

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

Vol. XXVI, No. 15.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1894.

$1.00 per year, in advance.

12 MILLION EGGS.

That's the Number to Care for at the Northville U. S. Fish Hatchery.

FIVE MILLION YOUNG FISH

To Be Hatched and Distributed Throughout the World.

But few people realize the important place which the Northville fish hatchery holds in the fish culture department of the United States and not many outside of those interested in the work are aware that this is the largest and most important trout fish hatchery in the known world. Though possessing the poorest lot of buildings of any hatchery in the United States yet more business is done at this place and more trout eggs and fry distributed from this hatchery than any other of Uncle Sam's stations. Formerly white fish eggs were cared for here but the business has grown to such a magnitude that now the entire work is given up to trout fish work, including every known variety. From this station every U. S. fish hatchery in this country, excepting perhaps Duluth, is supplied with trout eggs.

Though rushed almost night and day with his work, General Superintendent Clark kindly consented to give the RECORD a few minutes of his time this week in answering questions relative to this season's work. There has been received at this station so far this year 7,425,000 eggs and something more than three million are yet to arrive. Besides this 500,000 have been taken from the fish here, so that the grand total will reach in round numbers between eleven and twelve million before the winter is over. These eggs are all counted and sorted over here and the bad ones taken out, and they are again counted before shipping. To accomplish this, employment is given to from sixteen to twenty girls during the season, and the business is so systematized that it is known to an exactness just how many good eggs are received and just how many are poor, and finally the reports show just how many are hatched out, no matter to what point of the world they are sent.

This week one million of perfect eggs were shipped to points in California, Maine, New York, Vermont and Mass. Another million will be shipped next week. In addition to this they will hatch out and distribute from this station five million fry, or eighteen to twenty car loads. Like the eggs, they will be sent to all parts of the United States, and also to foreign countries.

The business to be done at the hatchery here this year will be more than double that of any previous year of its history. Seventeen persons were busy at work in the various departments when we called and we were informed that as many as twenty-three were at work a part of the time. The buildings are wholly inadequate for the vast amount of work to be done, but in time Uncle Sam will doubtless regulate this to meet the needs.

The Flint and Pere Marquette Railroad boats are being overhauled at Ludington for the winter through freight business. The company own five large boats which ply between that place and Milwaukee: and from thirty to ninety carloads of freight are handled daily. Already the winter business has begun to pick up and additions have been made to the freight house force at that point.

Here boys, listen to this from the Ypsilantian. Will you let that ball go unclaimed. Wm. Good gracious! This is an ad from the Northville Record: "Latest returns give 20,000 majority for Patent Buckwheat Pancakes. Beautiful women use 'Gold Lace' for bread making. Horse, Cow, Sheep and Hog Feed." How perfectly lovely for Northville ladies to take such good care of their stock.—Trenton Visitor.

Respectfully referred to J. Y. Blackwood, manager of Yerkes Bros., advertising department.

Winter, as usual, caught many farmers with quite an amount of corn unhusked. It is strange, but true nevertheless, that if summer lasted until Christmas some farmers would still have their corn yet unhusked and potatoes yet ungathered. There are many exceptions to this rule however and the enterprising farmer with his work always up to date is in the majority.

The board of auditors have been seized with an economical fit and have cut off the official heads of four deputy sheriffs. Among the number decapitated is Wm. Spears of this city, who has been serving in Circuit Court Commissioner Greenstone's office. Mr. Spears is a good citizen and a good Democrat whom The Herald would like to have seen fill out his term. The auditors declare that the lopping off was done for the purpose of saving the county money. Inasmuch as the deceased were all Democrats, and there are several hundred Republican patriots looking for jobs, it will be interesting to note just how long lived is this economical turn of the auditors.—Wyandotte Herald.

The action is certainly not to be commended.

A GRAND AFFAIR.

Don't Miss It—Musical Convention
—A Golden Opportunity.

Madame Bellon the celebrated Musical Directress will open a convention in Northville at the W. C. T. U. hall Monday evening, November 26, 1894, under the entire management of Mr. Jos. A. Germain. The manager takes pleasure in announcing that on this evening all young ladies and gentlemen, children and the public in general are most cordially invited free on this occasion. The Madame will also test the voice of all who may desire for which there will be no charge. The object of this convention is as follows: To organize a class of as many ladies and gentlemen as possible who have a love for music, who in joining the convention, can have an opportunity of taking vocal instruction consisting of voice culture, breathing, artistic pronunciation, phrasing, music notation and sight reading by the Madame's most improved method. The convention will last ten days; the school will be held evenings so as not to conflict with the necessary duties of any one. The management guarantees that everyone after taking ten lessons will be able to read music at sight and get as much benefit of vocal instruction in this convention as they would acquire in any school or conservatory in this country in a year. This will be explained and demonstrated to all on the opening night.

The convention will close with a grand concert which will be held at the opera house and bring the pupils before the public showing what advancement the pupils have accomplished in vocal art during the convention.

The Madame is a graduate of the two greatest conservatories in the world, Leipzig, Germany, and Paris, France. She directed operatic companies in England and Australia and late years held conventions all over this country, principally in the east and extreme west, receiving the highest testimonials from the late and lamented P. S. Gilmore and Emma Abbott; also New York World, Chicago Herald, Denver Times, San Francisco Chronicle and many others.

NO HUMBUG.

Foley's Honey and Tar does not claim to cure all cases of consumption or asthma. But it does claim to give comfort and relief in advance stages of these diseases and to usually cure early stages. It is certainly worth trying by those afflicted or threatened with these dread diseases. 50c. Sold

Eugene Power of Elk Rapids is visiting friends in Northville and Farmington this week. Mr. Power is a son of Gideon Power near Salem.

Wm. Phillips was up at Tawas on a visit over Sunday. He says it is all sand and pine woods up that way and he wouldn't live there for the whole town.

"Uncle" Joe Yerkes left this week for the sunny south to spend the winter. It is to be hoped he will return in the spring much improved in health.

Ex-postmaster Horton of Detroit was a Northville caller last week. Mr.
Horton says with the RECORD now changed to his Detroit address he is all fixed for the winter.

W. H. Yerkes spent Sunday with his wife in Detroit. Mrs. Yerkes is steadily on the gain and may be expected home within two or three weeks. Her host of friends here will give her a warm welcome.

Mrs. John Gardner, Mrs. John Ambler and Mrs. C. A. Hutton attended the Women's Missionary meeting in Detroit last week. This was the largest and certainly the heaviest delegation present from any one town in the state.

Mrs. Bert Wood gave her husband a birthday surprise last Sunday afternoon. There were about 20 relatives and friends present to have an enjoyable time. Mrs. Woods birthday occurred the day before so that it was a double occasion.

Miss Ella Dunlap came home from the Detroit hospital this week. Miss Dunlap's many friends here sympathize with her in her sad affliction.
While at the hospital she was obliged to undergo the amputation of one limb near the knee.

Geo. Waterman has recovered from his recent illness and left Tuesday for an eastern and southern trip for the Columbia Refrigerator Company.
George anticipates some good sales and if his last season's trip is any criticism to go by he will have them.

John Pinkerton has received his appointment as foreman at the U. S.
fish hatchery at Alpena and is now breathing sawdust air and shivering around up there in two feet of snow.
Northville dislikes very much to lose
"Our John," but such is life. Mrs.
Pinkerton will probably remain here through the winter.

Charles Blackburn, having finished his course at the Chatham Business College, has returned home. On Monday evening he was pleasantly surprised by a party of about thirty young friends, who assembled to welcome him back in their midst. At ten o'clock refreshments were served by the Misses Blackburn and they were partaken of in a very lively manner.
Music and games were the features of the balance of the evening. At midnight the company dispersed one and all declaring it "the event of the season."

Communication

Editor RECORD There seems to be an impression among our people that I was the author of a communication which appeared in the Living Issue of Nov. 16th regarding our ministers and prohibition. I wish to say that I never wrote the article nor knew anything about it. Please make this explanation.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. LISTENS TO REPORTS.

Vivisection Is Condemned—Resolution Offered by Mrs. Mary E. Lovell of Massachusetts Unanimously Adopted—Evangelistic Work Summed Up.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Yesterday's session of the W. C. T. U. was not so well attended as previous sessions of the convention. On the platform, besides the secretaries, sat Miss Frances Willard, the president; Mother Thompson, Mother Stewart, Mrs. Helen M. Barker, treasurer of the union, and others. Huge bouquets of chrysanthemums graced the platform. Reports of superintendents were taken up under the evangelistic department, the general topic being "What are the different departments grouped under the head of evangelistic doing to save from the sin of intemperance, and what results can each report as contributing to the overthrow of the liquor traffic and the establishment of God's kingdom?" Miss E. W. Greenwood of Brooklyn told of the distribution of evangelistic literature and of arrangements for simultaneous prayer meetings in different localities. She recommended a return to the system of holding an hour of prayer from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning at national conventions. Her report was adopted. Mrs. Minnie English of Illinois made a very favorable report concerning work among the miners. Mrs. E. G. Hibben, who was to have reported on unfettered wine; Mrs. Esther I. Pritchard, who was to have reported on proportionate and systematic giving; Mrs. S. A. Morrison, who was to have reported on work in almshouses; Mrs. C. M. Woodward, who was to have reported on work among the railroad employes; Mrs. Sara A. McClees, who was to have reported on work among soldiers and sailors; and Mrs. Mary C. Upham, who was to have reported on work among lumbermen, were not present. Mrs. Mary F. Lovell of Massachusetts reported for the department of mercy and spoke against the use of birds for the adornment of ladies' hats, against killing seals for use in cloaks, and urged her hearers to look into what she termed the horrors of the slaughter house. She offered a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, urging the creation of a sentiment among the young people of the country against the practice of vivisection, which she announced as cruel and unnecessary for the promotion of science. Rev. Mary Wood Allen next responded for the purity department. She complained of a lack of funds to carry out the work of the department, but otherwise offered an encouraging report. Mrs. C. M. Woodward reported for work among railroad men, which, barring the interruption caused by the big strike, had been very encouraging. Miss Greenwood of Brooklyn was granted an extension of time in which to continue her report. When the afternoon session was resumed Mrs. Emelia D. Martin, national superintendent of the department of purity in literature and art, reported and recommended the reading of certain specified books and publications. Mrs. Alice Robinson spoke briefly for the purity of the press. Mrs. Matilda B. Carse made a report upon the Woman's Temple. The report was most encouraging and was received with great enthusiasm and was referred to the executive committee. Mrs. Anna M. Cummings of south Africa spoke briefly, telling of the enthusiasm of the white ribbons of the date continent. Mrs. Shorer of Wisconsin spoke briefly. Mrs. E. A. Blair of California, who for two years has traveled 12,000 miles by rail, wagon and canal boat, said she had organized thirty-four temperance leagues and had devoted her entire time to the work. Mrs. Annie Hicks of London, the leading woman in Great Britain in the labor movement, sailed Nov. 17 with Lady Henry Somerset and is a fraternal delegate to the great labor convocation in Denver, Colo., next December. The evening session was a celebration in honor of the anniversary of the crusade movement. Mrs. Henrietta L. Monroe, president of the Ohio Woman's Christian Temperance union, was in the chair. Addresses of felicitation and of remembrance were delivered by Mrs. Jennie F. Willing of Chicago, Mrs. E. J. Thompson of Ohio, Mrs. Mary B. Ingham of Cleveland, Mrs. S. S. Fessenden of Massachusetts, and Miss W. Ward. The feature of the celebration was the presentation to Miss Cornelia Dow, for her father, Gen. Neal Dow, who is unable to be at the convention, of a handsomely engrossed testimonial from the white ribbon people of England and America.

TRAIN ROBBERS' WORK.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 20.—At 11:30 P. M. last night a southbound freight No. 27 on the Chesapeake & Ohio Southwestern was wrecked by an open switch. Fireman Thomas H. Matthews was killed. Engineer Lloyd Groves and brakeman Alexander Saunders (colored) were injured so badly it is doubtful if they will recover, and Will Turner, James Luther and Fred James, tramps from Kentucky, received serious injuries. The switch had been thrown to derail and rob the passenger train that was due in ten minutes. Engineer Groves saw the condition of the switch in time to throw the lever. Then he jumped, but struck on his head, which was cracked. Fireman Matthews jumped, but bounded back under the cars and his head was crushed. Brakeman Saunders was thrown from the top of a box car and received internal injuries. The tramps rode in a lumber car and were buried under a pile of that material. The injured were placed in a hospital at Memphis.

HOLMES IS INDICTED. Philadelphia Grand Jury Returns a True Bill Against Him. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 20.—The grand jury late yesterday afternoon found a true bill against Herman Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, now a prisoner in Boston. Jephtha B. Howe, the St. Louis lawyer who collected the insurance money on E. F. Pitzel's policy for the latter's widow, and the widow herself. The indictment reads for "conspiracy to cheat and defraud." The detectives have practically abandoned the murder theory, and now think they are on the track of Pitzel in the person of a man calling himself B. F. Lyman, whose whereabouts they refuse to divulge. They stated last night that Mrs. Pitzel had made a confession substantially the same as that of Holmes, except that she believed her husband to be in South America. She has not seen him since the alleged crime was committed.

RECEIVER GETS $35,000. Barrel of Money Goes to Iron Hall Receiver and to Lawyers Interested. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 20.—Judge Winters yesterday granted Receiver Failey $35,000 additional for his services as receiver for the Iron Hall, making $50,000 in all. The lawyers have got $50,000 more, it is said, while the technical court costs in the seven or eight different states are figured on as something enormous. The receiver has paid out in dividends $200,000, and reports he has $1,577,000 in his possession. There is still $225,000 due to the receiver from the different branches of the defunct order. The receiver has had $1,000,000 or more in his possession since a few weeks following the failure of the order.

It Cures Consumption. CINCINNATI, Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Depositions taken here in the case of Dr. Amick vs. Reeves develop some remarkable facts. It was shown that the Amick Chemical company of this city has supplied forty thousand doctors with Dr. Amick's chemical treatment for consumption, as much as one thousand dollars' worth of sample medicines being distributed daily. Each patient receives a trial outfit and an inhaler. The company offered as evidence its files containing thousands of reports from physicians of cures covering every stage and phase of the disease.

Kolt Cooking for Trouble. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20.—Reuben F. Kolt, the defeated candidate of the populist party for governor of Alabama, publishes a lengthy address to the people of Alabama in which he declares his intention to be inaugurated governor of the state Dec. 1, and calls upon his followers everywhere to gather at Montgomery on that day and aid him in taking his seat. He says he was properly elected and has been counted out.

Aspirants for Headquarters. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 20.—The executive board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen began a week's meeting yesterday to arrange for the change in the organization's law regarding insurance and for the removal of the headquarters from this city. Delegations from several cities asking for the location of the headquarters will be heard later in the week. The insurance question is not yet settled.

Wells on His Way to Indianapolis. NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Samuel Wells, accused of robbing the postoffice at New Albany, Ind., of $5,327 worth of postage stamps Oct. 16 last, was turned over to an Indiana sheriff yesterday after an examination before United States Commissioner Shields. The sheriff started with his prisoner on an afternoon train for Indianapolis, where Wells will be arraigned.

Riot Leaders Sentenced. PEKIN, Ill., Nov. 20.—John L. Geher, leader of the Little Bros. coal mine riot; Charles Jones, John Heathcote and Daniel Caddell, who were also in the riot when Edward Blower and William Dixon were killed June last, were sentenced by Judge Green yesterday afternoon for manslaughter. The jury gave Heathcote and Caddell three years each at Joliet.

Train Robbers Get More Time. KEOKUK, Iowa, Nov. 20.—The trial of the would be Santa Fe train robbers, Overfield and Abrams, was postponed until the February term of court at Memphis, Mo., yesterday because Abrams had not sufficiently recovered to be able to appear in court.

Kansas Post Office Robbed. EMPORIA, Kan., Nov. 20.—The post office at Hartford, twelve miles south of here, was burglarized last night and all the stamps and a small amount of money stolen, in all a little over $200.

CRIME. Jephtha D. Howe, a St. Louis attorney, has been arrested, charged with connection with the Holmes insurance swindle. At Wellsville, Mo., Thomas Portercheck killed his mother, sister and brother, set fire to the house and then cut his own throat. Foiled in an attempt to hold up a train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley road, bandits shot the fireman. Two prisoners escaped from jail at Canon City, Colo., by cutting through the ceiling and breaking two iron doors. John Ashby and John Heverin were mortally and Police Officer Stuart seriously wounded in a saloon fight at Owensboro, Ky.

FOREIGN.

Impressive ceremonies marked the entombment of the remains of the late czar in the cathedral of St. Petersburg. De Giers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, and Vanovski, Russian minister of war, are said to have resigned. A hundred and fifty Dutch troops were killed or wounded in an attack on Tjakranegara, Java. The Balinese loss was heavy. Earthquake shocks continue throughout Sicily and southern Italy. Palmi and Seminari are in ruins. The death list is swelling. Officers of the cruiser Detroit, entrusted with the return of the Columbus relics, are being handsomely entertained at Madrid. The Danish government has issued a decree forbidding the importation of live cattle and dressed meat from the United States. Heralds paraded the streets of St. Petersburg and announced that the funeral of the czar would take place to-day. Two thousand Armenians were massacred at Sassun and their bodies being left unburied caused an outbreak of cholera.

OBITUARY. George A. Colbath, a brother of the late ex-Vice-President Henry Wilson, died at Natick, Mass. Joseph Lewis, at whose shop in Manchester, England, Stephenson's engine was built in 1829, died in Kansas City.

VIEW OF THE ENTRANCE TO PORT ARTHUR. The extensive docks, arsenals and factories of Port Arthur make the harbor one of the most important in China, and the strategic importance of the place is very great. The harbor has a very narrow entrance, with high hills on each side strongly fortified.

"Con" Riordan, who was killed by Bob Fitzsimmons in a sparring match, was buried at Syracuse, N. Y., Sunday.

Mrs. Milton Harrington, one of the six survivors of the Multnomah massacre in Utah in 1859, is dead in Delavan, Wis., aged 58 years.

SPORTING NOTES. The McAniff-Ziegler fight at Coney Island Monday was stopped by the police in the third round owing to its fierceness. At Louisville Monday John S. Johnson rode a mile, standing start, in 1:30 3-5, lowering the world's bicycle record a full second. A. G. Spalding denies he intends to again assume active baseball management. He upholds the National league in disciplining those who are attempting to wreck it. George Kleinman, champion wing shot of America, was defeated by Dr. Carver Monday in a 100-bird shoot at Watson's park. Bicycle champions of five foreign countries arrived in New York, where they will compete with Americans.

WASHINGTON. An extension of the classified service to include postoffices is said to have been determined on by the President. In his annual report Gov. Sheakley of Alaska says seal poaching has not yet been stopped. Commissioner Miller is preparing a circular in regard to the income tax to be sent to internal revenue collectors. The tariff fight will be resumed when congress meets. Senator Harris intends to push the supplemental bills. Consul General Mason, stationed at Frankfurt, says American securities are in bad odor and radical changes are necessary.

RELIGIOUS. President Bashford of Ohio Wesleyan university delivered the annual sermon before the National W. C. T. U. at Cleveland, Sunday, an honor heretofore accorded to women. As orthodox preachers have filled the pulpit of Central church since Prof. Swing's death, it is believed the congregation will drift back to orthodoxy. Delegates to the Episcopal church congress in Boston on Thursday discussed the matter of religious orders in the society.

CATASTROPHES.

Two men were killed and six injured by the explosion of a boiler in a cotton gin at Gale, La. Two men and eighty-three valuable horses were cremated in the stables of A. J. Flanders in Boston. A coal train of the Pennsylvania road went through a bridge near Larimer, Pa. Eight men are believed to have been buried in the wreck. Escaping natural gas overcame many members of the congregation of a Methodist church at East Liverpool, Ohio. Six are in a critical state. A blaze in the court house at Shelbyville, Ill., destroyed the assessor's and collector's books. The Southern Phosphate works at Macon, Ga., were destroyed by fire. The loss is put at $150,000.

POLITICAL. Kolt, the defeated candidate for governor of Alabama, has issued a manifesto calling on his supporters to aid him in seizing the executive office. Silver men are said to have determined to organize a new party if the republicans do not declare for free coinage. Chairman Babcock of the republican congressional committee says the tariff will be allowed to rest for some time. President Trayner of the American Protective association claims the result of the elections is a victory for the order. Nebraska republicans have decided to contest the election of Judge Holcomb, the governor-elect, on the grounds of fraud.

MATRIMONIAL

HE Rossville News was a bright and sprightly paper, but it was not so successful as to afford to pay for the news regularly furnished by the United Press association, and, as a rule, the shears were with the reporter's pencil in filling out its columns.

It had but one reporter, yet a more energetic, irresistible, self-satisfied newspaper man than Fred Stokes seldom existed. In a dearth of news, when the town was wretchedly dull, he could fall back upon "the reporter's imagination, evolving from airy notions a succession of rumors and prognostications with unflinching shrewdness, that verged upon, yet never overstepped, the dim line of probability.

When not chasing the festive item, or cornering an elusive sensation, he would assist his editorial chief in the latter's more onerous task. He would concoct poetic and taking advertisements; extract the pith of some great metropolitan editor's opinion on the tariff, and all this in addition to other multifarious duties.

Often would the editor remove his cigar, elevate his legs, and, as the blue smoke curled upward, reward his satellite with a jovial nod of approval, and say:

"Fred, me boy, next to myself, the News would be lost without ye."

The editor's ancestral fluid was of an Irish tincture, and a slight suspicion of brogue often intruded itself upon his tongue when the editor grew interested.

"I'm indebted to ye, and if ever ye get into a tight place, call upon your chief. Gratitude, me son—ahem! Here's that account of young Shurtliff's marriage. Very tony affair, that; we must give it at least a column, with a well-displayed heading."

"Look here, sir," said Fred, after one of these pleasant interjectional colloquies with his chief, "here's a matrimonial ad. in the New York Herald for a wife: 'Wealthy Cuban'—rich—presumably—unsophisticated—without acquaintance in this country, wants a wife. She must be young, handsome, refined and so on. Money not essential. Address Zanaga, New York Herald, in confidence.' I believe I'll answer it—huge joke, you see? Perhaps we can work up something stunning out of this for the News. Who knows?"

The editor brightened enthusiastically. "Right you are," said he. "But it will take exceedingly adroit manipulation, me boy."

Fred considered the matter, and then indicted a modest reply, in a flowing feminine hand, signing himself (the deceitful rascal) "Miss Nellie Jardine."

So Fred posted his letter, then carelessly awaited developments. In due time came a reply. The Cuban expressed his surprise and pleasure at

"TAKE ME TO HER GRAVE." hearing so assuringly from Miss Nellie Jardine, and said that out of about forty answers, hers was the one that pleased him most.

She alone, he continued, with tropical ardor, was the one woman for him. He felt it, his heart told him so, and thus on, through several pages of blind infatuity. He concluded by hoping, praying, imploring that she would at once reply and exchange photographs with her adoring slave.

"Bedad, sir," said the editor, "you are in for it. I behold already the consummation. Ye'll be donning petticoats next, and the reporter's department of the News will feel an aching void, that is, when ye're off to visit this Cuban in New York, me boy."

Several letters on either side were sent, and photographs exchanged, Fred sending that of an extremely pretty girl he had met at Cape May one summer. He was beginning, however, to tire of the tender monotony, when, one day, he laid upon the editor's desk a neat package, which, on being opened, disclosed a pair of earrings and a brooch set with garnet and pearls. The editor examined them critically. Fred seemed more dismayed than amused. "They're worth three hundred dollars, me boy—if they're genuine. What does the fellow say about them?"

"Why, it's a present, he says, and hints of more to come, and that we must arrange for a meeting—all this with the wildest protestations of eternal love and fidelity. Hang it! this is getting serious. I never thought the fool would go so far."

"Write him that the sudden death of one of your uncles, cousins, or instantly, me boy. Hint of great riches falling your way, of a family mystery imposing silence. Tell him to possess his soul in patience, and that he will hear from you in a month, or so. Then you can return his confounded jewelry, and break up the affair—somehow—anyhow."

The editor felt himself sagacious, yet his conclusion was misty, too misty it seemed, when, two days later, Fred rushed into the sanctum with an open letter in his hand, his eyes dilated, and his hair disheveled. "Sir!" he said, "I'm ruined! I must leave, obliterate myself, and the News will have to get another man. Read that!"

He dashed the letter down upon the desk, and fell to gnawing his nails nervously. The editor looked up wonderingly, then read the note. After a few passionate, devotional interjections, it wound up by stating that the devoted and impulsive lover would visit Rossville on the following Friday to see his "adored one," his "queen."

"Isn't this something like a predicament?" exclaimed Fred, as his chief sat tapping the arm of the editorial chair with his pencil and his eyes fixed reflectively upon his assistant. "Can you make me an advance of $50? I'll get Meigs to take my place and flee to the Adirondacks or some pathless wilderness for a while until this infuriated foreigner recovers his reason."

"Fred, me boy," said the editor, sagely, "I know a trick worth two of that. Write me a touching obituary notice of Miss Nellie Jardine's very sudden demise. A congestive chill, spinal meningitis; anything of that sort will do. We'll just insert that little notice, and have one copy struck off."

"Have it marked, and sent to that poor fool of a Cuban, together with the jewelry," he said, and, presto, me boy! you are out of the whole affair in no time. We won't need Meigs then; he's a dunderhead; and you can still go on with your work."

Fred, though at first doubtful, fell in with this idea and the program was fully carried out.

The announcement beginning "Sudden death of an estimable young lady," was quite pathetic, and so tickled Fred's fancy that his nervousness vanished as Wednesday and Thursday passed. He became so absorbed in other things that when on Friday, a wild-eyed, haggard, foreign-looking man of thirty-five burst into the sanctum, with a paper in his hand, Fred looked up serenely, then recognized, with an appalling thrill, that it was the Cuban, from the photograph the latter had sent.

"Rossville News—ee it here?" asked the stranger, in a somber tone. "Well—a—I'm not sure," Fred hesitated whether to frankly own up or ignominiously flee.

"E-et must be. I was so told. Senior—have you see zat?"

He pointed to the notice in the paper he held, and watched Fred anxiously.

"Zat—zat—," his voice was profoundly melancholy. "Oh, senior! I am desolate—I am inconsolable. I no one know I here. Will you—so kindly—to take me to the grave? Her last resting place, senior?"

Fred here suddenly felt an inspiration that lent him a little glimpse of rescue. Only two days before, in the little village cemetery, a new grave had been made. A member of a family little known, and recently arrived at Rossville, had died and been buried there.

"Certainly, sir," he said, reaching for his hat. "Come with me. It is a most melancholy event, and, as you seem interested I see no harm in showing you the grave of our esteemed young neighbor—a lovely girl she was, too."

The stranger grasped Fred's hand, wrung it feverishly, and prepared to follow him. He told the office-boy that he would not be back for an hour, and the two men sallied forth down a back street. Fred did not wish to meet acquaintances just then. After a while they came out on a pleasant road, that lead to the cemetery. Arriving there, he pointed out the way to the grave.

"No trouble in finding it, sir; it's the only new one. You will want to be alone, and should you wish to leave a place connected with such sad memories at once, there's a New York train at four-fifteen. Good-day."

Fred was off like a rocket, half determined to pack his worldly goods and go to see his mother, whom he had not visited for two years. But, on his return to the office, the editor was awaiting him with a telegram in hand.

"Look here," said his chief, "I've got to leave you in five minutes. I have urgent business in Washington, to use my influence in securing an appointment in the treasury department for my friend Dunleavy, and he and I have to go there at once and see about it. I'll be back in two days; not a word now; I trust you as I do myself. You can run things."

So the editor departed with a rush, giving Fred hardly time to open his mouth. He felt desperate. That mad and melancholy Cuban would be back, asking troublesome questions, and any one might drop in. He shuddered at the thought of the direful possibilities ahead.

But the afternoon wore off, and the Cuban did not return. Fred breathed easier; perhaps the fellow had really taken the New York train. When he looked up the office and started upon his evening walk, his fears had flown.

He turned down a grassy lane, near which stood a house, seclusively sheltered by shrubberies and trees. From the front gate a man and woman came forth, and walked toward him arm in arm. His fears suddenly revived as he recognized the Cuban again.

The other was a lovely lady in deep mourning. Imagine his surprise when the man greeted him joyfully, ecstatically, all his former dejection gone, and his face wreathed in smiles.

"Ah, my friend," said the Cuban, "you have saved my life and restored my happiness. Senior, I cannot tell how much to you I owe? You send me to that grave, and there what do I find? I see there, alive and well, my old, old love, from whom I long separated for years. I forgot my new grief, I go there sad, I come away rejoicing; and to you senior, I owe all of zat—yes—all!"

Explanations ensued, during which the Cuban eagerly introduced his companion. It appeared that five years before, in Cuba, he had wooed and won the daughter of a prominent patriot leader of the island. After a time, a price was set upon that chief's head by the Spanish authorities, and he and his family suddenly disappeared, while our Cuban was away in Florida on business. On the latter's return, he could find no trace of them, and after months of fruitless waiting, he gave up all hope of ever again seeing his affianced.

Years passed. He came to New York and began to think of marriage again. Hence the advertisement, and the cruel practical joke, that had, after all, resulted so happily. The grave to which Fred had sent him was really that of a brother of the lady now by his side. He met her there, in tears over her own family bereavement.

They recognized each other. She had remained true to him, and she was his first love. Their grief was changed into joy, and he went home with her.

They had renewed their troth, and, in his happiness, the mystery of Miss Nellie Jardine was not again alluded to by him.

THE POMPAÑO.

He is a Frisky Jumper as Well as Delicious Food Fish.

One of the most delicious food fishes of the semi-tropics is the pompano, says the New York Sun. In size and shape he is not unlike the flounder, he swims edgewise instead of flat on his belly. In color his scales are gray, white, grayish blue and golden yellow, and when he leaps from the water, as he frequently does, the glinting of the golden scales in the sunlight forms a beautiful sight. A traveler just returned from lake Worth, on the lower coast of Florida, writes: "As we approached the mouth of the canal the fish appeared to be more numerous, and they made long jumps into the air all about us. They were chiefly mullet and pompano, and once I counted five in the air at the same time."

"Before we reached the dredgeboat, six miles from the foot of the lake, we had four pompano, all of which had jumped from the water and landed accidentally in the bottom of our boat. One of them struck our boatman, Ben Able, in the breast, and the blow was of sufficient force to nearly wind him for a minute. Since ice factories have been established along the Indian river and on lake Worth pompano are shipped to the Northern markets in large quantities. They 'run' throughout the year, but make the best eating during the winter months."

Offered a Substitute.

"One of the funniest instances I ever knew to occur in court," says a veteran official of Penobscot county, "happened years ago when Judge Perham, presiding in the court of common pleas. An old Irishman, a resident of Bangor, was an important witness in a case, and both he and the lawyers, who were trying to examine him, were having a hard time of it. The witness was very slack and frowny in his personal appearance, and this heightened the effect of his blarney immensely. He perspired freely under the ordeal of examination and was evidently wishing it all over, when the door at the rear of the courtroom opened and in came a little sharp-eyed old Irishwoman. The witness saw her and a look of intense relief spread over his features as he blurted out: 'There! There is me ole woman, come in. Ax her some of your dum foolish questions. She kin take care o' ye.'—Lewiston Journal.

A Mustache Over Seven Feet Long.

The people of Bellington W. Va., are proud of one of their citizens, whose only claim to greatness is his enormous beard and mustache. His name is Brown—plain James Brown—but nature could not hide his identity even in the Virginia mountains, especially after bestowing on him such an enormous beard. Brown is six feet and one inch in height, but even his great stature does not hinder his chin beard from trailing on the floor when he stands erect. The mustache is even a greater curiosity than his beard, being nearly seven feet and four inches "from tip to tip."

His Natural Inference.

"How do you like that cigar?" asked the man who had just presented his friend with a weed.

"Excellent. One of the best I have smoked in a long time."

"It was presented to me by a friend."

"Yes. I thought it must have been."

The Collar Pattern.

Wife—What's the matter, Charlie?

Hubbie—I've lost my collar button.

Wife—Where did you lose it?

Hubbie, trying to be sweet—Now, don't ask me that, dear; don't you suppose if I knew were I'd lost it, I'd go there and find it.

Too Bad.

"Good gracious, Mandy!" exclaimed Josiah, as they approached the church door. "We can't get married there. See that notice on the tree by the door?" And Amanda suddenly spelled out the notice: "D-o-n-o-t-h-i-t-o-b-h-e-r-e."—Truth.

"That bedstead is very low," persuasively remarked the clerk in one of our furniture stores. "It's too low," replied the old maid who was looking at it. "There isn't room for a man to get under it."

Here's a story for our exchanges and its truth too. A Northville gentleman has so far this year gathered in 615,750 dozen of eggs and expects to get all of $75,000 dozen more within the next few weeks.

Why would it not be a good idea to divide this town up and make two townships of it. It is getting altogether too large for one set of officers to look after and if it were divided at the precinct line making two distinct towns it would prove more satisfactory all around.

Mrs. Carpenter gave an interesting report at the M. E. church Sunday of the state S. S. convention held at Grand Rapids last week to which she and Miss Rose Barley were delegates. Hon. T. E. Barkworth was elected president. The next meeting will be held in Detroit.

The attention of our readers is called to the many ads appearing in these columns each week. They are well worth the earnest attention which we know they receive. They are all fresh the majority being new each week. They contain genuine bargains, the reliability of which is guaranteed in every case. They should never be overlooked.

If anyone continues to take a newspaper from the post-office they are holding for the payment of the same whether they ever ordered the paper or not, and if they are financially responsible the amount can be collected. The right way when you don't want the RECORD, or any other paper, is to notify the publisher and refuse to take the paper from the office.

We believe no public Thanksgiving dinner will be served next Thursday and if the pastors will approve of the RECORD's suggestion that each family take up a special home collection and drop it all into the collection box as a special contribution at church on the following Sunday, it will do away with the usual expense and trouble of a Thanksgiving dinner at a hall and at the same time give everyone an opportunity to eat turkey at home.

The so called Living Issue of Pontiac has probably done as much or more to injure the cause of temperance where it has circulated than any other one thing. Its aim seems to be to abuse, slander and lie about ministers of the gospel and good christian people whose views do not coincide with the editor's. Week before last it had a tirade of prevarications against the Holy clergy-men and Evangelist Fleming. Last week our three ministers here were unwarrantably assailed in a maliciously false, unjust and uncalled for manner. And so it goes.

STATE NEWS NOTES.

A CHAPTER OF THE DOINGS OF MICHIGANDERS.

Smugglers Caught in the Act at Port Huron.—Coal Gas Kills a Young Lady at Bay City.—Hot Battle with Burglars.—Bachmann Man Murdered.

Smugglers Caught at Port Huron.—Customs Officer Fred A. Buzzell, at Port Huron, captured two alleged smugglers and seized about 1,500 pounds of celluloid, worth about $1,500, which was smuggled over the river to escape a duty of 50 cents per pound. Henry Campbell, a well-known driver, and Charles King, a drayman, are the parties under arrest. The celluloid is in six cases weighing about 250 pounds each. It was brought over in rowboats at night, but unfortunately one case fell overboard at the dock, and it was while Campbell was getting this case out of the river that he was arrested. The five cases had been taken to the depot and were to be shipped to a firm in Chicago. It is thought that those arrested are members of a large gang of smugglers who have been successfully smuggling not only celluloid but opium. John Kerwin was later arrested as one of the gang.

Her Wedding Gown for a Shroud.—Escaping gas at the residence of William Hammond of Bay City, was the cause of the death of Kate Connors, aged 22, and the placing of Nina Hammond, aged 13, next to the grave. Both occupied the same room. A new coal stove was placed in the house and the pipe was put in by Hammonds himself. It appears that he ran it so far into the chimney that there was no outlet for the gas. Miss Connors was complaining about the way the stove was acting before she went to bed, but did not make an investigation. In the morning it was discovered that the house was full of gas and smoke, but it was not considered serious. Miss Connors was to have been married in a few days and her wedding trousseau was all ready.

A Watchman's Battle With Burglars.—A pitched battle occurred at Vicksburg between Night Watchman Barney and two burglars. One burglar entered the carriage shop belonging to Wintersdorf & Son. The other stood guard outside. Barney saw the flicker of a match in the shop and proceeded to investigate. Upon approaching the building the man outside several times ordered him to halt and then fired. Barney responded with his gun. The burglar inside jumped out of the window and all three took a hand in the battle. One ball passed through Barney's cap, plowed a furrow in his coat and knocked him down. Upon exhausting his gun Barney went for help and another revolver and the burglars decamped.

Murdered to Get Life Insurance.—Augustus Vetter, a farmer near Buchanan, was brutally assaulted by his father-in-law, George Swaringer, with a hammer while in bed. He has since died of his injuries and his assailant has been arrested. Bad blood has existed between the two men for some time and that Swaringer who is 60 years of age is of a quarrelsome disposition. Vetter carried a life insurance policy for $2,000 in the Macabees and it is alleged that there was a scheme on between his wife and her father to get the money which was in her name. Vetter was able to tell of the assault before he died and also accused his wife and her father of having previously tried to poison him.

Schooner Captured—Three Drowned.—The little schooner Antelope captured while attempting to make port at Grand Haven. The three men who constituted the crew were drowned. They are Capt. John Larsen and brother and a Swede, known as Chris. all of Whitehall. Ten minutes after the capsizing of the Antelope the little sailing schooner Alert, light, tried to make the pier but failed and went on the beach. Her crew were rescued.

The Lay and Order league of Calumet has sent a delegate to Lansing to see if Gov. Rich can be persuaded to remove the marshal, Francis Ward. They declare that he allows saloonkeepers to keep their places open at all hours of the day and night and on Sundays, justifying his alleged remissness with the claim that the city council doesn't want the laws enforced.

The Free and Accepted Masons of Pontiac are seriously thinking of erecting a temple. If they decide to build they will put up a building that will be an ornament to the city and cost about $25,000. They have a fund of $8,000 on hand now for building purposes.

Warren Martin, 501 Smith and Will Hinckley recently stole a pair of old shoes worth about 75 cents at Union City. They were arrested, tried and found guilty. Smith and Hinckley got 60 days each in the Detroit House of Correction and Martin went to the county jail for 30 days. It cost the county about $250 in costs.

EVENTS OF GENERAL INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE.

The Correspondence Which Led up to the China-Japan War Made Public—Italian Towns Destroyed by Earthquake and Many Inhabitants Killed.

China-Japan War Gossip.

Washington: The Japanese government has made public the official correspondence which passed between China and Japan before the declaration of war. The trouble started by China notifying Japan of her intention to send troops into Korea to quell the rebellion in "our tributary state."

Japan replied that she had never recognized Korea as a "tributary state" of China, and announced an intention of also sending troops into Korea. China protested against this and made vague threats of trouble. Japan promptly "got her back up" and said her troops could take care of themselves if it came to that, but cooled down somewhat and offered to join China in a joint readjustment of Korean and Korean affairs on modern principles. The Celestials rejected the offer and intimated that they would rule in Korea whether or no. The next letter was from Japan to China stating that Japan could no longer disregard the law of self-preservation which impels her to reform the deplorable condition of Korea and protect Japan's interests from the havoc of the frequent rebellions. No. 9 is also from Japan to China, stating that as China had declined to join in the administrative reform of Korea, the only conclusion deductible is that the Chinese government "is disposed to precipitate complications. This closes the correspondence. The last letter being dated 11 days before Japan sank the Chinese transport Row Shing carrying the Chinese troops to Korea. Japan's declaration of war following six days later.

Washington: The Japanese officials have displayed considerable nerve by detaining the steamer Gaelic at Yokohama to search for contraband goods and certain two men believed to be employed by China to destroy the Japanese navy. The suspects escaped and boarded the French mail steamer Sydney, bound for Shanghai via Kobe. The Japs were soon on their track and telegraphed to hold and search the Sydney at Kobe. The men were captured and they bore letters to Li Hung Chang from the Chinese envoy at Washington and also a formal contract promising to pay them $100,000 for the destruction of the Japanese navy within eight weeks and a specified sum for every merchant ship destroyed. It appears that $100,000 had already been paid on account. The two men were English born, but naturalized Americans. France has notified Japan that she acted properly in detaining and searching the Sydney.

Forest Fire Burn Mining Towns.—Dispatches from Boulder, Col., says A forest fire which started from a camp fire, has been raging north of the mining camp of Gold Hill, a town of about 500 inhabitants, 15 miles northwest. The timber was as dry as powder, and it was not long before the town was burning. The miners and storekeepers soon saw the futility of trying to save the buildings, and sent their wives and children to Boulder while they conveyed as much of their moveable property as possible into the mine tunnels. The flames utterly destroyed Gold Hill town, and threatened Ward, four miles west, Talcott, Copper Rock and Sunshine. Gold Lake, a summering place with pretty cottages and a big hotel, was totally destroyed. Several ranches and miners' houses, in the intervening territory were burned. Three men were badly burned, but none fatally. The loss will reach $2,000,000.

A courier reports the destruction of about one-half of the property of Camp Talcott and Prussian mine and mill.

Disasters Storms in Great Britain.—London: Stormy weather and floods prevailed over the south part of England, and the loss of life and damage to property was very great. At Bath, Somersetshire, the river Avon reached the highest point of the century. Thousands of people are homeless and are being fed by the authorities. Several ships' boats have been washed ashore about Dorset. The floods in Sussex are increasing. Many houses at Windsor and at Eton have been flooded. At Worthing, Sussex, the bodies of seven drowned sailors have been washed ashore. Altogether 20 lives are known to have been lost by this long-continued storm.

Four Deaths by a Maniac's Hand.—Thomas Porterschee, his mother, two sisters and a brother, all Bonemians, lived near Wellsville. McThomas complained that his head was hurting him and said he believed his neck was broken and refused to go to bed. At 3 o'clock in the morning he secured an ax and killed his mother, his sister and his brother. His other sister, Mary, made her escape. She stood on the outside and saw her maniac brother saturate the room with coal oil set it on fire and then thrust himself with a knife in the throat. He sank down and all four bodies were consumed in the burning house. By the time the neighbors got to the unfortunate man the house was all ablaze, too late to rescue the bodies.

Largest Oil Well in the World Just Struck.—Kirkbridge Bros., of Toledo, can claim the two largest oil wells in the world. Their Meyers No. 3 is doing 100 barrels an hour, and their Jones No. 2, located four miles east, came in good for 200 barrels an hour. Such a gusher had not been expected and the tankage available was wholly inadequate to take care of the well's output. As a result the ground around the well to a depth of four feet was covered with the oil. The well is in territory which has been drilled repeatedly without yielding any more than a 10-barrel well.

At the corners are hearts designed in large pearls and precious stones. The picture frame is probably worth up to $100,000.

The Boston Transcript recalls the tragic fate of those great composers who preceded Strauss, and whom Vienna once similarly lauded. Schubert was allowed to starve in the midst of the great capital; Mozart, living was so treated that he wrote his greatest work, "Don Giovanni," for Prague and when he died he was laid in a pauper's grave; Beethoven, to spite the Viennese, dedicated his ninth symphony to the king of Prussia.

It Cures Consumption.

Depositions taken at Cincinnati in the case of Dr. Amick vs. Reeves develop some remarkable facts. It was shown that this Amick Chemical company of that city has supplied 40,000 doctors with Dr. Amick's chemical treatment for consumption, as much as $1,000 worth of sample medicines being distributed daily. Each patient receives a trial outfit and an inhaler. The company offered as evidence its files containing thousands of reports from physicians of cures covering every stage and phase of the disease.

General Assembly of the Knights of Labor.

The order for several years. The sessions were held behind locked doors and only armchairs could be made as to the character of the discussions. In his address General Master Workman Boveren advised a coalition with the A. R. U. and all labor organizations. His resume of the Pullman strike terminated in severe criticism of Maj. Gen. Schofield and the recommendations of that officer for an increase of the military force of the nation and that they "advocate a decrease in the regular army and the abolition of the state militia, and from them are coming to the surface the sentiments of a military despotism." He also made a sharp criticism of the banking laws.

HIS THANKSGIVING.

INEXCESSIBLY bored, that was what he said and what he meant. He always wanted to be away from town on these dull winter holidays. And he had always been very fortunate in the matter of invitations. This year he had been asked to go up the Hudson to the De Pettits place. And now that was spoiled, old Mrs. De Pettit having been so inconsiderate as to die of heart disease the week previous, the invitations for the house-party were all recalled. And Lorrimor had the pleasing prospect of a long, stupid day in his bachelor apartment varied by an evening at the club perhaps, though he meant not to show himself there if possible, owing to the likelihood of meeting Sargent, who never was asked anywhere by swell people and who would rejoice in jealous consequence at Lorrimor's discomfiture.

With these thoughts the young bank attache, whose hours were immaterial, his uncle being president of the bank, and whose income was the result of a legacy rather than of his salary, endeavored to compose himself to slumber and again, after troubled dreams, awakened to a gray November dawn. It's that confounded Thanksgiving day," he grumbled, turned over and tried again to sleep. "The day is a drowsy one," he meditated, "it's a piebald feast in every sense. The upper classes require no one to tell them when and for what to pray, they know enough to render thanks to the Lord every day in the year—especially Sundays in church like decent Christians. As for the gorging oneself on ordinary barnyard fowl, it thoroughly wearies me."

Inexcessibly bored, Mr. Wilson Lorrimor fell into another doze, which presently became slumber and lasted till noon. Not employing a valet, and having given the young colored lad who cared for his rooms and made his coffee on a patent gas arrangement from a drop tube strict orders not to appear until midday, he suffered no disturbance. Chris, the boy in question, had therefore just arrived and was busy fixing the bath, when Mr. Lorrimor opened his eyes. It was not Chris who awakened him, however, but the persistent, incessant ringing of the street bell.

"For heaven's sake," said Lorrimor, "go down and see what idiot is doing that."

Chris obeyed promptly, though it meant four flights of stairs; but he was a long time returning. He came not back alone. A rustic of a rustic letobered company. Mr. Lorrimor wondered if his landlady expected a holiday gift. He was out of bed and had crawled into his slippers and profuse bath robe.

"HE'S TELLIN' AGAIN."

"Tell her to wait outside," he cried; "you hear me, Chris? Tell her to stay out. What does she want, anyway, coming here at daylight?" He had no much idea of the time of day.

A high soprano voice suddenly startled him: "I will go in—I will see him! Oh, you Lorrimor, you, you can't escape me now! I've found you out, try as you may, to hide in there. I tell you I will see him!"

"What the deuce—" yelled the young gentleman, who then made use of a stronger word. "Come in here. What are you doing with a woman out there? Come in and shut the door—she's made a mistake. She's looking for another man. I don't know her."

"No, you don't shut the door," the woman screamed; "no you don't, Mr. Lorrimor. I'm your wife, and I won't be thrown out. Oh! I've had a hard enough time to find you these two years. I've worked my way across the continent to find you. Oh yes, it's easy to marry a poor girl out in the wild mountains of the west and then get tired of her and desert her when her twin babies are only a month old, so she can't follow you. Oh, yes, Will Lorrimor—"

Mr. Lorrimor gave a hoarse shriek and fell back on his folding-bed so heavily that it nearly closed up with him. Chris, having heard the furious woman's face and came in, looking scared.

"My Mr. Lorrimor, but she's got 'em bad! Wouldn't blame any man for leaving her. Golly, but she's mad!"

"Oh, Chris," returned the gentleman, faintly. "I-I swear I don't remember any woman out west. There was a girl, but I didn't look at her much. But she—she seems to know my name and the time I went out there and came back. Oh! I don't know—what does she mean—what does she look like? Quick, tell me, she's kicking the door in. The people down stairs will be up in a minute. What shall I do?"

Perspiration was on his forehead. "She ain't bad looking," said Chris. "She's kind of short and thick. She's got yellow hair cut short and curly and seems like she touched up her cheeks with paint. Looks kind o' tough."

Lorrimor groaned. "She's yelling again. Go there, Chris, and save the door. Hear her. She says she's got the twins down stairs. Oh, what will I do if the squalling brats come up here. She's telling the names of the fellows I was with—see that—Crosby—Ruttan—I was with—she knows something. What if I did it when I was drunk—married that slinky horrid thing? She had yellow hair that curled—she might have cut it—what if I did this dreadful thing—and had twins and deserted them—oh, but that couldn't be. I wasn't drunk for a year, though I might have been for a night. (Chris, go out again—and—question her. Say I'm sick and ask her all about it. Tell her I never did anything so wicked—and all the circumstances have slipped my memory. Get the particulars."

Chris flew out and shut the door behind him. At that instant the street bell began to ring again. Lorrimor buried his face in the pillow and stopped his ears with the bath-robe. It was the twins perhaps. He forgot that two years old is young to reach a bell-button.

The next he knew Chris had returned letting himself and another in with the latch key. Lorrimor felt a hand on his shoulder and heard the voice of a former college chum and intimate friend.

"Hazard!" he gasped. "Is that you?"

"What's the row?" asked his friend. "Oh, Hazard, that woman—you saw her; what shall I do? What will people think?"

"Well," said his friend, judicially, "you know it might seem queer to see a young blonde female at the door of a straight laced fellow like yourself at this time of day. It's quite too early my boy, or else it's quite too late. You ought to manage better."

"I think you might leave out your joke and help me a little," said Lorrimor, scrambling to his feet in a fit of desperation. "Won't you, for heaven's sake go out and send her away? It's easy to say I'm sick—say I've got smallpox or whooping cough or anything horrible, I beg of you. Offer her anything to go away. Tell her I don't remember the least thing about it."

"I'll do my best, old man," said Hazard, bravely, and hurried out.

Lorrimor held his breath and crept near the door. Hazard was succeeding it seemed. He had reduced the conversation to whispers, broken now and then by something like a sob

After many moments Hazard came to report.

"I've fixed it, old fellow. She's agreed to compromise. I've promised her a lot of things—had to—"

"What did you promise?" Lorrimor wrapped his bath robe closer and looked resolute.

"Well, first she says as to-day's Thanksgiving she requires a good dinner. She doesn't insist on Delmonico's—in fact, there are other places she might prefer—more select and expensive. A party of six would suit her—including herself and you—"

"What!" roared Lorrimor. "She thinks I'll appear in public with her—"

"Hush! Go slow, old man. The twins won't be in evidence. She'll look better in evening dress. Then—as to the wine. There must be at least a dozen of champagne and a box of cigars for each of the six."

"Drive her away!" cried Lorrimor. "She'll ruin me! Drive her away!"

"Hush, hush! There she heard you; she's kicking the door again. Oh, well, you've spoiled it all; there's no use trying to spook some people."

"I'll agree—I'll agree," gasped Lorrimor exhaustedly. "I'll agree."

"All right, I'll tell her."

The kicking ceased. Hazard came back. "She says for you to call out loudly in your own voice that you promise."

"I promise!" yelled Lorrimor. "On your honor as a gentleman."

"On my honor as a gentleman. Well, why doesn't she go away?"

"She's straightening her hat; it come off."

"But, I say, Hazard, it's an infernal shame. I—"

"O d man, I'm afraid it's all too true."

"That I married her?" Lorrimor's knees trembled.

"Well, perhaps not, you yourself exactly. But some one else might have used your name—pretended to be you—"

Lorrimor jumped a foot high.

"Crosby. Crosby did it. It's his work. That woman's name is Crosby. She's his wife—and just to think that smooth-faced, innocent-looking—"

"Then why didn't you put your head out and let her see you weren't the man?"

"I'll do it now."

"I'll tell her then," Hazard ran to the entry. There was a scuffle and the door flew open.

"Keep her out!" cried Lorrimor. "I don't want her to come in. Keep her out!" He sprang behind a screen.

"Keep her out!"

"I can't, old man," said Hazard, chokingly.

"Call Chris. Put her out!" Lorrimor bobbed up and down, frantically. The woman made a wild dash at him and seized his hair. There was a struggle; the screen overturned; the two rolled over and over.

"I say," said Hazard, "for goodness sake! the joke's gone far enough. Crosby, get up and take off that torgery. You can't play football in petticoats. Lorrimor, there's no use getting mad. It was only a little lark. We thought you'd see through the champagne and cigars."

"Of all idiotic foolery," began Lorrimor, disgustedly, as he got up and rearranged his draperies. "To come to a man's house at daybreak and make fools of yourselves! Why don't you hire a wagon and parade the streets with penny trumpets? Of course that dinner business falls through."

"Not a bit of it," the others cried in unison. "It was a promise on your honor as a gentleman."

"Lorrimor, reflected. 'But what if I have another engagement?' 'Oh, that's all right. You order the dinner; we'll eat it.'"

"But I haven't though," he immediately added. "To tell the truth, I'm awfully obliged to you fellows. I hadn't a thing in view. I was just going to be bored to death."

"Ha, and we saved you," said Crosby.

"Yes," put in Hazard, "we've made it a day of real Thanksgiving for you."

"I'd like to know how."

"Why, you've a heap to be thankful for, old man; you ought to be wild with joy that it isn't true."

"What?"

"The wife and children."

"Oh, go away, please. I'd really like to be allowed to dress. I'll meet you fellows at Del's at 6."

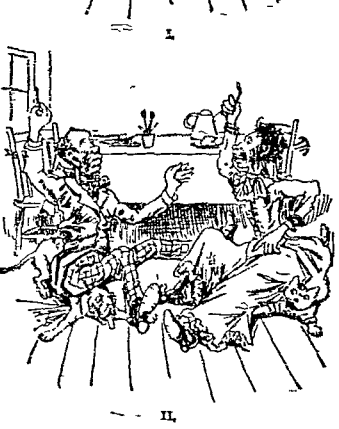

STATES AND NATION.

Some Differences About Observance of Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving is a legal holiday in the United States. It is set apart as a day upon which all the people may join in returning thanks to Almighty God for the blessings of the year. All the states do not join with the national government in the thanksgiving. Some states in the South and West, though recognizing the day in spirit, set apart for observance some other day than that designated in the presidential proclamation. In 1891 the state of Oregon had two separate days for Thanksgiving, the governor refusing to observe the presidential proclamation sent from Washington. Those opposed to the governor's course celebrated the national holiday while those loyal to the governor gave thanks on the day set apart by him.

The Wishing Bone.

THE GUNPOWDER PLOT.

Its Discovery Caused the First Thanksgiving Day in England.

The first Thanksgiving day in England followed the discovery of the "Gunpowder Plot." Had that plot been successful a majority of the then rulers of England would have been blown into eternity without a moment's warning. Parliament had passed a bill making it a penalty for Catholics to worship in public. The law met with considerable opposition and endeavors were being made to repeal it. While parliament was in session one Guy Fawkes, succeeded in smuggling 100 barrels of gunpowder into the coal dumps of the parliament buildings. The plot was discovered in time to save what would have proved one of the greatest crimes of Christendom. The manner in which it was discovered was believed to be the work of God, and thanksgiving praises were ordered throughout the kingdom. Only in recent years was the custom abandoned.

IN ANCIENT TIMES.

Thanksgiving May Have Originated with the Hebrews.

The best authority we have on the subject says that the custom of Thanksgiving originated with Moses. A writer in an English encyclopedia, however, says that it is quite probable that the custom antedates the deliverer of the Israelites. The Hebrews were accustomed to celebrate plentiful harvests but when famine came there was no day of thanksgiving. It was after the dawn of the Christian era that the custom assumed a national character. The first national day of Thanksgiving followed the recognition of the Christian religion by the Roman rulers.

Poor Mike was very ill—almost as ill as he was short, and what that meant those who know him best can say. For physically he was hardly more than a dwarf.

The doctor was called in and after investigation, informed Mrs. Mike that her husband was suffering from actinomycosis, a name which appeared to strike terror to the soul of the anxious woman.

"Act phwat?" said she.

"Actinomycosis," replied the doctor.

"Him?" cried Mrs. Mike. "Ah, doctor, how can you say that? A little man like Mike! Couldn't he build the name of it, much less the disease that goes with it?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, be cured. This may seem like a bold assertion, but those familiar only with the recent progress in its treatment, as, nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, extract of malt, whiskey, different preparations of hypophosphites and such like palliatives. Although by many believed to be curable, there is the serious, or hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe fully of per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed to such a point that repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported in its use by "Golden Medical Discovery" have been cured of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting men, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vast numbers. The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 100 pages which will be mailed to you on receipt of address and five cent stamp. You can then write those cured and learn their experience.

Boys that are old enough to go hunting, yet not know any better than to take a school house door for a mark should willingly pay for repairs on said door and also be given a gentle reminder for their future guidance.

It may be a trifle premature, but we may as well get our people thinking about it. We rise to nominate Frank B. Tanner, a present member of our town board, for supervisor, to be voted for at our next spring election. We expect that when Hon. A. N. Kimmis resigns the office to become a member of the state legislature Jan. 1st, Mr. Tanner will probably be appointed to fill the vacancy caused thereby. There will also be another vacancy to fill, viz. that of township clerk, vice Geo. Hogle, circuit court commissioner elect. Who shall it be? It ought to be a young man, who should in time receive the nomination to succeed himself at the spring election. The township offices are all important positions and our citizens should act accordingly when called upon to fill them.

At the meeting of the West Novi Debating Club last Saturday evening seven new members were added to the society. The evening was passed pleasantly and profitably by those present in listening to the various exercises. A short talk on "faith" was given by Mr. Leavenworth, and Mr. Gage's talk on "microbes" proved to be so productive of interest and differences of opinion that he was asked to continue it at the next meeting. The discussion of the question brought out many interesting historical facts, and was carried on with the usual good natured accompaniment of sharp shots, and chances for obtaining stray parliamentary points. The janitor work for the year was assigned to Leon Green. Miss Kate Dunham was appointed executive committee for the usual time. The program arranged for Nov. 24 is as follows:

Answers to queries. Recitation—Irma West. Critics report—Mrs. Nettie Richardson.

The classes are all doing finely. The 7th and 8th grades are now studying English. The 7th grade is reading the book Alfred Tennyson and the 8th is deeply interested in Dickens' Christmas Carol, to be followed by Enoch Arden.
