Following from Saturday's Battle Creek Daily Journal refers to a former well known Northville lady: "Among the many special favors and attractions of yesterday's Mystic Shrine parade, we mention the sight contribution given by Mrs. A. J. Little and Mrs. E. L. Markey at Mrs. Little's home on Van Buren street. Over two hundred tastefully arranged bouquets were handed to the Mystic Shriner as they passed. The flowers were beautiful, and added in no small degree to the ornateness. A most cheerful arrangement of the courtesy extended was given later to the forty-eight of the Mystic Shriner."

Review, has legal title to the paper for

An account of the cyclone's terrible work will be found on the inside pages of this issue.

It is reported that John Euler has again deserted his family and left for parts unknown.

"Lessons from the cyclone" will be the topic Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church.

The Baccalaureate service will be delivered to the graduates in the Presbyterian church on the evening of June 7.

The many friends of Richard McGuire will be glad to know that he has been released from custody and all complaints satisfied.

The "fellows" of this burg should not miss hearing H. E. C. Daniels at the men's meeting next Sunday. A fine topic and a good talk guaranteed.

Some new and very neat delivery wagons seen upon our streets these days are McCull's bakery wagon, Webster & McPhail's and F. D. Adam's laundry wagons.

Mr. Schantz is a new merchant at Northville. He will begin business wout. Some people do not succeed in business in that place, but his friends are determined that Schantz shall.

The advertised letters at the post office this week are for:

Mr. John Tupper.

C. A. Downer, Jr.

For the purpose of purchasing a flag, the pupils in the Dewey district will hold an ice cream social at Mr. George Whipple's Friday evening, June 5th. Everybody invited.

Springwell's people are getting the correct ring to their best affairs. They purchased another new bell of the Northville Bell Foundry Co. last week for the new McMillan school just completed there.

All pensioners should take notice that under the new law all vouchers must be executed at home and they are paid by drafts until past due. Don't go to the city for your money for you cannot get it if you do. Stay home and your money will come to you.

F. D. Adams has purchased the Star Laundry of Geo. T. Bradley and moved it to his new building 117 Main Street, which was specially built for the purpose. Mr. Bradley has been retained by Mr. Adams to manage the same. Mr. Adams has also added bath rooms.

A youngster who excited a great bit of attention in the bicycle world Friday night was little Hart Osborne of Detroit. He is about eight years old and is wonderfully smart and plucky indeed. With all pound weight he went up the half-mile rods, 21 feet, setting eighth place.

The junior hop last week Friday evening was a decidedly enjoyable affair. There were about forty couples present and they included only those of our most highly respected young and middle aged people. Everything was conducted in a very decorous manner as was befitting to both the students and the occasion.

A letter is advertised in the Northville post office for Mr. Moon, in the name of a gun is a silver Moon (there's no need of "rolling on" to get that letter from the present gold administration). If he can plan so as to throw a little Moon light upon the subject he may secure the missive from the postmaster's deputy.—Adrian Press.

For the relief of the Oakland county cyclone sufferers the King's Daughters will make an effort to raise and forward some funds. They will hear the list with a liberal amount and receive subscriptions from all others who desire to contribute, and will forward the entire sum to the proper relief committee. It is unnecessary for the Record to say how worthy and needy is the call.

The F&M post road train Monday afternoon showed a dislike to leaving picturesqure Northville to such an extent that when pushed too hard towards Holly the engine bolted from the track a short distance from the depot and started back towards town again. After a delay of two hours the service of another engine with less esthetic tastes was brought into requisition to coax the would-be stayer on the track again.

On Saturday or Sunday night of last week dogs got into H. R. Holmes flock of sheep, west of town, and killed and wounded a number of the wool producers. Early Tuesday morning the dogs again visited the scenes of their former feasting and one of them, which was identified as belonging to Mr. Thompson, was captured and executed by Mr. Gaftord who lives on the farm. There is circumstantial evidence enough, it is said, against another neighbor's canine to make one more conviction sure. As a total result Mr. Holmes has eight dead sheep, ten more or less wounded, and eighteen or twenty young lambs left orphans.

Ladies fine Night Robes at Miss Boeve's for less than you can make them.

Bert Phillips is about to start a new laundry in Pleasanton. Bert is one of our popular and industrious young men and deserves a share of the public's patronage.

Mr. James Covert of 55 Dunlap street died Thursday, May 28, at 6:15 a.m. The deceased was sixty-four years six months and ten days old. An obituary notice will be printed next week. The funeral services will be held at the home at 12:30 tomorrow Saturday.

Mr. Locheart, the new owner and proprietor of the Charter fruit farm has left the Record office a fine sample basket of ripe cherries. Mr. Locheart is making some very marked improvements on this farm.

The Northville band had an invitation to play in Pleasanton tomorrow but the price was not quite satisfactory. They will act as honorary escort for the local G. A. R. post here to the cemetery in the afternoon after which they will furnish music for the ball game.

Before he accepted the chairmanship of the republican committee, D. M. Terry should have been informed that complaint is made that his beet seeds are not "sterile." In this kick some of our local gardeners appear to be in on the ground floor and if possible should be planted where these beet seeds don't show up it might make a funny harvest.

On the occasion of the memorial services the Methodist church was crowded Sunday evening to its utmost capacity. The edifice was handsomely and elaborately decorated with large U.S. flags and red, white and blue bunting. Rev. Mr. Hergenreder delivered the address and it was pronounced as one of the best ever heard in Northville.

A Northville restaurant advertised three cans of butterfly soap for 17 cents which was a big cut in price. The soap seller, who looks after pure foods, analyzed the soap, and didn't find a particle of butterflies in ten boxes! and would have arrested the dealer if the latter had not taken him out to the barn and shown him the cow that gave the butterflies. This annoyed the food commissioner, that required him to make butterfly soap, so that the butterflies couldn't be detected.—Adrian Press.

Following the frost Sunday's Free Press, the body of the man found in the river at the foot of Columbus street, was identified as that of Clinton Marion Saylor, age of 35, of 117 Main street. Yesterday afternoon two men called at Mr. Foster & Son's drug store, then driving away, one of them giving the name of Gus Lishman, and said the deceased was his father in law, and lived with him at the above number. He left his home Friday morning, saying he was going to Northville, at which place he has a daughter. The deceased came to this country about nine years ago. He had repeatedly made threats of committing suicide and on three previous occasions had attempted to carry out his threats.

The U. S. Senate has added $3,000 more to its allowance to the appropriation for the new government buildings here, making the amount $12,000 in all.

The Record wishes to say just a word to our people relative to the band. While the players are perfectly willing to furnish their experience and time gratuitously for the weekly practices and Saturday evening concerts they cannot be expected in addition to this to also pay for music and their leader's salary. On very economical plan the expense account can possibly be cut down to $4.90 or $5.00 per week. The present manager has never solicited a cent from anyone for the support of the band and he does not propose to begin now. If the business men and citizens want the band kept up this season they must voluntarily contribute to the above amount for this purpose. During the next Saturday evening concert, from 7 to 9, the hat will be passed among the crowd and through the business houses as a first experiment.

MUD-MADE MEN.

THOUSANDS REJUVENATED IN 1895.

Remarkable Vitalizing Power of the Famous Magno-Mud and Lithia Water Baths at Indiana, Ind., and Spring Hill, Tenn.

Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind., Jan. (Special)—During the year 1895 a large number of physicians from all over the country have personally investigated the remarkable natural combination of cures found here for rheumatism, kidney and nervous diseases. This treatment, consisting of the Magno-Mud Cure and Magno-Lithia Baths, taken in connection with the drinking of Magno-Lithia water, has been found by the profession to be the most remarkable and successful remedial power as yet discovered. The end of the year brought reports from many eminent medical men, a number of whom have discussed and recommended the cure in the leading medical journals.

Since the accidental discovery of the Virtues of Magno-Mud and Lithia water for curing this little valley has become world-famous. A big hotel has been built with all modern improvements—electric light, steam heat, and directly connected with a large bath-house especially constructed for their accommodations or Magno-Mud and Lithia Water Baths. People in search of rest, health and pleasure from all over the United States have come in numbers to tax the capacity of the establishment and have come to help spread the fame of the cure. The health seekers have had their pains drawn out by its magical and needless the debilitated and decrepit who have found new vigor bringing back the feelings of youth and those who have looked for rest, recreation and pleasure have found it.

For this season of the year this resort which is open all year round, has a larger attendance than ever before, those whose sufferings are aggravated by the inclemencies of the winter season finding sure and immediate relief there. The wonderful success of the place makes it apparent that it's long it is destined to rival Wiesbaden, Karlsruhe, and other noted European spas. The proprietors, the Indiana Springs Co., have opened offices at 105 Hudson St., New York City, and 45 Randolph St., Chicago, where all detailed information can be obtained on application, whether personal or by letter.

"I find that the older women grow the more they love to be flattered," quoth a cynical old bachelor, "and when they become really poor you cannot lay 'em on thick enough. They will swallow everything that is told them. How it makes me laugh to see the old bairns and the ladies, boasting and夸耀着 and complimenting each other in the same strain that they adopted when they were fresh and innocent teenagers. Years ago I did not apparently realizing that time has played havoc with the women's charms, and that the many pretensions of the youths have been changed into the ridiculous figures and bold heads of advanced middle age. And yet a woman who has once been a beauty will believe she is a beauty to her dying day, and I have heard these elderly dames discuss what is becoming as eagerly as a group of debutantes. Poor old things! I cannot help thinking to myself after all it is a merciful Providence that permits us to dance, as it were, on the edge of a grave, and to feel the instinct of eternal youth, notwithstanding the increasing decrepitude of our bodies."

That

Extreme tiredness afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the drivers grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that

Tired

Feeling by great force of will. But this is useless, as it puts powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired as I come along I see—well, no matter, but I can't help laughing to think we're calling them children. I begin to think they're getting along to be young folks mighty fast."

Mr. Vernon started us and said hurriedly, while a slave crossed his forehead:

"I will go and meet them."

"What's the matter now, I wonder?" soliloquized Tom, removing his odd affair, half hat, half turban, to wipe his moist forehead. "I'm sure there's no need meddling with honest love-making; it's lawful for a magistrate to marry a couple, and since we ain't a person why won't Mr. Vernon do just as well?"

"Meanwhile Mr. Vernon had taken a path which led him up a cliff which jutted over the water. He paused a moment in involuntary admiration of the scene before him.

The huge white rock of coral formation rose out of the embowering green like a throne indeed, and all around it, catching here at a tiny stalk, there at a down-reaching branch, festooned vines whose brilliant hues, flowers seemed like garlands hung at the feet of mortals. Overhead canopy'd the feathered spray of the infinite palm tree, and below, far below, foamed the surf, dashed its foam columns against the corals that supported the rock, and above, arched out the intense blue of a tropic sky, arching down afar off to meet the line of distant sea. Yet it was not upon its animate nature that Mr. Vernon's mild gray eye dwelt so fondly, but on the "graceful living tableau" the crooning charm upon the coral rock—for there, sitting lightly as a bird upon its perch, was slender, willowy form, pot round enough for childhood and the aerial for womanhood. A thin robe of thin muslin gathered by a girdle at the waist, fell down upon the rock, hiding with an illusive veil such rosy naked feet, slipped clear, from the lace sandal—as Aphrodite herself might have envied. The round white arm, resting carelessly on the rock, supported a head whose youthful grace and loveliness up nature's mirror ever shone. The sunny slopes of coral overflowed with their ring of bronzed girls, the true that spanned her head, the clear eyes shone with a deeper blue than the starry blossoms nestled in her braids; the sweet lips mocked vanity with their vivid laughter, the paternity of the cheek. And this was little Cleo! The transformation was as marvelous as that which changes the bird, full of green into the wonderful beauty of the newly-opened rose.

No wonder there was a look of almost hideous affection in the dark eyes of the bandicoot youth who remained curiously at her feet. Asleep again, Mr. Vernon, whose impulsive habit had been created by a dream of war that had delighted Walter hugely. Beyond that was a long sleep with some half a dozen wild ducks, and in a pen built over a marsh he layed in the sun there or four fat turtles.

There was four-fold of singular labor, although in his wish did he neglect any other branch of the business, as Walter busily termed it. In bed now, indolently and tenderly had he watched the few hills which had planted with the corn round scattered round the ship's hold—a tortoise and hopeless task, as he was fully obliged to confess, for in that latitude of prodigious lavishness the hope and comfort of sterile regions refused to grow.

Another useful task had the worthy sailor performed; he had nailed the flag, saved from the sinking wreck, held reversed as a signal of distress—upon the top of the tallest tree on the hill behind them, saying as he did so:

"There! if only one of our British frigates get sight of the old flag calling for help, I'll be bound they'll race to come many a knot out of the way to see what's wanted."

CHAPTER V.

EN years have passed since the "Petrel" lay a broken wreck, dashing to and fro on the coral reef of the little island. Still the parched and yet tattered rag floats off from the cocoa tree on the hill, and still the little log dwelling, now enlarged, and a perfect bower of glossy vine and gorgeous blossom, stands beneath the grove of palm and cocoanut. At the door of the "Recreat"—a name Mr. Vernon had given it at first—sat his good master himself. Time had added sad furrows to his forehead and scattered silver threads plentifully in his dark hair, but the face itself was most essentially changed. Could that hirsute tramp's countenance belong to the cynical misanthrope who rallied at the gate that saved him from a watery grave? Ah, the well-worn book clasped in his hands, between the covers of its cover, the Bible has become a valued and abiding friend; the tempest-tossed spirit is secured safely to the Rock of Ages, has found the peace that the world cannot give and cannot take away. Mr. Vernon's eye was raised quietly from the book as a merry wail and measured tread broke the stillness, while Tom—our same rough, bright-faced Tom—came padding down the hill with a pole lurching with breadfruit on his back.

"You are home early, Tom. Where are the children?"
Tom didn't have to go so far as I expected. "Walter has got a nice string of fish, too regular beauties. I didn't catch the pig in the trap this time, but the other I reckon will fetch him. Oh, the children, they stopped at the rock. Walter calls Nelly's Throne, and

AN INVITATION.

It Gives Us Pleasure to Publish the Following Announcement.

All women suffering from any form of illness peculiar to their sex are requested to communicate promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women.

A woman can freely talk of her private illness to another woman thus has been established the cordial intercourse between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America.

This confidence has induced more than 100,000 women to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice during the last few months.

I think what a volume of experience

she has gained in the treatment of female diseases.

She is glad to have you write or call upon her. You will find a woman full of sympathy, with a great desire to assist those who are sick. If her medicine is not what you need she will frankly tell you so, and there are nine chances out of ten that she will tell you exactly what to do for relief. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her service has relieved thousands.

Surely, any ailing woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkham's wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today.

Mrs. Grace Stanner and daughter Bertha made a cycle trip to Pontiac and return Monday afternoon, leaving home after two o'clock. They covered the distance about 15 miles in two hours going out, but on the return trip were hampered by getting caught in a heavy shower.

Miss Claude Flint had a "stroke of luck" a week ago last Sunday, which she did not appreciate very highly. Oh her way to church she lost her pocket book containing $8. There was nothing to tell the finder who the owner was, but perhaps the individual will be honest enough to return the find, on hearing of the loss, and perhaps—not.

Mrs. A. Cummings of Wixom has a plant of the cactus family which just at present is a perfect marvel of beauty. The plant itself is probably three or four feet in diameter and is literally loaded with magnificent blossoms, which are twenty inches in circumference by actual measurement. These flowers are vivid scarlet in color and each has over twenty petals, in shape like those of the hy. Something of the effect may be imagined when there are as at present nearly forty of these brilliant blooms on the plant at once. The owner informed the writer that this cactus blossomed three times last year.

The committee, consisting of M. G. McKnight, J. F. Spring, J. S. Stockwell and Albe Luell, having charge of the annual Sunday-school rally, met Monday evening and decided to hold the rally in Pontiac July 1st. In the morning a procession will be formed which will march through the principal streets ending at the high school grove. Here the pupils will have a picnic. In the afternoon a program will be carried out consisting chiefly of speaking. The committee will invite Governor Rich and Secretary of State Washington Gardner to address the rally. It is expected that about 4,000 persons will visit the city, making this the largest rally yet held.—Pontiac Post.

Rev. J. S. Boyden of Kalamazoo was a guest of Novi friends over Sunday.

Wheat is generally a poor crop so far this year. Grass and oats are way ahead of time and if nothing happens we may count on a heavy yield.

The incident gest referring to the grueling should have stated that the thing occurred several years ago.

The sexton of the cemetery says that nothing of the kind occurred that he knows of, and we presume it is a false report.

However, the reference that nothing to do with any act of burial is a large crowd attended the memorial service at Northville in the evening.

The Novi correspondent of the Michigan Record desires to hypnotize on horse-milk, or more properly speaking, on milk from Novi Jersey cows. Gets a bag of corn meal, water, flour, etc., and will cook over fire and draw the milk down the gold standard. We have an appetite that would dominate all Novi in one day.—Adrian Flyer.

Another correspondent says:

The Novi sexton relates the story of the mysterious stain which appeared in the Record last week as a false, pure and simple.

He asserts that no such performance has ever taken place in the cemetery during his occupancy of the office or sexton, which covers a long period of time. If anybody has ever cut a double shuffle" on anybody's grave, it must have been done without leaving any foot prints. Whoever reported the item did not hear the story correctly any way, as the original yarn designated the lively and revengeful female as the sister-in-law, not the wife of the departed, and the interesting event was alleged to have happened a year or ago.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thayer and Mrs.

this week.

The news from southern California concerning the health of Dr. Otis
