Wayne's "Jack the Peeper" has been caught and his person was recognized as that of a well known villager, inside of whom was a pint or so of an anti-gold cure brand of embalming fluid.

Cows are allowed to roam and pasture in the village of Newargo to such an extent that all the grass in the street is being eaten up and bicyclers and pedestrians are obliged to take to the fences.

By vote, the most popular young lady in Holly is Miss Emma Sargent. Em always was a sweet, pretty girl anyhow. She couldn't help it—been so ever since she was a dumpled rosy cheek babe.

Bravo! Good! We like that, now

At Wayne the democrats have nominated H. N. Collins for supervisor; W. H. Varney for clerk and Geo. Nash for treasurer. The republicans will try to elect Peter Wilson for supervisor, John Swegies for clerk and W. H. Brewer treasurer.

Milford Democrats will try to elect W. W. Crippin for supervisor, J. H. Wooten for clerk and Jas. Padley treasurer. The Republicans will endeavor to see that the supervisor elected is R. F. Bridgman, the clerk J. W. Stevens and treasure J. S. Hewitt.

The popular opinion is that if the Northville girl should let the grass grow under her feet some day her papa would have a pretty good sized lawn.—Pontiac Times

But a Northville girl never lets the grass grow under her feet. The Northville girl is a hustler.

Calkins & Adams, well known South Lyon business men, have assigned. They have $11,000 stock of goods and outstanding accounts amounting to some $7,000. Unability to collect the latter to a great extent led to the catastrophe. They will doubtless resume business in a short time.

Clarence English has returned to Northville to help editor Neil on the Record.—So Lyon Excelsior.

English has nothing to do with the Record except to sometimes set a few ads. He is at present foreman of the job printing department. It is alright however, all we object to is the spelling of our name with an "i."

If you borrowed it, I want you to bring it home. I mean my pipe wrench. This means you.

—G. J. SHAFER—in Dundee Ledger.

Now George we swear we never borrowed your pipe wrench. We have your hammer, snow shovel, saw-bucks and axe but don't lay everything on us. Look around Frank Menger's or Dell Browning's place. They used to borrow everything in the village that we didn't.

Following item from the Howell Democrat whose editor is an inveterate user of the weed that was taboored by little Robert Reed, leaves open no avenue for contradiction:

"Have you ever noticed that when a man drops a piece of meat on the floor, no matter how clean the floor may be, he will either give it a kick or pick it up and lay it to one side. He will never eat it. But let him drop his plug of tobacco on the street, no matter how dirty the street may be, he will pick it up, give it a careless wipe on his coat or on the bosom of his pants and then take a big chew from it with a keener relish than ever."

A SLICK LITTLE GAME

Practiced in Northville During Last November.

The second grand jury indictment against one F. J. Brooks at Columbus, Ohio, last week and the fact that Officer White was to have been in that city on the 26th when his present sentence expired and bring him here to answer to a charge of obtaining money under false pretense, recalls a drama enacted here last November. The real story, into which is mingled some little comedy, will be of interest and news to many of our readers even at this late day.

About the 15th of October last there arrived in Northville a sharp, shrewd, good looking gentleman, of about forty years. He engaged room and board at Mrs. Sessions' boarding house near the Yarnall Gold Cure. To this lady he imparted the information that he was a special detective and a man of wealth. His business here was secret and this would account for any seeming-unusual actions on his part. His manners and dress lent proof to his assertion of wealth and he was not long in getting acquainted with our business people and gradually won their favor. Nor did he delay in making known to them that he had just bought the well known "Dickey" farm near Pontiac for $12,000 and that he had besides this some 7,000 more elegant dollars in the Indian city's banks. On this farm he proposed to build a beautiful new residence and soon had the well-known builders and contractors, Bovee & Lundy, drawing plans and making figures for this castle on Straits Lake.

There were a few nice residences being finished in our village about this time and to the owners of these he gave particular attention. Being agreeable and a smooth talker, the owner of the "Dickey" farm and a nice bank account, he had no trouble in gaining the confidence of anyone whom he desired. After being here three weeks, on November 6, he told his landlady that he was going over to his farm that day and would bring back with him the following day, or the next thereafter, a nice Jersey cow for her use which he could have as well as not through the winter. He also arranged with the contractors to go over to the farm the next day to stake out the new buildings, and then just before going to the depot he happened to think he was a trifle short of money. He stepped into the State Savings bank where he found Mr. Simmons with whom among others, he was by this time well acquainted. His drafts from his Pontiac bankers had not arrived as expected that morning and would Mr. Simmons loan him $25 until he returned? Certainly he would. No one could refuse to accommodate the purchaser of the "Dickey" farm, who also had a $7,000 bank account. With a nod and a thank you, Mr. Brooks was soon aboard the F & P. M. train, but bound for what point will be told as our story proceeds.

Early the next day Messrs. Bovee & Lundy were enroute for the scene of their building on the "Dickey" farm and long before noon were discovered by the occupants of the farm home, as they drove a stake here or drew a line there, as a starter to the big job yet to be completed before the winter winds and December frosts should swoop down upon them. In the midst of their labors the farm-house door opened and forth from its portals walked Mr. Dickey himself. "What are you doing gentlemen?" he asked. "Staking out Mr. Brooks' new buildings," they replied. Mr. Dickey informed them he guessed they were on the wrong lay and that Mr. Brooks had not purchased the farm nor did he believe he ever had enough money to ever buy a seed potato. He had once been employed on the farm and thus knew all about it, and as he, himself, did not propose to build any new buildings, the gentlemen might as well re-embark for the "gem among the hills." To cap the climax and make the situation all the more ludicrous, Mrs. Sessions, who had been over to Pontiac happened along just at this moment thinking she would bring her Jersey milker along home with her. To say there was a disgusted trio, but faintly expresses it.

Here the chapter ends and the curtain falls. The next heard of Mr. Brooks was when he had been arrested down in Ohio for some confidence game. Papers are still in White's possession and when the Buckeye people get through with him he will be brought back here to the scene of his three weeks' rustication. Brooks' handsome young wife was with him here a portion of the time but she is said to be innocent of the knowledge of his many escapades, one of his last being the deeding to her of a $12,000 house and lot in Pontiac which he did not have.

Mrs. Sessions is still short her board money; Mr. Simmons his loan and the contractors their time and labor. There is no moral to this at all. It was simply a sharp, well played trick, practiced by a man skilled in the art, and the chances are that Brooks could have selected for his victims hundreds of others in the village under like circumstances. The only wonder is that he did not do so.

NOTHER NORTHVILLE FACTORY

They Will Manufacture a Pocket Fire Escape.

The newest Northville industry is the Michigan Novelty company, and they will manufacture a fire escape that will doubtless meet with much favor. It is small and light yet possessing the required durability. Each escape contains seventy feet of steel cable and will safely let a man, woman or child to the ground from the window of a tall building in case of fire, or jumping a hotel board bill.

E. Ross, who lately purchased the Debrae farm here, is interested with W. A. Wood in the enterprise and will push its manufacture and sale as rapidly as money and energy will admit.

A cut of the machine together with an advertisement will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Ross is one of the firm of E. Ross & Co. of Toledo. He is well known here and highly spoken of. The firm are perfectly reliable, worthy of trust and are prepared to fulfill every pledge and guarantee they make relative to the satisfactory workings of their patent.

NOTICE—Will the person who took the parcel from the post office one day last week please return it as they are known.

THE DEAD SINGER.

"She is dead!" they say. "she is robbed for the grave. there are lines upon her breast: Her mother has kissed her clay-cold lips, and to do her honor to the dead, they have hidden her hair a gold crown. Her grave is dug, and its earth is waiting to press her down."

"She is dead!" they say to the people, her people for whom she sang. Whose hearts she touched with sorrow and love like a harp with its chords strung. And the people sang and the tears came to their eyes as they thought of her dead. Another voice, like a mystic, proclaimed another world.

"She is not dead," it says to their hearts true and true as never dies. Their life is a voice of her thin s, unseen to the common eye. The truths and the duties are clear to them. God's light and the human wrong. The heroes who die unknown, and the weak who are enained and scourged by the strong.

And the people smile at the death word, for the voice is clear. The Singer was dead, it is always alive, we hear and always hear.

And they raised her body with tender hands, and bear her down to the sea. They lay her in state on the morning ship, like a hymn in the air. And they sailed across the sea, with the people who loved her, and the sea was like a harp with its chords strung. To lift her in state with hands all bare to her home forevermore. Her home in the heart of her country on a grave among the dead. Is warmer and dearer than living on in the strange lands abroad.

No need of a tomb for the Singer. Her fair hair is a crown. The land of her country, and the sky above her brow. Is the same that smiled and wept on her youth, and the same that wept on her death. With the church of the dead, and the church of the living, that cover her peaceful sleep.

Undreaming there she will rest and wait, in the tomb her people make. Till she hears men's hearts, like the seeds in spring, all come to be awake. And she will move, and the strain will be heard around the world. And then, I think, her dead lips will smile and her eyes be opened to see. When the cry goes out to the Nat on that the singer's land is free!

The Great Hesper.

BY FRANK BARRETT.

"I was nearly sound asleep when I noticed a sound coming from the window. It was as if someone were rapping upon the glass—not loudly, or quickly, but softly, as though with the tip of the finger, and at intervals. I might have counted twenty or thirty between one rap and the next. I to-k little notice of it at first, thinking that as I had left the window partly open, it might be the wind moving the Venetian blind, but after a while the persistent rap—tap—tap, irritated me. I rose and lit a candle, then I went to the window. The lattice was just as I had left it. The blind hanging perfectly motionless. I drew it up and looked out. There was a gray mist everywhere. Not a breath of air stirred. The flame of the candle burned as steadily as though the window had been closed. I let down the blind and listened, there was not the slightest sound."

"I thought on the going," said Sir Edmund, "this have worried me in the same manner. Then you got a night and the next steps."

"And on we went," said the Judge, looking at Miss Lascelles impatiently, his eyebrows drawn, but over his quick eyes.

"I put it as you do papa. I put out the light and I tried to sleep. I heard no sound for quite ten minutes, and then again that soft slow rap—tap—tap, from the window. I was so sure, and with the same long interval between them. It was not like the beat of a moth's wing. It was like the touch of the tongue of a human finger. But I tried to think it was an insect in the wall—the insect that is called the 'death watch.' And I did not best to take no notice of it, but I could not help hearing it, and after a time I grew frightened, and the sound grew dreadful in my ears. It became unendurable. I could not lie there listening passively. I got up again and struck a match. The Wick of the candle was slow to light, and during these moments I noticed that the sound had ceased. As I sat, I was frightened—very frightened. And the unbroken silence seemed more terrible than the sound. There was something ghostly and supernatural about it. That brought back the old terror I used to feel as a child in passing the room that is said to be haunted at night. And just then the clock in the lobby struck. I dared not go to the window. The first thing that struck me was that the lattice of the blind, instead of being flat, as the blind had been when down and as I had left them, were opened and turned edgewise—do you know how I mean?"

"He had his hands that trembled, with the recollection of her terror, one above the other horizontally."

"But the next thing," he continued, and then stopped, with a shudder, while he who listened held our breath—"the next thing I saw was two great black eyes that caught the light from my candle in between the lattice of my blind."

"She paused, and then continued with a refinement—"

"I think I fainted—I must have done so, for I was conscious of nothing after that until I found myself upon the floor. The light was still burning upon the table. As I recollected, returned to me, I looked toward the window. The lattice were no longer opened, but turned flat. Then it occurred to me that all I had seen was merely imaginative—that it was merely a realistic dream—that I had gone through these experiences in my sleep. My great terror was gone. I went without fear to the window to ascertain if the light was as I had seen it. There was the gray mist the flame of the candle did not flicker. Nevertheless, when I looked down and saw how impossible it was for anyone to have stood outside the window, I felt convinced that the vision of the eyes too was imaginary—an outcome of the fear I felt when I looked toward the window. I lay down again, and though

I could not sleep for some time, I heard no further sound whatever, save the chiming of the clock."

"Is it not very probable, my dear," said the baronet, "that the sound you speak of was also the outcome of fear?"

"I had no fear when I first went to the window. The sound was a reality. It is that I wish explained."

"Do you know what time it was when the tapping first began, Miss Lascelles?" Van Hoek asked.

"It was a quarter to one by my watch when I recovered from the fit."

"May I ask, miss, without offense, if a thing of this kind has ever happened to you before?" asked the Judge.

"As a child I was timid, but I can not ever remember being so frightened."

We all went out on the lawn which faced that part of the building in which Edith's room was situated.

On the way Van Hoek, who had taken my arm for guidance, gripped it tightly and whispered—

"What did I tell you? This is the beginning of the end."

CHAPTER VI.

It is necessary for the reader to know what kind of building Monkton Abbey was, and something of the disposition of the rooms, in order to follow clearly the action of the drama that took place within its walls. I can do no better than to give the description by which I brought the facts home to the comprehension of my blind partner.

"Tell me what you see Thorne," he said, as we stood on the lawn.

"An old Gothic building, flanked by two later additions in the Tudor style, that project beyond it."

"The great door is the center of the old part, the dining-room is on one side, the library on the other. The floor above is occupied by the picture gallery. It has a gable roof, and the belfry rises from the middle. The block on the right and that on the left are alike. The ground floor is divided into drawing-rooms, sitting-rooms, etc."

"Where is the dairy, and the door that is left open at night for the maid?"

"At the back of the house. It can not be seen from here."

"I, that in the right block or the left?"

"In the right the kitchen is in the left. On the first floor are the principal bedrooms, the servants' are above. Our rooms are in the right block. Sir Edmund's and Miss Lascelles' are in the left."

"What means of communication are there?" For instance, how could Sir Edmund get to your room?"

"By simply passing through the picture-gallery."

"I understand go on."

"There are two small windows and a bay in the end of the left block facing us as we stand here."

"The oriel on the left," I continued, "projects from Sir Edmund's room, that on the right from Miss Lascelles' room. There are stone mullions at the ends of the oriel, and lattice work over the bay, hung inside with Venetian blinds. The oriel is supported by columns. They are perfectly inaccessible from the ground except by a ladder."

"But from the story above?"

"There are no windows over the oriel. The only means of descent would be a rope from the roof."

"Do the windows open?"

"Yes."

"And what distance is there between the windows in the bay and Miss Lascelles' window?"

"Seven or eight feet at least."

"And the wall between is perfectly flat?"

"There is a stone molding runs along parallel with the floor of the first story and the base of the oriel."

"Why didn't you tell me that?" he asked sharply.

"Because it is perfectly impossible for anyone to walk along it."

"What width has it?"

"A few inches. It seems to be merely a stone gutter to carry off the water from the oriel."

"Is there no ivy on the house—nothing to catch hold of?"

"There is no ivy, but there is a pipe midway between the bay and the oriel. It descends from the gable to the gutter."

"What and you tell me it is impossible to get from the bay to the window?"

"The pipe is four feet from the bay and four feet from the oriel. Now, suppose I got, for I know whom you suspect, out from the window in the bay, she would have to advance holding to the mullion of the window for support, and with one hand only until the other could touch the pipe, a span of four feet."

"Four feet that is not impossible, unless the girl is short limbed."

"It is impossible, in holding to the mullion or the pipe the girl had to support part of her own weight."

"me a plan of the rooms, roughly and broadly, showing their relative position to the stairs, the bay, and the picture-gallery."

I complied with his request, marking the several parts with figures, which I explained to him."

CHAPTER VII.

But I was still incredulous. How was the girl hiding in the woods all day to know of the existence of the ledge? It was true she had access to the house at night, but I doubted if it were possible for her to see the ledge in the dark even from the bay window. But admitting the possibility, would she risk her life for no purpose but to alarm Miss Lascelles? There was too much strength in Lola's character for such a senseless and feeble device to be acceptable to her. It was not the act of a rational being, but of a mischievous or malevolent idiot.

I was inclined to believe that the explanation Miss Lascelles had offered was a just one, and that what she had seen was purely imaginative and the result of fear, inspired by those mysterious sounds which might yet be explained.

This was not Van Hoek's opinion. "I will not say the Kid has done it," he said; "there's no saying what greaser blood will not do. For the sake of argument, we will say she did, but I undertake she shall not play the same tower twice, if her father's persuasion counts for anything," and he went off at once to search for Lola in the wood.

When we were alone, Van Hoek said: "Ask Sir Edmund; he will tell you, as he told me, that Brace was in the woods yesterday, while you were phantasmagoria with Miss Lascelles. What was he there for but to find his daughter and employ her in working out this plot?"

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, losing my temper, "what notion have you got hold of now? Last night you suspected Sir Edmund—"

"I would suspect any one who has the opportunity to possess himself of such a treasure as you hold. Do you blame the man who protects himself when his life is in danger? That diamond is life to me! What could I do if it were lost? You hold that diamond—my life—in your keeping. You are bound to take every precaution for its safety. You have no right to despise my warning because it does not agree with your reckless trust in humanity."

"What possible connection can there be?" I asked, "between the safety of our diamond and the event of last night?"

"A palpable connection. The event of last night was an abortive attempt to obtain the diamond."

As I heard this, and looked at Van Hoek, I almost doubted if he were in his right mind.

"The plot failed," he continued, "because the girl took the room."

An incredulous exclamation escaped me.

"You shall hear me," he muttered, sketching his aim to the right and left until he entered mine with his hand, and then of which it lightly, "you shall see—with my eyes, if not with your own. You have heard that the girl could know nothing of the disposition of the rooms, but she might receive instructions from her father. He went into the wood to give her those instructions yesterday. Look at your plan!"—he handed me the diagram I had drawn at his request. "Brace, having his room at the back of the right block, would naturally tell her that when she got to the top of the stairs she was not to pass through the picture-gallery, but to go straight to the landing over the stairs she had ascended, open the window in the bay, which would then be on her left hand, and make her way to the oriel facing her. That, according to his calculation, would bring her to your window."

"Certainly."

Wide Way of the Tobacco Habit.

The latest statistics prove that more than two-thirds of the grown male population of the globe use tobacco in some of the many forms in which it is taken.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion, or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they go on, alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or overworked, or busy doctors, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, there are all only symptoms caused by some common cause. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, if the Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause, would have quickly removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

The lady whose portrait heads this article is Mrs. Ida Coventry, of Huntsville, Logan county, Ohio. She had an experience which we will permit her to relate in her own language. It illustrates the foregoing. She writes: "I had 'female weakness' very bad in bed most of the time, dragging down pains through my back and hips; no appetite; no energy. The family physician was treating me for 'liver complaint.' I did not get any better under that treatment so I thought I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I felt better before I used one bottle of each. I continued their use until I took six bottles of each. In three months time I felt so well I did not think it necessary to take any more. In childbirth it does what Dr. Pierce recommends it to do—lessens the pain and peril to both mother and child and shortens 'labor.' I would like to recommend Dr. Pierce's Extract of Sarsaparilla to those who have never tried it; it surely is the best thing for cholera morbus, or pain in the stomach I ever used. It works like a charm. I try never to be without it."

The following is from Mrs. Harriet Haras, of Montpelier, Idaho: "I have enjoyed better health since I began treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for leucorrhoea and uterine debility than I have for sixteen years. I am cured of my trouble, and now weigh one hundred and sixty pounds, whereas my weight for many years stood at one hundred and twenty-five pounds. With pleasure, I remain."

Yours truly,
Mrs. Harriet Haras

The following is from Mrs. M. A. McCallister, of Lim Rock, Jackson Co., Ala.: "I was in bad health; age was working upon me, and I had occasion of the same; could not get about. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it cured me; I felt ten years younger. I have not had any return of my trouble. I am the mother of thirteen children and I am fifty-three years old. Have answered my weight for many years stood at one hundred and twenty-five pounds. With pleasure, I remain."

Yours truly,
Mrs. M. A. McCallister

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, general housekeepers, and overworked and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent specific for all those chronic weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful general as well as uterine, tonic and nerve, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It cures weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, nervous prostration, hysteria, debility and sleeplessness. A Treatise (160 pages, illustrated), on "Female Weakness and Diseases," sent sealed in plain envelope, on receipt of ten cents to pay postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 100 N. 3rd St., Buffalo, N. Y. It contains a vast number of testimonials with half-tone photographs of portraits of their authors and gives the full address of each.

Leaving the little things undone; units us for the great things.

The Modern Way

Comments itself to the well-informed to do pleasantly and thoroughly what was formerly done in a crude and inefficient and disagreeable way. To cleanse the system and remove colds, catarrhs and other ailments without resorting to surgery, use the celebrated Liquid Catarrh Remedy, Syrup of Euc.

It is as easy for a tall man to be tall as it is for a short man to be short.

Better Than a Gold Mine.

Farmers wishing to make the most of their land should send 25 cents to C. E. Cole, Burlington, Mo., for large starting package and free catalogue, telling all about it and what a portion of 20,000 farmers who have tried it and out of the Union think of it. Mature north or south in four months. Produces over fifty bushels per acre. Most healthy and nutritious.

It is the province of a wise man to bear poverty with equanimity.

That old established cough remedy, "Brown's Elixir," still more than holds its own in the public estimation, despite sharp and active competition. It is a home remedy, and in this locality needs no words of praise from us, so well and favorably known as it is. It is the standard remedy for coughs, colds and all throat troubles with great numbers of our people and their continued use and unhesitating recommendation of it speaks volumes in its favor. —Burlington, Vt., Free Press, January 20, 1892.

Defenses Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a humming sound or imperfect hearing. It is not a permanent condition, but it can be cured by the use of the Eucalypti Catarrh Remedy, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will not charge Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Eucalypti Catarrh Remedy. Send for circulars, free. J. C. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Will Safford has purchased a laundry at Caro and will remove there next week. Will is an industrious, upright young man and we are sure he will meet with good success in his new field of labor. He has been in the employ of the Globe furniture company for a number of years past. He was also a leading member of the Northville cornet band and since 1890 has been ticket seller at the opera house.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Stewart celebrated their silver wedding on the 20th inst. There were about one hundred guests present and a most enjoyable time participated in. The presents were numerous and beautiful. The amusements were music, games, etc. The elegant supper served by the hostess was an enjoyable affair. Those from abroad were Mesdames French, Speck, Griffin and Mr. and Mrs. Wahl, Detroit. Mrs. Gartherat, Columbiaville.

Washington correspondence in Wednesday's Free Press has this to say of a former well known Northville boy: "Kernel R. Babbitt, formerly of Northville and now a prosperous attorney of the bustling mining town of Cripple Creek, Col., is in the city and called on the post-master general today. He has the removal of the present republican post-master of Cripple Creek in his mind's eye. Mr. Babbitt was a staunch Democrat in Michigan and is still of the same political faith, but he is the law partner of Life Pence, the Populist member of congress from Colorado."

One who has tried it tells us that common alum, melted in an iron spoon over the hot coals, forms a very strong cement for joining glass and metal together. It is the best thing for holding glass lamps to their stands, or for stopping cracks about their bases, as kerosene does not penetrate it.

A man calling himself one of Cleveland's cabinet called at the house of a thinking, as he undoubtedly was, an escaped inmate.

The RECORD office received orders for job printing last week from Novi, Hartland, Wixom, Rockwood and Toledo parties. It all came unsolicited and with two exceptions all were duplicate mail orders. This speaks well for the satisfactory manner in which Northville's print shop does work.

N. H. Power and family moved over from Farmington this week and are now settled in the Blair house on South Wing street. Mr. and Mrs.
Power are not entire strangers to Northville people and they will be warmly welcomed. Mr. Power is U. S. mail clerk between Detroit and Chicago.

Mrs. Alvin Brown died Wednesday evening at the home of her son Frank on North Center street. Mrs. Brown was a former resident of Farmington, where they had resided for many years previous to moving to this village about two years ago. She was an elderly widow lady and highly respected by all who knew her. The funeral occurred at eleven today. The interment was at Farmington.

Frequently our exchanges of the non-partisan class complain—justly enough of course—because the county boards of supervisors and others award them little or no share of the public printing. If the publishers of these independent papers, and we are with them, would assert their independence by combining themselves into an association, thus being in position to influence and control local and state legislation, we could bring about a change in this respect and receive the recognition we are entitled to. As it is now outside of the "in-the-swim" county seat papers no other paper gets anything as a rule except what is obliged to be given them.

Friends from a distance mailing us copies of papers will please mark any paragraphs which they wish us to especially see. Our weekly mail is altogether upwards of 100 papers and of necessity some of them can not be given more than a glance. A marked passage will quickly catch the eye however.

Advertised letters this week are for:

Mr. Fred Lawrence.
Mr. Eben Page. (3)
Mr. Wm. Smith.
Mr. W. F. Smith.
Mr. Harry Townsend.

Mrs. Magill sends us copies of Los Angeles, California, papers; also a dozen or more beautiful blossoms clipped from plants which grow wild there, including hyacinth, rose, zenia, cactus, morning glory, pansy and many others which our deficiency in botany deprives of mentioning.

We notice that the Salem republicans have again placed Fred Wheeler in nomination for supervisor. He has certainly made a very efficient town officer the past year and should be re-elected by a large majority. A supervisor's service to a township is worth a great deal more after he has had a year's pull at the ropes, and it is poor policy to make a change if everything is satisfactory.

The flopping back again to the republican ranks of that flopper, ex-Mayor or Thompson of Detroit, is about as much gain to that body as is the loss to the democrats. We haven't much use for that kind of a politician. Gresham was a rank republican till he found he couldn't get an office and then he became a democrat to get a fat cabinet position. These are our views on the subject at least. A private citizen may change his politics as often as he likes without fear of comment, but when a politician and an office seeker does it, it may as a rule be decided it is for some particular gain.

When you come in out of the rain don't plump your nice silk umbrella, ferrule down, into the umbrella stand unless you want to ruin it. That lets the water and tiny specks of grit run down into the lining under the iron ring that secures the ribs and it stays there making the silk tender and rots
it. Neither should you leave the umbrella open to dry as that stretches the silk and makes it stiff and it will soon split. Shake it well, then close it and stand it handle down where the water will run off. Never set an umbrella or parasol away tightly folded, it will split out just as soon again.
Leave the folds to lie loosely.

Among the most interesting entertainments held in the village each week, is the meeting of the Northville bible class. The class now numbers upwards of thirty members, under the leadership of Dr. Swift. They meet every Tuesday evening in Swift's hall over the post office. Anyone interested in bible study may attend. The expense is nominal. Interesting papers are prepared and read each week by some one of the class, one of the most entertaining and carefully arranged ones of the year being that by Miss McConnell this week on "The Sabbath." Next Tuesday evening Miss Alexander reads a paper on "The Serpent" and Mrs. Bovee one on "The Cherubim."

When the RECORD circulated an early closing paper among the merchants last fall we met many obstacles, chiefest of which was, "Oh, they won't live up to it;" "It won't be a success;"
"My neighbor will keep open after hours," etc. After two weeks labor however we finally got the signature of every merchant. Now we want to say the early closing movement was a decided success. There has been practically no complaint, and no breaking over of the rule. Tonight the contract is fulfilled and after that time stores may be kept open all night if the proprietors so wish. The RECORD thanks them for their co-operation and renews the offer of itself to them and to advance the interests of the village or town.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shaffer March 17, a boy.
M. A. Porter is the possessor of a new '94 Victor flyer. It weighs twenty-eight pounds and has all the latest improvements.

The Epworth League here numbers 140 members including the junior department. The Christian Endeavor society numbers eighty; the B. Y. P.
U. about fifty. We were therefore in error in stating the C. E.'s were the strongest in numbers.

NOVI.

Jas Sedon is on the sick list
John Shuler has moved to Mt. Pleasant.
Jas. Taylor has returned from his Detroit visit.
Mr and Mrs. Chas. Wight are visiting in Saginaw.
The March "lion" has been showing his teeth to some purpose lately.
Miss Wallace of Oxford will commence school here next Monday.
G. B. Cady and A. J. Farmer of Detroit are visiting H. B. Wight.
Wm. Safford and wife of Northville were the guests of R. Toneray Sunday.
Mrs. John Becker has returned from a week's visit with friends in Detroit.
Emmet Harmon recently tagged 276 sheep for John Thompson in about ten hours.
Roblin & Parker are at work getting ready to put in the boiler recently purchased.
Mr and Mrs. Adelbert Hake of Commerce Sunday with their uncle M. Footland family.
Miss Nina Clark and Mr. St John of Milford were the guests of G. H. and Lizzie Taylor Sunday.
Mrs. Geo. Dennis is soon to undergo treatment for cataract, with which one of her eyes is affected.
Walter Coates has rented his farm to Oliver Hammond. Mr. Coates will move into Jas. Deveraux's house.
The remains of Addison Shurthoff of Manistee, an old resident of Novi, were brought here Monday for interment.
Thirteen young people gave Miss Lizzie Taylor a surprise last Friday evening and all had a very pleasant time.
Ham Jones moved his family to town Monday. He is improving the looks of the store by putting in a new floor and painting and papering.
J. H. Thompson left for Lansing Tuesday where he will work for G. R. Malone as advance agent in selling maps of Palestine. He expects to go to Indiana.
Novi was well represented at the Mozart quartet concert at Northville last week. There were fourteen or fifteen from this vicinity among the audience.
The Novi ladies will serve dinner in the dining room of the Baptist church on Monday next to as many of the voters of the township as wish to patronize them.
There seems to have been a mistake about the monument that was put in the cemetery for Mark Hance. It weighed nine tons in place of three as stated last week.
Easter services were held at the Methodist church last Sunday evening with a full house, and with the decorations and a good program the time was profitably spent. There were no services at the Baptist church, all uniting to have a good time.
Rozina, wife of A. D. Baker, died March 20. She was seventy-two years old and was an old resident of Walled Lake. The funeral services were held here in the Baptist church March 22, Rev. N. C. Brundage officiating. The remains were placed in the Novi cemetery.
The N. P. L. meeting at the hall Tuesday evening was a success. The hall was well filled and Mrs. Dawson gave a splendid address. She is a person of large experience and pleasing manner and it pays anyone to hear her speak. Next meeting at J. Leavenworth's April 3.
John Smith has gone on a visit to Pennsylvania to be gone most of the summer. F. E. Quigley will manage the farm. Quig has been expelled from order of the "Sons of Rest" and will not "bate the drum" any more. He has become a full fledged farmer and for a while is monarch of all he surveys (and plows) thereby fully explaining the thriftness of the which. See?

One more line of excitement may be added to the events of quiet Novi. On Saturday night last, while two young couples were having their private little chat to themselves, there appeared all of a sudden to interrupt them a little wood carrier in his evening jacket, making the young men blush while the other two faces sent up a blaze that lit the whole room. It is wondered now which had the most reason for blushing the young couples or the woodbearer.

The prohibitionists have nominated the following ticket: Supervisor L. L. West; clerk Geo. H. Taylor; treasurer Geo. Hogle, justice A. F. Chambers; school inspector R. J. Parker; hy. com. Theo. Clutz, mem. bd. of review, J. Leavenworth, C. M. Thornton; drain com. P. J. Taylor; constables, W. S. Hogle, John Webb, A. B. Roblin, B. B. Power.
Last Saturday night was one of the most disagreeable of the season, but quite a number of folks were at the W. N. D. club. As very few of them having parts on the program were present and the entertainment was made entirely a musical one. Master Johnnie Green, of Wixom, who has entertained the club before with his fine violin music, gave the "Hokey-moon waltz," "Fisher's hornpipe" and "Opera reel" followed by Mr. Clapp with several songs—"Away Down South," "Old and Gray," "Bobbing Around" and his famous "Cork Leg." Mr. Gage performed his part by giving "Money Musk," "Bonaparte's March," "Irish Washerwoman," St. Patrick's Day" and "Chunks O' Cold Pudding." Steve Gage accompanied the violinists by playing the organ. All the performers were repeatedly encored by the small but appreciative audience. No program was submitted for next Saturday night as Mr. Lovewell of South Lyon will occupy the time by a world's fair talk.
WIXOM.
Chas. Arnold has moved to Carleton.
Mrs. Stage has gone out beyond Fowlerville to visit her sister.
Dolph Stevens has got to leave the city of Wixom because of no empty house for him.
Elder Haggerty packed up this week to move to Indiana. He starts today, Friday.
"Dick" McGuire is going to South Lyon to run a meat market. He begins the first of April.
E. Burch is building an addition to his house that he bought of Mrs. Brown. It was too small for himself and family.
Frank Madison has sold his house and lot with shop to Mr. Martin of Northville. He gives possession the first of May.
Our school is closed this week for vacation. They had a concert Friday evening to help buy an organ for the school house. Fifteen cents was the admission. They got thirteen dollars.

The Sons of Rest Parade.

Bif, bang, wint th' guns, as th' Boys they marched along, wid a "Fresh Bread" banner floatin' over, just twinty thousan' strong. Th' sensation they created wud go our great Dathroit proud, such yells, an' screams jec never hured as they struggled thru th' crowd. Th' sight was splended an' its loike was never seen, since Or left me dear old Orland wid its dear old sod-of green. "Strump" Sage he rode befor them wid Jim. Divro at th' rear, each seated on an arcent mule which has hved for many a year.
Each number wore a badge made of shap-kin wid its wool. It made me think of me boy-hood days when Or roost to go to school. 'Twas sewed ought over th' state of their pants, to cushion chairs, don't ve know, fur when it comes to skames loike that, th' "Sons" are never slow.
Tin hundred banners wid mottos all aglow floated gaily in th' breeze, as they quickened th' step to in banquet hall fur their meat on bread an' cheese. When all th' num had gathered in their ad over Toneray's store, they sings an ode specially written for the Sons a Rest galore.
The speeches at th' avenue wud monde bo min as brams. Nevt Wixom made the grandest, (he s th' ran as many ane-) Mid th' d'n as crackin' peanut shucks, they calls fur Chas. Rice, he s th' songster from th' hill tops, (wid all th' girls so noice.) Well, this was th' way th' Sons a Rest finished up th' big parade, an' be gum, it puts our many celebrations away o' in th' shade. Thn hooray fur every mother's son, who belong to th' Sons a Rest, and may their days be many an' all their efforts blest F E Q

FARMINGTON.

School has closed for a week's vacation.
Dr J. J. Moore was in Detroit last week.
Mrs. M. A. White is quite poorly again.
Miss May McCracken of Detroit is home for a few weeks.
Clifford Allen has returned home after an absence of several weeks.
Miss Ida Steele teacher at Inkster is enjoying a short visit at home with her parents.
Mrs. Lyman Spencer is quite sick at the home of her daughter Mrs. Cetella Murray.
J. G. Frances and wife attended the funeral of the latter's sister in Detroit last week.
Mrs. Wm. McDermott and niece, May Ellis, have returned from their Saginaw visit.
Chas. Button and wife entertained a company of friends last week Wednesday evening.
Eugene Power and wife were the guests of Mrs. Lotta Serviss and daughter Julia last Sunday.
Miss Eva Hill will entertain her Sunday school class at her home this Friday evening.
Those who attended the Sunday school convention at Pontiac last week report a most enjoyable time.
Mrs. E. C. Grace and daughter Lulu spent part of the week at Howell the guests of Mrs. C. H. Morgan.
Wm. C. Smith of Livonia and Miss Edith M. Edwards of this place were married Wednesday evening.
The members of the Methodist church and Sunday school together with the temperance society gave Miss Eva Hill a surprise party the evening of the 22nd at her home. Although the night was stormy the arrangements were fully carried out. Miss Hill and friend Miss Rhoda Sherman attended prayer meeting and while there the company assembled making the surprise complete. After refreshments, consisting of pop corn and candy, a beautiful rocking chair was presented to the hostess by Wm. Smith as a token of regard from her many friends. It was accepted with such thanks as only comes from a joyful and surprised heart.

The Eastern exercises held Sunday evening at the Methodist church were largely attended and the program well executed.

Quite a number of Farmington people will attend the wedding of Miss Lizzie M. Harger, a former resident of this place to Mr. Teague of Detroit which will occur Tuesday at the home of her parents in Detroit.

The drama and literary exercises held last week Friday and Saturday evenings at the town hall under the auspices of the high school were largely attended and the general verdict, success. Proceeds of the two evenings amounted to about $26.

Rufus Thayer of Manistee is spending Easter holidays with his parents. Richard Roberts and family of Brighton spent a couple of days with his sister, Mrs. Jas. Merritt, last week.

Miss Edith Allen of Holly, who is at present attending school in Detroit, spent a part of the week visiting here.

Station Agent Perkins and his mother are about to move in the Methodist parsonage, and occupy a part of it.

The closing Evangelistic services were held at the Congregational church Sunday evening. It was a largely attended and impressive meeting.

Engineer Smith of Dean's mills will move here with his family from South Lyon next month, and occupy the house at present rented by Mr. McHale.

Any one desiring to purchase some farm wagons, water tanks, span of horses, etc., it will be to their advantage to see Margaret Frederick of Salem.

Some half dozen or so young men have caught the bicycle fever, and it looks as though there may be a club here before long. One may be needed to keep some of them on the machines.

Marker Bros. proprietors of our Village meat market have purchased a new wagon and outfit preparatory to supplying the farming community with fresh meat during the spring and summer.

At the Union S. S. concert in the Congregational church Sunday afternoon, J. B. Waterman submitted a report of the recent county S. S. convention. Warren Thompson is the township President for the ensuing year.
