THE BEET SUGAR QUESTION

DISCUSSED AT THE VILLAGE HALL MEETING FRIDAY.

Public Meeting to Be Called in the Rink Later.

There was a goodly attendance at the beet sugar meeting in the village hall Friday night last and a considerable amount of interest was manifested. Representatives of the Mt. Clemens factory were present and showed the profit to be derived from raising sugar beets and also the benefit to a community arising from having a factory in its midst. It was explained that a four hundred ton factory would cost about $400,000; that the contractors would take $100,000 of the stock if the people here would take a like amount, and that the balance could easily be raised by selling bonds.

The prevailing opinion seemed to be that the first thing to do was to get enough farmers interested in the growing of beets this year to prove they could be raised here with profit, and if they could then next year go in for a factory. The Mt. Clemens company will take all that can be raised here at $4.50 per ton for 12 per cent beets and 33% per ton more for each additional per cent the beets test. The cost of delivering to the Mt. Clemens factory is 90 cents per ton for freight. It is said that much of the land in this section will produce 14 to 16 per cent beets and that would bring the price up to nearly $6 per ton. The company furnishes the seed at 15 cents per pound and deducts the amount from the first delivery of beets.

As an additional profit to the beet raiser, it is said that the pulp from the beets, which will be shipped back to the producer at no expense beyond the freight, is of great value as feed for stock.

A meeting will probably be called in the rink in the near future, when the matter will be gone into at more length and when state speakers will be secured for the occasion.

MRS. SOPHIA LAPHAM.

Death Came Unexpectedly on Monday Morning.

Mrs. Sophia Baker Lapham, widow of the late Gregory Lapham, who for many years was a well known Northville business man, died at her home in this village Monday morning aged 60 years. She had been ill for a week or so past, but her death Monday was both sudden and unlooked for.

Mrs. Lapham had lived in Northville nearly all her life and was well known and much thought of throughout the community. The children are Mrs. Grace Bryan of Grand Junction, Colorado; Edward and Elbridge at this place.

The funeral was held from the late home Wednesday, Rev. O. M. Thrasher of the Baptist church, of which society deceased had been a faithful member for many years, officiated. The interment was in Rural Hill.

ADENA CHILSON DEAD.

Leaves a Widow and Two Small Children Here.

Adena Chilson, who had lived here and at Waterford for two years or more past, died quite suddenly last week at the home of his parents in Willow. He was a little past 33 years of age and was born in Redford. In 1891 he was married to Miss Nedie Coates of Livonia, who with two children of 8 and 10 years survive him. He had been a patient sufferer for some years and his death came really as relief. He was a good husband and a kind father and will be greatly missed in the home of which he was so fond. The funeral was held at Willow Friday and the interment was at Belle Branch.

MCKINLEY NAT'L MEMORIAL ASS'N

CHANCE FOR NORTHVILLE PEOPLE TO SUBSCRIBE.

Desired That Funds Be All in by January 29th.

The McKinley National Memorial association which was organized some time ago has appointed Hon. George H. Barbour of Detroit chairman for Michigan, and he with his cabinet have appointed a large force of Detroit's prominent men to co-operate in the work. At a meeting held at the Russell House last week, committeemen were appointed in a number of towns throughout the state to aid in carrying out the work of raising the necessary funds for the purpose of procuring a fitting memorial to the memory of our late beloved president. The trustees have decided that the memorial should be erected at his grave in the cemetery at Canton. It is the purpose to have the offerings of the people voluntary with a full opportunity for all to contribute. A memento in form of a souvenir certificate worthy of preservation will be given to each subscriber.

Postmaster W. H. Hutton has been appointed to represent this city to receive contributions which our people wish to subscribe, and has placed subscription books in the offices of J. A. Dubuar Mfg. Co., The Globe Furniture Co., High School and at the postoffice. It is desired that all contributions shall be handed in before January 29th as that is the birthday of President McKinley and the committee wishes to close the matter up then as a proper observance of the day.

Silly New York Fashion.

The unbuttoned glove, turned down over the hand, is having a hard time of it since cold weather set in. Chapped wrists are the result. Of course, no one realizing the prime object of the unfastened glove—to cool the wrists—has so suffered. When warm weather departed such persons promptly turned back their gloves and fastened them, and hence, know nothing personally about the writhing. But not so the youth and maiden who blindly follow a fashion just because it is a fashion.—New York Evening Sun

Indian Territory Coal Deposits.

Some idea of the value of the coal deposits in Indian territory can be gained when it is known the average thickness of the vein is four feet, which will produce 4,000 tons to the acre. These lands are leased in lots of 900 acres each, which means that 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 tons can be produced by those leasing the land. On this output the lessees pay a royalty of eight cents a ton. The output during the last year was 1,900,127, as against 1,400,441 tons the previous year.

Washington's Great Potato Crop.

An immense potato crop has been raised this season by irrigation in the Yakima Indian reservation in the state of Washington. The quantity for export is 2,000 carloads, and one farmer will clear $10,000. It is estimated that the crop will be 40,000 tons, worth $1,000,000.

Whaling Business Declining.

The total catch of whales this year is stated to be only twenty-eight, and the industry seems to have almost reached the limit of nothingness. Half a century ago the American whaling fleet consisted of over 700 vessels. The catch of 1846 was valued at $21,000,000.

WANTS PRACTICAL TEST MADE

J. A. DUBUAR OFFERS A GOOD SUGGESTION

On the Question of Raising Sugar Beets and a Factory.

J. A. Dubuar offers what seems to be a good suggestion and that is that the business men of the village club together and lease say 100 acres of ground and have it planted, cultivated and harvested in the most approved manner and thus make an additional demonstration as to the value of the sugar beet industry. Mr. Dubuar says:

"Believing that it is of no small interest to every business man of Northville to have a beet sugar factory located here, and also believing that it is possible to get one provided that a factory can be guaranteed a sufficient quantity of beets. It occurs to me that the quickest way to settle the matter in a business way is first to determine whether the raising of beets pay better than other crops. If it is found that they will then no doubt the farmers would come forward ready to contract acreage. To determine the matter beets should be grown on more than one piece of ground, so I suggest in order to settle this question that ten or more business men combine together and furnish the necessary funds to put in—say one hundred acres, renting sufficient ground from different farmers in various localities and putting a competent man in charge who will adopt the most improved methods in caring for them. This would demonstrate that it pays or does not pay. Undoubtedly a large number of factories are to be built throughout the state, but no two will be close together and so it stands us to endeavor to make this the point of location rather than at some other place five or ten miles from here. The investment would not be large for any one person if ten or fifteen men combined together and the probability would be that the investors would at least get their original investment back. I believe that this plan, if nothing better is offered, should be tried and without delay there are those who would willingly enter into such a plan if for one would be glad to do so."

A Prince as a Naturalist.

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria is an accomplished naturalist, and at his seat at Varna, on the Black sea, he spends much of his time hunting and classifying bugs, butterflies, plants and other phenomena of animate and inanimate nature. He has catalogued nearly all the flora and fauna of Bulgaria and has established in Sofia a very respectable zoological garden at his own expense.

Emperor William's Great Wealth.

Emperor William is estimated to be the richest monarch in the world, now that Queen Victoria's estate has been divided. He inherited more than $30,000,000 from his grandfather thirteen years ago, which was well invested, and has since rapidly increased in value. He inherited another fortune from his father, the late Emperor Frederick. His wife is also rich.

Extra Toes and Fingers.

Mr. and Mrs. Zacheus Gaskill of Dresbach, Minn., have ten children, and five of them possess twelve fingers and as many toes. It is equally curious that every alternate child in point of age has an extra finger, those who are not blessed in that direction having six toes and only the normal number of fingers.

Many Were on Pass List.

About 130,000 passes into the Pan-American exposition were issued. Exactly 8,364,073 admissions to the exposition were recorded, and, since many of the passes were used several times at least, it is seen that the free admission constituted a considerable per cent of the whole.

Compulsory Schools of Germany.

No country does so much for the education of its people as Germany. The common schools are not only in reach of the poorest, but the tuition is free and attendance is compulsory in childhood.

Newspapers Ahead, of Connoisseurs.

One bank in El Reno made $25,000 by agreeing to give notice of prizes drawn in the recent land lottery, and then the newspapers gave the notice before the bank could.

BUILDINGS FALL DOWN.

Big Structures in Wholesale District of Detroit Collapse, Causing Loss of Over $200,000.

Detroit, Jan. 20.—Four buildings, each four stories high, located in the heart of the wholesale district of this city, collapsed at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night, without any apparent cause, and all that now remains is a smoldering heap of ruins. The buildings were a part of the block bounded by Jefferson avenue and Shelby and Griswold streets, and were occupied by five concerns, and their stocks are a total loss, which is estimated at $152,000, exclusive of the loss on the buildings, which amounts to $50,500.

The buildings joined each other at the corner of Jefferson avenue and Shelby street. The first and second floors of the building on the corner were occupied by the Maddocks Glove company, manufacturers of gloves and mittens, and the two upper floors were used by the Imperial Cap company, manufacturers of hats and caps. The loss on the stock of the glove company was estimated by Mr. Norman Maddocks at $25,000, and he stated that he believed the loss to the Imperial company to be $15,000. Adjoining the Maddocks Glove company's building was the brokerage firm of F. B. Neuhoff & company, who carried a large stock of commission goods. Mr. Neuhoff said his loss, like the others, was total, and amounted to $8,000, with about $7,000 insurance. In the same building with this firm was located a stock of commission goods, which he carried for Hills Bros. of New York, and which Mr. Neuhoff said was valued at $7,000.

The Michigan Produce company also occupied a part of this building, and its loss was estimated by Mr. Neuhoff at about $7,500.

The third and fourth buildings were occupied by Cruse & Bros., limited, wholesale grocers. J. F. Cruse, president of the company, said he was unable to give exact figures, but stated that they carried about $90,000 worth of stock, which was fully insured.

No one seems to know what caused the collapse of the buildings. On Sunday night that district is practically deserted and the few who were in the vicinity say that the buildings seemed to fall into a heap without apparent cause, making a noise like the rumbling of distant thunder. There are evidences of an explosion about the ruin, but no one heard a sound of such an explosion. The falls of the rear part of the Maddocks Glove company's building are still standing to the height of two stories, but the roof of this part of the building has turned bottom side upward in the middle of Shelby street and a large iron smokestack lies on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street, mashed against the buildings there, as if driven by force. Experts from the Detroit Gas company's office made an examination of the ruins, but said they were unable to find evidences of a gas explosion.

It was fortunate that the wreck occurred on Sunday night. Had it happened during business hours the loss of life would have been appalling, as there were approximately 200 persons employed by the various firms. They would have been caught in a veritable death trap and burned before they could have been rescued. The buildings collapsed into a heap and in a short space of time the inflammable material caught fire from the furnaces used for heating the buildings. There were no watchmen about the premises, consequently there will be no loss of life. No one was injured, nor is there anyone who can give a definite reason for the catastrophe.

Perished by Fire.

Alpena, Jan. 20.—The three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. George Millard was burned to death. The mother stepped out doors leaving the child playing on the floor, a second later she was called into the house by its screams and found its clothing in flames. The child died three hours later. It is a very sorry how its clothing caught fire.

Sues for Damages.

South Haven, Jan. 20.—Attorney H. T. Cook, of this place, has commenced suit in the Antrim county circuit court against the county of Antrim for injuries sustained by his clients in being mobbed. The action is taken under the law of 1899. Attorney Cook expects to secure $1,000 for each of his clients and $5,000 in one of the cases.

Fire in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Jan. 21.—The Hapson-Haftcamp Co., manufacturers of roofing and supplies, suffered a total loss by fire at midnight Monday. The four story brick block and contents on Campau street were completely destroyed. Loss on building, $25,000, and on stock and machinery $50,000; partly insured.

A Milk Trust.

Kalamazoo, Jan. 20.—Kalamazoo has a full-fledged milk trust, over 100 dealers having gone into the combine. The price of milk has been raised from five cents to six cents a quart, and cream likewise. The advanced price of feed, the dealers claim, has forced them to take this step.

The Sugar Beet Question.

The Record would suggest to the farmers who contemplate raising sugar beets this year that they try but a small acreage as a starter. It may take one season to learn the ropes and it is better to start in carefully and make a small success than to try to make a big business of it and owing to inexperience make a huge failure.

In voting for a $100,000 new court house Oakland county people will do well to remember that in the construction of county buildings it is well to multiply to contract price by a figure two.

Luckily the collection has not been passed Sunday before the hell jangled.

Not His Best in Bore.
A Philadelphia correspondent suggests that trees planted in public squares and on streets should be of the nut-bearing variety. He believes that a sense of honor would be cultivated in boys, even in the worst neighborhood, if it were explained that the nuts belonged to them, and that they would only damage their own property if they interfered with them before the proper time. Then when the nuts were ripe they would be taken from the tree, under the direction of the city forestry department and a new festival day be inaugurated marking their distribution.

England and Russia.
The colossal and perilous undertaking of an armed invasion of India, with a view to conquest, is not part of the plan of any really responsible Russian. But I have no doubt that she is quite ready to use the powerful leverage given her by her ability to seize Herat when she will, to bring pressure to bear upon England in other matters. Therefore I am always ready to hear that troops are gathering in Central Asia, and when I hear that I always begin to scrutinize some other part of the map.—Henry Norman, M. P., in Westminster Gazette.

Sales of Actresses' Dresses.
Whenever there is a sale of actresses' dresses in New York the bargains are snapped up by or on behalf of society dames of restricted income. The materials are always of the best, and in the hands of a clever dressmaker can be turned to capital advantage, being so disguised in the new make-up as to be totally unrecognizable.

Mississippi's Rapid Development.
In the last four years the taxable wealth of Mississippi has increased $32,000,000, and there has been a large increase in population. The development has been largely due to the utilization of the magnificent forests of long-leaf pine in the southeastern part of the state.

HONORS FOR HENRY.

Prussian Prince Will Receive a Genuine Welcome.

Will Represent the Emperor at the Launching of His Majesty's Yacht on Staten Island. Diplomats Interested.

Prince Henry of Prussia is to be given a reception befitting the high station he occupies and the representative of such a great nation as Germany. The programme for his welcome, which will be immediately prepared, is almost as interesting a subject of speculation in diplomatic circles as are the reasons which induced Emperor William to send him here.

Prince Henry will be treated with the most distinguished courtesy. Upon his arrival at New York he will be received by representatives of the president and of the army and navy and by a military escort. Before he lands a salute of 21 guns, the number given to the president, will be fired. At the launching of the imperial yacht, which will be christened by Miss Roosevelt, his address will be answered by the president in terms as cordial as he himself will employ.

When he reaches Washington he will be received by the president and will be invited to be the guest of the nation. He may prefer to stop at the German embassy. Following his call upon the president Mr. Roosevelt will return the courtesy and will subsequently invite him to a dinner, which will be attended by the most prominent men of the country. Everything will be done to make Prince Henry's visit a pleasant memory.

The imperial yacht Hohenzollern will also be given a cordial reception. It is possible that the North Atlantic squadron may find its itinerary cut short, and that it will be ordered to receive the yacht at sea, accompanying it to port, and take its share in doing honor to the prince of Prussia. Such action will give Prince Henry, who is an officer of the German navy, an opportunity to see the latest American battleships.

In diplomatic circles there is a disposition to regard Emperor William's friendly overtures to the United States with especial interest in view of the growing enmity between his country and Great Britain. Diplomats say that there is now apparently rivalry between Germany and Great Britain for American friendship.

PRINCE HENRY OF PRUSSIA
(Prospective Guest of the Government of the United States)

President Roosevelt is naturally pleased at the persistence of Emperor William in endeavoring to promote friendly relations with this government. During the four months of his visit to the United States, Emperor William has given positive assurances that he has no intention of occupying territory on this continent, has shown a desire to consult the United States with respect to the collection of claims from Venezuela, has asked that the president's daughter marry his son, and has finally announced that his brother and his imperial yacht will pay a visit to this country. The desire for American friendship is so obvious that it has impressed the officials.

In connection with the proposed trip of the Hohenzollern to New York Emperor William telegraphed as follows in English to President Roosevelt:

"I am most gratified by your kind permission for Miss Roosevelt's performing the christening ceremony of my yacht. It gives me great pleasure to announce to you that I have ordered my yacht, the Hohenzollern, to cross over and be present at the ceremony. My brother, Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, will appear as my representative and will be able to express to you once more my sincere feelings and friendship for the United States and their illustrious head."

President Roosevelt replied as follows in German:

"Your majesty's intention to send over your yacht, the Hohenzollern, to attend the christening by my daughter of your new yacht is the source of great pleasure and satisfaction to me. I can assure you a hearty welcome for your brother, Admiral Prince Henry, to whom I shall personally express my sincere feelings of esteem for your majesty as well as my best wishes for the welfare of the German people."

Two Survivors of 1800.

Claremont, N. H., has two citizens born early in the year 1800, and who will soon celebrate the one hundred and second anniversary of their birth. Both are comparatively active men, and one continues to enjoy skating. They have the appearance of men of 75 or 80. At the age of 82 one enlisted in a New Hampshire regiment and served three years.

Governed by Trades Unions.

Ansonia, Conn., a thriving manufacturing town, is governed in every department by officials belonging to trades unions. The mayor is a working carpenter, the town clerk is a cooper, the school director is a cooper, the town clerk is a cooper, the school director is a cooper, the town clerk is a cooper, the school director is a cooper.

NO OTHER LIKE IT.

Easton, Pa., Has a Suspension Bridge Built Upon an Entirely New Principle.

Easton, Pa., has a new suspension foot bridge unlike any other bridge in the world. Among its oddities are the facts that it is 804 feet long and only ten feet higher than the south approach; it has two river spans instead of one, each 279 feet long; and it has a span that is 119 feet in length.

This bridge stretches across the Lehigh river, the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company's canal, and the tracks of the Lehigh Valley railway. It is a toll bridge, built for a local company and designed by H. G. Tyrrell, a Boston engineer. The city engineer of Easton had charge of building the foundations.

One of the great difficulties confronting the designer of the bridge was the unequal elevation of the two ends of the bridge. To overcome this the floor is run down on a seven per cent. grade from the north bank to the river tower. From this point to the low end are four runs of stairs, the whole being suspended from the cables. On account of its having only a ten-foot roadway, which is narrow in proportion to its length, it was necessary to resist wind pressure by running guy ropes from the center of the two main spans to shore. The bridge has steel towers resting on stone piers, which are built up to extreme high water level. The height of the center tower from low water to the top of the saddle is 108 feet. It has two steel wire cables, each 2 1/2 inches in diameter and three-quarter inch suspenders. The steel stiffening trusses are five feet three inches deep. They are braced laterally at panel points to the floor beams. The bridge has wooden joists, a plank floor and wooden handrails.

DEVOTED TO CHESS.

Capt. Clark, Who Took the Oregon Around the Horn, Is Considered an Expert Player.

Capt. Charles E. Clark, who took the Oregon around the Horn, and is now in command of the Naval Asylum near Philadelphia, is an enthusiastic chess player. When he was stationed on the Pacific coast his favorite shore resort was the Mercantile Library club, which had many members who were ardent devotees of chess. Even among these Capt. Clark became known as one more than ordinarily devoted to the game. He played at all times with such complete absorption in his task that his sessions at the club were always spectacles for the curious, in short, he played even a social game as though it might be a matter of life and death. Now the story goes that when the proposition to send the Oregon around Cape Horn was first talked over in the navy department a discussion arose regarding Capt. Clark's fitness for so important an undertaking. One of Secretary Long's advisers asked, "Has Clark persistence enough to see him through?"

"Persistence?" said a Clark advocate. "Did you ever see him play chess?"
No one present had save the man who spoke, but he went on to remark that anyone who took chess so seriously as Clark did could be depended upon to do his best proportionately in greater matters. Whether or not his advocacy of the captain counted for anything does not certainly appear, but it is a fact that a few hours after this conference orders were sent to Clark to take the Oregon southward.

PLUCKY MRS. PESCHEL

PROTECTS HER ENTIRE FAMILY WITH PERUNA.

HAS A HAPPY HOME.

This Beautiful Mother Says:

"I Cannot Help But Praise Peruna.

"I Am Never Without It.

"As Soon as I Find the Children Have the Least Cold, I Give Them Peruna.

"A Few Doses Helps Them."

One of the greatest foes with which every family has to contend is our changeable climate. To protect the family from colds and coughs is always a serious problem, and often impossible. Sooner or later it is the inevitable fate of every one to catch cold. Care in avoiding exposure and the use of proper clothing will protect from the frequency and perhaps the severity of colds, but with the greatest of precautions they will come. This is a settled fact of human experience.

Especially is this true during the stormy and unsettled weather of early winter. Everybody must expect to be caught somewhere or somehow.

Perhaps it will be wet feet, or cold draught, or damp clothes, or may be too close confinement in hot rooms and then going out into the cold carelessly, or it may be one of a thousand other little mishaps, but no one is shroud enough to always avoid the inevitable catching cold.

Sometimes colds come like an epidemic; everybody seems to have one at once. The very air about us is poison to the head, throat and lungs.

There is no fact of medical science better known than that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Thousands of families in all parts of the United States are protected each winter by Peruna. Once in the family Peruna always stays. No home can spare Peruna after the first trial of it. A splendid example of this fact is found in the beautiful home of Mrs. Paul Peschel, of 14 Quitman street, Newark, N. J. Read her letter.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17, 1900.

Dr. S. B. Hartman:
Dear Sir—My three children were sick and my husband had an attack of la grippe. I gave the children Peruna, and now they look as if they hadn't been sick at all. I also gave it to my husband until he was good and well. I do not know how I could have stood taking care of them and being up night and day, had it not been for Peruna.

"Last winter was the first winter in sixteen years that I did not have a cough. It is impossible to explain my thanks in words. I never looked as well as I do now.

"Peruna is our family medicine and always will be. I do my own housework and sewing, and get along lovely, now that I am so strong and well, thank s to Peruna and your good advice.

"I cannot help but praise Peruna. I am never without it, and as soon as I find the children have the least cold I give them Peruna. A few doses helps them, and I hope that every one who reads my testimony will try Peruna as it is a friend indeed." Thankfully yours,
MRS. PAUL PESCHEL,
14 Quitman St., Newark, N. J.

A Safe Family Doctor.

Peruna has been used in many other homes with the same results. The following are samples:—Mrs. M. E. Seymour, Dye, Ga., writes:

"I am ready to speak a few words in favor of Peruna and Manalin. I have tried them for nearly every ill of life for myself and family, and find them to be all the doctor claims them to be. Peruna cured me of female trouble when my doctor could not. My advice to all suffering women is, consult Dr. Hartman. What he has done for me he will do for you."—Mrs. M. E. Seymour.

Peruna Added 40 Pounds.
Mrs. Maria Goertz, Cleo, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity."—Mrs. Maria Goertz.

Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh will be sent free upon request to any address. This book contains ninety-five pages of interesting reading matter, and will be found invaluable to mothers in aiding them to guard against and cure the many little catarrhal ailments of children that come with the severe weather of winter.

the rack is on duty in the library and forms a very convenient and necessary means for preserving the many maps and charts with which the school is supplied.

The Kenedy mathematical blocks arrived last Saturday, and the pupils will now begin to sample the luscious chunks of information that can be drawn from that source.

Prof Smith is getting fine results from the pupils in music. His chorus choir, which meets in the High-school room at four o'clock each Thursday, is doing excellent work. Must be it is interesting as the superintendent caught the following expression from one of the High-school girls, "I could stay and sing till six o'clock."

Last week the seventh grade formally challenged the ninth grade to a spelling contest. When the ninth grade assembled at one o'clock to confer with each other regarding the advisability of accepting, they began to name conditions. One named the condition, "That they must never do it again;" another, "That we be given two spells on a word," and another, "That we be given five minutes to rest between each spell." But they soon began to look serious, a committee was appointed to write up a formal acceptance and a special messenger dispatched to deliver it. Results will be announced next week.

Hereafter all report cards are to be sent with the children on the same evening, which shall be the first Wednesday of each school month. We send them on the same evening each month so the parents may know when to expect the children to bring them, and look into the matter if the cards do not come at that time. We send them at night so that both father and mother may have an opportunity to examine carefully the report. May we ask the parents to do us the great favor of observing first of all the mark your child has in deportment. We ask this, first, because it is not only of first importance to your child, but it is of great moment to the state that he grow up to be a good, law abiding citizen. Kindly observe next his marks in punctuality and attendance to see if he is forming habits of regularity and promptness. Observe next his marks in the several studies to see if they indicate progress and faithfulness, to see if they indicate that he is forming habits of perseverance and industry. So far as possible we hope father and mother will use a few minutes in looking over these reports together, have children present let them understand that you look forward with great pleasure and interest to the night, each month, when their reports are all to come home. May we urge you to be careful to sign the report card yourself and not allow your child to sign your name. Do not tempt him by having him form the habit of signing someone else's name to a paper of any kind. Please do us the favor of sending back the report card, signed, Thursday morning, or as soon thereafter as possible. If reports are not satisfactory is not now the best time to find out the trouble if you do not already know, and is it not best to go to considerable trouble to find out just how your children are spending their time?

Grand weather for school and frequent visitors.

On Tuesday morning each member of the eighth grade responded at roll call with an appropriate quotation from Emerson, Longfellow, Franklin or other prominent writers.

Last Saturday the janitor and superintendent spent a good share of the afternoon in making a rack for maps and charts. We wish to state that the ingenuity and skill called forth was no small amount of what might have been displayed by the gentlemen. Suffice it to say, that

ABOUT AUCTION BILLS!

A Good Auctioneer likes to see his name on a neat, attractive auction bill. "Any old thing" won't do. A neat, attractive bill with new type and cuts brings a crowd. Poor and unattractive bills bring a poor, no-money crowd and the auctioneer is blamed when in reality it is the printer's fault. We're up-to-date. We put up the attractive kind of bills and they cost no more than the other kind. We also give the auction and the auctioneer a good "send off" in The Record—that's free.

The music was exceptionally fine and both the Knights and Mr. Timbham are to be congratulated for that pleasing feature of the event. The supper provided by the ladies was also very nice and everybody was well pleased. The decorations, consisting of acres of white-bunting and hundreds of national flags, were the most elaborate and beautiful ever seen in the place. A number were present from neighboring towns.

Arithmetic Holds to the Truth.

At a school in Kent an inspector was examining a class of children in arithmetic, when the inspector asked the following question: "Now, John, supposing I gave you two rabbits and another kind friend gave you one more, how many would you have?" John—Four, sir. Inspector—No, my boy, two and one don't make four. John (quickly)—Please, sir, I've got one old ed ten at home—London Spare.

Making Fortunes in Apples.

The shortage of apples in Eastern markets has led to the making of fortunes this season by the apple growers of Oregon and Washington. They have shipped large quantities of the fruit to Chicago and New York, and the usual amount of the choicest fruit has gone to England and Germany. From $500 to $600 an acre has been cleared from apple orchards.

Antiquity of the Plow.

The plow is certainly the oldest and probably the simplest of agricultural implements being represented among the hieroglyphs on the ancient tombs of Egypt, dating back more than 4,000 years. As early as the year 1600 B. C., the plow was described by a Greek historian as consisting of a beam, a share and handles.

Greek Names in America.

Dr. Waite the American ambassador at Berlin, was presented to the late Field Marshal Von Moltke as a man who had been born at Homer, had been president of a university at Ithaca and a resident of Syracuse. "I suppose I shall have to talk Greek to him," said the old veteran.

Odd Reason for Rejecting Article.

The Rev. Edward Everett Hale of Boston was asked by a newspaper to write an article on how he keeps at work in spite of his age. He wrote the article and said it was because he had religious faith, and the article was rejected. This rejection was the subject of a recent sermon.

Telephones of Two Cities.

With 342,732 inhabitants, San Francisco has 21,324 telephones. In other words, she has a telephone for every sixteen inhabitants. Boston comes next. She has 500,000 inhabitants and 23,780 telephones, or a telephone for every twenty-four inhabitants.

The Care of Soap.

It is a mistake to leave soap exposed to the air. When not in use it should be placed in a receptacle with a cover, and in this way it drains and dries to its original degree of hardness.

Toughness of the House-Fly.

A fly will survive long immersion in water, and will sustain the odors of sulphur and other disinfectants without apparent injury. Only turpentine, chloroform and ammonia can get the better of a fly.

There are tricks in all trades. According to a well known chef, quoted by an exchange, a tough beef steak can be made as tender as the most expensive cut by pouring over it a tablespoonful of olive oil, rubbing it in and putting the steak in a refrigerator or cooled pantry for twenty-four hours. This process is followed at many of the best hotels, tho they often keep their steaks thus treated for a week.

Repairing Neatly Done

Never thought of such a sign for a medicine did you? Well, it's a good sign for Scott's Emulsion. The body has to be repaired like other things and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine that does it.

These poor bodies wear out from worry, from over-work, from disease. They get thin and weak. Some of the new ones are not well made—and all of the old ones are racked from long usage.

Scott's Emulsion fixes all kinds. It does the work both inside and out. It makes soft bones hard, thin blood red, weak lungs strong, hollow places full. Only the best materials are used in the patching and the patches don't show through the new glow of health.

No one has to wait his turn. You can do it yourself—you

The Lost Continent

By CUTCLIFFE HYNE.

Published by Harper &amp; Bros.

Copyright, 1900, by Cutcliffe Hyne.

SYNOPSIS:

CHAPTER I.—The story of the Lost Continent is the translation of an ancient manuscript found in a cave in the Canary Islands and opens with the installation of Tatho as viceroy of Yucatan, a province of Atlantis. The latter continent, situated in the Atlantic ocean, Tatho succeeds in conquering by the aid of the goddess Phoenice, to help prop the tottering throne. Phoenice, of whom he has heard little, he learns is a crafty and very beautiful woman, and soon becomes the daughter of a swineherd, although she claims to be a daughter of the gods. She is adopted and raised by Tatho, governor of the island, and one of the high priests. She is possessed of a great ambition to rule and while still young deposes him. All attempts to depose her are unsuccessful and she finally defeats the old king and takes the throne.

CHAPTER II.—Tatho is much surprised when next day Deucalion asks the use of a ship to take him home, believing he has grown rich during his reign, as he (Tatho) would have done, but Deucalion is a poor man, having ruled only for the good of the country. Things are different, Atlantis, greed and selfishness being the universal rule.

CHAPTER III.—When near home they are met by enemies of Tatho, who demand the custody of Deucalion. Tatho, the captain, refuses, and a fierce fight ensues, in which he is victorious.

CHAPTER IV.—Deucalion upon his arrival is met with much pomp and ceremony by Phoenice. Although women have had no influence over Deucalion, he readily realizes her powerful influence over others, and the fact that he does not immediately fall in love with her evidently puzzles her. Deucalion notices amid the grandeur of the city also the poverty, squalor and starvation, and he learns that it is partly the result of a siege to which the city has been for some time subjected.

CHAPTER V.—Deucalion is taken to the palace by the most illustrious feast in his honor. While they are eating, a frail old man passes the guards and approaches the queen, declaring that she must undo the evil she has caused, feed the starving and restore Atlantis to its former greatness. It is Tatho, her old guardian, who has fled to the island of the gods, and he orders him away. He refuses, and launches a curse that she will be overthrown by the high gods whom she has stung against. She faces him with a tumult of passion and orders the guards to have him whipped before her. He warns them not to touch him, and when one of them does he falls to the floor, writhing in agony, stricken with a fatal leprosy. Tatho then silently leaves.

CHAPTER VI.

THE BITERS OF THE CITY WALLS.

Here then was the manner of my reception back in the capital of Atlantis, and some first glimpse at her new policies. I freely confess to my own inaction and inactivity; but it was all deliberate. The old lies of duty seemed lost, or at least merged in one another. Beforetime, to serve the king was to serve the clan of the priests, from which he had been chosen, and whose head he constituted. But Phoenice was self-made, and appeared to be a rule unto herself; if Tatho was to be trusted, he was the mouthpiece of the priests, and their clan had set her at defiance, and how was a mere honest man to choose on the instant between the two?

But cold argument told me that governments were set up for the good of the country at large, and I said to myself that there would be my choice; I must find out which rule—promised best for Atlantis, and do my poor best to prop it into full power. And here at once there opened up another path in the maze; I had heard some considerable talk of rebels, of another faction of Atlanteans, who, whatever their faults might be, were at any rate strong enough to beleaguere the capital; and before coming to any final decision, it would be as well to take their claims in balance with the rest. So, on the night of that very same day on which I had just replanted my foot on the old country's shores, I set out to glean for myself tidings on the matter.

No one inside the royal pyramid gossiped me. The banquet had ended abruptly with the terrible scene that I have set down above on these tablets, for with Tatho writhing on the floor, and thrusting out the gruesome scars of his leprosy, even the most gluttonous had little enough appetite for further feasting.

A score of sturdy fellows were detailed off for my escort, and, with them in a double file on either hand, I marched out from the close perfumed air of the pyramid into the cool moonlight of the city. It was my purpose to make a tour of the walls and to find out somewhat of the disposition of these rebels.

And so in time the windings of the street brought us to the walls, and, coursing beside these and giving fitting answer to the sentries who beat their drums as we passed, we came in time to that great gate which was a charge to the captain of the garrison. Here it was plain there was some special commotion. A noise of laughter went up into the still night air, and with it now and again the snarl and roar of a great beast, and now and again the shriek of a hart man.

My escort made outcry with the horn which hung from the wall inviting such a summons, and a warder came to an arrow-slit, and did inspection of our persons and business. His survey was according to the ancient form of words, which is long, and this was made still more tedious by the noise from within, which ever and anon drowned all speech between us entirely.

But at last the formalities had been duly complied with, and he shot back the massive bars and bolts of stone, and threw ajar one monstrous stone valve of the door. Into the chamber within—a chamber made from the thickness of the wall between the two doors—I and my fellows crowded, and then the warder with his machine pulled to the valve which had been opened, and came to me again through the press of my escort, bowing low to the ground.

"I have no rail to give you," I said, abruptly. "Get on with your duty. Open me that other door."

"With respect my lord, it would be better that I should first announce my lord's presence. There is a baiting going forward in the circus, and the tigers are as yet mere savages, and no respecters of persons."

"The what?"

"The tigers, if my lord will permit the name. They are baiting a batch of prisoners with the two great beasts which the empress (whose name he adored) has sent here to aid us keep the gate. But if my lord will, there are the ward-rooms leading off this passage, and the galleries which run out from them commanding the circus, and from there my lord can see the sport undisturbed."

Now, the mere lust for killing excites only disgust in me, but I suspected the orders of the empress in this manner, and had a curiosity to see her scheme. So I stepped into the warder's lodge, and on into the galleries which commanded the circus with their arrow-slits. The old builders of this place had intended these for a second line of defense; for, supposing the outer doors all forced, an enemy could be speedily shot down in the circus, without being able to give a blow in return, and so would only march into a death-trap. But as a gazing-place on a spectacle they were no less useful.

The circus was bright lit by the moonshine, and the air which came in to me from it was and with the reek of blood. There was no sport in what was going forward; as I said, it was mere killing, and the sight disgusted me. I am no prude about this matter. Give a prisoner his weapons, put him in a pit with beasts of reasonable strength, and let him fight to a finish if you choose, and I can look on there and applaud the strokes. The war prisoner, being a prisoner, has earned death by natural law, and prefers to get his last stroke in hot blood than to be knocked down by the headman's ax. And it is any brave man's luxury either to help or watch a lusty fight. But this baiting in the circus between the gates was no fair battle like that.

To begin with, the beasts were no fair antagonists for single men. In fact, 20 men armed might well have fied from them. When the warder said tigers, I supposed he meant the great cats of the woods. But here, in the circus, I saw a pair of the most terrific of all the fur-bearing land beasts, the great tigers of the caves—huge monsters, of such ponderous strength that in hunger they will oftentimes draw down a mammoth, if they can find him away from his herd.

How they had been brought captive I could not tell. Hunter of beasts though I had been for all my days, I take no shame in saying that I always approached the slaying of a cave-tiger with stratagem and infinite caution. To trap it alive and bring it to a city on a chain was beyond my most daring schemes, and I have been accredited with more new things than one. But here it was in fact, and I saw in these captive beasts a new certificate for Phoenice's genius.

The pose of these two cave-tigers was plain, while they were in the circus, and loose, no living being could cross from one gate to the other. They were a new and sturdy addition to the defenses of the capital. A collar of bronze was round the throat of each, and on the collar was a massive chain which led to the wall, where it could be played out or hauled in by means of a windlass in one of the hidden galleries. So that at ordinary moments the two huge beasts could be tethered, one close to either end of the circus, as the litter of bones and other messes showed, leaving free passageway between the two sets of doors.

The windlass clanked, and the tethering chains drew the great beasts clear of the doorway; and a valve of the farther door swung ajar, and a prisoner was thrust struggling into the circus. A sickness seized me when I saw that this was a woman, but still, in view of the object I had in hand, I made no interruption.

It was not that I had never seen women sent to death before. A general, who has done his fighting, must in his day have killed women equally with men; yes, and seen them earn their death-blow by lusty battling. Yet there seemed something so wanton in this cruel, helpless sacrifice of a woman prisoner, that I had a struggle with myself to avoid interference. Still it is ever the case that the individual must be sacrificed to a policy, and so, as I say, I watched on, outwardly cold and impassive.

I watched too (I confess it freely) with a quickening heart. Here was no sullen, submissive victim. She may have been cowardly (as some women are), she may have been brave (as many women have shown themselves); but, at any rate, it was clear that she was going to make a struggle for her life, and to do vicious damage, it might be, before she yielded it up. The watchers behind the arrow-slits recognized this. Their wagers, and the hum of their appreciation, swept loudly round the ring of the circus.

They stripped their prisoners, before they thrust them out to this death, of all the clothes they might carry, for clothes have a value; and so the woman stood there bare-limbed in the moonlight.

She clapped her back to the great stone door by which she had entered, and faced fate with glowing eye. Gods! there have been times in early years when I could have plucked out sword and jumped down, and fought for her there for the sheer delight of such a battle. But now policy restrained me. The individual might wait a helping hand, but it was becoming more and more clear, that Atlantis wanted a minister also; and before these great needs, the lesser ones perform must perish. Still, be it noted that, if I did not jump down, no other man there that night had sufficient manhood remaining to venture the opportunity.

My heart gloved as I watched her. She picked a bone from the litter on the pavement and beat off its head by blows against the wall. Then with her teeth she fashioned the point to still further sharpness. I could see her teeth glisten white in the moon rays as she bit with them.

The huge cave-tigers, which stood as high as her head as they walked, came nearer to her in their prowling, yet obviously neglected her. This was part of their accustomed scheme of torment, and the woman knew it well. There was something intolerable in their noiseless, ceaseless padding on the pavement. I could see the prisoner's breasts heave as she watched them. A terror such as that would have made many a victim sick and helpless.

But this one was bolder than I had thought. She did not wait for a spring; she made the first attack herself. When the tiger made its stroll towards her, and was in the act of turning, she flung herself into a sudden leap, striking viciously at its eye with her sharpened bone. A roar from the onlookers acknowledged the stroke. The cave-tiger's eye remained undarkened, but the puny weapon had dealt it a smart flesh wound, and with a great belch of surprise and pain it scampered away to gain space for a rush and a spring.

But the woman did not await its charge. With a shrill scream she sped forward, running at the full of her speed across the moonlight directly towards that shadowed part of the encircling wall within whose thickness I had my gazing-place, and then, throwing every tendon of her body into the spring, made the great leap that surely any human being ever accomplished, even when spurred on by the utmost of terror and desperation. In an after day I measured it, and though of a certainty she must have added much to the tally by the sheer force of her run, which drove her clinging up the rough surface of the wall, it is a sure thing that in that splendid leap her feet must have dangled a man-height and a half above the pavement.

I say it was prodigious; but then the spur was more than the ordinary, and the woman herself was far out of the common both in thews and intelligence. At the end of the leap left her with five fingers lodged in the slit of the arrow-slit from which I watched. Even then she must have slipped back if she had been left to herself; for the slit sloped, and the stone was fairly smooth, but I shot out my hand and gripped hers by the wrist, and instantly she clambered up with both knees on the sill and her fingers turned round to grip my wrist in her turn.

And now you will suppose she gushed out prayers and promises, thinking only of safety and enlargement. There was nothing of this. With savage panting wordlessness she took fresh grip on the sharpened bone with her spare hand, and lunged with it desperately through the arrow-slit. With the hand that clutched mine she drew me towards her, so as to give the blows the surer chance, and so unprepared was I for such an attack, and with such fierce suddenness did she deliver it that the first blow was near giving me my quiver. But I grappled with the poor frantic creature as gently as might be—the stone of the wall separating us always—and stripped her of her weapon, and held her firmly captive till she might calm herself.

"That was an ungrateful blow," I said. "But for my hand you'd have slipped and been the sport of a tiger's paw this minute."

"Oh, I must kill some one," she panted, "before I am killed myself."

"There will be time enough to think upon that some other day; but for now you are far enough off meeting further harm."

"You are lying to me. You will throw me to the beasts as soon as I loose my grip. I know your kind; you will not be robbed of your sport."

"I will go so far as to prove myself to you," said I, and called out for the warder who had tended the doors below. "Bid those tigers be tethered on a shorter chain," I ordered, "and then go yourself outside into the circus and help this lady delicately to the ground."

The word was passed and these things were done, and I too came out into the circus and joined the woman, who stood waiting under the moonlight. But the others who had seen these doings were by no means suited at the change of plan. One of the great stone valves of the farther door opened hurriedly and a man strode out, armed and flushed. "By all the gods!" he shouted. "Who comes between me and my pastime?"

I stepped quietly to the advance. "I fear, sir," I said, "that you must launch your anger against me. By accident I gave that woman sanctuary, and I had not heart to toss her back to your beasts."

His fingers began to snap against his belt.

"You have come to the wrong market here with your quams. I am captain here, and my word carries, subject only to Phoenice's nod. Do you hear that? Do you know too that I can have you tossed to those striped gate-keepers of mine for meddling in here without an invitation?" He looked at me sharp enough, but saw plainly that I was a stranger. "But perhaps you carry a name, my man, which warrants your impertinence?"

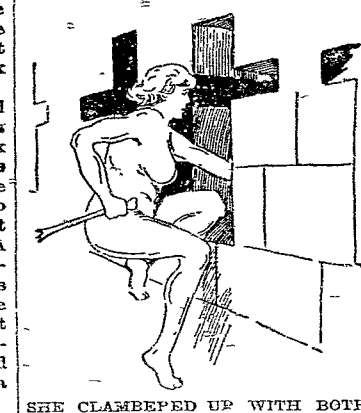

"Deucalion is my poor name," I said, "but I cannot expect you will know it. I am but newly landed here, sir, and when I left Atlantis some score of years back, a very different man to you held guard over these gates." He had his forehead on my feet of this time. "I had it from the empress this night, that she will tomorrow make a new sorting of this kingdom's dignities. Perhaps there is some recommendation you would wish me to lay before her in return for your courtesies?"

"My lord," said the man, "if you wish it, I can have a turn with those cave-tigers myself now, and you can look on from behind the walls and see them tear me."

"Why tell me what is no news?"

"I wish to remind my lord of his power; I wish to beg of his clemency."

"You showed your power to these poor prisoners; but, from what remains here to be seen, few of them have tasted much of your clemency."

SHE CLAMPEL UP WITH BOTH KNEES ON THE SILL.

The orders were, said the captain of the gate, as though he thought a word might be said here for his defense—"the orders were, my lord, that the tigers should be kept fierce and accustomed to kill."

"Then if you have obeyed orders, let me be the last to chide you. But it is my pleasure that this woman be respected, and I wish now to question her."

He turned to his feet again with obvious relief, though still bowing low.

"Then if my lord will honor me by sitting in my room that overlooks the outer gate, the favor will never be forgotten."

"Show the way," I said, and took the woman by the fingers, leading her gently. At the two ends of the circus the tigers prowled about on short chains growling and muttering.

We pressed through the door into the thickness of the outer wall, and the captain of the gate led us into his private chamber, a snug enough box overlooking the place beyond the city. He lit a torch from his lamp and thrust it into a bracket on the wall end, bowing deeply, and walking backwards, left us alone, closing the door in place behind him. He was an industrious fellow, this captain, to judge from the spoil with which his chamber was packed. There could have come very few traders in through that gate below with out his levying a private tribute, and so, judging that most of his goods had been unlawfully come by, I had little qualm at making a selection. It was not decent that the woman, being an Atlantean, should go bereft of the dignity of clothes, as though she was a mere savage from Europe, and so I sought about among the captain's spoil for garments that would be befitting.

But, as I busied myself in this search for raiment, rummaging among heaps and bales, with a hand and eye little skilled in such business, I heard a sound behind which caused me to turn my head, and there was the woman with a dagger she had picked from the floor, in the act of drawing it from the sheath.

She caught my eye and drew the weapon clear, but seeing that I made no advance towards her, or move to protect myself, waited where she was, and presently was took with a shuddering.

Suburban News.

Farmers' institute at Farmington Feb. 11.

Chicken thieves are doing fowl deeds around Trenton roads.

Will Sutherland of South Lyon is suffering a badly lacerated arm as the result of the breakage of one of the pulleys in the factory where he was at work.

A card recently appearing in a Detroit paper read as follows: "August 9, my husband took out a policy and in less than a month he was drowned. I consider it a good investment."

Wait Derindinger of South Lyon entertained doubts as to whether his buzz saw was buzzing but a simple touch with his fingers upon the shiny steel relieved him of all doubts—and quite a portion of three fingers.

Dewey Ellis has rented the electric light plant from J. R. Blackwood and also the need grinding portion of the factory plant, and Dewey will now furnish the villagers light and the farmers feed from the same headquarters—South Lyon Excelsior.

The South Lyon Excelsior says an undertaker there has a new device for gently lowering caskets into graves and adds this touching invitation: "Persons requiring such services will do well to call and see him." That's all right, except that when a man requires "such services" he is not able to take part in the selection of devices at the like the Deetfield undertaker who once advertised "when you need a coffin call on me."

A Pontiac woman recently succumbed to the allurements of a circular sent out by one John F. Barrett of New York in which he described a get-rich-quick scheme of "beating the ponies." She confidently sent $50 to Barrett and that was the last she could hear of Barrett or cash. Unlike the majority of victims of that and kindred schemes she did not let the matter drop and charge the loss to the "experience fund" but persevered until the police had Barrett safely landed in jail—Milford Times.

But for a lucky chance discovery there might have been a railroad wreck of more or less magnitude here in Milford Tuesday morning. Elton VanLentven happened to notice a track gauge resting on the rails. His first impulse was to remove it but he thought it might be serving some useful purpose so he reported at once to the depot. Both morning trains were then due and not having time to do otherwise, Mr. Bull telephoned Mr. Weaver to remove the obstruction. Just as Mr. Weaver went out of the back door to his store the train whistled. It happened to be the train from the south, however, and the stop at the depot gave him time enough to get to the track and get the tool on the rails. If it had been the train from the north that came first it is hard to tell what the result would have been—Milford Times.

A Profitable Investment

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Sonerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food you don't have to digest. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. —Murdoch Bros.

Rome Now a Healthy City.

In view of the fact that Rome now has good water, and that malaria does not occur within a five or six kilometers of the city, a deputation of hotel keepers recently called on the Minister of the exterior to ask it means could not be taken to persuade travelers and guide-book makers to drop the antiquated talk about Rome being an unhealthy city to live in.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. ## Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

"The Night of the Fourth." Mathews & Bulger's merry musical farce comes to the Lyceum Theatre Jan. 26. Probably no musical comedy has been presented for years that is so full of merit and replete with good solid up-to-date comedy as their latest offering. The story is funny and well told; the music is far above the kind that is generally found. The scenery is beautiful—and the supporting company surrounding the stars is exceptionally good. Distinct individual hits are made by each member.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

"The Village Parson" will enact his life's story to all who may flock to the Whitney Opera House where the company begins an engagement for one week starting Jan. 26. In this production there is much religious and dramatic emotion and the piece is remarkably clean and lofty in detail. Church people who sneeze at the stage would do well to see "The Village Parson" and learn therefrom the art of forbearance and true Christianity. Every one of the five acts has a touching climax that brings copious tears.

Beards for German Navy.

Emperor William has recently issued an order authorizing officers of the navy to wear beards. This is construed as a hint for all officers to do so, as it often pleases his eccentric majesty to indicate his wishes indirectly in such a manner. Hence every naval officer has put away his razor and allows the hair to grow on his face. The military officers still adhere to the imperial form of mustache.—Correspondent Chicago Record-Herald.

Altogether, then, there are 220,000 persons engaged in the public service in all its ramifications at home and abroad.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phoebe Cherley, of Peterborough, N. H., "and a lame back, pained me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and although 73 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." ## Devoured by Wolves.

Edward Connors was devoured by a pack of wolves a few days ago in the Gathen district in Canada. He had left the camp near Bart Lake in the evening and gone back for his ax to have it ground for the next day's work. A party started to look for the missing man, and had not gone far before it became evident that the worst fears had been realized. The hungry animals had overpowered the poor fellow and literally torn him to pieces. His boots and clothing, torn to shreds and soaked with blood, alone being found.

About two years ago an immense whale was driven ashore on the coast of Norway. It yielded bone and oil worth $12,500, and in honor of the find a banquet was given inside the body, which, after the removal of the blubber, afforded ample sitting room for thirty guests.

Wings for Human Belongs.

In 1273 Friar Bacon predicted that flying would "shortly" become a general practice, and Bishop Wilkins in 1652 said "It will yet be as usual to hear a man call for his wings when he is going on a journey as it is now to hear him call for his boots."

The first agricultural exhibition held within the limits of the United States is said to have been organized and carried to a successful conclusion at Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, in 1810. This claim is disputed, various towns and counties in New England asserting that agricultural fairs or exhibitions were held in them at an earlier date.

Toronto Insists Upon a Recount.

To keep up its American flavor Toronto refuses to abide by the census recently gathered by the government, and insists upon a recount as it was largely underrated last summer. This census returned 207,000 inhabitants. This is about 50,000 less than the Torontonians feel is their due, and they will not be satisfied until another enumeration sets the matter right.
