ELECTRIC CAR LINE.

There Are Divers Opinions As to the Proper Route.

UP MAIN STREET FROM CENTER MAY BE SELECTED.

Mr. Yerkes Will Give Right of Way Thro' His Place

If the Car Company Will Do the Street Grading.

For a week, the all-absorbing street corner talk in Northville has been the street car route. Representatives of the company who were here last week said they propose to come to the village in the most friendly manner and that the selection of the route must remain with the council representing the people.

The people have been considering and discussing all sorts of routes since the council's committee was appointed last week, and the contention at times has been exceedingly warm. Some have been in favor of a route around by the park and directly up Main street to Rogers, but a line across the river at the depot bridge and along the factories is considered hardly feasible; as the road there is now all but too narrow for the factory and railroad traffic and it will not permit of any widening. The majority of the business men object to the line going through on Main street, at least between Atwater and Center streets, and inasmuch as the business men who own the property and do business there are the ones chiefly interested, and as there are other equally as convenient and available routes, their wishes should be respected. Besides this, it is understood that the car company will object to this route so far as by the factories is concerned, on account of the necessity of bridges which would be inconvenient and expensive to build.

The Dunlap street route is objected to because of the bad turns to get to it, and then the people object to having their only driving street cut up.

The Gady street route is objected to because of its narrowness, and this leaves at the present time, seemingly but one practicable route, and that is to open Beal avenue up through W. P. Yerkes' property to Center street, up Center to Main, and turning at the hotel, west to Rogers and thence to the U. S. fish station. It is understood that Mr. Yerkes will give the right of way through his property if the Co. will grade up the street and be to the expense of moving his barn back.

If the line is to extend to the U. S. fish station it is quite essential that the route go up through as pretty a part of the village as is possible, for the government fish station will attract many visitors to the village and it is deemed that it would not be very creditable to send them along back streets when there are so many pretty ones to traverse.

Then according to the present outlook, the chances are decidedly in favor of the Beal Ave.-Center-Main street route.

FROM CHICKAMAUGA.

Another Interesting Letter from Corp. Slater.

Chickamauga, Aug. 10, 1898. I received the Record yesterday and was very much pleased to get it as it seemed like a letter from home.

The 31st is still in Chickamauga and a more disgusted and disappointed lot of men you never saw. All that we can see for our future is perhaps garrison duty on some island that other troops, who were not as well drilled or equipped have had the honor of taking, while we have been left behind to clean this beautiful park and eat bacon, beans and drink an awful imitation of coffee. There was not a murmur among the men until the last few regiments were sent to Porto Rico. We had been encamped here longer than some of them and could see no reason why we should be left behind, but I reckon it is about as our Capt. Baxter says: "The only real privileges a soldier has is to breathe and draw his pay," and it is a well known fact that a good soldier will grumble.

Yesterday the grand review of all the troops in the park was held. It is estimated that about 45,000 men passed the reviewing officer. I tell you it was a sight to be remembered. The line included the infantry, artillery, cavalry and complete hospital corps, which plainly showed what Uncle Sam can do in a very short space of time toward raising an army when the honor of the old flag is at stake.

It is reported that some of the regiments that have been paid are having some trouble with deserters. Some of the men are homesick and when they get their money they forget honor and everything but home. Our regiment has been very fortunate and we have had very few desertions.

We're you down here any morning at eight o'clock you might see bank cashiers, clerks and men who have fortunes, taking their picks and shovels, starting for their days work, which may be digging a trench or moving stone. We're you to look at the soldier who is driving the four miles you might find a friend who in civil life was a shining citizen, but down here "all soldiers look alike" to Col. Gardner, and when a man has a duty to perform he must do it, for he is not allowed to hire anyone to take his place.

You can see by this letter head we have a YMCA tent with us, which is a grand thing. We have fine meetings and concerts, and pass many pleasant evenings which we would not were we not allowed the freedom of the tent.

F. M. SLATER.

COMPANY D'S ANNUAL REUNION.

THAT OF THE 5TH MICH. CAV. HELD HERE YESTERDAY.

There Were Nineteen of the Old Veterans Present.

The reunion of Co. D., 5th Mich. Cav. held yesterday afternoon, proved to be, as anticipated, eminently worthy a place among the many enjoyable occasions of the assembling of those who in years long past shared the joys and trials of camp and battle, and whose numbers diminish year by year as the frosts of time gather more thickly upon the heads over which floated our stars and stripes under a southern sun a generation ago. It was difficult to realize however as the old cavalymen formed in line at the command of their captain on the lawn at their Comrade Lowden's pleasant home, that they could have been old enough 36 years ago to bear arms in the service of their country, as their erect forms and active movements belied the inexorable register of the third of a century which has passed since they were mustered out after their part in making possible the proud position which our nation occupies today before a wondering world. The roll call showed 16 present, three more arriving later, making 19.

From the historian's interesting facts we condense: Company entered service with 97 officers and men; 11 were killed in battle; 11 others taken by sickness, etc.; 23 have died since the close of the war and 52 are now living. Since the last annual meeting two have been met by the last conqueror, Comrades Quirk of Jackson and Hiram Lunt of Northville. Resolutions of respect and condolence were read. Letters were reported by the secretary from several absent members, and one read from Comrade Newman of Philadelphia, describing the recent meeting in that city of the GAR of Penn., N. J., and Del. with the survivors of General Pickett's division as guests, a recognition of the bond of union new-riveted by the vanquishment of a foreign foe. The speakers were our citizens Captain Simonds, Rev. W. M. Ward, Rev. J. J. Phelps—himself as an ex-soldier and ex-prisoner of the civil war—and Veterans M. G. B. Swift of Fall River Mass., and C. W. O'Donnell of Detroit.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. B. Rane, Whitmore Lake; Vice president, E. K. Starkweather; Secretary, H. M. White; Treasurer, A. Honk; Historian, J. K. Lowden; all of Northville. Place of meeting next year, Whitmore Lake. Those present from abroad were J. Armstrong and wife, Flushing; E. Musson and wife, Howell; W. B. Rane and wife, Whitmore Lake; A. C. Blair and wife, C. W. O'Donnell and M. S. Root, Detroit; J. E. Bullock, Fenton; S. C. Wheeler and wife, Salem; J. M. Gardner, Holly; R. Brown, St. Johns and B. F. Swan, Washington State. These with other relatives made a gathering of about 50. An appetizing supper was served, and as a fitting close to a most satisfying mental and material feast, Mr. Hueston perpetuated the scene by taking a picture of the veterans, their wives and daughters.

ENDURED HARDSHIPS.

Sufferings of Novi Men in Their Search for Gold.

NORM ABBEY DISCOURAGED AND TURNED BACK.

Blames Railroads for Their False Inducements.

On the 17th of last March Norman Abbey and Charles Biery of Novi, started for the Klondike country via Toronto and the Calgary route. They took six months' supplies, and both men had saved up every spare cent with which to get into the country that would give them riches. Biery left a family of ten with only the earnings of one boy to provide a living, and Abbey left a wife and daughter with a farm to manage. Their trip was filled with all sorts of hardships. They struck Edmonton, N. W. T., where horses were purchased, and from there they went to Fort Assiniboia, via the trail. Several times they were snowed in. Here they built a large boat and Avery Downer, late postmaster at Northville, took the horses and started to cross the Swan mountains, while Biery and Abbey went down the Athabasca river, 100 miles in just 24 hours with the boat.

Then they began an awful journey up the Little Slave river, passing over 20 miles of rapids with great difficulty. On reaching Lesser Slave lake which is 60 miles long, great quantities of ice were found and heavy gales blowing. The two men were compelled to push their boat along the shore sideways to prevent the heavy sea from swamping it. After reaching the head of this lake they were then over 1,000 miles from Dawson City and the great stories of gold finds had proved absolutely false. Abbey turned back and recently reached home. He left Biery with an old miner with 10 horses and 18 months' provisions.

Mr. Abbey is emphatic in his denunciation of the Calgary route, and says hundreds of poor men who had sacrificed property and homes to get into the Klondike have started back after enduring untold hardships and losing every cent.

He says there's no gold in the Alberta district nor in the vicinity of Calgary route, and he damns the railway company for holding out the inducements they do which mean only disappointment and deprivation for dependent families.

He says the largest earnings made along the rivers would not exceed $2 per day, and no one can work for less than $5 and remain in that country. He says he will probably go back again this fall but by a different route and says he could overtake the party yet before they get to the Klondike.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dirty Milk Dangerous.
C. E. Marshall, in an address to Michigan farmers, said: Diphtheria has been conveyed through milk supplies. A single illustration will suffice to give the importance of this avenue of transmission. In a certain large city a milkman noticed that his throat was sore, but did not consider it serious. Not long after a little girl, belonging to a family obtaining milk from this man, became sick with the malignant form of diphtheria. A bacteriological examination revealed the germs of diphtheria in her throat, and an examination of the milkman's throat demonstrated that he had been sick with diphtheria. The contagion which struck down the little girl in all probability emanated from the milkman. We have no unquestioned evidence that diphtheria is ever transmitted through the direct instrumentality of cows. A great deal of satisfactory proof could be adduced to demonstrate that typhoid fever is frequently carried by milk. Within the last year a city of about 20,000 inhabitants was visited by an epidemic of typhoid fever. After a careful mapping out of the cases scattered over the city and a study of the milk routes, the health authorities were able to account for over 85 per cent of typhoid fever patients, and they were able to ascertain that they all had obtained milk from a single milk supply. Following the route taken by this supply through the streets of the city it was noticed that typhoid fever began at two corners where this milkman had supplied milk to other milkmen. Before the corners were reached, the streets were free from typhoid fever. This indicates that the man who supplied this infected street had pure milk until he reached the corner and received some milk from the contaminated supply, and also that wherever and whenever this man supplied milk to other milkmen, their supplies became at once infectious. Upon tracing out this contaminated or infectious supply to its source, it was found that the man had been in the habit of washing his cans in a small creek which flowed through his back yard, and which farther up the stream received sewage. The significance of this typhoid fever epidemic may be well understood when it is learned that there were between one and two thousand cases. The tyrotoxicon victims are perhaps still fresh in memory, for since its discovery by Vaughan of the University numerous cases have come to light in the state of Michigan. In each instance the cause has been definitely established to be due to carelessness in the care of the milk of the milk's surroundings. The Evans' case in the southern part of the state, where a whole family was wiped out with the exception of the father, bears testimony of its direful effects. It should be remembered, too, that the tyrotoxicon is not the only possible poison produced by the action of germs upon milk; other poisons equally intense have been isolated. One other word about germs which produce functional disturbances in man, before leaving this subject. We little realize what germs are capable of doing until we study milk in connection with infant feedings. Cholera infantum and diarrhoea of infants have been markedly reduced since milk used in their feeding has been pasteurized. It is claimed by a French authority that in Paris alone infant mortality has been reduced 50 per cent since pasteurization was introduced. Bearing in mind that pasteurization is not yet universally adopted, we can well comprehend its value in connection with infant feeding. Paris is not the only city that can furnish records so favorable; New York and other cities are equally fortunate.

Poultry Notes.

A contemporary discusses the value of the bantam on the farm and thinks that it has no place. But there are uses to which the bantam can be put that will make it as serviceable as any other fowl. It is a good object lesson to the child to whom it belongs and by it we may awaken an interest in general in poultry. It is a pet that the children can cultivate the acquaintance of and learn gentleness. The mere production of eggs is a small thing in a pet, though the bantam will do what most pets will not do, pay its way. If it supplants the dog or cat so much the better. The bantam will not catch and eat the birds that we want to build in our orchards and groves. Unlike the dog it will not go on sheep killing expeditions. Let the dog and the cat go as pets and bring in the bantam.

Disease and dirt go together in the poultry yard as well as elsewhere. The surest way of getting some destructive disease started among the poultry is to leave the manure in the house indefinitely. Then shut out the light and let in the moisture and you will have the conditions suitable for the extension of any disease that may chance to be blown that way. But if the pens are kept clean, light and dry, the probability is that any germs driven in by the wind will die before becoming active. There is little doubt that disease germs are widely scattered, but are unable in some conditions to get a hold that will permit them to multiply. Let us see that the conditions in the poultry department are kept such that whether the germs come or not we will be safe.

Every time a man looks in a mirror he imagines he can see a hero.

up the old tune about the pullets being the most profitable layers. The case is assumed and not proved. We doubt very much if the young hens do lay as much weight of eggs as the old hens. In the case of a cow we know we do not get the best results till after several years, and the same law should hold good in the case of hens. It would appear that in the second and third year the hens should be at their best. But until experiments are made to determine the point, we suppose the question will still be an open one.

Fruit With Poultry.

Every poultry keeper who has not yet undertaken some kind of fruit culture in connection with his poultry plant has missed something of the good which life holds out and bids him take. Fruit growing and poultry keeping are naturally friendly and allied pursuits of rural economy. They go hand in hand, each assisting to make the other a larger and more perfect success. While the poultry present orchard and fruit plantation with splendid fertilizer and do large work in the destruction of hostile and predaceous insects which threaten all profitable fruit culture, the trees, vines and plants of the fruit garden afford the chickens, as well as mature fowls, with abundant foraging territory and protection from wind and sun beneath their leafy foliage. The poultry keeper and his family usually possess a taste for eating fine fruit freshly gathered, and this should certainly be gratified when it may so easily. But furthermore, there is ample opportunity here for materially supplementing the income from the poultry by the sale of a considerable quantity of the various fruits at highest market prices. The best market for fruit is usually found in the nearest small city; the inhabitants of which are very ready to buy good fruit, neatly put up and delivered regularly, at prices far superior to what would be realized by sale on commission in the markets of a very large city, where heavy consignments are too frequently met for competition. Among the desirable fruits for culture upon the poultry farm are the various so-called small fruits, such as strawberries, raspberries, currants and blackberries, and the princely orchard fruits, such as apple, pear, plum and peach. Plums have been recommended for years as being desirable for setting in poultry runs; the idea being advanced that the poultry would catch and consume the troublesome curculio, which stings the fruit so badly. This is good advice on general principles, although it can not be said truthfully that any man who wants a good crop of plums can afford to depend upon the hens to fight insect enemies for him. The poultry will help, but man must spray and far the trees also to acquire success. But there is no doubt but that fowls, like all insectivorous birds, are of large assistance in checking the ravages of many species of insects, the bane of all other fruits as well as the plum.

Poultry in New South Wales.

From recently compiled official statistics, it appears that there are 121,000 persons in the colony of New South Wales who are poultry-keepers; the total population of this colony is 1,311,440, so that something over 9 per cent of the population are poultry raisers. At the last census taking there were in the colony 3,180,000 fowls; 320,000 ducks; 344,000 turkeys, and 97,000 geese. The annual production of eggs approximates 80,000,000; this amount is not sufficient for the local consumption, and is supplemented by an import of about 2,000,000 eggs in excess of the export. The statistics computed that the annual consumption of poultry is 2,000,000 fowls; 275,000 ducks, 200,000 turkeys, and 75,000 geese. Poultry shows are conducted annually in connection with the agricultural shows, at which types of selected and pure-strain birds are exhibited; there being a number of fowl fanciers in the metropolitan county of Cumberland, who devote all their energies to this business.—Ex.

Raising Mules.—There are today thousands of mares throughout the country, unfit for profitable breeding to any stallion but which would bring mules of the $35 to $50 class, and many would bring better animals. The breeding of common horses is overdone, and it is reported that there is a greater scarcity of mules in the South than has been known in a dozen years. It looks as if breeding them now would be safe and profitable. But even a better market than the cotton states will be opened in Cuba at the termination of its war. That island, at the moment of its pacification, will need somewhere from 50,000 to 75,000 mules at once, and Texas stands in a better geographical position to supply that demand than any other part of the United States that has mules to sell.—Ex.

Fat Lambs.—Prof. Henry says in "Feeds and Feeding" the demand for well fattened lambs steadily increases, the tender, juicy meat finding favor among Americans. Not only do prices for fat lambs rule high as compared with mature sheep and farm animals generally, but there are other advantages in favor of feeding of lambs before they reach maturity. A given weight of feed goes further with lambs than mature sheep; the money invested is sooner returned, and there is less risk from death and accident. Thus, everything tends towards hurrying lambs to market as rapidly as they can be fattened and as early as they can be disposed of to secure the highest prices.

ARE BETTER BICYCLES THAN CAN BE BOUGHT IN AMERICA FOR THE SAME MONEY.

We employ no traveling men, issue no expensive circulars, sell our entire output to the riders for cash only, have no bad debts, therefore can sell BICYCLES 100 per cent cheaper than any manufacturer in the United States. We never deceive the public. No one can succeed in so doing. Our bicycles are sent subject to approval without any advance whatever. We expect to sell 15,000 bicycles in 1898 and we only want to make $1 each. We much prefer to sell 15,000 at a profit of $1 each than 1,000 at $15 each. R. H. Purdy has purchased the Cook peach orchard south of town, and the R. Simmons plum orchard north-west of here.

In these days where a knot of citizens is seen on the street in earnest talk and gesticulation, it may safely be said their topic is street car route—not politics.

Eight-for-a-quarter street car tickets good within the corporate limits of the village are being urged. No doubt it would be a money-maker for the company.

He and Thurston will make a pair that's hard to beat.

A very pretty, but quiet, wedding occurred at the Presbyterian parsonage Wednesday evening, the contracting parties being John Diederich Hashagen of New York, and Miss George Warren Mitchell of Thomasville, Ga. Rev. J. H. Herbenner performed the ceremony. The couple left on the forenoon train Thursday for the East. Mrs. Hashagen is a sister of Mrs. Herbenner.

While enroute for Novi with his wife and little girl Tuesday afternoon Tom Taylor's horse became frightened at G. P. Allen's stove repair wagon at the corner of Center and Yerkes street and turned short enough to handsomely "dash" one of the forward wheels, landing the occupants safely on the ground. The horse became detached from the buggy and capered on up Center street where it was later captured.

To show the value of Northville as a popular place in which to hold conventions when coupled with push and advertising, it may be stated that there were but 125 teachers registered at the four weeks' county institute just closed at Dearborn, while in a single week 184 were registered here last year. It is safe to say that had the meeting been held here this year, the attendance would have reached over 200.

The casket containing the remains of the late James Bradley of Lyon was taken from the vault in Oakwood Tuesday and interred in the Waterford cemetery. The friends opened the casket previous to the burial and notwithstanding the death occurred some sixteen days previous, the body was in a perfect state of preservation, and was wax-like in appearance. The relatives were loud in their praise of Mr. Porter's skill as an undertaker and embalmer.

Aug. 17, Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cures my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. I cannot say enough for its merits." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and to-day stands the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at Geo. C. Hueston's Drug Store.

Chief Clerk National Hotel, Washington, D. C., testifies that he was all run down—was a shadow of his former self—Bicola gave him new energy. He gained over twenty pounds after using them. Asbury B. Clapper, formerly a telegraph operator at Plymouth and who got in trouble for having too many wives, died at the home of Frank Lyon here Wednesday night of peritonitis. He had stopped off here to make a brief visit while enroute for Saginaw. His father came from Indiana and took the remains to his home with him. Officers were here after him yesterday, but he had been summoned by a higher authority just a few hours previously.

A letter received from "Jim" Moon, who is with the 32d at Ferdinandina, states the Northville boys are "all sicker than the devil." He says that "Bob" Denton looks like a skeleton while "Tip" Lewis Taylor and himself are on the sick list but mostly on the gain now. "Tip" and "Jim" have also lost about 20 lbs of flesh down there in the swamps somewhere, and it is safe to say none of the boys will feel sorry when the orders to "return home" are promulgated. Uncle Sam seems to have thought that volunteers enlisted to fight hunger, fever and cramps as well as Spaniards.

So many questions have been asked as to the particulars of the death of Brayton Flint, formerly of Novi, (a brother of Mrs. Albert Vandenburg of this place) who was with the 22d Kansas Vols., that we gather the following from Stockton (Kan.) Signal published at Mr. Flint's home. He was among the first to enlist (May 5) with the volunteers of his state, and for meritorious conduct had been promoted to corporal. He was 25 years of age. He died in the Fort Myer, Va., hospital July 28, of virulent erysipelas and the remains were sent to his Kansas home for burial. He was a son of the late L. B. Flint of Novi and as well as the other members of the family, was well known in and about Northville, Novi and Milford, where he was held in high esteem.

THE HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN BRIEFLY RELATED.

Michigan Sailor Laid on the Yosemite Coming Home—Prominent Michigan Lawyer and Legislator Dead—Michigan Loses Many of Soldier Boys.

Michigan Naval Reserves Soon to be Home. Gov. Pingree received the telegram from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, notifying him that the Yosemite had been ordered to Philadelphia, where the officers and crew will be discharged, and inviting himself and staff to inspect the cruiser before the Michigan Naval Reserves are sent home. In reply the governor telegraphed that he would endeavor to be present if word could be sent to him on what day his visit would be agreeable.

Norfolk, Va. The U. S. auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, manned by the Michigan Naval Reserves, raised her anchor in Hampton Roads and sailed for the League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, where the crew will be mustered out of the service of the United States and return to their homes.

Counterfeiters Caught.

A big haul of counterfeiters has been made at Detroit. Four brothers, Charles, Edmund, John and David Johnson, are in safe keeping and about $5,000 in counterfeit money besides the plates, etc., have been recovered at their headquarters. Twenty-sixth street, Detroit. The Haack and Win-dom 52 bills were the ones counterfeited, the artistic work required being done by the youngest brother, David. There are few banks in this section of the country, including particularly Ohio, Michigan and adjoining states, that have not often accepted these counterfeit bills, and there have been few bogus bills that have caused the government detectives more trouble.

Col. Atkinson Died Suddenly.

Col. John Atkinson, one of the most prominent members of the Michigan bar and state legislature and a strong supporter and aide of Gov. Pingree, died of neuritis of the heart at Detroit. His taking off was most sudden, as he was in his office and about the city two days before apparently in perfect health. Fortunately the entire family was within easy call. Mrs. Atkinson and the younger children being at their summer home on Bois Blanc Island, Detroit river; his sons Lieut. Reilly Atkinson, Co. L, 33d Michigan, having just returned from Santiago, and Maj. O'Brien Atkinson, 33d Michigan, was at Island Lake.

Sick Michigan Officers Come Home.

Brig. Gen. Duffield, of Detroit, having been released from quarantine at Egmont Key, Fla., proceeded north to Saginaw to recuperate from the effects of yellow fever which he contracted at Santiago. Leaves of absence have also been granted to the following convalescent Michigan officers: Col. Byington, Maj. M. E. Webb, Maj. V. C. Vaughan, Capt. Wilcox, Lieut. Haas, 34th Michigan; Lieut. Atkinson 33d Michigan.

BRITISH AROUSED.

OTHER POWERS ARE CROWDING JOHN BULL IN CHINA.

Russia, France and Belgium. Faint and Prevent Great Britain Securing Concessions of the Greatest Importance to British Chinese Interests.

Great Britain has received a severe setback in China as a result of the combined diplomacy of Russia, France and Belgium, particularly the former. The contest centered on the granting of the concessions for constructing a railway from Peking to Han-Kow and it was universally conceded that the power which secured this was in the ascendancy in Chinese empire. For this reason Sir Claude M. MacDonald, the British minister to China, attended a meeting of the Chinese foreign office officials and pledged Great Britain's firm promise to support China if threatened by any foreign power on account of a concession granted to a British subject. However, M. Pavloff, the Russian chargé d'affaires, continued to exert his influence against the Peking-Han-Kow railroad. The concessions represented the essence of Great Britain's future in China, and it was realized that if China yielded to Russian menaces, the prospects of the Shan-Si (British) syndicate were imperiled. It was a foregone conclusion that M. Pavloff would demand a revocation by the Chinese government of the Shan-Si contract. Private enterprise would avail nothing against the representations of Russia, and Great Britain would be barred from the commercial advantages which that agreement carried.

Late dispatches from Peking say that an imperial edict has finally issued sanctioning the Belgian loan for the construction of the railway line from Peking to Han-Kow, despite the protests of Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister. Baron De Vaneck, the Belgian minister, sent a dispatch to the Tsung-Li-Yamen, (Chinese foreign office) asserting that M. Pavloff, the Russian chargé d'affaires, and M. Gerard, the French minister, had joined him in urging the Tsung-Li-Yamen to disregard the attempt of the British minister to prevent the ratification of Peking-Han-Kow contract, and it is asserted confidently that despite the British endeavor to obtain a revision of the contract, an imperial decree will issue forthwith for its ratification.

The Tsung-Li-Yamen has also given formal assent to all the conditions imposed by the Russian charge d'affaires, M. Pavloff, regarding the contract for the Niu-Chwang (British) railway extension loan. These conditions are in direct conflict with the terms of the signed contract and are designed to block the completion of the final contract.

London: All the morning papers including the supporters of the government, attack Lord Salisbury for weakness in dealing with the Chinese question. The Standard says: "These repeated humiliations are becoming intolerable."

Daily Mail: "The door is closed. The proudly boasted British lion does not exist in the Yangtze valley. It is a mistake, and looking to what Lord Salisbury has done in Egypt, his failure in China is inexplicable."

Daily Chronicle: "What is to be the result nobody can say. There is room for the gloomiest forebodings. Does the country realize that for want of a little foresight and firmness Great Britain may ere long be plunged into a colossal war? Such, without the least doubt or exaggeration, is the appalling possibility."

In the house of commons A. J. Balfour, the first lord of the treasury and government leader, admitted that the statements in the Peking dispatch were substantially correct, and said that the matter was "engaging the serious attention of the government."

Paris: The papers are full of the significance of the Chinese question. The Matin says: "In China the greatest game in the world is being played, and French intervention should be efficacious and decisive." The Soir has an sensational article headed, "War between England and Russia imminent." The Journal des Debats says: "England is now seeking an arrangement with Russia. That understanding is impossible unless Russia remains mistress of the north and England is insured her influence on the Yangtze river. In short, the lines of the section are beginning to be marked along which the disruption will occur whenever China is in a fever. Clearly neither France, Germany nor Japan could hold a foot from such an agreement." The article hints that France would support Russia in the event of war, and says, in conclusion: "France will be content with the southern provinces, bordering on Tonquin."

A dispatch from Ponce, Porto Rico says: Capt. Eddle, of Co. C, Fourth Ohio volunteers, must stand trial by court-martial and then answer for the conduct of his men during the attack on Guayama. It is alleged that during the slight skirmish Co. C fled panic-stricken at the first fire, and their flight spread the alarm, which almost caused a panic in the ranks.

The United States government is not going to take much nonsense from Aguinaldo, the Philippine insurgent leader. The instructions to Gen. Merritt and Admiral Dewey will be very specific on this point. If Aguinaldo makes any trouble he will be arrested and deported. Not having the Spanish troops to fight the United States forces will make short work of Aguinaldo if he is inclined to be treacherous.

Gen. Blanco has tendered to the Spanish government his resignation as captain general of Cuba, giving as his reason that he does not wish to superintend the evacuation of Cuba.

DEWEY BOMBARDED MANILLA.

City Unconditionally Surrendered and Capt. Gen. Augusti Fleed.

Washington: The state department gives out the following dispatch received from U. S. Consul Wildman, at Hong Kong: "Augusti says, Dewey bombarded Manila city, surrendered unconditionally. Augusti was taken by Germans in a launch to the cruiser Kaiserin Augusta and brought to Hong Kong. Credit report."

Press dispatches from Hong Kong say: Gen. Augusti, captain-general of the Philippines, arrived by the Kaiserin Augusta. He refuses to be interviewed and will say nothing more than that he is going to Spain at the first opportunity. The German consul was called upon and he informed the correspondent that the outskirts of Manila were bombarded by the Americans and that the city surrendered. No damage was done to the city proper, only the outskirts being bombarded. Gen. Augusti told a lady that Admiral Dewey demanded the surrender of Manila in an hour. The Spaniards declined to surrender, and Dewey began the bombardment, and the Spaniards hoisted the white flag. Gen. Augusti immediately jumped into a German launch, which was in waiting, and went to the Kaiserin Augusta which sailed before the bombardment was concluded.

Madrid: The government is informed that Gen. Augusti, governor-general of the Philippines, has left Manila for Spain, giving his command to the second-in-rank.

Further particulars of the surrender have been received from Spanish and German sources at Hong Kong. The bombardment was continued for two hours, and then the American troops stormed the trenches sweeping all before them. The first Colorado volunteers led the storming of the outer trenches and the Spaniards were soon driven into the second line of defense. Then the American troops swept on, driving all the Spaniards into the inner fortifications, where Gen. Jaudenes, the Spanish officer to whom Gen. Augusti gave the command of the city when he fled, seeing that further resistance was useless, surrendered.

The foreign fleets watched the bombardment with acute interest. The American warships engaged were the Olympia, Boston, Charleston, Baltimore, Monterey, Petrel, Raleigh and McCulloch. Admiral Dewey and Gen. Merritt had issued orders to spare all except armed defenses of the city, and consequently the town is understood to have been but little damaged. Some street fighting between the insurgents and the Spaniards occurred on the outskirts, but order prevailed within the walled section. Nothing could be more humane than the Americans' capture of the town. The Spanish officers were allowed their freedom on parole. The judiciary and the administrative offices are to remain temporarily in the hands of the Spaniards. The insurgents remain outside the town.

British Ultimatum to China.

London: The foreign office, it is reported, intends to demand that the Chinese government dismiss Li Hung Chang from power on the ground that he is responsible for the recent anti-British attitude of the Tsung-Li-Yamen. The foreign office, it is asserted, has had under special consideration the question of seizing the Taku forts, on the Gulf of Pechili, at the mouth of the Peking river, and the city of Tien Tsin, the port of Peking, in the event of China refusing to comply with this demand, holding all until compliance is assured.

Secret Treaty Between Russia and China.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail, professes to divulge the terms of a secret treaty between China and Russia, and says: "It is nothing less than an offensive alliance. China undertakes to regard Russia as having a preponderating influence in all questions of commercial and internal politics, while Russia will support China against all open door demands." Russia finances China, in internal developments, and China grants Russia preferential rates in certain areas, and railways built in the joint interests of the two countries will be under Russia's practical control. Russia will assist China in developing her military and naval forces; and China will co-operate with Russia as an ally.

Russians have obtained control of large tracts of land along the route of the proposed New Chwang railway.

Shanghai: The China Gazette claims that the Russian government holds Li Hung Chang's promise, made during his visit to St. Petersburg, that China would place the imperial customs under Russian control whatever the interests of the two countries demanded the change. Li Hung Chang is said to favor M. Pavloff, the Russian charge d'affaires, superseding Sir Robert Hart (British), as inspector-general of the Chinese customs.

SHAKE HANDS NOW.

YANKEES AND DONOS ARE AT PEACE AGAIN.

President McKinley Issued a Proclamation Immediately After the Signing of the Peace Papers—Provisions of the Protocol in Outline.

With a simplicity in keeping with republican institutions the war, which has raged between Spain and the United States for a period of three months and 22 days, was quietly terminated when Secretary of State Day, for the United States, and M. Cambon, ambassador of France, acting for Spain, in the presence of President McKinley, signed a protocol which will form the basis of a definite treaty of peace. As this ceremony was concluded the President requested the hand of the ambassador and through him returned thanks to the sister republic of France for the exercise of her good offices in bringing about peace. He also thanked the ambassador personally for the part he has played in the negotiations, and the latter replied in appropriate terms. As a further mark of his disposition, President McKinley called for the proclamation which he had caused to be drawn up suspending hostilities, and signed it in the presence of M. Cambon. The protocol provides as follows:

1. That Spain will relinquish all claim of sovereignty over and title to Cuba.

2. That Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies, and the island in the Ladronez, to be selected by the United States, shall be ceded to the latter.

3. That the United States will occupy and hold the city, bay and harbor of Manila, pending the conclusion of a treaty of peace which shall determine the control, disposition and government of the Philippines.

4. That Cuba, Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies shall be immediately evacuated and that commissioners, to be appointed within 10 days, shall, within 30 days from the signing of the protocol, meet at Havana and San Juan, respectively, to arrange and execute the details of the evacuation.

5. That the United States and Spain will each appoint not more than five commissioners to negotiate and conclude a treaty of peace. The commissioners are to meet at Paris not later than Oct. 1.

6. On the signing of the protocol hostilities will be suspended, and notice to that effect will be given as soon as possible by each government to the commanders of its military and naval forces.

The proclamation issued by President McKinley was as follows:

Whereas, By a protocol concluded and signed Aug. 12, 1898, by William R. Day, secretary of state of the United States, and his excellency Jules Cambon, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the Republic of France at Washington, respectively representing for this purpose the government of the United States and the government of Spain, the United States and Spain have formally agreed upon the terms on which negotiations for the establishment of peace between the two countries shall be undertaken; and Whereas, It is in said protocol agreed that upon its conclusion and signature, hostilities between the two countries shall be suspended, and that notice to that effect shall be given as soon as possible by each government to the commanders of its military and naval forces:

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do, in accordance with the stipulations of the protocol, declare and proclaim on the part of the United States a suspension of hostilities, and do hereby command that orders be immediately given through the proper channels to the commanders of the military and naval forces of the United States to abstain from all acts inconsistent with this proclamation.

100,000 Volunteers to be Mustered Out.

The mustering out of the volunteer army raised in defense of the Union against the armies of Spain has been begun at the war department and will be continued until the army has been placed on a basis consistent with our present relations to the nations of the earth. Orders were prepared for the mustering out, first, of about 35,000 volunteers, including nearly 25 regiments of infantry and about eight troops of cavalry and fire or six batteries of artillery. Unless there is a decided change in the present plans of the war department, about 100,000 volunteers will be mustered out within the next 30 days. A formal announcement of the plans of the department on this subject is being deferred pending the receipt of certain desired information from Maj. Gen. Merritt, commanding the military forces in the Philippines.

The proposed reduction of the army to the extent of 100,000 men will still leave a military force of about 160,000 men, regulars and volunteers, available for all military purposes. It is believed to be the purpose of the administration to maintain an army of at least 100,000 men until all the pending complications with Spain are finally disposed of.

The Peace News Sent Out.

Ponce, Porto Rico: The peace news has stopped all forward movements of the American army in Porto Rico. Gen. Wilson, at Coamo, and Gen. Selwan, at Mayaguez, will remain at those places, which they took possession of after hot battles in which the losses were small. Gen. Henry, who is at Utuado, will return to Adjuntas, and Gen. Brooke, who had advanced beyond Guayama, will return to that town. Gen. Miles expects to do nothing pending the arrival at San Juan of the peace commissioners.

CALM AFTER STORM.

Washington Quickly Settles Down Pursuits of Peace.

Washington: The White House, the war department and the navy department have resumed their usual quietude, a condition which has not prevailed since the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, February 15. The busy, warlike attitude has entirely disappeared and Washington has settled down to a peace basis.

The President believes that the most serious problem which the peace commission will be called upon to deal with is the Philippines. Before the commission assembles it is hoped the affairs of Cuba and Porto Rico will be found in such process of adjustment as to leave little for the commission to consider under that head. The fact that the Philippines will present the difficult problem has caused the administration to give it a great deal of careful attention. Several suggestions have been made as to what shall be done. It is believed, however, that the administration and the commission will be greatly influenced by the reports which Admiral Dewey and Gen. Merritt will make on the subject. No more troops will be sent to Gen. Merritt unless he asks for them. It is believed at the war department that the 16,000 men now there are sufficient to garrison Manila and the ground which the United States for the present will occupy.

The final determination as to the government of Porto Rico and the settlement of the government of Cuba are problems, but the impression prevails that these islands will become quite rapidly Americanized, and every encouragement for them to do so will be given. Porto Rico will be under military control for the present. Cuba will be similarly governed, but it is probable that American reforms in the matter of government will be such that the people of Cuba will see the advantage of becoming annexed to the United States. There has been little doubt about soon settling the transfer of Porto Rico, and the reception which the American troops have received in that island is a justification for the belief. Porto Rico will be treated as an American possession. Military post-offices will be established at once wherever troops are stationed and at such other points as may be demanded by the interests of Americans and the people of the island, if the present offices are not available. A similar course will be taken in Cuba, but this is likely to be delayed, as the immediate removal of the Spanish and the occupation by the United States is not expected.

All of the troops that were with Gen. Shafter in the Santiago campaign will be out of Cuba by August 25 at the latest. Gen. Shafter will accompany them to Montauk Point. There will remain at Santiago five regiments of infantry, to do garrison duty. Gen. Miles has about 15,000 men in Porto Rico. That will be sufficient for the occupation of the island and perhaps more than are needed after the Spanish evacuation. The remainder of the troops will remain in the various camps to which they have been assigned for the present, though something may be done looking towards diminishing the number when it becomes apparent that they are no longer needed.

The government will dispose of the transports that have been in use as fast as they can be released and are no longer required for service. All vessels of the navy that can be spared from service in the West Indies will be ordered to ports in the states, where the men will be given brief holidays. The battleships of the fleet will be put in dry dock as soon as possible and undergo such repairs as may be necessary. There is scarcely a vessel of the navy that does not need docking. The auxiliary vessels of the navy, which will not be used for the permanent navy will be disposed of as soon as they go out of commission.

The First Vermont volunteers have been ordered to camp at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

Trouble with the Obans is breeding, says a Santiago dispatch. Their attitude is one of sullen hostility toward Americans. The better class in Cuba favor annexation to the United States and a majority of the masses are ready and anxious for an American protectorate; but they are influenced by a certain class of rabid breeders of sedition who advise the Cubans to repudiate all offers of peace and to ignore the armistice as not binding upon them, to the point of continuing to wage war and shooting every Spaniard in the field.

Shell Wilden.

"Has their education been continued?" asks Ruby, with keen anxiety.

"My sister imagined that she had succeeded in teaching them their alphabet," laughs Robert Champey, "but Bob still confounds 'b' and 'd,' whilst Meg's learning is limited to an acquaintance with the letter 'o.'"

"Dreadful!" ejaculates Ruby, looking shocked. "No time must be lost. I think so much depends upon a child's early training, and I know that was dear Clara's idea too."

"Was it?" questions Mr. Champey eagerly, and with his keen eyes fixed steadily on Ruby, as though she had suddenly turned into an oracle. "In that case I must see about it at once, but I must manage to get someone who will make their lessons more than half play for them, for they are neither particularly strong, poor children, and I would not have them worried on any account. I dare say if I offer a handsome salary I shall be able to get them a governess, who will listen to my wishes on that point. I had better, I think, advertise for some one about twenty; then she will not be above playing with the children, and she will not have got soiled by buffeting with the world."

"Oh, Mr. Champey, what an utterly mistaken ideal!" cries Ruby, in real consternation at this most dangerous suggestion. "What you want is a woman of sixty—a thorough disciplinarian."

"Oh, no, I don't," responds Mr. Champey. "I am not going to hand over my children to a martinet." He speaks with such unusual decision that Ruby begins most heartily to wish she had not broached the subject of education.

"But girls are so inexperienced and often so impatient with children," she falters. "If you are determined to have a young person, would it not be better to engage some one in the neighborhood who could come to them for a few hours a day?"

"That is a very good idea, as far as it goes," answers Mr. Champey reflectively. "Only where am I to find her?"

Suddenly a bright thought—nay, almost an inspiration—strikes Ruby. Looking up at him, with clasped hands and beseeching eyes, she says—

"Oh, Mr. Champey, if I might only be allowed to teach them, I would with pleasure!"

"You, Miss Wilden," says her companion in surprise—"you?"

"Yes, why not?" questions Ruby quickly. "I was their mother's best friend, and I do not on children. You do not know how much brightness would be added to my lot if you would only entrust me with their education!"

"I had no idea that you had any gift that way."

"I think I have. At any rate, I know that it would make me very happy if you would send me Bob and Meg for a few hours three mornings a week."

Mr. Champey frowns and looks uncomfortable.

"I really could not dream of so far troubling you, Miss Wilden," he says, with a decided head-shake. "Teaching is very irksome work, unless to the initiated, and I do not wish my children to become a burden on my friends."

"Oh, nonsense!" cries Ruby, with a playful smile. "Don't I tell you that I should enjoy having them?" Raising her voice a little she calls her mother to her aid. "Mamma, I am trying to induce Mr. Champey to let me teach Bob and Meg. Don't you think it would really do me good to have some regular occupation?"

"Of course it would, my dear," acquiesces Mrs. Wilden cheerfully. "Only I am not quite sure you know much to teach them."

"You see, mamma thinks me incompetent," says Ruby, smiling. "Perhaps you object to my plan for the same reason?"

"Oh, dear no!" laughs Robert Champey. "I have no doubt whatever of your ability, but—"

"In that case I shan't listen to your 'buts,'" says Ruby archly, as she rises from her seat and crosses over to the piano, "and I shall consider the matter settled. Next Monday I shall expect the dear children at ten o'clock precisely."

Then, without allowing time for any objection, she takes the seat which Shell has just vacated, and breaks into a brilliant arrangement of lively Scotch airs.

Robert Champey makes one more effort to free himself from an obligation which is so exceedingly distasteful; but his not very clear reasons are quickly overruled by Ruby and her mother, so that he leaves the Wilderness that evening with a cloud on his usually placid brow.

"I wish that woman had more tact," he confides gloomily to Ted as, having donned light overcoats and lighted their cigars, they went their way down the short drive.

"Which woman?" queries Ted, in a tone of indifferent wonder.

"Why, Miss Wilden, of course! Her common sense might tell her that I would rather have a regular governess for the children if they need teaching, and regarding Ruby with angry eyes and a very red face.

"You rude little boy," says Ruby, throwing down her paper in surprise, and regarding the young rebel with a haughty stare; "go to your copy at once, or I will put you in the corner! Meg is a naughty, naughty girl, and if she does not tell me at once what three times four is I will make her a dunce's cap."

Meg throws herself upon the carpet in a paroxysm of fright; the disgrace to her mind sounds so terrible that her howl changes into convulsive sobs, only stopped when Bob shouts at the top of his voice—

"Three times four are twelve, Meg."

"Three times four are twelve," says Meg from her crouching position; and then she goes on with her crying more tranquilly.

This open rebellion on Bob's part causes Ruby to rise from her chair and advance ominously towards the culprit.

"I don't care—I don't!" cries Bob in a frightened voice. "You can put me on three dunce's caps if you like."

Ruby makes no answer, but, having reached Bob's side, administers a sharp box on each ear.

"I don't care," repeats Bob, whose poor little face is crimson at the indignity.

"Then you are a wicked little boy," says Ruby angrily; "and as a punishment you shall do another whole copy of pot-hooks."

"I don't care," reiterates Bob doggedly, as Ruby roughly drags him from his perch.

"Now watch me whilst I set your copy; and if you make a blot on this page I shall punish you, remember."

"I wouldn't be as cross as you for the whole world," remarks Meg's chirping voice at this moment with great decision. She has risen from the carpet, and is regarding Ruby with a mixture of dislike and fear.

Then there was silence in the apartment whilst Ruby labors through a whole line of stately pot-hooks—she is always very careful about setting the copy well, because the copy is occasionally shown to Mr. Champey.

She makes a graceful picture, seated on a low chair, and with her well-poised head bent eagerly over her task; unfortunately, Bob and Meg are not of an age to appreciate beauty as a mere study. Yet, notwithstanding this fact, Bob's keen eyes are fixed upon her closely, though with no friendly look. Presently his keen gaze lights upon a half-pint standing loosely out from Ruby's heavy plaits. Cautiously—very cautiously he first touches it, then draws it out and holds it up for Meg's approval. That little damsel smiles and dimples with delight.

Much pleased with his success, he quietly withdraws another pin and then another; but suddenly his exultation changes into fright, for with a slow movement the big shining plait comes gliding down and falls at his feet.

"Oh, I didn't mean it," he says in a tone of apology, "but your hair has come off."

Even now he does not understand the enormity of his offense, nor can he comprehend why Ruby becomes so alarmingly red as she stoops to pick up her lost property.

"Did you cut it off, Bob?" asks Meg innocently.

"No, I only took the pins, and it fell off," explains Bob, who is full of consternation at the mischief he has wrought.

"You had no right to touch it," says Ruby severely. "Your papa only knew how rude you have been he would have you punished." This she says by way of warning the children against repeating this contempts at home—little does she understand their perfect love and confidence in their father.

Her announcement only has the effect of sending tender-hearted Meg off into a spasmodic fit of weeping, so distressed is she at the idea of causing grief to her dear papa.

CHAPTER IV.

Ruby has now been the self-constituted instructress of Bob and Meg for nearly a month. The novelty of her voluntary task has worn off; the children too have taken off that feeling of restraint and shyness which caused them in the beginning to sit like little models of patience during the two hours devoted to lessons. They have now begun to realize the fact that their liberty is restricted during the morning visits to the Wilderness, and both are beginning to regard their disinterested benefactress simply in the light of a jailer. Ruby possesses none of those qualities so essentially necessary to win childish hearts—she has no patience, no tact, and not an atom of real sympathy for her young charges.

One bright June morning Bob is laboriously forming some strange hieroglyphics supposed to represent pot-hooks in a very blotted and limpy copy-book, whilst poor little Meg, with an ominous quiver of her lips, is standing with her hands behind her in front of Ruby, vainly seeking in her passive little brain for the answer to the oft-repeated question—

"Now, Meg—wake up, and tell me, like a good little child, what is three times four."

"Three times four—three times four," repeats Meg drearily—so often has the same question been put in the same words that it conveys no meaning to her childish heart—she has no patience, no tact, and not an atom of real sympathy for her young charges.

VALLEY FORGE.

The Wonderful Endurance of Cold, Sick, Hungry Soldiers.

But, whether due to military expediency or not, the story of Valley Forge is an epic of slow suffering silently borne, of patient heroism, and of a very bright and triumphant outcome, when the gray days, the long nights and the biting frost find together, says Scribner's. The middle of December in the North American woods; no shelter, no provisions, no preparations; such were the conditions of Valley Forge when the American army first came there. Two weeks of hard work and huts were built and arranged in streets. This work was done on a diet of flour mixed with water and baked in cakes, with scarcely any meat or bread. At night the men huddled around the fires to keep from freezing. Few blankets, few coverings, many soldiers without shoes, "wading naked in December's snows"—such were the attributes of Valley Forge. By the new year the huts were done, the street laid out and an army housed, with some three thousand men unit for duty, frost-bitten, sick and hungry. They had shelter, but that was about all. The country had been swept so bare by the passage of the contending armies that even straw to lie on was hard to get, and the cold, uncovered ground often had to serve for a sleeping place. Provisions were scarce and hunger was added to the pain of cold. Sometimes the soldiers went for days without meat—sometimes without any food. Lafayette tells us, marveling at the endurance and courage of the men, "There is often famine in the camp, writes Hamilton, a man not given to exaggeration."

The Study of Bacteriology.
Prof. E. B. Klein, speaking of "Modern Methods in Bacteriology" before the Royal Institution of Great Britain a short time ago, alluded to the great advances that have been made in this science since its inauguration by Koch in 1881-1882. So far has the study of bacteria developed that it is now possible not only to count, but also to weigh them. A postage stamp 7-8 inch long, and 3-4 wide would carry 500,000,000 of the typhoid fever bacilli, and if the layer were made a tenth of an inch deep, there would be 2,000,000,000,000. If fifteen drops of bacteria were let fall in a cup of broth, they would produce in twenty-four hours 80,000,000. The degree of refinement manifested by the bacteriologist in his researches is shown by the statement of the same authority that it is now possible to detect one part of sewage when contained in 500,000 parts of water.

It is the easiest thing in the world to forgive yourself the sins you condemn in others.

T. G.

HAS ADDED FIVE YEARS to the already past 25 years of business life. Commencing on Saturday, August 20th I will offer my services and past 25 years of experience to the people of Northville and vicinity, and I pledge you my word that the next five years will be of interest to the people of this community—as the past has been most pleasant as well as profitable to myself; and I trust it has been the same to my customer friends. Thanking you one and all for past favors, and thanking you in advance for the future.

P. S. The past four weeks sale has reduced my stock very low, in fact my invoice shows my stock to be the lowest for years. The above gives my customers and myself great advantages; as you will see lots of new goods roll in this store during the next thirty days. Goods are very, very cheap just now and if you don't see prices that are stunners I miss my guess. For the benefit of my customers I shall leave nothing unturned that is in my power for my patrons' welfare for the next five years. Watch this space week by week, more especially next week, as that will be the starter. Everybody welcome at T. G.'s, whether looking for goods or not, glad to see you at any time. There are some folks who don't want the earth—and besides when they came to the last place they were too full for utterance and could only shake their heads mournfully and wish they hadn't eaten quite so much at all the other places. A startling incident of which Mr. J. Oliver of Philadelphia was the subject, is narrated as follows: I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at Geo. C. Hueston's Drug Store.
