Vol. XXV, No. 52.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1894.

$1.00 per year, in advance.

Around the Country.

An electrical garden, whatever that may be, has been opened at Wyandotte.

Judging by the sea serpents seen at Orion this season, that town ought to have a number of candidates for the Northville Gold Cure.

Jolly "Tom" Sheridan, the Anderson house clerk at Wayne, has took unto himself a "bride." Miss Mary Easley from just across the Ohio border is the lucky lady.

Wayne now has six M. D.'s. (medical doctors not mad dogs.) There are but 1,250 inhabitants to practice upon and while the people are praying for rain, the physicians are looking for an epidemic.

The Holly Advertiser is waging war on a "Madison Square" pow-wow house, and handles the village president without gloves for not doing his duty towards suppressing it. Holly is a bad, bad town.

A Pontiac man named Gage Crawford came very near getting upon the other shore by the axle-tree-line route last week. Hereafter Gage will carry a three-inch seat and his wife will chop the wood.

The Plymouth Mail wants the people of that town to quit the quiet drawing gambling practice and intimates that the business is fully as bad as the Louisiana lottery or the hotel and saloon games of chance.

The Farmington Enterprise, in answer to the complaint of a subscriber who stopped his paper because he did not give news enough, advised him to read the Bible, which he had no doubt, would be news to him.

Detective Lombard, of Detroit, was in the city Wednesday, and with the aid of the sheriff located a stolen horse and buggy at Dexter. Ann Arbor Argus.

Is the sheriff a clairvoyant, or an anatomical telescope?

A man who was strolling through a Detroit cemetery came upon a tombstone on which was inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of a lawyer and an honest man." "Great Scott! Two men in one grave in a cemetery so large as this!" he exclaimed.

The Benton Independent whose editor doesn't know the spirit of the Northville girl, has this to say of the Anti-"Catch-on" club formation: "There isn't one girl in fifty who has sense enough to do anything of the kind. If there was, there would be no necessity for the formation of clubs. Boys won't catch on if they have no opportunity given them."

Fenton ladies wear false switches but not false modesty. The shoe buttoner came loose in one of the fair sex's blonde heads last week and her lovely brown switch was lost along the street. She hid herself to the newspaper office gave her name and offered a reward for its return, and is once more the happy possessor of the misplaced switch.

It is strange how the general run of people are ignorant of the looks and names of many of the common flowers. The rose is about the only flower that everybody is familiar with. Ann Arbor Courier.

What's the matter with the daisy; the tulip and the pink; the sunflower and the pansy? we know them all, we think.

The Day bath tub manufacturing company will put up a factory at Milford in consideration of a $6,000 bonus. Who wouldn't? If Milford wants to bonus some one why don't they put a little of it, mixed with a big lot of push, into the Wells Cultivator Co's. business. There's a bonanza already there if they only knew it.

We have chronicled the killing of a great many snakes about this place and vicinity this season, but here is a snake story that places all others far in the shade. Saturday afternoon Hanson Ellsworth and Dan Fryant killed a garter snake, which measured a little over three feet and from which ran eighty seven (87) young ones, by actual count. This is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help us Solomon Isaac. Fowlerville Observer.

Two licenses have been issued to the Observer man.

A discharged messenger boy in Cleveland recently did a land office business by writing telegrams and addressing them "collect," to well known guests at hotels. The clerks would receive them and pay charges, but exposure has come. A theatrical manager received a message reading: "Why did you not answer my last telegram? Mother and the rest of us are well." For this he paid 46 cents. Another man, a bachelor, paid 30 cents for a message reading: "Baby has a new tooth, and is doing well. Mary."

What to Do with Anarchy.

The American people are waking up at last to the fact that there are destructive forces at work in this country, which if not crushed will sometime work woeful results to this Republic.

It is most unpleasant to be obliged to admit that within our borders there are being developed the same forces which robbed France of its ruler, wrought death at Barcelona, and which has been the cause of Germany, Italy, Russia and Hungary for years. Anarchy has begun to rear its head in free America, for in some respects this is a better land for its growth than Europe. Our laws give more freedom, and the less stringent the statutes the more active the anarchist.

It is unnecessary to attempt to prove its existence here, but it is of the greatest importance to devise means of stamping it to death. The seed from which this American monster sprang came through Castle Garden. It is not a native of our soil. The immigration question comes up here in its most alarming phase. Something must be done. It is one of the crying reforms of the day.

No one will deny that anarchy is an attack upon public peace and is a crime. Anarchists preach that they would destroy life to further their ends. They make themselves criminals without committing any overt act of violence. They are traitors, for they oppose our nationality. They prosecute war against our judiciary system. We do not want them here, and the sooner they are driven out the better it will be.

It is suggested as the first step to attain this object, the passage of more stringent immigration laws. Let there be such an overhauling of the statutes in this respect that it will be impossible for anybody who does not understand and is unwilling to defend our institutions, to come here to live. There are various excellent methods to extirpate this dangerous and menacing element.

As a second step, the transportation of every anarchist back to his native land at government expense should be effected. If they are dumped on us, let us dump them back again. The Chinaman must indeed feel himself an outcast when he ponders over the fact that he is excluded from our shores when the blood-and-thunder bomb-thrower and seditionist of Europe can come and partake of our abundance. Which is the more dangerous? The long-haired, long-whiskered anarchist, or the meek and industrious pig-tail? Why do not our labor organizations protest against the coming here of this vicious element? They have attacked the Mongolian and have him debarr'd, but they have left the greatest foe to their welfare go unmolested.

Would it not be well for the government to establish an American Siberia in Alaska for all such characters as Debs, Altgeld, Sovereign, Pfeffer, Waite, and Herr Most?

The Dutch, when they came to New Amsterdam, were alarmed lest some destructive element should come among them. So they erected, overlooking New York harbor, a large gallows—a warning to all colonists who came that they must obey the laws or die. Today there should be raised a sign of admonition at our immigrant stations to the huxian rubbish coming here year after year. Let it be the American flag waving from a thousand places, that it may be the first object which catches the eye of the new-comer to our shores. The naturalized foreigner must love but one emblem—the Stars and Stripes. If he does, our future is secure.

One of Michigan's Finest.

From the Detroit Evening News, Aug. 2.

"The Northville band is one of the best in the state. They have some twenty members, all newly uniformed, and besides being well drilled they play the latest music to the 'Queen's taste.'" Prof. Jenkins, their leader, directed the only Michigan band represented at the World's Fair last year, and which played on Michigan, Ohio and Illinois days."

Sunday Excursions to Island Lake Encampment.

Sunday, August 19th, will be the big day at the encampment of State troops at Island Lake. The D. L. & N. will run special excursion trains from Plymouth at 8:34 A. M. and 10:45 A. M., making round trip rate 40 cents. Returning, leave Island Lake at 6:30 and 7:30 P. M.

Special arrangements for fast service have been made this year and good time will be made in both directions. It don't cost much to go and the sights in camp are worth the money. Geo. DeHaven, G. P. A.

A UNIQUE LETTER

It is Raked Up After a Nine Year's Hide.

At the time of the building of the Methodist church here in 1835 one of our citizens, who was on the soliciting committee, in a business communication to a Detroit gentleman who was formerly a well known Northville citizen, now deceased, suggested in a post-script that that was a good time for him to donate a bell, a stained window, a furnace or gas lights, etc., for the new edifice. In reply the Northville gentleman received the following unique letter, also as a post-script:

P. S.—"Your 'Post-Script' surprises me greatly. You must know that I am a Presbyterian, and you must know that we Presbyterians hate you Methodists. We of course acknowledge that you are good citizens, and all that—fine people; but we dislike you on account of your religious belief; rather I should say your religious disbelief, as your belief consists principally in disbelief."

"For instance, you disbelieve in the Decrees of God; you disbelieve in election; you disbelieve in reprobation; you disbelieve in final perseverance; you disbelieve that the heathen are sent to hell by the nation, and to cap the climax, you disbelieve in infant damnation. You disbelieve all this while we believe it all. You simply believe in falling from grace and in sanctification; all of which we abhor."

"No, sir! I can never consent to help build walls, which from Sabbath to Sabbath, are to echo such absurd, not to say heretical doctrines. Neither can I consent to furnish a 'Bell' which shall call the people together Sabbath after Sabbath to listen to such blasphemy. And as to furnishing a 'stained glass' window as you suggest, I would much sooner furnish a double-convex lens window for your church; for surely you need light more than anything else. 'Gas machine!' What an idea. 'Who ever saw the least necessity for a gas machine in a Methodist church?' 'Furnace?' What is that for? Did you conceive the idea of firing up such a place as that after looking over the New Version? But—really, I don't know but there ought to be such a place as that fixed up—somewhere—rather I think there ought. I would, however, advise you to go by steam instead of fire, and if you so conclude, I shall take great pleasure in recommending to you my very excellent friends, Messrs McDonald & Beck, No. 34 Lafayette Avenue."

So much as a bit of very rough pleasantry. Now, soberly: Inasmuch as I have furnished a small amount of aid, if not much comfort, in support of the Gospel at Northville as preached by the Presbyterians there, and assisted the Baptists a little in rebuilding their edifice some years ago, and have neither aided nor comforted the Methodists there, it gives me much pleasure now to act upon your well put hint."

I subscribed twenty-five dollars towards the Baptist rebuilding fund, so you may put me down for a life amount for the Methodists. June 2nd, 1835."

The writer of the letter was not a member of the Presbyterian or any other church as might be inferred, though we believe he attended that place of worship.

ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

The sun rose over a field of wheat.
And warm the breath of an early spring.
The smiling flowers made the morning sweet.
And there were carolling birds to sing.
And by the brook were children at play.
Planning their childish games for the day.
But the sun sank over a field of red.
Leaving no trace of a farm-house there.
Only the ghastly lines of the dead.
And blackbirds and rain every where.
And along the road instead of play.
Were the silent forms of pain and woe.
Blue and Gray.

CHAPTER IX.

Brave Dog Not to Leave His Bone.

Into the same prison where our hero was taken and lodged, by more or less kind attention of the governor, in the cell of his former residence, Captain Huguet had been dragged, resisting with all his strength, like a mastiff, in a leash which at times threatened rather to be conducting the groom.

Huguet chafed and vociferated in his bass voice as they forced him under the St. Antoine gate of the gloomy emblem of despotism. His captors having delivered him to the deputy-governor, who did not judge him of the quality to be put in the turret-chamber, where Adrien Mauprat was incarcerated, consigned him to the dark, deep place, six yards under ground, beside the stagnant water in the intervalation of the moat.

Huguet hammered with his fist on the wall, which was a half-dozen feet thick, burst at the door till eyes his head ached and kicked the floor of sodden sweepings over a bed of masonry. He heaved up a stench which nearly choked him, and flung himself in a corner in the Egyptian darkness, he resumed his lamentations against the minion who had tricked him so cleverly.

"Oh, that I ever confided in a man with a baby mouth and a hand like a dwarf!" ejaculated he, clenching his own fist, which would have given Gargamelle no desire to shake it twice. "Such a thing is no man at all. I may not in a stone pit, but I think the God of my fathers that I am not of the same dough as he! Now he'll be the king's right hand man, and be dispensing stars and garters, and mayhap, death to me, if he does not forget me. No, no, death, when I let him know that I clutched the letter to the count of Solissons—the letter which damns them all, and will cost Prince Gaston his neck if placed before his blind-folded brother."

So he fumed and balled till even his fisted lungs were weakened, and after some hours fell off into sleep as sound as that of the governor overhead in a less obscure and not some chamber, with all the latter's twenty-five hundred pounds a year, not to mention what the extortionist squeezed out of such wretches as the ex-captain of the guards.

To that governor had come a visitor whom no one dreamt to delay in his passage. For whilst in the town beyond, the dread of the gray monk Joseph was the dearest fear, men knew, for his political power, in the Bastille the awe of the officers arose from another cause: Joseph's brother, Du Tremblay, was the keeper of the keys. If ever an Abel walked trustfully up to Cain, it was the Capuchin, not generally credited with confidence, for fraternity apart, which went for little in those days of intrigue, the governor owed his post to the prime minister.

"Huguet," so mused the monk, "has the letter to the treacherous commander. Now, if I can but gain one moment's access to this prisoner, all is ours! The cardinal after his repulse by the king, troubles between life and death. His life is power, and to smite one, slays both! No Asclepiadean drugs ever bore the healing which that scrap of parchment will medicine to ambition's ragging heart. France shall be saved by me!"

With his impassive face he met his brother, whose features, on the contrary, were twitching with varied sentiments. Baradas had anticipated the monk, and of the two prisoners whom he sought to see, one was already beyond him and the other on the verge of a perhaps more fatal voyage.

"The knight of Mauprat, removed to the Louvre by summons of Count Baradas," reiterated Joseph, amazed for once out of his marble aspect. "And our late captain going away also—whether?"

"Well, brother, you may better divine that if you were his confessor whilst in your household, for he is doomed to die at noon."

"By whose order?"

"The king's as a matter of course. We obey only his majesty here in his own fort of the town's end."

The accent made Joseph shrink to his cowl. Another who kicked at the god!

"At noon he dies!" cried he, turning into another track with the quickness of experienced duplicity. "No moment to delay the pious rites which fit the soul for death. Quick, quick—admit me to Huguet!"

"You cannot enter, brother! My orders are imperative."

"Orders! royal orders! vain! the cardinal still is minister. His orders crush all others."

"I'll not be menaced, Joseph! 'tis not brotherly," returned the other, in an irritated voice. "Besides, the cardinal was reported dead and now is surely dying! I do not wonder—who would care to live under the disgrace of our noble Louis!" he said, with the unction of a courier.

The tolling of a bell denoted that some solemnity was commencing, and the priest guessed that it concerned the ex-captain.

"Brother to brother, hear me," said Joseph, with an outburst of feeling which would have removed once for all the doubts of his superiority, "by my gray hairs which, when ours both were golden intermingled in the same cradle, by all my toil in meshes most inextricable, by my hard days and sleepless nights on monastery stones to which your cell-floors seemed paved with feathers, by more than you will ever know of aights, denials, losses borne in your country's service, let me see the prisoner!"

The governor, with hanging head, shook it in negation.

"He has secrets of state—papers in which—"

"I know," interrupted Du Tremblay, hoarsely, "such was his message to Count Baradas, which earned him his death sentence."

The other wrung his hands in his distraction, opposed to this obstinate denial thought, nerve and mental strength seemed useless.

"Dare you refuse the church her holiest rights?" said he at length, speaking in desperation not to hear that knelling bell.

"I refuse nothing—I obey my orders."

"And sell your country to parties!" Oh, tremble, thou brother! since nothing will soften your obstinate heart, I forgive you, although you have delivered my beloved into the hands of those who encourage themselves in mischief."

He pulled his cowl down to his eyes, folded his hands in the robe, and slowly left the room. The corridor, the tower, crossing the courtyard, where the block and headsman were waiting, and never spoke word or showed by a glance that he was living, feeling humanity, and not one of the statues impelled by mechanism from the facade of St. Antoine church without, till he had crossed the ditch.

The sound of the bell had just reached the ears of Huguet, but he was not downcast when he awakened.

On the opposite hand, he laughed to himself, with the fierce glances of a waylayer who thinks he sees the victim approaching.

"They will kill me! I have the paper. They will trust no man hand—paradise! that arch-traitor, the Count Baradas himself, will do me the honor of a visit! And though he came with a full score of armored Bayards at his back—Bayards in his company, forsooth!—I'll beat him to the earth, and spread him on the stone like an archer caught against the bastion by the battering-ram!"

It was just as well, therefore, that whatever the anxiety of the count to repossess the traitorous mission, he dispatched Beringhen to the prisoner in the Bastille.

The first gentleman of the royal bed-chamber had not found the difficulty in obtaining leave to visit Huguet experienced by the confidant of Richelieu. Quite otherwise for M. du Tremblay, whose ambitious aspirations may have soared as high as his brother's in a less ecclesiastical line of flight, smoothed every obstacle to the royal valet.

"Oh, by the way," uttered the latter, charmed more than he liked to confess by the governor's amiability, for the Carbas of the state prison was pictured at court in the same colors as the monastic artist painted Satan and his consorts, "there is a little, chubby-checked boy in the gate who was whispering to see his father, that is, this Huguet, before they discovered his head and hair. After I leave the captain, you might let him say goodbye to his father, before that very long unpleasant journey his father is about to take."

"The count's commands are strict," grumbled Du Tremblay. "No one must visit Huguet without his passport."

"Here! Pahaw! nonsense! I'll be your surety," cried Beringhen. "The little fellow is no Hercules like his parent."

Still the governor was on his guard. He insisted on seeing the youth in question, and as they both had to descend the tower stairs, the official to inspect the preparations for the execution and Beringhen with a smiling bottle-drawn to comfort the captive, they met the boy, for whom a warrier had run over to the entrance, in the tower doorway.

If the governor had often sauntered about Paris, and, particularly had been in the Rue Richelieu what time the page who had baffled Baradas' spies had provokingly trotted past the Louvre and Delorme house into the cardinal's residence, he must have discovered a strong likeness between that personage and the youth whose face was half hidden by the corner of the mantle industriously piled to wipe away over-flowing tears. The dainty thing was so slight and graceful, so swaying with weakness from untold grief, and so winsome withal, that the stern man who had withstood a brother's appeal muttered something about pity, and said—

"Well, if your lordship is responsible, he may go to the cell, and slip in after your business is over."

With a "Thank you exceedingly, my lord," which was almost unintelligible through renewed sobs, he had hastily followed the king's valet and the turnkey.

The pestilential atmosphere in the dogs' holes to which they proceeded prevented any mouth so fastidious as Beringhen's from opening, and they reached the door desired in perfect silence.

Beringhen was seen to smile by the vague glimmer of the lantern which hardly more than burnt in the fetid air.

"There's no fear here," he said, tapping his breast with his vinegar bottle, "but ere you throw open the door, cry through the wicket that it is a messenger from Count Baradas. As for thee, youngster," he continued to the stripling, who had begun to wait worse than ever, "have no further concern! My shivering will be a short one."

In truth, the announcement acted as a soporific. In quite a gentle tone the giant guardsman was heard to respond—

"Let my lord enter."

"It's the air," remarked the jailer, with a grin, as he handed the lantern by its ring to the royal valet. "Lor! I've known it to tame perfect tigers of war in four and twenty hours."

There being no more money to expect, he leisurely ascended the greasy stairs with a familiarity which easily dispensed with the light, and humming, so jocular an air that it must have seemed mockery to his innumerable subjects.

In the meantime the door had swiftly and violently closed. The page had dropped the cloak from his eyes as dry as a bone.

"A sweet resort of the abhorrence of my sex, ye rats and mice, whom I implore not to scamper hither, have I brought myself to—Ah, Marion! if you venture so much for the gentleman whom you once adored, what would you do for him always your idol? But how is our scent-vial getting on with my papa? It sounds as if their conversation was interspersed with raps on the wall. So far so well. Alas! what then? this wretch was sent to Baradas in order to sell the scroll to ransom him. O heaven, on what a thread hangs hope! If Father Joseph had succeeded, I should not be the slender thread I speak of. Hark! their chatter is growing warm—that was a tap on the wall like the smacks of the giant's mace upon the log which signified for the giant-killers' body. I believe they are fighting. War not for the latter of course."

Marion—for the reader has long since divined who was this valiant little body—was struck by the idea that though the gloom prevented any ray of the lantern from entering the passage, there must be some hole in the wall by which the sounds met her ear. At length, by rising on tip-toes and feeling the slimy stones, she found a sort of conical hole, the smaller end leading into the cell, and the larger, though too little for a man's egress, barred thickly. She leaped up, caught this grating, and drew herself up to the air hole; her fine foot found a hold where no man's foot could have been inserted.

The lantern was burning within, and she could scarcely more than discern two shadows grappling and finally falling. Both rose, and the much larger shape seemed to melt into the other, then both fell and the larger rose alone. But in the next division of time it sank half its height, and she heard distinctly the cry in Huguet's voice—

"Charges on the minion! with their Italian tricks with the dagger, he has ruined me. Oh, to die thus miserably!"

Then she lost sight of him; he was out of her visual ray, stumbling to the door. Her impulse was to fly, but conquering her terror and her repugnance, Marion pushed the door, and between them it opened.

Huguet was on his knees holding his side.

"What's this," he ejaculated, in surprise.

"Huguet, you know me, Marion Delorme! You are hurt—mortally, perhaps! As you have a soul to be saved—and I will give half my fortune in masses—redeem it of the sin of selling our great master, by handing me that letter of the conspirators! You see, I know all!"

He fell back, but raised himself again; then he drew himself to the wall and leaned against it.

A Little Darling's Discovery.
Professor—Some of the grandest inventions of the age have been the result of accidental discoveries.
Young Lady—I can readily believe it. Why, I made an important discovery myself, and it was the purest accident, too.

"I should much like to hear it."

Tribute of Admiration.
Irritated Passenger—What are you eyeing me so closely for? I paid the fare for these two ladies and myself when we got on.

Street Car Conductor—I know it. You're the man that gave me fifteen one-cent pieces. I wouldn't forget it if I shouldn't see you again for eleven years.

Must Have Been Instinct.
The Bride, as they emerge from the tunnel—Law's sakes, James! You men had a natural borned instinct for kissing.

The Groom—Instinct! What you mean, honey?

The Bride—Why, how in de world you eber found my mouf in all oo darkness oo dat tunnel is pas' my undahstaudin'—Puck.

The Artist Has Grown Wise.
"Does your artist friend paint portraits true to life?"

"He did at first but he has learned better."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; the first two or three commissions he executed were so true to life that the sitters refused to take the pictures."

Gramp's Advice.
Ragged Richard, instructing—Say, mister, have you got any suggestions to make ter a feller 'at ain't able ter raise a dime ter git shaved with? Gramp, passing on—Yes; raise whiskers.—Buffalo Courier.

THE JOLLY JESTER.

"I hear Grosscup has taken a wife."

"That's a mistake. He took a widow."

"Do your neighbors chickens trouble you much?" "Yes. They are as slow growing to a frying size."

"Are these colors fast?" she asked of the new clerk. "Yes, indeed, you ought to see them when they once start to run."

Husband, very late home from the club—Hm! I told you not to sit up for me. Wife, sweetly—I didn't. I got up to see the sun rise.

It is said that glacial action has in places on the Union Pacific road moved the mountains down on the narrow right of way along the Columbian river, where the cliffs rise often 400 feet above the track, leaving hardly a footing for the track.

Against the advice of his wife Captain Brewster of Eastport, Maine, started for New York with ten tons of lobsters. She wanted him to sell them at home at $22 a barrel, but he thought he could get $30 in the city. He was delayed, and when he had arrived an inspector sent the whole cargo to the offal dock.

SUPERSTITIOUS CLERKS.

Mail Sacks That Have Been in an Accident Are Sought After.

A group of railway postal clerks, just in from a run, stood in the transfer office at the Pennsylvania station the other morning, waiting for the cable car to start up in order to get home, says the Washington News.

"Tell you, felt a bit scary on this trip," observed one of the men as he knocked the ashes from his pipe and glanced at the clock.

"What was the matter?" Inspector on the car?" asked one. "Flat wheel?" queried another.

"Worse than that. Forgot my red. Left it in the office. First time for six months."

"Where did you get yours?" asked the tall man with the sandy beard.

"He had it a long time. Cub gave it to me, and he got it from the 'Fat Nancy' wreck," was the reply.

Just then the whirr of the cable became audible in the clear morning air, and the mail slingers made a run for the avenue.

"What's a red?" was asked of a clerk who was still lounging in the room.

For reply he opened his valise and drew out a dingy red mail sack. It was a plain canvas pouch, such as is used for mail matter of the lower classes, and, save for the color, did not differ from any one of 100,000 or so that the government owns.

"Once in a while we have a little smash up, you know," he said, "and occasionally some of the boys get hurt or worse. Our cars are pretty dangerous places in the event of an accident, and, if there is any damage why, it's usually felt most in the mail or express car. It isn't often that they are serious, but now and then one of the boys gets smashed, and then there is naturally some blood around, and it gets on the mail sacks. In the old days the government very considerably used to put such sacks out of use, for you can't get the stain out. Then some genius conceived the notion of dyeing them red, but that only served to mark them."

"Every business has its superstitions," he continued, "and I guess we are no exception, for some of us have an idea that it is lucky to have a red in the car. I don't know why, I'm sure, unless it is the principle that the same sack will not be in two bad accidents. So when one comes our way we freeze on to it and try to keep it handy."

"Of course," he continued rather shame-facedly, "it seems like a queer kind of feeling to have a reminder of that sort around. But it's all in the way you look at it, and there are lots of things, just as foolish that other people do."

Relative Merit.

The super had not been paid for weeks by the hard pressed manager, and he had starved and gone half-clothed—and, shelterless, until he could stand it no longer, and he went to the boss for money.

"By thunder," exclaimed that person, "I've got no money; how can I pay you any? I'm only human; I can't do impossible things."

"And I suppose you think I'm an aschuman and can't?" yelled the poor fellow in such a tone of helplessness, that the manager lent him a quarter to get his supper with.

Winter Eye, 80 Baskets Per Acre.

This yield seems enormous, but a good number of farmers believe they can obtain it by sowing the new monster eye. It's hardly possible, laughing at all kinds of weather. It simply yields big crops every year, regardless of storms, droughts, or the like. The World's Fair winter wheat is just like it for fields! The John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., will send you their catalogue and samples of above eye, and wheat upon receipt of 4 cent postage.

CELEBRATED.

A Native Wine-Maker Who Tells, Not How His Wine is Made, but How He Lived to Make It.

Near the town of Kingsville, Ontario, is the nation of Canada, those residing a make of native wine. A fine, well-built, sturdy man, who, in his earlier years, has killed many a monarch of the forest. His famous native wines are justly celebrated. A man of honor, the maker, the delicious fluid can be nothing else but honest wine. Mr. Jap. J. Maltot is this man, and what he says is set down as a fact soon as uttered. The many thousands of gallons of wine he keeps on hand, gradually improving with age, is not all his stock in trade. Long experience has taught him how to satisfy his patrons' taste, but, better still, how his health can be maintained. He tells how he has suffered, and gives to humanity the secret of his cure. These are his own words: "About seven years ago I had a severe attack of inflammation of the bladder. I suffered the most excruciating pain. I doctored with many physicians, but without any relief. My kidneys seemed to swell, and I could not bear the slightest pressure over the point. I was so lame from my back that I could not rise from a chair or bed. During these the pain was most intense, was 'complicated' as they say. I could not do anything, could not even dress myself. This condition lasted for almost five years, and in spite of all the doctors I failed to get relief. I wrote for me about seven dollars as lived in that condition. Hearing from a friend about Doan's Kidney Pills, I decided to give them a trial. After the first box I felt greatly benefited, and was able to walk around with ease. I determined to give them a thorough trial, and took seven boxes, with the result that after years of suffering and the loss of a great deal of money in doctor bills, I felt completely cured. I have since done as hard day's work as ever before, and I have had no recurrence of the trouble. It is now seven years since that time. I have recommended them to many others, with the same success. They are truly a wonderful pill, and deserve all the attention that can be given them." Doan's Kidney Pills are sold for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole Agents for the United States. Sent by mail on receipt of price. For sale by all dealers.

It will be no news to Northville people for us to say that the public fountain is now daily on tap on Main street near Center.

The state meeting of the Jr. O.U.A.M. will occur here next Tuesday. About thirty delegates are expected to be present, including many noted speakers.

As the bill passed the house it provided a salary of $1,500 for Supt. Clark of the Northville fish hatchery. This has been increased by the senate to $2,000.

If any of our Northville residents were missed in the distribution of the city directories we shall be pleased to furnish a copy on application at this office.

Asa Randolph is doubtless the oldest living Northville inhabitant. That is he has lived in Northville longer than any other man, having been here 57 years.

There is a well grounded complaint that some of our citizens are sprinkling the streets to such an extent as to make the road muddy. This is wrong and should be stopped at once.

Dr. C. B. Tweedale of Salem is now located at Cheboygan. The doctor is a popular young fellow, a wide awake, skillful physician, fully up to date in his practice and should receive a goodly share of the patronage in that city.

At an impromptu gathering at the Park house this week were five gentlemen who for ages held a "straight." They were Alex. Dunham aged 75, Orange Butler 73, H. Spencer 77, E. C. Cartwright 78 and Hiram McCady 79. The combined age was $355, average 77.

It is estimated that there were at least 1,000 people on the streets Saturday night during the band concert. We noticed people from Plymouth, West's Mills, Novi, South Lyon, Farmington and Detroit. Nothing like the Northville band to draw out a crowd.

At the Plymouth township republican caucus here yesterday the following delegates were elected: a Congressional, C. B. Crosby, Carmine Root, F. S. Neal, S. E. Cranston; Senatorial, H. B. Thayer, J. F. Chilson, J. O. Knapp, J. O. Eddy; Representative, H. F. Brown, G. P. Beaton, P. B. Whitbeck, W. R. Boyd.

The Chicago Ledger has struck the nail on the head by starting in its issue of August 1 a fascinating love story entitled, "Caught in the Strike." It deals with the late A. R. U. strike, giving names and places familiar to many of our readers. Sample copy, giving first instalment of the story, will be mailed free on application to the Chicago Ledger, Chicago, Ill.

The North and South side played another game of ball Monday afternoon and as usual the north side won. The game throughout was marked by great plays. Each side outplayed the other at every point and each player seemed to play just a little better than his opponent. The score was 22 to 23; umpires Joslin and Goodfellow; time one hour and sixty minutes; batteries, everybody.

The YMCA ball club defeated the Northville club here last Saturday afternoon to the tune of 16 to 25. The YMCA boys were among the most gentlemanly lot of young fellows that ever swung a ball club over a Northville base, and we are really glad they beat our club. In fact fact it would have seemed almost rude to have even tried to beat them. Our boys wouldn't beat them if they could, and they couldn't if they would. It was a good interesting game however and well worth the admission price.

The water board may feel compelled to enforce the rules relative to using the water for sprinkling purposes during the prescribed hours, 5 to 9 a. m. and 5 to 9 p. m. of each day unless some of the takers cease their unexcusable waste of the water by letting the hose run almost continuously night and day. Lawns should only be sprinkled before or after sunrise and the wetting of them down during the day is not only a waste of water but also a damage to the lawn. There is plenty of water at present but there won't be if it is allowed to be wasted as now the case.

A good show at the opera house next Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Dennis are back from their trip in the northern part of the state. They will probably make Northville their future home.

The Presbyterian young ladies will give a Japanese lawn social on the Presbyterian church lawn this evening. A balloon ascension will be one of the features.

A night blooming cereus at the home of Mrs. Orange Butler, 29 Griswold rd., has been greatly admired the past week. At one time there were four large, beautiful blossoms, two being on one leaf.

A line received from Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Yerkes states that they are pleasantly located at the Park hotel, Traverse City, and are feeling very much better than when they left Northville.

Post-master General Bissell's last circular letter is to the effect that postmasters must not take active part in politics has nothing to do with ex-P. M.'s, and Brother Horton expects to do some loud talking in favor of high tariff.

A grand Y.P.S.C.E. rally is being arranged for August 21 in which Detroit, Northville, Pontiac, and Highland societies meet with the young folks of Milford. Several Detroit men and Rev. J. M. Belding will be the speakers.

"An Interested Citizen" in a communication elsewhere rightly thinks that the Baptist church shed nuisance should be abolished. Church sheds are as a rule built for one purpose and generally used, mostly for another. They should be abolished.

During the extreme dry weather there is great danger of fire and people generally cannot be too careful. Everything is as dry as a tinder box and the careless dropping of a match, a lighted cigar or cigarette may cause a serious conflagration. Again, be cautious.

Ed. Merritt of Pontiac has bought out Mrs. Rockwell's jewelry business and will take possession Aug. 20. Mr. Merritt comes well recommended both as a jeweler and business man. He was for some little time with Traub Bros. and M. S. Smith & Co., Detroit.

It is remarkable how many persons who would not expect to be called thieves think it no harm to help themselves to people's flowers which grow within reach from the street fence or near the walk where there is no fence.

The Ladies of the Methodist church will give the band a benefit in the shape of an ice cream social on the Methodist lawn Saturday night. The band will be on hand and give their concert there instead of on the square. Delicious ice cream, toothsome cake and sweet music all for one price. Everybody come.

While at Northville last week Mrs. J. C. Dunham of Wixom lost a badge of the Argonaut society. The design of the badge was a representation of Argo ship. Upon the sail is the name Argo in Greek. The association and presentation connected with the badge makes it of special value to the lady, and she will liberally reward the finder if left at this office or returned to owner.

We want to say just a few kindly words to the Northville ball club. Remember that people pay their admission, and are in attendance at the game, to see you play ball. No one will find fault because you get beat occasionally—that is to be expected—but patrons of the game do object to half-hearted playing, and what may be called "monkey business," as was the case last week Saturday when at least half a dozen runs were made by the Detroiters while the Northville boys were rolling the ball about on the diamond, or making inexcusable errors elsewhere. Another fault is that with the exception of the short stop the majority of the Northville fielders seem to entirely forget that one of the most essential points in a game is properly "backing up" the basemen. As long as these two suggestions are carried out, interest in ball playing in Northville will not cease.

The council proceedings this week show that the council was badly rattled at the Monday night meeting over the question of the locating of the public fountain.

Sparks from an F&M engine caused the burning of 25 rods of fence for L. L. Brooks and seven tons of hay for Peter McGuire at their farms south of here Wednesday morning.

The Frost and Fanshaw company who appear at the opera house Monday and Tuesday night come well recommended. It is the same company that played two weeks at the Empire theatre at Detroit last winter.

There were 238 gentlemen in attendance at Saturday's ball game, and yet only $15 could be collected. The prospects are there will be no more games here very soon. Ball games cost money and if 138 men are going to sponge their way in or refuse to pay, it is time to throw up the sponge.

The Church Shed Nuisance.

Editor Record.—Will you kindly give space in your valuable paper for a few lines regarding a greater nuisance than the depot mill pond could possibly be, viz: the sheds adjacent to the Baptist church. It is not well known, except to persons living in the immediate vicinity, that these sheds are used for every sort of vice and wickedness. Tramps and drunks carouse there at all times day or night (including Sundays), and are a continual menace to the neighborhood. If the society on village improvements would turn its attention to this nuisance for a time it might stir up public opinion and prove a boon to property owners in the Third Ward, and possibly end in the total demolition of what is now a place for crime, hoodlums and law breakers generally. It can be proven a public nuisance and as such should demand the immediate and earnest attention of our Common Council and good people generally.

INTERESTED CITIZEN.

Want Them to Come Again.

Editor Northville Record.—In last week's issue of your valuable paper, "We noticed a clipping from the Plymouth Mail" followed by your endorsement of the sentiments therein contained, encouraging our Marshal to "run them in," etc.

All commendable, and in the interest of law and order, and had the random fire reached the mark intended by the Mail, communication, no retraction exonerating our officers for non-performance of duty would have been necessary. The fact that members of your local Tent, KOTM, were wounded by accident, is regretted, not only by our "Tent," but by our citizens as well. Our worthy president, hearing of the mistake, and that the Northville Maccabees were bearing their martyrdom down with the christian fortitude, characteristic of their forefathers, the ancient, (whom Augustus called the "Christian Martyrs.") instructed the marshal: "Invite the boys to come again, that the freedom of the city may be granted them, and if the Maccabees goat can not reduce their surplus energy below the gushing point, and the banquet following their struggles in the mountain passes of Judea did not fill them too full for utterance, he would recommend a goat that never fails and also contribute a barrel of soda crackers warranted not to intoxicate." By the way our mayor is one of the mountain "buds" himself, peculiarly well adapted to hold one eye single to the municipal affairs of our corporation, while with the other optic he looks after the weeds in his own little "potato patch," casts a political horoscope or dispenses material and spiritual medicines to heal the sick and wounded.

Come again, boys, and you will be welcomed by the citizens; banqueting by the Maccabees and protected by the marshal.

NOVI LOCALS.

Ed. Burt spent Sunday at Saginaw. Geo. Whipple has been camping the past week.

J. H. Kiple of Detroit was in Novi last Saturday.

Charles Pennfield is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Tompkins.

Mrs. Dawson of Milford was a guest of Mrs. Hulst last week Thursday.

Mrs. Jay Hazen attends the musical convention this week at Bay City.

Jas. Seldon is having a well dug on his farm to drain his neighbors spring.

H. H. Jones, our busy merchant, was in Detroit Monday purchasing new goods.

We have to fight fire most every day. No great damage, done yet but very near it.

Jas. Palmer and B. McCrumb went to Detroit Tuesday with a load of poultry.

An old gentleman came near getting run over here by the p. m. train a day or two ago.

Mrs. Caroline Goodell has returned from a two or three weeks stay with friends at Salem.

Those who mail so many letters on the train better patronize our accommodating postmaster.

Girls, have you got your caller frocks all "done up" ready for the social at Mr. L. Banks' to night.

Willie Fingle is agent here for the "Rams Horn," one of the best papers published, if we except the Novi Record.

Mrs. Mary Smith called on friends here Wednesday, and what is worse she took some of them away with her.

Mr. Dick Bloomer of Cincinnati who has been visiting relatives here the past week left for his home Sunday evening.

Huckleberries seem to be quite numerous as some of the Novi people took 18 bushels out of one swamp Friday and Saturday.

The Root family and Miss Bell Leavenworth and Jay Leavenworth took the advantage of the excursion from Pontiac to Cass City Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hazen took advantage of the excursion Sunday by going to G'd Lodge to visit Mrs. Chapman's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dennis have returned from a three months stay at West Superior, Wis. While in that city Mrs. Dennis underwent a successful operation for catarrh.

L. C. Perrigo and family are enjoying camp life at the Huron bridge grove near Commerce lake. They intend staying a couple of weeks if they like that way of living.

There will be an ice cream social on the lawn front of Mrs. Minto Coates' residence Saturday night. Should the weather be unfavorable the social will be held in the Methodist church.

Whoop! No flies on us. Hurrah for the Novi Record! Go away, Farmington, don't know yah! You've got some Enterprise perhaps, but we've got a Record that's hard to beat, to be frank about the matter.

Last Wednesday eve Burt McCrumb and wife got upset in Walled lake. They did not go to the bottom of the "say" like McGinty but got a little scared and fearfully wet which lasted until they got home.

Mr. Brundage and wife are spending their vacation with their many friends at Allen, the scene of Mr. Brundage's pastoral labors before coming to Novi. There will be morning services and S. S. at the accustomed hours during his absence.

Thursday Aug 6 Mrs. C. E. Goodell gave her father a pleasant surprise party, the occasion being his 80th birthday. Friends were present from Detroit, Saginaw, Pontiac and Milford, and a very enjoyable reunion was held. Mr. Grow wears his four score years lightly, looking and appearing as young as many at seventy.

In regard to the item last week about the Hudson man who sent half a dollar for a "sewing machine" and received two needles and an awl, the Ann Arbor Courier's remark about that being "awl you could expect of a Hudson man," and the Record's question "Is this the last of it?"—we hope so. It is needless to say any more about it—we see the point.

A resident of this vicinity who wasn't (then) very well posted as to the possibilities and probabilities of badmocks, lay down in one the other evening to enjoy a quiet smoke. All went well until his pipe went out, when he thought he would just reach over and lay the article on the grass. After he got through standing on the back of his neck he discovered that a part of the contents of his pockets were in his sleeve. (Fact.)

Reference was recently made to the row at the hotel, and more should have been said regarding the manner in which the place is being conducted. We can not complain of the table the house sets, nor the lodging accommodations but we wish to call attention to an apparent well known fact that but one thing has seemingly been done in compliance with our laws governing the sale of intoxicating liquors, viz.: a state license has been taken out and that's all. It is said that intoxicating beverages are for sale to people every day, including Sunday, and the frequent noisy rampuses are a pretty good indication that little regard is paid to the respectability of our community. The question arises, are our citizens all cowards? Do we propose (for tolerance of a thing amounts practically to a favorable proposition) to allow this kind of a work to go on? There are, we understand, at present three complaints in the hands of one of our justices, alleging three distinct violations of law, and we hope the same will be signed and the proper process of law be executed before this article appears. Citizens should either crush out an evil or throw up both hands and say, "Go for it, we will not oppose."

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

The engineer fast asleep and ran by a signal light. This would not have occurred if the engineer had taken Dullam's German Blood, Liver, Stomach and Kidney remedy and stimulated his torpid liver and blood to better action. It is the best blood purifier in the market. $1 per bottle. For sale by C. R. Stevens.

FARMINGTON.

E. C. Grace and daughter Lulu were in Detroit Monday.

Mrs. E. J. Tremper reports a pleasant visit at Pontiac.

Mrs. Dr. Holcomb is visiting relatives at Toronto, Canada.

Miss Georgia Hiles is visiting friends at Northville and Novi.

John B. Pettibone and wife left Sunday for Grand Lodge to visit friends.

Frank Brown of Northville was among Farmington friends Sunday.

Mrs. Frank VanDenBerg left Saturday for an extended visit at Manistee.

Emanuel Ely of Bay City has been among Farmington friends for a few days.

Mrs. Calvin Lapham is spending a few days with her father, Wm. Ely, at Northville.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Farmer of Pontiac were callers at Farmington one day last week.

Mrs. E. M. DuBois of Detroit was a guest of J. L. Hogle and family one day last week.

The annual Missionary meeting of the Baptist society was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. L. Wilber.

Mark Seely and family have been entertaining a sister-in-law Mrs. Wm. Seely of Pontiac for a few days past.

Mrs. Minnie Paulger passed through town Monday enroute for "Clover Leaf" encampment at Orchard Lake.

Quarterly Conference was held Monday at 10 o'clock in the Methodist church. Rev. C. T. Allen was present.

Mrs. Miller of Detroit and Mrs. Barker of Redford were guests of J. P. Eisenlord and family one-day last week.

Dr. and Mrs. Morse report a most enjoyable visit with relatives and friends at Detroit, Wyandotte and Trenton.

Charles Moore wife and child have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, for the past few days, at Southfield.

Mrs. Susie Lamphere of Greenfield was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Holcomb and L. C. Philbrick and wife a part of last week.

There was a large attendance Sunday evening at the Methodist church to listen to that eloquent speaker, Rev. C. T. Allen of Detroit.

Don't forget the Supervisors picnic to be held Wednesday Aug. 15 at Orchard Lake. As usual a most enjoyable time is anticipated.

Mrs. Frank Clark and daughter of Cheboygan, who have been the guests of Mrs. E. J. Tremper and daughter Grace, are now visiting relatives at Pontiac.

A lawn social under the auspices of the Ladies Union, will be held Saturday-evening Aug. 11, at the residence of Blake Northrop. A good time is anticipated and all are cordially invited.

The Barnum and Baily show gave one of their attractive exhibits at Detroit Monday which accounts for so many of the Farmington people having urgent business to the City of the Straits on that particular date.

Rev. D. Q. Barry entertained the congregation at the Baptist church Sunday evening by giving gleanings from some of the eloquent speakers in attendance at the Toronto convention. Mr. Barry was a delegate and reports a most enjoyable time.

Plymouth team came to Farmington Aug. 2 and crossed bats with the intention of winning the game. And they were not disappointed in their anticipations. The score resulting 37 to 22 in favor of Plymouth. Let it be distinctly understood however, that our boys played under difficulties or they would not have succumbed so easily. All reported a good time, even the defeated ones.

The funeral services of Mrs. Hannah Simmons, wife of the late Joshua Simmons, were held at 3 P. M. last week Friday, from the residence of her son-in-law C. J. Sprague, Rev. Mr. Nash officiating. The deceased has been a great sufferer for the past few years but every thing that loving hands could do, was done to alleviate her sufferings. Three sons, Wellington and Morell of Northville, and Richmond of Novi, and two daughters Mrs. J. E. Springer of Plymouth and Mrs. C. J. Sprague of Farmington are left to mourn their loss. A large circle of friends extend sympathy in their bereavement. The remains were interred in the village cemetery.

MEAD'S MILLS.

Art Mac and George Barber went to the city Monday.

N. Taylor has gone to Marshall to learn the laundry business.

Mr. H. Green and daughter Avis attended Barnums show on Monday.

Mrs. Emma Barber, nee Giger was out to David Barbers on Tuesday, and returned to the city in the evening.

A party was given on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Ralph Gibson's birthday. He was the recipient of some presents, we hear.

The windows at the school house are to have some new shades, which will be a great addition as well as a benefit and comfort to the pupils.

Rich Benton took a short vacation and visited friends in Detroit and Monroe County the fore part of the week. We have not seen him since his return but hear he is well pleased with the country down that way, and may leave these parts.

SALE.

F. G. Terrill was in Detroit on Saturday.

The temperance sermon last Sabbath evening by Rev. Mr. Conrad at the Baptist church was quite radical, though not more so than the subject demands. A fair audience was in attendance.

The M. E. churches on this charge held their last quarterly meeting for this conference-year at the Leland church last Sabbath. No services were held at the Lapham's corners church or the Van Atta church.

Miss Florence Tweedale who has been spending the past two months at Cheboygan is now home, but will return some time in September. Her brother, the Dr., has commenced practice at that place.

The delegation from Salem to the county convention at Ann Arbor on Tuesday were for A. J. Sawyer for congress. Deluded people. To a man up a tree, having a clear view of the situation, appearances indicate that Spalding of Monroe is next the pole and will come under the wire several necks ahead.

The drouth has ceased to be a subject of conversation—too common place. Farmers are wondering where the corn and potatoes are coming from unless the rain comes soon. There is one consolatory thought about it, the wheat and oats have been secured in prime condition. The threshing, so far as done, turns out good yields of both crops.

Sunday Excursion to the City of the Straits.

Do you want to go to Detroit again? The D.L.&N. will run another of their popular Sunday excursions on August 12. Special train leaving Plymouth at 10:10 a. m., arriving at Detroit at 11:00. Returning leave Detroit at 7:00 p. m. Round trip fare 50c.

No more delightful trip can be taken on these hot Sundays than to Detroit where the opportunities for comfort and pleasure on the river and at Belle Isle Park are unequalled. Expense is small. Get your friends to go too. Ask agents for particulars.
