FOUR THOUSAND.

More than that Many Leaguers in the Detroit District.

ANNUAL CONVENTION HERE LAST WEEK A GREAT SUCCESS.

Hundred and Forty Conversions Reported During Past Year.

Chas. Dolph Re-elected Secretary Next Convention at Wayne.

A brick thrown anywhere in Northville last week Friday or Saturday would have struck an Epworth Leaguer. For two days the little city was thronged with bright faces, whose clothes were adorned with the red and white league badges. This eighth annual Detroit district Epworth League convention opened Friday afternoon under auspicious circumstances, and was the most successful and largest in point of attendance of any previous convention ever held in this district, if not in the state. One hundred delegates were registered, every league in the district being represented.

A special train with nearly 500 enthusiastic Detroit leaguers arrived at 6:30 and were met at the depot by the local chapter with a brass band. After a march up through the streets, under huge banners suspended across the various streets bearing the cheering word "Welcome," the handsome Methodist church was reached, in the parlors of which a banquet was tendered, the "rally 300" and delegates. W. H. Hutton, of Northville gave the address of welcome and W. Scott Jones of Detroit responded.

Besides the address of the evening by Rev. Dr. Allen of Ypsilanti, the feature was the singing by the ladies quartet, Misses Elta Dutton, Emma Hough, Madeline D. C. Morris and F. A. Vernon of the Stuyvesant church of Detroit. The ladies are called the "Non-such" quartet at home, so one of the jolly party told the Record representative, and their singing was fully equal to the advertised quality of those famous mince pies.

Dr. Allen's address was a hummer. His subject was "Ways of making Epworth League work more effective in this district." His remarks were along the line of social and devotional development, systematic giving and closer relation between the league and pastor. His thought was that as nine out of ten conversions were before reaching the age of 40, that like hegets like, and therefore the young people could better work with young people and middle-aged with those of middle age.

The special train bearing the Detroiters for the return trip left at 10:30 p. m. The Saturday morning session opened with an early dawn service followed by the regular business session at 9:30 o'clock. The secretary's report showed fifty chapters in the district which comprises Wayne, county and a portion of Washtenaw and Oakland counties. The total membership is 4,150. During the past year 140 conversions were reported. An interesting feature of the day's program was the talk on "The preparation of the junior superintendent," by Miss Julia Robinson, from the central league office in Chicago.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President D. C. Morris of Detroit; first vice president Dr. J. F. Spring of Pontiac; second vice president Miss Susie Doolittle of Wyandotte; third vice president Rev. H. C. Calvin of Bellville; fourth vice president C. J. Curtis of Plymouth; secretary C. A. Dolph Northville; treasurer C. H. Nixon Wyandotte; superintendent of junior work Miss Bell Harris of Detroit; member state nominating committee Rev. Clarence Allen Wyandotte. The next conference will be held in Wayne.

Much of the phenomenal success of the Northville meet was due to the hustling work of Secretary Dolph, of this place, and his collaborators of the local league.

ON THE STAGE.

TWO OF THE MORGAN CO. WERE MARRIED FRIDAY NIGHT.

Gave Away a Live Pig as a Saturday Night Prize.

The Courteney Morgan Company closed a very successful week at the Northville opera house Saturday night upon a high occasion 325 people were present, the largest crowd of years. The company gave a first class entertainment as was evinced by the highly increased attendance. On Friday night Ernest F. S. Coffing, a nephew of Mr. Morgan, and Miss Ruth E. Taylor, a sister of Mrs. Morgan, were united in marriage. Rev. J. H. Berdener performed the ceremony at the close of the last act of Felicia, the entire company appearing in the beautiful costumes of the play. There were 400 people present to witness the novel and exceedingly pretty event.

The additional side attraction Saturday night was the giving away of a live young pig and young Forrest Green held the lucky number. The program called for the carrying of the "rooster" from the stage to the out door and though the animal put up some little resistance, the boy was equal to the occasion and after four minutes of tug and squeals pluckily landed his "bird" amid the applause and laughter of the audience.

Mrs. Ida E. Joslin, Northville. Elected Grand Matron of the OES of Michigan in Detroit last week, she having previously worthily held the offices of Associate Grand Conductress and Associate Grand Matron.

Holly Methodists petitioned the Port Huron conference to return Rev. A. A. Maywood to the pastorate at that city, but he was sent to Marquette, and Rev. C. E. Hannawalt was sent to Holly. Mr. Hannawalt was not suited with the charge and he joined the Ohio conference and thereby Holly Methodists are shy one pastor.

The superintendent of our own and neighboring towns have been honored by being placed upon the standing committees as follows: Tanner, Novi—Justice claims; to settle with county treasurer; Hogie, Farmington—Ways and means; sheriff's account; Crippen, Milford—Ways and means; township expenses; Sibley, Commerce—Miscellaneous claims; salary of county officers.

The first annual meeting of the Novi Sunday school association was held last week Friday afternoon and evening in the Griswold school house. Both sessions were interesting and well attended. The ladies of the neighborhood entertained those in attendance with a delicious supper between the sessions. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President J. A. Smith; vice president Mrs. Della Harmon; secretary Mrs. Sarah Taylor; treasurer Miss Alma Brown. The officers constitute the executive committee. It was decided to hold the meetings of the association semi-annually. There are only four Sunday schools in this township, a fact

J. M. Thisvend, of Crosbeck, Tex., says that when he has a spell of indigestion, and feels bad and sluggish, he takes two of DeWitt's Little Early Risers at night, and he is all right the next morning. Many thousands of others do the same thing. Do you Murdoch Bros.

rather surprising at first to one who has not considered the matter, but this by no means indicates the bright condition which might seem to be denoted. The two schools at Novi, the Baptist with an enrollment of 185 or more, and the Methodist with an attendance of 40 or 50 must very evidently draw from a large area. Then the schools at the stone school house and at the one where meeting was held are both in the south westerly part of the township, while schools in the western part of Farmington provide for those in the eastern portions who do not attend at Novi or Farmington. Wixom and Walled Lake, just over the northern line—or rather on both sides of it—take their share, and of course quite a good many attend at Northville on the southern boundary of the town.

The debate at the W. N. C. last Saturday evening was a very animated and interesting one, and resulted in a decision for the affirmative. The club has decided to shorten the miscellaneous part of its programs hereafter, making the discussions the main feature of the meeting, as the members are convinced that if all unite in endeavoring to make them so, the debates will be the department productive of "the greatest good to the greatest number." For this week's meeting the following is submitted:

Usual opening business.
Music—Miss Blanche Dunham.
Recitation—Arthur Rogers.
Reading—Mrs. Zada B. Durham.

Wants a Job.

The following letter from a Northville citizen received a few days ago by one of our well known business men is all the more interesting because the man was really in earnest in his application for a job. A year or so ago he made a similar request in about as unique a manner. The letter is printed below as written, less name:

Dear Sir:—Could you give me any encouragement about work in your shops if you will half to 50 in the country for 25 cents in the pocket. I never can catch a bird without leaving a New Pair of Pants are made for men and not for pants. Women are made for men and not for pants. When a man pants for a woman and a woman pants for a man, they are a pair of pants. Mistakes are often made in such pants. Such mistakes lead to breach of Promises. Pants are like molasses. They are thinner in summer and thicker in winter. Men get on a tear in their pants and it is all wrong. There has been much discussion as to whether Pants is singular or plural. It seems to us when even wear pants they are plural and when they don't wear any they are singular. Please favor me that I may leave my order for Pants etc.

CHAPTER XXVIII. (Continued) You are complimentary to your friend's husband. "My friend," exclaimed the girl, "ah, no, monsieur, she is not that she is too good for that—and if she used to be his friend, tell him he ought to help her. She wants some one's help."

Just now why Caussidiere neglects his wife, and I tell you. "He has an intrigue with an actress," said the girl. "Not exactly. He simply prefers her company. When Madame Mere sends a little check, Caussidiere changes it, gives Seraphine a little supper, and leaves his wife to mind the baby at home. Voilà tout."

CHAPTER XXIX. SUTHERLAND'S wife's eyes were correct. Matters between husband and wife were rapidly coming to a climax. Day after day, and some of times night after night, Caussidiere was from home, and when he was there his manner toward his wife and child was almost brutal.

NEW ROUTE TO REALTY. Little fragments, palatable, digestible, and easy to eat, are the new route to the pocket or the lady's purse. On the table are stamped the letters, "C. C. C." Caussidiere, Candy Cathartic. Eat one like candy and the little tablet at once purifies the system, regulates the bowels, and restores the whole digestive tract.

There is a Class of People Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 25 cents per package. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cents and 25 cents per package. Try it! Ask for GRAIN-O.

MRS. ELLA MGARVY, Writing to Mrs. Pinkham. She says:—I have been using your Vegetable Compound and find that it does all that it is recommended to do. I have been a sufferer for the last four years with womb trouble, weak back and excruciating pains. I was hardly able to do my household duties, and while about my work was so nervous that I was unable to sleep. I had also given up when I was persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am feeling like a new woman.—Mrs. ELLA MGARVY, No. 608 Road Station, Cincinnati, O.

Mr. Herdener's Answer To "The Household of Faith" Question

Editor Record:—My session having decided that there is nothing in the following calculated to provoke a religious controversy, I now put it at your disposal. The assertion to which Bro. Ward refers in his article of Sept. 17, headed "The Household of Faith", was not intended as an attack on the Methodist church. The sermon was a criticism of modern christianity, of which the Methodist church is a part. So much that my Methodist brethren may understand that I have no unpleasant feelings against them. It was also stated in that sermon that the assertion was based upon a Methodist minister's interpretation—that it was a christian's duty to patronize a church member in preference to others. I understood the minister to mean the members of that church and am confident that the whole congregation present did the same.

In answer to Bro. Ward I wish now to say that I am indirectly informed by a regular attendant of his church that he teaches exactly what I understood the Methodist minister to teach. As he indirectly disclaims this in his article, my informant has of course made a mistake. But there is no mistake in this—some have so understood him. It is peculiar that the popular mind will unconsciously adopt the logical conclusion rather than stop where a discipline indicates it should. The logical conclusion of the discipline as quoted by Bro. Ward is that of which I accused it and the discipline itself is itself unobjectionable. It teaches that a christian should patronize a christian in business in preference to others. That is the teaching of the Bible, not even of that text which Bro. Ward quotes. A christian's obligation is not limited by another profession, but by his own opportunity of doing good. Of two merchants, one a christian and the other not, you should patronize the one who is not a christian, if by so doing you can do more good. Suppose the one not a christian was in need of trade, and liable to fail for lack of it. The christian merchant was not in such need and danger. Then it would be a christian's duty to help the "under dog."

The teaching of the Bible in general and of Gal. 6:16 in particular is that you should do good unto all men—the discipline should have quoted all of the passage—as we have opportunity. To be biblical the discipline should have read thus: "All who continue in these societies shall * * * evidence their desire of salvation * * * by doing good unto all men, especially to those of the household of faith * * * other things being equal, employing them preferably to others etc." The omission of the above italicized words makes the discipline narrower than the Bible, and contrary to the true spirit of christianity. J. H. HERDENER.

J. C. Berry, one of the best known citizens of Spencer, Mo., testifies that he cured himself of the worst kind of piles by using a few boxes of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. He had been troubled with piles for over thirty years and had used many different kinds of so-called cures, but DeWitt's was the one that did the work and he will verify this statement if any one wishes to write him. # THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

SUPPLEMENT

Vol. XXIX, No. 11

NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1897

$1.00 per year in advance

High-school Notes.

So far this year, no class has been obliged to renege at 4 o'clock.

Paul Dubuar was unable to attend school the first of the week on account of illness.

Janet Daniels returned to school Monday. She resumed her place in the second year Latin class.

The high-school boys have organized a foot-ball team and are getting down to work in good earnest. Prof. Bliss is the manager and Bert Northrop is captain. Friday afternoon a practice game will be played with some of the young men about town. A series of games is being arranged for with the Milford high-school team, one or two of which will be played here.

The first of the entertainments for the benefit of the High-school piano fund came off Tuesday evening, and in spite of the rain, a fair-sized audience was present. The entertainment was first-class, and everyone who attended was well pleased. Miss Babbit and Miss Clarkson both did excellently in their lines, and that Miss Dubuar did extremely well as accompanist goes without saying. When the High school has another entertainment it is to be hoped that it will not rain.

Roy Hill, the lad who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Cass Benton and whose illness of peritonitis was noted last week is now pronounced out of danger. Here was a case where peritonitis resulted entirely from a stoppage of the bowels and not appendicitis. The attending physicians inform us that at no time during the boy's illness was appendicitis apparent and therefore there was no necessity for an operation. We make this explanation lest it might appear that some recent operations for appendicitis were apparently unnecessary. There was no similarity.

The Bay View Circle at a meeting elected officers as follows: President J. Y. Blackwood; vice president Mabel Clark; secretary Chas. Dolph; treasurer Ralph Diserens; critic Miss Thompson. A regular meeting will be held Monday night at the home of James McFarlin when the regular work of German history will be taken up.

Civil Engineer Brown of Detroit who was called out to make the final estimate on the park excavating only makes 5,688 yards. The park board's estimate was a little over 7,000. A Northville minister with inquisitive tendencies, last Sunday discussed the query: "What if the Universalist is right?" We can tell you, Editor Neal, Lawyer Yerkes, Underfaker Porter and two or three other fellows would be getting a blamed sight more punishment in this world, and less misery in the next.—Adrian Press.

While driving from Northville Monday Mrs. Abbey of Walled Lake saw some dogs in Harrison Yerkes' flock of sheep north of town. She quickly drove back to the village and notified Mr. Yerkes who reached his farm in time to save his flock from serious devastation, though the dogs had already killed and injured several.

In reply to a communication the F. & P. M. railroad company has advised the village council that under their contract with the Bell Telephone company they are unable to allow the New State company to place a phone in their depot here. The New State people have not yet given the matter up and will try some other way of getting their line into the Northville depot.

Dr. Patterson took Harry McEachran to the Detroit hospital this week where he underwent an operation. The lad was injured about six weeks ago by falling from a wagon. The operation disclosed that one kidney was crushed and a pus formed. He is now on the gain and it is thought out of danger. The McEachran family live on the L. W. Sumner's farm east of the village.

The opera house is being equipped with new heating stoves of a large size, and incandescent electric lights are being put on the stage and through the audience room. A double set of swing doors are also to be placed at the upstairs entrance and new curtains have been put up in the boxes. These improvements will be appreciated by the public which go to make the building more attractive and comfortable. A little later seats will probably be added to the gallery, a little paint and frescoing here and there in the dress circle and some new scenery put on the stage.

The Rock Band concert given by the Tilt family in the opera house last Friday evening was without doubt one of the most unique musical entertainments that has ever been given before a Holly audience. This old and popular concert band, which has delighted many of the notables on the other side of the Atlantic is peculiar by reason of the line of instruments that they employ. The marvelous perfection of the rock keyboard from which the band takes its name, is the principal feature and seems to solve the poetic secret of "songs in brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything," while the musical glasses and swinging harps delighted all by their marvelously sweet strains as well as the remarkable execution of the performers who developed them. We hope the Tilt family may visit us again at no distant day.—Holly Independent.

Northville opera house October 30. The refusal of our village board to grant a franchise for the erection of telephone poles through the village was all right.—Courier Cor.

We do not agree with the Courier correspondent at all. A franchise is for the protection of the people as much—sometimes more—as for a company, and as a protection to the people the council failed in its duty by not granting one under reasonable restrictions. Today with two outside telephone companies in our midst the people are favored with a low rate for service but tomorrow those same companies may consolidate and there is nothing to prevent the rentals and toll service being placed at the old figure or even higher. A franchise is nothing more or less than a written permission to erect poles and string wires in the corporation, together with a contract that certain prices shall exist and be maintained by the company during the life of the franchise. Some people are scared at the word "franchise" as though it were a great devil, devouring everything in its way. The council could not have granted an exclusive franchise even if they had tried—the law does not permit it. They were needlessly scared and in case of consolidation the people are left as unprotected as in years gone by.

A PRACTICAL TEST.

By W. A. Bright.

HE curtain rang down, and the play was over. A drama it had been called, but it partook of tragedy, and its strong climaxes, handled as they were by competent players, were received by the audience with uncontrolled storms of applause.

My friend Lester and I, old theatergoers as we were, thrilled with the others at the strong human touch of the actors' art, and were silent as we slowly moved onward in the perfumed crush and chatter of the fashionable crowd.

Released from the spell of the counterfeit world in which we had lived for some two hours, the prosaic reality of actual life soon brought us back to our normal condition of mind.

"Doesn't it seem strange," said Lester, who carried all kinds of theories in his head, "that a play like that should impress anyone as a true representation of life?"

"So it seemed to me," I answered, in some surprise, for Lester, I had noticed, had yielded as fully, if not more so, to the spell of the performance than I myself had.

"Yes," said Lester, "I know that's true, but you haven't caught my idea. No wonder, though, for I haven't advanced it yet. I was just thinking of the language that playwrights and novelists put in the mouths of their characters."

"When do you ever hear real people use such stilted, high-sounding talk?" Of course, I know it's necessary for them to improve on our everyday slipshod lingo, or the whole thing would be a fiasco, but all the same, it isn't true to nature. I refer particularly to strong emotional scenes.

"I don't altogether agree with you," I said. "I think that even in actual life men and women when confronted with some great and sudden danger, like above their petty conventionalities of expression and use language sometimes as passionate, lofty and dramatic as that belonging to literature or the stage."

"You're wrong, old man," said Lester in his positive way. "We're hopelessly unpretentious in our parlance. Get one of us into an end of fifth act denouement, and we either get tongue-tied or talk unintelligible rot. Give us half an hour for preparation, and we might think up something appropriate to say, but not off hand."

allowing others to see what is in our hearts. Our whole talk is devoted to diplomacy, deception and the concealment of our thoughts. But at heart we are still men and women, and a genuine and powerful emotion will, I think, in five cases out of six, bring to the lips words fully as theatrical, melodramatic and 'stagey' as those we heard on the boards of night or read in books."

"You're wrong, old man," said Lester in his positive way. "We're hopelessly unpretentious in our parlance. Get one of us into an end of fifth act denouement, and we either get tongue-tied or talk unintelligible rot. Give us half an hour for preparation, and we might think up something appropriate to say, but not off hand."

"Well," I said, "as the chops came up brown and fragrant, 'you can't expect people to talk blank verse and indulge in elevated apostrophe on ordinary occasions, but I dare say that the first time you happen to witness a scene with the proper amount of tragedy in it, you'll hear some talk very much the same kind you find between novel covers and across the footlights.'"

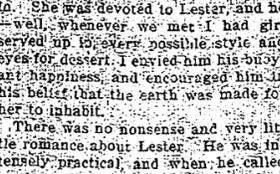

"I guess not," said Lester.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"THE THREE TAVERNS" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text: Acts, Chapter XXVIII, Verse 15. As Follows: "They Came to Meet Us in Part at Apollonia and the Three Taverns."

SEVENTEEN miles south of Rome, Italy, there was a village of unfortunate name. A tavern, a place of entertainment in our time, part of the entertainment is a provision of intoxicants. One such place, you would think would have been enough for that Italian village.

No, there were three of them, with doors open for entertainment and obfuscation. The world has never lacked stimulating drinks. You remember the condition of Noah on one occasion, and of Abigail's husband, Nabal, and the story of Belshazzar's Feast, and Balaam, and the wine women of olden times, and whole paragraphs on prohibition enacted thousands of years before Neal Dow was born, and no man knew more of the whole matter of the inflammatory liquid in those bottles which gave the name to the village, where Paul's friends came to meet him, namely, the Three Taverns. In vain I search ancient geography for some satisfying account of that village. Two roads came from the sea coast to that place, the one from Actium, and the other from Puteoli, the last road being the one which Paul traveled. There were, no doubt, in that village houses of merchandise and mechanics' shops, and professional offices, but nothing is known of them. All that we know of that village is that it had a profusion of inns—the Three Taverns. Paul did not choose any one of these taverns as the place to meet his friends. He certainly was very abstemious, but they made the selection. He had enlarged about keeping the body under, though once he prescribed for a young theological student a stimulating cordial for a stomachic disorder; but he told him to take only a small dose—a little wine for the stomach's sake.

One of the worst things about these Three Taverns was that they had a special temptation for those who had just come ashore. People who had just landed at Actium or Puteoli were soon tempted by these three hotels which were only a little way up from the beach. Those who are disordered of the sea for it is a physical deorganizer, instead of waiting for the gradual return of physical equipoise, are apt to take artificial means to brace up. Of the one millionaires now in the sea, how few of them coming ashore will occupy the Three Taverns. After surviving hurricanes, cyclones, icebergs, collisions, many of them are wrecked in harbor. I warrant that if a calculation were made of the comparative number of sailors lost at sea, and lost ashore, those drowned by the eastern wave of dissipation would far outnumber those drowned by the salt water.

That that big large majority of those who go down to the sea in ships should have twice to pass the Three Taverns, namely, before they go out, and after they come in. That fact was what aroused Father Taylor, the great sailor's preacher at the Sailors' Bethel, Boston, and at a public meeting at Charlestown, he said, "All the machinery of the drunkard making, soul destroying business is in perfect running order, from the low grog holes on the docks kept open to ruin my poor sailor boys, to the great establishments in Still House square, and when we ask men what is to be done about it, they say, 'you can't help it; and yet there is Bunker Hill and you say you can't stop it, and up there are Lexington and Concord.' We might answer Father Taylor's remark by saying, 'the trouble is not that we can't stop it, but that we won't stop it.' We must have more generations slain before the world will fully wake up to the evil. That which tempted the travelers of old who came up from the seaports of Actium and Puteoli, is now the ruin of seafaring men as they come up from the coasts of all the continents, namely, the Three Taverns. In the autumn, about this time, in the year 1837, the steamship Home went out from New York for Charleston. There were about one hundred passengers, some of them widely known. Some of them had been summering at the northern watering places and they were on their way south, all expectant of hearty greeting by their friends on the wharves of Charleston. A little more than two days out the ship struck the rocks. A life boat was launched, but sank with all its passengers. A mother was seen standing on the deck of the steamer with her child in her arms. A wave reached the child from the mother's arms and pulled it into the sea, and the mother leaped after it. The sailors rushed to the bar of the boat and drank themselves drunk. Ninety-five human beings went down never to rise, or to be floated upon the beach amid the fragments of the wreck. What was the cause of the disaster? A drunken sea captain. But not until the judgment day, when the sea shall give up its dead and the story of earthly disasters shall be fully told, will it be known how many yachts, steamers, brigantines, men-of-war and ocean greyhounds have been lost through a captain and crew made incompetent by alcoholic debauchery. Admiral Farragut had proper appreciation of what the ferryman was to a man in the navy. An officer of the warship, said to him, 'Admiral, won't you consent to give Jack a glass of grog in the morning?' Not enough to make him drunk, but enough to make him light cheerfully. The admiral answered, 'I have been to sea considerably and the only thing I know of is that a man who goes to sea with a full stomach and a full mind will never get lost.'"

Somebody knocked at the door and I sprang toward it. Lester opened a drawer to his table and fumbled in it. A man had brought a package for Lester. It was the girl's presents returned. While I was closing the door Lester got his pistol and put the ball straight for his heart. I knelt in the smoke and raised his head. A brief gleam of his old quizzical, philosophical humor came into his eye.

"Frank," he said, with a faint smile, "did you hear me get off my stage talk? You were right about that—after all."

"I don't altogether agree with you," I said. "I think that even in actual life men and women when confronted with some great and sudden danger, like above their petty conventionalities of expression and use language sometimes as passionate, lofty and dramatic as that belonging to literature or the stage."

"You're wrong, old man," said Lester in his positive way. "We're hopelessly unpretentious in our parlance. Get one of us into an end of fifth act denouement, and we either get tongue-tied or talk unintelligible rot. Give us half an hour for preparation, and we might think up something appropriate to say, but not off hand."

"Well," I said, "as the chops came up brown and fragrant, 'you can't expect people to talk blank verse and indulge in elevated apostrophe on ordinary occasions, but I dare say that the first time you happen to witness a scene with the proper amount of tragedy in it, you'll hear some talk very much the same kind you find between novel covers and across the footlights.'"

"I guess not," said Lester.

AN ACCIDENT. Mr. Quintus Hummel, of 118 Michigan Ave., Detroit, tells a War Story of his own Experience, and the Result.

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, lacerating a deep cut over five inches long. The injury affected the kidneys. About two years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account: "The accident of my war days left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honey-combed for 13 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good. The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be a new man, but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like a new man than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since taking them."

PEOPLE OF THE COUNTRY.

Few of Them Seemed to Have Learned Anything Noble from Nature.

"For the stability and righteousness of our government we are accustomed to think we must pin our faith on the country people who live near to Nature's heart," writes Mrs. Lyman Abbott in the October Ladies' Home Journal, the first of a series of "Peaceful Valley" papers which picture life in an ideal rural community. "But how many of them," she says, "seem to have learned anything noble from her? Her beauty does not renege them, her honesty does not incite them, her thoroughness, her free-handedness does not inspire them to generosity—they become narrow and sordid in the midst of grandeur and liberality. They imagine there can be nothing in life but work or play, toil or rest, and they feel a contempt for those who play and rest. They have never learned to mingle work and play, toil and rest in due proportion, and they cease to find any pleasure in life unless they abandon work altogether. Like the tired woman who wrote her own epiphany, they fancy heaven a place where they can do nothing forever and ever."

This view of life makes loafers in the village as it makes them in the cities. When a different spirit has found room to grow, a new order of living prevails. Life becomes something more than a slow grinding of the mill; more than a burden, to be endured only because a luxury as well as a necessity. Individuals combine, not for their own advantage, but to multiply benefactions, and as strength increases, by its right use, the attainment of one worthy and ambitious advantage is only the suggestion and achievement of another."

Ethical Philosophy. "Nine times out of ten," said Uncle Eben, "a gemman advises young men to choose some yubuh business day what he got into. He takes it for granted that it took a heavy mool can command his business, for success, Mierwho made laws to restrain intemperance, the consecrated platform orator who thrilled the generations that are gone, with righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come—Albert Barnes and John B. Gough were there to greet him, and golden-tongued patriarch Stephen H. Tyng was there, and John W. Hawkins, the founder of the much despised and gloriously useful "Washington Movement" was there, and John Sterns and Commodore Foote, and Dr. Marsh and Governor Briggs and Eliphalet Nott, and my lovely friend Alfred Colquitt, the Christian Senator, and hundreds of those who labored for the overthrow of the drunkenness that yet curses the earth, were there to meet him and escort him to his throne and shout at his coronation.

God let him live on for near a century, to show what good habits and cheerfulness and faith in the final triumph of all that is good, can do for a man in this world, and to add to the number of those who would be on the other side to attend his entrance. But he will come back again! "Yes," say some of you, with Martha, about Lazarus to Jesus, "I know he will rise at the Resurrection of the last day." Ah, I do not mean that. Ministering spirits are all the time coming and going between earth and heaven—the Bible teaches it—and do not suppose the old hero just ascended will not come down and help us. He will, into the hearts of discouraged reformers, he will come to speak good cheer. When legislators are deciding how they can best stop the rum traffic of America by legal enactment, he will help them vote for the right and rise up undismayed from temporary defeat. In this battle will Neal Dow be until the last victory is gained and the smoke of the last distillery has curled on the air, and the last star of depopled homesteads shall be wiped away. O departed nonagenarian! After you have taken a good rest from your struggle of seventy active years, come down again into the fight, and bring with you a host of the old Christian warriors who once mingled in the fray.

In this battle the visible troops are not so mighty as the invisible. The gospel campaign began with the supernatural—the midnight chant that woke the shepherds, the bushed sea the eyesight given where the patient had been without the optic nerve, the sun obliterated from the noonday heavens, the law of gravitation losing its grip as Christ ascended; and as the gospel campaign began with the supernatural, it will close with the supernatural; and the winds and the waves and the lightnings and the earthquakes will come in, on the right side and against the wrong side, and our ascended champions will return, whether the world sees them or does not see them. I do not think that those great souls departed are going to do nothing hereafter but sing psalms and play harps and breathe frankincense, and walk gem of glass mingled with fire. The mission they fulfilled while in the body will be continued by their post-mortem mission, with faculties quickened and velocities multiplied, and it may have been to that our dying reformer referred when he said, "I long to be free!" There may be bigger words than this to be redeemed, and more gigantic ambitions to be overthrown than this world ever saw; and the discipline gotten here may only be preliminary drill for a campaign in some other world, and perhaps some other constellation. But the crowned heroes and heroines, because of their grander achievements in greater spheres, will not forget this old world where they prayed and suffered and triumphed. Church militant and Church triumphant but two divisions of the same army—right wing and left wing.

With these thoughts I cheer Christian reformers in their work, and what rejoicing on earth and heaven there will be over the consummation. Within a few days one of the greatest of the leaders in this cause went up to enlightenment. The world never had but one Neal Dow, and may never have another. He has been an illumination to the century. The stand he took has directly and indirectly saved hundreds of thousands from drunkard's graves. Seeing the wharves of Rotterdam, stained, covered with casks of West Indian rum (nearly an acre of it at one time), and the city smoking with seven distilleries, he began the warfare against drunkenness more than half a century ago. The good he has done, the homes he has kept inviolate, the high moral sense with which he has infused ten generations, is a story that neither earth nor heaven can afford to let die. Derided, boobyed, caricatured, malign-ed for a quarter of a century as reformer have been he has lived on until at his decease universal newspapers speak his praise and the eulogiums of his career on this side of the sea have been caught up by the cathedral organ sounding his requiem on the other. His whole life having been for God and the world's betterment, when at half-past three o'clock in the afternoon of October second he left his home on earth surrounded by loving ministers, and entered the gates of his eternal residence, I think there was a most unusual welcome and salutation given him. Multitudes enter heaven only because of what Christ has done for them, the welcome not at all intensified because of anything they had done for him. But all heaven knew the story of that good man's life, and the story of his deathbed, where he said, "I long to be free." I think all reformers of this century came out of his work.

Remarkable Recovery After Being Bitten.

Mr. F. T. Summers, who arrived in Liverpool on September 3 from the west coast of Africa, tells an extraordinary tale of his recovery from snake bite. Mr. Summers, who was chief engineer of the steamer Ebnati, had an encounter with a double-headed viper. The snake was about 7 feet long, and Summers is said to be the only man in Africa who has ever survived a bite from a snake of this species. It seems that the natives of Opobo reported a wild elephant in the bush, and District Commissioner Stein, of the Niger Coast Protectorate and Mr. Summers went in pursuit. The snake which made a dash at Summers unobserved, fixed its fangs in the ankle of the right boot. After getting free Summers, who showed great pluck, managed with the aid of his companion, to dispatch the viper by blowing its head off. Immediately after being bitten Summers' leg commenced to swell, and he was carried with all speed to the consulate. In less than an hour the leg was three times its natural size, and the clothing had to be cut from Summers' body. Dr. Thompson, of the Protectorate, who treated the injury, twice injected into the wound either iodine or bromide of potassium. The poison of the viper had entered Summers' body, and even the doctor thought death would take place within nine hours. The chiefs and natives who had been consulted by the doctor to see if they knew of any native antidote, said all persons previously bitten had died in about an hour. Summers was eleven days in the consulate receiving the unremitting attention of Dr. Thompson, and although he was at times delirious, he pulled through. His recovery created great astonishment. Dr. Thompson has written to a medical journal an account of his treatment of the bite. London Daily Mail.
