

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

XXVII. No. 14.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1895.

$1.00 per year, in advance.

PRIZE WINNERS.

Northville's Great Baby Show.

The following is a complete list of the babies who won the prizes at the baby show of last week. The prizes are well distributed, nearly every village represented having a prominent baby.

Best baby, 1st Duella Martin, Northville; 2nd Beatrice Keys, Farmington. Best talking girl, Margaret Chadwick, Northville. Best talking boy, 1st Harold Turner, Farmington; 2nd Russell Paulger, Northville. Best named baby, Mrs. Key's of Farmington. Mrs. Black's of Plymouth; Mrs. Key's of Northville; and another name unknown. From greatest distance, Mrs. Lockwood's of Farmington. Best dressed baby, Baby VanCamp. Crossed baby, Mrs. C. Simmons. Heaviest baby, Helena Elliott, Lightest, Carl Spencer. Youngest walker, Mrs. Peter Ely's. Best singer, Noene Hog's Farmington. Baby with most hair, Don Ball; with longest hair, Floyd Evans; with least hair, Ruth Bailey 1st, Geo. Simmons 2nd.

Farmington News.

E. C. Grace was a Detroit visitor last week. Mrs. Scott Bennett is slowly improving from her recent illness. Rev. L. B. DuPuis was a Detroit visitor a part of last week.

Mrs. J. M. Armstrong was taken suddenly ill Sunday with heart trouble. Mrs. E. B. Lapham has been a Northville visitor for a few days past.

The well on the mill property has proved a failure thus far after a depth of eighty feet.

Marie Murray will take charge of the Enterprise office during the absence of Editor Bloomer.

Miss Libbie Johnson has returned from Detroit where she has been visiting Mrs. Will Warner.

E. S. Pettibone and Miss Georgia Hike were Plymouth visitors Sunday at the home of Harry Northrop and family.

The Scottish orator, Rev. A. R. Day of Concord, Michigan, will give his popular lecture on, "Courtship, Marriage and Home Life" in the town hall this Friday evening.

Messrs. J. L. Hogle, C. W. Botsford, C. W. Chamberlain, Elmer Sloughton, E. R. Bloomer and B. R. Owen left Monday morning for Atlanta to enjoy sights at the cotton exposition.

A very fine program has been prepared for the literary meeting to be held this Friday evening Nov. 15, at the home of Myron Crawford. No one should miss it if it is possible to be present.

At the wonderful baby show at Northville, Farmington babies carried off four prizes, Harold Turner best talker; Noene Hog's best singer; Beatrice Keys best natured and second, best looking baby.

The Epworth League devotional songs are improving both in attendance and interest. The meeting next Sunday evening will be conducted by Chas. Moore. Remember the hour has been changed from 6:30 to 6:00 p.m. Everyone invited to attend.

The selection of music entitled, "Savior Breathe an Evening Blessing," Sunday evening in the Methodist church, by Rev. L. B. DuPuis, Mrs. H. W. Lee and Mrs. J. L. Hogle, was highly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Moore were called to Southfield Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Moore's brother, Fred Jensen, who died at his late residence, Detroit Thursday. He was a well known and highly respected person.

A controversy has arisen over the article in the Novi department about "Jim" as to who the talented author was. Some say it was "Pat Quig," others that it was the one who sits on the door step. Ye Farmington representative keeps silent, but time will without doubt solve all mysteries. Jim has many warm friends in Farmington who wish him success in his new vocation.

After an absence of nearly seven months Miss Grace Tremper has returned home and reports a delightful time. The following are some of the important events of her visit. While in Maize at the home of John R. Pinkerton and wife she visited Bar Harbor and many of the principle cities of that state. From Portland, Maine, she took an ocean sail to New York of twenty-six hours duration. While there she visited many points of interest including the principle churches, Grace, Trinity, Episcopal and St. Paul. She also saw Grant's tomb at Riverside; she climbed to the top of the statue of Liberty and looked out under her crown; she visited Central Park and the old war museum on Governor's Island where she saw the horse rode by Gen. Sheridan on his long ride; was a visitor at Tappan and saw the old 1778 house where Major Andre was tried and convicted of treason, also his monument at the same place. It might also be stated right here that Mrs. Tremper, grand-mother of Grace, has slept many nights in the room where Andre was a prisoner. There are many more points of interest which might be given but time and space will not permit. Farmington friends are very glad to welcome Grace back again, and of course that other fellow is also. Isn't that so? Now confess. Show up and let us look at you.

Suburban News.

Milford is to have a telephone exchange.

Doe, Nye is a South Lyon veterinarian. He prescribes for the "off hooves."

Burt Bennett of Plymouth shortened up the ends of a couple of his fingers on a jointer last week.

The Milford council is asked to purchase 1,000 feet of hose instead of 500 as at first proposed.

J. D. Murdock, formerly of Northville and later of Plymouth, has moved his barber shop to South Lyon.

W. E. Aldrich, for some years a well known Fenton business man, made an assignment last week.

Rev. A. E. Bolster of Plymouth fame has moved to St. Louis, Mo. where he will engage in the practice of law.

The Wyandotte Herald will hereafter publish a distinct Carleton edition to be known as the Carleton Herald.

The Orion Review is showing how it is appreciated among the business houses of Oakland county by putting up over 18 columns of advertising.

The Wayne Review is "sheered" test the cases of scarlet rash in the village become epidemic. Nothing rash is advocated except to quarantine the village.

Springwells thinks it has the material for just as good a bath town as Mt. Clemens. It is not known whether material in the case refers to the water or the people.

Walter Pink is the Flat Rock boy who believes the "pen mightier than the sword." In the hands of another school boy last week one was jabbed through his cheek.

A hot water bath room has been added to the Oxford school and an urchin entering the place of learning with a dirty face is given a plunge. The dirt and attendance are both dropping off.

H. E. Safford of Plymouth will do the oratory act for the senior medic class of the U. of M. There were no Northville students in the class and the next best thing was Plymouth and its all right.

For the baby show at Northville the Record offers one year's subscription to the baby with the largest ears, says they denote wisdom. You ought to know better than that Neal, look at the "Bird of Paradise."—Brighton Argus.

Look in the lookin' glass, man-falve. The Freshmen's pranks hallowe'en night at Ann Arbor sank the earthquake and cyclone possibilities so far in the shade that no danger from these sources will ever be feared. A city that lived through what Ann Arbor did on that night will give Gabriel a hard tussle to disturb.

The Michigan State Sunday-school association is billed for the Detroit Auditorium Nov. 19-21. It will be a grand affair. Among the speakers to be present are Hon. Jas. O'Donnell, T. E. Barkworth, of Jackson, Hon. E. P. Allen of Ypsilanti; Hon. Washington Gardner of Lansing and others.

The morning following hallowe'en Wyandotte people thought they had been struck either by the earthquake or a Kansas cyclone. Subsequently it was learned that the unique street decorations were the work of the town boys. The authorities hereafter will put their preference on the cyclone with the earthquake as second choice.

Mr. Laughrow of Northville goes to Milford to engage in the bakery business. We have heard about "blood-rav" in some instance, but this Laughrow is the first uncoked ripe smile we have ever noted. By the way, though, come to take a second look at it, the name is Lafrugh. Our readers can see where the laugh comes in.—Adrian Press.

Chicago gamblers carry card layouts around in their hats. Chicago's motto is: "I will!"
The bicycle craze has added the past year $5,000,000 to the bank accounts of rubber dealers.

About the time Japan grabs Hawaii she will tumble in the soup tureen. It is not a Chinese fort.
Now it is claimed that bloomers are better for winter than for summer wear. How about bathing suits?

If there is anything to the London market, at present besides Barney Barnato, it must be too unimportant to be noticed.
It is interesting and somewhat disquieting to note how much more identification it takes to cash a check than it does to get it cashed.

By the time congress meets public opinion in the United States will force it to make some expression in favor of the oppressed Cubans.
Miss Dressler, who has left Manager Rice to be married, evidently prefers to be Queen Marie in 1895 rather than Queen Isabella in 1492.

Gen. Campos has resolved to hereafter "treat Cuban prisoners with kindness." He would do the greatest "kindness" by vacating the green island.
The women of Moline are said to be remarkably successful as streetcar conductors. It seems natural to a man to have a woman demand his small change.

Because some American politician made a monkey of Lord Sackville seven years ago he is not particular over exhuming for making a monkey of himself at this time.
Campos is beginning to complain that there are too many insurgents and not enough Spaniards. It looks as if anyone who wished to arrest in freighting Cuba would have to be quick about it.

Chicago is to have a tower 1,160 feet high. By ascending to the top of this structure it may be possible for the Chicago citizen to get a glimpse of the sun and catch a breath of smokeless air.
The work on the grand canal and tunnel, the most important parts of the project for draining the city and valley of Mexico, is practically completed and attention is being turned to plans for reconstructing an entire sewerage system for the city. The total cost will be about $10,000,000.

Of late we have heard and read a great deal about the importance of teaching the school children to be good American citizens. The truth is that the schools have always taught patriotism and have given a skeleton of history. There is no need of any new departure. We do not want the schools disturbed with conflicting interpretations of the constitution. Their purpose is to impart instruction in a few important subjects, and furnish a framework to which the items of an education may be attached as they may be gathered after leaving school. In only a very few things is there time for broad or thorough work.

Mr. Samuel Gompers, American delegate to the British Workingmen's Congress, just returned, is quoted as saying: "There's no question but that the labor movement in Europe is further advanced than the movement in America. In Europe, especially in England, there exists a better appreciation on the part of the public as to the purposes and achievements of labor organizations. The fact is that England was an industrial country when the United States was wholly undeveloped industrially. There they have men in the labor movement whose grandfathers were agitators and walking delegates. The labor organizations of England have overcome a great deal of the prejudice against them which formerly existed."

In the country around Richland, Mich., according to a veracious correspondent, the breaking of the long drought has caused some strange phenomena. "Wild flowers," he says, "that should have blossomed in May and June are now in full bloom, and apple and plum trees are bearing ripe fruit and blossoms on the same branch. Fields of beans that were planted late have the ripened pods, green beans, and beans in blossom in the same field. Garden seeds which were planted last spring and did not sprout are growing now, and farmers are having their second growth of early vegetables." This man is wasting his talents in Richland. Chicago's chief of police is warning for just such geniuses to revive interest in the Holmes case.

DIDN'T THINK HE KNEW IT.
Quite a venerable story in a Railway News Bulletin.
There is an old legislative theory that the men who hear it are never tired of telling. The incident that gives it its true foundation occurred in the days when Senator Thomas, ex-Sheriff Cornell, Congressman John B. Robinson, of Delaware, were all young and budding members of the lower house. In the same body were two democratic members who were well known to everybody. One of them, since dead, represented a "down-town" ward. He was a man brimful of real Irish wit and repartee. There was hardly a speech made in the house that did not call forth from him some bright remark. The other democrat came from an uptown district. He was more of a workaholic and less of a hand at the game of repartee. These two democrats hated each other for some reason or other, probably because each was jealous of the other's peculiar talents. One day "Jack" Robinson was making one of his usually vigorous speeches, and in the course of his remarks he wound up a sentence with "Vox populi, vox Dei." As he uttered this familiar quotation the "uptown" democrat turned to his rival and exclaimed: "Say, you're so damned smart, I bet you $10 you don't know what 'Vox populi, vox Dei' means." "O'ho, take 'em," was the quick answer. After the speech the two walked out together, and the uptowner said: "Now, come, what did that quotation mean?" "Why, in Latin it means strength," retorted the quick-witted "down-towner." "Confound it, here's your ten," said the equally ignorant "uptowner" rival. "But, say, on the level, I didn't think you knew it."

DUKE OF ARGYLL.
No One Decided to Regret Permanently from Public Life.
The Duke of Argyll—next to Mr. Gladstone the most prominent man in English national affairs for the past forty years—has decided to retire permanently from public life. He is seventy-two years of age. He has been known to Americans by his two titles, The Duke of Argyll and The Duke of Argyll.

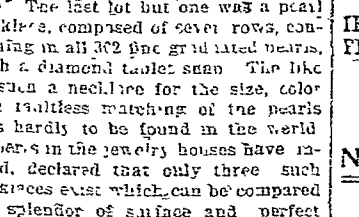

Although a famous politician he has not found it necessary to disguise his faith in Christianity. In 1878 he visited the United States, and the same year witnessed the marriage of his son, the Marquis of Lorne, to Princess Victoria. His himself was recently married to Miss Ida McCall, a young lady less than one-third his age.
Royal Jewels.

At a well known auction room in London a basket of jewels formerly the property of the late Duchess of Montrose was sold publicly a few days ago. The list but but one was a pearl necklace, composed of seven rows, containing in all 372 fine graduated pearls, with a diamond tassel and the like of such a necklace for the size, color and flawless matching of the pearls was hardly to be found in the world. The jewels in the jewelry houses have been declared that only three such necklaces exist; which can be compared for splendor of quality and perfect symmetry of shape and dimensions to these seven rows. Two belong to queens and the third is the property of a very wealthy family. The very first offer made for the necklace was the round sum of $3,500. From this point the bidding quickly ascended to $50,000 and the superb treasure was finally awarded to the bidder who offered the sum of $67,500.

Switzerland proposes to have a state match monopoly. The monopoly is not for profit, but is merely a pretext for the total suppression of the manufacture of poisonous matches, an industry which means painful disease and an untimely death to the people engaged in it. The horror of the poisonous disease as revolting as those of leprosy.

Joseph H. Hoyt, Exal. of Depew.

Joseph H. Hoyt of Cleveland, whose portrait is printed above, was lately characterized by the Channey M. Depew of the west. He spoke on the "Grand old Party" at one of the "Chicago Day" banquets held in that city on October 9.

ATLANTA WORLD'S FAIR.
NOW IN PERFECT RUNNING ORDER.
Greatest Show on Earth Since the Columbian Exposition.
As the winter season draws on apace and the fancies of the tourist and healthseeker turn to thoughts of balmier climes, the great Atlanta Cotton States and International Exposition presents itself as decidedly the biggest thing this country has ever seen outside of the Columbian Fair, reflecting glory upon the thriving Gate City upon the State of Georgia and the South in general. With this "greatest show on earth," now fully opened up and in perfect running order, all who can, should not fail to avail themselves of this grandly instructive opportunity to view the "New South" as portrayed by Atlanta's magnificent Exposition, which must be seen to truly appreciate its great magnitude.

The Railways of the North have made unusually low rates, and even lower figures may be obtained on specified dates in connection with special parties now being formed to start from Detroit and other Northern centers.
A happy choice of route is an essential feature of a Southern trip.

A MONTHLY RAILWAY.
The C. H. & D. has long been recognized as occupying a noble rank among America's Railway Systems of great prominence. This high regard is thoroughly justified by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, affording to its patrons, as it does, all the conveniences, comforts and luxuries of modern travel, which, conjoined with unsurpassed roadway, absolute mechanical perfection, superb equipment, maximum speed, close connections, and all appliances, accessories and benefits incident to the highest standard of Railway excellence, unquestionably enables this popular line to offer, in Florida and Southeast.

If you have any intention of going to the Southeast this fall or winter you should advise yourself of the best route from the North and West. This is the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, which is running double daily trains from Cincinnati through to Nashville, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Atlanta, Montgomery, Thomasville, Pensacola, Mobile, Jacksonville and all Florida points. Pullman Sleeping Car service through. Specially low rates made to Atlanta during the continuance of the Cotton States Exposition and tourist rates to all points in Florida and Gulf Coast resorts during the season. many respects, superior advantages in the accommodation of Southern travel.
With solid trains and through car service from Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, Indianapolis, etc., and cheap, convenient, arrangements from all points in the North and Northwest, the C. H. & D. feel warranted in soliciting a good share of Atlanta Exposition and other Southern winter excursion and regular travel from all Northern territory, natural to the Cincinnati gateway.
Visitors from Detroit, Toledo, and all Michigan and tributary Northern and Eastern points are offered, by the C. H. & D., perfect service, consisting of four solid daily trains to Cincinnati, carrying magnificent parlor cars and sleepers.
From Chicago, two through solid vestibuled trains to Cincinnati—morning and evening—via the "Monon," Indianapolis and the C. H. & D. give to the traveler sumptuous accommodation. The day service is parlor car, cafe dining car (a la carte), and elegant day coaches; the night train consists of Pullman open and compartment sleepers, the finest of day coaches, and the train is steam heated and gas lighted. The sleeping car service of the "Monon" and C. H. & D. is absolutely the finest running between Chicago, Indianapolis and Cincinnati.
From Indianapolis, in addition to the above service from Chicago, there, through fast, fully equipped trains to Cincinnati, departures via the C. H. & D. almost at will.
No trip via Cincinnati is complete without a brief stop-off in the famous "Queen City" to visit the various noted points of interest. This point, practically through the most excellent schedules of the C. H. & D., landing passengers in Cincinnati in the early morning, allowing an all day stay there, and a resumption of their journey by the fast evening service of the Queen & Crescent or Louisville & Nashville Roads or connection at Cincinnati, morning or evening with these lines is afforded, as may be desired.
On November 15 and 25, and December 5 and 10, very low round trip rates to Atlanta will be in effect from all C. H. & D. points, and correspondingly from tributary territory. A beautifully illustrated and descriptive folder of the Exposition can be had free by addressing D. G. EDWARDS, G. P. A., Cincinnati, or any C. H. & D. Agent.

Florida and Southeast.
If you have any intention of going to the Southeast this fall or winter you should advise yourself of the best route from the North and West. This is the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, which is running double daily trains from Cincinnati through to Nashville, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Atlanta, Montgomery, Thomasville, Pensacola, Mobile, Jacksonville and all Florida points. Pullman Sleeping Car service through. Specially low rates made to Atlanta during the continuance of the Cotton States Exposition and tourist rates to all points in Florida and Gulf Coast resorts during the season. For particulars as to rates and through car service, write

C. P. ALBRIGHT, Div. Pass. Agt., Louisville, Ky.

The Historic Route.
The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, the model railroad of the South in equipment, roadway and service, is also the greatest in historical interest, more than fifty famous battlefields and five national cemeteries being located on the various lines of this system. This is the preferred route to Atlanta for the Cotton States and International Exposition, open from September 18, to December 31, 1935, for which very low excursion rates have been made. Through sleeping car service from St. Louis to Atlanta via Evansville, Nashville and Chattanooga. This is the route of the famous "Dixie Flyer" through sleeping car line which runs the year round between Nashville and Jacksonville, Fla. For further information, address Brard E. Hill, 325 Marquette Building, Chicago, Ill. or R. C. Cowardin, Western Passenger Agent, Railway Exchange Building, St. Louis, Missouri, or D. J. Hallahan, Pass. HARD TO HANDLE.

Giraffes Are Very Difficult Animals to Transport.

The latest living example of the giraffe that has so recently been added to the society's collection arrived in England during the exceptionally hard winter, and, although cooped up in a roughly built box, seemed at the end of its journey but little worse for it and a day after, it had been in its house fed heartily and seemed perfectly well and sound; says Leisure House, it is a peculiarly handsome marked specimen, much darker in color than any that have previously been brought to this country. All that we have had, have come from the northern part of Africa and are known as Nubian; this one comes from the south. When it first came it had on a headstall, with a rope halter. This, it was felt, it would be wise to take off and we happened to be present the morning it was done. On paper it seemed an easy thing to do—just take it off; but with a frisky and timid creature like the giraffe it was hard work for three strong men. First they had to get a rope around the leather headstall, then the moment that was done the creature pinched around and around and twisted the rope about its neck and less so that the keepers were in the utmost alarm lest in its frantic struggles it should seriously damage itself. At last they unwound the rope and endeavored to pull the giraffe's high head down to such a level that they could get at it, but after a time, just as victory seemed certain, it suddenly blew away, twisting the cord again and again around its neck. At last, however, they did succeed. One clever cut with a sharp knife, and the whole headstall fell off and the creature bounded away with flying heels, much to the danger of the three men. Mr. Wingham, the Cape farmer who caught and brought it over, described how he feared it would hardly live, as it was so thin and emaciated when he got it, but soon it took to feeding and got into better condition. He had a long ride after it and caught it with a lasso, which he is an adept at throwing.

It is curious how timid these creatures are about certain sounds. Noisy sounds, like a man walking by with cobble boots, it does not notice, but a lady coming in with hardly more sound than the mere rustling of her dress makes it start, with pricked ears and distended eyes. We remember well after the terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the neighboring canal, asking the keeper of the giraffes of that day how they had taken it and he said he was surprised how very little notice they took at all. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once lay down again when they found that nothing had happened. "But," he added, "if I was at night time to creep along that gallery in my socks quietly they would be so scared that I believe they would dash their sides to pieces." They fear the barking too and a big bawf scares them less than a faint rustling sound. They are, that very desirable.

Length of the Earth's Shadow.

The length of the shadow which the earth casts into space has attracted some attention since the eclipse of the moon. This shadow is in the form of a cone with the diameter of the earth as its base. It is 864,000 miles long. That is if you traveled into space, away from the earth, more than three times as far as the moon, the shadow would shield you from the sun, provided you remained on what may be called the night side of the earth. The diameter of the sun is 866,000 miles, that of the earth is 7926 miles, and the distance from the sun to the earth is 93,000,000 miles.

The Singular Good For A Remedy

Clayton Mich.

It Came to Him Through Research

Article About J. J. Corbett

(From the Times, Adrian, Mich.)

Two miles east of Clayton, Mich., there lives a man, Mr. Charles Smith, whose lot it has been to suffer for twelve long years without help. Research was conducted that Mr. Smith had in some remarkable manner, nearly regained his health. A Times and Expositor reporter, calling upon Mr. Smith to learn the truth of the matter, found him in a field harvesting oats. When questioned about the famous advertisement that Mr. Smith had replied: "I was in luck."

He said that for twelve years past he had been troubled with sciatic rheumatism, that his sufferings had been at times well nigh unbearable and during last April he had been unable to obtain relief. Now, he said, he hoped soon to be entirely cured. The reporter inquired what had effected this remarkable change. Mr. Smith replied that last April he learned of some scientific cure and had been performed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These cures, and in particular the case of James J. Corbett, an exponent of which appeared in the Times and Expositor, induced him to try the pills. After taking two boxes he thought he was getting cured. Then, rheumatism returned in a more severe form, however, and he is again taking the pills with full confidence that two boxes more will entirely eradicate the disease from his system.

Mr. Smith made a sworn statement of the facts, of which the following is a copy:

"I have been troubled with sciatic rheumatism during the past twelve years, and at times nearly causing loss of life. I have tried various remedies without being, until last April I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken two boxes and have been able to do more work this summer than in heretofore. I think it is the only medicine in the world that has helped me."

"Charles Smith."

Sworn to and subscribed before me this Second of August 1935. H. M. Cona, Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box of six boxes for $2.50. The price never sold in bulk or by the 100, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Cesar's Statue Changes Color

Chicago Tribune: If Augustus Caesar could come to life and see his statue as it now looks, down in front of the art institute, that warrior surely would "drop dead again." It and that of Napoleon are painted a bright orange. The two statues, together with the larger one of France, have stood in a niche over the entrance almost since the first opening of the art institute. But it is safe to say that not half of the people who entered the doors ever gave them a thought and scarcely a glance until yesterday.

She, too, stood out in bold relief against the smoky background of the building yellow than any of the fall crop of pumpkins. People who went hurrying along the street stopped the instant they beheld them.

"Talk about Impressionism," said a man who apparently knew something of art, "not the most rabid piece of work in Europe could compare with that."

These ladies, who understood that the bright yellow was only a priming preparatory to a coat of bronze, enjoyed the joke immensely. Like the boy with the trick on All Fools' Day, they stood behind the glass doors and waited to see the effect on every passer-by.

WE WANT TO TELL YOU

Why Your Back is Lame—Why it Aches and Pains, and How to Cure it

"Do you know what it is to have a back that is never free from aches and constant pain, a lame back, a sore back, an aching back, in fact, a back that makes your life a burden? What have you done for it? And does it still keep you from the happiness and perfect health brings to all? We have full well if such is your condition a cure for it will be a blessing you no doubt desire. Plasters won't do it, but may assist in bringing strength. Liniment won't do it, for, while it may give temporary relief, it does not reach the cause. There's the point: there's a way to make the attack. Most backaches from disordered kidneys, therefore must correct their action if you wish barred. Read the following from J. A. Cook, whose address is No. 18 1/2 Street, Grand Rapids. He says:

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with such success that I can truly say it is a truly great medicine. Thirteen years ago I had nervous kidney trouble in the form of a 'nerve' and 'nerve' cure. I think it was due to the fact that the seeds were sown in my back which caused all my trouble. Severe attacks bothered me, and at such times my kidneys were worse. It is almost impossible to describe the pain which often lamed me. I have been so lame that to stand up after I had been sitting down required a great exertion. Walking was at times an impossibility, even at night I did not rest, being forced to get up during the night. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and wondered if they could make an almost lame man well. I got some, and soon after taking them began to feel their good effects. I used them for some time, my lameness all but went away, and I felt it since I had used Doan's Kidney Pills 'bring down an inestimable amount of good will for me at all dealers, price 50 cent. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S., Remedy, the name, Doan's, and take no other."

To Restore Blotchy Complexion

Many a poor victim of aged blotches would be happy to know how to bring back the natural color after they have been an artificial blonde or brunette. Dr. McGinn gives them the following receipt, the ingredients mixed in equal parts:

- Alcohol of roses.
- Oil of bitter almonds.
- Tincture of cantarides.
- Tincture of pigeon.

Mr. Noble gives a very interesting account of that southern country and its inhabitants.

The Libel Suit.

James Slocum of Holly has sued J. H. Keys of the Lexington News for libel. Regarding the suit the News of last week, a number of the copies of which were sent here, says: "When we first announced the probable appearance of the News at Northville, and before we had time to issue a single paper, Slocum printed an extra edition of his paper and sent several hundred copies of it to Northville denouncing the editor of the News in unmeasured terms, setting forth in substance that we were a fraud and a cheat, and only wanted to get hold of a lot of subscriptions and then leave. As we were almost a entire stranger to the people of Northville, this cowardly attack had the effect Slocum intended it should. It threw our enterprise into discredit. People were afraid to help it and we lost hundreds of dollars in a field where with a fair showing money could have been made."

This article contains no less than eight libels: (1) Slocum did not print an extra edition; (2) Exactly 22 copies were sent here and they were sent to business men only; (3) the item, which is appended below in full did not denounce the News man in "unmeasured terms"; (4) it did not call him a "fraud" or (5) a "cheat"; or (6) "that he would get hold of a lot of subscriptions and then leave"; (7) it had no effect on the News' business whatever; (8) the News did not "lose hundreds of dollars"—nor cents.

So much has been said about that great (?) article of Slocum's and it has been lied about so much that we print it here, that people who have any interest in the subject may judge for themselves. The second paragraph is from the Brighton Express written by Mr. Keys himself:

Holly Advertiser, Nov. 22, 1894: Fifteen weeks ago J. H. Keys started a weekly newspaper at Brighton, and how well he has succeeded we take his own words from the last issue of that paper which was his last in every sense of the word:

Brighton Express, Nov. 14, 1894: "We were shamefully deceived, but are not prepared to say it was intentional deception. We have letters in our possession that prove that the person who wrote them, to say the least, did not know what he was talking about. The business men of Brighton did not organize and appoint a secretary for the purpose of bringing in another paper. The 'nine-tenths' of the people who wanted another paper here was all imagination. A test has proved the fact that nine tenths of the people did not want another paper here. Statements from the same source led us to believe that at least twelve columns of home advertisements could be secured beyond a doubt. This was another story founded on airy nothing, as a test of the matter has proved. We had faith in the narrator, and as a consequence we now stand on the brink of financial ruin."

Holly Advertiser: And now this Mr. Keys pulls up his stakes and sets them in Northville, a town where one newspaper has always been a failure until F. S. Neal, by his untiring efforts and pleasing and accommodating ways has been successful in building up a business that gives him an economical living. He has the united support of the business men and they are pleased with the Record and Mr. Neal's manner of conducting it. We have no ill will towards Mr. Keys but we must say that in the matter of selecting locations for establishing new newspapers he is an utter failure as time will demonstrate again.

Mr. Keys is laboring under a wrong impression. He has either been misinformed or he wilfully misrepresents the facts.

Call and see us when in town. You are always welcome and we will treat you well whether you buy or not. Don't be afraid to send your children to this store. They will be treated well and WAITED ON PROMPTLY.

Fascinators.

Two shipments received this week, one from Boston and one from New York. They are the nicest lot we have seen and further they are lower in price than usual. Some particularly good ones at 25c, 47c, 50c, in the wool and ice-wool at 50c, 75c, 98c, $1.37.

Bed Blankets.

Lots of cheap blankets being sold, but it pays to get a good pair. The gray and white heavy fleeced at 75c, 85c, $1.00 are very good here. The cheap ones at 40c pair are better than cold sheets. Wool blankets from $3.48 up to the regular $6.00. Fine heavy elegant goods at $4.75.

Comforts.

Comfortable in warmth and also to the purse, are the kind we sell. From the 75c kind—cost you 54c here—up to the fine satine, challie lined, clean batting, large size $2.50 grade—cost you $2.00 here. We can save you money on any kind you want to buy.

Gloves and Mittens.

We have now on sale a large lot of these goods especially adapted for this weather. Some of the good kinds are calfskin palm and back, lined at 50c, calf palm at 25c, value 33c; red felled mitten, faced with leather "called buskskin," at 35c, value 50c. Call and see them before you buy.

Wrappers.

Still selling the stock of the New York manufacturer 75c wrappers 57c, $1.00 wrappers 75c, etc.

Rubbers.

These will interest you now. Our prices and kinds are right judging by amount we are selling these days.

The "blind tiger" is not recorded in the animal kingdom, but few are so blind as not to see the tracks of the beast when right under their noses. Grand Ledge Independent. Now we wonder what is a "blind tiger." Editor Westland please make yourself plainly understood. Howlerville Observer.

Anyone knows what a "blind tiger" is. Why, a blind tiger is a blind tiger to be sure.

Just now Geo. McDonald is taking particular pride in five young ducks, hatched from eggs that were laid in September. The duck tribe, be it known, usually confine their laying to the spring season. Mr. McDonald is going to rear the ducklings carefully and hopes to evolve a breed that will lay the year round, like hens. Wyandotte Herald.

If the ducks don't "lay the year round" it is suggested that "Mac" try bricks.

There are a few people in the world who don't know how to treat a newspaper or how to take what is given them by a newspaper. In the first place a newspaper is a business. If you don't like it, don't take. If you do take it don't consider it is under a particle of obligation to you for doing so. You pay a low price for it and yearly you get more than you are charged for for it, and it owes you no more for your patronage in the way of an obligation than does the grocer who sells you a dollar's worth of sugar or soap. Rockport Journal.

Wayne has not levied a village tax for five years, is not in debt, and has money in the treasury. If any town in Michigan can show better financialing, speak right out. Wayne Review.

We are not quite so sure whether it is a question of financing or of saloons. It is understood that the revenue derived from that source is sufficient to run the town. Wait till you get water works, electric lights, side walks and the grass pulled out of your streets.

A man who believes in the old saying: "See a pin and pick it up, and all day long you'll have good luck," saw a pin in front of the post-office the other day. Bending down to get it he hit his eye glasses, fell and broke on the pavement; his suspenders gave way behind; he burst the button-hole on the back of his shirt-collar, and he all but lost his new false teeth. He got the pin. Howlerville Observer.

Subject for next Sunday evening at the Baptist church: "The Detroit Tragedy."

A lecture by Rev. Morgan L. Wood of Detroit is one of the possibilities for Northville's near future.

Frank Ery and his newly wedded wife are living in northwilde preparatory to keeping house by themselves.

One of the leading merchants of Northville, is a bald-headed as the tariff lies of republican newspapers.

Adrian Press.

If last week's baby show was entitled to the credit of bringing the rain, it should have been held several months sooner.

W. H. Stark has used up two of his deer licenses already. Word received from him Wednesday tells of his slay of two choice bucks.

The F&P M. R. will sell excursion tickets to Detroit Nov. 19-20, limited to return to Nov. 22, at the rate of one fare for the round trip.

Robert Waterman is the possessor of a young, thoroughbred Great Dane dog, a present from Mr. Waterman's parents of Sand Beach.

Mrs. Knott, Scientist of Detroit, will give a lecture at the WCTU hall, Wednesday, Nov. 20. All who are interested are invited to attend.

The secretary of the Eastern Branch YMCA of Detroit, C. B. Boda, will speak at the men's meeting Sunday. Fill the room to its fullest capacity.

The Methodist church society will give a chicken pie social in the church parlors from five to eight on Saturday evening, Nov. 23. A general invitation is extended.

The Tady Macabees will give a masquerade social in Richardson's hall Thursday evening, Nov. 21. All are cordially invited to attend. Light refreshments and a good time. A prize will be given for the prettiest costume and another for the most comical one.

Why can't Northville have a first class lecture course? Every other little town in the state has one and there is nothing to hinder here except for some one to go ahead with the project.

The marshal gives notice that the blockading of the streets of Northville and about the post-office, or loud talking and unnecessary scuffling by young men as they congregate, must be stopped there will be trouble.

Postmaster Downer has given notice that there is to be no more "rushes" in the government building by the college students. If the city authorities cannot cope with emergencies he will call on the powers that be in Washington.

Dr. Murdock a well known physician and surgeon of Ypsilanti has located in Northville for the practice of his profession. The doctor has an experience of 30 years behind him, his graduate of the U. of M. and comes well recommended.

C. J. Cady formerly of this place is now running the railroad eating house at Parsons, Kansas. It is known as "The Katy." Cady is well posted in the hotel and lunch room business and is capable of more than pleasing the traveling public.

Rev. J. H. Belding occupied the pulpit at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening. There was a large attendance. Mr. Belding has charge of the special YMCA services now being held in Detroit. He will probably permanently locate soon in that city.

We don't know whether this is a compliment or not, but its from the Wyandotte Herald which generally knows what its talking about: "Pat Conley left a cabbage at the Northville, Record office that measures 43 inches in circumference. Editor Neal uses the fruit to stretch his hat on after being out with the boys."

Impress on your memory that the men's meeting is open for you at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Come and bring that other fellow with you.

C. A. Hutton attended the state meeting of the Congregationalists at Oxford the fore-part of the week. They tried the individual communion service with pleasing success.

The general superintendent and the superintendent of construction of the Bell Telephone Co., of Detroit were here this week in relation to fixing their poles about town as requested by the council. They asserted that they would cheerfully comply with the village's demand though they "thought we people were getting as bad as Pingree." The work was commenced yesterday.

Ladies Fascinators Wool and Iodol Wool at Miss Boyce's

Chrysanthemum Plants or Cut Flowers may be obtained of Mrs. Wm. B. At. 20 Wing street, Northville.

The NHS foot-ball team go over to Plymouth tomorrow, Saturday, after noon to play the Plymouth team and several broken heads are likely to ensue.

Mr. Dolson and family are new comers and occupy Mr. Kendrick's tenant house corner Rogers and Dubuque streets.

Mr. Dolson is interested in the manufacture of a newly patented wind mill.

When the Record subscribers receive a notice stating their "subscription expires" with the next issue, they should be prompt in renewing if they wish the paper continued. The notice means just what it says and all are served alike.

It is suggested, and wisely we believe, that if the council have a few dollars to spare, a good plan to expend some of it would be in improving Cady street between West and Wing, and after that Rogers street between Dubuque and Main streets also needs fixing.

One of the very best farming magazines published is the "Farming." It was formerly known as the Canadian Live Stock Journal. The regular price is $1.00 per year, but if any of our farmer friends want a copy for 75c they will be supplied upon application to The Record office.

The Plymouth concert company are talking strongly of coming here in about three weeks to repeat the concert which they gave in that village last week before the Congregational society. The company is composed of a number of the leading musical people of Northville's suburban hamlet and their entertainment is highly spoken of.

In addition to artistic sign painting W. R. Knowlton, who has a shop, over Perrier's blacksmith shop, makes one of the best bed springs that ever adorned a bed. They are made of coiled wire with extra coil spring connections. They are something of a novelty as well as a luxury and at the same time are quite cheap. Contemporary purchasers will do well to investigate.

The Detroit Journal showed its progressiveness and hustling ability last week when after being completely wrecked in the boiler explosion at 9 o'clock commenced all new again and had its noon edition on the streets at 12 o'clock, being but one hour late. The Record extends its hearty congratulations to the Journal on its quick turnaround of a seeming overwhelming catastrophe.

Rev. Mr. Herbener late of Louisville, Ky., will preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening. A general invitation to be present is extended. Mr. Herbener preached in that church last evening in lieu of the regular prayer meeting and those who were present speak very highly of his remarks. Of late he has devoted the most of his time to evangelistic work in the various large cities of the United States.

It Mayor Pingree's newest scheme venture, a plan to abrogate the U. S. treaty with Great Britain whereby naval ships may be built upon our Great Lakes, is a success it will not only add another feather to his cap of many victories, but at the same time abolish something that was never of any use except to retard one of Michigan's great industries. The mayor should receive a hearty co-operation in this matter of a united petition to congress from the lake districts.

Detective White, arrested Sibley Phillips, alias Glatby, last week Friday for the theft of a watch at Armada last December. The watch was a present by the masonic fraternity of that place to Ira Jarvis who had been master of the lodge for some years. Phillips is a bright looking young man of 17, and Deputy Sheriff Cudworth who came for him Saturday spoke in the highest terms of the family as well as the boy's previous record. After being arrested Phillips confessed to this theft and also to the stealing of some money of Wesley Mills where he boarded some time ago. He had been in Northville nearly a year and of late was employed in the iron room at the Globe factory. The officer left Saturday afternoon for Armada with his prisoner.

John Scipio, colored, who lives just south of town, was up before Justice Webster Tuesday on complaint of his wife to give surety for the peace. John pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Scipio produced a club in court and testified it was the identical weapon which John had threatened to strike her with and that her life was in danger. John thought he would dispense with the use of a lawyer and jury but admitted to the justice that he did say something about using the club. He was ordered by the court to furnish a $200 bond by Wednesday or be confined in the Detroit House of Correction for ninety days, and remanded to the custody of the officer. Scipio has always been considered an honest, energetic, colored "gemmen" and this was his first appearance in court. He furnished the necessary bonds Wednesday morning.

The new fire alarm bell is being put in place.

Rev. Mr. Turner has just commenced a series of revival meetings.

The State Savings bank holds its annual meeting Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 10.

The "400" have a social hop at Princess rink tonight. Tibbards city orchestra furnishes the music.

L. W. Hutton and W. H. Ambler are appointed commissioners for the estate of the late Mrs. Sarah Owen. E. K. Shymonds and Geo. Rider have been appointed for the same purpose for the Mrs. Mary Kellogg estate.

There are a number of needy families about town who are worthy of consideration by our local missionary societies. There is such a thing as over-looking charitable work at our very doors as we seek for it in more remote places.

Grand Lecturer Luther M. Clark, held a school of instruction in the Masonic Temple here Wednesday afternoon and evening. The Plymouth lodge exemplified the first degree work; Farmington the second and Northville the third. There was a large attendance and the exercises were very interesting and instructive.

Jasper Elliott was arrested Friday night upon a warrant sworn out by his wife for surety of peace. Mrs. Elliott alleged that Jap was tearing things loose and that she believed she was in danger of her life. Jap was confined in the jail until Saturday at 9 o'clock when he was granted an adjournment until 1 o'clock by Justice Webster to obtain legal council. He secured C. C. Yerkes and at 1 o'clock he pleaded guilty and was given until 1 o'clock Monday to secure bondsmen to keep the peace and was in the mean time released on his own recognizance. For their protection, Mrs. Elliott and daughter stayed over Sunday at the home of the Marshal. Jap furnished a $400 bond Monday to keep the peace and promises his bondsmen to take the gold cure and to forever after be good.

40 KILLED IN DETROIT

BOILERS IN THE JOURNAL OFFICE EXPLODE

Five-Story Building Completely Wrecked and About 60 Souls Carried Down in the Debris—At Least 40 Were Killed and a Score Injured.

Horrible Holocaust at Detroit.

The five-story brick building occupied by the Evening Journal, on the corner of Larned and Shelby streets, Detroit, was the scene of the most harrowing disaster that has ever been witnessed in that city. The building is divided into three sections by two fire walls which run from the foundation to the roof. The two sections to the west were occupied by the Journal, principally while the eastern section contained the Journal's boiler rooms in the basement and the Journal's stereotyping rooms on the fifth floor. The intermediate floors were occupied by the Journal's bookbindery, John Davis & Co., manufacturing chemists, Wm. Dunlap & Co., manufacturers of the Journal's printing cases, H. C. Kuhlbrandt, engraver, P. J. Collins, Detroit branch of the New York publishing house, and the Journal's bookbinders, John Davis & Co. and Miller. Employed in the building were about 50 persons, and the total number of people in the section of the building up to about 50. It was about 9 o'clock in the morning when without the least warning there was a sudden explosion in this east section. The floors leveled and an instant later the entire five-story building crashed down, down into the basement, carrying between 40 and 50 precious souls down in the awful wreck and ruin. All that could be seen was a frightful mass of broken and twisted and tangled timbers, ironwork, bricks, stone and plaster, and in the midst of this conglomeration were the dead, dying and wounded. It seems miraculous that the entire Journal building was not carried down, as it had been the loss of life would have been more than doubled. As it was the walls were badly cracked, the windows all smashed and other damage done. Surrounding buildings on all sides had their windows broken by the concussion and a great many people were injured by broken glass.

Before the people in the vicinity of the disaster had recovered from the shock of the explosion, the Journal's boiler rooms were heard from the pile of debris. The boiler rooms were seen to be falling out of the side of the building. They were badly dented, bent and broken. These were then seen to be falling upon the street. The fire department and all the ambulances were called out and in a few moments scores of rescuers were engaged in the task of saving the lives of the victims. The fire department and all the ambulances were called out and in a few moments scores of rescuers were engaged in the task of saving the lives of the victims.

The disaster was caused by the explosion of the boiler used to furnish steam power and heat through the building. The cause of the explosion is not known but Engineer Thompson is severely condemned as a careless man and the opinion is freely given that he allowed the water to get too low. The building was owned by the Newberry estate and the loss will be about $750,000, as the remainder of the building has been declared unsafe and will have to be torn down. All carried fire insurance, but their policies do not cover loss by explosions so they are without protection unless they can recover damages from the Newberry estate, which owned the boiler and employed the engineer.

Havana. It is now a limited revolution in the different provinces, they are operating in and that they have received such a quantity of arms, ammunition and dynamite that they are said to be reaching a crisis. There is no doubt that the headquarters of Capt. Gen. Martinez Campos, the city of Santa Clara, capital of the province of that name, is being slowly but surely besieged by the insurgents. They are advancing from all sides, but mainly from Puerto Principe, Gen. Masimo Gomez, the insurgent commander-in-chief, has crossed the border with a considerable body of men and are now in the province of Santa Clara, and which is one of the points where the capital is being slowly but surely besieged.

THE

Vol. XXVII, No. 15.

TAXES ARE HIGH.

The Per Cent Probably Higher than Ever Before.

It is in evidence that there will be some tall squirming among taxpayers this fall when they walk up to the rack to settle with the town treasurer and pay for the privilege of owning a little property. The township of Plymouth comes in for a good round sum and the rate in each district is about the same, with the small difference in favor of the Northville end. The rate here is $1.16 on each $100 assessed valuation. The county tax is a trifle lower but you won't notice that when you come to see the town and state departments.

Some of the people of this town were not satisfied with the proposed appropriation asked for by the town board last spring but voted several hundred dollars extra to be used on various hills and roads in the town where the work might about as well been left undone. This together with appropriations for "homes," schools, asylums, reformatories, etc., and the thousands of dollars paid for the last session of the legislature which accomplished nothing of importance beyond drawing a membership salary and trying to knock out Mayor Plugg—there we say come high, but must have them you know.

A GOOD BIG UNDERTAKING.

The Globe Company Are Now Finishing Something Elegant.

For years and years the Globe Furniture company has turned out on an average the seatings for one church per day. Their orders have reached into the thousands and though for years they have been rated as the largest church furniture factory in the world, they are working on a job now which was the largest undertaking in their entire history. It is the entire interior (and exterior except the mission work) of the large St Ignace Roman Catholic church at Kingston, Penn. The Globe company furnish everything in the line of wood work and trimmings, including not only the pews, pulpits, chairs and confessionals, but the window casings, doors and vestibules as well. The wood work is all of quarter sawed red oak and it will be finished as nice as skilled labor can do it. The cost of the job is $6,200 and it is to be ready for shipment about December 1. The entire work will be done at the factory here and it will be put together in sections before shipping. The massive large oak doors with their polished brass mountings will have the distinction of being hung in Northville and swung in Pennsylvania.

The finishing of a church by a furniture factory, after the masonry work is all done, located hundreds of miles from the spot is a remarkable feat and it probably has never been successfully accomplished by any other factory in the world. The Globe company did a similar successful job for a smaller church in that same state about two years ago.

A GREAT EXPENSE

(From the Little Creek Moon.)

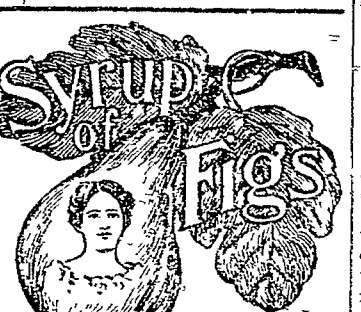

Our representative called at 28 Battle Creek Avenue, the residence of S. I. Robbins and in an interview with him brought out the following facts. Mr. Robbins tells of his wife's experience in a manner that carries conviction with his words. He says: "I am sorry my wife is not at home this P. M., but so one knows better than I how she has suffered during past years. For twenty years she has been afflicted with the various forms of kidney complaint and an enlargement of the liver. She was often confined to her bed for more than two weeks at a time suffering untold agony. She has doctor's bills for her alone as much as $400.00, and then her relief was only such that she would be able to get around for a spell. Some time ago she felt the symptoms of another attack coming on, such as a pain in the kidneys and back. I hardly know what induced me to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills instead of sending for the family physician; however, I got some and she commenced their use. It was a surprise to us both to see their effect, the attack was warded off, and she continued taking them with marked improvement each day of their use. She is better now than she has been in years, the pain in the back and others in the kidneys have entirely gone. Hardly a day goes by that we do not mention the great good Doan's Kidney Pills have done her. I was about to suggest to your mother, I am confident that my wife's experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has done much to change my opinion. If it were not for these pills she would not have been able to be out this afternoon."

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant, laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is where esteemed so highly by all sane good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the system on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

PART II.

"Now, Richard, think very carefully. You speak of the missing finger joint. We doctors know how many people persuade themselves into all sorts of things. Tell me, did you notice the likeness before you saw the mutilated finger, or did the fact of the finger's being mutilated bring the likeness to your mind?"

"Bless the man," I said. "One would think I had no eyes. I tell you there is no doubt about this man being the original of the photo."

"Never mind, answer my question."

"Well, then, I am ashamed to confess it, but I put the photo in my pocket, and forgot all about it until I had recognized the man and pulled out the likeness to make sure. I didn't even know there was a printed description of the foot, nor that any member was wanting." Contorted at Brand's "I'm not such a dunder as you think."

Brand did not retaliate. He turned to his friend and said gravely, "To me the matter is inexplicable. Take your own course, as I promised you should." Then he sat down, looking deliberately crestfallen and wearing the discontented expression always "natural" to him when worsted in argument.

"It was now Carriston's turn. He piled me with many questions. In fact, I gave him the whole history of my adventure. 'What kind of house is it?' he asked.

"Better than a cottage—scarcely a farm-house. A place, I should think, with a few miserable acres of bad land belonging to it. One of those wretched little holdings which are simply curses to the country."

He made lots of other inquiries, the purport of which I could not then divine. He seemed greatly impressed when I told him that the man had never for a moment left me alone. He shot a second glance of triumph at Brand, who still kept silent, and looked at it all the while had been taken out of his sails.

"How far is the place?" asked Carriston. "Could you drive me there after dark?"

At this question the doctor returned to life. "What do you mean to do?" he asked his friend. "Let us have no nonsense. Given now I feel sure that Carriston is misled by some chance resemblance."

"Devise a bit, old chap," I said.

"Well, whether or not, we needn't do foolish things. We must go and get information and get a search warrant, and the assistance of the police. The truth is, Richard," he continued, turning to me, "we have reason to believe, or I should say Carriston said in his fancy that a friend of his has for some time been kept in bondage by the man whom you say you recognized."

"Likely enough," I said. "He looked wild enough for anything up to now."

"Anyway," said Brand, "we must do everything according to law."

"Law? I want no law," answered Carriston. "I have found her as I knew I should find her. I shall simply fetch her, and at once. You can come with me or stay here, as you like, doctor, but I am afraid I must trouble your friend to drive me somewhere near the place he speaks of."

Possessing an adventure and great fun—moreover, not unmoved by thoughts of revenge—I placed myself entirely at Carriston's disposal. He expressed his gratitude and suggested that we should start at once. In a few minutes we were ready and mounted the dog cart. Brand after grumbling loudly at the whole proceeding, finished up by following us, and installing himself in the back seat. Carriston placed a parcel he carried inside the cart, and away we went.

It was now nearly dark, and raining very heavily. I had my lamps lighted, so we got along without much difficulty. The roads were deep with mud, but by this time the snow had been pretty nearly washed away from everywhere. I don't make a mistake in a road twice, so in due course we reached the scene of my upset. Here I drew up.

"The house lies about five hundred yards up the lane," I told Carriston, "we had better get out here."

"What about the horse?" asked Brand.

"No chance of any one passing this way on such a night as this, so let us put out the lamps and use him up somewhere."

We did so, then struggled on afoot until we saw the gleam of light which had been so welcome to me two nights before.

It was about as dark as pitch; but, guided by the light, we went on until we stood in front of the house, where a turf bank and a dry hedge hid us from sight, although on such a night we had little fear of our presence being discovered.

"What do you mean to do now?" asked Brand, in a discontented whisper. "You can't break into the house."

Carriston said nothing for a minute, then I felt him place his hand on my shoulder.

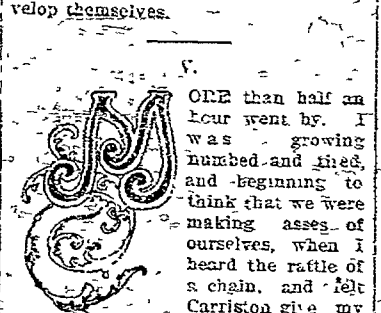

"Are there any horses, any cows about the place?" he asked.

I told him I thought that my surly friend rejoiced in the possession of a horse and cow.

"Very well. Then we must wait. He'll come out to see them before he goes to bed," said Carriston, as he cided as a general giving orders just before a battle.

I could not see how Brand expressed his feelings upon hearing this order from our "commander-in-chief." I shrugged my shoulders, and, if I said nothing, I thought a deal. The present situation was all very well for a strongly interested party like Carriston, but he could scarcely expect others to relish the prospect of waiting, it might be for hours, under that comfortless hedge. We were all wet to the skin, and, although I was extremely anxious to see the end of the expedition, and find peculiar justice meted out to my late host, Carriston's Fabian tactics lacked the excitement I longed for. Brand, in spite of his disapproval of the whole course of action, was better off than I was. As a doctor, he must have felt sure that, provided he could survive the exposure, he would secure two fresh patients. However, we made no protest, but waited for events to develop themselves.

More than half an hour went by. I was growing humbled and tired, and beginning to think that we were making asses of ourselves, when I heard the rattle of a chain, and felt Carriston give my arm a warning touch. No doubt my late host had made sure that his new door fastenings were equal to a stranger test than that to which I had subjected the former ones, so we were wise in not attempting to carry his castle by force.

The door opened and closed again. I saw the feeble glimmer of a lantern moving toward the outhouse in which my horse had been stabled. I heard a slight rustling in the hedge, and, stretching out my arm, found that Carriston had left my side. In the absence of any command from him I did not follow, but resumed the old occupation—waiting.

In a few minutes the light of the lantern reappeared, the bearer stood on the threshold of the house, while I wondered what Carriston was doing. Just as the door was opened for the door's readmittance, a dark figure sprang upon him. I heard a fierce oath and a cry of surprise, then the lantern flew out of the man's hand, and he and his assailant tumbled struggling through the narrow doorway.

"Hurrah! the door is won anyway!" I shouted as, followed closely by the doctor, I jumped over the hedge and rushed to the scene of the fray.

Although Carriston's well conceived attack was so vigorous and unexpected that the man went down under it, although our leader utilized the advantage he had gained in a proper and laudable manner, by bumping that thick bullet head as violently as he could against the floor on which it lay, I doubt if, after all he could have done his work alone. The countryman was a muscular brute and Carriston but a struggling, however, our arrival speedily settled the question.

"Bind him!" ordered Carriston. "There is cord in my pocket." He appeared to have come quite prepared for contingencies. While Carriston still embraced his prostrate foe, and Brand, to facilitate matters knelt on his shoulder, sat on his head or did something else useful, I drew out from the first pocket I tried a nice length of half-inch line, and had the immense satisfaction of trussing up my scowling friend in a most workmanlike manner. He must have felt those turns on his wrist for days afterward. Yet when we were at last at liberty to rise and leave him lying helpless on his kitchen floor, I considered I exercised great self-denial in not bestowing a few kicks upon him, as he swore at us in his broadest vernacular in a way which under the circumstances, was no doubt a comfort to him.

We scarcely noticed the man's wife while we rendered her husband helpless. As we entered she attempted to fly out, but Brand, with the promptitude which I am glad to record, intercepted her closed the door, turned and pocketed the key. After that the woman sat on the floor and rocked herself to and fro.

For some moments while recovering his breath, Carriston stood and positively glared at his prostrate foe. At last he found words.

"Where is she? Where is the key, you bound?" he thundered out, stooping over the fellow and shaking him with a violence which did my heart good. As he received no answer save the unrecordable expressions above mentioned, we untied the wretches' pockets and searched those greasy receptacles. Among the usual litter we did certainly find a key. Carriston snatched at it, and shouting "Made him! Machine!" came rushing out of the room like a maniac, leaving Brand and me to keep guard over our prisoners.

I filled a pipe, lit it, and then came back to my fallen foe.

"I say old chap," I said, stirring him gently with the toe of my boot, "this will be a lesson to you. Remember, I told you that Carriston was nothing."

If you had given the Christian bed accommodation instead of making me wear out my poor bones on that infernal chair, you could have jogged

With right good will I did—as the doctor suggested.

Just then Carriston returned. I don't want to raise home tempests, yet I must say he was accompanied by the most beautiful creature my eyes have ever lighted upon. True, she was pale as a lily—looked thin and delicate, and her face bore traces of anxiety and suffering—but for all that she was beautiful—too beautiful for this world. I thought, as I looked at her. She was clinging in a half-frightened, half-confiding way to Carriston, and he—happy fellow—regardless of our presence, was showering down kisses on her sweet-pale face. Confound it! I grow quite romantic as I recall the sight of those lovers.

A most curious young man, that Carriston. He came to us, the lovely girl on his arm, without showing a trace of his recent excitement.

"Let us go home," he said, as calmly as if he had been taking a quiet evening drive. Then he turned to me.

"Do you think, Mr. Fenton, you could without much trouble get the dog cart up to the house?"

I said I would try to do so.

"But what about these people?" asked Brand.

Carriston gave them a contemptuous glance.

"Leave them alone," he said; "they are but the tools of another—him I cannot touch. Let us go."

"Yes, yes. But why not verify our suspicions while we can?"

Just like Brand! He's always wanting to verify everything.

In searching for the key we had found some papers on our prisoner. Brand examined them, and handed to Carriston an envelope which contained what appeared like banknotes.

Carriston glanced at it. "The handwriting—course, disguised," he said carelessly, "but the postmark shows whence it came. It is as I always told you. You agree with me now?"

"I am afraid I must," said Brand, humbly. "But we must do something about this man," he continued.

Hereupon Carriston turned to our prisoner. "Listen, you villain," he said. "I will let you go scot-free if you breathe no word of this to your employer for the next fortnight. If he learns from you what has happened before that time, I swear you shall go to penal servitude. Which do you choose?"

I pulled out the gag, and it is needless to say when the fellow chose.

"Then I went off and recovered the horse and cart. I relighted the lamps, and with some difficulty got the dog cart up to the house. Carriston must have exactly anticipated the events of the night. The parcel he had brought with him contained a bonnet and a thick warm cloak. His Leatuff friend was equipped with these, then, leaving the woman of the house to untie her husband at her leisure and pleasure, away we started, the doctor sitting by me, Carriston and the lady behind."

We just managed to catch the last train from C—. Not feeling sure as to what form inquiries might take tomorrow, I thought it better to go up to town with my friends, so, as we passed through Midcombe, I stopped, paid my bill, and gave instructions for my luggage to be forwarded to me. By six o'clock the next morning we were all in London.

Turning Diamonds Into Graphite.

Elementary chemistry teaches us that, as far as the nature of the substance composing them is concerned, there is almost no difference between a brilliant white diamond and the black graphite forming the core of a lead-pencil. Both are simply forms of carbon, and if we could readily turn one into the other, the diamond would cease to rank as the king of gems. In fact, very minute diamonds have recently been made in this way by Monsieur Moissan, the French chemist. Graphite can be dissolved in molten iron, and when the iron cools the graphite crystallizes. By performing this operation in a particular manner, which has heretofore been described in this column, Monsieur Moissan gets microscopic crystals, not of graphite, but of diamond. Curiously enough, now that we know how graphite can be turned into diamond, it has also been discovered that diamond can be changed into graphite. This is effected by placing a diamond in an exhausted Crookes tube. In such a tube it is believed that invisible molecules of matter are continually darting about, and these molecules produce a ceaseless bombardment on the surface of the diamond. After a time the effect becomes visible in a black stain or crust, covering the diamond. On examination this is found to be composed of graphite.

Hypnotic Influence

"Hypnotism," said the doctor, speaking in a delightful, lisp, which rendered the Anglo-Saxon words into a pseudo-experimental state of system.

"Just as I always supposed," murmured the charmingly wicked-looking of her eyes, "benefit of the doctor."

"I never heard it explained," supplemented the pale, who was a recent addition to the operative system of sharp.

"Yes," continued the doctor, "it is an artificial neurosis developed in a predisposed pseudo-sleep which is inspired by the subject under whose all knowledge of the world."

Coffee and muffins grew of hypnotic doctor thus lucidly a science that to him was as old as day, but which to the large fact the Chummary was densely dark sides being paved with explanation that were more difficult to surmount than the original proposition.

"As I said," remarked the doctor, "it is a system of sharp, as the lover of the natural blond is an effort of the will. Your will stronger than mine, you choose to shall do a certain thing, and I you passively."

"There is more than that," said the doctor, "the will is mental; hypnotism is also spiritual and physical. All forces unite to make you project yourself mentally and spiritually into wish-a-command-to-the-subject-to what you choose."

"Even to make him commit a crime?"

"Yes, the hypnotist can make subject do anything he wishes."

"Do you mean to say, doctor," asked the musician's sweetheart, "that I can send me out on the avenue after am in a hypnotic state to kill some of I dislike?"

"Your likes or dislikes would have nothing to do with it," said the doctor. "I would be the criminal, but you would be my instrument to commit a murder."

"Ah, but doctor, you could not hypnotize me," she said, with a toss of her blonde head.

"Yes, I could," answered the doctor quickly.

"Not against my will?"

"You would have nothing to do with it. If you were in another house could compel you to come to me by the force of my will."

The guests of the Chummary were startled. The fierce foreign strain of blood in the musician's veins was snowing in his face. The lovers were very dear to the family, they being the only two with a voice affair, and consequently looked upon as among the immortals. A green tinge spread over the Arcadian countenance, reflected from the lover's face.

"Gertrude," he said, furiously, "will leave here at once. This is the place for you. Your father must lead you to another home. I will not have you subjected to this—this monster power! You shall answer to me, sir, if any harm comes to this young woman."

He strode from the room in a fury. Gertrude meekly following. The Chummary had lost its lovers.

"Make him stay. Hypnotize him, doctor, dear," suggested the widow.

The doctor shrugged his shoulders. "It is the way of the world," he said, "to accept science as if it were witchcraft. Because you can kill with electricity does not prevent its use to further the best interests of mankind. If I cure by suggestion I can kill. But I must first become a criminal myself, and my hypnotic subject must also be a criminal."

"Can you really compel a subject to come to you from a distance and against the will?" asked the widow.

"Yes. But so can any one with a strong will if it is exerted according to the known laws of hypnosis."

"What are these laws?"

"Ah. That is my secret. Hypnotism is undeveloped yet, and is an unknown power. I experiment and succeed; you experiment and fail. I have stronger will power, more love for science, and I use it for healing in my profession. You say, 'Doctor, I have a pain in my elbow.' I say, 'No, and set my will to remove the pain and it is gone. I have a paralyzed patient. Now I have not made him walk yet, but I say, when I lift his arm, 'keep it there,' and he does not move it until I have made a thorough examination. When it is time I will make him walk, but I must follow him with my will until he is cured. I cannot explain it, but I feel the power. All divine healers are hypnotists."

"I know," said another member of the Chummary, "that I am hypnotized when I go to sleep. I order things sent home that I never think of buying until they are shown to me, and as soon as I leave the store I wonder why I made such purchases. Isn't that one phase of hypnosis?"

"Every sane man is a hypnotist," answered the doctor. "But as
