HOWLETT-SHATTUCK.

The Wedding Occurred Yesterday Near Ypsilanti.

A very pretty event occurred at 7:00 p.m. yesterday at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Howlett near Ypsilanti, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Lottie C. to Mr. Charles Shattuck of Plymouth. Mrs. Belle Randolph-Long, played the wedding march, and Rev. Mr. Ryan tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a large number of invited guests.

The bride wore a cream serge gown trimmed with lace and jeweled buttons entrant. The bride's sister, Lizzie, acted as maid of honor, and the groom's brother, Harry, was best man.

The bride is well known in Northville, where she has been a resident and in business for some five years past, and where she has a host of warm friends who will extend most hearty congratulations and kind wishes for a bright and happy prosperous future. Mr. Shattuck is a resident of Plymouth where he has lived all his life, and at which place the newly wedded pair will make their future home.

THE BAIER-WURZBURG CONCERT.

It Will Be a Delightful Affair—Opera House Monday Night.

The Record wishes to say just a word relative to Monday night's concert. As stated before the band is in need of some funds and to help them out they have secured the Baier-Wurzburg people at an almost nominal price for an evening's concert.

"Billy" Baier as he is best known, is W. H. Baier, district president of the "Knights of the Grip" and senior member of the big Detroit Parlor Furniture Mfg. Co. of that city. He is one of the best known balladists in the state, singing the latest comic and catchy songs which never fail to delight. As a compliment to Mr. Porter, who is a customer of the factory and to the manager of the opera house, an old friend, and the Northville hand of which he is a great admirer, he tendered his services here free of charge. His daughter, Lottie A. Baier, soloist, is a well known Detroit artist, a very sweet singer, possessing a rare and cultured voice, accompanies her father on his visit here.

The editor of the Northville Record has been drinking city water, and says there is a taste of moss about it. He may be a good judge of the taste of moss or a poor judge of the taste of water.—Canton Independent.

But when it comes to the taste of barley, corn, rye, or hops we doff our hat to the independent people.

Two little Hillsdale county tots succeeded in catching a half-ton and tied it to a post by a string in order to grow fat. When the boy's father came out after dinner he found a good sized snake had given the frog an informal reception and was very severely tied to the post.—Fowlerville Observer.

Needn't anyone believe this unless they wish to, although the Observer is usually very reliable.

Two weeks ago the South Lyon Excelsior had an item relative to the "poorest paper in Pontiac" wanting to start a one page affair opposition paper there to please a few kickers. Last week the Pontiac Republican said there was a big opening in So Lyon for a live newspaper and threw a quantity of mud at the proprietor of the So. Lyon sheet. It looks as if the Excelsior meant the Republican and that the Republican means the Excelsior.

These people appeared here once before a year ago, and it will be remembered that their entertainment was of a very high order and greatly pleasing.

Tickets will be on sale at Hueston's, by members of the band and at the opera house. Procure one anyhow whether you can attend or not, thereby showing your appreciation of the band.

Suburban News.

Wayne's new Catholic church is completed.

Chas. H. Baxter has purchased the Wayne Review.

Belleville now furnishes pasture for five secret society goats.

A big flow of gas, right near the Leader office, has been struck at Milan.

Holly's new $1,000 pipe organ was publicly touched for the first time today.

Milford announces that they will celebrate there next year, but this year they will all go to Northville.

Northville is a dry town, even the hotel bar has been closed.—Brighton Argus.

Don't you believe it.

Plymouth was without fire protection last week, on account of a break in the water works pipes and subsequent repairs.

The Dundee Ledger has been enlarged to a seven column quarto, showing great enterprise on the part of the publisher.

The Pontiac Republican wasted a vast amount of space last week in ridiculing the republican press association meeting at Hastings last week. If we remember correctly the Republican editor was in attendance at the meet last year and for making a big fool of himself trying to do a smart act with his railroad book came near being put off the train by the conductor. It was an awful nice meeting that year, don't you know.

The council at Saline has again offered to pay half the cost to those who will put in certain walks. It's a good investment.

The Trenton Visitor (lady editress) asserts that no man publisher would dare print an expose on "How he fooled his wife by turning back the clock."

The Northville local paper announces in a gladsome vein that "Bloomers Have Come." The editor considers this as a sure indication that Northville is progressing. The costume is commended.—Detroit Tribune.

The Ann Arbor Courier insinuates that Northville fishermen carry their bait in eggs. That's a nice piece of reflection on a prohibition town. Aren't you ashamed?

The "reform girls" at the state university have come out in favor of wearing knickerbockers. The re-form young men of Orion are parting their hair in the middle, wearing bangs and will doubtless soon take to corsets.—Orion Review.

Dr. Hal Curtis of medical fame and great all-around tooth puller is doing Michigan now with a Japanese circus. It will be remembered that Curtis was in Northville for several weeks a little over a year ago.

Club Labéau thought that lightning never struck twice in the same place until last week when within an hour two different pieces of lightning from one of the factory saws struck him on the temple inflicting a two inch cut in each case, on either side of his head.

The legislature has provided that the English sparrow can be killed all the year round and that the small boy shall receive three cents for each one he destroys. In order to continue the boys to the sparrows, a fine of $5 will be imposed for every other bird other than the English pest, killed.

The editor of the Northville Record has been drinking city water, and says there is a taste of moss about it. He may be a good judge of the taste of moss or a poor judge of the taste of water.—Canton Independent.

So far as the New York theatrical situation is concerned Richard Mansfield has certainly put his foot in it. He will put on a "Truly" play.

Professor Petrie reports that he has discovered bear Thetes, Egypt, relics of a race little known to the world. He believes that these people, who are quite distinct in every way from the Egyptians, were Libyans, and that they lived at least 2,000 years before Christ. Although this race must have been very skillful in certain forms of art, there is no doubt that they were cannibals.

Severely Kass, has a citizen who, according to the local paper, goes to bed at 7 o'clock every night and gets up at 5 in the morning. He has been a church member thirty years, never took a chew of tobacco, smoked, drank, drop of whisky or swore an oath in his life! He may become a total wreck yet before hot weather sets in however. The new brass band has begun to practice every night in preparation for its December day engagement.

Germany is after the gamblers in grain and the discussion there on the proposition to monopolize the trade has brought out a curious fact, which may apply to trusts and deals in this country. It is that crimes against property increase or decrease according to the fluctuations in the price of bread. The ratio of increase or decrease of criminal acts against property compared with the price of bread is one in every 100,000 inhabitants for every six pennies more or less, than the average price. Gambling in bread breeds crime in those who eat it. Severe Kass' motto seems to enter into a regular notion about it.

There is a curiousness about young persons that is manifested in most everything they do. Regardless of the future or the opinion of others they look forward to some new project and before they see their error it is impossible to restrain their steps. If they attempt to said, it is done unprofitably, if they work, it is often performed unsatisfactorily. When in this new field of endeavor it will enter into their minds, they enter into it with all their hearts. In the neglect of what may be of greater importance, and by frequently changing their plans and pursuits, fail of success. Minds capable of high efforts, of splendid achievements or extensive usefulness—have been paralyzed by inexperience.

Of all the disagreeable habits the world was ever tormented with scolding is the most annoying. To hear a man scold to near staff whistle, to hear an ass bray, to hear a peacock scream or an Indian yell is music compared with it. From childhood we have always abhorred scolding. It is no wonder some children are bad; the good is all scolded out of them. It is stunted or killed by early frosts or cold icy scolding. What a frost is to the spring buds, is scolding to the best things in the heart of a child. Scolding looks at home—now miserable light thunder, hail, storm and winds—let them all come rather than a cordon of scolding. Let all the powers that be wage a war of kindness on all the scolders, that they may be overcome with a better spirit.

Dr. Louis Waldstein, not many years ago a practicing physician in New York city, but now an experimenter in Berlin, claims to have discovered a new use for a salve called phocapine. He professes to be able to apply it as a cure for cancer or consumption. For several years the virtues of the drug have been known in cases of dropsy where a profuse perspiration was desired. The new treatment consists of injecting minute doses of the drug hypodermically until the lymphatic system is stimulated and the white corpuscles of the blood overcome the parasitic particles which produce disease. The theory is that the white corpuscles act as a barrier to the progress of disease. Dr. Waldstein makes no such wholesale claim as was made for the Koch cures and the Brown-Squier elixir. He simply avails to the belief that when the diseases are in their incipient stages he can arrest their progress by stimulating the white corpuscles.

INCOME TAX IS DEAD.

SUPREME COURT'S OPINION OF THAT LAW.

The measure declared to be unconstitutional by a full bench the Justices were divided, four in favor and five opposed. Summary of the opinions.

The United States Supreme Court has declared the income tax law to be unconstitutional.

The vote on the income tax resulted five against the constitutionality of the law and four in favor.

Chief Justice Fuller read the opinion and the conclusions of the court are as follows:

"We adhere to the opinion already announced that taxes on real estate be-from the yield of all the owners' real or personal property in the manner prescribed is so different from a tax upon the property itself, that it is not a direct but an indirect tax in the meaning of the constitution."

"We know of no reason for holding otherwise than that the words 'direct taxes' on the one hand, and 'indirect' imposts and excises on the other were used in the constitution in their natural and obvious sense; nor in arriving at what those terms embrace, do we perceive any ground for enlarging them beyond or narrowing them within their natural and obvious import, and the time the constitution was framed and ratified. Passing from the text, we regard the conclusion reached as inevitable, when the clause of the constitution and controlled its action and the views of those who framed and those who adopted the constitution are considered."

That must be his name and his age, about 7 years—Joe."

The boy started slightly as if at a familiar sound, and said in a very affectionate tone: "Mother!"

"Poor child!" said Mrs. Gust. "Some dear mother will weep for her lost darling; but until she can be found I will be your mother—shall I not Joseph?" to her husband.

"I don't know about that, Mary. The boy is an idiot, I think. Wait a while before you assume so great a responsibility."

"But somebody must care for the dear child," replied Mrs. Gust. "We have no children of our own to care for."

During this conversation Joe sat in a state of wonderment, but with a tear standing in his eye. When Mrs. Gust had concluded her words, Joe looked confidingly into her face and said "Mother!"

That ended the doubt and the boy filled the childless void in that otherwise-happy family henceforth.

Joseph Gust and his wife had been for near twenty-five years one of those rare phenomena, a happy childless family. Their married life had been one long honeymoon, each living for the other and as ever anxious to win continued affection at in the early days of love's young dream. They were known among their many friends as "two old lovers" who had not yet, after a quarter of a century, finished their courtship—and into such a house as that it was Little Joe's good fortune—comparatively good—to become a welcome inmate.

After a few weeks, when the mystery about the boy's parentage had proven insoluble, and it had become certain that he was destined in manhood to be a waterman, Mrs. Gust set herself to training the lad in proper habits, with all the devotion of a mother. Whatever else he lacked, the lad was not deficient in gratitude, and his efforts to comply with every wish of his foster mother were most touching and emphatic with manifestations of strong affection. And now, at the end of three years after his rescue, he had been trained to habits of neatness, order, promptitude and obedience. Remarkable for one whose young mind was so feeble and defective, he soon acquired a self-consciousness, indeed, he had not. He knew himself only in the third person. His vocabulary was brief and his sentences generally mere repetitions. But some of his powers were remarkable. He kept time mentally, almost with the accuracy of a clock, and he obeyed all instructions given him by his foster parents—when he understood them—with perfect accuracy. He was always cheerful and touchingly affectionate.

Such was the character and such the condition of "Little Joe" at the opening of our story.

Cincinnati in 1833 was not the beautiful "Queen City" she now is. The panorama of surrounding hills were almost without an inhabitant, and the primeval forest had scarcely known the woodman's ax. The river's front, instead of the present gentle slope (which is artificial), was a bluff mud bank, through which ran roadways slanting to the water's edge, and to the "horse-boat" landing, whence the punt boat made its hourly trips to the Kentucky shore. Beyond Seventh street northward to the hills all was corn-fields or open "commons," and Race street on the west was the narrow trail in that direction. Follow on the eastern side the muddy brook called Deer creek, and the reader of to-day will have the boundaries of Cincinnati at the date of Little Joe's advent. Mr. Gust had witnessed the growth of the infant city from the time when the little village about Fort Washington* near the present intersection of Broadway and Fourth streets and the "settlement" near the foot of Main street had burgeoned out in various directions into the most pretentious young city in the Ohio valley. He was both surveyor and civil engineer, and in these joint offices had done much to direct that broad foresight which had guided the early inhabitants in opening up and improving the naturally favorable site of the infant city. Originally the two plains upon which the city now chiefly rests were not connected by a gentle slope as at present, but were divided by a bluff bank of gravel extending nearly the whole length of what is now magnificent Third street. Long before any system of waterworks had been provided. Engineer Gust had gathered Silurian fossils, corals and trilobites on the river-banks, creeks where reservoirs were afterwards built, and he had at that early day foreseen the site of the city's future fountains. At the time of this veritable story wells for the supply of water were few and far between, and these were of great depth. The chief reliance of the people was then upon the water carts. A hundred or more of these—perambulatoring fountains supplied the city's needs, huge horse-drawn upon wheels, each with its leather hose for leading the precious contents into the local water barrels. The water-cartman was well known to men, women and children as ever since has been the milkman. And when a fire broke out and the Seminary bell on Walnut street rang out its dread alarm, these water carts might be seen in all directions hastening at full speed toward the fire, each anxious to secure the reward always paid the first to arrive.

The denizens of the Queen City at this day may compare their fire and water departments with the slender beginning of that.

CHAPTER II.
"OLD CHARLEY MOLEH" AND THE DUPLICATED MEDALS

ND DAY IN THE early spring, a few weeks after the events already related, Little Joe was sitting on the river bank quietly watching a waterman who had backed his boat into the stream and was filling his tank from the river by dipping the water with long-handled bucket and pouring it through the large wooden funnel into the cask. The boy had on plain clothes or rags, and as usual was alone. While he watched the waterman in silence the little ferry boat already mentioned came from the Kentucky shore, made its usual landing, rang its bell, let down its "uprop," and a gentleman drove ashore in a light spring wagon drawn by two sleek, well-groomed horses, very black, and very straight. The man was tall, rather slender, composed, could not in imagining his name, and drove within a few feet of where Joe was sitting. Suddenly he drew up his horses, looked at the boy for a moment closely, and said:

"Hello, Joe, is that you?" Joe turned his head with a sudden start as if struck with a terrible voice, or frightened by sight of a stranger, then he slowly moved his head from side to side as if in token of his ignorance of the question's identity. "Why, Joe, don't you know me?" returned the strange gentleman.

Joe made no reply, but looked at his questioner in a half-frightened, wondering sort of way.

"That boy can't talk to you," said the waterman, who had heard the strange gentleman's question and watched with curious interest for the boy's response. "The boy is an idiot and can't talk to you—anything to signify."

"An idiot," said the gentleman with expressions of surprise. "Ah no, I think not. Do you know the boy?"

"I know Little Joe like a book," said the waterman, "and he is an idiot."

"INTRODUCING HIMSELF."

"That is very strange," said the gentleman, partly to himself, but loud enough for the waterman to hear. "If that's our little Joe—and surely it is—he is no idiot. What is his name besides Joe?"

"The boys call him Joe Gust," replied the waterman, "but he isn't Gust's boy, and I don't know his name—except Little Joe."

"Do you know where he lives?" inquired the stranger, who was exhibiting a remarkable interest in Joe's identity.

"Yes, I know; up on Sycamore street. Anybody can tell you where

Mr. Gust, the city surveyor, lives. But the boy can show you; he knows the town as well as I do."

"Thank you," said the stranger. "I'll take the boy in with me and drive up to the place," at the same time beckoning to the lad to come to him.

"Never go with strangers, Joe," said the boy, with a scared look, and then he bounded off like a deer.

"Drive after him," shouted the waterman. "He'll go straight home."

The team of shining blacks was soon following Joe's steps in his flight; but the handsome driver took care to approach only near enough to keep the boy in sight until he entered the door of a pleasant residence on Sycamore street, and disappeared within. Then being satisfied that he knew the boy's home, the stranger drove westward on Lower Market street, and up Main street to Dennison's hotel, where he found quarters for himself and train.

But Joe had not gone into the residence of his foster parents. In his flight—for he had been really alarmed by the strange gentleman's desire to get him into the carriage—he had run into the first house in which he knew he should find friends. And that was the residence of Mrs. Gust's aunt—an elderly lady who belonged to that class of housekeepers sometimes spoken of as "parently neat." This Mrs. Lawrence was known to Joe and her friends generally as "Aunt Ruthy," and the nominal head of the family—Mr. John Lawrence—as "Aunt Ruthy's husband." No child had been born to them, and none was ever willingly permitted to set foot in Aunt Ruthy's spannily clean rooms—except little Joe. Joe was neat, orderly, never made a litter, never removed anything from its place, and never asked questions. He was accustomed to call often to see Aunt Ruthy, when he would clean his shoes carefully on the mat and gently knock for admission. In one corner of her sitting-room stood a tall, old-fashioned clock, whose unceasing tick-tack had a fascination for Joe which never lost its force. He would sit silent by the hour watching the till clock, and repeating in a whisper to himself its ominous tick-tack, and counting the strokes when the faithful time-keeper announced the hour. And while Joe thus watched the clock, Mrs. Lawrence, as silently as Joe and even with more interest, plied her knitting needles and watched the boy. It was not very difficult to divine her thoughts. Through the long years of her married life she had sorrowed for the absence of at least one child to break the monotony of her silent hours, and give her matronly heart something to expand itself upon. She had gradually grown almost noseless, her expressive mien had become less commanding, her eyes less bright, and in slovenly passion, and for some years past no child—especially no boy—had crossed her threshold without giving her a "heavens!" But for us an exception. "He is my lean idiot," said she, "but he has sense enough to let things alone, make no dirt, and speak only when he is spoken to."

When Joe entered his house pursued by the mysterious stranger, and with an expression of flight upon his homely face, Mrs. Lawrence was so thrown off her guard against the expression of feeling that she caught the boy in her arms, gave him a motherly kiss, and attempted in a kindly way to learn the cause of his alarm.

"Never go with strangers, Joe," said the boy, repeating his foster mother's frequent caution, and peering out of the window. "Man out there; Aunt Ruthy." But as no man out there was to be seen, Joe soon regained his usual composure and saying, "Tell Aunt Ruthy good-bye," he started with a merry laugh for home in the street, with a sudden start he said: "Quarter to twelve—be home when the clock strikes twelve, Joe." And he reached his own door as the clock within was striking the hour.

After dinner at Dennison's hotel the gentleman who in his carriage had followed little Joe, walked down Main street to lower Market, thence eastward to Sycamore, and on that street up to the door of the house where Joe had disappeared. Mrs. Lawrence received him at the door and invited him in, but seeing that he was about to enter with dusty boots, said very politely, "There's a mat in the hall, please." After entering, the gentleman said he took a proffered chair:

"My name is Blakewell. I live in northern Kentucky, and I am interested in learning something of the boy Joe who is staying with you."

Mrs. Lawrence became suspicious at once. She resolved to know as little as possible about Joe until she found out the strange gentleman's motive for inquiring. Therefore she only said in reply:

"Does this room look as if there was a boy about the house?"

"Well, madam," said the self-styled Mr. Blakewell with a smile, "I hardly think it does, but I have learned from Mr. Dennison at the hotel that you have no children of your own and that—"

"And that was a bit of impertinence on the part of Mr. Dennison," said Aunt Ruthy, interrupting. "Besides there is no boy staying with me."

"Madam, I saw Joe come into this house not three hours ago."

"Do you mean Little Joe, the idiot?"

"I mean the boy who is always called Little Joe; though he is certainly not little, for his years; besides, he is no idiot, and I will thank you for any information about his history you may possess."

"Well, as I am not Joe's keeper, it may be as well if you apply elsewhere."

After a short pause during which Mr. Blakewell looked both vexed and amazed he said:

"At what time will your husband, Mr. —— at what time will the city surveyor be at home?"

"Yes, I know; up on Sycamore street. Anybody can tell you where

Real Estate Notes.

S. R. Warren, so favorably known in the Real Estate arena of the Wolverine
State as a "hustler," can be found at
Mrs. J. C. Macomber's, Main street,
Northville, ready to transact, in a satisfactory manner, any kind of business, appertaining to the Real Estate work. Those desiring to dispose of their farms—improved or unimproved—
Stocks of goods, hotels, livery stock, mills, or any kind of property, real or personal, by sale or exchange, will certainly find a little talk with Mr.
Warren very encouraging and satisfactory. He has been twenty-six years a real estate hustler and the number of his clients who have had cause to rejoice are legion. Citizens of Northville awake from your temporary lethargy, place your shoulder solid against the wheel and with all your energy assist in moving the old chariot of prosperity filled with its living freight of enterprise, ability and integrity, and may your highest ambition be to unload its precious treasure among God's favored people in the midst of the vine clad hills of Northville.

Confer, all or address. We are so situated that we can locate you in any part of the United States or Canada

John Parmenter and Belle Francis both of Northville were married Tuesday.

Without fail the meetings or men will be held in the hall over the post office next Sunday.

The LTL will serve ice cream in the WCTU hall Saturday evening. Profits to be used to secure supplies for their work.

Rev. Clarence E. Allen of Farmington will address the men's meeting Sunday June 2. He is an inspiring speaker.

The F&PM Lodge will hold a special meeting next Monday evening, May 27. Work in Third degree. Visitors welcome.

George Allen unintentionally clipped off the ends of a couple of his fingers in the finger cutter at the confectionery yesterday.

"How to care for China" is the heading of a recipe in an exchange. The most effectual way seems to be to Japan it.

Dr. Swift has kindly donated the use of his hall over the post-office to the Young Men's League for their Sunday meetings.

George Kidd was up before Justice Webster Saturday morning charged with disorderly conduct and was fined $5 and costs $3.45 in all.

June 11 is the 13th anniversary of the order of Macettes and Commander Boynton has ordered its general observance as a day of jubilee.

The annual GAR memorial services will be held in the Baptist church Sunday evening May 25. Rev. Seth Reed will preach the sermon.

Mrs. Hoops who has been working for Mr. Highland for several weeks past has bought out Bennett's meat market at Plymouth and has removed to that city.

Justice Webster viewed some of W.E. Fry's sheep, Monday, which had been infested by dogs. Four were killed and three wounded. The damage allowed was $12.

Remember the Baier-Wurzburg concert at the opera house Monday night and not only have an evening of great enjoyment, but also help the band just a little.

The village board of review meets at the store of Wm. H. Ambler today and tomorrow. If you have any kicks to make now is the time. Don't wait until you pay your taxes.

Northville Commandry Knights Templar will attend ascension day service in a body at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. Rev. Seth Reed will deliver the sermon.

Owing to the fact that next Thursday is memorial day, the RECORD will be published on Friday instead, and if everything works satisfactory that date of publication may be made permanent.

Potholders should note the following: The potholder may allow 25 per cent of the road work on setting out trees, at 25 cents per tree and the law says that he shall cause at least 50 trees to be set out in his district.

Northville people who change their residence within the next thirty days as well as new comers in the village should promptly notify the RECORD office of such changes that the same may be corrected in the new directory.

Why would it not be good idea for the village folks to purchase a suitable flag and have it float from the flag staff of the engine house tower these fine days. The RECORD believes the investment would meet the approval of every loyal citizen of the village.

The F&PM will run a 75c excursion to Detroit tomorrow, Friday. The special train leaves Northville at 10:15 a.m. and returning leaves Detroit at 9:00 p.m. The attractions are the base ball game at Detroit and the celebration of the Queen's birthday at Windsor.

The people are going wild over the awaiting to cash customers. Call at the store and see them. You can get the lessons instead of pictures if you wish.

MICHIGAN PEOPLE AND WHAT THEY ARE DOING.

Michigan Still Heads the List of Iron Producers.—Third Fatal Explosion at Battcock Chemical Works.—Riley, the Mason Murderer, Sentenced for Life.

Michigan Leads in Iron.

John Hickenlooper, the iron ore expert of Philadelphia, has prepared for the division of mineral resources of the United States geological survey an exhaustive report of the iron ore resources of the world in which the production of the world of ore or iron in 1893 is estimated at about 52,560,000 long tons. The portion of this report relative to the United States shows that the total production of iron ore in this country in 1893 was 11,879,670 long tons as compared with 11,878,629 long tons in 1892. Twenty-four states produced iron ore in 1893 ranging in amount from 4,196,074 cubic Michigan to 763 tons from Maryland. Most of the increase noted above was in the Lake Superior region. Michigan continues to be the largest producer, holding this rank for six years. In spite of the progress in production noted, the total value of the product was but $13,877,325, or $1.14 a ton, as compared with $12,326,973, or $1.06 a ton, in 1892. Michigan also leads the country in value of her iron ores.

In Memory of Senator Stockbridge.

Members of the legislature, state officers and prominent citizens met in Representative hall, Lansing, to pay tribute to the memory of the late Francis U. Stockbridge, United States Senator from Michigan. Representative Chamberlain presided. After a funeral march by an orchestra, Senator C. H. Smith, of Jackson, introduced resolutions attesting to the high position Senator Stockbridge held in the regard of the people of the state, and the energy, and nobleness of his character. Mr. Smith then spoke with great feeling and eloquence of Mr. Stockbridge's most conspicuous traits. Gov. Green followed in an address in which he especially praised the absorbing frankness and blunt honesty of the late senator. Representative White, Senator Cliftord, Representative Campbell and Representative True also made excellent speeches. Lieut.-Gov. Miles also paid Mr. Stockbridge strict tributes and eloquent business in the b-

The big Gunsmoke Knights Temp.

The twenty-ninth annual convalescences of the grand commandery Knights Templar of Michigan convened in Saginaw. An elaborate reception at the residence of Past Commandeur Col. and Mrs. A. P. Biles was the opening social feature. When the polar session commenced the colonels were at first at their stations. Grand Commandeur Charles H. Kenyon called the meeting to order and proceeded from Hugh McHenry, grand master of the grand encampment of the U. S., who delivered an address.

Huber's Grand Hospital.

A habitation in the world's sun has its disappearance among the earth about Hudsonville. Dr. W. Charles Gause, a condemned one犯人 belonging to Alton Maxwell, and a post-mortem examined by physicians, family contractors James and Westcott, will hold the trial there to ascertain the extent of the infection. Much information has been gathered to determine the cause of death.

Calumet Chemical Works Blown Up.

For the third time in two years the Calumet Chemical Works, at Bellaire, blew up. Fred Shopp, a laborer, was killed. The roar of the explosion was heard for miles around the building. It was wrecked in which dynamite and nitro-glycerine exploded.

Christian was killed. Cal Lefebvre was arrested for the offense and died but was released on account of lack of evidence. The proprietors still think it was the work of some one with anarchist beliefs.

A Ballonist's Fatal Drop.

Prof. J. A. Burke the aeronaut, made a balloon ascension at Passfield. When 2,000 feet from the earth, he jumped with his parachute. All went well until he neared the ground again. He then saw that he was in danger of striking against the branches of a large elm. He jumped to save himself, but fell on a stump. His arm and back were broken. He cannot recover.

Riley Gets up for Life.

Willard D. Riley, the Negro arrested at Lansing on March 21 for shooting Fred Williams and robbing light meat market in Mason the night of March 20, had his trial in the circuit court. After being out of court the jury found Riley guilty as charged and he was immediately sentenced by Judge Person to state prison at Jackson for hard labor for life.

Cancer Wreckage Bound.

Thousands of freshly broken timbers and pieces of cabin furniture was cast ashore four miles north of Benton Harbor giving the Graham & Morton company reason to believe that the Checota Les in shallow water within sight of St. Joseph harbor. Seaching crews will continue work in this vicinity at once.

The Second Annual Invitational Festival under the auspices of the University of Michigan.—It was a brilliant success. Many visitors from all parts of Michigan were in attendance. The managers cleared a very lucrative amount from their efforts.

Edward Conley, representing an eastern syndicate, has negotiated for the purchase of the water power at Lower Gunneas Falls, on the Menominee River. It is a valuable water power, worth $30,000 or $40,000. A paper mill will probably be built upon it.

Charles F. Seigh has returned from England where he was sent by Grand Rapids' automobile manufacturers to look up the trade in that country. He says American goods can easily compete with English goods, as they are only made in accordance with English tastes. His ideas will be followed.

George Lamp, aged 15, a tinserman from Clinton, was found dead in the Michigan house Grand Rapids, and it is supposed he blew out the gas.

Henry House of Benton has a boy which has given birth to six calves inside of 10 minutes. The first time they were twins and the next triplets.

Edson H. Doyle, a traveling man of Laura, has been stricken with paralysis. He then saw that he was in danger of striking among the branches of a large elm. He jumped to save himself, but fell on a stump. His arm and back were broken. He cannot recover.

About 50,000 bushels of wheat were fed to stock in Lapeer county this winter. It is now impossible to buy wheat in Lapeer and Willis elevators are closing.

A special train on the Lake Shore railroad every day is necessary to carry the product of the Michigan stone and supply company's quarries and crushers at Jackson.

Lieut.-Gov. Milner sent his resignation to Gov. Riley to take effect May 31. That is the day when the legislative session closes and when Milner's duties as president of the senate cease.

At Wausau Harvey O. Carr, superintendent of the Grand Rapids police department was elected secretary and treasurer of the National Association of Police Superintendents.

At Summit City a gang of rowdies attacked Charles Wood, and one of them struck him in the face with a stone, inflicting injuries which may prove fatal.

A well flowing 770,000 gallons of water every 24 hours has been struck on the farm of Wm. Fox, near Rochester. The roar of the water can be heard several rods off.

Gerrit Van Lent, an employee of the Walsh Dercos mill at Holland had his entire arm and side from the shoulder down to his ribs ground into pieces between two log wheels.

Mrs. J. G. Ross left her home at Rochester to place flowers on her daughter's grave, as was her custom twice a week. A few hours afterward a boy found her lying at the cemetery gate dead.

Louis Bradbury, charged with poisoning his wife, who died under alleged mysterious circumstances, had his examination at Alpena. As there was no evidence against him, he was discharged.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12.—Bills passed: Extending the anti-lision law so as to cover localities for the removal of the U. S. homes, making the U. S. a tax collector, forbidding relief to old soldiers; exempting Marquette County from the operation of the good roads law prohibiting the use of the same clause in insurance policies for the protection of miners, naval stores, fish, timber, and insurance companies; fish bill, giving to fees of Wayne county officers.

Women Only Know

How much they suffer when nervous, weak and tired.

Nervous prostration is a lingering, racking, living death to those afflicted, though wholly incomprehensible to others. The cause of this condition is impure and insufficient blood.

Make the blood pure, give it vitality and it will properly feed the nerves and make them strong. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures nervousness because it acts directly upon the blood, making it rich and pure and endowing it with vitality and strength-giving power. No other medicine has such a record of cures.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes Pure Blood.

The magisterial as the invention of Roger Bacon in 1250.

The circulation of the blood was discovered by Harvey in 1617.

Be what you think of cremation! Do you believe in it? She No. I think it is a burning shame.

Our Farmington correspondent! Yes, we are o. k. of the rock-salt. "Sly" says he didn't spout, but we really believe he is spoiling just the same—to get married.

Wednesday morning May 15, a little maiden tripped into the home of Geo. Hogle and said, "papa I guess I'll stay with you." Geo. says he thinks he'll keep her.

Those "boys" who were so summarily disturbed in their "mischief" a few days ago by an unexpected caller, are earnestly entreated to "check their "headlong" career while there is still a chance for reform. Boys your "down fall" is not irrevocable, if you only see the error of your ways, put on the "brake" and firmly resolve to walk circumspectly in the future, whatever the revolutions of fortune's wheel may bring you.

K. M. Tonney, P. M. is now an authorized agent of the RECORD, and will receive subscriptions for the same. Hand your money and name to him, F. E. Quigley will look after the job work gets, as usual.

The committee appointed at the first meeting of the WBIM—circled to draft resolutions on the death of Mrs. Sarah Harmon will submit the following at the next meeting of the society:

WHEREAS: God in His infinite wisdom has removed by death "Mrs. Sara" Harmon a beloved member of our Mission Circle and, WHEREAS, we have sorrowfully followed her body to its last resting place where we tenderly laid it away, therefore:

Resolved that we as a society have met with a loss we deeply feel, and realize that an earnest and faithful worker has been called away by believing in all wise God who is master of all.

Resolved that in the bereaved husband's aged parents, brothers and sisters, we tender our deepest sympathy in their sorrow.

FARMINGTON.

Though clouds have marshaled themselves together

With the cold rain, snow and blast,

Surely will follow, the glad bright weather,

"Sunshine will conquer, at last."

C. R. Allen was at Detroit visiting Monday.

A pleasant time is reported at the social dance held Friday night in Elmer Stoughton's new residence on Main street.

Remember the races Saturday on the old fair ground Good music and lots of fun.

Mrs. C. F. White accompanied by her son Gleau were Northville callers Saturday.

A horse owned by Palmer Sherman ran away last week Friday badly demoralizing the buggy and bruising Mr.

Sherman's hand. Yet Mr. Sherman claims the horse is a dandy.

Mrs. Minnie Paulger of Northville was a Sunday visitor in Farmington.

D. A. Durfee, wife and son Fred were guests over Sunday at the home of Jas. P. Allen.

Luther Lapham and wife of Northville were entertained Sunday at the home of Calvin Lapham.

Dr. Johnson and daughter of Ohio were entertained over Sunday at the home of J. G. Francis and family.

Ah! there G. E. T. About time for that promised epistle. Don't you think so? (Some one else does any way.)

Mrs. W. T. Daines presided at the organ Sunday in the Methodist church on account of the absence of the organist, Mrs. H. M. Lee.

A new dressmaking department has been opened in the rooms over E. G. Grace's store under the management of the Misses Smith.

A cordial invitation is extended to attend the memorial service of the GAP's Sunday morning in the Methodist church. Rev. Clarence W. Allen will deliver the address.

A royal good time is anticipated at the ice cream social to be held Saturday evening May 25 at the home of Mrs. Letitia McCray under the auspices of the YPSU, assisted by the J. U. All are cordially invited to attend.

The Gazette states that the proper thing just at present is to shave clean, that mustaches and beads are back numbers among the men of Pontiac. Pontiac is not alone with us, new fad. It has struck Farmington also. You know that town is not long in getting to the front.

Mrs. Hopkins of Detroit was entertained Sunday at the home of J. W. Cohens and wife. She was formerly a Farmington lady and has many warm friends who sympathize with her in her late bereavement, the death of her only child, Mrs. Snow, who died about two weeks ago.

The usual preparations are being made for the observance of decoration day Thursday, May 30. A good speaker will be present, also a fine musical and literary program will be given. A band and marshal music has been engaged by the Post. All are cordially invited to attend and assist in making the day one of interest.

Exchange: "Here's to the kicker, the treacherous kicker, the kicker who never wins, who always loses, and never tries to do good for his own town to do. No use to correct him, nor need you expect him to get to the front like a man; while others hustle he'll sit down and rustle objections to raise to each plan," etc.

Messrs. E. H. Lapham, cashier of J. S. Lapham's bank; M. A. Porter, of Sands & Porter; J. D. McFarlin, U. S. postal clerk; W. H. Yerkes, of Northville Milling Co.; M. S. Ambler of Ambler Mercantile Co.; Peter Cunnell of tinsmith fame and his assistant; Frank Matthews, all of Farmington callers Sunday.
