CONFLAGRATION.

The Dubuar Mfg. Co.'s Factory
Burned Monday Night.

LOSS WILL REACH ABOUT TEN
THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Insured for Between Six and Seven
Thousand Dollars.

The Fire Department Saved Adjoining Buildings, Lick, Lumber, Etc.

The J. A. Dyer Mfg. Co.'s factory building, sawmill and engine room was entirely destroyed by fire Monday night. After C. C. Yerkes was the first to give alarm, he, having discovered the flames as he was driving past the Lukes at 6:30 towards home, he quickly tied his horse about and drove toward the engine house, giving the alarm as went by, then to the home of Firemen Whitehead. They were at the scene of the conflagration by the time alarm was sounded. The town's pie and the firemen were quick to respond and before the clock struck twelve was playing on the James, the fire had evidently caught just in front of the engine room, close to the rear of the main building, and owing to the combustible nature of the materials necessarily always accumulating but a factory of this kind, the fire spread very rapidly and seemed to eat up half a dozen places at a time. The department had four streams playing at a time and though they did like demons and poured on water enough to wash the factory away were unable to stay the work of fire until the new mill, the air gun factory and the main building were completely gutted, the former burning to the ground. The dry kiln and blacksmith shop which were attached to the main building, were saved, burned and owing to the incessant rains poured in and upon the masonry and engine much of it is lost, is not entirely ruined. Although the main building is still standing on the south and west sides well as a part of the east, with its doors and siding, and slightly injured shows the result of the stubborn victorious fight of the fire department.

A bursting to piece of hose and the fact that in a second, piece is attached or torn from a double dry-kiln, or any age-made necessitates the hydrating entirely closed off while it was caused the unavoidable loss of several valuable moments.

Mr. Dubuar estimates the loss at about $10,000 in the insurance on the same all told probably aggregate not far from $15. The manufactured and unmanufactured stock was stored in other buildings and they together with the combs, lumber, logs, etc., were uninsured.

At the first, W. H. Yerkes and Claude, just made for the scene on their horses and they were probably the first on the grounds. At that time the engine room and a part of the rear part of the mill was in flames they succeeded in getting out sheltering and the two large saws from second floor before the smoke and drove them away.

Wm. Phillips standing in front of James Sessions, also saw the fire when it broke out and succeeded in alerting the people in that vicinity.

At present Dubuar has accepted temporary quarters in the refrigerator factory kindly given by the Globe company, with few men will be at work one minor orders out bulk of business cannot be carried on except their own special industry. Dubuar thinks there little doubt what the community will rebound thinks that a few weeks will be found larger part of the men, factory & employment to stay near around.

WENT UP FOR 30 DAYS.

Plymouth Whiskey—a Family Fight

—House of Correction:

Jerome Barnhart and wife were arrested by Marshal White for disturbing the peace Sunday. "Boney" returned from Plymouth in the afternoon in a very ill-tempered condition and during a misunderstanding with his wife, it became known in which "Boney" was disrespected and handled in such a manner that a part of his face resembled a chunk of raw beef. Tolerance of neighbors prevented any lengthy prolonging of the scuffle but while it lasted it was loud and severe. Before Justice Webster Monday they both pleaded guilty and not being able to pay the fine each they were taken to the Detroit House of Correction for thirty days.

Mrs. Barnhart stated that the liquor upon which "Boney" made himself ridiculous he and D. J. Wick obtained Sunday in Plymouth, neither of whom can purchase any of the article here. The Justice also issued a warrant for Wick's arrest upon the charge of being intoxicated but it has not yet been served.

Obituary.

How fleet the righteous when buried were the appropriate words with which the remarks were opened at the funeral of James D. Covert held last week Sunday at the home on Dunlap street. Truly a righteous man is gone and the place that knew him best has been snatched from them one in life and example, was a child of God. Mr. Covert was born near the village of Gold, Seneca County, New York, in 1837. With his father's family he came to Michigan in 1850 and in 1851 was married to Miss Isadora Smith, whose home was in Oakland county. They began their married life in New Hudson. They were residents of Maple Rapids for a time, coming to Northville some ten years since. Mr. Covert was not an old man when he died, though his silver hair and beard gave him that reverential bearing that is the glory of a man at three score and ten. In early life he was converted and united with the church. He received the ordination of deacon in the Presbyterian church about six years ago. He has been one of the wise and prayerful counselors of his organization and his loss will be deeply deplored by that people. "We will greatly miss him from our streets," said a friend, "for everyone knew him, and none knew him but to love him." Like a good Samaritan, he never passed by a needy brother. The sick were always the recipients of his cheer, his helpful care, and when sorrow visited a family in the community he was among the first to tender sympathy, no matter what their creed, or if they were creeds. It is hard to part with goodly men like Clark Griswold and James D. Covert, so few in a generation are able to take their places. Their very influence in a community is uplifting; their daily lives shed a sweetness that outvans any other fragrance. The flowers that lay upon this good man's casket like a bursting wilderness of June blossoms were touching remembrances from scores of friends, including the senior and junior Christian Endeavor societies, the Epworth League, BYPU school-room girls and girls, teachers, King's Daughters and the Masonic order of which he was a member. But the rarest flower was not pure but the throbless life, no sadder than his holy faith. Never were flowers, God's angels of the grass, more tenderly bestowed or more fittingly emblematic of a character whose obsequies they graced. It is impossible to lend words to this life that will more adorn it than the silent memory of the quiet round of his unobtrusive daily walk, we can only rise and call him blessed. From the ashes of our loss, we have the beauty of remembering what he was and our tears only confirm the satisfaction of our acquaintance with him. The church and community share with the friends and family the heritage of a holy memory. Gurus's blessed assurance is resting from his labors, but his works are still with us, and his influence lives in posterity.

He leaves a wife and two daughters, Minnie and Belle, and one son, Clinton, a young man of sixteen. There are two brothers, William who resides in Washington state, and Newton of Colorado.

"With the mists have risen above us, As our father knows his sons, Face to face with those who love us, We shall know as we are known. Lo! beyond the green meadows, Floats the golden fringe of day, Heart to heart we'll ride in the shadows Till the mists have rolled away." B.

IN SIGHT OF HINDOO TEMPLES
The Arthur Potts Memorial Bell Now
Rings in India.

In a letter from Pauli Garhwal, India received by Miss Franc Baker under date of April 18, 1896 regarding the bell, shipped to Louise Soules boarding school for girls the writer says:

"The bell is a very sweet toned one and rings out so clearly in this quiet India atmosphere. It can be heard all over this vast native city and in the midst of the sights and sounds of Mohammedan Mosques and Hindoo temples its ringing will witness to the purity and simplicity of the Christian religion."

The letter is signed by E. D. Greene and overflows with thanks to all those who had a hand in the work of sending this bell to them. Most of our readers will remember that the bell was manufactured here by the American Bell Foundry Co., and shipped to Aligarh, India.

Read's Mills News:

Mrs. Huff Bunt is better. Hayes Beirne is back from Rockwood.

Willie Brigham of Battle Creek was at H. Boggs Monday.

Frank Johnson and wife visited in Ypsilanti Saturday and Sunday.

On Monday night the head of one of the families in this place had reason to rejoice and did so, ascertaining that each member of his household was home and had retired after a reasonable hour, an unusual occurrence, and one which will not happen again very soon, probably.

Walled Lake News:

Mrs. G. D. Green of Olivelle is visiting her parents and other friends here. Mr. and Mrs. Gray of Southfield visited their daughter, Mrs. Hiram Nichols, Sunday.

The band played at Milford on picnical day.

Ben Smith lost quite a valuable young horse Thursday. In attempting to jump a picket fence it caught its forelegs between the pickets and was thrown to the ground breaking its shoulder and otherwise injuring it so that it had to be shot.

There will be no preaching in the Methodist church Sunday morning on account of the children's day exercises in the Baptist church to which all are invited.

Solomon Jones, one of the oldest residents of this vicinity, died at the home of his son Newell in Bloomfield Friday night. The funeral was held from the Baptist church Sunday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Allen officiating. Mr. Jones was one of the first members of that church.

The baby show held here last week was a decided success. The old school building in which it was held was packed with a crowd which seemed to enjoy itself hugely. There were twenty-three babies enrolled. The following were awarded the six prizes offered:

1st prize—Slumber blanket, handsewn boy baby—Harley Dickens.

2d prize—Slumber blanket, handsewn girl baby—Mildred Richardson.

3d prize—Pin-ray and pins, heaviest baby, as considered—Wade Driscoll.

4th prize—Comb and brush, baby with most hair—Baby Thompson.

5th prize—Silk cap, baby over one year old less hair—Baby Oxford.

6th prize—Set of gold pins, baby getting the most votes—Mildred Richardson.

Mrs. Barnes also offered a special-prize of white dress to the best natural baby which she gave to Carrie Severance.

All the men predicted "a lot of mad women" but so far none are heard of.

In all probability Northville and Plymouth will play ball on the Fourth. The former have an excellent team this year, and with German pitching the very best kind of ball possible, they will crowd Plymouth very close to the wall.

In all probability Northville of this generation will not play ball with Plymouth on the 4th or any other day. There is no doubt but what our boys could crowd Plymouth's ball club clean over the wall, but they will hardly attempt to do it.

Sunday Excursion Rate to Detroit on

Clemens can attend divine services at one of the large churches and spend the afternoon on picturesquie Belle Isle, 55 cents.

"Is Marriage a Failure?"

The "Is Marriage a Failure?" Co. that play in the Northville opera house this and tomorrow night, June 5-6, come well recommended. The company numbers eight people including Little Hazel and Florence Ogle the children who were with The Silver King Co. last season. All the company are well known in the theatrical profession and a treat may be looked for in their performance of the farce comedy. All the new popular songs are sung in medleys etc. The prices are reasonable 10c, 15c and 20c, and the company certainly should draw a good audience.

"Oh," said she, fixing her eyes steadily on the dim light that shone through the ocean-blended into one when I sit here. I grow so impatient. Walter! long to skim like the albatross roister with daring wing along above the leaping waves of the world—the world so beautiful—so grand! would see

My spirit tires of the sameness; it pants like an imprisoned king longing for one-taste of the purair of freedom!

"Silly girl! What is free and pure than this sea breeze? Playing so innocently with your curls? What more boundless, vast and gay than this ever-changing scene of joyous life? Why should you sigh if anything failed?"

"Because far as it is from prison we can go no farther, her he must stay confined to the narrow bounds of this little island, where the infinite world is before us." Ah! Walter, I abominate your kindish to heat me into content, looked up wistfully into his pensive face and kept respectful silence.

"Now, then," said he, rousing from his reverie. "I shall send you, Elsie, to the house. You will find the French lesson I prepared on your table, and you may translate it as neatly as you can." Tom has plenty of freshly-made paper in the drawer."

Eleanor obeyed at once, glancing at Walter as if expecting him to follow; but his father laid a restraining hand on his arm, and Walter remained at his side.

"My son," said Mr. Vernon gravely—so gravely that Walter felt the shivers rising to his eyes—"you are pining for action, you long for the excitement and effort required in the battle of life. See here in this deserted island is a grand opportunity for heroism that you have quite overlooked. Do not be startled, Walter, when I tell you that I have made a painful discovery today—that you love Eleanor with an affection different from a brother's or a friend's. I put it to your own conscience and manliness—let it honorably to take advantage of the inclination of her life here, and win her love before she has opportunity to see others, and judge for herself. There is no doubt, judging from the jewels in the trunk, the coat-trim and her clothing, and Tom's account of the earl's idea of the fair—it's no surprise that Eleanor is the child of noble and aristocratic parents. You know the exclusive pride of such a family often told you of it. Now, then, have you a right to profit by the accidental circumstance of the shipwreck, and take advantage of her guileless, unsophisticated nature?" Heroic is your task, greater and nobler than any struggle for worldly fame and prosperity—conquer yourself, Walter; be a man thus early in your boyhood."

The girl receded by the spell of her own emotion to a statue of rough gold and melted together that the fingers almost lost their breath. In sudden fear this youth who had so voice of might from his bosom enough to seize and bear away for his choice.

The only trouble in the hours waiting was that she seemed to know nothing of what yet yet."

Her outward air drooped dejectedly the eyelids from off her face, and without sleep she laid sleepless in her nest again.

Her sighs ceased abruptly, yet

Walter gasped softly.

"Nay, nay, Elsie, do not look so hopeless! I do you have spoken the truth. I love these longings—these wild, intervening fits of action—this dismal longing for talents buried in obscurity yet often and often comes big conviction that were our whimsies gratified, and we safely, ready all the pleasures, excitement and joys of the world, we would look back a sigh of regret to the peacefulness of our life here."

She shook her head doubtfully.

"I can scarce see with you—better sorrow and trouble than sadness and in."

Walter was gazing fondly in her face.

"It is not that you fret and pine. Ellie dear, ill-fated! lost amidst the nobles and our happy land, doubtless awaiting for me, it would be one sad struggle, and though I would make it gladly, yet could only take the cold hand in his and press it tenderly for a response.

"I know well miss me, but the use of the change will soon come. I'm sorry so much hard work will fail to you without Tom's stout arm to do it, but the Lord's will be done." He knows what's best, and can take care of you."

He paused again to rest, and seemed sinking into a stupor, until Walter tried to move him to a more comfortable position, when he smiled feebly in thanks, opened his eyes, and said with considerable energy:

SON from him, Sir Walter. I am becoming much aggrieved, you are so formal and polite. You don't talk with me; you don't sit me. I declare, Walter, you haven't kissed me for these three weeks!"

As she spoke she held up her beautiful face, the crimson lips pouting archly.

Poor Walter colored crimson, blushed unconsciously, and then darted away.

Ellie burst into tears. Tom whistled and Mr. Vernon, closing his book, followed after his son.

CHAPTER VII.

RECKON—I find Walter and fit the ring as we agreed, said Tom, looking rapturously at the weeping girl. He had hardly disappeared when Mr. Vernon returned, and began quietly wiping away the girl's tears.

"An earnest caress conversation ensued, from which they were interrupted by Walter's wife.

Hope sings ever to the ears of rotta.

No, my children, I long no more, of the busy haunts of men. I am ready to pray that this peace of Eden may prove my grave."

The young creatures, dimly guessing

through what waves of grief and pain

he had reached the peaceful shore of content, looked up wistfully into his pensive face and kept respectful silence.

"Quick, father, quick! Come up to Tom. His is hurt; he is dying. I am afraid."

Mr. Vernon seized a flask of brandy preserved carefully for such exigencies

as the present, and dashed some into Tom's mouth.

"It is there is anything worth I dread more than another deathbed. It is to see my name in the paper." But in this case I conquer my repugnance and give publicly the same credit to the salvation of my life as I would to one who had dragged me from a death beneath the waves.

In fact, I have extorted my preserves so enthusiastically and unhesitatingly have sought out sufferers and recommended them to so many friends and acquaintances that the ready neophytes popularly call me

"Pink Pills Francis." But really, my remark is something that I consider profound. I know that there are so many testimonials of medicine in the papers nowadays that people do not pay

so much heed as formerly, but I do wish folks who are suffering would remember that what I say comes right from the heart of a woman who feels that she had a new lease of happy life given her.

"Eleven years ago I was afflicted with nervous prostration. My existence until two years ago was one of drugging misery. Anyone in the village will tell you of my condition. My blood seemed exhausted from my veins and mouth after

I grew weaker. I was absolutely unable to get up, and the doctor said I had to lie down all day. At last, my condition became so worse that I went out only infrequently. We often upturn you notice over my physician's sign, and in describing his steward's frequently was called a sort of hell and shit over the doctor

in order to describe such was the condition of my patient. One day, I went to see a physician, but I was obliged to go out and never go back while I was ill and out of sight. In short, I did not know that I could, just such was my complete physical prostration."

"One day I saw an advertisement of

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I bought my bottle because it was worn by that time. I sent for a box and tried them. That was two years ago.

Now I call myself a well woman again and feel well again."

"I haven't had one of these excruciating pains in the heart for a year and a half.

Why, even the first box of pills helped me, I can walk miles now, can run my world easily; have gained in weight constantly, and, to boot, I can scarcely believe it, but a little while ago I got extended for a number of life instances, and was accepted without any difficulty after a careful examination by the physician."

"Do you wonder that I'm shouting

Pink Pills all through our village? I haven't taken any of the remedy for some months, but at the first sign of trouble

I know what refuge to flee to."

"Last year my aunt, Mrs. M. A. Blossson, of Dixfield, P. O., was here visiting me. She was suffering from a lack of vitality and heart trouble, but she was skeptical about my remedies; that I was so enthusiastically advocating. At last, however, she tried it and carried some home with her when she went.

A little while ago I received a letter from her, and in it said, 'I am cured, thanks to God and Pink Pills.' She also wrote that her husband had been prostrated

but had been cured by the pills.

One of the persons to whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is sold is

C. H. Foster, of Leeds. Foster

said the reporter found him patrolling

the platform awaiting the arrival of the morning train. Mr. Foster, who is one of the most trustworthy, capable and energetic men in the employ of the Maline-Central railroad, appeared in unusually good health and spirits and we made inquiry as to the cause.

"Do you know," replied he, "I think

I've made a discovery, or at least Mrs.

Francis has for me. I have been in poor health for a long time with a heart pain variously complicated. We have been so fully interested in Mrs.

Francis' wonderful recovery that I at once determined to give the medicine recommended a thorough test. So, about two months ago, I bought a box of Pink Pills. Right off, I am much improved, so much better able to fulfill my duties. So sanguine that I am on the road to recovery, that I feel like a new man."

"I can now walk without fatigue

once experienced, my heart affection appears to be relieved, and I have joined the Pink Pills Band in our community."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and vigor to the blood and tissues shattered by disease. They are not sold by all druggists, or may be had by mail

TWEEN THE LAKES.

MICHIGAN NEWS RECORDED IN BRIEF ITEMS.

A Jackson County Youth Criticized by Jesus. Shoots and kills his fiancee and attempts suicide—steps to Kelley's suicide scatters.

Murdered His Sweetheart.

A double tragedy occurred four miles south of the village of Munich. Louis Heydlauff shot and instantly killed his fiancee, Miss Emma Moreckel, then, turning the weapon upon himself, sent two balls into his body from which he will probably die. The Heydlauffs and Moreckels live but a short distance apart both being prosperous farmers. The young people were highly thought of in the neighborhood. As children they had played together, cementing a friendship which, with their growth, ripened into love and culminated in an engagement. For four years they had been almost incessantly together. Lately, however, young Heydlauff developed an attachment for the bottle which caused a rupture between the young lovers. Recently George Tisch had shown considerable attention to Miss Moreckel, and Heydlauff was insanely jealous of him. On this fatal day Heydlauff, called at the Moreckel residence, but found the young lady absent. He awaited her return. Tisch accompanied Miss Moreckel to her home and this seemed toadden her former lover. As he entered the house Heydlauff followed her and without a word of warning drew his revolver and shot her twice. As she fell he turned and put two bullets into his own body.

Child Eaten by a Bear.

A crowd of wandering gypsies camped on the farm of David C. Buck, near Hudson. They frequented the streets, the men performing three performances daily.

The women carried infants in Indian fashion. About dark Mr. Buck was stirred by the gypsies, children crying up the road, shouting, "The bear, the bear." He hurried to the scene and found a ferocious and ugly male bear had devoured little Philibeth, children and all men were alone in camp. When the bear attacked and demolished the tent, the youngfathers fled to give the alarm and the old gypsies gathered the ferocious animal immortal sounds. When the owner arrived, he reached them there he was subdued, but not until the old man was badly cut up and a little child eaten by the beast.

It would seem as if there must be a great many perfectly sinless people in this world of ours, judging from the readiness which is exhibited to "cast the first stone"—or its successor—at those who are supposed to have strayed from the paths of rectitude. On the other hand, while a slavish subservience to public opinion is not incumbent upon us, we should never forget that we owe it to those friends who wish to be able to stand by us through evil as well as good report, to heed the scriptural injunction to "avoid the appearance of evil."
