THIRTYENMILLION

That Number of Eggs Handled at the U. S. Fish Station Here.

ONE TROUT LIVED AFTER BEING OUT OF WATER 39 MINUTES.

Preparations Being Made for the Propagation of Black Bass.

A summary of the work done at the U. S. fish station may be briefly given in saying that of 13,000,000 eggs taken, between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 of the fry and eyed eggs are secured. Most of these were planted in public waters, some were sent to other hatching stations, and a few were sent to European countries in the course of the etiquette of exchange with foreign commissions.

An incident somewhat out of the ordinary experience in handling the brook trout is given to illustrate the exceptional hardness of at least one of this family. Noticing a fish that made better growth than the others Mr. Clark had him caught out of the pool and carefully wrapped in a wet flannel. He took the young prodigy to town, just a mile away, to have his weight determined. Returning in half an hour he replaced the fish in the pool and he lives and flourishes to this day, having been just half an hour out of his native element. Experiments are being made with gratifying results with the Loch Leven trout from California brooks.

At the Northville station, plans are in course of execution to add to the facilities now in operation, new ponds and hatching basins for the propagation of the black bass. There are few if any of the most valuable edible fish so difficult of artificial raising as the small mouth black bass. To be at all successful, the female must be taken almost at the exact moment of her natural spawning. A singular habit of this fish is one hardly ever found in fish or animal life. It is that the male fish seeks all the advances which lead up to the act of propagation. He prepares the home. He whips out the gravelly bed in a secluded spot which he himself has selected. To this he invites the bashful bride, who does not go except after an ardent courtship which would do credit to a Romeo.

DETROIT PRESBYTERY.

REV. J. H. HERBENER PREACHED A RED HOT SERMON

At the Ann Arbor Meeting this Week Tuesday Night.

The fall meeting of the Detroit Presbytery was held at Ann Arbor this week Monday and in the evening Rev. J. H. Herbener of this place delivered the sermon of this placing moderator, an office which he has creditably filled for the past year. The sermon was one of his "red hot" ones on "social inequality" which he delivered here a month ago. The following is from the Detroit dailies regarding it: The meeting opened tonight with a sermon by Rev. J. H. Herbener, a young man who recently came from Kentucky to take charge of the church at Northville. His text was the story of Lazarus and the rich man, illustrative of the inequality of society. He said: "Jesus does not approve of social inequality. The world was made through Christ and must be restored to him by society, though this will not come through the conversion of every individual. The final conflict will be between the pulpit and the world, and the pulpit shall conquer. The results that have come from Dr. Parkhurst's preaching show what may be done by fearlessly preaching the truth. Many things must be changed before Christ's coming. The persistent criminal as well as the lunatic should be restrained for life. The punishment that is feared more than the gallows should be inflicted upon the incorrigible. It would at least prevent them from propagating their kind. The church must become progressive, united and aggressive to bring the world to its king."

At the close of the sermon Mr. Herbener called the presbytery to order. W. H. Clark, D. D., of Detroit, was elected moderator; F. D. Elliot of Detroit and W. D. Buck of Holly, temporary clerks.

ELECTRIC RAILROAD

Prospects Bright for One from Detroit to Farmington.

While the prospects for pushing through the proposed new railroad, to run from Farmington to Royal Oak, a distance of twelve miles, are bright, there still remains $7,000 worth of stock which must be disposed of before the project is guaranteed.

"We have placed stock," says Attorney Fred Baker, one of the directors of the new company, "valued at $18,000, but shall need to have $25,000 before operations can be commenced. We will connect with the D. & M. road at Royal Oak to which we expect to carry considerable freight."

A Chicago company has offered to build and equip the road for something over $60,000, and take $45,000 in bonds in part payment. It is our idea, however, to put $25,000 cash into the enterprise, thereby getting everything as cheap as possible and borrow about $35,000 more. While steam is cheaper in the first instance, we shall probably put in an electric plant which will be economy in the end."

The directors of the company are Fred A. Baker, W. H. Clark and Chas. A. Dean of Detroit, all of whom own farms on the proposed route. Senator Fred M. Warner, of Farmington, Samuel D. Holcomb of Southfield, an intermediate station, and Caleb J. Sprague of Northville. George Hendrie, is the largest subscriber to the stock, holding forty shares.

METHODIST PREACHERS.

NEW PRESIDING ELDER FOR THIS DISTRICT

Rev. W. M. Ward Again Returned to Northville.

Of the appointments made by the Detroit Methodist Conference at Port Huron, the following are those which will interest Northville people most. Rev. C. T. Allen, formerly presiding elder of this district, goes to Ypsilanti to take L. H. Ryan's place, who is now presiding elder of Ann Arbor district. Presiding elder Detroit district W. H. Shier; Grass Lake, Franklin Bradley, Salem, Eugene A. Coffin, Gaylord and Waters, Seth Reed; Flat Rock, Charles Shipson; Plymouth, John B. Oliver; Northville, W. M. Ward, Wyandotte, Clarence E. Allen, Milford, F. E. Carter; Watford Lake, J. W. Mitchell; South Lyon, Louis M. Moon; Romeo, P. R. Parrish; Farmington, W. H. Floyd.

ADOPTED RESOLUTIONS.

The Maccabees Have on the Death of Wm. H. Nichols.

HALL OF NORTHVILLE TENT

No. 300, Northville, Mich.

Sept. 17, 1897.

WHEREAS, Death has again entered our Tent and taken from us our beloved Sir Knight Wm. H. Nichols and whereas we realize that death must come to all, therefore be it

Resolved, that we as a Tent sincerely mourn the loss of Sir Knight Nichols and extend to the bereaved widow and parents our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of affliction.

Resolved, as a token of respect to the deceased that we draw our Charter for the space of 60 days and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow, also a copy to the parents and a copy be sent to THE NORTHVILLE RECORD for publication.

Memorial.

By the death of our brother, Wm. H. Nichols, our Board has lost one of its most capable members and Plymouth Township one of its most efficient officers. He has left with us a good record. As a clerk he was faithful and accurate; as a friend generous and true; as a neighbor charitable and kind. We found him a Christian, modest and above reproach.

Resolved, that we, the members of the Board of Plymouth Township express by these resolutions our appreciation of the character and ability of our dear brother, our regret at his death, and our sincere sympathy for members of his family.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Township and a copy be engrossed and presented to the family of the deceased and that the same be printed in the Northville and Plymouth papers.

By order Board of Plymouth Township Sept. 21, 1897.

JOHN S. JACKSON,

THE PIONEER CITIZEN, DIED SUNDAY NIGHT.

Had Resided Here for More than Forty Years.

Capt. John S. Jackson, one of Northville's pioneer and respected citizens, died at his home in this village Sunday night.

Mention of Mr. Jackson's continued serious illness as well as of his remarkable memory was made in last week's Record. He continued to grow worse all the week until the end came as a relief on Sunday. Mr. Jackson's last illness probably dates back five years at which time he sustained a fracture of the right hip and other injuries, by falling on the ice.

He was born in Canandaigua, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1812, and settled in Northville in 1856. In the days of no railroads he used to haul freight from Detroit to Northville and this occupation of draying he continued through the greater part of his life. He was noted for his industry, integrity and great memory. He was a great reader and possessed a wonderful faculty for remembering local and national events. He was the leading spirit in the organization of the Livonia Rifles and was, in 1853, appointed captain of the company as it was mustered in the state troops by Gov. Mason. As Captain Jackson he has since been known. The capitol of Michigan was in Detroit at that time. Mr. Jackson was the last survivor of the original subscribers to the fund to build the first Methodist church in Northville.

He leaves a widow and five children: Will and H. P., now in the west, and another son in Elkhart, Mrs. John Hirsch and one unmarried daughter, of this place. The funeral occurred from the home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. E. A. Schieman officiating. The burial was in Rural Hill.

ANOTHER CITIZEN GONE.

Timothy P. Thompson Died Tuesday Night.

After an illness of creeping paralysis lasting nearly if not quite a year Timothy P. Thompson died at his home in this village Tuesday night. Mr. Thompson was born in New York state 77 years ago and has been a highly respected resident of Northville for many years. He leaves four children grown to man and womanhood. The funeral occurred from the home yesterday afternoon, a clergyman from Detroit officiating. The burial was at Grand Blanc.

Suburban News.

A man with such a jag on that he was unable to mount the car steps without assistance took the F. & P. M. train Monday afternoon for Northville. We hope Editor Neal saw that he was conducted to the Yarnall institute without unnecessary delay. Holly Advertiser.

We did! Now send on some more of your representative citizens and we'll make 'em into respectable inhabitants. Among the "fair" attractions for this season Fowlerville advertises a "balloon ascension by a man and a dog, each using a separate parachute." Ann Arbor is to have a wedding on the fair grounds, while Fenton takes a front seat with a free minstrel show on an open stage and a "ball game between the Brighton female nine and the Yellow Kids." Gee whiz! Who's the umpire?

The only fair for Oakland County is daved for the last two days of this month and the first day of October. This is the eighteenth exhibition of the Milford Fair association, and every effort is being put forth to make it a success. The races—two for Thursday and two for Friday—are for $100 prizes best three in five. Thursday is the day for the bicycle races, one, two and five mile, all amateur, with three prizes each. Space has been engaged some time ago for an exhibit by a well known Northville firm. The prospects for a successful show are favorable from all points of view.

The State Librarian will be glad to hear from Grangers, Farmer's Clubs, or farming communities who are interested in the Travelling Library movement and who wish to avail themselves of the privileges offered them by these collections of books. About one hundred libraries are now circulating through the state and they have proved to the highest degree acceptable to the people. Fifty more libraries can be prepared under the present appropriation, and applications for these will be filed in the order in which they are received. Special libraries are also prepared for the use of study clubs doing special work. These books are sent in the same manner as the miscellaneous libraries and have been very helpful to clubs working in small towns and rural districts. Full information and instructions regarding the libraries will be mailed on request. Address M. C. Spencer, State Librarian Lansing, Michigan.

A COMMON ERROR.

Many merchants have the idea that the selling, rather than the buying, is the place to look for all the profits. We believe the buying of merchandise at the lowest cash price in the cheapest market, and selling at the closest margin, in large quantities, is the secret of successful business.

We use every effort in buying, to buy the best goods at the lowest price. The combined purchases of our three stores at spot cash price are "second to none" in our line [job lots excepted, which we do not handle].

We at all times try to offer our customers a little bit better quality for the same price, or as good for a little less money than any store we know of.

We Sell

Silks! Notions! Dress Goods!
Hosiery! Domestics! Underwear!
Cloaks! Carpets! Shoes! Wall Paper!

We consider our customers as our friends, and endeavor to please them, as a matter of friendship as well as business. Any goods we sell are returnable and cash refunded, if customer is not pleased with their purchase when they get home.

New Wrappers.

Our Fall Line is nearly complete. These cuts show some of the popular styles. They are priced from 69c up to $1.50.

The above Wrapper is a heavy fleeced goods, black ground with colored figures; all size.

Price 98c.

Another number not quite so full skirt, or as nicely trimmed.

Price 75c.

The above is a new style Wrapper of heavy fleeced bedford cord, printed in pretty designs at $1.50.

This is a very choice Wrapper

This is another style at 98 Cents.

New Weave corded effect and nice styles.

You are invited to see our entire assortment. It is so large that we cannot do justice to them in any advertisement.

Silks and Dress Goods are still arriving. It is well to visit us often to keep up with the fashionable ideas that arrive daily.

Mr. E. Norton.

The council has elected Morris Nichols village clerk in place of W. H. Nichols, deceased.

Christian Science service next Sunday morning at 10:30 in the WCTU hall. Subject, Review.

Come to the rink next Wednesday night and hear the comic quartet in costume in "The County Fair."

Mrs. Eunice Shepard suffered another stroke of apoplexy yesterday and now lies in a very critical condition.

Vacant houses are once more becoming very scarce in the village. This is a good indication of fast returning prosperity.

Will Holcomb will engage in business with his father in Detroit but will, we are pleased to learn, continue to reside in Northville.

Rev. W. M. Ward's many Northville friends will rejoice that the M. E. conference saw fit to return him to this charge again.

At a meeting of the town board this week F. S. Harmon was elected town clerk to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Nichols.

Out of their entertainments at the opera house last week the Methodist ladies realized $12.00. The attendance was not as large as was expected.

A. S. Carsola, a former resident of this place, has purchased C. L. Smith's stock of groceries and will continue the business from the old stand. Archie Johnson will continue as clerk.

Edith, the six months old twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ward of Bealton died Tuesday morning. The funeral occurred from the home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. E. A. Schmitt officiating.

The Baptist ladies will serve supper at their festival at the Princess rink next week, Wednesday from 5 to 7. Admission 15 including the evening entertainment. Useful as well as fancy articles will be on sale.

The entertainment given under the direction of Prof. Chadwick at the opera house last week was decidedly entertaining if not largely attended. Each individual as well as class took their parts most admirably.

T. G. Richardson disposed of fourteen hogs from his farm this week for $4.12 per hundred. They averaged over 250 lbs each and was probably the finest lot ever shipped out of this town. It was a lucky sale for T. G. as the market has since taken a tumble.

Hirsh's blacksmith and Will Taft had a lively upset on Main street Wednesday. The blacksmith struck the horse for shying and the horse did a double trapeze act, upsetting the rig and throwing both out. Taft was severely bruised about the shoulders.

The fall meetings of the YMCA started out well last Sunday. C. E. Parker and C. M. Copeland had charge of the meeting. The addresses were plain, pointed and practical. Mr. Copeland expressed himself as well pleased with the character of the work done, only he desired more of it.

The Bell Telephone company has equipped its lines here with metallic circuit and placed long distance phones in their central office. This metallic circuit does away with all induction so that in talking over the line now one is not confused by the talk of half a dozen other people on the same wire.

The Imperial Jubilee Singers, formerly the Tennessee Jubilee Singers, are to give an entertainment in the Baptist church, Oct. 6, under the auspices of the B.Y.P.U. This company has appeared in Northville before and we are confident that the people will be pleased to hear them again.

Northville visitors to the Millford fair are cordially invited to go to W. J. La Fraugh's for meals. Mr. LaFraugh was a former Northville resident and his restaurant in Maford is not only a model of neatness but in point of table service no other place in that village can equal. The Record takes pleasure in commending Mr. LaFraugh's restaurant to the hungry people from Northville.

The High School Oracle has been revived with Virgil McNitt as managing editor. The first number appeared last week and it was a reflector of credit upon the young man's ability. Virgil not only did all the writing but also set the type for the reading matter.

The Christian Endeavor Poverty social at Miss Harvie Root's to-night promises to be quite a novel affair. A poverty menu has been prepared and it is expected the guests will appear in poverty costume. A fine will be imposed for those who do not comply with the rules.

The Record is in receipt of a copy of the Millford Fair book for 1897. It is the neatest and best printed fair book that has come to our notice this season. Some of the books issued by fair associations this year were a disgrace typographically to both advertisers and association.

J. S. Lapham & Co., have moved into their new bank and are now snugly settled ready for business. The interior of the new building is a model of convenience and is furnished and equipped with all that is modern and neat. The building is as near fire proof as is possible to build one of the kind.

The jury on the park property met Wednesday and legally condemned the Gillespie rights to that part which has been taken for park purposes. A representative of the Union Trust Co. of Detroit, guardians for Peter Gillespie, was present and commended the action. The proceedings were before Justice Lowden.

The Northville Telephone company now has its wires in complete and working order to Nov. The central offices are in Goodell's store at North and Saint's & Porter's store in Northville. The service is free to subscribers and 10 cents to non subscribers. Northville people having business with Nov. or Farmington should patronize the Northville lines. The connection to Farmington and Sand Hill will be made within a few days.

T. J. Perkins & Co. have purchased the Holcomb Son & Co's stock of goods and will open the store next week Wednesday with a full and complete line of dry goods clothing, etc. Mr. Perkins is well known to the people of Northville and vicinity where he has resided for upwards of twenty years and where he was in business much of that time as one of the firm of Lapham & Perkins. Mr. Perkins will be welcomed as a permanent fixture to Northville.

The YMCA held their opening services Sunday p.m. in their hall. In the evening, union services were held in the Baptist church. The church was filled with an interested and appreciative audience. Mr. Copeland, state sec. of the YMCA gave a very interesting address on the work of that organization and Mr. Parker followed with a short talk on the "Practical side" of YMCA work. No doubt the meeting will be productive of increased interest and more earnest zeal in that line of work.

 "Folk think we are good," she continued, "but I've liked you because I was sure you had a stubborn will when your conscience told you that the right was on your side. If that man has wronged Marjorie Annan, would you be feared to face him and avenge her?"
 "If he has played the villain," answered Sutherland, deadly pale, but determined, "I would hunt him down and punish him, though I had to follow him round and round the world."
 As the young man spoke, his face wore an expression which few had ever noticed there before; all the softness and sweetness disappeared, the lines deepened, the eyes hardened, and the entire aspect grew hard as granite, and as unfeeling.

"I was right," said the old lady, noticing the change. "To have this Hetherington temper, Johnnie Sutherland. Oh, that I were a man to gang in with the swiftness of youth and the keenness of injured love."

A few minutes later, Sutherland left the castle, fully authorized to bring Marjorie back if possible, and armed with ample means, in the shape of a large sum of money, which Miss Hetherington thrust upon him.

Left to herself in the lonely castle, the lady retired to her private suite of apartments, and there gave way to the wild tempest of her sorrow and despair. Pride and self-reproach contended together for the mastery of her heart; but love was there, too—the intense love of maternity, which for nearly eighteen years had been flickering secretly like a feeble fire.

Sitting in her arm-chair, her head lying back and her eyes fixed wildly on the window's glimmering square and the dreary prospect beyond, she fell in to a troubled dream of the past.

Again she was a proud, passionate girl, reckless in her comings and goings, caring for nothing in the world but the smile of one man, and fearing nothing but the anger of her savage brother, in whom the tigerish blood of the male Hetheringtons ran twice fiercer than in her.

So haughty and unlovable had she seemed, so stubborn and capricious, that only one man had dared to woo her—that man her father's and her brother's enemy, the enemy of all her house. They had met in secret, and she, with characteristic enthusiasm, had loved him better for the feud that might have kept them apart. And at last in a wild moment of impulse, she had put herself at his mercy, and had loved him without God's blessing or the sanction of churchman or priest.

Then, to the terror and amazement of both, came the knowledge that she was about to become a mother.
 And till she confessed her situation to him did she discover that the fate of her family was justified, and that she had loved a villain for almost simultaneously came the news that he was about to marry the daughter of an English earl. She taxed him with it, and he secretly took the trouble to deny it. He could never, he said, unite himself with one of her house.

How it came about she scarcely knew; but one night, when she met her lover and faced him with wild upbraiding, a hand like iron was laid upon her arm, and turning, she saw her brother Hugh. The two men faced each other; there were a few words, then a blow, and she saw her lover's face livid and bleeding as she swooned away.

Later that night, when Hugh Hetherington sought her in that very chamber where she was now sitting, he had rung the whole truth from her, and, seeing it, had struck her, too, with a clinched fist in the face.

As she thought of that time, she rose and looked into the glass. Yes, a mark was there yet; she would try it to her grave. Her worn face and ghastly yet his she remembered had followed. How her wild brother left the place and was absent so many days; and how just after he returned and drove her forth, she read in a newspaper that Lord Lochmaben, the great Lochmabens of the Border, had just died suddenly in his 35th year, somewhere abroad. There was no scandal; the world did not even know Lord Lochmaben perished, but she saw that he had fallen by the hand of Hetherington—a duel fought on foreign soil.

In the darkness, the horror, the despair of the next few months! No one knew her secret, but she kept it well, so that all she heard was that the brother and sister had quarreled, and that she had fled to the castle to dwell temporarily at least, apart. No one wondered. The Hetherington temper was well known, a by-word; it was as natural that such a brother and sister should hate each other as that swords should clash, or fire and torrent disagree.

Creeping in secret to a tower upon the English border, she had hidden her name among the poorest of the poor. No one knew her; no one suspected but that she was some lowly woman who had strayed in the manner only common among her class. Then at last she was home.

And, reviewing it all darkly, memory's phantom images

CHAPTER XXIII.

OR GAYS Sutherland searched London in vain for a trace of the fugitive couple; then, accident revealed to him what a search of months might never have done.

He was walking along moodily, with his eyes on the ground; he had passed into the neighborhood of Leicester Square, when suddenly he started and trembled from head to foot. A voice, it seemed to him a familiar voice, struck upon his ear. It was speaking volubly in the French tongue.

Hurriedly he drew aside to allow the person to pass him by, then, looking up, he recognized the French teacher—Cassidore.

Yes, it certainly was he, beyond all manner of doubt! He was carrying on such an excited conversation with his companion that he not even noticed Sutherland, whose sleeve he had almost brushed.

Sutherland's first impulse was to rush forward and confront the Frenchman, his next to drop back, to remain unobserved behind and follow him.

The latter course he followed.

Where he went he could not tell, being unversed in the ways and the byways of the great city, but he was taken in and out of by-streets and glums, mostly inhabited by French refugees; presently the two men entered a house, from which, after a lapse of an hour, which to Sutherland seemed an eternity, the Frenchman emerged alone.

He called up a hansom; Sutherland called up one also, and they rattled away after each other.

The Frenchman's hansom stopped presently at a house in Gower street. Sutherland, after noting the number of the house in passing, pulled up his hansom at the corner of the next street and walked quietly back again.

By this time both Cassidore and his hansom had disappeared, but Sutherland recognized the place. He walked up and down on the opposite side of the way, examining the house, staring at it as it would; faintly penetrate those dark walls, and see the fair face which he suspected to be within.

Then he calmly walked over, knocked at the door and inquired for "Madame Cassidore."

The servant admitted him, and he was at once shown upstairs. In one room Sutherland was fortunate—Cassidore was not at home.

He had entered the house only for a moment to give his hurried instructions to Marjorie.

"Pack up your things at once," he had said; "prepare yourself by the hour of my return. We leave for Paris to-night."

They had hastened down again, entered the hansom, and driven away.

Just an hour later the hansom containing Cassidore stopped again before the house. This time the man recalled his face, and the cab drove away empty, while Cassidore entered the house and went up to his rooms.

He found Marjorie in tears, and John Sutherland by her side.

"At sight of the latter he started, looking the reverse of pleased; the presence of the young painter, by no means desirable at any time, was at that moment particularly embarrassing. But Cassidore was not easily abashed; his presence of mind only deserted him for a moment; then he came forward with a sinister smile.

"So it is you, monsieur," he said. "I am amazed, but I cannot say that I am altogether pleased, since through finding Marjorie in your presence, I see her with a sorrowful face, and with tears in her eyes."

He came forward as he spoke, and held forth his hand, but Sutherland did not take it. He rose from his seat, and stood awkwardly looking at the two.

Marjorie rushed forward and took her husband's arm.

"Ah, Leon," she said, "do not be angry because I cried a little at seeing an old friend. Though I love the past, my love for you is not less, and he has told me some strange news."

Cassidore smiled down upon her and patted her cheek. It was wonderful how self-possessed he felt now, how he felt that no one could step between him and his prize.

"Well, my child," he said, "and what is that great news which he has told you?"

He has told me of my mother, Leon—of my dear mother."

"Positively?"

"Do you understand Leon, that Miss Hetherington is my—"

"A sister, I understand, little one? If I remember rightly, it fell to my share to kiss the lady with the fact some time ago, and she could not deny it."

"Then you did not enjoy it, and you never uttered a word, you never told me, Leon?"

"I could not certainly not, my dear Leon! It was not my province to reveal the dark secrets on the face of the proud old lady of the castle."

"It was not your province to tempt an innocent girl away from her home and her friends," cried Sutherland, "but you have done it!"

The Frenchman flushed angrily.

Photography as a Profession Should Appeal to the Fair Sex.

Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston, the photographic artist, writes, in the Ladies' Home Journal, on "What a Woman Can Do With a Camera," telling the requisites for artistic and financial success in the pursuit of photography as a profession. "It is a profession," she contends, "that should strongly appeal particularly to women, and in it there are great opportunities for a good-paying business—but only under very well-defined conditions. The prime requisites—as summed up in my mind after long experience and thought—are these: The woman who makes photography profitable must have, as to personal qualities, good common sense, unlimited patience to carry her through endless failures, equally unlimited tact, good taste, a quick eye, a talent for detail, and a genius for hard work. In addition, she needs training, experience, some capital, and a field to exploit. This may seem, at first glance, an appalling list, but it is incomplete rather than exaggerated; although to an energetic, ambitious woman, with even ordinary opportunities, success is always possible, and hard, intelligent and conscientious work seldom fails to develop small beginnings into large results.

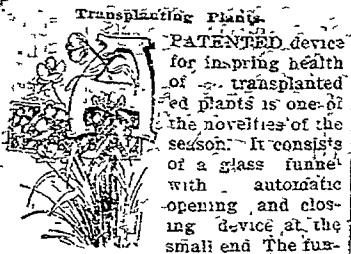

"Good work should command good prices and the wise woman will place a paying value upon her best efforts. It is a mistaken business policy to try and build up a trade by doing something badly cheaper than some body else. As to your personal attitude, be business-like in all your methods, cultivate tact, an affable manner, and an unfailing courtesy. It costs nothing but a little self-control and determination to be patient and good-natured under most circumstances. A pleasant, obliging, and business-like bearing will often prove the most important part of a clever woman's capital."

Many of the convicts in French prisons are paid for their labor, and earn about 35 cents a day. Half of this they are allowed to spend for extra food, postage, etc., and the rest is saved to be given to them on their discharge.

SCIENTIFIC POINTERS.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

An Invention for the Protection of Life at Sea—An Automatic Whistle for Use on Bicycles—Transplanting Plants—Sterilizing Water.

The plant, and it is claimed practically removing it from one place to another. This is all well, but an experienced florist who does not believe in following old methods quite as closely has thought out something much better than this, which has been tested by so many experiments that its excellence is vouched for. It is the common custom to make plants extremely wet before they are lifted from the place of their original growth. Instead of this the reverse is the method employed. The plants are permitted to become as dry as possible before moving. They are carefully freed from the soil, that might cling to the tender rootlets and break them off. Then the plant is put into its new location, thoroughly watered, shaded for a few hours or a day or two if convenient, and goes on its way growing vigorously. The dryer the plants the better the results, and if they have been kept dry for a number of days, so much the better.

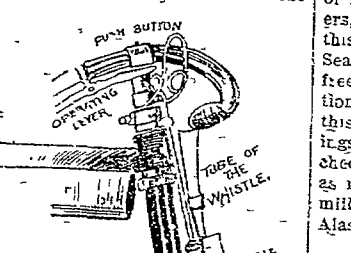

The sterilization of water has become a most important item in domestic economy. Scientists long ago found out that ordinary processes of filtration are not only unsatisfactory but absolutely a waste of time and strength. What is necessary is some preparation that will destroy the pathogenic germs. A German chemist has been conducting a series of experiments with results which promise almost certain freedom from the dangers that attend the use of ordinary water. A solution of bromine and bichloride of potassium is put into the water, then the bromine is removed by a weak solution of ammonia. Satisfactory and comparatively have these experiments been that there is every reason to hope that some simple and harmless compound may be put before the public which will, when added to water of doubtful quality, render it perfectly harmless, as far as these germs are concerned. It is, however, necessary to add that such preparations should never be employed unless they bear the stamp of the highest authority. Such compounds should be endorsed by boards of health and nothing should be relied upon for this purpose without such endorsement.

Sterilizing Water.

Now that the people are demanding that the dangers attending bicycling on the streets be minimized, a St. Louis man has invented an alarm signal to be attached to the wheel. It is a whistle that in a modified way will give its alarm signals just as effectively as the whistle of the steamboat or the locomotive. Instead of steam, the power which makes the alarm talk out its warnings is just plain wind generated by the bicycle as it moves. The inventor, Charles O. Sobness, gave a demonstration of the working of the bicycle whistle. As he swept along the top of the alarm ranged from a gentle buzz to a blast that could be heard a block. The alarm is of nickel, weighs less than a pound, and is simple in construction. It is attached to the Automatic Bicycle Whistle.

Economies of the Yukon Trade.
 The story of California and Alaska is being repeated today, death by hunger, cold and thirst is being again encountered in the desert regions west of the 100th meridian by the rush of gold miners hustling and squabbling to the Yukon valley of Alaska, where in degrees below zero is accounted mild winter. From the published accounts it would seem that the gold fields of Alaska hold out greater inducements than the gold-quartz reefs of the Transvaal; that in the Yukon Valley the lateral streams run over beds of gold dust and nuggets, and that the precious metal may be gathered by the simplest process and without using quartz-mills to stamp the gold out of rocks. Whether thousands of miners, now at work on their way to this new Eldorado—6,500 miles from Seattle and civilization—starve or freeze to death this winter is a question yet to be solved. But, however, this question is solved, their sufferings and death will not perceptibly check the rush of gold-hunters; so long as it is believed that there are untold millions of gold in the streams of Alaska waiting for claimants.

Magnetized by Lightning.

Among the curious effects ascribed to lightning is the magnetization of parts of rocks struck by it. The existence of such magnetized rocks has long been known, but the supposition that their condition was due in many cases to lightning has only recently been confirmed by a curious observation of Doctor Folger at among the walls of ancient buildings on the campaign near Rome. He found strong magnetic points and zones in the walls precisely like those occasionally encountered in rocks. The fact that the magnetization often included more than one block of stone in the wall was regarded as proving that the magnetic property had been acquired after the building was erected, and the agency of lightning was indicated by neighboring cracks in the walls.

Experiments show that a light of candle power is plainly visible at one mile, and one of three-candle power at two miles. A ten candle power light was seen with a binocular at four miles, one of twenty-nine at five miles, though faintly, and one of thirty-three candle at the same distance without difficulty. On an exceptionally clear night a white light of 32 candle power can be distinguished at three miles, one of 34 at four, and one of thirty-five at five miles.

An Electric Plant.

A plant has recently been discovered in Nicaragua, which appears to be charged with electricity. If one of its branches is touched with the naked hand, a distinct shock is felt similar to that produced by a battery. Its influence upon a magnetic needle is noticeable at a distance of half a dozen yards, and as one gets nearer the plant this influence increases, while, if the instrument is placed in the center of the bush, it will assume a steady circular movement. The intensity of the phenomenon seems to depend entirely upon the time of day. The maximum of the electrical influence occurs about two o'clock in the afternoon, while during the night it ceases altogether. In stormy weather its remarkable properties are considerably increased. The plant has been named the payol-seca.

Fights for a Tree's Life.

The oldest tree in the great botanical garden, the Jardin des Plantes, at Paris, is an acacia, planted 250 years ago. This tree is described by La Nature as being covered with wrinkles of old age, and supported on crutches. It has, with difficulty, withstood recent tempests. Its wounds have been covered with plasters, and its falling trunk and branches bound and stiffened with rods and braces. A determined effort is being made to save its life, and much gratification is expressed to cause it has, this season, once more put forth leaves. But the managers of the garden have posted a bulletin announcing that another tempest will be likely to end the old tree's career.

To Protect Life at Sea.

An English inventor has perfected a contrivance that should lessen the perils of the sea. It is a door for use in watertight compartments, and the plan of it is so very simple that the wonder is that it was not earlier devised. The door is double and slides around a circular frame set in the partition. Opening one side of it need essarily close the other. Therefore the door is always closed. It is easy to pass through in the manner shown in the illustration. This invention, if introduced widely, will do away with a great source of danger to ships in leaving doors open between watertight compartments.

Economies of the Yukon Trade.

The story of California and Alaska is being repeated today, death by hunger, cold and thirst is being again encountered in the desert regions west of the 100th meridian by the rush of gold miners hustling and squabbling to the Yukon valley of Alaska, where in degrees below zero is accounted mild winter. From the published accounts it would seem that the gold fields of Alaska hold out greater inducements than the gold-quartz reefs of the Transvaal; that in the Yukon Valley the lateral streams run over beds of gold dust and nuggets, and that the precious metal may be gathered by the simplest process and without using quartz-mills to stamp the gold out of rocks. Whether thousands of miners, now at work on their way to this new Eldorado—6,500 miles from Seattle and civilization—starve or freeze to death this winter is a question yet to be solved. But, however, this question is solved, their sufferings and death will not perceptibly check the rush of gold-hunters; so long as it is believed that there are untold millions of gold in the streams of Alaska waiting for claimants.

Magnetized by Lightning.

Among the curious effects ascribed to lightning is the magnetization of parts of rocks struck by it. The existence of such magnetized rocks has long been known, but the supposition that their condition was due in many cases to lightning has only recently been confirmed by a curious observation of Doctor Folger at among the walls of ancient buildings on the campaign near Rome. He found strong magnetic points and zones in the walls precisely like those occasionally encountered in rocks. The fact that the magnetization often included more than one block of stone in the wall was regarded as proving that the magnetic property had been acquired after the building was erected, and the agency of lightning was indicated by neighboring cracks in the walls.

A ten candle power light was seen with a binocular at four miles, one of twenty-nine at five miles, though faintly, and one of thirty-three candle at the same distance without difficulty. CLOTHING!

We sell Clothing, yes, and lots of it too. For some time past we have used this space mainly to keep you posted on our movements in the Dry Goods department and haven't said much about our Clothing department, but we have been "sawing wood" there just the same, and we now want to say to you that this week we have received an elegant new line of Clothing, in the new styles, and the nobbiest goods in the market in both Suits and Overcoats. Ask our Mr. Hutton to show you the best Clay Worsted Suit for $11 on earth; he can and will do it, and they're beauts. Also fine line of Hats, Caps and Neckwear.

Shoe Dept. Our Shoe trade is moving along very nicely. In button or lace we start the price at an even hundred cents per pair. $1.50 gets a beauty; $1.75 to $2.50 are very fine dressy goods, and trade winners.

Bed Blankets. We had about 500 pair of White and Grey, and they are going at a "Nancy Hanks" gate; the size, quality and especially the price, is doing it. Yes, 39c a Pair. Also we are showing the finest line of Wool Rose Bed Blankets ever displayed in my store.

Dress Goods. Yes Dress Goods. Are they moving? Well I should think so. Call and see for yourself the style, quality and price combined, sure to please you; and remember, we are giving Free of Charge the Linings and Trimmings with every full dress pattern at 24c and above that price. Don't be too hasty, but look this over again, there is meat in it and then come to the Bargain Center of this section of Michigan, the "busy big store" and save money.

Mrs. Smelds of Howell, formerly Miss Hattie Brown of this place, who has been very sick at the residence of her father, George Brown, is slowly recovering.

Mrs. Geo. Stehle and son, Mrs. Jennie Ripley, and Miss Edith Buck drove to Novi last Tuesday to visit Rev. J. J. Tickner and family. Fenton Center cor. Fenton Independent.

We notice by one of our county papers that Mildred Wallace of Oxford, a former teacher here, has given up teaching and has taken one pupil for life. May success and prosperity be theirs.

Harry Bogart will preside over the Town line school this season. The district has secured a fine young man at all events and judging from reports or Harry's form-r work in this line they will have a first class school.

The Detroit Free Press tells of a stalk of corn 10 ft. 6 in. long, and the Brighton Argus knows of one 12 ft. 10 in. to length. Andrew Harmon didn't stretch one that he cut in his field the other day, so it only measured up 11 ft. 9 in.

The W.B.M. circle will hold a New England social next week Friday evening in the church parlors, for the purpose of helping out their associational appointment for this year. There will be unique features in connection with the serving of the supper, and every body is requested to wear old fashioned costumes if possible. A good attendance is especially desired, as the funds much needed. Make a special effort to come, and try to help make the affair a success.

The furniture and underfahing house of Sano & Porter is now connected with Novi by telephone. Free service. Calls promptly attended to day or night.

FARMINGTON.

Mrs. Jennie White is quite ill.

The chap who borrowed Senator Warner's bicycle in Detroit this week has thus far forgotten to return it.

Telephone connection with the Northville company's line at Novi is expected to be made this week. The wire is all up and the connection is delayed because of the switch board being out of order.

THE SENATOR'S BIKE.

Fred M. Warner's Was Stolen in Detroit Monday.

While Senator Warner was busily engaged in selling cheese out on Grand River avenue, Detroit, Monday, some one sneaked off with his bike which he had carefully rested along the store before entering. Fortunately the senator had a return railroad ticket with him and thus avoided a homeward walk.

CASEY'S STORY.

Tells Some Queer Things About a Bachelor's Suit.

The examination of Justice James Casey and wife on the charge of appropriating $1,000 of money given them for deposit by bachelor John Arthur, of Farmington, was resumed at Pontiac last week.

Casey admitted being with his wife when the first $500 of Arthur's money was deposited, and says witnesses will swear that the money was given Mrs. Casey outright, but he maintains that Mrs. Casey was instructed to keep still about it. Casey's theory is that the money was given for the purpose of alienating his wife's affections.

"Once in Arthur's own house," says Casey, "Arthur asked me, in my wife's presence, to go down cellar and help him move a big stone, so as to enable him to open a safe that was out of sight behind this stone. I said: 'Johnnie, for God's sake don't ask me to help you; nor don't you tell me where that money is. Some thugs may come out from Detroit, pull your toenails, make you tell where the safe is, and then you might blame it on me.'"

"I didn't help him and don't know in what part of the wall the safe is, but I guess it's there."

"A Farmington man sent word that he wanted to see me. I took a first-class witness with me and drove over."

"Now, Jim," said he, "you've got a pile of boodle out of Johnnie Arthur; whack up with me, and I will be with you to the end."

"I said, 'calling him by name, I'm not buying up witnesses.'"

"All right," he answered, "I'm on the side that's got the most money in it, and I'll help John."

SALEM.

R. H. Thayer of Washington, D. C. is visiting Salem friends for a few days.

Mrs. N. E. Rider and Miss Martha Rider returned from Dunkirk and Buffalo on Friday of last week.

WALLED LAKE.

Lizzie Tuttle of Detroit is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Claude Mitchell is the proud possessor of a bicycle, the gift of his father.

Mr. Mitchell the former Methodist pastor will be returned to this charge. This will give universal satisfaction.

W. C. McIntosh who has resided here four years, three of which he was pastor of the Methodist church, goes to Hartland Center this year. He and his family will be greatly missed and will carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends.

We can tell a bigger snake story than the Novi correspondent—two of them in fact. Mrs. Helen Church killed a rattlesnake on her steps last week and Mamie and Myra Smith killed a blue racer on their way to school one morning. Those two were not common streaked snakes either.

Thank You, Very Well Indeed.

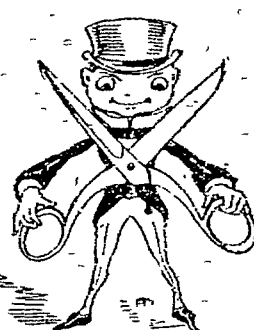

So many solicitous patrons—friends have asked, "Are you doing well in your new store?" that we are induced to head our ad with the above reply, so that "he who runs may read."

We make our sole aim to please our patrons. We have two wagons and deliver quick. That's one pleasing feature. We always keep on hand a choice line of Groceries, Fruits, and Vegetables and have them fresh—that's another pleasing thing. Prices always right—that's another.
