THE RECORD.

P. S. NEAL, Publisher.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN.

THE meekest man in Chicago robbed his dead roommate and sold the corpse to a medical student.
You'll have to go to New York to beat that.

Jones, the public executioner of Victoria, Australia, was so gallant as to put an end to his own life lately rather than end that of Mrs. Knorr, who is under sentence of death for wholesale infanticide.

AFTER years of controversy money subscribed in this country for relief of distress in Ireland is about to be released by the bankers in Paris, with whom it was deposited to escape confiscation by the "government." The delay has been due to failure of the opposing Irish parliamentary factions to agree upon a form of release which the bankers could accept as holding them blameless for its after application. The dispute has been irreconcilable, but it will be forgotten if further quarrels shall not block an equitable distribution of the hoard among those for whom it was intended.

THE terrible mortality which characterizes attacks of pneumonia in New York has called forth the information that among the Catskill woodchoppers pneumonia rarely approves itself, the opinion of a New Yorker who has been on an investigating tour that the cause of the New York mortality may be found in overheated houses and stores and vehicles and consequent bad ventilation. This investigator is not particularly original when he says that pneumonia is a disease which is particularly fatal in New York, but he is particularly truthful and what is true about the overheated and foul air of New York houses and stores and vehicles is true of the same kind of air in houses, stores, etc., all over the country.

GERMANY is no better pleased with the equivocal position of the Guelph ruler of Saxony-Coburg-Gotha than England is. Von Caprivi explained to the Reichstag that the double allegiance of the duke need cause no anxiety. "No German prince could be the subject of any foreign power." In like manner Gladstone explained to the house of commons that the duke would resign his position in the British navy, but would continue to draw his allowance from the revenues because it was impossible for him to give up his British nationality. It is true that these two statements are uttered at variance, but in that variance they perfectly agree on the only point of the least importance—namely, that the prince is to take in all the money he can lay hands on in both countries. That is what princes are for.

The musical prodigy "Blind Tom," who is known all over the United States, still lives concealed somewhere in New York city. He was kept in slavery years after the amendment which abolished slavery went into effect. His old master, and after his death his children, made enormous sums by exhibiting Blind Tom through the country.
Now, the state of New York is about to pass a law requiring the guardians of incompetent persons to make a yearly accounting, and make known to the court the earnings of such incompetent for that period. Blind Tom's mother is still living in poverty in Georgia, though she is 80 years of age. He has also eleven brothers and sisters; and it is proposed to secure some of the money he earned years ago, for his own use and that of his relatives. Tom has not lost his love for the piano, and it is quite likely that he may go through the country again giving musical entertainments.

It is full time that the United States government adopted a rational and comprehensive forestry system. The policy of reserving forest lands from settlement or private ownership has at last secured a firm place in the laws. The last administration reserved over 18,000,000 acres. The present administration has already added 4,500,000 acres to this area, and the total in forest reservations is not much below 18,000,- 000 acres. This is far from being the extent of timber land that should be put under government protection, but it may be considered settled that the reservations will be extended within a few years to include most of the remains of our forests. But it is not enough that forest reserves should be created. They must be rationally used if the country is to get the benefit from them. A forest can, to be sure, serve a useful purpose being let alone, for it preserves the watercourses and feeds the streams that irrigate the farms.
But the forest, besides this, can be made to furnish a perpetual supply of timber. The trees are a crop that should be harvested when ripe, and when cleared away should be renewed like any other crop.

The statement that the points of actually killing people has been reached in the Brazilian rebellion leads to the hope that the difficulty will be speedily adjusted. They are not accustomed to that sort of thing in South America.

The latest advocate of Bacon's authorship of Shakespeare avers that Bacon wrote also the works of Marlowe, Greene, Peele, Spenser and others. If Bacon began this task on the day he was born he did it all in sixty-one years.

ASTORY OF BLOOD.

BY M. E. BRADDOCK.

CHAPTER XII.—CONTINUED.

Gratifier went upstairs, followed by his two men. On the third floor there was a door half-open, and in the room within they saw a man sharpening his knives. The man looked up, and, seeing a stranger, was seized with an instant suspicion, and stretched out his hand to snatch up a sharpening knife, the first instrument of defense of which he offered himself. But Monsieur Gratifier threw himself upon him. "You are my prisoner," he said.

"Why do you arrest me?" cried the man.
"My name is Gratifier."

Dupont, one of the police-officers, had been injured as a hostage at the prison of La Sainte Eglise, Serizier's reign of terror.
He recognized the ex-devout colonel at a glance.

"You are Serizier," he said. "I remember you perfectly."

"Yes," answered the other doggedly. "I am Serizier. The game is up, and I know what I have to expect. But I have seen you fellows on the staircase, and now you should not have taken me alive."

He made no resistance, and was taken to the police-office, where he himself dictated his deposition. Thence again, after the usual formalities, he was sent to the Depot.

"My affairs are settled," he said to his custodians. "I have done enough to get my head washed in a leaden bath; but it's all the same to me. I regret nothing; I only did my duty."

CHAPTER XIII.

ATTEMPTED.

Kathleen's mission was accomplished.
There was no more to be done. She went back to the Rue de la Cour, broken in spirit and in body. She lay on her bed, and it seemed to her that her life was over.
One Sunday, a time of apathy and dumb, dull rest—restless, hopeless. There was nothing more for her to do in this life. She had given the victim over to his executioners. She was told that the end was certain. There could be no pardon, no commutation of the law's last penalty for such a wretch as Serizier. France would rise up with one loud cry of vengeance, and there was nothing for her to do.

The slow days wore on—dull gray days, storms of wind, driving showers, among the fog of November floating up from the neighboring river—and still Kathleen lay on the bed or the sofa, helpless, prostrate, exhausted, and fading away. Her body was pale, her face was thin, her eyes were sunken, and her hands were cold. She had given the victim over to his executioners. She was told that the end was certain. There could be no pardon, no com-
mutation of the law's last penalty for such a wretch as Serizier. France would rise up with one loud cry of vengeance, and there
was nothing for her to do.

"We will take her away directly the strong enough to go," said Rose.

The doctor thought that time would never come; but he held his peace, took his fee, and departed.

Rose and Philip watched the fading life in that quiet room on the upper story as devotedly as if the thread of their own lives had been intertwined with it. But their tenderness, their little plots and expedients, were all useless. They could not lure Kathleen from her solitude, or beguile her into forgetfulness of her grief.

"While I was watching for that man I forgot everything except the task in hand," she said; "I lived and breathed only for that. My brain was burnt up with one fory thought, and in those days I hardly entered for God. I hardly knew how much I had lost; but now I think of him, and brood upon him all day long."

"But if this goes on you will go mad, or die," said Philip, standing beside her sofa, looking down at her with honest earnestness, full of affection; "and that will break Rose's heart. Remember how she has respected you and cared for you! To her you are more than a common sister. She has been to you as a mother, and you owe her a final duty."

"Let her ask me anything, except to live," answered Kathleen. "I cannot live without him. O, she must let me go in charity; she will let me go—where I shall be at rest for ever, as he is. She has you and the little one. She can spare the broken I, for the little one; and it is your duty to live for her sakes. Your natural grief we would respect, Kathleen; but this inordinate grief, this excessive despair—"

"Had he died a natural death, I would mourn for him as for other widows mourn for their husbands; I would bow to the will of God. But he was murdered."

"And you have brought his murderer to justice. Is not that enough, Kathleen?"

"I wonder whether I shall live to hear his sentence; to know that he has suffered the murderer's doom," she murmured; "and then she turned her face to the wall, and would talk no more that day."

Rose and her husband began to despair.
They tried to think that Kathleen's vital power was ebbing day by day, gradually, imperceptibly. The loss of strength was only indicated by the facts of her daily life. Last week she had risen early every morning, and had slept and dined her room; with only a little help from Rose, who was ever on the watch to aid and comfort her. This week she could only crawl about a little, dusting Gascon's books, with tremulous hands, arranging and rearrang-ing his desk or his bookshelves, with a shivering nervous air. A little while ago she had lain on her bed or her sofa all day, as if in mere purposeless apathy. Now the time had come when she lay there from sheer weakness, broken down, fading before their very eyes.

They had gradually schooled themselves to hear to the end of the week. Philip Durand came past the little aromarie, which had once been Suzon Michel's, on his way home. It was between four and five, and already dusk, and he was started to see the door of the shop open and a light within.

While he stared, wondering whether a tenant had been found for the deserted house now that trade was looking up a little, Suzon herself emerged from the door within, followed by a man who blew out a candle, and came into the street, carrying a bunch of keys. The man was landlord, who had been making an inspection of the premises with the old tenant.

"Come, Madame Michel," he said, as he locked the door on the outside, "you cannot do better than take down the shutters tomorrow morning; no one will do so well as you in that shop, and now that business is brisk everywhere, you may make a better trade than ever. I shall not raise your rent."

"O, but monsieur is so generous!" cried Suzon ironically; "everybody knows that rents are going up in Paris."

"Well, I say it shall be the old rent."
"I'll think it over," said Suzon; "but it will be at least a week before I can decide.
Certain it is that I must do something; one cannot live upon one's savings for ever."

"It was a suicide to shut up such a shop as that, except for just the week of the barricade. But you are not half the woman you were. Madame Michel, the air of your present mode cannot agree with you."

He wished her good-evening and trotted away jingling his bunch of keys. Two minutes afterwards she met Philip Durand face to face.

"Yes, she was changed. The woman of the people, the Amazon, the petrel, was curiously subdued and softened. Some chastening influence had subjugated her vehement nature, and altered the expression of her countenance to a degree that was almost a transformation."

"Monsieur Durand!" she exclaimed, with a startled look; and then she said quietly, "I am a stranger in this neighborhood now. It is like coming back to an old life. How is your wife?"

"She is very well."
"And her sister—Madame Mortemart?"

"She is dying."
"Dying! That is a strong phrase."

"It is the truth. We have done all that care and love could do; but she is slipping away from us. I have no hope that she will last to the end of the month."

"What is her malady?"

"A broken heart."

"A heart is more common than doctors believe. It has never got over the loss of her husband?"

"Never."
"I suppose, though, she is glad that Ser-izier was taken the other day?"

"She was glad; it was her own work. She only lived to bring the murderer to justice, and that being accomplished, it seemed as if the meaning of her life was broken."

"She brought him to justice?" cried Suzon.
"What do you mean?"

"Simply what I say; Serizier's arrest was brought about solely by my sister-in-law; she watched and waited for him, day by day, for three months. It was she, and she only, who brought him to his doom."

"I read in the papers that it was a woman, but I thought it was a jealous woman—some discarded mistress, perhaps. And you say that it was she—that Mary-Ann girl who had been the murderer's lover?"

"She, and no other."
"And she is dying?"

"Yes, she is dying. The task weakened the sources of life; body and mind were alike exhausted by the long patient effort—unshared, unknown by those who loved her—and now a broken heart has done the rest."

"She shall not die!" cried Suzon, with a voice so loud that it startled the passers-by, who turned and stared at her. "No," she went on hurriedly, breathlessly, "if there is a God in heaven she shall not die. If there is no God, well, then this earth is a shamboles, and the innocent have no friend. She shall not die!"

"What can you do to save her?"

"Give her something to live for, give her some reason why she should live; and she shall live with me back to her, where the weary heart will beat strong with hope and love."

"You are mad!"
"No, I am not mad. Go and get a fit Can she be moved? do you think? Shall she be moved to a little way?"

"God knows. She is as weak as an infant."

"O, only go and get the carriage. We will manage it; we will carry her. Go! I have but to whisper in her ear, and she will have the strength of a lioness. Bring the carriage to the door; I will run out and see
your wife."

Durand thought she must be mad; but her earnestness, her energy were eloquent, and he obeyed her. In a cave so hopeless, any glint of hope was welcome. There was some sense in what she said, some reason in her plan. He scarce knew himself what he lured her to do, to change the first prowling fly he could find.

Suzon ran up-stairs to the third floor. She knocked at the door of Kathleen's sitting-room. There was a faint murmur of voices within, and she entered without knocking.
Kathleen was lying on the sofa near the fireplace, her wasted cheek white as the pillow on which it rested. Rose sat by her, bending over her, talking to her in low murmurs. The room was dimly lighted by a lamp on the mantelpiece.

Suzon went across the room and knelt by the invalid's side.

"It is I, Suzon Michel," she said, "the woman who once hated you, but who has since learned to pity you, and who now honors you.
Is it true that you tracked that wild beast to his lair? that when all the police in Paris had failed to find him, you hunted that tiger down?"

"Yes, I found Serizier. They say he will be shot."

"Serizier, yes, he shall be shot. The woman of the Place d'Indie—the people who lived in fear and dread of him, to whom his name was a terror—they will not let him escape, now the law has got him.
Madame Mortemart, will you come with me?
I want to take you to my home, yonder, close to the spot where your husband fell."

Kathleen started up into a sitting position.
It was like a sudden awakening to life, as if some magic wand had been waved over her, magnetizing the feeble clay.

"What?" she cried, "you live then? I thought it must be so, that night. Yes, yes, take me to the spot where he fell. Let me see it once more—once before I die. To me it is as sacred as a grave. I cannot go to his grave," she added despairingly.

"Dear love, you are too weak to stir." Philip Durand tenderly, with her arms about her sister's wasted form.

"She is not too weak to come with me.
She should come if she were in her grave-clothes. You can come with us—you can help me carry her downstairs. Your husband will have a fit ready. Yes," cried Suzon, running to the window, "it is there, at the door below. Bring some brandy in a bottle—wet her lips with a little first. A bottle of brandy, so," wrapping it round her as if she had been a child. "You are not afraid to come, are you, my little one? I have good news for you; at the end of the four-day," he

Do You Use Salt?

It will pay you in numerous ways to use the salt that's all salt. This is especially true as to the butter maker. You recognize a difference in butter. We can point you out a difference in salt. You strive for the best salt, why not search for the best salt? Test, compare, ask questions.

NORTHVILLE RECORD, Every Friday Morning, F. S. NEAL, PUBLISHER.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Lee Wager is home for a short time. Eugene Riggs of Richmond was in town this week.

Mrs. C. H. Ball of Chicago is visiting at C. J. Ball's.

Miss Mary L. Allan is visiting friends at Pontiac.

F. R. Beal left Monday night for a business trip at the "Geo."

Rev. Brunbridge of Novi was a Northville visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Darlington and baby Geraldine, spent last week at Grandpa Wain's, Novi.

Geo. Thurtell arrived in town Wednesday night. His father and mother are expected today.

Mrs. Agnes Charlesworth spent a few days last week and a part of this with her brother Harry Jooney.

Alex. McVittie of Detroit has sent the W. C. T. U. people here his check for $10 to help meet the last payment on their hall.

Ralph Buzzell is again a Northvillian and works in Peter Connell's shop. Ralph is probably the best artist that ever wielded a razor in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shields formerly of Lansing but now of Owosso were among Northville friends this week. Frank now takes charge of the new condensed milk factory at Owosso.

Auntie Sackett of Plymouth spent a few days last week with his cousin, Harry Sackett. Monday evening Harry was given a pleasant surprise by some of his Northville young friends.

Mrs. Yerkes and Miss Babbitt recite for the Presbyterian young ladies missionary society at Milford next week Friday night.

Mrs. Yerkes' junior class in physical culture and elocution gave a recital last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vowles, when the pupils and their friends to the number of sixty were present. The program included a dumb-bell exercise, singing and recitations, so nicely rendered that it was evident that the performers were apt pupils and that Mrs. Yerkes is a capable and careful instructor. —Milford Times.

Moved and supported that the annual village election occurring on the second Monday of March be held in the village hall.—Carried.

Moved and supported that the board of registration meet at the office of the village clerk.—Carried.

On motion the council appointed trustees Johnson and Rayson to act with the clerk as board of registration.

On motion trustees Wheeler and Johnson were appointed to act with the president and clerk as inspectors of election.

Moved and seconded that the board of election commissioners consist of trustees Wheeler, Rayson and Clark.—Carried.

On motion clerk was authorized to provide ballot boxes, stamps, etc., as prescribed by law of 1893.

On motion president Dubar was directed to effect an insurance on the tower clock against fire and cyclones, and to be left to his discretion.

Moved and supported that we transfer from the highway fund and place to the credit of the cemetery fund the sum of $45.—Carried.

On motion the marshal was directed to repair lock on outer door of council room.

On motion the fire committee were invested with all the authority vested in a chief of the fire department and requested to report at next regular meeting with recommendations upon fire department matters.

Moved and supported that the president and clerk be instructed to effect an insurance on the council room and engine house of $300 and $200 on fire apparatus.—Carried.

Report of clerk instructed at the last meeting to procure uniforms accepted and on motion committee continued, no further business.

Council adjourned.

Editor RECORD: I wish to make a suggestion to the milk buyers of Northville. The domestic economy of our homes can be so arranged that a sufficient quantity of milk may be taken Saturday to last the Sunday through. Emergency can easily be provided for by condensed milk, a good article being manufactured in our village. I believe in avoiding extra hours of labor for working people and I am interested in shortening hours when it can possibly be done. This ought interest every working man and woman, for if the hours in one department are shortened they will be in another. If your readers do not care for the religious side of the matter, they certainly must be interested in the social and industrial question here raised. Let us then say to our milkmen, "Leave a double quantity on Saturday and take Sunday like other Christian people."

My daughter has been afflicted with female trouble for over six years and I have paid out over $750 in vain trying to find relief for her. A lady friend advised me to secure a bottle of Dullam's Great German Female Uterine Tonic and she has been completely cured by it. We have it a fair trial and the results were wonderful. We cannot recommend it too highly to all ladies who are afflicted.

The lady Macabees hold a school of instruction here next Thursday.

The young men's meetings on Sunday afternoon are growing in interest.

The Baptist people realized $12 from their chicken pie social Thursday night.

Local pastors this week are taking in the big missionary conference in Detroit.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Criger died Sunday and was buried Monday.

K. O. T. M. assessment No. 54 has been ordered and must be paid on or before March 17.

For our poor entertainment at the Presbyterian church Monday night netted some $15.

Rev. M. Belding lectured before the Gold cure club last Friday night on "McGinty at the bottom of the sea."

The regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary club occurs Monday evening March 5. A good attendance is desired.

Rev. J. M. Belding lectures in the Farmington Methodist church tonight for the benefit of the Sunday school library.

Remember the social at the library rooms tonight. The association will serve coffee, doughnuts and music all for ten cents.

A man with a load of wood got stalled in a snow bank on Main street Tuesday and was nearly two hours in getting out.

Different thermometers in this village indicated from six to 12 degrees below zero at an early hour last Saturday morning.

The Columbia refrigerator employees presented Manager I. A. Beal and wife with a beautiful easy chair Saturday evening.

The Men's club will give a social Friday evening, March 9, at the ladies' library. An interesting musical and literary program will be followed by a light lunch. Proceeds to be used toward the purchasing of a cook stove for the library. Admission 10c.

J. M. Burgess is now chief of the fire department with Messrs. Clark and Johnson as assistants. The no-head-or-tail to the business at last Sunday's fire illustrated the necessity of some one being at the head of the department and until further arrangements are made the council have acted as above.

The W. C. T. U. people will liberally reward anyone who will furnish information that will lead to the conviction of one or more persons who have broken wine laws and otherwise damaged their health or do so in the future. Several windows, a door and some lamps have recently been broken and the ladies propose to put a stop to it if possible.

The evening of Washington's birthday was celebrated very successfully by fourteen of the "Old Maids" at the ladies' library, an equal number of the elect of our young men having come for the purpose of being entertained. A number of delightful games were indulged in, after which a delightful lunch was served. Altogether it was one of the most pleasant times of the year.

The children's carnival realized Presbyterian ladies $20.30. The w of Miss Pierce fell far below what anticipated and the Charles Smith continues to improve in health though slowly.

"Uncle" John Gardner has been quite sick this week but is now better.

Among yesterday's marriage licenses were Henry W. Holcomb 49, Detroit and Della Holcomb 21, Milan.

Nothing further has been heard from the Holderness Concert company and we do not know whether they are coming or not.

The telegraph service here is wholly unsatisfactory to the people of the village. Manager Lake is not supplied with a messenger boy and it frequently happens that important messages are delayed at the depot for hours because of no opportunity to deliver them. The office at the depot is a long distance from the business portion of the village and consequently it is very inconvenient for those who wish to send messages. The company should either put in an up-town office or supply the depot office with a messenger boy. The Record will take the matter up with the district superintendent and see what can be accomplished.

As Lew Hake and Alex. Daily with a load of logs got along by the railroad crossing just south of the village about 8:30 Wednesday night, Lew got off to walk up the track to the depot while Alex drove the team around the road. When nearly opposite the depot factory Hake either fell into a culvert or he was sand-begged and dropped in, anyway here he was found about 8:45 by a factory hand standing in the culvert in an unconscious condition. He was conveyed home and medical aid summoned and is now about recovered. There is a small bruise on the top of his head and a slight rupture of the skin on the forehead, and that is all. Hake has no recollection of the time he was in the culvert, but he was taken home about 9:30 and the night and this morning he was in bed.

SPECIAL.

A CORRECTION.

In correcting the proofs of the "Election Notice" and "Registration Notice" in today's issue of the Record, March 2, 1894, the election notice was made to read: "and continue open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon," when it should have read "from 9 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the afternoon," which it should have read from 9 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the afternoon. The notices correctly appear in this "special."

Election Notice.

To the Electors of the Village of Northville, County of Wayne, State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that the next ensuing annual election of said village of Northville, will be held on the second Monday in March, A. D. 1894, being on the 12th day of said month in the village hall, in said village. At which election the following officers are to be chosen, to wit: A village president; three trustees, two years; clerk; treasurer; assessor; street commissioner and constable.

The polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as may be, and continue open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dated at Northville, Michigan, this 1st day of March, A. D. 1894.

CHARLES R. STEVENS,
Village Clerk.

Registration Notice.

To the Electors of the Village of Northville, County of Wayne and State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Board of Registration of the Village of Northville, will be held at the office of Village Clerk. In said village, on Saturday the 10th day of March, A. D. 1894, for the purpose of registering the names of all persons who shall be possessed of the necessary qualifications of electors in said village, and that said board of registration will be in session on the day and at the place aforesaid from 9 o'clock in the forenoon until 5 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose aforesaid.

Dated at Northville, this 1st day of March, A. D. 1894.

CHARLES R. STEVENS,
Village Clerk.

VOL. XXV. MARCH 2, 1894. NO. 29.

The need of the publishers of the independent papers of the state and nation forming an association for mutual aid and protection, especially in legislative matters, is becoming more and more apparent. The political press is greedy, and from its truckling, servile character has advantages in legislative matters which truly independent papers do not possess, and can only gain by united and earnest action.

NORTHVILLE LOCALS.

March came in lamb-like enough. Village election one week from Monday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Ambler Feb. 19, a boy.
Shakespeare circle Monday night at the Presbyterian parsonage.

The lady Maccabees hold a school of instruction here next Thursday.

The young men's meetings on Sunday afternoons are growing in interest.

The Baptist people realized $12 from their chicken pie social Thursday night.

Local pastors this week are taking in the big missionary conference in Detroit.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crisler died Sunday and was buried Monday.

E. O. T. M. assessment No. 54 has been ordered and must be paid on or before March 17.

For our poor entertainment at the Presbyterian church Monday night netted some $15.

Rev. M. Belding lectured before the Gold cure club last Friday night on "Giddy at the bottom of the sea."

The regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary club occurs Monday evening March 5. A good attendance is desired.

Rev. J. M. Belding lectures in the Farmington Methodist church tonight for the benefit of the Sunday school library.

Remember the social at the library rooms tonight. The association will serve coffee, doughnuts and music all for ten cents.

A man with a load of wood got stalled in a snow bank on Main street Tuesday and was nearly two hours in getting out.

Different thermometers in this village indicated from six to 12 degrees below zero at an early hour last Saturday morning.

The Columbia refrigerator employees presented Manager L. A. Beal and wife with a beautiful easy chair Saturday evening.

No one seems to know who the village census committees are this year and if e prospects are the old committee will hold over.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Edith Taylor of this place, to John R. Chamberlain of Palmyra for March 8.

Miss Jennie Frazer and Mr. Blakeslee of Dr. Hal Curtis' fame were married on the stage at Chelsea Saturday night. Curtis gave them the receipts of the evening, $30.

The three old style of postal cards are now being succeeded by one only size which is just between the old medium size and the large size. It is cream in color.

FOUND. The following articles found about the village await an owner at this office: Pair overalls, small; ladies silk mitt; ladies kid glove, black pin; two purses.

A meeting of the Yarnall Gold cure will be held at the club rooms Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. All members are requested to be present as important business is to be transacted.

Mothers meeting next week Wednesday at 3 o'clock at the W. C. T. U. hall. The last meeting was interesting as well as profitable and was well attended. All ladies invited.

Cassie Coldron's dog went mad Sunday and before he was killed had bit a few other canines, a cat, hen and a pig. All were dispatched except the pig which has been confined in a strong pen by itself to await developments.

We are in receipt of an aluminum souvenir lead pencil from the Michigan store company. This company is the only one using this metal in the manufacture of stores and claim they can make a superior article in its use.

It was fortunate that there was a cellar under Charter's house to receive a part of the water during Sunday's fire otherwise the huge volume of water turned on it from the three streams would have floated it over the river.

Richardson sold the whole bushel basketful of combs last Saturday as advertised in the RECORD. People were calling for them yet this week, but they will learn by-and-by to promptly take advantage of a sale when it is on.

There will be a special meeting of the Uniform Rank, E. of P. in Richardson's hall tonight to prepare for the reception of the inspector general, and the inspection and installation of the division which occurs on the following Monday night.

Services next Sunday in the Presbyterian church as usual. Topics, morning: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Evening, sixth and last sermon on the Prodigal son. The preliminary exercises to be conducted by the Woman's Missionary society.

A few steady boarders can be taken in a private family. Centrally located, reasonable rates. Inquire at the RECORD office.

C. A. DOWNER, P. M.

The Menu club will give a social Friday evening, March 8, at the ladies' library. An interesting musical and literary program will be followed by a light lunch. Proceeds to be used toward the purchasing of a cook stove for the library. Admission 10c.

J. M. Burgess is now chief of the fire department with Messrs. Clark and Johnson as assistants. The no. baser of all to the business at last Sunday's fire illustrated the necessity of some one being at the head of the department and not further arrangements are made: the council have acted as above.

The W. C. T. U. people will liberally reward anyone who will furnish information that will lead to the conviction of the parties who have broken windows and otherwise damaged their hall, or do so in the future. Several windows, a door and some lamps have recently been broken and the ladies propose to put a stop to it if possible.

The evening of Washington's birthday was celebrated very successfully by fourteen of the "Old Maids" at the ladies' library, an equal number of the club of our young men having come for the purpose of being entertained. A number of delightful games were indulged in, after which a delightful lunch was served. Altogether it was one of the most pleasant times of the year.

The children's carnival realized the Presbyterian ladies $20.30. The work of Miss Pierce fell far below what was anticipated and the attendance the second night was unusually small. Mesdames Johnson and Barnhart are deserving of much credit for their untiring efforts in the work. The ladies are very thankful to the children who took part and to the parents who lent their aid.

It is a strange spectacle that has been going on in the United States senate at Washington for some time past—that of men bending all their energies to frustrate and defeat the plans of the chief executive of the nation, instead of giving their attention to the serious and important affairs of government, for which purpose they are placed in the high position they occupy.

Mrs. Parrish gave a pleasant reception to the ladies of the Methodist church and congregation on Tuesday afternoon. There were some seventy ladies present. A short program was rendered and light refreshments were served. The plays of the new Ladies Guild were announced and warmly endorsed. Look out for the work of the Guild, it is to include every woman in the church and congregation.

Frank Chapman came home from Detroit Wednesday and he is fast recovering his former strength. Frank says the clerk of the Perkins hotel showed him up to his room that night about 10 o'clock and he told the clerk he had no further use for the gas and to turn it off which he did and went down stairs. Frank says he never touched the gas jets at all and that the clerk is wholly to blame for the accident.

A discharged employee of the Standard pearl button factory at Detroit named Benner hit Foreman Wilburn Lake of this place with a brick on the back of the head as he was leaving the factory Saturday noon knocking him down. Wilburn was taken to the hospital and soon recovered. Benner had been discharged in the morning for disobeying orders, and for some reason laid in wait at the side entrance unknown to Lake and as he stepped on the sidewalk hit him unawares.

Joe Bartrum, L. H. Cypher and wife were up in the police court Monday afternoon charged with disorderly conduct, fighting and loud talk committed about four weeks ago. They all pleaded guilty, doubtless with the hopes of a light sentence, but Justice Chilson gave Cypher and his wife the full extent of the law so far as punishment was concerned. The former getting $20 or ninety days and the latter $5 or sixty days, though they plead with tears in their eyes for leniency. Bartrum got $10 or thirty days and paid his fine. Cypher and his wife went up. It is said that Cypher is of interest to some Lyon and Green Oak farmers in the missing of farm produce. He lived west of South Lyon.

"And departing,
leave behind us

MAKING TRACKS!

Footprints in the sands of time."

Well, it depends a good deal where we've been, some people like to cover up their tracks, and are mighty glad they can. Lots of people are making tracks round to the "Busy Big Store" every day, and the ever ready bargains we are giving in every department always attracts attention. We are "right in it" this season as to bargain giving and can make it very interesting for anyone who will favor us with their patronage. This week we want to call your special attention to the

SHOE DEPARTMENT:

We are going to have a Shoe Sale that is a Shoe Sale! This does not mean that we will hang out a shoe sale banner, and leave as a standing advertisement for a year or so; as this is no "chestnut" but on Saturday, March 3rd, we will place on sale six cases of Ladies' Shoes in cloth top; Bluchers cloth top Button square toe; and Kid top Button Opera toe, and all patent tipped and actually worth $2.00 and $2.25, regular price and close the entire lot at $1.25 per pair. All new stock, every pair came in this week. But we must not forget the gentlemen but give them some equally good bargains. Just for instance on the same day, will open 4 cases Men's Hook and Lace Calf Shoes, the best value ever offered at $2.25 and let them go at just $1.50 per pair. We invite you all to call on us twice a day next week, and departing leave behind two or three dollars in cash for four or five dollars worth of shoe leather. Lots of new goods coming daily.

T. G. Richardson, THE CASH-OUTFITTER.

NOVI.

Mrs. Walter Coats has purchased a fine upright piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooker Voygt are the proud parents of a young son.

Henry Gilbert of Gaines made a short visit to friends in this vicinity last week.

Mrs. Hulet and daughter Mrs. Rollace are spending a few days in Detroit.

The schools in West Novi and the Griswold districts both close this week Friday.

Miss Lulu Boger has been engaged to teach the spring term at the stone school house.

Tom Taylor has moved his family to Detroit where he will work this summer for Ferry & Co.

W. H. Mosier of Salem will lecture to the young people's Union in the Baptist church Sunday.

Clyde Putman lost a fine new milch cow last week. The animal helped herself to too much ground feed.

Revival meetings are being held at the Methodist church at Walpole Lake; Rev. White of Milford is assisting the pastor.

Hooper Vogt and wife have moved into a part of Mrs. Grace's house, as the loss of her husband left her entirely alone.

Our school closes this week for the spring vacation. Mr. Banks has had a large school this winter as well as a good one.

Quite a number of Novi people attended the camp-fire at Milford on the 22nd and report a very enjoyable time.

Andrew Shearers left Monday to accompany his mother to her home in Canada where he will spend a few days before returning to Novi.

Joe Smith who lives near South Lyon has been quite ill with sciatic rheumatism. Since he has been sick he has lost two valuable cows. They were taken suddenly and only lived a short time. Mr. Smith thinks he has more than his share of trouble.

The house of Ben. Bentley was burned to the ground last week Friday morning with nearly all its contents. It is supposed to have caught in some way from the chimney. They had been up in the night and built a fire, as Mrs. Bentley was suffering with a sore throat but after going back to bed had slept soundly, only awaking a few minutes before the roof fell in upon the room which they had occupied. There was time to save very few of their household effects which were not insured. The insurance on the house which was large and comparatively new was $1,000.

H. R. Babcox will lecture in the Novi school house Friday evening, 7 o'clock sharp, March 2nd, 1894. He will describe the kind of trees to buy. Also illustrate by blackboard the age of tree to plant. Why you get so many trees that do not succeed. This lecture shall be made as interesting to ladies as to gents. Come all. He will explain how to can all kind of fruit without cooking it longer than to heat it through, thus keeping the peach, pear, etc., in nice halves. He will also explain how to keep grapes fresh for winter use.

Last Saturday evening was the coldest of the season but the roads were perfect and the night very still and a good audience was present at the meeting of the W. N. D. club. The literary and musical exercises were short. Mr. Lucine Loverville of South Lyon was present and gave a short, though interesting, talk on some of the sights at the world's fair; also assisted in the discussion. Resolved that, "the repeal of the Federal election law will work injury to our government." The resolution was lost by a small majority. The program for March 8 consists of:

Song—A. N. Kimmis.

Reading—Lulu Harmon.

Recitation—Della Harmon.

Historical sketch on vice and fall of ancient Rome—Blanche Kimmis.

Song—N. A. Clapp.

Impromptu—R. T. Courter.

Reading—Jas. S. Sapp.

Critical report—Stephen Gage.

Musical—Alice Goughdon.

An Interesting Letter.

Following letter from L. Cass Woodman, was received by David G. Gage and read before the West Novi Debating club at a recent meeting:

My dear friends: What we least expect often proves an agreeable surprise. Let me hope it may be so in this case, as I proceed to surprise you with this friendly greeting penned from the green slopes of the far Pacific coast.

A dozen years or more have slipped from the horizon of time into the sea of eternity, since I had the pleasure of saying, "How do do, Dave," and revisiting the dear old scenes of my boyhood. Were I to come back now, I would doubtless find that father time had been busy with his lawmower, as he is elsewhere. Old playmates, friends and acquaintances have grown up, married, gone to other parts of the world. It makes me feel old to think of it. But what led me particularly to write you at this time is the interesting programs I read in the "Record" of the West Novi Debating club, that aggregation of choice spirits that has so long claimed you as its pillar and patron. The "Record" comes to me regularly, and I always look to see what vital question of society or state is being settled by the solons of the W. N. D. C. And what a host of memories it brings up! away back in the seventies! While other neighboring clubs and societies have been born, christened, had their little day, and sunk into "noxious desuetude," the grand old W. N. D. C., strong and lusty, perennial in its freshness and virility remains calm and undisturbed, doing business at the old stand, with a record of twenty years of usefulness. Members may come and go, move away, die, or be scattered in many lands, the old club stands firm, upheld by such pillars of strength as Messrs. Leavenworth, Johnson, Boger, Clapp, Kimmis and Gage. I should greatly like to see a historian appointed who would write up the history of the club from its organization to the present, and that history printed in the RECORD for the edification of many old members. It could be made both instructive and amusing if handled rightly. There must be records in my handwriting as early as 1873, and that was not the first by any means. I am sure we were disposing of questions of national importance in the most reckless and summary manner, long before that date, by the combined intellect of four townships. I congratulate the club on such a propitious entry into the year of 1894, and it goes without saying, "I would like to be there" some evening. A Patti concert would not keep me, if it were possible for me to come. Though far away, I bear unwavering allegiance to the W. N. D. C., and do the question debated what it may. I would say to each side as did Caesar to

Hannibal, when he started out to lick the Carthaginians, "soo et tu em."

As to myself, Friend Gage, I need say but little. The business of a U. S. deputy surveyor and engineer has but little that is novel or interesting. I am much impressed as I travel about in different parts of the state of the vast undeveloped wealth of the great state of Washington. Of this however you can learn more from the literature printed of the country than I could write in a month. I will close my letter by advertizing to the Puget Sound Indians, a species of the genus homo, which I have taken pains to cultivate and study as I meet them in my travels about the country. You who are familiar with that noble red man of majestic mien that Fenimore Cooper writes about, that painted and feathered brave of poetry and song, that woos and bears to his wigwag some dusky maiden, after sundry gory encounters with rival claimants, I say you who have that impossible ideal "injun" well fixed in your minds eye, I just wish you would take in the spectacle of a camp of "ornery," stunted, fish-eating, clam-digging, pot-bellied, Puget Sound Siwash Indians. Your Fenimore Cooper-Indian would be a god in comparison. Just why our coast Indians are so inferior to the inland tribes, I leave that question of ethnology to be settled by others. They are settled in various parts of the state on government reserves, and are fairly taken care of. One interesting custom they have is a "potlatch," wherein a Siwash, after accumulating considerable personal property: and money, as some of them do, distributes every thing he possesses among his tribe with impartial hand. This act raises him to the highest dignity that it is possible for a Siwash to attain. His tribe assemble at the appointed day, dressed in holiday costume, babies, dogs and all. They spend the day and sometimes two or three, in feasting and playing games, running races, and "hooping" or "up" generally, all at the expense of the host. At the close, all are seated in a circle, in the center of which is the host with all his earthly goods and chattels, guns, blankets, bolts of calico, handkerchiefs, cheap jewelry, and other things dear to the heart of a savage. These he very solemnly hands around, a la christmas tree, until all are gone. The grateful mob then raise a dismal howl which is meant to be a psalm of praise for the generosity of his royal nibs. This concludes the ceremony. After his guests are gone he pulls himself together and begins life all over again. Although poor he is conscious of being "Sack-lee-t-ee" (way up big chief) among the tribe ever after.

I must conclude this letter by telling you an amusing thing that happened to a friend of mine from an inland state, Colonel Blank, I will call him just for the story. Like all inland visitors to the Sound, the Colonel wanted to catch a big salmon. On our first trip out on the bay, luck was against him, we got only "fisherman's luck." On coming ashore, the Colonel spied a Siwash walking along Ocean Dock with two fine silver salmon weighing perhaps twelve or fifteen pounds apiece. "Say, old man what you want for those salmon?" says the doury colonel, at the same time making appropriate pantomime to further elucidate his remarks. "To dollar, hi-ay-close," says the gentleman from Stowashville, meaning (one dollar, very good fish.) "Six dollars and half my clothes?" yells Colonel Blank, "I'll give you two dollars and my undershirt!" After having a good laugh, I adjusted matters to the satisfaction of both parties, and the Colonel bore home the salmon to show his wife what he could do. Your old friend,

L. C. WOODMAN

She gave pointers to voters well worth their serious study.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WAYNE, J. S. S.

At a session of the Probate court for said County of Wayne, held at the Probate Office, in the city of Detroit, on the sixth day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, Present Edgar O. Durfee, Judge of Probate, in the matter of the estate of Harvey Aspegren, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Ambrose Roe, the administrator de bonis non with the will annexed of said estate, praying that he may be licensed to sell the real estate of said deceased for the purpose of paying the claims of said deceased and the charges of administering said estate. It is ordered, that the third day of March next at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said Probate Office, be appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license should not be granted to said administrator to sell real estate as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Northville Record, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Wayne. A true copy. Edgar O. Durfee, Judge of Probate.
