HOW STATE POLITICIANS ARE WORRYING ABOUT WHO SHALL BE DETROIT'S NEXT MAYOR.

"Now, Who Can We Put Up for Mayor of Detroit?"

—From Detroit Evening News.

THE GLOBE CO'S PROPOSITION

MEANS—THE INVESTMENT OF $50,000 CAPITAL

And Would Give the New Company a Free Site.

So much has been said about the village during the past few weeks as to the Globe Furniture Co.'s proposition made to the Improvement Association's committee relative to the proposed new industries, and which proposition many people do not appear to have heard of, or if they have, do not understand. We have therefore taken the trouble this week to personally see President Deal of the Globe company from whom we obtained copies of the proposition so submitted, and we are pleased to publish them in full, as follows:

L. W. Simmons, Chairman Northville Imp. Com.

Dear Sir:—It is now three months since our factories burned and the question has been before the people about what industries should be induced to take their place. In order to aid the citizens herein solving these problems, we made a proposition some little time ago, to turn over what is known as the Columbia Refrigerator factory and the grounds belonging to a proposed new company, who should build (on the site of the factory that was burned) another factory for the refrigerator business, of equal value to the one turned over to them; that with this we would turn over orders on our books to the amount of $24,000.00 or over, which would be of great value to them. We have received no reply to this proposition and would like to know if it is still being considered and the probabilities of its being accepted or rejected.

We also submit the following for your consideration: The Globe Furniture Co. has in contemplation the repurchase of the real estate and all of the remaining property of the American School Furniture Co., including the Electric Light plant as it now stands. In making the offer which we did to the A. S. F. Co., we supposed that it would be of the amount of $24,000.00 or over, which would be of great value to them. We have received no reply to this proposition and would like to know if it is still being considered and the probabilities of its being accepted or rejected.

The aid in the formation of a new company appears to be of decided value. To turn over a factory all equipped and ready for business with a large amount of orders on hand, giving them possession at once of a

Simonds, Prof. Rane, Mr. Wedemeyer, Ann Arbor, and Mr. Babbitt of Ypsilanti for the W. R. C. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"We, the members of Co. D. 5th Mich. Cav. Vol., desire to extend a hearty welcome home to our honored fellow citizen, Gen. R. A. Alger, who was at one time colonel of our regiment. We remember him as a gallant commander who always had at heart the best interests of the men under his command. We honor him as one of Michigan's noblest sons and hereby express our faith in his integrity, his ability and his patriotism. We welcome him back after his splendid service at the head of the war department and wish him many years of happiness in the future."

GEN. ALGER'S REPLY: Mr. H. M. White, Secy., Northville, Mich. My Dear Sir:—I have been very, very deeply touched by the resolutions passed by company D of my old 5th regiment. Whenever I hear the sound of the name 5th Michigan Cavalry my heart thrills with love, joy and pride, and whenever the comrades gather together again, will you thank them for me, for their resolutions.

"I hope hereafter to be at your reunions. Sincerely yours, R. A. ALGER." J. K. Lowden was chosen president for the coming year. E. K. Simonds, vice pres.; H. M. White, sec.; E. K. Starkweather, Treas. Holly was selected as the next place of meeting.

NORTHVILLE'S OLDEST RESIDENT

MRS. HARRIET WHITE IS PAST EIGHTY-EIGHT YEARS.

Came to Michigan Some Sixty-four Years ago.

The oldest resident of Northville is Mrs. Harriet Dean White of South Center street, who was born in 1811 in the state of New York; married to Harvey White in 1834 and came to Michigan in 1835 or '6, settling in Livonia where she lived for nineteen years. In 1854 she moved to the farm now owned by Frank Miller a mile south of this village and 24 years ago came to the home she still occupies. Her descendants are not very numerous, as she has been the mother of but three children, one of whom died while an infant. Henry N. White, a well known resident of this vicinity, and a daughter Mrs. Lydia White who resides with the mother, three grand children and one great grand child comprise her family. Mrs. White is still quite active and well preserved for one who is almost a nonagenarian. She has two neighbors on the same street who are nearly as old, Mrs. Lucinda Cady and Mrs. Jane Bedford, who helped her celebrate her 88th birthday on June 5th of this year.

Notice.

To the people of Northville and vicinity: Having established a branch undertaking house in Plymouth we desire to say that we do not intend this branch to affect that portion of our business at this place. We feel very grateful to the people of Northville for their patronage and hope that we may continue to receive a portion of the same. Again reminding you that we still continue in the furniture and undertaking business, we are, Yours with best wishes, Lewis & Lewis.

Suburban News.

Pontiacers have the work of preparing their new county fair ground well under way and progressing rapidly.

An exchange says there are 101 life men at Jackson prison; 15 at Ionia and two at Detroit and naively adds "the last two are women."

Adam Brown of Delray has lost three horses by allowing them to get too close to the trolley cars. Such a monotony of accidents is enough to make Brown blue.

The kissing bug has arrived here. We saw one Sunday evening in the act of kissing a young lady. In appearance it resembled a young man of this burg.—Delray Times.

Sure it wasn't a kissing bee.

St. Johns has long been noted as a hustling town and as an instance of how they do things out there, a woman was divorced from one man and married to another the same day.

There is a parrot down at Sand Hill which is nothing if not up-to-date. Instead of boring passers-by with the stereotyped remark that "Polly wants a cracker," this one says "Polly wants a shoopee."—Farmington Enterprise.

Hereditry or environment?

The Pontiac Gazette mentioned something about "Joan of Ark" last week. Everybody (presumably) rushed off to hunt up the Bible to see if Noah had any such member in his family as some way the name didn't look familiar in that connection.

A "sofa pillow social" is the latest thing in that line and is to be given tomorrow evening at Farmington. Sofa as we are concerned its a mystery what such an affair would be like. Unless the program includes a pillow fight it seems as if it would be a rather sleepy entertainment.

A story is going the rounds that a Pontiac angler caught a sunfish that had a peculiarly shaped neck which proved on investigation to contain a valuable gold ring. This may be a fish story but its no Arabian Nights' entertainment. It has a (possibly) truthful ring to it.

The Carleton Times published last week as a recent occurrence a "local" story that tickled the great grandfathers of the present generation almost to death. It has kept pretty well and will probably be new to those who haven't known it as an honored relic of olden times.

In its columns of "Home Happenings" last week the Oakland Excelsior generously let in Salem, Howell, Brighton, Whitmore Lake, Alma, Richmond, Farmington, Jackson, Ionia, Detroit and the Philippines, while the Oakland Co. Advertiser in its "Local News" was similarly kind to Flint, Manistee, Milford, Orion and Northville.

The report brought the children's father to the scene. The fellow was captured and taken to jail in Detroit.

Here are some of the terrible things which are likely to befall a delinquent. Last week a delinquent subscriber said he would pay on Saturday if he lived. He's dead. Another, "I'll see you tomorrow." He's blind. Still another said, "I hope to pay you this week or go to the devil." He's gone. There are hundreds who ought to take warning by these procrastinations and pay up their subscriptions now.—Ex.

Another said, "I'll be cussed if I wait another day." And he was.

A new paper made its appearance on the Record desk last week—the Wayne Echo. The "journalistic infant" appears to be all right but we confess to a natural curiosity as to its parentage. To the query "who is the editor," in this case even Echo fails to answer who. An incognito newspaper would indicate a degree of modesty entirely at variance with the amount popularly accredited to the fraternity. Perhaps it's a case of "It's a wise child," etc.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., AUG. 11, '99.

THE GLOBE'S PROPOSITION.

We believe the proposition made by the Globe company, published elsewhere in this issue, is not one to be lightly passed over by either the Improvement Association or the business men and property owners of the village. A general response to the stock subscription paper passed around last week even if it but small sums, would have in short order raised the required capital to have organized the new company. The Trust it appears will not dispose of any part of its property here unless it is all taken and therefore without the organization of a new company to take the refrigerator building the Globe company cannot purchase the property on the north side of the river owned by the Trust and this apparently means the loss to Northville of the new bell foundry; the new machine shop company and the new curtain shade factory. All work on those enterprises by the Globe company has now ceased and Mr. Bond states that nothing more can be done until some definite action is taken.

Is the Council Trying to Be Funny?

The council did a peculiar thing Monday night—in fact so peculiar as to appear almost funny—in adding a fourth member to the electric lighting committee. We do not know whether the old committee requested additional help or whether the council doesn't consider the present committee competent. On the one hand it is rather late in the day for the committee to ask for help, and on the other if the council thinks the committee is not fully "on to its job," it should jack 'em up or fire them bodily. As is required by law, the old committee, Messrs. Babbitt, Clark and Rasch, were appointed by a resolution which called for the appointment of three members; the appointments were made by the president and confirmed by a roll call of the yeas and nay votes of the council as is also required by law. But Monday night "everything went" and regardless of resolutions, or law, some councilman took the matter out of the president's hands by making a motion that Mr. Ambler be added to the committee, which was carried by viva voce vote. Mr. Ambler told the council then and there he didn't want to be on the committee but the council's peculiarities had to be maintained. Verily, the council is getting rattled or trying to be funny. Of course the appointment of the fourth member to the committee was illegal and of no effect, but an apparent off-hand slap in this manner at the committee already existing was just at this time seemingly uncalled for.

Is This a Bug Year?

If present indications count for anything this current A. D. is in danger of being handed down in history as the bug year. The kissing bug is now a back number having been superseded in interest by the "strangling bug," a bloodthirsty elephantine "varmint" three inches long which "fastens its huge talons in the victim's throat," and regales itself on the crimson fluid so necessary to life. A Chicago preacher recently averred that the former insect is the locust mentioned in the book of Revelation, which should come out of the bottomless pit and which should not kill but torment for five months the ungodly, but hasn't yet accounted for the latest sensation in the bug line. According to other authorities the creature is a myth, a parasite of the bed bug; an especially effective mosquito, the common water bug, etc., etc. So now that the kissing bug terror is so satisfactorily classified, investigation can be turned to the strangling bug and there is not the least doubt that it will be just as clearly explained as its two affectionate relatives. Meanwhile "bee hats" can be worn by the timorous ones who are afraid of being kissed or strangled by these entomological ruffians.

Or is it possible that one of the electric light committee has been deposed and doesn't know it.

WELCOMED HOME.

Gen. and Mrs. Alger Receive a Glorious Welcome to Their Home. The homecoming of Gen. and Mrs. B. A. Alger was buoyant beneath the unequalled spontaneity of the greeting given the honored man and woman as they left the cars at the Michigan Central station on the afternoon of Aug. 2. They were literally "at home" and from the festoons of bunting in the station, the "Welcome Home" in purple and white flowers, the men, women and children that lined the platform and corridors of the great building and along the line of march, there was generated an unmistakable spirit of affectionate regard and loyal enthusiasm such as must have found its way to the hearts of the distinguished guests. In front of the city hall, which was prettily decorated and illuminated, a large reviewing stand had been erected where the welcoming addresses by Mayor Maybury in behalf of the city and Gov. Pingree in behalf of the state were made.

The mayor, confined himself to the homecoming of the general and the pleasure it gave him to be able to assure Mr. Alger that he was received at his home with the same confidence, affection and esteem that has been with him all the years of his life. Gov. Pingree in his speech took occasion to commend the President for his treatment of the general and said that the people of Michigan regarded the affair as a state insult. Senator McMillan came in for his share of criticism at the hands of the governor. The 10,000 listeners endorsed the governor's sentiments by hearty applause at intervals during his speech.

Mr. Alger responded to the welcoming speeches in a few words, but his utterances expressed emotions of gratitude for his royal welcome home. Gen. Alger's speech in full was as follows: "Mr. Mayor and Governor, and my fellow citizens—I have no words, I can command no language to express the emotions of my heart and my gratitude to you for this royal welcome to my home. I am glad from the bottom of my heart to be released from official care and to again enter the old home and live among the people of Michigan. Since I went away, two and one-half years ago, as you know, the country has been through a terrific struggle. The office of which I was the head was taxed to the utmost of every man's strength who occupied any position in it. I gave my best thought and honest effort, and did everything I could to carry out my part of that great work. What has been done is a matter of record, and I am perfectly willing to rest the case with my countrymen. Every transaction, every order, and everything that was done in conducting that war is a matter of record, and the people have a right to have that record searched. And now, my fellow citizens, I come home without a grievance. During that struggle and while that great work was upon me I can truthfully say that I had from the President all the support that he could give. We went through that struggle and came out victorious. We transported across the seas more than 150,000 men, one way and the other, without an accident. We fought battles in Manila, in the Philippines, in Cuba and Porto Rico, and we never lost a battle, a color, a prisoner or a gun. Wherever the American flag was planted by the American soldier, there it stands and there it shall stand forever.

"But, as I said, I have no speech to make. I am glad to be among you again, a private citizen, and that I can travel these streets and meet you as social and business intercourse as of old, and I propose to stay here the balance of my life. Good night."

Gang Plank Collapsed.

A score of persons were killed by the collapse of a gang plank of a ferry at Mt. Desert Ferry, Me., on Aug. 6th, when 200 people were thrown into the water. The work of rescue was immediately begun, but in the panic the people in the water clutched one another, and many sank thus in groups in a death grapple. Many taken from the water unconscious were revived with difficulty. The complete list of dead shows that 20 persons were drowned.

ASTONISHED THE TEACHER.

A Lecture on Hygiene and the Pupils Reply to a Question.

There is a lady occupied in the instruction of the juvenile mind who is quite willing to confess that the pupils who attend her classes do not do all the learning. Some of the small folk under her tuition occasionally astonish her with their superior knowledge of the modern developed resources of the English language. A lecture on hygiene had been included in the programme for the day, and she had taken care to show the effects of alcohol and tobacco upon the system. She impressed her teachings by means of anatomical charts, which gave especial lucidity to her remarks when she came to warning the little girls, years in advance of any practical need, the dangers of tight lacing. One of the little girls whose home surroundings are of the sort in which ease rather than elegance of expression is sought, listened with profound attention.

"Now, Margaret," the teacher said, "you may see how well you remember what I have said about tight lacing and tell us why it is injurious." There was no response. "I mean you, Maggie," the teacher added, and the girl jumped to her feet as she recognized the more familiar name. "Tight lacing, ma'am, is injurious, ma'am."

She hesitated and the teacher smiled encouragingly and said, "Go on."

"Cos, ma'am, it's liable to twist yer stais."

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?

It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

What Groceries Cost in 1867.

A New York woman brought to light in a recent upheaval of household belongings consequent upon moving, a tradesman's passbook that was in use when she first began housekeeping in 1867. It was an account with a New York grocer, and the items were looked over with some interest, as showing the greatly lowered prices that prevail nowadays for the same commodities. "A" sugar, which was the white coffee sugar formerly used, cost $1.75 for ten pounds; a cooking sugar, called yellow, was $1.55 for the same amount, and granulated sugar was charged at 19 cents a pound. A broom cost 65 cents, a bag of hominy 35 cents, a bag of salt 25 cents, table butter was 45 cents a pound and six pounds of oyster crackers were put down at $1.08.—N. Y. Sun.

THE HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN BRIEFLY RELATED.

A Soo Man's Klondike Experience. Cost Him $5,000.—A Mr. Clemens Burglar Ran Into a Charge of Shot.—The State Land Office Record Broken.

His Experience Cost Him $5,000. Capt. Jay Hursley, president of the Soo-Yukon Mining Co., of Sault Ste. Marie, has arrived home from the Klondike. The party left the Soo a year ago last April. They failed to locate a claim in the vicinity of Rampart City, but secured five claims in the Cape Nome district, which the captain believes will turn out well. The captain speaks in very disparaging terms of the Yukon country and claims that it is nothing but a gigantic fraud boomed for the transportation companies, and the subsidized press of Seattle. A man is foolish to leave any kind of a position to go there and a poor man has no business there under any circumstances. Not one out of 5,000 ever strikes anything there. There are over 3,000 people at St. Michaels unable to get out of the country for lack of means to pay their transportation, and much suffering must ensue. When he left St. Michaels there were 60 river boats, costing from $50 to $10,000, which could be bought for a song. Many of these were beached and left to rot. Mr. Hursley's experience in the Klondike cost him about $5,000.

Burglars Struck the Wrong Place.

One of the two burglars who have been operating in Mt. Clemens and vicinity for the past six weeks, has been put out of business temporarily if not permanently. Early on the morning of Aug. 25th, Solomon Widrig, a farmer living in Chesterfield township, about four miles from Mt. Clemens, heard two men working at the front door of his residence. Widrig quietly slipped out of bed and secured his gun. Then he located himself in the middle of the hall, as the door opened in, and awaited developments. As soon as the door opened and a man appeared Widrig fired. The man gave a frightful yell, turned and fled, assisted by his companion. Widrig made no attempt to follow the men on fire again. The would-be burglars left a bloody trail for some distance.

Land Office Disposed of 39,287 Acres.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, the state land office disposed of 39,287 acres of land as follows: Agricultural college land, 12,527.70 acres; primary school land, 17,653.88 acres; swamp land, 8,269.40 acres; patented homesteads, 536.05 acres. Of these lands over 12,000 acres of land were sold to parties interested in copper mining. The 39,287 acres of land were sold for $170,515.33, of which $165,587.55 has been received, $5,228.28 remaining unpaid. The sales of land during the year have been the largest in the history of the department, the demand for hard wood and mining lands being chiefly responsible for the increase.

Old Ordnance Stores Won't be Accepted.

In spite of Gov. Pingree's protest to the effect that Michigan would not accept old ordnance stores from the general government in place of new supplies furnished the soldiers, a carload of old blankets, canteen traps, etc., has been received at Lansing from the Rock Island arsenal. The goods were probably shipped before the governor telegraphed his protest, but they will not be touched by the state military authorities until the general government consents to take back the material which the state refuses to accept.

Can Hold Two Offices.

Gov. Pingree has been informed by Attorney-General Owen that the appointment of Harlow P. Davock as referee in bankruptcy did not create a vacancy on the Detroit board of health, of which Mr. Davock is a member. The attorney-general has furnished the governor with a long opinion on the subject in response to an inquiry made July 31. The qualifications of a member of the Detroit board of health are that he shall be an elector and free holder in the city, and it follows that Davock is qualified.

Burglars Third Attempt Successful.

For the third time in the history of the institution burglars tried to break into the Coloma bank at an early hour on Aug. 8th. They had the safe partly drilled, and almost ready for the explosive when the gang was frightened by the appearance of citizens in the street, and left their job uncompleted. The belated residents soon discovered that something was wrong and raised an alarm.

Activity in the Iron District.

Increased activity in the iron district is evidenced by the fact that the Riverside, Magnetic and Klamath mines near Republic, are to resume operations. The first named was closed down about six years ago and the two latter about 25 years ago. It is rumored also that the Republic mine is about to change hands, for a consideration of $2,000,000.

Four More Kerosene Victims.

In five days eight persons in the city of Detroit have been burned by the careless use of kerosene or gasoline. The latest victims are Mrs. Catherine C.aja and her 17-month-old baby and Mrs. Augusta Knitter and her unborn babe, who were frightfully burned on Aug. 8th and died later at the hospital.

Mrs. Eugene Moore, wife of a prosperous Amboy farmer, tried to commit suicide by taking paris green. Domestic trouble is said to have been the cause.

Collision on the Detroit River.

A little after midnight on Aug. 5th, as the car ferry Lansdowne, which is used by the Grand Trunk line to transferring cars between Detroit and Windsor, was backing out of the slip on the American side, the steam barge W. B. Morley collided with her. It was a head-on collision on the part of the Morley as she struck the ferry squarely in the center of the two tracks laid on each side of the deck, penetrating the Lansdowne for 11 feet. Both boats were sunk, but fortunately no lives were lost.

79 County Houses in the State.

A canvass just completed by Labor Commissioner Cox shows that 79 of the 82 counties of the state have county houses. Of these buildings 29 are of brick, 7 stone, 13 brick and stone, 2 brick veneered, 21 wood, 1 wood and stone. Seventy-seven counties reported the aggregate value of court houses to be $4,458,300, an average of $57,861. The number of counties having jails is 79. Of these 35 are brick, 9 stone, 21 brick and stone, 1 brick and wood, 1 wood and steel.

Victims of Fire.

The use of kerosene for the purpose of starting obstinate kitchen stove fires cost one woman her life and also that of her babe, still born, on the morning of Aug. 30, and, in all probability, a second unfortunate mother will give up her life for a like reason. The one disaster occurred at about the same hour in the morning as the other did in the evening. The victims are Mrs. Mary E. Roman, Mrs. Ida Mazurkowski and her little baby, all of Detroit.

Takes Cash to Run Our State.

That it takes a whole lot of money to conduct the business of a great state is amply demonstrated by the report of State Treasurer Steel for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, which has just been completed. The report shows that the balance on hand at the beginning of the year was $1,216,212.61; total receipts for the year, $4,576,874.98; total disbursements, $4,391,081.71; balance on hand at close of year, $1,402,055.88.

One Killed by a Dynamite Explosion.

While engaged in blowing out stumps with dynamite, Wm. Stockfield, of Springfield, was killed and Claude Lonsbury severely injured by a premature blast. The men had a tin pail filled with explosive. Stockfield, after cutting off a piece of a fuse, threw the knife into the pail containing the dynamite, causing it to explode. Stockfield was thrown about a rod and almost instantly killed. Lonsbury will recover.

Rediscovered Mineral Springs.

A valuable magnesite spring, to which Indians once came from hundreds of miles around for relief, has been unearthed on Lone creek, just opposite the village of Berrien Springs, whose virtues the Pottawatomies and the Chippewas knew well. Its recent discovery was due to an accident.

Old Calumet Character Dead.

Orville Guiteau, one of the queer characters of Battle Creek and a horse doctor known to every farmer in Calumet county, and a cousin of Guiteau, who assassinated President Garfield, is dead, aged 77. He was a native of Livonia, N. Y., and had lived in Calumet county 50 years.

ESTATE GOSSIP.

Charlevoix is to have a new life saving station.

Columbiaville is to have electric street lights before long.

Stittsville Methodists dedicated their new church last week.

Mrs. John Schotten, of Tillmore, killed herself with paris green. She leaves 10 children and a husband.

Preparations for building the Marshall, Columbus & Northeastern railroad from Marshall to Bay City has been commenced.

Ann Arbor is considering the advisability of assuring municipal ownership of the water works plant. The scheme meets with great favor.

The annual reunion of the Lenawee county association of old soldiers and sailors has been postponed from Aug. 8, the date originally set, to Aug. 29.

W. B. Harmon's grocery at Charlotte was burglarized recently and stock and coin amounting to $50 was taken. An entrance was effected through a rear window.

Five women while berry-picking near Standish were nearly scared to death by the sudden appearance of a bear. They screamed so fearfully that bruin turned and fled.

The troubles of the State Telephone Co. and the city of Ypsilanti have been settled. The company has agreed to place its wires under ground as soon as it can procure a cable.

Foxes are making sad havoc among poultry in the vicinity of Pinckney, and they seem to be very numerous. Wm. Miller recently shot five that were stealing chickens. They seem very bold.

Robt. O'Shea, aged 45, of Mt. Clemens, suicided at Niagara Falls on the 7th by jumping into the Niagara river from the bridge which spans the gorge. He was drunk and doubtless wanted to sober up.

McKinley, Oscoda county, will soon be numbered among those numerous towns in the northern pine regions which were once flourishing but which, with the disappearance of the pine, lost their only means of support and were abandoned.

A small and harmless mouse practically broke up the service at the Congregational church at Pottsville on the 5th. The women couldn't listen to what the minister was saying, their whole attention being given to locating the little rodent.

The annual picnic of the Pioneer association, composing Fairfield, Mason, Palmyra and Ogden townships, will meet in Baker's grove, near Fairfield, on Aug. 11. A fine program has been arranged.

L. A. Tomkins, of Alpena, who took a dose of morphine to induce sleep, died Aug. 8th. He was unconscious for 48 hours. He had been in business there for 33 years. He leaves a widow and two children.

There is much excitement at St. Joseph over the discovery of the remains of nine new-born babies which had been buried in the cellar back of the National hotel, a house that bore a rather unsavory reputation.

A bridge crossing the river one and one-half miles west of Evart gave way with a thrashing machine engine, Walter Shipper and an assistant, who were in charge of the engine, escaped with more or less serious injuries.

Negotiations are now in progress looking toward the purchase by Illinois men of the car works plant at Muskegon, and if the deal goes through an agricultural implement factory will be started there, which will give employment to about 160 men.

A Maccabee picnic will be held in St. Joseph August 24, and the day of the picnic marriages will be entirely free. The weddings will occur on the local hotel verandas and licenses, ministers, and all other necessities will be free of charge. This will no doubt draw a large crowd.

While cutting brush at Pinckney, Edward Kennedy came upon a quail and a hen, both setting upon one nest. In the nest were 12 quail eggs and six hen eggs. They were not molested, and the two returned to their material duties. It is a conundrum as to which will own the chicks and which the birds.

Attorney-General Chase went to Coldwater recently, where he looked up the estates of two insane persons, who have for a long time been maintained as state patients. The result of his visit will be the payment to the state of $1,700, and the further maintenance of these individuals at their own expense.

A notary public of Ypsilanti was recently called upon to make a copy of a very curious document. It was presented by Robert Geddes, of Pittsfield, and was a captain's commission in the Continental army, issued to one of Geddes' ancestors in 1776. The commission is on parchment and is remarkably well preserved.

A firebug is still operating on the property of the Marquette Ice Co., at Marquette. Already the company's losses as the result of four fires, is $6,500. The fires are thought to be the work of some enemy impelled by spite.

Reports to the state board of health show that rheumatism, diarrhea, neuralgia, bronchitis and consumption in the order named, caused the most sickness in the state during the past week. Consumption was reported at 189 places; typhoid fever, 30; measles, 36; scarlet fever, 29; whooping cough, 19; diphtheria, 15; cerebro-spinal meningitis, 4.

Ransom H. Gillett, of Lapeer, who, with a party of four, went to the Klondike a year ago, is home again. He says he has had enough of the Klondike. He has some gold and has five claims staked out, which he expects to sell to Boston parties.

Four Finnish timbermen were standing on a ladder in No. 2 shaft, Quincy mine, at a depth of 4,900 feet, when the ladder broke, precipitating all four to the 5,200 level. Andrew Millimackki was instantly killed, two others injured fatally, and one man received serious internal injuries, but may recover, despite the fall of 300 feet.

Italian Vatican Worried.

A dispatch from Rome says that Ricciotti Garibaldi, son of the liberator, discussing the likelihood of a Republican government for Italy, has caused great excitement at the Vatican, and much annoyed the cardinals belonging to the group which has not abandoned all hope of reconciliation with the monarchy. A member of the Sacred college, who belongs neither to this nor to the opposing faction, and who was formerly nuncio in a great capital, and is thoroughly familiar with the complications and difficulties of the diplomatic position of the papacy, gave his opinion on the question raised by the interview. "With the exception of a few narrow-minded men," he said, "everyone among the higher Italian clergy is convinced that the temporal power, such as it existed before 1870, has had its day, and that an absolute restoration of the status quo would be a calamity for the church of Rome. What was possible 30 years ago is impossible now. People are accustomed to lay institutions which imply many things incompatible with a clerical government. We are convinced that such a government would not last long or exist amid struggles such as disturbed the reign of Pius IX."

A Horrible Crime.

A horrible murder was committed in the northeastern section of Washington on the 6th. The murderer was Benjamin H. Snell, a special examiner in the pension office, a man about 45 years of age. His victim was Liza Weissenberger, a girl 13 years of age, who had been employed in his household until a few months ago, when she was taken home by her parents, who became suspicious of Snell's conduct toward her. Snell seemed to be infatuated with the child and paid her a great deal of attention, which, however, she resented. On the day of the tragedy Snell went to the home of the girl, and, finding her asleep, cut her throat with a razor and nearly severed the head from the body. He then attempted to make his escape but was caught by the police and lodged in jail.

At Fry Brothers' store the season's round,
Fresh vegetables are always found;
It is their pleasure and delight
To cater to your appetite.

They've radishes and lettuce too,
And pieplant tender thro' and thro';
They've beets and cabbage, turnips, peas,
And all the fads in groceries.

The clerks polite, with book in hand,
As meek as Moses; patient stand,
And quote you prices in a tone
'Twould move to tears a heart of stone.

Then when the berry season comes,
And autumn with its pears and plums;
Fry Brothers will, as heretofore,
Supply you from their grocery store.

THE LAMP THAT LASTS. The New Rochester.

Fifteen years ago we began the manufacture of centre draft lamps. A dealer bought one of the first and placed it in his show window. Each day it is filled and lighted; occasionally it is cleaned and rewicked. That lamp is good to-day.

Soon as The Rochester was demonstrated a success, a host of imitations sprang up. A few of the better ones still survive; the rest are gone. Why? "You can fool all the people some of the time," but not all the time.

One New Rochester Lamp in a household is but a beginning. Soon there will be others. Do you want to know why? Write for printed matter if interested.

The annual reunion of Co. D, 5th Mich. Cav. will be held at Holly next year.

L. E. Hartwick has leased his house and lot to Jess Clark and will shortly move to Manitoba.

Since being under government control, the Northville U. S. fish station has handled 750,000,000 fish eggs.

The ladies of the Methodist church will sell ice cream Saturday evening, August 19, in the vacant store adjoining B. A. Wheeler's.

Mrs. L. W. Simmons has about the finest and largest lot of blooming sweet peas in the village. The variety is also decidedly pretty.

The Epworth League will serve ice cream in the Wheeler store tomorrow, Saturday evening. A cordial invitation extended to all.

Fred Tubbs has gone to the Oak Grove hospital at Flint for treatment for monomania trouble. He is reported as being much better this week.

Geo. Barnhart is still in the cat

J. A. Russel of the D. P. & N. electric railway company was in town Monday and was emphatic in his assertion that his company would have its cars running into the village by September 1.

Thieves broke into the new machine room of the Globe Furniture factory in the Dubuar building Sunday night and secured $50 worth of tools belonging to employees and the company. The theft was evidently made by someone who knew where everything was. Only new tools recently bought are missing.

Twenty-six houses have been built and are building in the village so far this spring, and more to follow. Good steady growth for Plymouth, with every house in town occupied, too.—Plymouth Mail.

That will be a good thing for the county board of equalization to remember this fall. Northville hasn't been honored with any new ones as yet.

Geo. Rattenbury and Cal Stevens have bought the Asa Smith building corner Main and Church street for a term of years for a hotel and work has already begun towards fixing it over for that purpose. The hotel is to be run on the dollar-a-day plan and will have a bar in connection. Mr. Rattenbury says the hotel will be ready for business September 1st.

The first accident on the D. P. & N. line occurred in our village Wednesday. Dr. Bird attempted to cross the track with his rig when the wheels of his buggy became cramped between the rails, completely smashing one of them. Dr. Bird will ask the village or R. R. Co. to reimburse him for the same. This is a result of the present dangerous condition of paving and tracks.

The liveliness of Monday night council meeting was enhanced by the attendance of a dozen or more bidders for the new electric lighting plant bonds. Some of the different brokers were represented by a lot of school-boy acting young fellows the majority of whom formed a syndicate on the issue, and their actions put even honest bids in disfavor and the council became disgusted and rejected every bid. Only one bid was accompanied by a check. The sale will be re-advertised.

E. Dighton Colby, 42 years old was instantly killed last week at Milford while working with the F. & P. M. night gang, operating the steam excavator. A bank 50 feet high caved burying the unfortunate man under tons of gravel. His face was uncovered in three or four minutes, but life was extinct. He leaves a wife who is a cousin of A. and E. Harmon of this place. He was a boarder at Mrs. Macomber's here a few years ago, and also at Novi, where he operated a photograph gallery for a time.

Do you know, said a Northville tax-payer to the Record a few days ago, "that the village council is throwing away a large amount of the people's money on our streets just now by not employing a practical man to superintend the work?" We believe it to be a fact. What's everybody's business is nobody's. An experienced man to superintend the work of the stone crusher and pave the streets would not only save money to the tax-payers but at the same time there would be an assurance of the work being properly done.

Never before in the history of the village was there a time when so many important matters were continually coming before the council as at present, and therefore the importance of every councilman being present. Aldermen Bovee and Van, both on the finance committee, are working in other cities and necessarily will be absent more or less the balance of the year. The duties of a councilman are at best a laborious and thankless job, and here is a chance for them to get rid of their task by resigning and allow the appointment of others to the place who can give the required attention to the office.

All Detroit and a great portion of Michigan are interested just now in the Industrial exposition and street carnival to be given by Detroit Lodge No. 34, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, commencing on Monday, August 21, and lasting until Saturday, September 2. Special arrangements have been made to take care of 6,000-of-town visitors and reduced rates secured from the railroads for large parties. The beautiful D. A. C. park on Woodward avenue, within ten minutes' ride of the center of the city, has been secured by the managers for headquarters. A large force of men is now being employed there preparing for what will undoubtedly be the largest and finest affair of the kind ever given in the west. 25 cent excursion rates from Northville on Wednesday and Saturday.

There's no end of cat trouble in Northville. One of our citizens has been harboring a cat of unusual vocal qualities; one that he could well feel proud of. The cat—a Tommy by natural persuasion—was "a good bred cat"; that is, he was a good bread and meat cat. Tommy caught the neighbor's chickens to change his diet and one neighbor named Clark—and by the way like Smith there are 405 Clarks here—thought Tommy ought to die, and a dose of rough on rats was given but this didn't do the act, and paris green was tried, but Sir Thomas continued to grow fat. Then the druggist prescribed chloroform, and Tom was placed under a tub and the deadly drug turned in upon him. The neighbors then rested easy, expecting to go out in half an hour and find Tommy ready to plant in the garden, but when they gathered there to perform the last sad (?) rites, Tommy came out smiling and ready for another trial. Then Mr. Clark found an axe, and with one sweeping blow on the head the midnight howler lay cold and stiff at his feet. This was evidently Tom's ninth tussle with father-time for he is still dead.

The happiest couple in the world should be a deaf husband and a blind wife both taking Rocky Mountain Tea. Madison Medicine Co. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

Fry-Blair Nuptials.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blair on Wing street, Wednesday noon, the contracting parties being their daughter, Anna M. and Mr. Fred A. Fry. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. M. Ward in the presence of about seventy-five guests. The bride was tastefully attired in a gown of lavender silk trimmed with white silk and gilt passementerie, and carried carnations.

Miss Jessie Hutton of Flint was maid of honor, Miss Inez Hart of Detroit was bridesmaid, and Chris Buchner best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Fry left on the afternoon train for a brief outing along the Huron lake and upon their return to Northville will occupy the Slater house, corner Wing and Cad street.

Prominent Men in Jail.

The political situation in Haiti is causing anxiety. Numerous arrests have been made. Among those taken into custody are M. Drouillon, a former minister of the interior, and M. Du Vivier, a newspaper man. Du Vivier made strong resistance, and succeeded in entering the United States legation, dragging with him the officers detailed to take him. The officers, however, were able to take their prisoner outside the legation doors. United States Minister Powell entered a protest and eventually the Haitian government gave way and Du Vivier was set at liberty.

The gas works of the Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas Co. at Wabash, Ind., were destroyed by a terrific explosion on Aug. 7th, which shook the town.

The withdrawal of several companies of troops from Cleveland was followed by another dynamiting outrage on the evening of Aug. 3d, but fortunately no one was hurt. The explosion occurred under a Jennings avenue car, on which there were six passengers. It smashed the flange of one of the wheels and splintered the running board at the side. The passengers were badly frightened, but none were injured, and the car proceeded on its way to the end of the run.

The yellow fever situation at Hampton, Va., Aug. 3, was in a favorable condition. No new cases and no deaths.

Truths for Girls.
Never mind about the dimples if there's sunshine in your smile. At least one little act of kindness a day and an easy pillow at night. Vacation planning is all right, but don't let the summer dreams interfere with spring school duties. Neatness of dress first, and style may come as an afterthought. One frown a day when she's in her teens will wrinkle a girl's forehead like a crane by the time she is 20. Try making yourself as agreeable to your brother as if he were some other girl's brother. It will pay to win his boyish confidence. How many thoughts a day for mother's comfort do you give?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Trolley Car Plunged into a Mill Pond.
Nearly 30 people were killed by an accident on the Stratford extension of the Shelton street railway company at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Aug. 2th, when a loaded trolley car went off the trestle over Peck's mill pond, about six miles north of Bridgeport, Ct. and sank in the water 40 feet below. The trestle is 440 feet long, made of iron, with stone foundations, and was not protected by guard rails. South of the trestle is an incline down which the car ran at a high rate of speed. After it ran onto the trestle for about 10 feet the trucks left the rails and then the car continued on the ties for about 75 feet, when it went off the trestle and dropped into the pond below, overturning completely and up-ended. When the car struck, the four-ton motor and the heavy trucks crushed into it, instantly killing many of the passengers.

Have Taken Up Arms.
Gen. Pablo Reyes, Ramon Pacheco, Cienega, Navarro, Jose Polo and Jose Jimenez have taken up arms in Santo Domingo in favor of Don Juan Isidro Jimenez, and occupy the plains of Chaguel and Curacao, as far as Jose de las Matas, as well as the towns of Guayabin, Sabanaeta, Manzanillo and Dajabon, abandoned by the troops of the government of Santo Domingo. More than half these troops are said to have gone over to the camp of Gen. Pacheco, who is reported to have more than 300 well-armed men under his command. Gen. Gueilito, governor of Monte Christi, who, it is claimed, has already lost half his troops, who have gone over to the enemy, is in a desperate position and unable to attack the revolutionists. It is added that he will be obliged to capitulate.

An 8-Years-Old Aeronaut.
During the balloon ascension at Fitchmont, O., on the 3d, by Aeronaut Harry Davis, of Delphos, thousands witnessed a thrilling sight not down on the program. Guy ropes holding the balloon became entangled about the arm of 8-year-old Lester Miller, just as the balloon shot up in the air, carrying the boy with it, suspended by one arm and shouting for help. The balloonist did not notice his companion until they were fully 1,000 feet in the air. He immediately cut the parachute loose, which changed the balloon's course, and fortunately all reached the ground alive, but the balloonist was more or less injured and the boy's arm was displaced.

Florida Town Almost Wiped Out.
The town of Carrabelle, a prosperous port on the Gulf of Mexico, southwest of Tallahassee, Fla., is reported almost completely destroyed by a terrific wind and rain storm which passed through that section on Aug. 2d. Many boats, which were in the harbor, have been wrecked and most of the long wharf is gone, together with large quantities of naval stores. At Lanark, the boat houses, pavilion and boats have been destroyed. The turpentine interests in this section are greatly damaged and much damage had been done to crops.

Tornado Visited New Jersey.
A tornado with a velocity of 80 miles and a width of three blocks, passed through Elizabeth, N. J., on Aug. 2d, doing damage conservatively estimated at $25,000. It raged for 10 minutes; then rain fell in torrents and afterward the sun came forth. The towers of the First Presbyterian, Third Presbyterian and Central Baptist churches were thrown down, and the Lyceum and Star theaters unroofed. Many other buildings and private dwellings were unroofed. No persons were seriously injured.

Does England Intend to Fight?
The imperial government and the dominion authorities have decided to increase both the regular military and militia forces at Victoria, B. C., and at Pacific coast depots of the British army and navy. Coming at a time when the relations between Canada and the United States are acknowledged by Premier Laurier to be rather strained over the Alaskan boundary question, it looks as though Great Britain and Canada were determined to assert their claims to those portions of Alaska demanded by Canada, by force of arms if necessary.

Dreyfus in Court.
The celebrated Dreyfus court-martial trial opened at Rennes, France, Aug. 7th. Every inch of space in the courtroom was filled a quarter of an hour before proceedings opened. Capt. Dreyfus answered the opening questions of the judge as to his name, age, etc., in a clear, determined voice. As the trial proceeds Dreyfus shows himself very keen of intellect, and several times he has corrected the judge's statements as to certain dates.

Six Wounded in a Race Riot.
A race riot occurred at the Poe cotton mills near Greenville, S. C., on the 7th in which one white man and five Negroes were wounded. Early in the evening several Negroes fired into the home of Mr. Greenberg, a mill operator, while he and his family were at supper. No one was struck by the shots but Greenberg and his friends followed the Negroes, capturing the leader. He was taken to jail.

On Aug. 2 there were confined in the Jackson prison 788 convicts, the smallest number in eight years.

MADAM OF THE IVIES.

BY ELIZABETH PHIPPS TRAIN

COPYRIGHT 1898. BY THE AUTHOR

I knew that I had no right to interpose between mother and son, but the contemplation of that fact, acknowledgment of error, self-abasement of my beloved lady, proved too much for my sense of propriety. I flew to her side and, falling on my knees, threw a protecting arm about her drooping shoulders.

"You are a coward!" I cried, turning an enraged, reproachful face upon the master of the house, beneath whose roof I was merely a hired dependant. "You are worse than that; you are brutal and unmanly to distress by your cruel insinuations one who, through affliction if not through relationship, should be sacred from your shafts. Madam, Madam, do not heed!" But my dear lady had by this time recovered herself, and I was interrupted by the placing of a soft hand over my impetuous lips.

"Dorothy, Dorothy, hush!" she entreated. "You know nothing about it, my child. I deserve it all—and more. Nay, 'Dare, my son'—oh! what an infinity of tenderness and remorsefulness was there in the gentle voice as it addressed the man who, repentant and eager to atone, approached with a preliminary ejaculation of, 'Mother!'—'Nay, you need not seek to make amends for your just implications; they

"YOU ARE A COWARD!" I CRIED, are grounded on fact; it is but common retribution that I should be reminded of my sin."

But the man, upright and honest in his acknowledgment of error, would not allow his culpability to be thus condoned. His manliness had been stirred to bitter revolt even before I had made my attack upon him, and his self-respect would not permit itself to be satisfied without apology.

"You are too lenient to me, my mother," he returned, and his voice was very deep and grave. "With all her ignorance, Miss Lothrop is the better judge of my conduct. Before her I wish to assure you of my deep regret and sincere sorrow for my miserable gratuitous reflections upon the past, and to ask you to pardon my lack of consideration and respect."

The words were well enough, and they were uttered with a certain emotion; but I felt that one kiss laid upon the faded cheek, one loving touch placed upon the bowed form, would have been worth all the correct apologies in the world to Madam. She sighed and extended her beautiful hand to him, and he raised it with graceful courtesy to his lips. I was much abashed, now that the moment of excitement was over, at the thought of my outbreak. Yet I was too proud, and still too resentful of his treatment of Madam, to acknowledge my want of proper decorum. But after he had left the room, which he did almost immediately, I made my excuses to my mistress.

I spent a charming evening at the Spencers'. Both mother and son were in good spirits, and the hours sped rapidly away. I told Dr. Spencer that I had arranged to have Holmes come for me, and probably understanding my motive, he considerably made no comment on the arrangement. I must not forget by the way, to mention a little incident which occurred before I set out for my visit.

Franklin had come to my room during the afternoon with a very distressed face.

"Miss Lothrop," he began, "I am afraid we are going to have trouble with the new servants. They and Mrs. Mayberry are at odds, and there's rowing below stairs about all the time."

"What seems to be the trouble?" I asked. "What do they complain of?"

"They don't complain exactly," he replied. "But they've taken it into their heads—the stupid fools!—that the Stone House is haunted and the idea sends Mayberry into fits. She gets regularly violent when they talk about it, and they talk more than they otherwise would do simply to tease her."

"H'm!" I murmured. "I wonder what they say about the house; do you know, Franklin?"

"Well, miss, they do say that when they come home from the village at night—a couple of them have families living in Eldon, and they go back and forth often—they sometimes see a ghostly figure standing at one of the windows and hear a woman's voice singing or screaming in the house. It's nonsense, miss, of course, but it may in time make it impossible for my mistress to secure servants willing to live here."

"And what does Mayberry have to say to all this?"

"She gets quite violent and excited, miss, and calls them hard names. She's changed a good bit of late, Mrs. Mayberry has. I wouldn't like to say it to anyone but you, Miss Lothrop, but she really does not properly attend to her duties in the house here, and I am obliged to look after things a good deal more closely than my position requires, for fear my mistress and Mr. Chester will not be properly cared for."

I chewed the end of this reflection as I strolled down the village. I, of course, had detected long since the change in the housekeeper, but it was not my place to comment upon it. Since the night when I had received her appeal for advice I had very seldom come in contact with her, and new interests at The Ivies had rendered me somewhat inattentive to the claims of my village friends and pensioners, so that I had had but little occasion to dwell upon the thought of the Stone House or its singular manifestations. I would have loved dearly to take my kind hosts into my confidence this evening, and ask their advice as to the whole affair, but I had never broken through my rule not to gossip with anyone of events connected with my life at The Ivies.

About ten o'clock I heard the sound of wheels stopping before the doctor's gate, and prepared to depart.

"Will you be so good as to call out to Holmes that I am coming?" I suggested to my host. "It will save the old man's getting out."

He complied, and a few moments later accompanied me out to the carriage. I was surprised to discover that the doctor had been sent for me, but my surprise was greatly increased when I saw that Darracott, Chester himself had come to drive me home. I felt a momentary awkwardness, the prospect of a meeting between two men who, I was convinced, no longer entertained feelings of friendship for each other, but I might have spared myself needless worry, for they saluted each other with polite, if distant, courtesy. I mounted the cart and we drove rapidly away.

I had felt constrained in the society of Darracott ever since the scene of the preceding day, and I had sought to avoid him as much as possible. I had a guilty consciousness of having gone beyond my province in taking up the cudgels in Madam's defence, and I was well aware that, righteous though my indignation was, there had been no warrant for my exhibiting it. But I cannot feel easy in the position of debtor, and I knew that I owed the man beside me an apology.

I made one or two tentative remarks, hoping to open up a channel through which I could glide easily and gracefully into the broad waters of general regret for my over-zealous manifestation of my exceeding love for my mistress, thinking that so I could vindicate my late imprudence without actual self-humiliation. But in some inscrutable fashion, effective, but apparently careless in design, my companion turned the drift of my attempts quite away from their goal. At last I was forced to come boldly up to the point.

"It is very good of you to have come for me to-night, Mr. Chester," I said. "I look upon the attention as a mark of your forgiveness."

"For what?" he asked, and I saw he was determined to force an issue.

"For my failure in respect towards you yesterday," I murmured.

"There is no reason why you should need forgiveness on that account," he replied. "If a man's conduct is such that it arouses the scorn of others, he would be singularly unreasonable to hold them responsible for manifesting their just contempt."

"But a dependant should better exercise self-control," I returned. "I should remember that I was not engaged to discipline the morals of the household. It was the place of the mistress, not of the servant, to resent your cruel words; for they were cruel, you know, Mr. Chester."

He nodded his head, and in the moonlight I saw a bitter expression settle about his mouth.

"Yes," he said, "they were—I suppose."

"You suppose?" I cried, a little hotly, for memory brought before my eyes the vision of my dear lady as she had looked when those words were uttered.

"Of course they were cruel! And to Madam—of all persons in this world! To Madam—who can never have caused pain to the smallest of living things!"

He turned and looked at me, his brow was a little lifted, and there was a quizzical and yet stern smile in his eyes.

"I am a man of average proportions, Miss Lothrop; scarcely infinitesimal enough to be reckoned outside your category."

"You mean—" I paused in amazement, absolutely unable to construe him.

"I mean," he replied, quickly and with a hard, metallic ring in his voice, "that no one living in this world today has ever caused me pain and suffering equal to that which my mother has inflicted upon me."

"Oh!" I cried protestingly. "I cannot—no, I cannot believe it. If it is so, it was an unconscious act on her part."

He gave a short laugh.

"No, I think not," he answered. "Involuntary, perhaps; but not unconscious. She is aware of it."

"Then she is deeply repentant also," I said, recalling now the peculiarities which I noted in Madam's regard for her only son.

He shook his head.

"One does not sincerely repent a cruelty while still practising it," he returned, sententiously.

My love and veneration for Madam flared up hotly at this.

"You calumniate her!" I burst forth. "It is treason for me to discuss her with you. Let us change the subject, Mr. Chester. You are wounding me beyond words."

We were turning into the avenue as I spoke, and he curbed the eager pace of the horse into a walk before he answered. Then, letting the reins fall back on the animal's back, he turned sideways on the seat and looked squarely and earnestly down upon me.

"Miss Lothrop," he began—and there was no longer either bitterness or cynicism in his voice, only gravity and obviously controlled emotion—"it is not my habit to discuss my mother or my own feelings and sentiments with others. But neither is it my habit to forget myself as I did yesterday. If that incident had taken place before almost anyone else in the world I should have been too proud or too indifferent to attempt to justify myself; but with you it is different. What you have done for my mother has given you a claim upon my regard second to none in the world. I can't bear you to think me wantonly and wilfully cruel. I hold myself generally pretty well in hand; but yesterday some devil got inside me while you were reading that letter and pulled all the pins out of my self-command. Perhaps I was jealous of the claims of others upon that cheerfulness which has brought new life within our old walls—he made an effort to lighten his tone a bit, but a rather unsuccessful one—or perhaps your reference to your friends in the village brought back to my mind wretched memories which undid me."

He broke off abruptly. "I made no reply. What was there for me to say? The horse was walking slowly up the avenue. The moon had gone under a cloud. My heart was beating violently, partly in unaltered championship of the mother's cause, partly in sympathy with the son's wrong, of whose nature I was still ignorant, partly in accord with the mystery and romance of our surroundings."

Finally my companion again broke the silence.

"You say nothing, Miss Lothrop! Apparently I am not a very good special pleader in my own behalf. You cannot yet find it possible to condone my fault."

The moon had come out again and was shining brightly. Glancing up I met his look, and a peculiarity in his gaze made my own eyes fall beneath it.

"Your fault was not committed against me," I murmured weakly. "But in your presence."

"For that I grant you full pardon. That fact had no part in my resentment."

"It was a large factor in my remorse."

"The actual offence was far more lamentable."

"It had some justification. A mother may not fall utterly in maternal love without reaping some natural consequences."

I shook my head. "She has longed for your return. Her joy at your home-coming is irreconcilable with your insinuation."

HOW YOUR HAIR SHINES IN THE MOON-LIGHT.

"How your hair shines in the moon-light," he exclaimed, irreverently. Your face itself has fallen back; may I replace it?"

He dropped the reins into my hands and set about the slight task, taking an unvarying time to fulfill it.

"It is almost the exact shade that my mother's was," he remarked very gently. "I always thought my mother's hair the most beautiful in the world. Yours is very like it, Miss Lothrop. When I was a boy I was for ever longing to touch my mother's, but I never dared to. You see I am less in awe of you."

For an instant—for so brief an instant that I could not resent it—his hand, rested on my head, gently, tenderly, with a touch that was almost a caress. Before he had time to withdraw it, a strange and eerie cry came cleaving the night air, smiting upon our senses with a weird, almost supernatural significance. So ghostly and sudden was the wild appeal that it forced exclamation from us both.

"What was it?" I asked, and it was no coquettish impulse that drew me closer to my companion.

"I have no idea," he replied, and ducked to the horse, plunging an inquiring gaze hither and yon into the shadows which lingered on either side the avenue.

"Oh!" my exclamation was half a cry. Darracott turned quickly.

"What is it?" he asked.

"The Stone House!"

"What of it?"

"I am sure it came from there. There had been such strange—Oh! look—look!"

In thinking it over afterwards I was moved to despair, shame and mortification by the recollection of my conduct. Abject terror aroused by the vision before me quite overcame all maidenly modesty, and I am afraid I almost threw myself into my companion's arms in my uncontrollable fright.

His first impulse apparently was to take advantage of my appeal to his protection, for he started to put his arm about me; but evidently he thought better of this and drew himself somewhat away, with a movement of recoil that brought me to my senses. Yet I was more concerned with terror than with his very apparent reluctance to comfort me by a more unmistakable proof of his near presence.

"What is it?" I gasped in a hoarse whisper.

"I don't know," he said, in a tone of equal uncertainty. Then he added, reassuringly: "You need not be so alarmed. You cannot come to any harm, you know, while I am with you—Good God!"

For again at that moment came thrilling through the night the cry that had first startled us. This time, however, the sound took shape and meaning.

"Help—help—help—" As it broke upon the horse's ears, the creature shivered and trembled, as they say animals will when conscious of a supernatural presence. We were now just abreast of the Stone House. Mr. Chester turned to me.

"What shall I do?" he asked. "It is for you to say. I must go down and investigate. Are you afraid to sit here and wait for me, or shall I drive you home first and then come back?"

"Neither," I replied, ashamed already of my momentary weakness. "I shall go down there with you. That is the voice of a woman in distress; she may need the assistance of one of her own sex."

CHAPTER VII.

He made no attempt to dissuade me, but helped me down from the dog-cart and tied the horse to one of the poplars. Then, hand in hand, that so he might best support and assist me, we made our way down the embankment, slippery wet with moisture that always seemed to ooze from its sides, and soch stood below upon that unknown and mysterious territory which I had so often contemplated, but had never before invaded.

As we approached the house, a strange and ghostly spectacle greeted us. The gaunt, gleaming pile of stone, shining with special lustre in the silvery light, seemed staring blankly into the night through the pale medium of its myriad white shutters. One window alone glowed, and framed the vision that had attracted our startled gaze.

A woman, from whose lips doubtless the faint, despairing cry had proceeded, stood close pressed against the casement. We could see her form quite distinctly in the bright moonlight, but not until the house was very near could we distinguish her features; then I discovered that the figure was that of a girl, apparently not much older than I, and that the face, though distorted by fright and distress, was yet of a startling, wonderful beauty.

When she saw us approach she ceased her heart-rending cries, threw her hands above her head, and, clasping them over her disordered hair in an easy, graceful attitude, stood leaning carefully against the window, while the awful expression of the lovely countenance gave way to one of curiosity.

"What is she?" I panted, breathlessly, turning to my escort. But the terrible pallor of his face brought me to an involuntary pause, such a storm of conflicting emotions as it betrayed—recognition, amazement, pain, and infinite aversion. He seemed irresolute, as if about to turn back from a loathsome object; but even in the midst of this overwhelming discovery I was able to command an answer from him. I saw a shudder convulse him as I repeated my question.

"What is she?" he reiterated, with his eyes still fixed upon what appeared to me a really exquisite picture, one quite devoid of cause for this horror which it seemed to arouse in him. Then suddenly his voice changed from exceeding harshness to a most exquisite gentleness as he transferred his gaze to my awe-struck, wondering face.

"I cannot tell you what she is. It is enough for you to know that she is one who is unworthy to touch the hem of your garment. I must go to her, but God willing, you shall never come in contact with such a creature. Turn back, turn back, Miss Lothrop, I beg of you; and wait for me in the dog-cart."

"I cannot," I replied firmly. "I do not know, nor do I care to know what she is. She is suffering and in distress, and needs at least a woman's sympathy. Mr. Chester, my mind is made up; I shall go with you—come."

He looked at me a moment in a manner that made my eyes fall in confusion, and then, seeing my determination, he took my hand and placing it on his arm, walked swiftly toward the back of the house with a directness and purpose that showed his entire familiarity with the place. As we moved out of sight of the solitary figure at the window, her cries recommenced, and there was such a ghostly vibration in the sweet, beseeching tones as they echoed through the dense woods that, as we mounted the cliff leading to the rickety old platform, which Madam had described so lovingly, I trembled and shuddered despite my efforts at self-command.

We reached the rough landing-place, and Mr. Chester tried the door. It was securely fastened. Without further delay he picked up a stone and broke one of the side-lights, thrust in his arm and slid back the bolt which alone locked the entrance. Then, throwing the door quickly open, he drew me within the house. It was dark as midnight. No moonbeams penetrated the obscurity, and it seemed that the shadows were almost palpable. However, Mr. Chester was prepared for the emergency; he had brought with him one of the dog-cart lanterns, and this he proceeded at once to light, for the brightness of the night had rendered this hitherto unnecessary.

As the flame gleamed through the darkness, I discovered that we were standing upon the staircase-landing with which I had become acquainted through Madam's description, while about us gloomed the dismal atmosphere of a deserted, long-disused, damp and dreary dwelling. The scene was still and depressing beyond description.

However, urged onward by our concern for the girl whose cries had summoned us to her relief, we wasted no time in idle inspection, but pressed hurriedly on up the stairs and along a narrow corridor until we reached the room at whose window had appeared that wild and distraught vision.

A brief but convincing search showed us that the girl was no longer within the apartment. It was quite vacant, barren even of furniture, and so dispiriting was its effect upon me that I was glad when my companion led me hastily from it. We made a rapid investigation of the other apartments upon that floor, but with no better success. Then Mr. Chester hesitated for a moment in the hall, undecided whether to go up or down in furtherance of his purpose.

As we halted there, in the same stern silence which had accompanied our entrance and research up to this instant, a signal came to us through the night, a sad and distressing signal which wrung my heart; although it wrought no softening of the rigid lines in my companion's face. It was the sound of sobbing, loud and pitiful, that of a little child who had been forbidden to weep.

However bitter a man's feelings towards a woman may be, such sounds impel him to her aid. Darracott turned to me.

"She is below there," he said shortly. "Once more—will you not remain here and avoid meeting her? You shall have the lantern."

His intonation, hurried as it was, indicated what his own wish in the matter was, but I negatived it promptly. All my sympathies were with that desolate creature whose wailing still smote upon the air.

"Go on—hurry!" I cried; and so we passed down the stairs and, still led by the mournful sounds, wound our way in and out of narrow passages, through kitchen and servants' offices, until we came to a sort of cellar in the back of the house. As the light fell into the place the weeping ceased, and a more terrible picture of misery and despair than that which met our eyes I cannot well imagine.

Two walls of the room were of the rough, unfinished stone of the cliff, on which green, slippery dampness had formed, and down their dark and slippery sides thin streams of black ooze trickled upon the earthy floor beneath.

The roof and the other walls were also covered with the deadly moisture, and thick grey festoons of dusty cobwebs draped the scarcely visible woodwork.

In the most remote corner of this vile and dreadful den was huddled together a shapeless mass, almost covered by a veil of fair hair, thrown forward over the bent figure, evidently for the purpose of concealment. The beautiful mantle, discovered by the lantern, gleamed and shone like a vein of gold in a dark setting of rough ore.

IN THE MOST REMOTE CORNER WAS Huddled a shapeless mass.

"Let me speak to her," I said, all fear overcome by pity.

"There was no reply from my companion. I glanced at him, and I hope that never again shall I see in a man's face such awful evidence of contending emotions as I read in his. There was more than assent to my proposition in his eyes; there was absolute appeal. He nodded.

"Yes, do, for God's sake!" he muttered. "It is beyond me."

I left him standing in the doorway, and approached the crouching figure.

"Are you ill?" I asked, speaking as gently as possible.

"I laid my hand softly upon the shrinking form. The girl, feeling my touch, raised her bowed head and tossed back the weight of lustrous hair, looking at me with two dull, mournful blue eyes, in whose vacancy I read the clue to her strange actions.

"No, I am not ill," she answered, in a soft, minor key. "No, not ill, but—oh! so dusty—so, so dusty!" with dainty disgust. "If I could only have a cloth to wipe away the cobwebs! They are choking me, you know; I'd like to wipe my hands, too; they're all wet with dampness—see!"

She held up two tiny palms, and, as I stopped to warm them with my own, I shrank back in horror—they were stained with a deep crimson.

"Mr. Chester!" I cried, forced to the appeal, "come here!" He approached reluctantly. I suspected that he feared recognition, and continued, in an aside: "You need not be afraid; she is quite insane."

I could see that my words were a great shock to the start with which he heard them. Then personal feeling gave way to humane solicitude.

"Alice," he said gravely as he stood beside her, "do you know me?"

"Yes," she replied, nodding and smiling, "of course! How do you do? Once upon a time a spider spun a cobweb and a king watched it—you are the king. Couldn't you give me a dust-er?"

WAR NOTES.

A special from Washington says: Some uneasiness prevails in military circles as to the attitude of China toward the Philippines, as the result of her refusal to permit the shipment of horses purchased by agents of Gen. Otis to Manila, on the ground that they are "contraband of war." While the Pekin government has not formally recognized the belligerency of Aguinaldo and his followers, her announcement that horses are "contraband" is regarded as dangerously near such recognition. Officials interpret her action to mean that China holds that this government, instead of being engaged in the suppression of an insurrection, is involved in a war, and that goods purchased by it in her empire for the use of the American army are consequently contraband. This government has taken no diplomatic notice of China's declaration.

A Cuban committee has started out with the intention of giving the natives free instruction on certain points. The members of the committee say a definite form of government for the island will soon be determined upon, and they urge every citizen to at least learn to write, pointing out that there is no question now of fighting for independence, but that every man must say clearly what he wishes in regard to the future of the island, adding that they will only have themselves to blame if, on account of apathy, they have to confess they are incapable of their own social and political regeneration.

The City of Peking, which sailed from San Francisco for Hong Kong by way of Honolulu and Yokohama, took among her cargo 321,440 pounds of shot, the first shipment of the kind ever made to Japan. In addition there were 107,650 pounds of pig lead and 43,753 pounds of sheet lead. Just to what use this rather unusual shipment is going to be put is not known, but suggestions have been made that it may be intended to smuggle it into Manila for the use of Aguinaldo and his army.

The only case of yellow fever in Havana is of a very mild type. The victim is Private Beatty, of the 8th U. S. Infantry. Army physicians consider that it would be more dangerous to relieve the troops from the island at present than to allow them to remain. In their judgment, the best plan is to let them stay, during the heated term, in the most healthful localities in the suburbs.

Gen. MacArthur's force, consisting of 5,000 men, advanced five miles beyond San Fernando on Aug. 9th and encountered and defeated a Filipino force of 6,000 men. The enemy retreated, leaving many dead and wounded. The American loss in killed and wounded was 20.

It is known to be a fact that $10,000,000 of English capital has been invested in Cuban tobacco plantations, which will enable the investors to control the Cuban tobacco market.

During the shelling of Paez, near Santa Cruz, by the gunboat Nipadun recently, one child was killed, many buildings damaged and the people fled to the hills terrified.

The situation at Guatemala is not so war-like as was at first reported.

A special from the City of Mexico says that news from the lower Yaqui river country is that the roving bands of Indians are killing both Mexicans and Americans, and that a number of Americans in the outlying districts have already been slaughtered. Fears are expressed for the safety of the large number of American prospectors who have been pouring in the Sierra Madre mountains during the last year. It is known that a band of 50 soldiers have been massacred.
