MEMORIAL BELL

The Cast Was Successfully Made Saturday.

IT WILL BE FITTINGLY DEDICATED HERE SEPTEMBER 25

And Shipped to the Aligarh, India Mission the Same Week.

The memorial bell to Arthur Ninde Pott's son, Dr. Potts of the Michigan Christian Advocate, for which the mother has been subscribed by the Sunday school children of Michigan in the memory of little Arthur who died a year or so ago, was cast at the American Bell Foundry Company's works here Saturday. The cast was very successful and the inscription which was as follows, was perfect:

MEMORIAL

ARTUR NINDE POTTS.
Little children keep yourselves from evil, fear God and give glory to him.

The bell is made from the standard steel alloy metal used only by the American company and weighs alone 1,400 pounds, but when hung the fixtures and all will bring the weight up to about one ton.

Appropriate dedicatory exercises will be held in the Methodist church here on Wednesday, Sept. 25, commencing at 9:30 p.m., to which the public generally will be invited. A number of well known speakers and missionary workers will be present on the occasion. After the dedication the bell will be shipped to the Methodist mission school at Aligarh, India.

Suburban News.

A total eclipse of the moon occurred Tuesday night—no exchanges.

A troupe of gendarmes will patrol the streets of Plymouth hereafter and gather up youngsters who play hooky.

It is reported that Mr. Shackleton of Plymouth will lecture South Lyon's white elephant—the roller-boozing mill.

An eighty-five year old Fowlerville boy named Ecken, his daughter and grandson all claim the same birthday—Sept. 1.

With a population of 7,000 only about fifteen people turned out for the annual school meeting held Monday night at Adrian.

The Enterprise almost acknowledges that the water can from which the Northville hall club was fed at Farmington last week Monday was drugged.

The Plymouth Mail says Northville's water works system cost $14,201.54. It is only to be regretted that the Mail speaketh not the truth on this occasion.

J. H. Kortz, one of the Monroe Democratic publishers, is dead. Mr. Kortz was a well known newspaper man and a good whole-souled fellow. His death is a public loss.

The Plymouth Mail has just entered upon its ninth year. Under Editor Gray's management the Mail has made marked advancement and doubled both its patronage and subscription list.

And another reason why women should wear bloomers. Mrs. Hughes (Fowlerville) skirt caused her to trip over a hoop while playing croquet and the fall sustained produced severe internal injuries.

The Mail says at the Plymouth school meeting held last week recommendations were made to raise $2,000 "out of which the school was to be painted." No appropriation was made for painting the teachers.

Did you notice how much better people's eyes looked? The old pump in front of Chaffee, Hunter & Lanner's is gone—Plymouth Mail.

Yes, and we also notice how much redder people's noses looked, since the pump's removal.

Henceforth the difficulties surrounding the shipment of the dead bodies of persons who have died from dangerous communicable diseases in this state, will be increased two fold. By the provisions of a law passed by the last legislature which went into effect August 20, it will not only be necessary to procure a permit from the board of health where the death occurred, but it is also made imperative to receive permission from the health officer or board of health of the place to which shipment is to be made before the body will be received by transportation companies. The diseases held to be dangerous and communicable are consumption, pneumonia, influenza, diphtheria, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, whooping cough, measles and smallpox.

Fred T. Ward, the new proprietor of the Holly Advertiser will be warmly welcomed by the newspaper fraternity of southern Michigan. Mr. Ward is said to be a hustler and his wife is one of the bright literary stars of the women's press association.

Two sensational murders or attempted ones, at Dundee last week were not half as shocking to the people of the town as when a "coming woman" encased in best fitting knickerbockers and the regulation cap and sweater passed through the place on a bicycle.

A Milan man named Hill, if the veracity of the Leader is unquestioned, has a plum tree which now contains not only blossoms, but green and ripe plums as well. This same Hill is also alleged to have a single plant of tomatoes which contains 125 large tomatoes.

The village of Wayne is just showing herself these days in the way of enterprise. The council last week appropriated the sum of $25.00 to make repairs and improvements on the street. It may sound a little extravagant but just care Wayne for that when good streets is the issue.

It is reported that a Rochester, N. Y. chemist analyzed the wine left in the communion cup after a church service there recently and found germs of twenty-two diseases in the cup, ranging from typhoid fever to rumpus. The church immediately thereafter ordered an individual communion service of 400 pieces.

The wells for the water supply have been completed and the well machinery taken away. Five wells have been secured and in the opinion of those who are posted, the village has been very fortunate in getting excellent wells with much less trouble and expense than some other villages have experienced. The location of the wells and powerhouse, near the willows west of the railroad bridge, is central and seems to suit everybody.—Milford Times.

Jury Commissioner Host of Wayne discharged with the offence of representing that he caught a thirty pound muskrat in Broad lake near St. Ignace last week. Host heretofore has been deemed a man fit to sit on juries and has shown wisdom in his ranking and jury business, and his friends will regret that his career is brought to such an abrupt ending on this.

In speaking of the questions put up for teachers' examinations the Adrian Press with much truth says: "There is a sore need for a reform in preparing questions, and county commissioners should not be backward in so advising Mr. Patterson. The sooner the nook who arranges the lists, takes the road in the interests of his book of school law, the better for the school interests of Michigan."

The New School Law,

Act No. 55 is the new compulsory school law, and its chief features are as follows: The school age for compulsory attendance is from 8 to 14 throughout the state and from 7 to 16 in cities, and at least four months attendance is required. The only pupils exempt are those who attend private schools, those who have already acquired the ordinary branches, those who are physically unable to attend and pupils living more than two miles from school.

Parents must send their children to school at least eight half-days in each week, and failure to comply is punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Juvenile delinquents, children who are ungovernable in school and children who do not and will not attend school, are now classed as juvenile disorderly persons, and as a last resort may be committed to the public schools at Adrian or Lansing.

Supt. Patterson says: "The old law lacked the vital essentials, which the new law especially provides for. Now take for instance the change made regarding the treatment of truants. Under the old law a fine could be imposed on parents who failed to send their children to school. Under the new law, this failure can be punished with imprisonment."

Did you notice how much better people's eyes looked? The old pump in front of Chaffee, Hunter & Lanner's is gone—Plymouth Mail.

LINCOLN AS A LOVER.
Abraham Lincoln's sentimental perplexities are to be shown in an article of singular interest, which John Gilmer Speed has written from unpublished letters of Lincoln to Speed, for the next issue of THE LADY'S HOME JOURNAL. The article will show that the great President was not steady in his affections of the heart, that he foundered in his love, and finally induced his friend Speed to marry and tell him (Lincoln), whether marriage was a failure or not.

During September The Record is offered to any address until Jan'y 1, 1896 for 25 cents.

At Mrs. Colburn's, 52 Main street you will find pens, pencils, ink, stationery, glassware, tinware and other articles.

WOMAN AND HOME

UP TO DATE READING FOR DAMES AND DAMSEL'S

The Author of Fashion—Some of the Latest Styles for the Season—Some Useful Hints for the Household—Correct Sets of the Works.

HE summer girl is still with us, light and airy in sleeves that resembles half moons as much as ever. And men, to his disgust, have learned once more that a woman does not always mean what she says. The big sleeves crowd him to one side, and secretly he is afraid this is a prognostic of what the new woman is going to do. So all spring he has been rejoicing at the rumor of tight sleeves. The tight sleeves have come, but who would recognize them? A tight sleeve in silk is native simplicity takes away the broad effect which women have striven so hard to obtain and after hours of toil with dumb-bells and bicycle and all manner of athletic sports, would any woman wear sleeves that made her look narrow? No, indeed. She puts on these tight sleeves, because Dame Fashion says she must, but she covers them with bows of puffs or ruffles until in size they match those to which she has added. The heavy materials must naturally be made into puffs, but in the lighter materials her heart revels. Row after row and ruffle after ruffle may be piled on, until the very breezes of summer are bewitched and play a game of hide and seek through them. The gown in the picture is of straw-colored organdy over green satin. The sleeves finish at the elbow with a band of satin. The green yoke is surmounted by a ruche of organdy. The sleeves proper have three ruffles, and an additional two ruffles across the shoulders and meet in a point at the center of the bodice. An old-fashioned ribbon sash of the green is tied in the back and long ends fall to the bottom.

Queen Victoria is called "Mamie." Queen Victoria is a remarkably conserving old lady as far as the routine of life goes. She loves old customs and does not like new things—not even new furniture or new "fashions." When a distinguished lady, it is said, sent her children by her Majesty's request, to Windsor a few years ago, she sent them dressed as was right in the mode in tucked blouse dresses without basques, but the Queen considered that no child should be brought to her in other but full dress and full drags. In her mind, full dress, without the smart such she had never known, was very conveniently but firmly made, objection to the little frocks and asked that the next time the Countess brought her children, to her that she would not forget the matter.

The Queen still wears the horrid Congress garters of thirty years ago, in which her foot shows no sign of Spanish Instep. Her children still address her in the way which was fashionable when they were little things. No member of the upper classes ever said "mamie" then, and from the eldest to the youngest they still call the Queen "mamie."

For Shapely Hips.

Women with well-formed hips are wearing skirts made full on the belt, the fullness being smocked into close ness from the belt to well over the hips and from there falling free. Again rows of braid are set round and round from belt to below the hips, and the braid is set in spoke-like rows, spreading from the belt, each row ending in a loop just below the hips. In all cases the bodice is elaborate either with smocking or braid corresponding to the skirt. This model is very pretty, too, any delicate or transparent material.

outline, but the costume of which it is a part depends for its distinction on its upper portion. Beige crepon is the fabric of the skirt, but the blouson waist is from mousseuse de soie, made over a fitted lining of marine silk. It has a deep square yoke of beige satin to which marine velvet is applied, and which is finished with two rolls of the mousseuse. The standing collar is finished with big chintz roses and beige satin bows ornament the shoulders. Cream color over pink is quite the most persistent of summer's dances. The cream colors of all shades, from coral yellow and buff to dull-linen or oyster gray, while the pink tones to bright rose.

North Three Summer Wear.—The girl of 11 or 12 is at a half age to dress, for she is no longer of a size that permits a nursery rig, and the spare, long-armed figure offers little in vision to the artistic eye. To the puzzled mother of such a miss here is a coat that will be very satisfactorily, if it is made of rose pink and green lace silk, having a square yoke to which the wide skirt is attached. The garment is loose at the waist front and back, and the yoke, and hiding it is set a wide sailor collar that sets off well over the full soft sleeves and cuffs. Chintz lining the sleeves, cuffs and collar is edged with a pleated fringe. All parts of the same goods. The garment is closed single-breasted in front, the edges being brought together by a pair of straps that button over, and the edges and the bottom of the coat are finished with a looped green silk soutache braid. Such a coat sets warmly over any dress, and the sleeves finish at the elbow with a band of satin. The green yoke is surmounted by a ruche of organdy. The sleeves proper have three ruffles, and an additional two ruffles across the shoulders and meet in a point at the center of the bodice. Women in Singular Costumes.

Buffalo has a "lady mortuarist," Arizona's best mining expert is a woman.

An expert tea taster in San Francisco is a young girl.

On Sixth avenue, New York, is an expert woman silversmith.

One of the greatest wood engravers is Miss Doneley of New York.

In the Cogswell Polytechnic school the best blacksmith is a girl.

New Orleans has the only woman veterinary surgeon in the world.

In Boston a well-educated woman electropatologist in gold, silver, and nickel.

Nebraska has a woman who earns her living by operating a steam thrasher.

The finest raisins in California are grown and picked by three women near Fresno.

Fair Physicians.

The first medical diploma conferred upon a woman, in modern times was given by the medical college of Geneva in 1849. At the present time there are nearly 3,000 women engaged in medical practice throughout the country.

Caprices of Fashion.

More novel than one box plait down the front of the skirt is one down each side.

The fashion of wearing white at the throat is not so prevalent as it was in the spring.

It is quite safe to have any silk gown, or light wool designed for early autumn wear, made with ruffled skirt.

Some very elegant plaid silk blouses are being devised by fashionable modistes to wear with tailor-made costumes.

Plaids are very fashionable, and will be all the fad. They are made now in cottons and silks and every variety of guaze.

Pretty dresses for afternoon and evening wear at fashionable summer resorts are made of the soft, light pine-apple silks so popular this season.

The new skirts are not especially made of the white silk lined with hair.

There is a new style of skirt.

That does not adapt itself to shaping,

a singular example being a dress of white guaze, the skirt, full on the hand, and drawn close by round-and-round circles of insertion, laid over ribbons.

The skirt below the circles falls like a single flounce to the instep. It is now time to go in for separate skirts, because all the stores will be selling them to make way for the coming princess and Louis XVI styles. But for a good year to come skirts and fancy bodices will be worn, and there will not be a time in the next two years when a handsome skirt made with the present fancies cannot be made a good part of a woman's wardrobe.

The new fashions are much less wise than the old ones.

The skirt below the circles falls like a single flounce to the instep. It is now time to go in for separate skirts, because all the stores will be selling them to make way for the coming princess and Louis XVI styles. But for a good year to come skirts and fancy bodices will be worn, and there will not be a time in the next two years when a handsome skirt made with the present fancies cannot be made a good part of a woman's wardrobe.

The new fashions are much less wise than the old ones.

There is a new style of skirt.

That does not adapt itself to shaping,

NORTHVILLE LOCALS

The Foster Shoe House people have moved out of town.

N. Neivison has opened up a bakery here in the Kellogg building.

A Nov. 2nd was in town Monday offering about fifteen tons of hay for sale.

The record may be had for 25 cents from any time in September to January 1st.

Pin Harding has moved his meat market into the Kellogg building on Main street.

Born Sunday, Sept. 8, to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Clark, north west of the village, a girl.

Geo. W. Newman of Philadelphia has had erected a beautiful monument on their family lot here in Rural Hill.

R. H. Purdy has purchased the J. O. Knapp property, 148 Main street, where he will make his future home here long.

So much moving has been going on of late that another directory is almost necessary in order to keep track of people.

It is a noticeable fact that in nearly all school districts hereabouts this year the census shows a decrease in the number of school-aged children.

The first week that A. T. Stewart and his fishing party were at Au Sable they only caught 100 of the speckled beauties, but last week the catch reached 900.

J. E. VanAtta has leased Jones Wilcox's house, 41 Center street. Mr. VanAtta will probably occupy the house shortly and it is unlikely that he will live alone.

Mr. Joy has closed up his bakery business and moved to Ann Arbor. The place he left vacant is to be occupied as a tailor shop by a couple of gentlemen from Brighton.

Rothwell, Reamy & Co., who have been closing out the Richardson stock in the Highland building for a few weeks past have discontinued their business here and shipped the stock to Detroit.

The Ladies' Library Association will hold its quarterly meeting at the library room, Friday, Sept. 20, at 3 o'clock. All interested in the new constitution please be present. By order secretary.

And now a scientist has discovered some deadly bacteria lurking in borrowed newspapers. The moral of this is that every family should have their individual paper. Remember The Record to January 1, 1890, for 25c.

A very beautiful night blooming cereus was the attraction at "Uncle" John Sand's other evining. The two blossoms were viewed by a large number of people and Mr. and Mrs. Sand kept open house until a late hour.

The Pontiac Post has made some marked progressive strides within the past week and now presents an up-to-date appearance. The new blood infused into the publication doubtless had much to do with the Post's advancement.

R. H. Purdy has an exhibition in his store a large assortment of the most beautiful lamps ever opened for the gaze of Northville people. This is no puff and Mr. Purdy gets the notice from the item being warranted by the occasion and facts.

The new law requires that every person hunting deer this fall must take out a license with the clerk of the county in which he resides. Non-residents of the state will be assessed $25. The chances are good that the law will be violated with great regularity.

In France, it is said, leather tires are replacing those of rubber for bicycles. They are easily repaired, moreover they are lighter than the rubber ones, and are much less likely to slip on wet pavement, or be punctured by the tacks scattered by naughty boys.

Jones Wilcox has moved with his family to their new farm home east of Farmington. Northville is sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox and it is almost hoped, though perhaps wickedly, that they will get starved out on the farm and be obliged to return to their old home here.

Proceedings have been commenced at Fowlerville for the vacating of the old cemetery there. The Record prophecies that in the years to come the constant growth of the village will cause the abandonment of Oakwood and the transfer of those residing there to another place.

The writer can prove that Dave Shaffer of 8 Nov. avenue is no liar when he speaks of a second crop of raspberries in small sprout containing ten large black-caps of the "Mammoth Cluster" breed, was lugged into The Record office this week where the fruit was soon devoured.

Frank Touze says that Jas. Taylor and John Farmer's accusation against him in The Record of Aug. 30 is false in every particular. Touze's statement is corroborated by Frank Farmer. Touze returned here last week and says he will commence a damage suit against Taylor.

The Plymouth ball club defeated the new Northville's Tuesday by a score of 5 to 17. The home team seem to get rattled when they play with Plymouth and, while the umpiring was very rank at times losing a number of runs for the home team at the same time, they did not by any means put up the game they are capable of. The score by innings was as follows:

First: 1 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
Northville 1 0 0 0 1 3 0 5 5
Plymouth 3 3 0 2 7 4 17 19 3
Struck out by German 4, by Penny 5. Umpire Robinson.

An editor can always write more cheerfully of the business interests of a town when his columns are liberally filled with advertisements of the business houses—as for instance is the case in Northville. No editor can advocate the doctrine of buying from home merchants unless the home merchants show they are interested in catering to the home trade by advertising in the columns of the local newspaper.

It was a very nice ball game which was indulged in as a return game between Farmington and Northville here on Friday afternoon of last week.

The feature of the game was the fine pitching of German and the fine support given him behind the bat by Ambler. The field work of all the players was good and it was really one of the best games of the season.

Farmington's secured Kirkwood of Wayne to pitch, but if they had put in Moore it is thought the Northville score would have been smaller. The score by innings was as follows:

First: 1 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
Farmington 1 0 1 0 1 2 0 9 3
Batteries German and Ambler. Kirkwood and Wilbur. Struck out by German 6, by Kirkwood 3. Umpire Bert Knapp. Time, two hours, admission 50¢.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

DANIEL THE COEUR-DE-LION OF ALL AGES.

Golden West His Windows Brought Open in His Chamber Toward Jerusalem—Daniel VI. 10—Delivered at New York Sunday, September 10.

Scoundrels of Persia

Princes of Persia

Open'd by political jealousy against

Daniel have succeeded in getting a law passed that whoever prays to God shall he put under the paws and teeth of the lions who are fasting themselves, rage and hunger up and down the stone cage, or putting their lower jaws on the ground, following till the earth trembles. But the leonine threat did not hinder the devotions of Daniel, the Coeur-de-Lion of the ages. His enemies might well have a law that the sun should not draw water, or that the south wind should not sweep across a garden of magnolias or that God should be abolished. They could not scare him with the red-hot furnaces, and they can not now scare him with the lions. As soon as Daniel hears of this encirclement he leaves his office of secretary of state with his upholstery of crimson and gold and comes down the white marble steps and goes to his own home. He opens his window and puts the shades back and calls the curtain aside so that he can look toward the sacred city of Jerusalem and then pray.

I suppose the people in the street gathered under and before his window, and said: "Just see that man delaying the law, he ought to be arrested." And the constabulary of the city rose to the police headquarters and report that Daniel is on his knees at the wide-open window. "You are my prisoner," says the officer of the law, dropping a heavy hand on the shoulder of the kneeling Daniel. "As the curtailed open the door of the cage to thrust in their prisoner, they see the glaring eyes of the monsters. But Daniel becomes the first lion-tamer, and they took his hand and fawned at his feet, and that night sleep with the shaggy mane of a wild beast for his pillow, while the King that night, sleepless in the palace, has on his paw and teeth of a lion he cannot tame—the lion of a remorseful conscience.

What a picture it would be for some artist! Daniel, in the early dusk of morning, not waiting for festoon or chariot, hastening to the den, all flushed and nervous and irascible; and looking through the crevices of the cage to see what had become of his prime minister! "What, no sound?" he says. "Daniel is surely devoured, and the lion-tamer sleeping after their horrid meal, the bones of the poor man scattered across the floor of the cage." With trembling voice David calls out, "Daniel!" No answer, for the prophet is at the postural alibi. But action, more ready than need, advances, and, with hot breath blown through the crevices, seems angrily to demand the cause of this interruption, and then another glib best bits his mane from under Daniel's head, and the prophet starting up comes forth to report himself all unharmed and well.

But our text stages us at Daniel's window, open toward Jerusalem. Why in that direction open? Jerusalem was his native land, and all the pomp of his Babylonian success could not make him forget it. He came there from Jerusalem at eighteen years of age, and he never visited it though he lived to be eighty-five years old. Yet when he wanted to arouse the deepest emotions and grandest aspirations of his heart, he had his window open toward his native Jerusalem. There are many of you today who understand that without any exposition. This is getting to be a nation of foreigners. They have come into all occupations and professions. They sit in all churches. It may be twenty years ago since you got your naturalization papers, and you may be thoroughly Americanized, but you can't forget the land of your birth, and your sympathies go out toward it. Your windows are open toward Jerusalem. Your father and mother are buried there. It may have been a very humble home in which you were born, but your memory often plays around it, and you hope some day to go and see it, the hill, the tree, the brook, the house, the place so sacred, the door from which you started off with parental blessing to make your own way in the world; and God only knows how sometimes you have longed to see the familiar places of your childhood, and how in awful crises of life you would like to have caught a glimpse of the old, wrinkled face that bent over you as you lay in the gentle lap twenty or forty or fifty years ago. You may have on this side of the sea risen in fortune, and like Daniel, have become great, and may have come into prosperities which you never could have reached if you had stayed there, and you may have many windows to your house—bay-windows, and sky-light-windows, and windows of conservatory, and windows on all sides—but you have at least one window open toward Jerusalem.

When the foreign steamer comes to the wharf, you see the long line of sailors, with shoulder bags, coming down the planks, carrying as many letters as you might suppose to be enough for a year's correspondence, and this repeated again and again during the week. Multitudes of them are letters from home, and at all the post offices of the land people will go to the window and anxiously ask for them hundreds of thousands of persons, and but on the other side of the desert is the window toward Jerusalem. Message that say: "When are you coming home to us? Brother has gone into heaven." It is not a mere chance of death. It is not a desolate outcome. Jerusalem was the capital of Judea and Babylon the capital of the Babylonian monarchy, and London is the capital of Great Britain, and Washington is the capital of our own Republic. The New Jerusalem is the capital of the universe. The King lives there, and the King reigns over the nations, have we seen their palaces there, and there is a congress of many nations and the parliament of all the world. Yes, Daniel had found in Jerusalem, of whom he often thought, though he left home when a very young man, perhaps father and mother and brothers and sisters still living, and was homesick to see them, and they belonged to the highest circles of royalty. Daniel himself having royal blood in his veins, so we have in the New Jerusalem a great family kindred, and we are sometimes homesick to see them, and they are all princes and princesses, in them the exquisitely Alpine prettiness. Some selected the ripe clusters from Italian vineyard. Some placed their faces under the midnight sun of Norway. It is no dishonor to our land that they remember the place of their nativity. Miscreants would like to be, while they have some of their windows open to take in the free air of America and the sunlight of an atmosphere which so blisssfully has ever breathed; they forget sometimes to open the window toward Jerusalem.

No wonder that the son of the Swiss, when far away from home, hearing the national air of his country sung, the melody of homesickness comes on him so powerfully as to cause his death. You have the example of heroic Daniel of my text for keeping earth memories fresh. Forget not the old folks at home! Write often, and if you have surplus means and they are poor, make practical contribution, and rejoice that America is bound to all the world by ties of sanguinity as in no other nation. Who can doubt but it is appointed for the evangelization of other lands? What a stirring, swelling compelling theory that all the doors of other nations are open toward us, while our windows are open toward them!

But Daniel, in the text, kept this portion of his domestic fortress unlosed because Jerusalem was the capital of sacred influences. There had smoken the sacrifices. There was the Ark of Moses. There was the Ark of the Covenant. There stood the temple. We are tempted to keep our windows open on the opposite side, toward the world, that we may see and hear God appropriate its advantages. What does the world say? What does the world think? What does the world do? Worldlings of the world instead of worshippers of God. Windows open toward Babylon. Windows open toward Corinth. Windows open toward Athens. Windows open toward Rome. Windows open toward the flats, instead of windows open toward the hills. Sad mistake, for this world is a god in little something I saw in the museum of Strasburg, Germany—the figure of a virgin in wood and iron. The victim in cedar that was brought there, and this world would open its arms to receive him, and, once enfolded, the figure stood with a hundred angles and tapers upon him, and then let him drop one hundred and eighty feet sheer down. So the world first vanquishes its masters, then closes upon them with many tortures, and then lets them drop forever down. The highest honor the world could confer was to make a man Roman emperor; but, out of sixty-three emperors, it allowed only six to the powerfully in their beds.

But, mark you, that good Non-Judea is not standing at the window, but kneeling, while he looks out. Most photographs are taken of those in standing or sitting posture; I now remember but one picture of a man kneeling, and that was David Livingstone, who in the cause of God and civilization sacrificed himself, and in the heart of Africa his servant, Mawaro, found him in the tent by the light of a candle, stuck on the top of a box, his head in his hands upon the pillow, and dead on his knees. But here is a great lion-tamer, living under the dash of the light, and his hair disheveled of the breeze, praying. The fact is, that a man can see further on his knees than standing on tiptoe. Jerusalem was about five hundred and fifty statute miles from Babylon, and the vast Arabian desert shifted its sands between them. Yet through that open window Daniel saw Jerusalem, all between it, saw earth, saw time, saw eternity, saw earth, and saw heaven. Would you like to see the way through rousings to pardon, through your troubles to comfort, through temptation to rescue, through dire sickness to immortal health, through night to day, through things terrestrial to things celestial, you will not see them till you take Daniel's posture. No cap of bone to the joints of the fingers, no cap of bone to the joints of the elbow, but cap or bone to the knees, made so because the God of the body was the God of the soul, and especial provision for those who want to pray, and physiological structure joins with spiritual necessity in bidding us pray, and pray and pray.

In olden time the Earl of Westmoreland said he had no need to pray, because he had enough pious tenants on his estate to pray for him; but all the prayers of the church universal amount to nothing unless, like Daniel, we pray for ourselves. Oh, men and women, bounded on one side by Saadach's red-hot furnace, and the other side by devouring lions, learn the secret of courage and deliverance by looking at that Babylonian window open toward the southwest! "Oh," you say, "that is the direction of the Arabian Desert." Yet, engaged "Fay" Taylor early leaves America to return.

ANNIE PIXLEY'S HUSBAND.

A lone and unnoticed, save by a member of the big ship's crew who was talking with him, a man stood on the promenade deck of the Paris today just at the main companionway, as the ocean liner backed out of her berth at the foot of Fulton street, en route for Southampton. Who was as indifferent to his surroundings as the numberless men aboard, and was less interested in the good-by of friends than Captain Watkinson himself. He had passed the meridian of life by one decade at least, and crossing the Atlantic was an old story to him, but not very recently.

It was a think of a boy my father had a balky horse which it occasionally fell to my lot to drive. It was a heart-rending experience and it often exhausted my patience and ingenuity in attempts to make him go. He would go along all right on the level or down hill, but he would not go up hill. He would stand. If you would kick him he would proceed to back. Finally I hit on a scheme. When I came to a hill I'd turn the bridle around and with him and he would back up the hill. When he reached the top I just turned him around and he would go down all right."

as the husband, partner and manager of Annie Pixley the one-time celebrated American actress, he was recognized by a majority of the people throughout the country. The death of the clever little woman abroad, which she had gone for medical treatments and the family quarrel over the distribution of the fortune were and left by her told perceptively upon Dr. Pixley's husband, and his appearance today as he stood upon the Paris deck was a sermon in itself in the unco-guided, who believe that nothing pure can come from a life spent behind the footlights. The home life of Robert Fulford and Annie Pixley was ideal.

RAM'S HORNS.

The way of righteousness is the way of being right with God.

The whole life of the Christian will depend upon what kind of stand he takes when a young convert.

Moses wanted the people he led to know that even in their afflictions God was trying to tell them that he loved them.

When the Christian is afflicted, it is because God sees a good reason for it. As surely and as truly as Naaman knew God by the cleanness of his leprosy, so my man knew God to-day by what takes place in himself.

The elder brother, in the parable of the prodigal, is in every particular the opposite of Christ.

The man who thinks it right to steal, is a thief, no matter whether he robs anybody or not.

The man who believes in a holy God cannot have any rest while he knows that there is any sin in himself.

In the only less sin in making plans to buy in for selling goods, than there is in opening the store and selling them?

Is there any use in the movement going to church to try to please God, with the curtains up in his shop windows, trying to catch the crowd?

NOVI LOCALS.

Mr. Flint of Detroit was a guest of Novi friends this week.

Mrs. Gerardini of Detroit was a guest at C. M. Wright's last week.

C. S. Joslyn of Detroit, who has just returned from Europe, is visiting H. B. Wight.

Mrs. Crawford of Detroit is spending a few days with Mrs. C. Hoge and Mrs. Geo. Hoge.

Mrs. Gulett and family who have been spending the summer at Novi return to Detroit this week.

The state department in bulletin No. 107, Sept. 7, 1895, gives us the following crop report. Reports from first job of threshing the average yield of wheat per acre is 12.61 bushels, the central counties having the largest yield. "Outs 25 bushels per acre." The prospects for beans is 76 per cent, potatos 81 per cent, apples 28 per cent and peaches 29 per cent.

If we are not mistaken, at a recent convention of Universalists young people at Buffalo, a paper on "Loyalty to the church" was read. This seems to be the trend of most religious bodies, and it is a good thing to a certain extent, but proselitizing should not be one of the fundamental principles of that loyalty and advocating this or that "feature of our church" as superior to any other as long as ALL christians must spend eternity around the same divine godhead; why not search the scriptures and live the lessons found therein, and do less bragging about "our church" and what "our church" is doing. The sinful public tires of listening to such trash, and are constantly looking (with aunter in the daytime) for good, honest, christlike men and women.

MEAD'S MILLS.

Ray Rogers is in our city.

Irving Stewart is to move into P. Hanson's house soon.

Bert Hughes and family are residents of this place no longer they having moved on one of T. G. Richardson's farms.

The new floor in our school house is to be oiled, which will cause the pupils to mind their p's and q's or they will be measuring their length.

The work of putting in the new bridges just south of here is being pushed this week. The people of the "village among the hills" can have the pleasure of riding over them on their way to the Plymouth fair.
