddock rendered. Let a "one boss" show come along where the people are sure to get sold and we guarantee that the hall will be packed full.

This will give notice that a volunteer fire company has been organized by a number of our citizens and accepted by the Plymouth water board. They will be known as the "Midway" Hose Fire Co. No. 1. The following officers were elected: Fred Lamphere, chief; Phannette Brown, captain; E. K. Bennett, treasurer; Ed. L. Hough, secretary; Wm. Roe, hydrant-man. The remaining officers will be appointed by Captain Brown in the near future. Following are the members of the company: F. B. Parks, C. H. Rauch, H. A. Roe, W. B. Roe, E. S. Koe, A. Lyndon, E. K. Bennett, Phannette Brown, F. Passage, Frank Lyon, H. Wilkenson, B. B. Bennett, L. Hassenger, J. H. Kimble, W. O. Allen, Chas. Cooper, G. D. Hall, D. Adams, Dwight Chaffee.

An old law, which has been forgotten, requires all ships leaving the port of New York to carry a small cannon, two projectiles and 500 yards of line, so that in case the ship should be beached the crew would be able to communicate with the shore. All sailing masters have received notice to comply with the law.

The growl of the English sporting papers that English fighters sent over here are shabbily treated does not seem well founded. In the first place the fighters have been permitted to land, a concession for which they should be grateful, and comparatively few of them have been molested under the vagrancy act.

The cigarette is to be banished from Georgia if the house of representatives has the power to enforce its will. A bill forbidding the sale of cigarettes in the state was passed by that body last week. As introduced the bill only made it unlawful for any person to sell cigarettes, but the committee on hygiene and sanitation, to which it was referred, emphasized the rigid moral sense of the house by amending it so as to include under the ban cigarette tobacco and cigarette paper. Then the house passed the bill by 101 to 45. It is interesting to note that this same body has been using every effort to encourage the cultivation of tobacco in the state.

That a strict construction of the immigration laws will be beneficial to the United States is evident from the wrath of the Canadian papers at the extra precautions taken by our officials to prevent the dominion from shipping paupers, criminals and other riffraff over the border. The Canadian—good, thrifty soul—has been lining his pockets with the head money exacted from the Chinese and other undesirable immigrants. The trade of immigrant smuggling has become so profitable that our friends across the line look upon its suppression with disgust and indignation. They feel that a remunerative industry is to be ruined, and their newspapers, as a consequence are unusually venomous against this country.

A young man who is not driven to it by hard necessity may not be blamed for not eking out his financial means by manual labor while in college, and it is not pleasant to come down to the plainest food at school or anywhere else, but the practice of spending money with a free hand, which has in recent times become so general in almost all our colleges, is simply to be deplored. It leads a young man into dangerous habits at the very time when he begins to act upon his own responsibility, weakens his regard for thrifty and careful living and too often dulls his sense of honor by leading him into debts which he knows cannot be paid except by distressing those to whom he is under every obligation to consider and regard.

SOMERVILLE, one of Boston's suburbs, has a schoolmarm who is evidently committed to an unflinching faith in the truth of the doctrine that in proportion as the rod is spared the child is spoiled. She only wallowed twenty-five pupils in one day, and all in rapid succession. Lobengula himself couldn't have beaten this record. The presumption is that the only reason Miss Nason stopped at twenty-five was because there were no more pupils in her room. The riot all grew out of the fact that the youngsters hadn't properly committed to memory their geography lesson. They wouldn't study geography, so she promoted them by laying them across her lap and making them see stars. She made them study astronomy. And all this, too, almost in the shadow of the Cambridge buildings and Bunker Hill monument!

BUT for the hope that springs eternal in the human breast Wall Street could never exist. It is upon the inevitable in every man's nature that the Wall Street broker feeds. His customers shut their teeth tight together and stand by their losses day by day as they see the market going against them, all the while hoping that the turn will come and the tide set in their favor, and they do that day after day until their margins are swallowed up. If pecuniance, however, the market goes their way, as it sometimes does, they do not sit solidly by and let their profits run. With one or two points in their favor they exultantly grab the profits. They almost invariably reverse the old stock gamblers' law of "stopping their losses and letting their profits run. They stop their profits and let their losses run, and thus doeth the easy broker prosper; thus is he able to own his steam yacht, while his old customers finally become members of the yacht's crew.

A woman fell dead in New Haven the other day, and within a few hours three bereaved husbands stepped forward to shed a few tears at her bier. Nothing but selfishness would permit a woman to place herself in a position thus to bereave hearts by wholesale.

TO BEAT ALL RECORDS

TWIN-SCREW BICYCLE THE LATEST INVENTION.

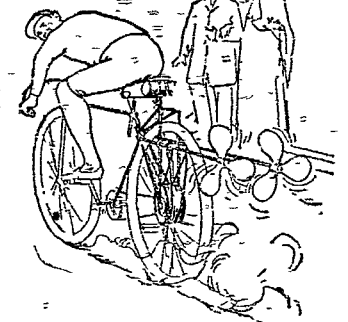

A New Jersey Plumber Hits Upon a Novel Scheme for the Auxiliary Propulsion of Bicycles—The Invention Explained.

REDECKER HELLER, a plumber, living in Caldwell, N. J., who is a prominent cyclist in that place, has devised a scheme for the auxiliary propelling of bicycles, which, he thinks, will, with a good man above the pedals, revolutionize all existing records. In addition to the plumbing business Mr. Heller is engaged in the putting up of gas fixtures, and has to ride from house to house through the town. Realizing the necessity for speed, he set about to devise some scheme that would get him over the ground faster than an ordinary bicycle could be propelled.

He had read of the screw propellers being used on air as on steamships, and thought that if it were properly fitted to the rear of a bicycle and connected with a driving wheel by some light contrivance for transmitting power the benefit derived would more than compensate for the power expended in driving it.

His first apparatus consisted of a single screw set in a steel frame and

THE TWIN-SCREW BICYCLE.

Driven by a leather belt, which passed round a large drum at the axle of the rear wheel. This arrangement worked fairly well, and, he says, helped him materially in the propelling of the bicycle, but as it had to set on one side of the wheel, he found that it affected the steering to such an extent that if he did not pay careful attention to his work the course of the bicycle would be changed and he would fetch up against a fence or trees alongside of the road. He then thought of the feasibility of twin screws, as he had heard that they were used on steamships with considerable success. The difficulty presented, however, was that the gearing required would be too heavy, but he overcame that obstacle by having the different parts made of aluminum.

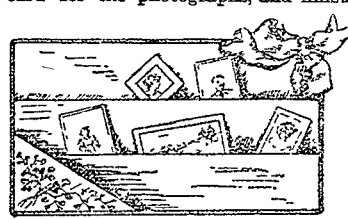

Mr. Heller uses a light wheel of standard manufacture, and has not altered it to any considerable extent in fitting it to work the screws. Fastened to the frame that holds the rear axle are two upright rods. These are turned at the top and run into the heavy brace that holds the saddle post. The light steel shafts that have the propellers affixed to their ends pass through bearings in these rods. The power is derived from leather belts that pass around drums at the axle. The propellers used are made of brass, and are similar to those used on electric fans. They are driven at a high rate of speed, as the wheel on the shaft is not more than one-eighth the size of the drum, and they look like balls of gold when the cyclist whirls along the street.

Mr. Heller is not a crack rider, and he has only recently perfected his invention, but he says that within the past week he has beaten most of the local riders and some pretty good horses. He has made an application for a patent on his scheme, and says he would not sell it for big money.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHS.

How a Useful Article for the Householder Can Be Made.

What shall be done with the photographs which are yearly on the increase? There have been albums and photograph frames and tags, both small and great, in which to deposit them, and still they accumulate. A pretty idea for a photograph case is to take a piece of cardboard of any size desired, and cover plainly with pink silk. Cover another piece slightly smaller, as in drawing, joining this to the first, and still another piece, slightly smaller than the second. Embroider delicate maidenhair ferns in natural shades in corner four, tacking this to the third piece of covered board. Or this corner may be made of white or corn leather. Fasten the outside edges together, leaving spaces between each card for the photographs, and finish

EASILY MADE AND PRETTY.

the case with a bow of pale green ribbon to match the ferns. For amateur photographers another suggestion is to make an album of water color paper, in which the unmounted "snap shots" are to be pasted and each photograph outlined with splashes of gilt. The outside of the album is of heavy pasteboard covered with linen and decorated with lettering suggestive of contents. This classifies the photographs and gives one's friends the pleasure of a camera's sketchbook.

SISTERLY SELF-SACRIFICE.

A Young Girl Submits to Disfigurement and Torture to Save Her Brother.
One of the most remarkable and delicate operations in the line of what is known as skin grafting, was performed at the City Hospital at Rochester, N. Y., the other morning by Dr. Charles R. Barber and several of the house surgeons. A little over two weeks before Arthur Wheeler, aged five years, was playing near his house with some other children. They started a bonfire of dead leaves. While Arthur was running about the flames he stumbled and fell into the fire. His coat caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished his entire breast, abdomen and one side were frightfully burned. The boy has been, ever since the accident, in a precarious condition, the burns being so extensive that no new skin could form.

It was at last decided that the only thing that could save the little sufferer's life was to engraft the skin of some healthy person on the burned parts, and efforts were made to secure some one to consent to such an operation. It was suggested at last that Miss Minnie Wheeler, the 17-year-old sister of the boy, would be just the subject. Miss Wheeler naturally demurred at first to such a proposition, but finally consented when she was convinced that her brother's life was at stake.

Saturday morning Miss Wheeler and her little brother were taken to the city hospital—that being considered a better place than the home of the patient—and the operation was performed. Miss Wheeler was placed under the influence of ether and strips of skin from both thighs and one of the hips were shaved off with sharp razors, and transferred to the body of the little brother. A slight idea of the operation may be gained when it is stated that enough of the epidermis to cover two square feet of the burned boy's body was removed from the young woman. One piece of skin that was removed extended from just above the knee fully nine inches along the thigh. The girl's limbs were swathed in bandages and she was taken home in an ambulance, the boy remaining in the hospital. It is expected that a new cicatrix will have put in an appearance inside of ten days and that Miss Wheeler will have entirely recovered before the first of December.

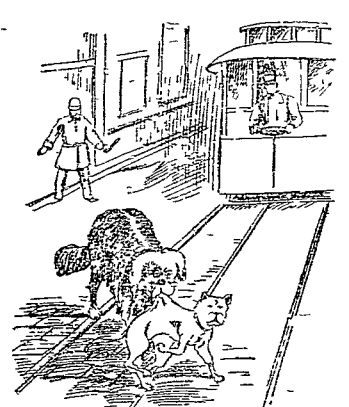

A NOBLE DOG.

After Being Attacked by Cuffs He Saves One from Death.

A big Newfoundland was going peacefully along a street in Pittsburgh when a cross gained our began snapping at him and snarling savagely. This started one or two other dogs, which joined in the attack. The big dog took no notice until compelled to in self-defense. Then he turned and sent the crowd of persecutors flying in all directions, all except the ringleader, which fell sprawling in the middle of the street, and was beginning to get the drubbing he deserved, when things took a very unexpected turn.

A cable car came dashing down the hill with clanging bell right upon the dogs. Nobody is expected to warn dogs of danger, and so the car was almost upon them when the policeman cried, "Get out!"

The big dog saw the danger and sprang aside, but his late assailant was on his back and too much in dread of his punishment to see anything else. There he lay, and in a second more would be crushed.

A NEWFOUNDLAND SAVES A CUR.

The Newfoundland saw the situation, and, after he had partly turned away, springing back and snatched him, saluting him and bearing for mercy out of the very jaws of death. He laid him in the gutter, and then, as though further retaliation had entirely escaped his mind, he gave a good-natured wag or two of his tail and started on up the street.

A Historical Tavern Sign.

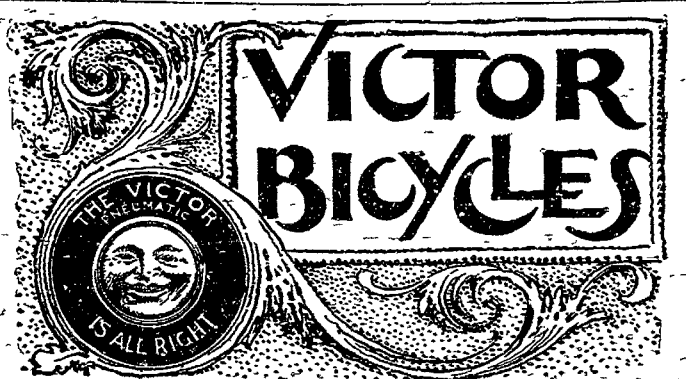

G. C. Kennedy of Lancaster, Pa., has just come into possession of a tavern sign that has a history worth recording, beginning, as it does prior to the American Revolution. It was painted in 1771 by Benjamin West, the first great American painter, who was at the time unknown to fame. It first swung in front of the Three Crowns tavern, a noted hostelry that stood on the old road, as the thoroughfare was called, in Salisbury township.

The neighborhood was settled by English emigrants, whose loyalty to England was offensively manifested during the revolutionary struggle. The old tavern, kept by a Tory of the deepest dye, was the headquarters of those people, and the old sign bears the mark of the hostility felt toward the proprietor by the patriots. A body of continental troops, passing the place one day, fairly riddled the sign with bullets, and the proprietor himself came near sharing a similar fate.

In 1816 the sign was removed to the Waterloo tavern, in the same township, a place kept by another Englishman. Only one side of the sign was changed by the removal, the name of Waterloo Tavern taking the place of the picture of the Three Crowns.

In 1830 the old sign changed once more, going to the White Horse hotel, still in Salisbury township. The Waterloo Tavern is now the handsome country residence of a wealthy Philadelphia man, Nathaniel Bart. At the White Horse the sign swung unchanged until quite recently.

John Mason was proprietor of that tavern when the sign was brought there to do service, and since his time Henry Whitehead and Frank Selmdomridge have kept the hotel. The sign is a large, nearly square affair, the handiwork of the famous painter being barely visible now, so weather beaten is the woodwork.

With the only complete bicycle plant in the world, where every part of the machine is made from A to Z, is it any wonder that Victor Bicycles are acknowledged leaders? There's no bicycle like a Victor, and no plant so grandly complete as the one devoted exclusively to the manufacture of this king of wheels.

E. R. Reed and family left today for Newwago, their future home.

Mrs. John Darlington spent last week with her parents at Novi.

E. R. Reed last week was home sick. These last two words should be spoken slowly.

Benj Springer was called to Hamilton Ontario Monday by the illness of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. McElrvey from Ohio have been guests of Farmer Ross east of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gilmore celebrated their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary Nov. 17.

Geo. Waterman arrived home from California Wednesday night for an indefinite stay in Northville.

Miss Florence Morgan left Sunday night for Ohio where she intends spending the winter with friends.

Chas. H. Wood and Thomas W. Thurber of Detroit were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Yerkes during the past week.

Mrs. Emma Stoddard left this week for Grand Rapids to have a stone cancer removed from her left breast by Dr. J. H. Bachelor, cancer specialist.

Will Lanning and May Leadbeater went to Detroit Wednesday where Rev. J. M. Belding was to meet them and pronounce the bonds that would make them man and wife. Mr. Belding missed his train and the young couple went to the judge who did it up according to the laws of the big state of old Michigan. The happy couple will make Northville their home.

"Our Men's Meeting."

Please note that the hour of meeting is changed to 8:30 p. m. Be prompt at that time.

Last Sunday's meeting was well attended and F. A. Sutherland's talk on "Frozen Words" was helpful and good. Fifty men were present.

While eight months and a half have been passing we have held a series of thirty-seven meetings, at which we have seen 2,173 persons. To bring the work to the notice of the men 12,500 doggers have been used, besides eight and a half columns of reading in the Record. We believe our work is doing good. We want the hearty help of man, who wishes us well.

Communication.

Editor Record.

Having neither argument nor reason on his side Mr. Belding falls back on abuse, the common resort of exposed and convicted bigotry. After carting away so much rubbish the impertinences with which he supposed to do duty for argument hardly deserves notice. There runs through the whole letter the well known fallacy called a "begging of the question," that is, an assumption of the very thing to be proved. "How do you account for the fact?" he asks, never thinking that he is not entitled to ask the question till he proves his fact. I don't admit it to be a fact nor does any historian worthy of the name admit your assumptions to be facts.

Mr. Belding was challenged to give authorities in support of his monstrous charges. I need not point out to the intelligent reader that he has done nothing of the kind. He mentions only two, one an anonymous newspaper correspondent in support of the mildest of his accusations; the other a notorious defamer of the catholic religion and even his evidence such as it is; has no reference to the doings and utterances of "of American catholic leaders" but to something that is alleged to have occurred in Spain. In one word Mr. Belding's arguments are fallacies.

The statements about Spain are the very opposite of the truth. Spain has doubled its population within the period referred to and has increased its wealth in a higher proportion. It has as good a common school system as the United States. It has ten universities besides numberless institutions for the education of its people in the higher department of science and literature. His sweeping assertion about Mexico is equally misleading. The bulk of the Mexican people are the descendants of the aboriginal inhabitants. It is to the credit of catholics that they settled down among and civilized those tribes instead of banishing them out of their own land as the protestants did in the north. It is manifestly unfair to put such people in comparison with the descendants of the Celtic or Anglo Saxon races. Whatever good is in them is due to the catholic religion; their faults are their own and such as it could not prevent. I pass by the persecution question with this remark that "those in glass houses should not throw stones." Catholics have been hung, cut open alive, quartered and boiled. See any history of the penal times in England and Ireland. Protestants would find it safest to let history alone on the question of persecution from a lively consciousness of deeds identical with those they impute to the catholic church.

"Catholic Spain has Sunday bull fights." Protestant United States has Sunday theatrical performances and ballet dances in every large city. It is as unfair to impute the former to the catholic church as it would be to impute the latter to protestantism. Thus I dispose of this portion of Mr. Belding's argumentation. I deny to and repudiate his aspersions on the priest of Boston. They have never been guilty of what he alleges against them. If the Sunday is desecrated that is an imputation on the government and not on the catholic church.

In regard to the quotation supposing it to be true, the priests simply struck out the passages that were not only offensive to the catholics but false in fact and substance. Everybody knows that Dickens' history is grossly unfair to catholics. Would Mr. Belding think it fair to have a history of Scotland written by a catholic who went out of his way to sneer at and misrepresent Presbyterianism forced on the children of his congregation. In short if the schools are non-sectarian the books should be also.

I have gone much farther than I might in answering Mr. Belding because he proved nothing. I am sorry I cannot allow him the comfort that a printer's mistake afforded him, I did not credit him with a "sarcastic vocabulary." I said I was imperfectly acquainted with his "vocabulary of slang" as a reference to my manuscript will show.

Odd Fellows to the number of 150 came out from Detroit Saturday night and run a Northville man through the crushers for the edification of the Northville three linkers. It was a highly enjoyable evening, not soon to be forgotten by either the visited or visitors

D. C. Curtis of Galena, Ohio sends us a dollar and says: "I feel so good over the election that here's another year's subscription whether it's due or not, for through it I occasionally tear from my old democratic friends, and how bad they must have felt. Don't stop the paper anyhow."

While the Presbyterian church is under the painters brush and all the accumulated worldliness is being beaten from its carpets and washed from its woodwork, the communion of saints will be practiced by the congregations of both Rev's Parrish and Belding. Presbyterian and Methodist services in the latter's church Sunday.

The entertainment at the library rooms last Saturday evening was a very enjoyable affair and was well attended. The object of these gatherings is to promote sociability rather than to provide entertainment, but there will be some attraction each Saturday evening and everyone is welcome.

A chimney fire in Alex. Gilmore's house in 1st ward, caused an alarm of fire Wednesday noon. The old volunteer company 300 strong quickly responded but the flames had been salted before the ladders reached the scene. Besides creating quite an excitement for a few moments it demonstrated that the new fire alarm is alright.
Dr. G. W. McKinnon formerly of this place has opened an office and commenced practicing in the pretty village of Orion. Dr. McKinnon is a thoroughly competent and highly successful physician and during his stay in our village had built up a fine practice and won a host of friends.
We were sorry to lose him. Orion is to be congratulated.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. hop tonight promises to be a very fine affair.
Those who had such an enjoyable time at the Odd Fellows' hop two weeks ago are anxious to repeat the occasion. Dancing on canvass is indeed a treat and one which will be appreciated. The bill was placed at one dollar owing to the limited number of invitations sent out and the fact that only about seventy couple can be conveniently cared for in this ball room.
The Shakespeare circle will meet Monday night with the leader. The program for the reading is very interesting. The following are the members: Mesdames J. T. Yarnall, Jennie Johnson, M. Bovee, Georgie
Yerkes, Harrison Yerkes, Mary Yerkes,
Belle Johnson, C. R. Stevens. Messrs
Harrison Yerkes, Grant Gorthy, Prof.
D. C. Bliss, Albert Long, Misses Emma Alexandra, Minnie and Belle Covert, Harvie Root, Carrie Babbitt, Pruda Pierce and Helen Brooks. Mr.
Belding desires a class of thirty-five so the lists are still open.

An item originating in this paper four weeks ago regarding the storing of apples in barrels lined with newspapers was copied by nearly every paper in the state. One paper, the Ypsilanti, gave us proper credit while the balance either credited it to
"ex" or stole it bodily. As if to add "the last straw that fractured the camel's back" the Holly Advertiser and Detroit Journal both copied the four weeks old item last week and credited it to our esteemed contemporary,
the Fenton Independent.

For a year or more the F. & P. M.
depot here has been a loafing place for a number of the village boys and young men during evening train time.
The noise and scuffles finally became such an annoyance to both passengers and employees at the station that the attention of the officials at Saginaw was called to the matter and last week
the company's detective was sent here to investigate. He visited the school and with Prof. Bliss gave some of the pupils a talk on the matter which in substance was that someone would get into trouble if this business was not stopped at once. Some of our young boys will look nice being "pulled" up to Saginaw to answer to the charge of rowdiness.

The early closing movement is a decided success so far and everybody likes it. Each merchant locks his door promptly at 8:00 o'clock and after finishing with his customers then inside goes home and gets acquainted with his family. The electric light company gives a "wink" at 7:45 and again at 8:00 so that there is no call for a variation in watches. The RECORD presented each business place with a closing notice to hang up in their windows. Some few at the start prophesied it would not be a success, but we think otherwise. If every merchant will see that his own business place is closed at 8:00 o'clock, the RECORD will watch out that his neighbor closes.

Soldiers' Monument. Unveiled at Port Huron—Toledo Boy Killed in a Rough Foot Ball Game at Adrian—Wreck at Dundee—Items in Brief.

Soldiers' Monument Unveiled.
The unveiling of the soldiers' monument—the gift of the late Jacob F. Batchelor, of Saginaw, to St. Clair county veterans—was attended by about 8,000 people at Pine Grove park, Port Huron. Rev. H. N. Condon, a veteran, invoked the divine blessing. General William Hartstuf was to deliver the oration of the day but was prevented by sickness and his task was performed by A. E. Chadwick. Judge Harris gave a short sketch of the life of Jacob F. Batchelor, who bequeathed the monument to the city. Hon. Frank Whipple then formally presented the monument to the city and the flags which had hidden the monument from view came fluttering to the ground and the multitude broke into a prolonged cheer. Major Merriam delivered an address accepting the monument, and thanked the committee for the work they had done. The monument as completed consists of a base 15 1/2 feet square at the bottom and about 15 feet high. The base contains life-size statues representing the infantry and marine services. The G. A. R. emblem in old copper occupies a prominent position on one side of the base. On one side is the inscription: "To the memory of the soldiers living and dead, of St. Clair county. Who fought in the war of the rebellion."

Killed at Foot Ball.
A game of foot ball was being played at Adrian between the Toledo High School team and the Adrian College club. The game was a hot one and in a rush Ray Garew, right half back, of Toledo, was crushed to the ground and fully 20 comrades piled upon him. When the mass of legs and arms was untangled it was found that Garew was badly injured. He was carried from the field and an examination showed that his spine was dislocated in the cervical region. Garew died the following morning.

Toledo Special. The body of Ray Garew has arrived here. The boy's mother is prostrated by the shock, she being in a sickly condition and her recovery is improbable. The young man is well and favorably known here, his father being publisher of the Game Breeder. The accident has put an end to foot ball for this year. The high school boys say they were never treated so brutally as by the Adrian team. Two others of the team are in bed from injuries received in the game.

Trouble Over Industrial School Funds.
When W. N. S. Wood turned over the State Industrial school at Lansing, to Supt. St. John he tendered him a receiver's certificate on the Central Michigan Savings Bank for $1,093.35, which the new superintendent would not accept in lieu of cash inasmuch as the bank had failed, and the certificate was given to Auditor-General Turner, with whom Mr. Wood made settlement of the institution accounts. Wood's bondsmen were Frederick Thoman, William H. Haze and Nelson Bradley, who were also heavy stockholders in the insolvent bank. Wood refused to take the money from his own pocket to square the institution's accounts, holding that his bondsmen, considering the circumstances, should settle with the state. Auditor-General Turner requested the attorney-general to sue to recover the amount.

$200,000 Blaze in a Lumber Town.
A furious fire, and one that in loss of property has seldom had its parallel in the north woods, broke out at Keno, Newaygo county, and was not extinguished until $200,000 worth of lumber had been destroyed. The lumber was the property of William Peters, of Toledo. A strike occurred a few weeks ago because pay was delayed. The firm next day paid off the help and discharged the strikers, hiring new men. The fire broke out in the lumber piles, hence the reports of incendiarism. Still it may have been caused by men smoking or by a spark from a locomotive engine passing through the yard. The mill was saved by workmen sweeping off the falling sparks and using water freely. One house and two barns and five freight cars were destroyed.

Another T. A. A. & N. W. Wreck.
The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw leaves its own track at Dundee, and runs into Toledo on the Ann Arbor road. Train No. 25, in charge of Conductor Pearson, of the C. J. & M., had run to the depot and stopped a few moments. There were about twenty cars on the T. A. A. track, the rest of the train remaining on their own track. No. 10, a southbound freight coming at a high rate of speed, not seeing the light, supposed the track was clear, and came into the first train at full force, piling up about twenty cars. Brakeman Gardner, of train No. 10, was riding on the pilot at the time, and was dangerously hurt.

Farmer Killed by Highwaymen.
Abraham Jones, a farm hand, was held up in a piece of woods one mile east of Alamo by three men, roughly handled and robbed of $12. Two men pointed revolvers at him and the third seized his horse.

Later, Jones died as a result of the injuries received in his struggle with the highwaymen. This is the second man who has been assaulted in the same place within two weeks.

Deputy Sheriff Killed by a Dive Keeper.
Deputy Sheriff George Davidson was shot while raiding a house of ill-fame at Trout Creek, U. P. Three shots were fired, all taking effect and killing him instantly. Alex. Enos, who runs the place, is supposed to have fired all three shots and he has been arrested and placed in jail. There is much indignation over the affair, and a strong guard is placed over the prisoner.

Millard May, aged eighteen years, fell from a load of staked near Cuadilla, and the wheels of the wagon passed over his body. Grave internal injuries are feared.

He will survive.

OVER 200 ARE LOST.

TERRIFIC CALE OFF OF GREAT BRITAIN'S COAST.

Scores of Vessels Wrecked and Crews Perish in Great Numbers—Life-Savers Do Brave Work—Other General News of Importance.

A gale of hurricane proportions swept over the coasts of Great Britain for over 48 hours and spread death and destruction among the shipping and fishing vessels. Returns are naturally slowly coming in but it is known that fully 200 lives have been lost. Some idea of the force of the gale can be gathered from the fact that two heavy railroad engines were blown off the track near Liverpool. From all parts of Ireland where there is telegraphic communication come reports of the severity of the gale which has been accompanied there by heavy snow storms. Hundreds of fishing boats are missing, and numerous wrecks are reported. In addition, the harbors were filled with weather-bound vessels. Much loss has also been caused to live stock, houses and produce.

The landing stage at Londonderry has vanished and the steam ferry was sunk. During the height of the fury of the gale the steamer Hampshire was driven ashore in St. Ives Bay, Cornwall, and was pounded to pieces near Gurnard's Head. Twenty-one of the Hampshire's crew were drowned, only one man managed to reach the shore alive. The guardsmen of St. Ives rescued 40 other seamen and officers by means of the rocket apparatus.

Only four of the twelve members of the crew of the steamer Cintra which was wrecked near St. Ives, escaped. The steamer Rosedale entered the harbor of St. Ives, but after letting go her anchors both chains were carried away and she drifted toward the rocks. The coast guardsmen manned their lifeboat and were preparing to go to the rescue when the Rosedale stranded on the rocks and they with difficulty managed to rescue the crew by means of the rocket line. Three yachts and two coasting vessels were ashore near Greenock.

Dispatches received from Banff say that the steamer, for thirty miles strewn with the wreckage of three vessels. At Grangemouth the barkentine Betty was wrecked on the rocks, but the crew was saved. An unknown steamer was next wrecked on the Headland and soon went to pieces and seven lives were lost. Several fishing boats have been lost off the same spot. In Lough Foyle two wrecks are reported with 12 lives lost.

Many vessels sought shelter badly damaged under the lee of the high, jutting cliffs of the English channel and two vessels perished on the Goodwin sands. The dead life boat went to the assistance of the crew of one of these vessels but both vessels thus appeared before the life boats could get alongside of them and the sailors perished.

The Ramsgate fishing fleet was caught in the gale and nearly all were badly battered by the sea, two of the fleet were stranded and their crews were rescued by the life boats. The schooner Wickliss was wrecked near Yarmouth and five of her crew were drowned while the boat lay on a ledge of rocks, pounding to pieces in full view of thousands of spectators who were utterly unable to be of any assistance to the drowning men. It was impossible to launch the lifeboat on account of the tremendous sea dashing upon the coast; and the schooner was too far out to be reached by the rocket line.

The packet boat Killarney, from Milford, arrived at Cork, and reports that when 15 miles out she sighted the disabled National Line steamer Helvetia showing signals of distress. The Killarney stood by the Helvetia for five hours but was unable owing to the tremendous sea, to take her in tow and was obliged to leave her to her fate.

Tried to Burn His Way to Liberty.
George Wristley, a 15-year old boy, was placed in the Flushing lock-up for house breaking. He didn't like the place and made a desperate effort to escape by setting fire to the building near the door, and by the time a stream of water was thrown on the fire he was smothered. His lifeless body was taken out of the burning ruins before the fire actually reached him.

Wristley was the only inmate. He was found in a corner with his head wrapped in a quilt. He had evidently emptied a straw tick near the door and set it on fire expecting to burn a hole through the door. Wristley claimed his home was in Vestaburg, Montcalm county.

A Railroad in Hard Luck.
The Toledo & South Haven round house at Paw Paw has burned to the ground and three locomotives were destroyed. The loss is about $100,000 and there is no insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. The railroad has but one locomotive left. This is now running, but it will be unable to handle all the traffic. As the road bed is in bad shape there is a prospect that all trains will be taken off during the winter. The Toledo & South Haven is a narrow gauge road and is managed by R. H. English, of New York.

Drug and hardware stores are said to be needed at Maple Rapids.

The inmates of the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids have increased 100 over the attendance one year ago.

The Sand Beach division of the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad will be made a standard gauge next summer. Section men are putting in broad-gauge culverts and bridges.

Aaron Brundye, aged 37 years, having a wife and one child, was horribly injured in Mavor Torren's saw mill at Muskegon. A piece of wood, thrown from a saw, entered his body, lacerated his bowels, making a wound nearly five inches long. His arm was broken, and he will probably die.

Wm. Flynn, an aged laborer, of Ann Arbor, was taken to the Dearborn asylum. His elderly wife at first made a frantic resistance to the officers, and then pleaded most plaintively to be taken with him. They were living in abject poverty, although reputed to own considerable property.

SILVER MEN ARE GAME.

The Fight for Free Coinage of Silver to be Renewed in the Regular Session.

Washington special: The indications are that the free coinage fight will be renewed with rather increased vigor at the opening of the regular session of congress. The men who waged such a stubborn warfare for silver in the two houses during the extra session, appear to have gathered confidence by the events which have followed the repeal of the silver purchase act, and an organization of their forces is now being perfected. For the past two or three weeks the silver men have been singularly quiet. The reason for this has now become apparent. The silver men were waiting for a sufficient period to elapse, after the repeal of the Sherman act, in order to demonstrate to the people that the silver purchase law was not the cause of the great financial depression and that its repeal would not prove the panacea for all the commercial evils which have accompanied the times. They think the demonstration of this fact is apparent to the American people now, so the silver men are preparing to say to congress next month that the legislation demanded by the administration has been a failure in restoring commercial prosperity, that the position of the silver men in urging free coinage at the late session has been vindicated. With this object in view, Chairman Bland, of the committee on coinage, weights and measures, is preparing a bill, which he, as the leader of the free coinage men, will introduce at the opening of the next session.

"UNCLE JERRY" RUSK DEAD.

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture Passes Away at His Home—Brief Biography.

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture Jeremiah M. Rusk died at his home at Virroqua, Wis. He had been ill for two weeks and his death was not unexpected. Jeremiah M. Rusk, ex-governor of Wisconsin and ex-secretary of agriculture, was born in Morgan county, O., June 17, 1830. He received a good education. When 28 he moved from Ohio into Wisconsin, taking a farm near Virroqua. He soon went into politics. After having held several county offices he was elected to the state legislature in 1862. When the war broke out he was commissioned major of the Wisconsin volunteers. He fought with great bravery and at the close of the war held the brevet rank of brigadier-general. He was state bank controller from 1866 to 1878. He was a member of the 42nd 43rd and 44th congresses. In 1884 he was elected governor of Wisconsin by 12,000 majority. He held the office for two terms. He served as secretary of agriculture under President Harrison and was one of the ex-president's firmest friends.

Rank Municipal Scandal at Toledo.

For four months the board of revision was investigating the municipality of Toledo, O. It has reported the result of its labors to the city council, and showed that the most extravagant and reckless practices have prevailed in the methods of each department of the city in the purchase of supplies, that the city has for years been practically without a head, one city official deposits city cash in his own name and draws interest on it, another pays himself his salary when he thinks it due, without regard to warrant or voucher many officials have held public moneys delivered to them for months instead of putting them in the city treasury. Firms have had their claims placed on city ordinances weeks before the goods were delivered, and many bills have been paid two and three times. A city comptroller will be appointed and the matter remedied.

Powderly is Upheld.

The finance committee of the general assembly, Knights of Labor, in its session at Philadelphia made a report in which the general executive committee was exonerated and the order finds itself in a fair financial condition. In the report among other things the committee recommends that the order dispose of its political headquarters building at Philadelphia and erect a new but less expensive structure at some more central point. Indianapolis was one of the points mentioned. The report fully sustains Grand Master Workman T. V. Powderly and the executive body in the manner directed. Relief fund for strikers was disposed of, and the members of the committee are very well satisfied with Powderly's explanation.

Was Lynched, but Deserved His Fate.

Fred Gustavson, a laborer, aged thirty-two, of Ottumwa, Ia., enticed the four-year-old daughter of Jonas Sax into the room of a boarding house and criminally assaulted her. The child, although horribly maltreated, was able to drag herself home, but now lies at the point of death. Gustavson was brought to Justice Trust's office for preliminary examination. The culprit was wrested from the hands of the officers and dragged out of the house. Here the mother of the child stood with a rope and gave it into the hands of the mob. It was immediately placed about the wretch's neck and he was hanged to the balluster of the outside stairway leading to the office.

Seven Deaths in a Hotel Fire.

A disastrous fire occurred at Merrill station, near Beaver, Pa., resulting in the total destruction of a three-story frame hotel. The fire was discovered at a sliding door between the hall and a room used as a store and postoffice. There were 35 boarders sleeping in the second and third floors, many of whom jumped from the windows and were badly cut, bruised and burned. After a census of the boarders could be taken it was found that seven were burned to death and at least ten badly injured. All the bodies were recovered, but were unrecognizable.

Race War in Kansas.

C. Elliott, a pit boss, shot and killed Will McKover, a Negro miner, at Pittsburg, Kas. During a quarrel the Negro rushed at Elliott with a pick, but before he could reach him he met two fatal shots. The town is full of Negroes armed to the teeth, and every citizen carries a Winchester. Excitement runs high and should a gun be fired on either side, a terrible race war would result. Elliott is out of the way till a safer time.

Roland Withenbury, aged 13 years, accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting near Glendale, O.

STILL A REPUBLIC.

QUEEN "LIL" OF HAWAII NOT YET ON THE THRONE.

Minister Willis Rather Slow in Presenting His Instructions and Cleveland's Intention Still a Mystery—Alleged Synopsis of Blount's Report.

The Oceanic steamer Australia has arrived at San Francisco from Honolulu and the news she brought for hardly what the American people were expecting. It was almost generally believed that the ex-queen would have been restored to the throne by the new minister to Hawaii, Willis, and that the provisional government had been overthrown. This anticipation was well grounded upon the recently published letter of Secretary Gresham which showed the present administration's feeling that it would be but justice to give the ex-queen her throne.

It was therefore with considerable surprise that it was learned that Minister Willis had merely presented his credentials to the provisional government and had not even mentioned his instructions from President Cleveland. There were several Hawaiians on board the Australia and they expressed great surprise when they heard of the letter of Secretary Gresham and intimated that Minister Willis had found affairs in a different state than he had anticipated, and seeing that the provisional government was well prepared to hold their own against any unaided action of the royalists, had concluded to await further instructions from the United States.

The steamer China had arrived at Honolulu with Minister Willis over a week before the Australia, sailed for San Francisco and but little definite nature had occurred in the islands. Among the passengers on the Australia were the ex-United States consul at Honolulu, H. M. Severance. In an interview ex-consul Severance said: "No one at Honolulu has heard anything about the restoration of the queen being intended by President Cleveland. There was no talk of bloodshed or resistance. In fact, so far as I have been able to learn, all the recent excitement over Honolulu affairs appears to have been stirred up in this country."

The dispatches from Honolulu detailing the reception of Minister Willis by the provisional government give President Cleveland's letter introducing Mr. Willis, which reads:

To the Honorable Senators and Representatives of the United States Government of the Hawaiian Islands: Great and good friend—I have much pleasure in sending you one of our distinguished citizens to reside near the government of your excellency in the quality of ex-consul at Honolulu and in the capacity of the United States of America. He is well informed of the relative interests of the two countries and of our sincere desire to cultivate the fullest extent of the friendship which has so long existed between them. I have no doubt that you will advance the interest and prosperity of both countries and a closer bond of amity will be cemented. I therefore request your excellency to receive him favorably and to give full credence to what he may say on the part of the United States and the assurance which I have given him to convey to you the estimates of this government for the payment of the Hawaiian Islands. I do have your excellency in his wise keeping.

Your good friend,
CLEVELAND

The Honolulu papers were in ecstasies over the evident good will expressed toward the provisional government. The passage in President Cleveland's letter "He will constantly endeavor to advance the interests and prosperity of both governments and to render himself acceptable to your excellency" is one which calls forth especial editorial comment, and one of the papers, the Hawaiian Star, prints the sentence for several days at the head of its editorial column in bold type, under the heading, "Good Things from Cleveland." Other papers were equally full of the same tone of rejoicing. In fact it can be accepted without question that the provisional government up to the hour of the sailing of the Australia had no knowledge of the purpose of Minister Willis to restore the queen. Washington dispatches say that it is believed by some naval officers that Minister Willis has found things so different from what his instructions led him to expect that he has assumed the authority to refer operations until he received further instructions.

Blount's Report.

Secretary Gresham has at last given out a synopsis of Commissioner Blount's report which shows that Minister Stevens landed the troops from the Boston long before there was any valid excuse for their presence on Hawaiian soil; that he demanded to remove them when requested to do so by the government and informed that the authorities were willing and thoroughly able to preserve order and protect American interests; that these troops were stationed across the street from the government building in which Minister Stevens knew the revolutionists were about to read their proclamation and that the revolutionist committee relied upon the American troops to protect them in this act of rebellion; that Mr. Stevens recognized the provisional government according to a preconceived program before that government had obtained possession of the departments and military power at Honolulu and that the military power of the United States was used to install the provisional government.

It was Commissioner Blount's report which induced President Cleveland to take steps toward the restoration of the Hawaiian monarchy. It is well to say, also, that Minister Stevens denies every imputation cast upon himself and the officers of the Boston. It is now simply a question of veracity.

Union Tobacco works, Clarksville, Tenn., burned. Loss $35,000.

Gov. Peck will issue a call to the people of Wisconsin for aid for the Hurley sufferers.

Fires have been started in three glass factories at Bridgeport, O. They will employ over 1,000 men.

The scale has been settled in Youngstown, O., and the iron mills have resumed after 23 weeks idleness.

Gen. L. A. Grant, assistant secretary of war, has resigned, and Gen. Doa, adjutant general of the Wisconsin national guard, will succeed him.

A MONSTER STRIKE.

Lehigh Valley Railroad Completely Tied up—Over 2800 Men out.

Philadelphia: A general strike was ordered on the entire system of the Lehigh Valley railroad. The immediate cause is the company's refusal to recognize any committee or body of men as the representative of the employees of the road. After repeated attempts made by the grand officers of the several railway organizations to get in audiences with the officials of the road, and after a sub-committee from the general committee sitting at the Bingham House, Philadelphia composed of bona fide employees of the road, had failed to secure recognition from the road's highest representative in this city, First Vice-President Voorhees, the order to quit work was telegraphed to all the employees along the line of the road. The result was that a general strike was declared. Over 1800 men will be idle until the matter is settled.

Buffalo: Freight traffic on the Lehigh is stopped, but several passenger trains have been running. The telegraph operators will probably join the strikers.

Populists to Reorganize.

Washington special: Is the Populist party to continue in the political field? This is one of the questions which are now agitating certain political circles at the capital, and the question is based on rumors that the leaders of the party are contemplating a change of organization because of some disagreements among them, but especially for the purpose of permitting the advocates of the free coinage of silver, who have never embraced the Populist doctrine as to government ownership of railroads, the land loan policy and the issuing of paper money, to attach themselves to the new organization.

Senator Peffer was called upon for information as to the correctness of the report, and unhesitatingly stated that the rumor of the proposed change was well founded. "I expect," he said, "a new alignment of parties to be found after the congressional election next year, and that the new party will be ready for our work in the presidential election of 1900."

"Do you mean that the Populist party will be disorganized?" was asked. "The Populists," he replied, "will form part of a great national organization which will probably be brought together under the name of the Populist party. The Populist party will have the same relation to this new party that the old free soil and abolitionist parties bore to the Republican party."

When asked what would be the issue upon which the new party would organize, he said, "The issue is now between the money power and a gold basis on one side, and the producing masses of the people and an enlarged volume of money on a gold, silver and paper basis on the other. That will be the great issue in 1900, and it is one upon which the people will divide without regard to former party differences."

Seminary Fire—Two Girls Burned.
The Holywood female seminary, near Madison, Wis. (a Catholic institution conducted by the Dominican sisters and valued at about $75,000, was destroyed by fire and two girls were lost. Margaret Rice, aged 17 years, of Stevens Point, Wis., and Maggie Beck, aged 9 years, of Chicago.

Before the sisters in charge knew of the fire, the halls in the upper part of the building were completely filled with smoke. The sisters made daring efforts to save their little charges. In one room, in which or near which the fire must have originated, were sleeping little Marjorie Rice and Maggie Beck. Access to their room was almost impossible, it being completely filled with smoke. When the little ones were finally reached they had been suffocated to death.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York, Nov. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co. review say: "Business is gaining, but it is a constant complaint that the improvement is slow. This is because very few realize how heavy a load business has to bear after it is climbing up again. Less than a year since we were heavily and other loads, many overloads. The past depression with trading and manufacturing failures involving more than $250,000,000 in nine months, besides banking failures of enormous liabilities and failures of railroads and other corporations having heavy indebtedness to individuals and firms involve continual embarras, elements which men are prone to forget. There has been great encouragement during the past week in the fact that November payments are far more satisfactory than in the past, and yet the conditions of the month would have seemed alarming other year. Merchants who collect part of the amount due are rejoiced, but their buying power is not as large as usual. The extraordinary shrinkage in purchases for consumption, if lessening, has still made it impossible for many firms to go on as before. The condition of industries improve but they wisely await the revival of purchases by consumers. Twenty-four works of all kinds have wholly or in part resumed after fourteen closing. Yet less than half the iron-working power is active and only one-third of the steel-making at the east only ten are working full time, while forty-five were shut on Nov. 1. The failures for the week have been 24 in the United States, against 28 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 35 last year.

Oddfellows are Increasing.

The 16th annual session of the grand encampment of the Oddfellows was held at St. Louis, Mo., with a good attendance. Grand Representatives Jewell and Maybury in their annual reports say that the condition of the order calls for devout thanksgiving on the part of every Oddfellow in the land. The net increase in membership during 1899 was over 10,000, unprecedented in the history of the order, and from what has been learned of the increase this year it is greater than last year. The total membership, including the Daughters of Rebekah branch, is estimated at over 1,000,000.

THE YEAR HAS

showered down
Forget that graves are gaping
And soon shall swallow all—
The thankful and the thankful,
The mighty and the small.

Thanksgiving! 'Tis Thanksgiving!
The joy that dwells within us.
The exile of despair
Forget that graves are gaping,
That darkness stands beside
To cover each man over
And will not be denied.

Thanksgiving! 'Tis Thanksgiving!
Let mirth and merriment sing,
Give thanks unto the King
Forget that graves are gaping
And endless silence soon
Shall still both choir and organ
And drown the joyful tune.

Thanksgiving! 'Tis Thanksgiving!
Back, care! But welcome, mirth!
To-day to you is sacred.
And all the men on earth
Forget that graves are gaping,
That mirth with care shall be Together, undisturbed
Throughout eternity.

Thanksgiving! 'Tis Thanksgiving!
Give thanks, then, oh, give thanks!
This life has many prizes
And few of us draw blanks.
Forget that graves are gaping,
And that who win shall rest
Beside the luckless losers
In one oblivion drest.

Thanksgiving! 'Tis Thanksgiving!
Full full the glowing bowl!
The past was good—be careless
Of what may come, my soul.
Forget that graves are gaping:
This life is very sweet.
"Dum vivimus, vivamus—Come, friends, give thanks—and eat!"
—BANKER EASTMAN.

16, whom nobody could look at without thinking of a rosebud almost blossoming. The only other person at the fireside was Robert Moore, formerly an apprentice of the blacksmith, but now his journeyman, and who seemed more like an own son of John Inglesfield than did the pale and slender student.

Only these four had kept New England's festival beneath that roof. The vacant chair at John Inglesfield's right hand was in memory of his wife, whom death had snatched from him since the previous Thanksgiving. With a feeling that few would have looked for in his rough nature, the bereaved husband had himself set the chair in its place next his own, and often did his eye glance thitherward as if he deemed it possible that the cold grave might send back its tenant to the cheerful fireside, at least for that one evening. Thus did he cherish the grief that was dear to him. But there was another grief which he would fain have torn from his heart, or, since that could never be, have buried it too deep for others to behold or for his own remembrance. Within the past year another member of his household had gone from him, but not to the grave. Yet they kept no vacant chair for her.

While John Inglesfield and his family were sitting around the hearth, with the shadows dancing behind them on the wall, the outer door was opened and a light footstep came along the passage. The latch of the inner door was lifted by a same familiar hand, and a young girl came in, wearing a cloak and hood, which she took off and laid on the table beneath the looking-glass. Then after gazing a moment at the fireside circle, she approached and took the seat at John Inglesfield's right hand, as if it had been reserved for her.

"Here I am at last, father," said she. "You ate your Thanksgiving dinner without me, but I have come back to spend the evening with you."

Yes, it was Prudence Inglesfield. She wore the same neat and maidenly attire which she had been accustomed to put on when the household work was over for the day, and her hair was parted from her brow in the simple and modest fashion that became her best of all. If her cheek might otherwise have been pale, yet the glow of the fire suffused it with a healthful bloom. If she had spent the many months of her absence in quiet and infancy, yet they seemed to have left no traces on her gentle aspect. She could not have looked less altered had she merely stepped away from her father's fireside for half an hour and returned while the blaze was quivering upward from the same brands that were burning at her departure. And to John Inglesfield she was the very image of his buried wife, such as he remembered her on the first Thanksgiving which they had passed under their own roof. Therefore, though naturally a stern and rugged man, he could not speak unkindly to his sinful child, nor yet could he take her to his bosom.

"You are welcome home, Prudence," said he, glancing sideways at her, and his voice faltered. "Your mother would have rejoiced to see you, but she has been gone from us these four months."

"I know it, father, I know it," replied Prudence, quickly. "And yet, when I first came in, my eyes were so dazzled by the firelight that she seemed to be sitting in this very chair."

By this time the other members of the family had begun to recover from their surprise and became sensible that it was no ghost from the grave nor vision of their vivid recollections, but Prudence her own self. Her brother was the next that greeted

her. He advanced and held out his hand affectionately, as a brother should, yet not entirely like a brother for with all his kindness, he was still a clergyman and speaking to a child of sin.

"Sister Prudence," said he earnestly, "I rejoice that a merciful Providence hath turned your steps homeward in time for me to bid you a last farewell. In a few weeks, sister, I am to sail as a missionary to the far islands of the Pacific. There is not one of these beloved faces that I shall ever hope to behold again on this earth. Oh, may I see all of them—yours and all—before I go!"

A shadow flitted across the girl's countenance.

"The grave is very dark, brother," answered she, withdrawing her hand somewhat hastily from his grasp. "You may look your last at me by the light of this fire."

While this was passing the twin girl—the rosebud that had grown on the same stem with the castaway—stood gazing at her sister, longing to fling herself upon her bosom, so that the tears of their heart might intertwine again. At first she was restrained by mingled grief and shame, and by a dread that Prudence was too much changed to respond to her affection, or that her own purity would be felt as a reproach by the lost one. But, as she listened to the familiar voice while the face grew more and more familiar, she forgot everything save that Prudence had come back. Springing forward, she would have clasped her in a close embrace. At that very instant, however, Prudence started from her chair and held out both hands with a warning gesture.

"No, Mary, my sister," cried she, "do not touch me. Your bosom must not be pressed to mine."

Mary stood there and stood still, for she felt that something darker than the grave was between Prudence and herself, though they seemed so near each other in the light of their father's hearth, where they had grown up together. Meanwhile Prudence threw her eyes around the room in search of one who had not yet bidden her welcome. He had withdrawn from his seat by the fireside and was standing near the door with his face averted, so that his features could be discerned only by the flickering shadow of the profile upon the wall. But Prudence called to him in a cheerful and kindly tone.

"Come, Robert," said she, "won't you shake hands with your old friend?"

smiling sadly as she withdrew her hand, "you must not give me too warm a welcome."

And now, having exchanged greetings with each member of the family, Prudence again seated herself in the chair at John Inglesfield's right hand. She was a girl of quick and tender sensibilities, gladness in her general mood, but with a bewitching pathos interlarded among her merriest words and deeds. It was remarked of her, too, that she had a faculty, even in childhood, of throwing her own feelings like a spell over her companions. Such as she had been in the days of her innocence, so did she appear this evening. Her friends, in the surprise and bewilderment of her return, almost forgot that she had ever left them, or that she had forfeit any of her claims to their affection. In the morning, perhaps they might have looked at her with a startled eye, but by the Thanksgiving fireside they felt as if their own Prudence had come back to them and were thankful. John Inglesfield's rough visage brightened with the glow of his heart as it grew warm and merry within him. One or twice he even laughed till the room rang again, yet seemed startled by the echo of his own mirth. The grave young minister became as frolicsome as a schoolboy. Mary, too, the rosebud, forgot that her twin blossom had ever been torn from the stem and trampled in the dust. And as for Robert Moore, he gazed at Prudence with the bashful earnestness of love new-born, while she, with sweet and tender coquetry, half smiled upon and half discouraged him.

In short, it was one of those intervals when sorrow vanishes in its own depth of shadow and joy starts forth in transitory brightness. When the clock struck 8, Prudence poured out her father's customary draught of herb tea, which she had been steeping by the fireside ever since twilight.

"God bless you, child!" said John Inglesfield, as he took the cup from her hand; "you have made your old father happy again. But we miss your mother sadly, Prudence, sadly. It seems as if she ought to be here now."

"Now, father, or never," replied Prudence.

It was now the hour for domestic worship, but while the family were making preparations for their duty, they suddenly perceived that Prudence had put on her cloak and hood and was lifting the latch of the door.

"Prudence, Prudence, where are you going?" cried the all with one voice.

As Prudence passed out of the door she turned to them and flung back her hand with a gesture of farewell, but her face was so changed that they hardly recognized it. Sin and evil passions glowed through its comeliness and wrought a horrible deformity; a smile beamed in her eyes as a triumphant mockery at their surprise and grief.

"Daughter," cried John Inglesfield, between wrath and sorrow, "stay and be your father's blessing, or take his curse with you!"

For an instant Prudence lingered and looked back into the fire-lighted room, while her countenance wore almost the expression as if she was struggling with a fiend, who had power to seize his victim even within the hallowed precincts of her father's hearth. The fiend prevailed and Prudence vanished into the outer darkness. When the family rushed to the door they could see nothing, but heard the sound of wheels rattling over the frozen ground.

That same night, among the painted beauties of the theater of a neighboring city, there was a new and dissolute mirth seemed inconsistent with any

BUILDING A DRAMA.

It is the Situation That Produces Dialogue, the Brilliant Speech.

A real drama is constructed, not written. It is built up as a house is erected by the bricklayer and stonemason, and the words are only the bricks and stones, and have the same relative value to the design of the playwright as these to the designs of the architect. The architect has the structure in existence and clearly wrought out before the first stone is laid, and the drama of the true playwright is in existence before a word is written. Words there must be, just as there must be bricks, but as the latter can be carted from the kiln at current prices in any quantity, so can the former be brought to the playwright from the dictionary by any purveyor of sentences at current prices, writes W. H. Crane in the North American Review.

The rare man who constructs a good play can hire men by the regiment to write the lines. But the dialogue, the epigram, the repartee, the brilliant speech such as we find in Congreve and in Sheridan? Is not this an essential? The reader will ask. Let us not put the cart before the horse. It is the situations that produce the dialogues; it is not the dialogues that produce the situations. Given a situation that calls for a smart, brisk, snappy, witty exchange of words, and the words will come. We see this in real life. Even in so simple a situation as when a couple of cartmen get their wheels locked on Broadway on a muddy day and a policeman comes up to separate them you will hear a good deal of smart though coarse dialogue. Such and all dialogues that grow out of any situation (and no dialogue worth listening to grows out of anything else) is interesting in proportion as the situation is interesting.

Without situation to call forth an interchange of language suitable to the occasion, and especially such situation as of itself interests the audience and causes each member of it to ask himself what the characters will say next, a lot of well-dressed people might stand or sit around on the stage and fire off epigrams at each other and the audience would yawn.

Dramas, so called, written in perfect accordance with syntax, witty here and there, and always elegant, pour in upon the manager and are rejected with the utmost energy and dispatch, because they are nothing but sermons or essays, in three or four chapters called acts. Their authors call them dramas because they are not dramatic; they divide them into acts because they involve no action, and subdivide them into scenes because where nothing is done, nothing can be seen. I may remark in passing that the old-fashioned shifting of scenes during an act is now only put into plays by novices who have not studied the modern stage.

Let a Guinea be in Parliament.

In the history of the English house of commons it is chronicled that during an altercation between Sir Robert Walpole and Mr. Pulteney, the latter told the minister his Latin was even worse than his politics, for he had made a gross misquotation from Horace. A wager of a guinea was instantly staked on the matter and Harding, the clerk of the house being appealed to as arbiter, he, "with judicious solemnity," gave judgment against Sir Robert. The premier threw the guinea across the table and Pulteney held it up with the observation that "it was the first public money he had touched for a long time." At his death the coin was discovered, carefully preserved in a piece of paper with a memorandum on it recounting the circumstance.—Illustrated London News.

Her Conscience.

"John," said his wife, "I have a conundrum for you."

"All right. But you know conundrums are out of style."

"That fact won't hurt this one any way," she answered.

"Let us have it."

"Why am I like a popular story?"

"Because everybody admires you."

"That isn't the answer."

"What is it?"

"Because," and she glanced at her calico dress, "I am never out of print."

And the next day he gave her a carte blanche at the dry goods store.

The Decimal Point.

In both France and Germany one fourth (1/4) reduced to a decimal is written 0.25 (always with the period at the top of the line), and in the United States 0.25. France and Germany always use the comma (,) England and the United States the period (.), the only difference being the manner in which it is placed upon the line. Sir Isaac Newton is given the credit of originating the present method of using the decimal point; his reason being that by placing it at the top of the line it could be distinguished at a glance from the "full stop" punctuation mark.

JOHN'S THANKSGIVING.

BY NATHANIEL H. WITHERS.

IN THE EVENING of Thanksgiving day John Inglesfield, the blacksmith, sat in his elbow chair among those who had been keeping festival at his board. Being the central figure of the domestic circle, the fire threw its strongest light on his massive and rugged face, and with its features rudely fashioned on his own snarl. At John Inglesfield's right hand was an empty chair. The other places round the hearth were filled by the members of the family, who all sat quietly, while, with a semblance of fantastic merriment, their shadows danced on the wall behind them. One of the group was John Inglesfield's son, who had been bred at college and was now a student of theology at Andover. There was also a daughter of

her. He advanced and held out his hand affectionately, as a brother should, yet not entirely like a brother for with all his kindness, he was still a clergyman and speaking to a child of sin.

"Sister Prudence," said he earnestly, "I rejoice that a merciful Providence hath turned your steps homeward in time for me to bid you a last farewell. AN IRISHMAN

Once said to a beautiful young lady, "I wish I was in jail this minute for stealing yez!" Such is the feeling of every one who sees the beautiful line of warm Bed Blankets and Comfortables we are showing, and they look so warm and tempting that we can hardly blame them; but as we do not wish to encourage such feelings, we will on Saturday Nov. 25, open a whole case, consisting of about 190 pair of 10-4 White and Grey Bed Blankets, good and warm and extra heavy, and sell the entire lot at 57 1-2c per pair, which you will readily see is cheaper than "stealing them". Another lot of Cream White Domet Flannel at 4 1-2c per yard.

An elegant line of Ladies' Hoods and Fascinators, Shawls, Etc., arrived this week. Come and look.

Following is the report of the Baptist church at Salem as read at the recent 61st anniversary meeting: The church was first recognized as such on Jan. 17, 1833, with the following original members: J. Bennett, L. C. Goodale, G. Mason, Wheaton Bullock, Jacob Bullock, Ira Rider, John Lewis, Rhoda Walker and Nancy Walker. Jane Lewis was received at this date by letter, being the first to unite with the newly organized church. The first pastor called was Rev. M. Clark. The first to unite with the body by baptism was Mrs. Elmira Wheeler baptized by Rev. J. L. Norris in May, 1833. She was the mother of our respected postmaster, Geo. Wheeler. In July of the same year Moses Clark Jr. and Phebe F. Goodale were baptized. Alex. Packard and J. Bennett served the church in its early history as deacons. On Nov. 16, 1833 the church met in covenant meeting at Bro. E. Lewis' home where it was decided to build a house of worship, but owing to various circumstances the edifice was not built until 1852. On June 28, 1833, Rev. Mathews and Rev. Eber Carpenter began protracted meetings holding them in the old barn at Mr. Burnetts, so states Bro. David Rathbun who attended them. At their close the following seventeen united by baptism: Calvin Wheeler, L. Noble, E. Noble, Ida Ham, Wm Lewis, A. J. Packard, B. H. Hawkins, Jas Lewis, Jane Noble, Judith Herrick, Eliza A. Lewis, Chas Lewis and Jane Lewis. In 1839 a protracted meeting was conducted by Rev. Simmons in C. Wheeler's barn and the following were added to the church: Asher Cook, David Lewis, J. Hosford, Nathan Herrick, Geo. W. Bennett, Jane Mathews and Fanny Lewis. A frame church was erected in 1852 costing $900. In 1877 it was removed to the site of the present church building and in 1887 again moved and the present commodious, handsome structure erected on its site during the pastorate of the Rev. W. H. Betty, who served the church well and faithfully for a period of five years. Rev's Phillips and Leeland followed him for short periods after which the present incumbent Rev. D. H. Conrad was called from Chelsea, and is doing faithful service. The present structure cost upwards of $5,000 and is out of debt. It might be mentioned that Ruben E. Manning united by baptism thirty-five years ago, served as church clerk four years and is today the respected pastor of a Baptist church in Detroit and two weeks ago preached one of the anniversary sermons of the Salem church. Deacon W. E. Manning, his father, has been a member nearly fifty years and Mrs. Manning between fifty and sixty, both being present at the 61st anniversary. Rev. Brayton and Rev. Taft were pastors who also served the church in former years and did noble work.

Despite the fact that the evening was rather cold and disagreeable, there was a good attendance Saturday night at the W. N. D. C. meeting. The outlook for the winter is promising judging from the interest and enthusiasm so far manifested at the meetings of the club. It is unquestionable that the benefits to be derived from the work connected with a society of this kind cannot be overestimated to those who wish to keep their mental machinery from rusting and who enjoy the pleasant and invigorating intellectual stimulus which comes from the friction of mind with mind to say nothing of the educational advantages presented to those interested and observant. The program was well carried out, every number being responded to except one, the vacancy being caused by an omission either on the part of your correspondent or the much abused "typo." The divorce question was very ably discussed and the three lady judges, Mrs. Power, Mrs. Ferrigo and Mrs. Bogart, decided that the affirmative produced the best arguments. The janitor work fell to Stephen Gage. The executive committee presented the following program for Nov. 25:
