AN ORDER FOR A BIG BELL FOR INDIA.

The Village Council Said They had None

IN THE MATTER OF THE AMBLER MERCANTILE CO.'S PETITION

To Place Lumber Sheds Within the Fire Limits.

A New Fire Limit Ordinance Introduced.

There wasn't the usual crowd in the gallery at Monday night's council meeting, probably owing to the chilly atmosphere which for two days had paraded around on the principle streets of the village.

The important question to be considered was that in relation to the petition of the Ambler Mercantile Co. for permission to place their lumber sheds within the fire limits. Asd. Phillips for the committee to whom was referred the matter to investigate and make a report said that they had gone carefully over the matter and after taking counsel on the question they considered that the council under the existing ordinance had no option in the matter but to decline to grant the application. The petition was again taken from the table and unanimously rejected and then by another motion the Mercantile Co. was ordered to remove the building from the fire limits within 60 days.

Asd. Burgess by request introduced a new fire limit ordinance known as No.

It was similar to the old one except that it was intended to extend the limits east to Griswold avenue and west place and to take in a depth of 50 feet each side of Main street from Wing street east and each side of Center street between Griswold and Main. After some discussion it was thought that Church street was far enough east and the ordinance was finally amended to that territory. The ordinance will appear elsewhere in this issue. The limits are by the new ordinance, oriented & measured as the distance from Main reg has been reduced by 50 feet & it only extends 150 feet on Main street whereas it formerly extended to Cady street. For the present needs of the village it was considered that this survey would meet all emergencies. The new ordinance will take effect in twenty days.

THEIR SHADOWS.

ING EVENTS ARE BUSY CASTING THEM.

Tell the Great Success of the Morgan L. Wood Lecture.

"ing succeeds like success" and "indications are any criterion of great success." The YMCA lecture course will be a success. Their first one was ruined by the weather and a speaker, neither of which of course is in any way responsible.

The music is to be furnished by Finney's well known Detroit society orchestra of seven pieces. This part of the program will be especially pleasing and spectators who do not care to dance will enjoy it as a musical concert of superior order. Spectators will be charged fifteen cents each which of course includes supper.

The lunch to be served will be a real dainty one but at the same time will be very sumptuous and toothsome. It will be served by the same eight ladies who assisted upon the former occasion. The beauty of this part of the arrangement is that there will be no limit to the number of times the gentlemen may feed—providing, to be sure, that some nice young lady invites them to do so.

Of course it is understood that no one can be admitted to the ball room without an invitation and after being admitted it is further understood, so The Record presumes, that the gentlemen will take "beak seats," become "wall flowers" without a murmur if necessity demands it, and lastly not run up and down the hall or wander promiscuously around it unless under the careful escort of a lady.

AN ORDER FOR A BIG BELL FOR INDIA.

The American Bell Foundry Company to the Front.

The organs of the Girls' College in Lucknow, India wanted to buy a bell for their school. The American Bell Foundry Co. of this place heard of it and R. F. Discreus, manager of their sales, was sent to Moretta by Messrs. Beal & Daniels, who are marketing the output of the Bell Co.'s goods where one of the mission board resides. The outcome of Mr. Discreus' trip was the bringing home of an order for one of their 45 inch steel alloy bells. The bell will weigh 2,000 lbs., and will cost about $200. It will be shipped within two or three weeks.

So far there is but one bell in the whole of India and that as well as this second one was furnished by the American Foundry of this place.

THE BIG LEAP

YEAR PARTY IS ON AT THE PRINCE'S RINK TONIGHT.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE UNIQUE OCCASION.

Pinney's Orchestra of Detroit to furnish the Music.

The Ladies Will Fairly Outdo Themselves As Entertainers.

The much talked of and unique leap year party given by the G & L Club on New Year's night and the still fresh remembrance of that enjoyable occasion in the minds of all the participants is about all the introduction necessary for their second one, which is given tonight in Princess' rink. The one this evening however, if such a thing is possible, will be grander and more enjoyable than any previous occasion ever held in the village.

The decorations are all complete and intermingled with the red, pink, blue and yellow bunting will be the stars and stripes tastily draped about the pictures of Washington and other scenes incident to those early historic days which are so appropriate to be displayed upon such occasions—the birthday of the father of our country.

This work—the driving of nails, the climbing of step ladders, the hanging of pictures and draperies—is all the work of the ladies and they certainly are to be congratulated for their skill as well as the absence, so far as known at least, of bruised fingers or falls from high ladders.

The men's social at Milford was a success, netting thirty-five dollars to the brave fellows. It is whispered that several servants have been discharged from families where the wives can't cook, and Dame Nature boldly asserts that a number of our Northville girls have begun periodical visits to Milford with a view to securing similar prizes for such labor here. The social was a dangerous undertaking right in the face of leap year and a servant girl famine.

There are a hundred houses being built in Delray and a promise of a duplicate in the spring.

Holly people are bound to get to the front in some way. Arthur Hayes of that place is in jail charged with highway robbery.

Of course he carries curdy milk—poor babies!!!

A queer state of affairs now exists at the Detroit house of correction. You can't get in if you are out and if you are in you cannot get out. Small-pox quarantine.

Stores, hotels and residences in Milford are mostly illuminated by electricity. R. C. Verkes, formerly of this place, is among those who recently lighted their homes.

J. D. Rockfellow, the standard oil philanthropist, has just made one of their 45 inch steel alloy bells. The bell will weigh 2,000 lbs., and will cost about $200. It will be shipped within two or three weeks.

We will bear this one week end if the Courier doesn't retract there'll be trouble.

A lady teacher in one of our public schools, in trying to explain the word "slowly," illustrated it by walking across the floor. When she asked the class to tell how she walked she nearly faltered when a boy at the foot of the class shouted, "Slow-legged, m'm!"—Grand Lodge Republican.

Evidently she was a new woman.

Midan is the home of a tough Capo (Howard), being the shirblan cognomen who fell from a load of logs, doubled up like a jack knife, let a wheel run over his hand and arm and came off the mule with only one bone broken. He must have more grit in his composition than here in life bones.

A Ludington (Mich.) man owns a jackass which brays so much louder than a fog horn that several vessels were misled by it in making the harbor and were nearly wrecked. The animal was complained of and its owner had to send it into the interior.

Citizens of Karmington and vicinity who have investigated say that Mike Dougherty has this famous animal stabled in the interior of his Carfew Horn.

THE GLORIOUS HERITAGE OF EVERY CHRISTIAN.

Golden Text: "Put Ye in the Sickle, for the Harvest Is Ripe." — Joel, iii, 13. — Prayers and Song the Bulwarks of the Christian Religion.

THE sword has been poetized and the world has celebrated the sword of Bolivar, the sword of Cortez, and the sword of Lafayette. The pen has been properly eulogized, and the world has celebrated the pen of Addison, the pen of Southey, and the pen of Irving. The painter's pencil has been honored, and the world has celebrated the pencil of Murillo, the pencil of Rubens, and the pencil of Bierstadt. The sculptor's chisel has come in for high eulogium, and the world has celebrated Chantrey's chisel, and Crawford's chisel, and Greenough's chisel. But there is one instrument about which I sing the first psalm, that was ever sung—the sickle, the sickle of the Bible, the sickle that has reaped the harvest of many centuries. Sharp and bent into a semi-circle, and glittering, this reaping hook, no longer than your arm, has furnished the bread for thousands of years. Its success has produced the wealth of nations. It has had more to do with the world's progress than sword, and pen, and pencil, and chisel, all put together. Christ puts the sickle into exquisite semiconic simile, and you see that instrument flash all up and down the Apocalypse as St. John swings it, while through Joel in my text God commands the people, as through his servants now he commands them—"Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe."

English liberals are said to be after Lord Salisbury's scalp. If one can judge from photographs, they will have need to chalk their fingers.

New York's financial condition can be no bad as has been supposed. She is increasing weekly large quantities of ore in Canada.

Eliza Lockwood has been disbursed charging too large a fee. This, however, is a contingency which many a man lawyer need not worry about.

W. C. Totten of New Haven has issued a calendar good for 67,718,350 years. It is said to have a very simple key, and is evolved on a cycle of 1,600,000 years.

The thoughtful student of current events can scarcely doubt that England, wedged by the designing gods, fatuously pursuing her land grab policy to her own destruction. For comes the astounding revelation that has slipped off the top of Minerva. No nation that had not grown less to the degree of irresponsibility could take liberties with the bound of the state of Knute Nelson, Iglesias, Douglass and Jim Hill. Any one these gentlemen should be sufficient a word the integrity of a state. That assault was made upon the commonwealth which contains all three of them shows that the assailant is simply mad.

A writer in Harper's Weekly states that Cripple Creek, Colo., embraces an area with a radius of not more than three miles. It contains, at told, nearly eight or ten square miles of gold at the outside would cover seven hundred full claims. There would be a probability of getting veins running near the working. There are in the district so far, twelve thousand gold claims, from which one may judge the probable value of most of them. Of these twelve thousand claims, of course the many are merely fractional. About thirteen hundred are patented and have title established, but only two hundred are shipping ore. In other words, there are ten thousand odd claims in the district that so far as developed are practically worth nothing at all."

There is no other country in which forest products are so lavishly used as in the United States. On the other hand, no other country was originally so well supplied with forest growth. The census returns show that the per capita consumption of lumber in this country has increased for every decade since 1850 at the rate of from 20 to 25 per cent. The United States consumes of forest products for each inhabitant twice that consumed in Russia, ten times that of Great Britain, four times that of France, five times that of Germany, and eight times that of Italy. Never mind what our forest resources are, we are using them up so rapidly that the next generation will find little growth as scarce in the States as in Europe, and costing fully as high a price. The option of saw logs and pulp wood ahead of their growth, though slow and spout growth are developing faster than the cutting down.

The San Francisco Chronicle has special information from San Diego as to important railway building enterprises on the west coast of Mexico, from which the conclusion is drawn that another Central Railway is about to be extended to a Pacific port, either Mazatlan or San Blas, probably the former. The country between Guadalajara and San Blas is full of tremendous barrancas, which have thus far defied the highest engineering skill, and railroad builders, after attempting repeated surveys, have given up the task, calling that strip of country the roughest in North America. The present plan is, therefore, to avoid construction and work northward from Tepic. The Central, after passing Tepic, will then extend its line northwardly to connect with the International, which is already at work on this line, opening up a rich preached in pulpits and on Sabbath days. We must go back into our stores, our shops, our banking-houses, our law-offices, and the streets, and everywhere preach Christ. We stand in our pulpits for two hours on the Sabbath and command Christ to the people, but there are 168 hours in the week, and what are the two hours on the Sabbath against the 166? Oh, there comes down the ordination of God this day, upon all the people, men who toil with head and hand and foot, the ordinand comes upon all merchants, upon all mechanics, upon all tollers, and God says to you as he says to me: "Go, teach all nations; He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." Mighty Gospel, let the whole earth hear it! The story of Christ is to regenerate the nations, it is to eradicate all wrong, it is to turn the earth into a paradise. An old artist painted the Lord's Supper, and he wanted the chief attention directed to the face of Christ. When he invited his friends in to criticize the picture, they said, "The chalice more than they did" the face, and the old artist said, "This picture is a failure" and he dashed out the picture of the cups, and said: "I shall have nothing to detract from the face of the Lord; Christ is the all of this."

Another powerful sickle for the reaping of this harvest is Christian song. I know in many churches the whole work is delegated to a few people standing in the organ-loft, but my friends, as others, cannot sing for us, we cannot delegate to others the work of singing for us. While a few drilled artists shall take the chants and execute the more skillful music, when the hymn is given out let them be jubilant and thousands of voices uniting in the acclamation. On the way to grandeur that never cease and glories that never die, let us sing. At the battle of Lucifer, a general came to the King and said: "Those soldiers are singing as they are going into battle. Shall I stop them?" "No," said the King, "let me that can sing like that continue." Oh, the power of Christian song! When I argue here you may argue back. The argument you make against religion may be more skillful than the argument I make in behalf of religion. But who can stand before the power of some uplifted song like that which we sometimes sing?

Shout, Lord, O Lord, forgive! Let a repeating psalm! — And is not the merciful liver and free? Not a sinner finds in thee? Another mighty sickle for the reaping of the G-2 per diem is prayer. What does God do with our prayers? Does he go on the battlements of heaven and throw them off? No. What do you do with faith, given you by these who love you very much? You keep them with great bitterness. And do you suppose God will treat our prayers, offered in the moments of love of heart and scatter them to the winds? Oh, no! He will answer them all in some way. Oh, what a mighty living prayer is! It is not a long argument of "John," and "John" and "for ever and ever, Amen." It is a breathing of the heart into the heart of God, Oh, what a mighty living prayer is! I wish with it reached up to the clouds and shook down the showers. With John Knotch, Scotland. With Martin Luther, the earth. As I write Philipp Melanchthon is sick unto death, as among supposed Martin Luther came in and said: "I'd do, we can't spare you." Oh, said he, "Martin, you must let me go. I am tired of persecution and tired of life. I want to go to be with my God." "No," said Martin Luther, "you shall not go, you must take this food and then I will pray for you." "No, Martin," said Melanchthon, "I must let me go." Martin Luther said: "You take the fool or I will excommunicate you." He took the food and Martin Luther knelt down and prayed as only he could pray and condescended to him with great bitterness. And do you suppose God will treat our prayers, offered in the moments of love of heart and scatter them to the winds? Oh, no! He will answer them all in some way. Oh, what a mighty living prayer is!

A First Journal gives one excellent way in which we may advance Christ's kingdom, as follows:

If your friends know that you love them. Do not keep abomination boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill your lives with sweetest spiritual delight, improving words while their hearts can bear them. The things you mean to say when they are gone to us, before they go to the grave, say means to send for their coffin so as to brighten their homes before they leave them.

If my friends have abomination boxes full of perfumes of spiritual life and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary days and open them that I may be refreshed and cheered, that while I need them, I would rather have a bare coffin without a flower, and funeral without an eulogy, than life without the sweeters of love and sympathy. Let us learn to annoy our friends beforehand for funeral. Post mortem kindnesses do not cheer the burdened spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance over the weary days of our lives.

Christian Endeavor Crumbs. Not content with doing remarkable evangelistic work among the brethren of their own town and neighborhood, the Governors of Nellore, India, talk of sending a foreign missionary committee to their working forces. They want to have a share in mission work outside of India.

Only four persons in Lamar, Col., would take the pledge given the Pleasant Valley Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was organized in 1862. Since that time, however, the society has increased, and has supplied the only religious service in the place, except the Sunday school. Out of this society a church has now grown.

The missionary spirit that is abroad in Christian Endeavor was manifested strikingly at a joyous service held by a Christian Endeavor Society at St. Thomas, Ont. These three questions were asked at the consecration meeting. 1. "How many would be willing, if they knew it to be the Lord's will, to go to a foreign mission field?"

"How many would like to go?" 3. "How many expect to go?" Notice had been given four weeks in advance that these questions would be asked of the eighteen active members, thirty-five answered affirmatively to the first question, twenty to the second and nine to the third.

Three prize banners will be awarded at the Washington convention to three Christian Endeavor local unions. The first banner will go to the union making the best showing in the way of definite and practical Christian citizenship work. The second will be awarded to the local union having the largest number of individual members who give not less than one-tenth of their income to God. The third, or fellowship banner, will be secured by the union organizing the largest number of new Christian Endeavor societies of any kind. Chicago, Cleveland, and Philadelphia, respectively, secured these honors at the Boston convention. Local unions should send detailed reports of their work to Secretary Baer before June 15.

Oh, this is a mighty Gospel! It captured not only John the lamb, but Paul the lion. Men may gnash their teeth at it, and clutch their fists, but it is the power of God and the wisdom of God that is going to save you. You are going to be among the saving ones.

NEAR TO BARBARISM.

HALF CIVILIZED PEOPLE IN THE CATSKILLS.

Little Known of Religion or the Laws of Society—Strange Little Hamlet in Ulster County Which Has Never Seen a Train or Steamboat.

NA LITTLE settlement, back of Keeneville, away up in the extreme northeastern part of Ulster County, in the wildest region of the Catskill Mountains, live a people whose condition borders close on barbarism. Most of them have never seen a railway train, a steamboat, the world outside of their immediate settlement being a sealed book. Wives are traded as frequently and with as little ceremony as horses, and religion is an unknown quantity.

Marriages are of the common-law type, and divorces are secured without appeals to the courts.

Children born in this locality are brought up in this state of semi-barbarism. There are no educational advantages, except those of a district school, some miles distant, which is open for a couple of months only during the winter.

Boys learn to chew and smoke tobacco at an age when other boys have not long discarded ruffles. They learn to use the name of God only as catchwords.

The reading is confined to the newspaper that comes to the schoolmaster occasionally, when he happens to be in the settlement. It is to him that the inhabitants look for some stray bits of news regarding the great world of which they have heard so little. Satisfied with drudgery and toil and the meagre living they get from their small farms, they never think of venturing over the mountain tops and descending to the valley where the railway trains would carry them to civilization.

Perhaps the one ray of sunlight that comes into the lives of these poor people is the visit of the country schoolmaster, when the district school is blessed by his presence. It is the custom in this country, the schoolmaster "boards round," that is, he visits at different periods of his school term among the various families of his district. Of course he is given a right royal welcome, and although the fare is of the poorest and rudest kind, yet strict horomony is given him.

After the evening meal, the host hands his guest a well worn corn-pipe, and, taking one himself, prepares to enjoy his evening smoke. The boys of the family if there be any, also reach for their pipes, and lighting them, smoke with the experience of veterans.

It would be simple charity to send missions up to try and reform these rough and untutored men and women among the mountain peaks of the Catskills.

Not the kind of a brother.

Although a sailor cab "Jockey" a vanguard gracefully, he is anything but impressive in that sense on horseback. Yet one of the first things that a man's wife looks for when he gets on shore with liberty-money in his pocket is a litter stable, where he can mount the hurricane deck of an animal.

During the time that one of our vessels was at anchor off New York liberty was given, and two of the seamen agreed to spend their limited amount of money on horseflesh. One of them negotiated with the hirer, and soon appeared on the street, perched in the saddle. When out of sight of the stable keeper, Jack's companion hove alongside and mounted behind his mate. In this fashion they sailed down Main street until the square was reached where Commodore Perry's statue is placed.

"I say, Bill," cried the sailor in the saddle, "put your helm aport, and let's go up and have a look at the statu-

"All right, my boy," answered Bill. Then he reached back of him, caught the horse's tail, pulled it hard around on his left, and availed de-lopments. After a minute he sung out:

"Something's the matter with the steering-gear. Jack she won't mind the burdened spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance over the weary days of our lives.

PRESIDENT KRUGER, has served his country as chief executive for seven years, this being his second term in office. He was a farmer prior to his election as have been all of the presidents of that tight little republic. Lawyers, bankers and speculators are turned from public office in that country. The per capita wealth is greater than that of any country in the world. President Kruger was born in Peninsularia in 1820.

A newspaper on fire.

A novelty in journalistic enterprise comes from Spain. It is a weekly illustrated "paper" printed on linen. The journal is appropriately entitled La Tela Cortada, and is sold at 2½ pence. The price is modest enough in view of the peculiar advantages which are offered to subscribers. From an article on "Hygiene and Journalism" we learn that the reader has but to send his copy to the laundry after perusal in order to transform it into a superb rocket handkerchief. It will, moreover, be useful for dusting one's hat, wiping off a tear, making one's bedsheet, taking part in popular demonstrations and preserving diplomatic documents.

Although its special applicability to the last-named purpose is not very clear, the Tela Cortada must be credited with considerable originality in its aim of extending the sphere of usefulness of the press.

"Government by the People."

The movement toward the municipalization of quasi-public works seems to be spreading. Before the Boston city council is a petition from the Eastern Trade association for the establishment of gas and electric light plants in that section of the city to be maintained by the municipality. It is supported by many prominent citizens who think the experiment worth trying.

Silvers in the Arts.

The amount of silver used in the arts in this country has at last exceeded that of gold. The director of the mint gives the amount of silver thus used in 1894 as $1,283,048 and the amount of gold at $1,653,631 in the same year. France used in the arts $11,932,806

COPPER-BOTTOMED SHIPS.

New Process for Increasing the Hulls of Vessels to Guard Against Barnacles.

(From the Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Considering the fact that the growth of barnacles and other animals and vegetable matter below the water line of ships not plated with copper, will sometimes attain the thickness of two or more inches, weighing as much as twenty-three tons, and necessitating a cost for docking and cleaning of $10,000 to $12,000, the desirability of a cheap and expeditious method of coppering a ship's bottom is evident. Some time ago it was proposed to carry out this process electrolytically, but the idea was not received without criticism. It has, however, been so persistently followed up by its originator that a plant for the deposition of copper on ships plates by an electrolytic method is now in actual operation. The coating deposited adheres so firmly as to make its removal very difficult; in fact, it is claimed that the copper becomes practically a part of the steel plate when the process is complete.

The copper is applied to the completed and hot to the separate plates, and hence existing vessels may take advantage of this method to save dockage. The possibilities of the process are not confined to steel vessels; for wooden vessels may be coppered by this method if their sides are first treated with plumbeous. To prepare the sides of a steel vessel for receiving its coat of copper, shallow baths, averaging sixty-six square feet, rectangular in shape, and open on one side, are made water tight by a coating of tar, and are provided on their edges with heavy soft rubber gaskets.

In the bottom of the bath are iron pipes, through which the electricity is circulated. The bath is held up against the side of the vessel by poles. It is first filled with a sulphuric mixture composed of dilute sulphuric acid, and this remains in contact with the plates about twelve hours, after which it is removed, and the plate is scoured with sand and soda. A sulphate bath were then applied, a coating would be deposited, but such coating, owing to the free acid of the mixture would readily peel off. To avoid this a preliminary coating is deposited by the use of cyanide instead of sulphate of copper. Copper electrodes are placed in the bath, and proper connection is made with the dynamo which furnishes the electro-volting current. The sulphate bath is applied for forty-eight hours, and when the process is complete, a coating of three thirty-second to one-eighth of an inch is deposited over the whole surface. The process is said to save its cost many times over, besides making great economy of time possible.

TRADE MARK.

A novelty in journalistic enterprise comes from Spain. It is a weekly illustrated "paper" printed on linen. The journal is appropriately entitled La Tela Cortada, and is sold at 2½ pence.

The price is modest enough in view of the peculiar advantages which are offered to subscribers. From an article on "Hygiene and Journalism" we learn that the reader has but to send his copy to the laundry after perusal in order to transform it into a superb rocket handkerchief.

It will, moreover, be useful for dusting one's hat, wiping off a tear, making one's bedsheet, taking part in popular demonstrations and preserving diplomatic documents.

Although its special applicability to the last-named purpose is not very clear, the Tela Cort

AT VALLEY FORGE.

VALLEY Forge is a rough piece of ground on the banks of the Schuylkill, twenty-one miles from Philadelphia, and six from the nearest large town. As more land, it is not worth much. But if the Pass of Thermopylae is classic ground, Valley Forge is classic. If there is one spot on this continent more fit than any other for a final and sufficient monument to the man and to the men of the American Revolution, it is Valley Forge. I do not refer merely to the hunger, thirst and cold endured there by eleven thousand soldiers, after an exhausting campaign in the field. The "worst of all misery was over in six weeks. The suffering was acute while it lasted, but it was followed soon by comparative abundance, then, by the cheering news of the French alliance; then, by the flight of the enemy from Philadelphia and the swift pursuit of them by Gen. Washington. What the troops endured there would alone make the place forever interesting to posterity. But Valley Forge means more than that. It witnessed some of the most important and striking scenes in the war. It was there, too, through the constancy and tireless energy of the commander-in-chief, that the cause was saved and victory made possible. The selection of the ground was itself a piece of notable generalship, as daring as it was wise. The occupation of Philadelphia by the British had filled every other town of Pennsylvania with refugees. The middle of December had passed before the army had repassed the last demonstration of the British, and afforded the American commander breathing time to consider the question of his winter quarters. Then he said, in substance, to the troops: Since there is no town for us to retire to, duty, from the major-generals to the drummers; all the tools were divided; each regiment had its ground assigned at the streets and intervals were marked out, and when the work was begun the valley was alive with builders.

Each colonel divided his regiment into parties of twelve, gave them the shape of axes and shovels, and let them know that they were building a home for themselves. A cabin was to be occupied by twelve men. Gen. Washington added the stimulus of a reward to the party that should build the best hut. An order of the day had this interesting passage:

"As an encouragement to industry and art, the general promises to reward the party in each regiment which finishes its hut in the quickest and most economical manner with twelve dollars. And as there is reason to believe that boards for covering the huts may be found scarce and difficult to be got, he offers one hundred dollars to any officer or soldier who, in the opinion of three gentlemen that shall stand as judges, shall exhibit some other covering that may be cheaper and more easily made, and will in every respect answer the end."

The huts were fourteen feet by fifteen, and six and a half feet high. The officers' huts were ranged in a line behind those of the soldiers, and only generals were seated in the convenience of having a whole house to themselves. Gen. Washington inhabited a cabin of one room until later in the season, when a second was added for the accommodation of Mrs. Washington. He said, in another order of the day, that "the general himself will share in the hardships and put up with every inconvenience."

It does not appear that any one invented a better roofing than slabs, nor has any one recorded what company of soldiers won the twelve-dollar prize.

We only know that the cabin-building was begun early in the morning of December 19, and that most of the army would have eaten their Christmas dinner in their cabins if there had been any Christmas dinner to eat. It was just then that the worst of the starving time began. While the men were building their cabin city they lived chiefly upon cakes made of flour and water, and there was a lamentable scarcity of all the most necessary supplies—shoes, clothes, blankets and straw. Nothing saved the army from dissolution but the fiery remonstrances and energetic action of the commander-in-chief. There is preserved at Philadelphia a hand-bill issued by him while the army was building its huts. In this he notified the farmers to thresh out their grain with all convenient speed, on pain of having the sheaves seized by the commissioners and paid for at the price of straw. The conduct of the commander during these agonizing weeks can only be estimated aright by persons familiarly acquainted with the circumstances. No man ever gave a higher example either of fortitude or wisdom, and it was directly through the exercise of those virtues by him that the army was saved. While the men were busy building, news was brought to the camp that a force of the enemy was approaching. The troops were in such dire need of food and shoes that they were unable to stir. There was not a pound of meat in the camp, and not a ration of flour per man. It was while he was contending with such difficulties as these that the intrigues to supplant the general was most active and the clamor loudest for a winter campaign.

"I can assure those gentlemen," wrote the general, "that it is a much easier and less distressing thing to draw remonstrances in a comfortable room, by a good fireside, than to occupy a cold, bleak hill, and sleep under frost and snow without clothes or blankets."

Let us BY FORCE TO-DAY, close to a town for ourselves, here, curtailing, limiting his range, paralyzing supplies, protecting us by land holding ourselves against the aggressives as soon as he be in the city, in which he now vainly besieged. He left his hill, wife, a deep cleft in a of it empty stream at the bottom. There was no the Schuylkill. human use exit this valley for that densely cov'd primeval forest rows of water that, and the streams were lost. But Washy and through and skilled in wood himself well knew most of whom commanded soldiers log-cabins. wrote for him. If I were asked to mention the finest exhibition that a commander has ever given of great qualities, both of heart and mind, I should answer: Washington at Valley Forge. One unexpected consolation that he enjoyed at this period was the affectionate enthusiasm of Lafayette, then just recovering from his wound received at Brandywine. The young and ardent Frenchman, in his letters to his wife and family, gives the warmest expression to his love and admiration. It speaks of Washington as a man exquisitely "made for" the work he was doing, he alone having the patience and tact to conciliate the discordant elements.

"Every day," wrote the Marquis, "I admire more the beauty of his character and of his soul. Jealous envious were to turn his reputation, but his name, will be revered in all ages by every one who loves liberty and humanity."

Many such passages, written in one of the log-houses of Valley Forge, festos, in the family letters, of the youthful enthusiast. In such circumstances, the American army was reconstructed, reinforced, becomingly, and well drilled and at last abundantly supplied, while the English were circumstanced as closely that it required two regiments to escort a foraging party, if it went more than two miles into the country. Valley Forge it was that rendered the possession of Philadelphia a trap instead of a capture. June 18, 1778, Gen. Washington received information that the British had secretly and suddenly evacuated Philadelphia. He was in such perfect readiness for the news, that, within an hour, six brigades were on the march for the Delaware river. The next day, he himself joined the advance. Ten days after the first troops left their cabin in Pennsylvania, he fought the battle of Monmouth, which turned their retreat into a flight and shut them up in New York. If neither congress nor Pennsylvania shows an inclination to possess the scene of so many memorable events, then let some patriotic capitalist convert it into a summer resort, quietly I can not last long." All tired except Dr. Craik and myself. The general continued uneasy and restless, but without complaining, frequently asking what hour it was.

Further remedies were tried at about midnight in the evening. He took what ever was offered him, did what was desired by the physicians, and never uttered a sign of complaint. About 10 o'clock he made several attempts to speak to me before he could effect it.

At length he said, "I am just going;

have me decently buried and do not let my body be put into the vault in less than three days after I am dead."

Washington's Firmness.

Washington belongs, as a soldier, not with the brilliant military geniuses, like Marlborough, Frederick and Napoleon, but with the safe and solid commanders like Wellington, Scott and Grant. He was not quick to comprehend a situation or devise his enemy's intention, and was sometimes a little puzzled, as when Howe sailed from Staten Island and ascended the Chesapeake, or on the field of Brandywine, he was never rash, and no general ever completely surprised him. We can only surmise what he would have done with larger opportunities on the great fields of action in European warfare. I believe that under such circumstances he would have been a great commander of the solid, safe and enduring order. His firmness, persistence and tenacity have rarely been exceeded.

Washington's Greatest Glory.

The transcendent glory of Washington as a soldier is that when the war was ended he surrendered his victories and stainless sword to the civil authority. For eight long years he had carried that great trust without salary, or pecuniary compensation of any kind, never but once seeing his beloved Mount Vernon. A pliant army, smarting under grievances, would have made him king or dictator. He crushed the very suggestion with indignant rebuke. Cromwell and Napoleon, after successful revolutions, had held on to power. There is hardly another case in history where, under like circumstances, power has been voluntarily surrendered. Washington set for all successful generals, in all ages after him, a noble and immortal example; when he sought out that weak and migratory congress at Annapolis and in such dignified and many words as these closed his impressive speech of resignation.

"Having now finished the work assigned me, I retire from the great theater of action, and bidding an affectionate farewell to this august body, under whose orders I have so long acted. I here offer my commission and take my leave of all the employments of public life."

Washington's Quick Intuition.

As Washington journeyed to Boston to take command of his hastily gathered and ill-disciplined army of continentals,

the news of Bunker Hill met him on the way, and when he heard of the desperate valor of that militia which had three times driven the British regulars down the bloody slope, he exclaimed that the cause was safe. It was the quick intuition of a great commander. The pluck, the courage, the adur-rance, it was these he wanted to know, and upon these, under God, he could rely for ultimate victory. Yes, it was these which won at last. Won against the splendid discipline and steadfast valor even of that famous British infantry which could climb that bloody slope of Bunker Hill again, and again, and even once more, in the face of that murderous fire from those blazing patriot breastworks, that same splendid infantry upon whose earth-rooted squares on a later day, the greatest soldier of modern times dashed his once invincible cavalry and his empire to pieces. We sometimes forget in our Fourth of July felicitations and vaunting about how we made the British "red-coats run," that they did finally drive out the brave continentals and take Bunker Hill, and that it was such soldiers as these that Washington finally conquered.

It is evident that the bear of gaze on his shadow.

There is considerable sickness about town these days. Grip is the prevailing disease.

"Great trials run in the same channel." The following is from the South Lyon "Excelsior" and is just what we were about to remark for the benefit of Northville: "The time is at hand when thoughts should be turned to the selection of the proper men for office for the approaching village election. Be ready to nominate good men and see that that stamp will be elected."

The magnetic man of Detroit, Rev. Morgan Wood, second number YMCA course at the Methodist church next Wednesday night. Everybody turn out. Come early—lecture begins at 7:30 sharp. Mr. Wood talks to immense houses all over the country and hundreds were unable to obtain admission at the Detroit opera house last Sunday night! Don't miss it! No seats reserved but tickets will be on sale at the store of L. W. Hutton & Son three days previous to the lecture in order to save crowding at the door.

The talk by Dr. J. M. Swift before the Young Men's League last Sunday afternoon was one of the very best of the whole year. Notwithstanding the extreme cold weather and heavy wind the doctor was greeted by a large audience. The subject was the one assigned by the League. "The wages of sin is death," and was made peculiarly interesting by the apt illustrations used as drawn from nature and scientific investigation. The doctor is a fine speaker and never fails to interest his hearers. Mayor Hutton speaks next Sunday.

Those who are troubled with earache should make a note of this item. Almost instantaneous relief may be obtained by making a funnel of writing paper, saturating a small piece of cotton batting in chloroform, and dropping it in the funnel. Put the small end of the funnel into the ear and placing the mouth close to the other end, blow into it. The fumes of the chloroform will quickly relieve the pain, and if the head is kept covered the patient will soon be at ease. In many cases forcing tobacco smoke into the ear in the same manner will serve the same purpose.

It was from ten to fifteen degrees below zero Monday morning—according to the location of the thermometer and the fellow who saw it.

Remember Morgan L. Wood's lecture at the Methodist church next week Wednesday night. "American Nuts Cracked and Unlocked" is his subject.

The names of pupils who were not absent from school this winter term in the Henry M. White District are, Clyde Merritt, Blanche Vratenburg and Laura Wilson. Average attendance 85 per cent. Willard D. Stark is the teacher.

The Village caucuses committees should be stirring around and planning a date for a caucuscall. The time is near at hand and must be held, or not later than the first Monday in March. The committees are: Workingmen, Geo. Wagner, W. H. Brigham, W. T. Gurr, Citizens, M. A. Porter, E. K. Simonds, E. R. Thompson.

The pupils of the Northville high school are about to issue a school paper. The first appearance of the school will probably occur about March first and will be published semi-monthly thereafter.

On the sick list are Mrs. P. S. Porter, Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. W. H. Sanford and child, H. Priest, Zebina Hayes, and others. The convalescent are D. McPhail, John Sewell, "Doc" Hastings, H. F. Brown.

Here is an item found in the Record of May 17, 1879 which sounds odd at this late day but will probably only be recognized by the people of today as will one to the people of twenty years hence with the word "velocipede" changed to bicycle. "The velocipede mania has struck Northville as a permanent fixture. Those that can run a machine are at it and those who cannot are doing their best to learn."

And still another republican candidate for supervisor is mentioned. The latest one is Charles Colson one of our well known and very successful farmers. "The more the merrier." Up to date they are Messrs. Hoyt, Horton, Ambler and Colson and inasmuch as a nomination on the ticket this year is equal to an election we don't see why there should not be a good lot of opposition at the caucuses where practically the election takes place. Voters should bear this in mind.

"IN HIS NAME"

What the Circle, King's Daughters of Northville Did Last year.

In a very quiet and inconspicuous way the Mizpah Circle of King's Daughters has accomplished much in this first year of its life. Its members, under their energetic president, Mrs. C. H. Johnson, have distributed over two hundred garments among the needy of the village; have sent a large bundle of bandages and children's bills to the hospital in Detroit; have left thirty-two baskets of Christmas good things at as many homes; have given flowers to the sick and old to many other deserving ones. They report about seventy dollars in the treasury, and the Cook Book, from which they hope to realize a large sum in the hands of the Record Printery for printing.

At their annual election of officers last week, Mrs. C. H. Johnson was made Honorary President, and for the coming year, Miss Clara Steers was elected President; Miss Mabel Clark, Vice President; Miss Genevieve Abbott, Secretary and Miss Minnie Smith, Treasurer.
