NOVI, Nov. 17, 1897.—(Staff Correspondence)—The following from a recent issue of the Detroit Daily Tribune is more than of passing moment and it casts an unwarranted and unworthy reflection upon the name of our fair community:

"Novi has gone dry, nothing stronger than gingerale being sold at either hotel. It is alleged that the numerous charges made against the local hotelkeepers connected with so many other alleged crimes, which are now getting an airing in the Novi justice office, have given the place a hard name." "When you get away about 50 miles from Novi," said a Novi farmer, "just remark so a crowd will hear you, that you live in Novi." The crowd will move back and you are alone in a Vorkminster. We've got a bad name an' don't you forget it."—Birmingham Cor. Tribune.

Apparently the Birmingham correspondent would convey the idea that because the attempt is being made in Novi to enforce violated laws and bring transgressors to justice that a person who confessed in other counties to being a citizen of our enterprising burg would be regarded as a sort of moral leper, whose vicinity would be fatally contagious to all, perhaps that might depend on what class of Novi people the traveler represented, for there are two sides to the picture, as I myself can testify. Possibly if some body were to take special pains to furnish all the unsavory occurrences in other places, some of our sister towns might be able to run a close second. Mr. E. J. Birmingham has had some plausible argument to sustain his stand in this case, but that does not render all her citizens undesirable by any means. He is pretty well known far on the other hand, Novi has a rather enviable reputation for the contributions she has made to the ranks of Michigan's legislators, lawyers and educators and to the official ranks of the state and county, to say nothing of the numbers of her children who are filling honorable positions in various occupations such as telegraphy, stenography, civil engineering and many other situations where brains and decency are not at a discount.

We are glad to get our unsavory corners cleaned out, and when we get the moral atmosphere fumigated, perhaps the result will be so wholesome that the scavenger business will experience a boom in various places. We happen to know that the "painter" of that dubious picture has come in contact with enough of Novi's decided predominant better element to see that we don't all belong to the class who figure as the chief attractions in those celebrated scenes at the town hall.

PASSION PLAY.

Mrs. Edna Chaffee Noble Will Be Seen in It Tonight.

The Passion Play lecture-recital by Mrs. Edna Chaffee Noble at the Presbyterian church tonight promises to be one of the most novel and interesting ones ever listened to by a Northville audience. The scene of the lecture is the village of Obernau am Berg, Bavaria. During a plague there 250 years ago the terrified survivors vowed to God that if He would thereafter spare their lives they would perform every ten years a drama of Christ's life and suffering. The plague abated and the vow has been sacredly carried out by each succeeding generation. The piety, sincerity and intelligence of these villagers, filled with religious fervor, reconcile the most sensitive to the production. Elsewhere the Passion Play would seem offensive, but not so there. Mrs. Noble has witnessed this great 19 act, 25 tableau play in all its grandeur and solemnity and this is what she will describe in her lecture tonight under the auspices of the lecture course.

NEW SWITCH BOARD.

ONE FOR THE NORTHVILLE CO.
HAS ARRIVED.

It Has Capacity for One Hundred Subscribers.

The Northville Telephone Co.'s new switch board arrived this week and has been placed in the store of Sands & Porter, as the central office. The board is a large improved one and capable of caring for 100 or more subscribers. At the present time the company has already made 22 connections in the village and has a number of applicants ahead which will be wired up next week. The service is very cheap, just enough to a little more than cover expenses, and therefore a large number of people can afford to have a phone.

Besides the local exchange, the company has five subscribers at Novi and eleven at Farmington. The company expects to shortly be able to give subscribers connection to Detroit at a 10c toll service.

The nurse, having lifted little Leon into the bed, returned to her chair beside the fire, while Marjorie put her arm around the little fellow's shoulders and presently fell asleep.

Now that the fever had actually passed away, Marjorie's convalescence was rapid.

She still kept to her bed, being too weak even to move without assistance, and during the day little Leon was constantly with her. She asked a few questions, and the more she heard the more her curiosity was aroused.

One day she inquired for the grave lady whose face she dimly remembered to have seen, and who she now heard was the mistress of the house. In the afternoon the lady came to the bedside.

Marjorie was sitting up in bed that day, propped up by pillows, looking the very ghost of what she had once been; while on the bed beside her was little Leon, surrounded by his toys. He looked no longer like a baby, but like a boy, and he had learned to speak.

"I know my mother—she is my mother—is very good; but it has all been a fatality since I was born, and I can hardly realize yet that we are so close akin." Ah! if I had but known madame!" If she had but told me at the first, I should never have left Scotland, or known so much sorrow."

Miss Dove signed in sympathetic acquiescence.

"It is a sad story," she replied. "Your mother, proud lady as she is, has been a great sinner, but she has been terribly punished." Surely, my child, you do not bear any anger against her in your heart?"

"None, madame; but she is so strange and proud, I am almost afraid of her still."

"And you have other loving friends," continued the lady, smiling kindly. "Do you remember Mr. Sutherland?"

"Johnnie Sutherland," cried Marjorie joyfully. "Who told you of him?"

"Himself. He is back here in Paris." Marjorie uttered a cry of delight.

"You have seen him? You have spoken to him? He knows—"

"He knows everything, my child, and he is waiting below till I give him the signal to come up. Can you bear to see him?"

There was no need to ask that question. Marjorie's flushed cheek and sparkling eye had answered it long before. Miss Dove stole quietly from the room, and almost immediately reappeared, followed by Sutherland himself.

"Marjorie! my poor Marjorie!" he cried, seizing her hands and almost sobbing.

But who was this that Marjorie saw approaching, through the mist of her own joyful tears? A stooping figure leaning upon a staff, turning toward her haggard face, and stretching out a trembling palsied hand. It was Miss Hetherington, trembling and weeping, the harsh landmarks softened with the yearning of a mother's love.

"My bairn! my bairn!" cried Marjorie, and mother and daughter clung together, rounched in a passionate embrace.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

MISS took her home with her little boy to Annandale, and there in the old castle Marjorie soon recovered her health and her strength. It was winter still, the landscape was white with snow, the trees hung heavily under the load, and a blue mask of ice covered the floating Anna from bank to bank; but to Marjorie all was gladness and familiarity as she moved about from scene to scene. She wore black, like a widow, and so did little Leon; and, indeed, it was a common report everywhere that her husband was dead, and that she was left alone.

As Marjorie told it, or as much of it as she could recall, she told of her early life in the quiet old manse in Annandale with Mr. Lorraine Solomon and Miss Hetherington, and of the Frenchman who came with his spacious tongue and wooed her away. Then she told of her life in Paris, of her gradual estrangement from all her friends, and finally of her desertion by the man whom until then she had believed to be her husband.

"So," said the lady, when she had finished, "you were married by the English law, and the man is in reality not your husband. Well, the only thing we can do is to leave him alone altogether, and apply to your friends."

Marjorie shook her head.

"That is useless, madame," she said. "When my little boy had caught but starvation before him I wrote to my mother in Annandale, but she did not answer me."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, madame, it is true."

"It is very strange," she said, "but we must see what can be done, Marjorie—may I call you Marjorie?"

In the meantime you must not think of all these sad things. You must amuse yourself with Leon and get well quickly, and my task will be the lighter."

After this interview Miss Dove visited Marjorie every day, and sometimes sat for an hour or more by her bedside; and when at length the invalid, who gained strength every day, was able to rise from her bed, she lay upon a couch by the window, and watched the sunshine creeping into the streets.

It was not like Marjorie to remain idle when there was so much to be done, and as the weakness passed away her brain began to work, planning for the future. She had several schemes made when she spoke of them one night to Miss Dove.

The lady listened quietly, then she said:

"You would rather remain in Paris, Marjorie, than go home."

"Madame, I have no home."

"You have Annandale Castle."

She shook her head.

"Indeed, it is not my home now! I wrote, and there was no answer."

"But suppose you heard that that was all a mistake, suppose you learned that your dear mother was ready to open her arms to receive you, what would you say then, my child?"

Marjorie did not reply. If the truth in her daughter's face; then she said with a loving smile:

"I ken one man that has the heart of a king—ay, of an angel. Marjorie, who, mother?"

"Who, Johnnie Sutherland? my blessings on the lad! But for him, I should have lost my bairn forever, and it was for his sake, Marjorie, that I wished ye were a widow indeed."

Marjorie flushed a deep crimson and turned her head away. Sutherland's unwavering devotion had not failed to touch her deeply, and she understood it now in all its passionate depth and strength; but she still felt herself under the shadow of her old sorrow, and she knew that the tie which bound her to Caussidore could only be broken by death.

"I know my mother—she is my mother—is very good; but it has all been a fatality since I was born, and I can hardly realize yet that we are so close akin." Ah! if I had but known madame!" If she had but told me at the first, I should never have left Scotland, or known so much sorrow."

Editor Record.—You may please disseminate the "Record" which has been sent to my address Racine, Wis., as we shall early in December return to Northville for the winter. Thanks for the paper which has kept us in touch with Northville news and Northville friends for the last few months.

For a quiet, restful, clean home, give us Northville in preference to anything we have yet met with in our pilgrimage.

Very respectfully yours,

J. H. Daniels.

The U. S. Fish Station Sidewalk.

On October 4 upon a petition of more than sixty of the leading tax-payers the council ordered a side walk to be constructed from Rogers street to the U. S. fish station. Notices were served upon the property owners along the route and the government some time since constructed their portion. Here the matter rests, the council at their last meeting not even receiving or making any report in the matter. Apparently, there is no excuse for any delay in this matter. If a side walk is needed there at all it is in the fall and spring. At the present time the fish station employs 30 people (20 girls and 10 men) who are obliged to wade through the mud from two to four times per day to say nothing of the visitors, and yet there appears to be no active movements on the part of the council. If the property owners neglect or refuse to build the walk it is the council's business to put them in a way to do it, or do it themselves and assess it against the property. Even if the tax falls a little heavy on some of the defunct Clover Leaf Condensery stockholders the council need have no fear that the tender feelings of the people of Northville will be in the least injured thereby.

WARNING. Persons who suffer from coughs and colds should heed the warnings of danger and save themselves suffering and fatal results by using One Minute Cough Cure. It is an infallible remedy for coughs, colds, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.

99 REASONS

why it pays to buy a good "Hot Water Bottles" now, are going to try any.

First reason—true economy.

Second Reason—the hot water is then clean, where it is put.

Third Reason—cheap, common, light weight bottles are liable to leak the very first time.

The other 98 reasons can be had here if we are asking. Come in and ask.

The best "rubber good" cost 25c, etc., but they are cheapest in the end.

The Coming Event!

Thanksgiving thoughts of Table and Dress

Should command your immediate attention.

There is something more to prepare for than the arrangement of the customary dinner with its turkey, cranberry sauce, plum pudding, etc. Beautiful linens and dainty table accessories are essential to the completeness of the occasion.

Now that we have much to be thankful for in the way of renewed prosperity, let us fill the passing moment with gratitude and observe it in a new garb, fashionably fitted to the period in which it comes.

The kind in which artistic design is found. The kind in which the best of material is used.

The Scotchmans' produce, from Belfast; and Great Britain also. Such makes are justly recognized the world over.

Dainty figures and floral designs.

Special exhibit for Thanksgiving trade. Damask Sets, 2x3 yds. choice styles, $3.50, $4.50. Napkins to match.

Damasks by the yard. Our own exclusive designs, fine, full bleached. The "Dew" process, very choice. $1-yd. Napkins to match.

Damask, for rapid selling, full bleached; also half bleached; extra wide; Thanksgiving price 50c yd. Napkins to match.

Plenty of good Linen at 40c, 35c, 25c yd. Napkins for immediate selling. The low prices will send them out rapidly, 75c, 98c, $1.25 doz up.

Cloaks!

As many of our customers will need a jacket or cape about Thanksgiving time, we take this opportunity of calling your attention to our well assort'd line.

We show Special Values in Jackets at $5, $7.50, $10, in Kersey, shawl and Beaver, in black, green, blue, red tan, etc.

We have Special Values in Capes at $4.50, $6.50, $9.50, in Plush and Cloth.

Our endeavor is to supply every want in this line, and to supply that want at a price within the reach of all. We are constantly adding new styles to our stock, and will gladly purchase any special style one of a kind, to our customers.

Wrappers!

In our Cloak Room are found some, unusual pretty, stylish; print, percale fleeced cloth, flannelette and other fabrics, made up into warm durable good fitting Wrappers. We have just received a fresh case of these goods in the popular fleeced cloth to sell at 75c, 98c, $1.19 $1.50.

We call attention in particular to the extra good values we offer at 98c, $1.50 both as to quality of cloth and to general stylish make up, trimmings, &c.

Handkerchief Linen!

We have recently added to our stock an assortment of fine sheer handkerchief linens, at 25c, 50c 60c, 75c, $1.50 per yd.

Buy them direct from the Belfast manufacturers and of better qualities and far less expensive. We also offer new assortments of Valentine Cards, New Scarfs, New Laundry Bags, New Umbrella Bags, New Handkerchiefs, New Fall Shades in Brassard & Armstrong Wash Suits.

Our Fancy Work Department is well up-to-date and offers the same goods at prices less than the regular fancy goods stores. We have the Crib's Felt Hoops, also the Taylor Rubber Emb. Hoops.

NORTHVILLE LOCALS.

Letters for the following persons are advertised at the post office this week:

Thomas F. Benlon
Mrs. M. Marvin
Miss Alvina Schulz

Rev. W. M. Ward delivered one of his lectures at Gaines this week.

E. K. Starkweather has been granted an increase of pension.

Passion Play at the Presbyterian church this evening.

Lost—long handled (inch) claw hammer on Plymouth avenue. Finder please return to Samuel Wilkinson.

Remember Mrs. Estelle Chaffee Noble the first of the lecture course series at the Presbyterian church tonight.

Real & Daniel have leased a contract for the seating and furnishings for the new Masonic Temple building at Pontiac.

The talented young violinist, Miss Ella Clarkson, who sang the YMCA with a solo, was at the men's meeting Sunday.

Sands & Dotter delivered a load of furniture on Saturday to parties near Milford and on Monday a load to Plymouth.

Dr. Patterson is called to Wayne every day now to attend Dr. Foster who is seriously ill, and care for his patients.

The Northville U. S. Fish station now has a nest of 12,000,000 eggs, and twenty girls are kept busy sorting them over.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held in the Methodist church at 7:30 Thursday night—Rev. Mr. Schleemann will deliver the sermon.

While up near Grayling last week Mr. Herbeuer shot (silver shot) a deer and remembered the Record with a nice hunt of the venison.

Rev. W. M. Ward gives an illustrated address at the YMCA Sunday p.m. entitled "Deacon Humbug." Failure to hear this will mean a great loss.

At the third annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Saginaw last week, Mrs. Mary Amador of this place was elected treasurer.

W. C. Grier, a well known Milford gentleman, is in town looking over the field with a view of organizing a lodge of the Union League fraternal insurance here.

Chicken pie social—if nothing is counted for the deviled chickens, labor, dough, etc., netted the Methodist ladies about $19.00 Wednesday night.

Rev. J. H. Herbeuer delivers his lecture "The Lighted Torch" before a Farmington audience, Dec. 3, in Bad Axe, Dec. 7, and in White Pigeon Dec. 14.

W. H. Huston has taken R. M. Watterson's place as clerk in the Star Clothing house until the latter is recovered sufficiently to again resume his duties.

The "Our Boys" comedy company which plays at the Empire Theatre Detroit tomorrow night and which is patronized by Mayor Mayberry, C. A. Black, J. L. Hudson and others as announced in yesterday morning's Free Press have been engaged to give the play at the opera house here on Thanksgiving night.

J. M. Thirswend, of Grosbeek, Tex., says that when he has a spell of indigestion, and feels bad and sluggish, he takes two of DeWitt's Little Early Risers at night, and feels all-right the next morning. Many thousands of others do the same thing. Do you Murdock Bros.

The catalogue just issued by the Northville Poultry Association is a very neat piece of work. It was issued from "The Record" Printer.—Plymouth Mail.

It is said the F. & P. M. company will soon be compelled to withdraw even their regular 1,000 mile books and use only the complicated $30 affair of the joint traffic association.

The entertainment by the Three Bostonians last week was a very pleasing affair, only marred by the illness of Mr. Eaton, who was suffering from a severe attack of asthma.

The town foot-ball team was defeated at Milford and the High schools at Ypsilanti last week. The High school boys speak highly of their treatment at Ypsilanti and take a return game tomorrow.

If more men were interested in the YMCA as C. G. Curtis shows himself to be there would be more and better work done. He walked up from Plymouth Sunday to fill his engagement. The address given was a fine one, the subject being "An ideal life."

The Milford foot-ball team seems to play the "white feather" act in refusing to play a return game with the Northville town team. Northville people would like to see a return game here and it is to be hoped the Milfords will pluck up enough courage to come down.

We still have a number of the King's Daughters cook books on-hand, though we have disposed of a lot of them during the past week, some orders coming by mail from as far away as Lansing. The sale goes merrily along a 25¢ cook book for a cent and we buy one—help the society as well as yourself.

Breakfasting was discontinued last week at Mrs. Mosher's, 110, was resumed, but in choir flight a pair of pants and a watch was dropped at the door as the thieves made a hasty exit. A Frank Morris, a pocket-book belonging to Mrs. Moore, was touched for 65 cents. Frank having the big wallet under his pillow on the second floor. One day last week a certain man in this neighborhood in putting up a stove pipe allowed the whole job to tumble down at the finishing point, upon his head. He jumped up and only said two words; the last was "It." Any person guessing the other word and paying us $1 for a year's subscription will receive this paper 12 months without further charge.

Preparations for the OES annual reception and ball to be given next week Wednesday night are going merrily on and the invitations are for a very enjoyable time. 250 invitations were sent out this week and it is reasonable to suppose, weather permitting, a large crowd will be present. The Northville opera house orchestra, eight pieces, is to furnish the music.

In estimating the cost to the township for an overhead bridge over the F. & P. M. tracks at the south end of the city, Commissioner Benton says there is no doubt but what the township's portion of the cost would be to make a part of the bill and that enough farmers could be engaged to do that at almost nominal figure, so anxious are they to do away with the dangerous crossing.

MERE MENTION OF MICHIGAN MATTERS.

Labor Commissioner Cox Shows that the Farmers and Workers of Michigan are Enjoying Prosperity—A Village President Arrested on Clerical Charge

Evidences of Prosperity in Michigan State—Labor Commissioner Cox says that evidences of returning prosperity in Michigan are abundant—His office is receiving reports which shows that there are far less unemployed men in the cities and villages of Michigan than there were a year ago. Factory employees have increased nearly $100 more than last year being reported from Detroit alone, and the capitals is not yet completed. Prices of all farm products have increased and the condition of the farmer is much better. Many farm mortgages have been canceled or partly so, and debts of other kinds wiped out by the farmer. From an estimate made from a partial canvass it is shown that there have been more than a thousand new mercantile and manufacturing institutions started up in Michigan within the past year.

D. & L. N. Route Approved. The state railroad crossing board has approved the maps of the route of the Detroit & Lima Northern Railroad, including that division secured by the purchase of the Dundee branch of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern. By the terms of the contract the Detroit & Lima Northern will be required to establish and maintain complete interlocking devices at the crossings at Dundee and Trenton with the Ann Arbor and Michigan Central and Lake Shore roads respectively, and half interlockers at 12-spur crossings near Detroit. Two new companies, the Detroit & Northern and the Wayne City & Southeastern, have filed articles of incorporation. The former proposes to build a line from Mt. Clemens to Meridian City and the latter from East Jordan to Elyria City.

Allegan's President Arrested for Larceny

Dr. L. R. Stuck, president of the village of Allegan, has been arrested upon the complaint of E. T. Van Ostrand, a druggist, charged with embezzlement and larceny. The doctor was supplied with a key to Van Ostrand's drug store so that he could go in at any time and obtain medicines for use in his practice. Van Ostrand claims to have missed various articles after which this arrangement had run and three clerks have been discharged on suspicion. A detective was engaged and he alleges that he detected Dr. Stuck taking advantage of his opportunity. Van Ostrand estimates his loss at $2,000. The prisoner denies his guilt. The doctor has a wife and two sons, one of the latter attending the U. S. M.

Fatal Homicide.

Alfred Franklin, aged 56, was yesterday killed in a runaway accident at Port Huron. Franklin resides in Kimball township and had been in the city all day in the company of Mr. and Mrs. Shetter, of Wadhams. About 7 o'clock they started for home in a single buggy drawn by a team of two. The horses became frightened and dashed down the street. When near the corner of Lincoln Avenue and St. Clair street the buggy came in contact with a telegraph pole. Frank, who was driving, was thrown forward and struck the pole with his head. His neck was broken and his body was torn to the shoulder with compound fractures. Mrs. Shetter was badly injured about the body, having fallen to the ground. Mrs. Shetter was sitting in the back of the buggy and was also injured. There was an old soldier and a woman.

Lower Life Insurance Rates.

State Insurance Commissioners Cambell has been studying up things among the life insurance companies. He warned them that rates were too high in towns where there was no protection and demanded a reduction. He was the recipient of a large number of letters from companies protesting that even under the present schedule they were making money, but just the same the Michigan fire insurance inspection bureau has promulgated a notice that the rates on dwelling houses, household furniture, private barns and contents ~~are~~ as on solid brick buildings will be reduced 10 to 15 cents. This applies to all agencies and will restore to an equality the rates in all lower Michigan towns having fire protection and water works.

Women's Club of Michigan.

The third annual convention of the Michigan State Federation of Women's clubs which was held last week at Saginaw was attended by over 200 members.

The following officers were elected: President Mrs. Anna Palmer, of Saginaw; vice-presidents Mrs. Martha A. Keating, of Muskegon, and Mrs. Frank E. Wether, of Manistee; recording secretary Mrs. Florence E. Wilson, of Jackson; corresponding secretary, Miss Cora C. Leek, of Battle Creek; treasurer, Mrs. Mary L. Ambler, of Northville; auditor, Mrs. Stiles Kennedy, of St. Louis.

A Hunter Mistaken for a Deer.

Fred Cawling, a well-known young business man of Iron Mountain, was shot dead four miles from Channing. He was mistaken for a deer by an old hunter named Wamsley and shot in the back, the ball passing through the heart. Cawling was 26 years of age and was manager of Wright Bros' extensive cedar business, having been in the employ of the firm 11 years.

Wm. H. Owen and B. D. Hicks, of Lawrence, pleaded guilty at Paw Paw to violating the local option law. Owen was fined $100 and Hicks $15. Hicks was village marshal and got the extra $10 to remind him that an officer should not be a transgressor of the law.

The National Brotherhood of Electrical workers held their annual convention at Detroit.

Bank Officers Arrested.

Prosecutor Cummings, of Ingham county, caused the arrest of Cashier Chas. H. Osband and Directors, Chas. Gross and Christian Brisch, of the defunct People's Savings bank, at Lansing. There are 15 counts against the ex-cashier. All three promptly furnished bail. It is charged that various false entries were made in the books of the bank with intent to deceive the bank commissioner or his deputies. The two directors concerned, it is alleged, did not hold 10 shares of stock unpledged and owned in good faith, as is required by law. They are charged with perjury. Christian Brisch was prominently connected with the North Lansing Milling Co., a scheme of Cashier Osband in which thousands of dollars of the bank's funds disappeared. It is charged that while he was a director he never owned a dollar's worth of stock.

Shaky Insurance Co. Closed Up.

The Protective Fire Association of Michigan, a mutual insurance company organized in Detroit about two years ago, will go into the hands of a receiver, according to the wishes of State Insurance Commissioner Campbell, who had recently received numerous complaints about the company. He found that the company has a number of losses, aggregating $6,000, which have not been paid, and there is only $8 in the treasury with which to pay them.

There are about 2,500 policies in force scattered all over the state, and the trouble began when the association recently sent out notices to the policy holders apprising them of an assessment of 50 per cent of the original premium, with which it was proposed to liquidate the losses.

Big Paint Works Scorched.

Fire partially destroyed the oldest portion of the manufactory of the Boydell Bros. White Lead and Color works, at 39, 41 and 43 Fort street east, Detroit. The damage resulting from the fire may reach $100,000 while the insurance was only about $45,000.

The firm was almost entirely burned out by a conflagration which destroyed over half a block in October, 1892, the portion of their works which has just been burned being the only portion that escaped the former fire.

ference at the Hotel Brown's, in Adrian, where he slipped and fell backwards on a long knife, which went clear through his body, severing his intestines. He died in great agony.

Mechanical Engineer Moore has thoroughly inspected the Pontiac, Oxford & Northern roadbed and finds that the repairs ordered last summer by the railroad commissioners' office have been made.

Augustus Bean and Mike O'reilly went on a spree together at Muskegon and upon waking from a stupor drank from a bottle containing nitric acid, which they mistook for alcohol. Two funerals was the result.

The diphtheria epidemic continues at Alpena, there being about 30 cases. Several deaths have occurred. The schools and churches have been closed by order of the board of health and all public meetings are prohibited.

Washington: The Bering sea meeting, in which representatives of Great Britain, Canada and the United States have participated, has come to a close, the seal experts making a unanimous report concerning the condition of the seal herds, and the diplomatic representatives of the respective governments reaching an understanding by which they hope at a later day to effectual adjustment not only of the Bering sea question but of other pending border controversies. For the present, however, no final action was taken as to the suspension of pelagic sealing.

The Canadians urged that other questions be embraced in any plan of settlement, and suggested an international commission to accomplish this end. This proposition was fully discussed, and an agreement reached that the Canadian officials would put their views in writing, after returning to Ottawa and submit them to the authorities here. All parties concerned say that the outlook is favorable to a satisfactory adjustment.

The unanimous agreement of the experts brings the governments together for the first time on all the facts relating to the seals. This agreement was reached after painstaking comparison of notes, which show, in brief, that not over one-fourth the number of seals are now to be found in the Bering sea that were there a few years ago and that pelagic sealing would soon practically extinguish the species in that region.

Small Chance for Canadian Reciprocity.

It is stated in Washington dispatches that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Louis Davies, the Canadian diplomats who went to Washington to discuss international questions with U. S. officials, are discouraged over the poor prospects of success in their negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with the United States. They feel certain that if the power to complete a treaty rested with the State department alone they would be able to come to an agreement.

The influence which the Canadians fear is the same that drove Sir Richard Cartwright so quickly when he went to Washington during the consideration of the Dingley bill to see what could be done in the way of securing reciprocity for Canada. The influence is much the same as that which preceded the insertion in the Dingley bill of a special provision to a certain extent authorizing the tariff on lumber so far as certain New Englanders are concerned. It is also the same influence which, evidently fearing a reciprocity treaty with Canada, placed a few words in the bill making it necessary that any such a treaty be ratified by the house as well as the senate.

Lord Salisbury Threatens France.

At the Lord mayor's annual banquet at London the marquis of Salisbury, the British premier, after referring to other matters, introduced the trouble between England and France in West Africa and said: "It might not achieve the general conciliatory process desired if I entered frankly into all the negotiations between the powers respecting Africa. We are all aware of the great extent of territory still loose during the last 20 years in Africa and put up as the object of acquisition for several enterprising governors. We desire that territory to be governed on strict principles of right and a full recognition of the rights of the natives. The interests of the empire. We wish to pursue an unbroken course in the Niger, the Nile and the Zambezi and in doing these things while we wish to behave in a neighborly manner and to show due consideration for the feelings and claims of others, we are obliged to say that there is a limit to the exercise of this particular set of feelings and we cannot allow our plain rights to be over-ruled."

Spain's Reply Satisfactory to Uncle Sam.

It is stated on good authority that Premier Sagasta's reply, to U. S. Minister Woodford's note is eminently satisfactory to the U. S. government. In it the Spanish ministry pledges itself to correct the abuses of power in Cuba, which were the subject of so much complaint during the Weyler administration, and gives assurance of its friendly feeling toward the American people. It accepts our good offices in its efforts to restore peace in Cuba and in a perfectly respectful and friendly spirit asks this government as far as possible to restrain the insurgents in the United States from giving material aid to the enemies of Spain in Cuba.

The reply has made a favorable impression upon President McKinley, it is likely that one of the features of his forthcoming message will be a discussion of the Cuban situation, from which it will appear that there is nothing in the situation to justify present interference on the part of the United States.

TROUBLE IN EUROPE.

Austria-Hungary Being Estranged From Germany.

Germany's position in Europe is becoming more perilous than before by the attitude of Austria, which has effected an agreement with Russia and France regarding its policy in the east. The recent visit of the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs to King Humbert of Italy is regarded in Berlin political circles as being of the highest importance. The visit is interpreted as meaning a closer understanding between Austria-Hungary and Italy, and as a means of those two powers toward Great Britain. The Mediterranean interests of both Austria and Italy are of vast and far-reaching importance, and they cannot be separated so long as there is a latent antagonism against England as a feature of the纠纷地圖.

From editorials in Berlin papers it appears that while the dispute is still in force, Germany must stand on side of the other powers or pursue her own oriental and colonial policy unaided and apart from the other nations. The original reason of Austria's attitude is said to be the uncalled for affront given to England by Emperor William's letter to President Kruger. France is now said to threaten the fatherland, and the Prussians are enraged at the remarks of the kaiser, who bitterly attacked the Prussian kings while speaking of the pope's action.

A short session of Congress Predicted. The approach of the date for the assembling of congress is already drawing many of the leaders to Washington and some work is already being done to shorten the session or at least get down to solid business at once. It is the intention of Chairman Cannon, of the appropriations committee of the house, to begin the preparation of the appropriation bills at the earliest possible date. He has announced the appointment of the sub-committees and those on the pension and the legislative, executive and judiciary bills have been called to meet Nov. 27, a week in advance of the assembling of congress. As the house is fully organized, by the appointment of all the standing committees, it will be expected to get down to business as soon as it reassembles. Most of the members who have already arrived express the opinion that this will be the shortest regular session of congress in years. Ordinarily the Jingle sessions last from six to 10 months. Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, one of the prominent Republican leaders, predicts that congress will have completed its work and adjourned before May 1.

May 1. Short Session of Congress Predicted. The schooner Una sank in the harbor at St. Joseph, Mich., and the seven men aboard were taken off by the life saving crew after a narrow escape. The Una was dashed against a dock and had a big hole stove in her hull.

Two Young Girls Starved and Festered. A most terrible outrage was perpetrated at the village of Oakwood, Fulton county, O., by whitecap upon two girls, Edith and May Roberts, aged 19 and 17 years. The girls had retired to their room early in the evening and were awakened, by a band of 8 or 10 men entering and dragging them from their beds in their nightclothes. They were taken to the nearest road, where they were terribly whipped and, the whitecaps then gave them a coat of tar and feathers and took them back to the house, where they were found unconscious the next morning.

May. The youngest of the two girls, is in a critical condition, her flesh being cut to the bone by the whitecaps. A card containing 10 names was found tucked to the front door, but none of the names are known about that place, and there is no other clue.

Mrs. Nick Confesses to the Murder. Mrs. Augusta Nick, confessed to court at New York City the newamous murder of Wm. Guindlappine and replicated her lover, Martin Thorn, in the horrible crime. On the day the murder was committed, she said, Guindlappine and herself left New York and went to the Woodsdale cottage. She told Guindlappine to enter and examine the house, while she remained outside. He went upstairs and shot was fired. Martin Thorn then came running down and said he had killed Guindlappine. He went back and cut the corpse in pieces and threw the pieces up in the air and they were afterward taken on board a boat and cast into the river.

There Say Mrs. Nick Did the Murder. Martin Thorn, whom Mrs. Nick accuses of murdering Wm. Guindlappine, her lover, at New York, has made a statement in which he says: "Mrs. Nick, who says that I killed Guindlappine, conceived, planned, plotted and accomplished the murder of Guindlappine. It was she who suggested the plan, and went to the Woodsdale cottage. She told Guindlappine to enter and examine the house, while she remained outside. He went upstairs and shot was fired. Martin Thorn then came running down and said he had killed Guindlappine. He went back and cut the corpse in pieces and threw the pieces up in the air and they were afterward taken on board a boat and cast into the river."

Ringing Noises

Troubled for Years With Catarrh, but Now Entirely Cured.
I was troubled for years with catarrh, which caused ringing noises in my ears and pains in the back of my head. I was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and a few bottles entirely cured me.

DINING AND FEEDING
American Table Manners Not So Open to Criticism As Formerly.

It has been conceded that the degree of civilization a people has reached may be accurately measured by its dietary, say the Woman's Home Companion. Now, some one has said that "the American feeds the Englishman dines," the Frenchman dines. In view of this statement one wonders what the English have been doing through the centuries to have advanced so little. We do not pretend to answer for them, but would say for ourselves, we have been "hewing our way through forests, pioneering in every direction, in every sense, ample apology for feeding instead of dining. But, of course it was a Frenchman who made the declaration, and of course he made it long ago, when mortifying though it be, honesty compels us to acknowledge that we may have been guilty. This, however, and conditions have changed and now even the most bigoted Frenchman will refuse to admit that when the American has reached the dining point he will have more to dine upon than any other man in the world. The culture of man in America will demand all the art in dissuading that France has by study evolved, with the added merit of honesty in his food, the disguises incident to poverty of material not being a necessity. There is no department of supply in which we have not the advantage and we are learning to use our materials as rapidly as we have been obliged to learn all other things.

A GRAND TRIUMPH.

Battled Many Times but Success Comes at Last.

(From the Grand Rapids Press)

The following incident would be hard to believe if it had not occurred right here in Grand Rapids and investigation by our representative has cleared it beyond the reach of doubt. These are the facts in detail. Mr. J. H. White of No. 25 Huyke Place has been an instructor in penmanship in different business colleges for the past fourteen years. He says: "Last October I was suddenly taken ill. I consulted a physician who said the pain was from 'gravel' stones gradually growing, the pain was in my bladder and kidneys. My wife walked up in a fit of rage, and I finally grew so bad that I was taken to bed, as helpless as a child. I passed blood, and when the physician who was at his worst I was like one crazy. The doctor injected morphine to give me relief, but for him I think that he sold me painkillers and nothing would do. Any good but a surgical operation. I believe my flesh was literally coated to the attempt to relieve my agony, my mother was used, mustard plasters, turpentine, hot cloths and all such things. I was farther tortured, given up by the doctor, and died out of my mind with suffering. I commenced taking Dr. Dean's Kola Y Pills, and really felt quite in 30 minutes. After a cut I took I had a passage of urine, but passed blood and some gravel stones which greatly relieved me. I rapidly improved. I took in all the boxes, and I failed to dry enter, well. Since then it has been a wonderful case. I feel that I cannot say anything strong enough for Dr. Dean's Kola Y Pills. My great wish is that they may become well known. They will prove a boon to mankind."

MISS LUCINDA'S THANKSGIVING

But why do I keep Thanksgiving, Did I hear you ask, my dear? Why? When I'm all alone in life, Not a chick nor a child to be near.

Lucy across the sea, And not a soul in the dear old home.

Sav a little bound girl and me?

It does look lonesome, I grant it;

Yet strange as the thing may sound I'm seldom in want of company.

The whole of the merry year round.

There's spring when the lilac blossoms,

And the apple trees blush to bloom,

There's summer when great moths sit and glance

Through the twilight's starlit gloom.

Then comes the beautiful autumn,

When every fragrant briar,

Flings us garlands on fence and wall.

Is bright as a living fire;

And then the white, still winter time.

When the snow lies warm on the wheat,

And I think of the days that have passed away,

When my life was young and sweet,

I'm a very happy woman.

Today, though my hair is white,

For some of my troubles I've overlived,

And some I keep out of sight.

I'm a busy old woman, you see, my dear,

As I travel along life's road,

I'm always trying as best I can

To lighten my neighbor's load.

That child? You should think she'd try me?

Does she earn her bread and salt?

You've noticed she's sometimes indolent,

And indolence is a fault;

Of course it is, but the orphan girl is growing as fast as she can

And to make her work from dawn to dark.

Was never a part of my plan.

I like to see the jimples

Flash out on the little face,

That was wan enough and still enough

When first she came to the place.

I think she'll do, when she's older;

A kitten is not a cat,

And now that I look at the thing, my dear,

I hope she'll never be lost.

I'm thankful that life is peaceful;

I should just be sick of strife,

If, for instance, I had to live along

Like poor Job Storum's wife;

For thankful I didn't say "yes," my dear.

What saved me I do not see—

When Job, with a sprig in his button-hole,

Once came a-bounding me.

I'm thankful I'm neither poor nor rich,

Glad that I'm not in debt,

That I owe no money I cannot pay,

And so I have to call to for—

I'm thankful so truly love me,

And that I've so many to love,

Though my dearest and nearest are all at home.

In the beautiful land above

I shall always keep Thanksgiving.

In the good-old asthomed way,

And think of the reasons for gratitude

In December, and June, and May,

In August, November, and April,

And the months that come between;

For God is good, and my heart is light,

And I'd not change place with a queen =

Margaret E. Sangster.

THANKSGIVING STORY

It was Thanksgiving evening in our camp on the Flambeau river, in the northern part of the Badger state. After a dinner such as can only be gotten up in camp we had seated ourselves about the fire and were indulging in stories. Finally one of our number, a young man, remarked that the day was always one of thanksgiving to him and in explanation of this remark, related the following story:

"I had been out three days with a party of Chicago people, and on the day in question we were camped about thirteen miles away from even a game warden, and I can say we had phenomenally good luck. It was the open season for deer, and we had already killed two fine bucks. The day had been a busy one in camp, in making preparations to move down stream, perhaps ten miles or more. My intention had been to move in that direction early in the afternoon in a light canoe, just to get on to the Jay of the land. Heavy, leaden clouds had hung low all day and everything acted like one of those late electrical storms that often pass through the northwest as a gentle reminder that we had one last chance of bidding good-bye to Indian summer. Had the weather not cleared I might have changed my mind about making the move I did make. Leaving instructions that we would all start in the early hours of morning, I went down to the shore and stepped into my canoe. I had with me my usual supply of matches and other incidentals. The moon shone so clearly over the rippling water that I did not mind the forebodings of rain that warned me. I did not think it was necessary to take a heavy caliber rifle and consequently neglected doing it, but I had with me a couple of good revolvers.

I pushed the canoe from shore, and in a few minutes was gliding over the rippling water of the Flambeau, with no care or what the journey might bring. For over half an hour I kept my course down the river. The moon had shone brightly until then, and was only occasionally hidden by a few dark clouds. A cold wind came up from the northeast and then I had some fears of the storm that had threatened all day. The clouds came thick and fast and with them rains, at first only a few drops, but finally an icy rain which was driven by the terrible force of the wind. With the storm came lightning and I soon saw it would be folly to go further. I endeavored to turn my canoe toward shore, but the storm had changed into a young tempest, and to stay long on the waters in that craft meant death. I drifted on at a fearful rate, and I also noticed that the current of the river seemed swifter than I had noticed it before.

"While thus engaged a new sound fell upon my ears. It was a dull deep roar, and every moment it seemed to increase. The water flowed more swiftly, and the roaring ahead of me became deafening. I knew too well what it was. My boat dashed madly forward, and I was entering rapids. How large they were I did not know, for the country was comparatively new

"Well, I was soon on earth again, crawled a rod or so away, and then waited for daylight.

"As the first gray light of morning lit the eastern sky I turned my head toward what might have been my grave. It was a circular hole, about ten feet in diameter. I could see, the water about fifteen feet below.

"I thought of the many and terrible but just fate he had met, and then creeping to shore I got into my canoe, and casting one look behind me on that treacherous shore, I turned my back on it forever, and turned my face toward camp.

"This is my experience of Thanksgiving day, that makes the day one of thanks to me, thankful for my life."

THANKSGIVING EVE

Hand in hand through the village streets,

As the chill November twilight fell, Two childish figures walk up and down.

The brother Teddie and sister Nell.

With wistful eyes they peer in the shops,

Where dazzling lights from the windows shine

On golden products from far and field.

And jucious fruits from every clime,

"Oh, Peppie," said Nell, "let's play to-night!

These things are ours, and let's suppose

We can choose whatever we want to eat.

It might come true, perhaps—who knows?"

Two little pinched faces press the pane,

And plan for tomorrow's feast

Of dainties their lips will never touch,

Forgetting their hunger awhile, at least.

The pavement was cold for the shoeless feet.

Ted's jacket was thin; he shivered and said,

"Let's go to place and choose some clothes."

"Agreed!" said Nell, and away they sped

To a furrier's shop, astir with light,

In whose fancied warmth they place their hands,

And play their scanty garments are changed.

For soft fur, from far-off lands

"A grand Thanksgiving we'll have!" cried Nell.

"These in-the-behind things seem almost true;

But most forget how hungry I was,

And Teddie I am almost worn, aren't you?"

Oh, happy hearts, cry rejoice to-day,

In all the bounties the season brings,

Have pity on those who vainly strive

To be warmed and fed by inafflu-

ings!"

THANKSGIVING ARGUMENT

The old wife sat in the chimney piece

Tacking of days gone by

To the small granddaughter close by her knee,

Eager and bright of eye.

"And only think," she finished, dear,

That sad Thanksgiving morn

All that the Pilgrims had to eat

Was each one, five grains of corn.

Out from his career grandfather

Put in a quivering word =

"You're wrong, Priscilla Ann, you're wrong."

"Twas six, I've always heard"

"Pshaw, father, you've forgotten it."

No, child, 'twas only five."

"Priscilla Ann, I say 'twas six,

As sure as you're alive!"

"Twa's six! 'twa's six, 'twa's six!" Why, father?" Well,

I ain't so old, I guess,

But what I know 'twas six!" Oh, land,

What silly foolishness!"

"Priscilla Ann!" "Yes, father!" "Six!"

The small granddaughter started

Then, crying, ran away. "There, now,

You've got the poor lamb scared!"
