VILLAGE ELECTION WAS A MIXTURE

A PORTION OF EACH TICKET WAS ELECTED.

Only 340 Good Ballots in All Were Cast.

The day of the annual village election has once more come and gone and new officers to guide the municipal ship have been chosen by the people. Monday was an ideal day and while a lot of work was done by a number of the candidates there was an unusually small vote cast. There were 552 voters registered, fifty of whom were new names, and yet only 340 votes were polled, that number being ten less than last year.

The strife seemed to center on the clerk and trustees and in the wind up the Workingmen's ticket captured the clerkship (Murdock) and two trustees (Phillips and Harmon) and the Citizens' ticket won the balance.

The following were elected—
President—Dr. R. M. Johnson
Trustees—M. F. Stanley, William Phillips, F. S. Harmon
Clerk—Thos. Murdock
Treasurer—Ralph Pomeroy
Assessor—C. A. Sessions

The result makes a good lot of business men on the council and there is every reason to believe that the tax-payers may look forward to a business administration that will tend towards economy. During the last term Dr. Johnson has made a good presiding officer and his experience of the past year will tend to it him to still better cope with the many problems that are bound to come up from time to time.

MICHIGAN PRESS

Annual Association Meeting Held in Detroit This Week.

Michigan editors from hamlet, village, town and city, gathered in Detroit Wednesday to discuss ways and means for making their loads a little lighter and incidentally to have a few quiet hours of entertainment at the expense of their friends. Several hundred knights of the paste pot and shears were in attendance.

The Fellowship club was thrown open for the use of the visitors and all their trials and tribulations were aired there. After the business session, Wednesday the beautiful home of James E. Scripps was thrown open for a big reception followed in the evening by a theatre party at the Lyceum. Thursday afternoon the Temple theatre treated the editors to high class vaudeville and Fred Postal fed the inner man in the evening.

The serious part of the proceedings was a lot of interesting papers by members of the press on how to be happy though poor.

LAMP EXPLODED.

Ishpeming Woman Burned to Death— Four Others Injured.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 13.—A lamp exploded Tuesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Marie Rankson, in this city.

Her daughter, aged 38 years, was burned to death, and the mother and three sons more or less seriously burned, though all will recover.

The blaze was extinguished without much damage to the house and without the aid of the fire department.

Four More Bodies Found.

Negaunee, Mich., March 13.—The bodies of four of the 10 victims of the Negaunee mine disaster of Jan. 17 were recovered Wednesday morning. Some of the other bodies are in view of the workmen, and it is expected that all will be brought to the surface within the next 24 hours. The bodies are mutilated beyond recognition. General Manager Thomas F. Cole of the Oliver Iron Co. is at the mine assisting Capt. James Piper in the direction of the work. The drift where the bodies are is in a treacherous condition, as more or less quicksand is coming in right along. One of the bodies was found in upright position.

Old Rugby Teacher Dead.

J. W. Vecqueray, who had been for nearly forty-three years master of "modern languages at Rugby, the famous English boys' school, died a short time ago in his seventy-sixth year. He discharged his duties up to the end of last term and was present at the closing exercises. Many generations of old Rugby students mourn his death.

ANOTHER PIONEER

George Wilcox Died Early Tuesday Morning.

George Wilcox, one of the early pioneers of this town, died at his Cady street home here early Tuesday morning of kidney trouble with which he had been afflicted for some years but which had apparently reached a dangerous state only within the past few days. He was 74 years of age last August and with the exception of some eight years spent in Saginaw, he had lived in or near this village all his life. For some years Mr. Wilcox was in the shoe business here occupying the store now used by Mr. Sessions for the same business. He was a man who was looked upon with much respect by everyone. He was an obliging neighbor, a kind father and a loyal upright citizen. Mr. Wilcox leaves besides the widow (his second wife) four children: Ella, Jones, Fred and David.

The funeral occurred from the late home yesterday, Rev. W. S. Jerome officiating.

NORTHVILLE BOY'S FINE WAR RECORD

WHEN HE OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN IN THE HOSPITAL

Frank Lewis Fought and Marched in the Philippine War.

Dr. Thos. Bath, Act. Asst. Surgeon U. S. A. in the Philippines and surgeon in the regiment in which Sergt. Frank Lewis of this place served with such gallantry, sends the following letter to Frank under date of March 4th.

Bloomington, Ill., March 4, 1902.
"This certifies that as Act. Asst. Surg. U. S. A. stationed at Narvaean, Luzon, P. I., I personally treated Corporal, afterward Sergeant, Frank Lewis, Co. H., 33 U. S. V. Inf., for the disease commonly known in the P. I. as "Tropic Ulcers" during the period of Feb. 1900 to Feb. 1901. Said Sergt. Lewis' both legs were affected by the tropic ulcers, especially the left being incurable during my station. Sergt. Lewis was many times unfit for duty by reason of the same and many times performed arduous marches when he should have been in the hospital. In justice to Sergt. Lewis I will say he was one of the most soldierly and honorable non-commissioned officers it has ever been my pleasure to meet.

THOMAS W. BATH, M. D.,
Act. Asst. Surg. U. S. A.

It will be remembered that Frank recently underwent the amputation of his leg as a result of the disease referred to in Dr. Bath's letter. Frank is still confined to the bed, but is slowly on the gain.

Lost-Both His Feet.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 13.—Vern E. Vidrig of Olivet had both feet taken off above the ankles last night while stealing a ride on a Grand Trunk freight car from Olivet to this city. The train broke in two three miles east of this city at the exact point where Vidrig stood on the bumpers. The trainmen brought him to this city and he was taken to the Nichols hospital, where Dr. Palmer amputated his legs above the ankles. Eaton Thornton, Vidrig's companion, received severe bruises about the hips and head. Both boys are sons of well-to-do farmers living near Olivet station. Vidrig is 17 and Thornton 21.

Horton Wants Advice.

Adrian, Mich., March 13.—George B. Horton of Fruit Ridge has invited a large number of his friends, prominent in the councils of the republican party in Lenawee county, to meet him here on Friday afternoon to consult on the advisability of his announcing his candidacy for governor. The republicans of the county will be in the city Friday in large numbers to attend the banquet of the Lenawee County Lincoln and McKinley Republican club, and there will undoubtedly be a large number of them present at the conference.

Khaki Uniforms in Africa.

The British government has resolved to dispense with khaki in the British army at the close of the campaign in South Africa. It was originally intended to supply each man with a khaki working dress in addition to his regimental uniform, but it has now been decided to adopt a drab mixture for the working costume of the soldier.

THE PERRINSVILLE MURDER CASE

IS NOW ON IN THE CIRCUIT COURT AT DETROIT.

George Cooper Charged With the Murder of His Wife.

The jury to try the case of the Peo ple vs. George Cooper, charged with murdering his wife in June last in Perrinsville, Nankin township, was impaneled late Monday afternoon and is made up of all city men with three exceptions.

On June 23, 1901, the body of Cooper's wife was found badly mangled in the cellar of his home. The woman had been dead some time when the body was found, and Cooper's theory was that she fell downstairs and fatally injured herself. An inquest was held and developed testimony that led to Cooper's being sent for trial on charge of murder.

Mine Accident Kills Two Men.

Greensburg, Pa., March 13.—Two men were instantly killed and four others badly injured in a mine accident at the Occola works last evening. The dead are: Leo Hogdon, 35 years old, married and leaves six children; George E. Deemer, 32 years old and single. The injured will all recover. The men were working near the mouth of the mine when a great mass of slate fell upon them.

Indian's Horrible Crime.

Windrow, Ariz., March 13.—A son of Indian Jim, a full-blooded Sioux living a few miles from Windrow, rode into town yesterday and reported that his father had killed his mother and two little sisters, beating them to death with a club. A posse left for the scene of the crime at once and found the three bodies. Indian Jim had fled to the broken country.

MICHIGAN'S EDITORS MEET.

Detroit is Entertaining One Hundred of the Scribes.

Detroit, Mich., March 13.—With the idea of combining business with pleasure, about 100 members of the Michigan Press association, accompanied by their wives and daughters, are attending the thirty-fourth annual convention in this city.

At the opening session yesterday the visitors were welcomed by Mayor Maybury, who extended to the newspaper men and ladies the hospitality of Detroit.

President B. J. Lowrey of the Howard City Record gave a short address, stating the benefits to be derived from the annual meetings in broadening the views and adding information.

Then followed papers by George W. Minchen, of the Everett Review; on "The country newspaper of today and twenty years ago," and A. L. Bemis of the Carson City Gazette on "The advisability of yearly contracts with local advertisers."

The following committee on resolutions was appointed by the president: Perry F. Powers, W. P. Nisbett and L. A. Sherman. The committee on new business is composed of C. N. Newell, J. N. McCall and F. D. Elmer.

A resolution was adopted unanimously requesting the delegates of the Michigan Press association to use every effort to secure the election of F. R. Gilson of Benton Harbor as first vice-president of the National Editors' association, which meets at Hot Springs on April 15. The selection of the delegates to this convention was postponed until today.

The newspaper men and their ladies at 5 o'clock were conveyed in three special cars, including the new observation car Yolande, to the residence of James E. Scripps at 508 Trumbull avenue, where they were tendered a reception and dinner on behalf of the Evening News association.

One on Kipling.

Rudyard Kipling says that he was once presented to a young lady who almost immediately began to whimper, and whose eyes were so full of tears that he felt compelled to ask if she were ill or if anything were the matter. Looking at him between her sobs the disappointed maiden broke out: "Oh, I thought you were so tall and so handsome!"

The Present Medical Laws.

In scaling of the enactment by the last legislature of a law shutting out a lot of "easy" medical college graduates from other states from practicing medicine in Michigan and compelling non-graduates of un reputable colleges from practicing without passing an examination before the state board, the Courier says:

"That it effectively did this is evident, but as no enactment is wholly perfect the law may in its stringency have shut out some qualified men also. It seems unjust to speak of such men as quacks, because they failed to register, in time, or pass the examination of the medical board. It also seems unjust to set up so high a standard as to rule out reputable (chartered) colleges of medicine some of which are in our own state."

The Record does not believe that too stringent laws along that line can be enacted and seemingly too high a standard cannot be maintained. Physicians who come up to the very highest standard possible to conceive are still none too good to deal with human life. The Record does not believe, however, that a doctor because he violates the so called ethics of the profession by advertising or by going from town to town as a specialist is by any means necessarily entitled to the term "quack," but it fails to see how any person calling himself a physician can reasonably object to the present medical laws, the aim of which is only to throw a still better "protecting arm" about the people. Any person disqualified from practicing because of the act referred to can easily go before the state medical board and by passing a satisfactory examination will be given a certificate permitting him to practice. A man who cannot pass such an examination can hardly be said to be a safe man to deal out medicine.

The Record believes that the people of Northville will realize their expectations that the new council will give the best administration the village has had in years, and that its electric light and water works plants will be put on a basis that will furnish a goodly sized revenue to the village and that taxes will be reduced and business enterprises encouraged. The old council has done well—no one can reasonably criticize their work—those who retire do so with an assurance of the public's appreciation of their services.

If Prince Henry had been steered up against a few of the industries of the country instead of so many banquet halls he might have carried home a more valued (for the U. S.) opinion than he did. The iron mills of Pittsburgh, the cotton factories of Massachusetts, the stock yards of Chicago and mines of Michigan and Colorado are only a few of the many things that were missed, in the rapid pace set "to show Henry the town."

The question is can Prince Henry remember what he saw.

Must Look Out for Herself.
"No," Mr. Coldrock said, gently, "I have not the slightest objection to your asking my daughter in marriage."

"Thank you, sir," said the young man with a title but no cash.
"You go right ahead and ask her," Goldrock said, meditatively. "I have given the girl a fine education and have taught her to read the newspapers. If she does not know enough to say 'No' she doesn't deserve any better luck."—N. Y. Times.

His Life Not a Failure.
"It very seldom happens," said Hamlet Horatio Jones, "that we are permitted to adopt the career for which we are ambitious in youth. I always wanted to be a comedian instead of a tragedian, and make people laugh."
"Dear me," said the sympathetic young girl, "you ought not to be so disappointed. I am sure you make people laugh very often as it is."—Tit-Bits.

Forgot Her Prayers.
A four-year-old girl was spending a night away from home. At bedtime she knelt at her hostess' knee to say her prayers, expecting the usual prompting. Finding Mrs. B. unable to help her out, she continued thus: "Please God, excuse me; I can't remember my prayers, and I am staying with a lady that don't know any."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Both Girls Happy.
"How is your daughter Edith, Mrs. Lakeside?"
"She is well and happy. You know she is to be married on the 20th."
"Indeed. And how is your other daughter, Florence?"
"She is also well and happy. You know she got a divorce on the 10th."—Washington Times.

His Trouble.
"I'd propose to that girl if it weren't for one thing."
"What's that?"
"She isn't built on the right plan. My last fiancée was a good deal smaller, and the ring that she returned never would fit this one. To propose to her would be an excusable extravagance."—Chicago Post.

Practical Use.
"Oh, for some more ancestors!" sighed the new wife.
"That's all right," assured her husband, "we have enough to enter the exclusive set."
"Both the exclusive set? I want a few more portraits to hide those grease spots on the parlor paper."—Chicago Daily News.

A Sensitive Soul.
"I suppose even you have said things you regretted," said the man with a hasty temper.
"That isn't the point at all," answered Mr. Meekton. "I have been trying to figure out whether I ever said anything that I didn't regret."—Washington Star.

A Society Lady.
"And so you're married, Jack," said dear old Aunt Polly. "I hope she is a good housewife."
"Well," replied Jack Ritchie, "she's been a good fashionable hotel wife most of the time since our wedding."—Philadelphia Press.

Information Cheerfully Given.
Inquiring Philosopher—To what do you attribute the increasing number of old maids in this section?
Astute Native—I couldn't quite say, but seems to me as if it might be due to the increasing number of old bachelors about here."—N. Y. Weekly.

But woman—wants it all, you know.
—Puck.

Like Master Like Dog.
Mrs. Bill—I understand that's a smart dog your husband's got; that he'll do just what his master does.
Mrs. Jill—Yes; he's growling about the house from morning until night.—Yonkers Statesman.

'Twas Novel at Least.
Employer—What's new?
Clerk—Nothing, sir. But I am very busy this week.
Employer—Well, that's new, isn't it?—N. Y. Times.

An Exception to the Rule.
"A man shouldn't propose by letter, anyhow!"
"No; at any rate, not unless he's the right man!"—Puck.

A GREAT INVENTION.

So Scientists Speak of the Hewitt Electric Lamp.

Rich Young New Yorker Has Outdone the Efforts of Edison and Tesla—Light That Is as Cheap as Kerosene.

Once in awhile it is given to the sons of the rich to ride out of the ranks and to distinguish themselves in the field of might. Quite recently it was young Vanderbilt inventing a locomotive. Just now it is Cooper Hewitt, of New York, giving the world a new light. His case is even more spectacular than that of Vanderbilt, for the effects of his invention will be more far-reaching.

It is now more than four years since Peter Hewitt Cooper began his experiments in Madison Square garden. He opened his laboratory in the tower of the garden, just one floor under the gilded statue of Diana. The very prominence of the situation lent it a certain obscurity. He wished not to be disturbed and no one would think of looking for the workshop of a scientist in the same building that harbored horse shows, cycle meets and spectacle plays. He labored with that chimera, which sponser or later claims the attention of all scientific men—the production of light without heat. He studied the work of Tesla, of Edison, of Crookes. He followed their lead and having tested their experiments he soon made up his mind that they had not reached the uttermost limits of this department of electrical research. He was young and time was no object. He had abundant means, so money did not count. Occasionally the societies heard of him when he told of certain progress he had made. To his friends he was a promising young scientist, who might do something some day.

The "some day" came with the new year. On the evening of Friday, the 3d of January, passersby in front of the meeting hall of the New York Society of Mechanical Engineers saw what appeared to be a column of light extending up and down the house front. The light came from a glass tube and it made the street nearly as light as day for a hundred feet in every direction. It was the invention of young Peter Cooper Hewitt. The meeting hall of the building was lighted by four other tubes similar to the one in front and the inventor was even then within explaining to the society members the nature of his discovery. The four tubes which hung in the hall illuminated it with a brilliancy equal to 500 candle power, and photographs of the assembled members were taken with the new light.

The Hewitt lamp, however, is so thoroughly adapted to present day conditions that no special wiring is required, no special dynamo is necessary to operate it. It may be attached to any incandescent light circuit now in use and it will glow as readily as an Edison lamp, only with many times the brilliancy. And yet the perfected lamp is such a simple affair that one wonders some of the brainy men of the scientific world have not hit upon the idea long ago. It is actually a fact that many of them not only experimented with this style of lamp, but even tried lamps of the very size, shape and contents of those used by Mr. Hewitt and failing to produce the desired effect, discarded the idea as impossible. The lamps used by Mr. Hewitt are in the shape of glass tubes, from one to ten feet long and from one to four inches thick. There is a small amount of mercury in each tube and the current acting on the mercury generates a gas which yields an intense white light. It is only necessary to attach a tube to an ordinary incandescent lamp circuit and it will light up. Mr. Hewitt encountered the same difficulties as the other scientists.

The tubes would not light up at first, but he thought there must be some underlying principle which, could he but discover it, would solve the difficulty. He finally put it to the test of mathematics and worked it out algebraically, just as Prof. Pupin worked out the principle of ocean telephony. It took him four years, but the result was triumph, for the tube lighted up in the end.

Colds in the Head.
An Austrian scientist has discovered that a cold in the head is due to the presence in the membrane of a special bacillus, which he has called the micrococcus catarrhalis.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Its Significance Explained by John A. Kasson, Ex-Minister to the German Court.

John A. Kasson, the only living ex-minister to Germany, discussing the visit of Prince Henry to this country, has said:

"The visit is significant in that it marks a purpose on the part of his imperial majesty the German emperor to signalize his friendly feeling for the United States."

"There is a growing commercial rivalry between the Americans and the Germans. They are close competitors in many markets, and it is a matter of common knowledge that ill-advised utterances of hasty and irresponsible writers and speakers have at times tended to sharpen this competition.

HON. JOHN A. KASSON (Only Living Ex-Minister to the Court of Germany.)

"By this visit of Emperor William's brother an epoch of courteous and amicable endeavor is inaugurated. It will be impossible hereafter to charge any animosity to the German government on account of the natural striving of the German people to excel in their commercial enterprises."

"It has become the custom of governments in Europe to mark these visits of international cordiality by such visits. The compliment intended is not only directed to the president and his administration, but to the whole people of the United States. There is no doubt that Americans, without regard to party, will receive this visit in the same amicable spirit which made its conception possible. There is such a large percentage of the citizenship of this country of German extraction that a cordial reception was assured in any circumstances; but the fact that the whole people understand the chivalric intentions of the German emperor will add to the pleasure and cordiality incident to the entertainment of Prince Henry."

"I would not like to say more than that this visit will maintain a friendly international spirit, although it will in no wise restrict the mutual competitive efforts to master the markets of the world through excellence of product."

INDIANA MAN WANTED.

First Assistant Postmaster Generalship Offered to Harry S. New by the President.

Harry S. New, of Indianapolis, a member of the executive committee of the republican national committee, has been offered the place of first assistant postmaster general, to succeed William M. Johnson, of New Jersey, who has resigned. Mr. New is a native of Indianapolis, where he has been the publisher of the Indianapolis Journal for several years. He has been a member of the Indiana state senate since 1896, and served as a captain in the Seventh army corps during the Spanish war. Mr. New's work as a member of the republican national committee during the last campaign brought him the thanks of President McKinley and the present president for his valuable services to the republican party. The tender was made when Mr. New was in Washington several days ago, and at the president's request he is thinking it over. Mr. New is now in Indianapolis and declines to discuss the matter.

Vast Cave in Montana.
Montana's latest natural wonder is a vast cave, which has just been discovered about 50 miles east of Butte. A large river with a cataract of about 100 feet was explored for a distance of several miles without finding its source or outlet. A few articles of stone and copper utensils and some bones were picked up in one of the large apartments explored.

NOT PROPER PERSON

So Thinks Mayor Baum of Com. Gubtil.

HOT FIGHT IN SAGINAW

City's Mayor Wants to Oust the Police Commissioner—Does Not Like It Because He Lives in a Hotel.

Saginaw, Mich., March 11.—Mayor Baum's threat that he would bring the matter at issue between himself and Police Commissioner Gubtil before the common council brought a great crowd of citizens to the meeting last night. It was the better class of citizens, well-to-do people, but they were disappointed. Late in the afternoon City Attorney Nageley informed Mayor Baum that under the charter, Commissioner Gubtil could be removed only for malfeasance or misfeasance in office, and this is not charged.

Mayor Baum requested the resignation of Commissioner Gubtil last week but gave no reasons. When Mr. Gubtil demanded to know the reason, having called on the mayor, accompanied by his attorney, to make the demand, Mayor Baum stated it was not on account of official acts that he made the request, but because Mr. Gubtil, so the mayor is informed, had left his home and resided at the Bancroft hotel. Mayor Baum reiterated this statement in an interview, saying openly that he was being snowed with letters from prominent citizens, and that people were calling upon him at his office complaining that Mr. Gubtil was not a proper person to be police commissioner.

"I appointed him a year ago," said the mayor. "He is a republican, but the board is non-partisan, and I had to appoint a republican. He is a retired lumberman, very well connected by marriage, and I supposed he was a public-spirited citizen, anxious to do the best he could for the welfare of the city. Then some months later complaints began to come to me. I do not think his manner of living is any more consistent with his being police commissioner than it would be with his being a Sunday school superintendent, so I asked him to resign, and I shall bring it before the council in some way as soon as the city attorney advises me how."

Mr. Gubtil intends to make it hot for his enemies and denies that there is anything either in his public or private life to cause the mayor to demand his resignation. As to exposing rottenness, he believes that when he draws the veil from the lives of his enemies they will be glad to cease their assaults upon him.

KELLOGG FAVORS NILES.

Possibility of That City Getting Battle Creek's Sanitarium.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—A gentleman from Battle Creek unofficially representing Dr. Kellogg, the superintendent of the burned Battle Creek sanitarium, has arrived here to confer with the Business Men's association, with a view to agreeing upon terms to rebuild the big sanitarium in Niles. Millionaire Charles A. Chapin of Chicago offered the sanitarium officials a fine piece of property known as Chapin's park, situated within the corporate limits of the city, and valued at $25,000, as a site for the institution. The city will add a substantial bonus. Dr. Kellogg said last night: "Battle Creek offers us no special inducements, and I admire the railway facilities Niles enjoys as well as its natural beauty and healthful climate. I hope to close the deal."

Mr. Chapin said: "It's almost too good to be true. I'll gladly give my park. A grander site it would be hard to find."

DIDN'T COMMIT THEMSELVES.

Jury Did Not Say Klump Killed His Wife.

Lowell, Mich., March 12.—The coroner's inquest here yesterday failed to develop any new features in the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. William E. Klump, who died Sunday from the effects of a poisoned headache powder. After hearing the evidence of the chemist who analyzed the powder, and that of several women who were present at the Klump home on the day of the woman's death, the jury retired and brought in the following verdict:

"Mrs. Ada Klump came to her death from strychnine, sent Mrs. Klump through the mail by persons unknown, the envelope containing it being delivered to her by her husband."

The authorities are still holding Klump, and report one new development in the discovery of the mysterious "J. Portmus" who accompanied Klump on his trip to Grand Rapids two weeks ago. A deputy has been sent to effect the man's arrest.

A JOKE ON MORSE

Game Warden Was Arrested in Kalamazoo.

IN JAIL SEVERAL HOURS

Few Drinks on Empty Stomach Upset Him—Was Searching for His Son—Woman in Three Rivers Furnishes Information.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 13.—State Game and Fish Warden Grant M. Morse of Portland was an inmate of the Kalamazoo jail for several hours yesterday on the charge of drunkenness. Morse arrived in Kalamazoo Wednesday morning searching for his son, who mysteriously disappeared from the Michigan Agricultural college recently. He came to Kalamazoo, thinking perhaps he might be able to obtain some clue to the boy's whereabouts. He had had no breakfast, was tired, he said, and took a few drinks, which, owing to the condition of his stomach, he said, went quickly to his head and considerably confused him.

Morse was arrested by a policeman who did not know the state game warden from any other citizen who might have had too much to drink. He quickly gathered in his wardenship and hurried him off to jail, where he remained until 3 p. m., when he was released by orders of Chief Greenfield.

Morse's identity was not discovered until some time after he had been arrested, but as soon as it was really known who he was, there was some talk of hustling him and the prisoner soon released. Deputy Game Warden Brodke being very active in behalf of his chief.

Lansing, Mich., March 13.—Game Warden Morse has employed Detective Abels of this city to institute a search for his son, Leon Morse, who disappeared from the Agricultural college a fortnight ago. The only clue thus far obtained came Tuesday in the form of a letter from a woman in Three Rivers, who informed the father that a young man closely resembling the description of his son applied at her home for something to eat last week Friday. Investigation showed that the woman was entirely reputable and Warden Morse has gone to Three Rivers to follow up the clue.

Defaulter Thompson Arrested.

Port Huron, Mich., March 13.—The climax in the defalcation of C. D. Thompson, formerly supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent, Macabees of the world, came at noon yesterday, when Thompson was arrested on nine counts. He was arraigned before Judge Wagner, and refused to plead. Bail was fixed at $5,000, with two sureties, Frank J. Hays, a lumberman, and Frank J. Haslett, a tailor. Neither Macabees officials nor the supreme tent have had anything to do with Mr. Thompson's arrest, as the complaint was made by Sheriff Harrison W. Manes, to Prosecuting Attorney Cady, and the arrest and credit for the same belongs to them. The Macabees officials have been scored for their laxity in the matter, but Tuesday Manes made the complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Cady on information and belief. Several days ago a subpoena was issued for George J. Siegle, supreme record keeper, and he brought his books and testified under oath before Judge Wagner, and it was on the information secured from this source that Sheriff Manes made his complaint.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

[By the Pastor]

The pledges for Home Missionary Synodical Self-Support are now payable.

Mrs. Jerome's class will study about the first Gentile convert next Sunday.

The sermon next Sunday evening will be on "Some Moral Difficulties of the Old Testament."

The 2nd Division of the Ladies' Aid society gave a successful supper and entertainment in the rink Tuesday evening. In spite of the unfavorable weather the receipts were about $20.

On Wednesday next the last missionary meeting of the year will be held at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Jerome. A large attendance of the ladies of the church and congregation is especially urged, as election of officers for the coming year, also the election of a delegate to the Presbyterian meeting at Milford and other important business is to come before the society.

Sunday evening the Woman's Missionary society held their annual prayer service in the church, a departure from the usual week-day afternoon service. The singing by the ladies quartet and chorus choir was appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. Cranson's beautiful solo with Mrs. Merritt's violin obligato accompanied by Mrs. Lapham on the organ was much appreciated. Mrs. Knapp gave an interesting review of the year, tourfully referring to the dear ones who had passed away—Mrs. Dunbar, Mrs. White, Miss Clarkson and others. Miss Carolyn Babbitt's recitation, a leaflet read by Miss Evelyn Bryant, Mrs. Jerome's address and the exercises from the little band of Juniors under Miss Bryant's care made an interesting and profitable service. The offering was about $35.

A Business Change.

I have bought the entire Grocery Stock, Furniture and Fixtures and Restaurant of J. F. Perry & Co., Northville, Mich., and will close-out the Grocery Stock commencing TO-DAY at a very low price. It will pay anyone to buy goods to last from three to six months. Lots of the goods will be sold for less than they can be bought for at wholesale to-day.

I expect to re-arrange the store and be ready by the first of May to run a First-Class Restaurant and Serve Meals and Luncheon at all hours of the day.

Baptist Church Notes.

[By the Pastor]

"Unconscious Weakness of Character" and "The Thirsting Christ" will be the pastor's themes for next Sunday.

We expect all the soliciting for church beneficence for the year 1902 will be completed this week. We wish to make as good showing as possible this year and look for larger offerings than were received last year.

The missionary tea held at Mrs. VanZile's Wednesday afternoon was a decided success. The field secretary, Miss Cooper of Detroit, and the associational president, Mrs. Wilbur of Novi, accompanied by her sister from Farmington, being present. The program and refreshments were delightful and the attendance good. Mission circle interests here are certainly on the increase.

The B. Y. P. U. and Mrs. Thrasher's Sunday-school class presented Mrs. Thrasher with some beautiful flowers this week. Others have remembered her with flowers and dainties to tempt the appetite. These kind remembrances have aided in whiling away her days of enforced inactivity.

Stout Gent—Well, sir, I'm a self-made man. I began life as a barefooted boy. Thin Gent—Well, as far as I can make out I wasn't born with shoes on, either.

Salem News.

Mrs. John B. Waterman, aged 73 years, died suddenly at her late home about noon Tuesday. She had never recovered from the severe illness she suffered last autumn, but had been able these last months to be about her home and go out now and then among friends and to the services of the church that she loved so much.
She was able to attend the recent semi-centennial of the church of which she was a charter member.
Her parents, Deacon Daniel Pomeroy and wife, were natives of Massachusetts and came to Michigan in 1840.
She married John B. Waterman in April 1853 and their home has been continuously in Salem. Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Henry Hutton, of Ludington and three sons, Dr. G. A. Waterman of Lansing and Frank and Dewey of Salem, two brothers, Geo. Pomeroy of South Haven, Mich., and Alfred
B. of Topeka, Kansas, and one sister,
Mrs. Mary P. Johnson of Northville.
Ralph Pomeroy, son of the late Augustus Pomeroy of Northville is her nephew. The church in Mrs.
Waterman's death loses one of its conspicuous members, the community one of its best friends and neighbors and her family a most devoted and affectionate wife and mother.

insurance and loan agent of Macomb,
Ill. "Before using Kodol Dyspepsia
Cure she could not eat an ordinary meal without intense suffering. She is now entirely cured. Several physicians and many remedies had failed to give relief. You don't have to diet but any good food you want, but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspep-

A Severe Cold for Three Months.

The following letter from A. J.
Nusbaum of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story: "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar and eight doses cured me." Refuse substitutes. Mur-

Said Little Socrates.

"Some generous person," said little Socrates Bulfinch of Boston, "has been kind enough to send me a copy of Mother Goose's lyrics for Christmas.
Do you know, the theory that a representative of the bovine genus at one time leaped over the chief luminary of the night leads to some interesting calculations as to the muscular development of the cows of that time. I have ascertained that they must have been endowed with strength proportionate to that of the flea of the present day."

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat;
and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor, too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take
Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: overwork and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can;
but, whether you can or not,
take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however;
you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it,
take no other.
If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

The Lost Continent

By CUTCLIFFE HYNE.

Published by Harper & Bros.

Copyright, 1900, by Cutcliffe Hyne.

Still, as I say, the poor creatures were scattered, and the siege was raised, from that moment, and it was plain to see that the rebellion might be made to end if no unreasonable harshness was used for its final suppression. Too great severity, though perhaps it may be justly their portion, only drives such malcontents to further desperations.

Now following up these fugitives to make sure that there was no halt in their retreat, and to send the lesson of panic thoroughly home to them, had led us a long distance from the city walls, and as we had fought all through the burning heat of the day and my men were heavily wearied, I decided to halt where we were for the night among some half-ruined houses which would make a temporary fortification. Fortunately a drove of little cloven-hoofed horses which had been seized by some of the rebels in their flight happened to blunder into our lines, and as we killed five before they were clear again, there was a soldier's supper for us, and quickly the fires were lit and cooking it.

Sentries paced the outskirts and made their cries to one another, and the wounded sat by the fires and dressed their hurts; and with the officers I talked over the engagements of the day, and the methods of each charge, and the other details of the fighting. It is the special privilege of soldiers to dally over these matters with gusto, though they are entirely without interest for laymen.

The hour drew on for sleep, and snored went up from every side. It was clear that all my officers were wearied out, and only continued the talk through deference to their commander. Yet I had a feverish dread of being left alone again with my thoughts, and pressed them on with conversation remorselessly. But in the end they were saved the rudeness of dropping off into unconsciousness during my talk. A sentry came up and saluted. "My lord," he reported, "there is a woman come up from the city whom we have caught trying to come into the bivouac."

"How is she named?"
"She will not say."
"Has she business?"
"She will say none. She demands only to see my lord."

"Bring her here to the fire, I ordered, and then on second thoughts remembering that the woman, whoever she might be, had news likely enough for my private ear (or otherwise she would not have come to so uncouth a rendezvous), I said to the sentry: "Stay," and got up from the ground beside the fire, and went with him to the outer line.

"Where is she?" I asked.
"My comrades are holding her. She might be a witch belonging to these rebels, with designs to put a knife into my lord's heart, and then we sentries would suffer. The empress," he added, simply, "seems to set good store upon my lord at present, and we know the cleverness of her tormentors."

"Your thoughtfulness is frank," I said, and then he showed me the woman. She was muffled up in hood and cloak, but one who loved Nais as I loved could not mistake the form of mere swathing. So I told the sentries to release her without asking her for speech, and then led her out from the bivouac beyond earshot of his lines. "It is something of the most pressing that has brought you out here, Ylga?"
"You know me, then? There must be something warmer than the ordinary between us two, Deucalion, if you could guess who walked beneath all these muffings."

"Let that pass. But what's your errand, girl?"
"Aye," she said, bitterly, "there's my reward. All your concern for the message, none for the carrier. Well, good my lord, you are husband to the dainty Phoenice no longer."

"This is news."
"And true enough, too. She will have no more of you, divorces you, spurns you, thrusts you from her, and, after the first splutter of wrath is done, then come pains and penalties."

"The empress can do no wrong. I will have you speak respectful words of the empress."
"Oh, be done with that old tale! It sickens me. The woman was mad for love of you, and now she's mad with jealousy. She knows that you gave Nais some of your priest's magic, and that she sleeps till you choose to come and claim her, even though the day be a century from this. And if you wish to know the method of her enlightenment, it is simple. There is another air-shaft next the one down which you did your cooling and billing, and that leads to another cell in which lay another prisoner. The wretch heard all that passed, and thought to buy enlargement by telling it."

"But his news came a trifle stale. It seems that with the pressure of the morning's ceremonies they forgot to bring him a ration, and when at last his gaoler did remember him, it was rather late, seeing that by then Phoenice had tied herself publicly to a husband, and poor Nais had doubtless eaten her green drug. However, the fool must needs try and barter his tale for what it would fetch; and, as was natural, had such a silly head chopped off for his pains; and after that your Phoenice behaved as you may guess. And now you may thank me, sir, for coming to warn you not to go back to Atlantis."

"But I shall go back. And if the empress chooses to cut my head, also from its proper column, that is as the high gods will."

"You are more sick of life than I thought. But I think, sir, our Phoenice judges your case very accurately. It was permitted me to hear the outbursting of this lady's rage. 'Shall I hew off his head?' said she. 'Pah! Shall I give him over to my tormentors, and stand by while they do their worst?' He would not wrinkle his brow at their fiercest efforts. No; he must have a heavier punishment than any of these, and one also which will endure. I shall lop off his right hand and his left foot, so that he may be a fighting man no longer, and then—I shall drive him forth crippled into the dangerous lands, where he may learn fear. The beasts shall hunt him, the fires of the ground shall spoil his rest. He shall know hunger, and he shall breathe bad air. And all the while he shall remember that I have Nais near me, living and locked in her coffin of stone, to play with as I choose, and to give over to what insults may come to my fancy. That is what she said, Deucalion. Now I ask you again will you go back to meet her vengeance?"

"No," I said. "It is no part of my plan to be mutilated and left to live. 'So, being a woman of some sense, I judged. And, moreover, having some small kindness still left for you, I have taken it upon myself to make a plan for your further movement which may fall in with your whim. Does the name of Tob come back to your memory?"

"One who was captain of Tatho's navy?"

"That same Tob. A crafty, rude fellow, and smelling vile of tar, but seeming to have a sturdy honesty of his own. Tob sails away this night for parts unknown, presumably to found a kingdom with Tob for king. It seems he can find little enough to earn at his craft in Atlantis these latter days, and has scruples at seeing his wife and young ones hungry. He told me this at the harbor-side when I put my neck under the ax by saying I wanted carriage for you, sir; and so, having me under his thumb, he was perhaps more loose-lipped than usual. You seem to have made a fine impression on Tob, Deucalion. He said: 'I repeat his hearty respect—' you were just the recruit he wanted, but whether you joined him or not, he would go to the nether gods to do you service."

"By the fellow's side I gained some experience in fighting the greater sea beasts."

"Well, go and do it again. Believe me, sir, it is your only chance. It would grieve me much to hear the searing-iron hiss on your stumps. I bargained with Tob to get clear of the harbor forts before the dawn was up for the night, and as he is a very daring fellow, with no fear of navigating under the darkness, he himself said he would come to a point of the shore which we agreed upon, and there await you. Come, Deucalion, let me lead you to the place."

"My girl," I said. "I see I owe you many thanks for what you have done on my poor behalf."

"Oh, your thanks!" she said, "you may keep them. I did not come out here in the dark and the dangers for mere thanks, though I knew well enough there would be little else offered." She plucked at my sleeve. "Now show me your walking pace, sir. They will begin to want your countenance in the camp directly, and we need hanker after no too narrow inquiries for what's a'long."

So thereon we set off, Ylga and I, leaving the lights of the bivouac behind us, and she showed the way, while I carried my weapons ready to ward off attacks whether from beasts or from men. Few words were passed between us, except those which had concern with the dangers natural to the way. Once only did we touch one another, and that was where a tree-trunk bridged a rivulet of scalding water which flowed from a hot-spring towards the sea.

Presently, however, we came out through the trees, and the roughest part of our journey was done. We saw the ship riding to her anchors inshore a mile away, and a weird enough object she was under the faint starlight. We made our way to her along the level beaches.

Tob was keeping a keen watch. We were challenged the moment we came within stone or arrow shot, and bidden to halt and recite our business; but he was civil enough when he heard we were those whom he expected. He called a crew and slacked out his anchor-ropes till his ship ground against the shingle, and then thrust out his two steering-oars to help us clamber aboard.

I turned to Ylga with words of thanks and farewell. "I will never forget what you have done for me this night; and should the high gods see fit to bring me back to Atlantis and power, you shall taste my gratitude."

"I do not want to return. I am sick of this old life here."

"But you have your place in the city, and your servants and your wealth, and Phoenice will not disturb you from their possession."

"Oh, as for that, I could go back and be fan-girl to-morrow. But I do not want to go back."

"Let me tell you it is no time for a gently nurtured lady like yourself to go forward. I have been vicious of Yucatan, Ylga, and know somewhat of making a foothold in these new countries. And that was nothing compared with what this will be. I tell you it entails hardships and privations and sufferings which you could not guess at. Few survive who go to colonize in the beginning, and those only of the hardiest, and they earn new scars and new batterings every day."

"I do not care; and besides, I can share the work. I can cook; I can shoot a good arrow, and I can make garments—yes, though they were cut from the skins of beasts and had to be sewn with back-bone sinews. Because you despise fine clothes, and because you have seen me only decked out as fan-girl, you think I am useless. Bah, Deucalion! never let people prate to me about your perfections. You know less about a woman than a boy new from school."

"I have learned all I care to know about one woman, and because of the memory of her I could not presume to ask her sister to come with me now."

"Aye," she said, bitterly, "kick my pride. I knew well enough it was only second place to Nais I could get all the time I was wanting to come. Yet no one—but a boor would have reminded me of it. Gods! and to think that half the men in Atlantis have courted me, and now I am arrived at this!"

"I must go alone. It would have made me happier to take your esteem with me. But as it is, I suppose I shall carry only your hate."

SHE FLUNG HER ARMS AROUND MY NECK.

"That is the most humiliating thing of all; I cannot bring myself to hate you. I ought to, I know, after the brutal way you have scorned me. But I do not, and there is the truth. I seem to grow the fonder of you, and if I thought there was a way of keeping you alive and unharmed here in Atlantis, I do not think I should point out that Tob is tired of waiting, and will probably be off without you." She flung her arms suddenly about my neck and kissed me hotly on the mouth. "There, that is for good-by, dear. You see I am reckless. I care not what I do now, knowing that you cannot despise me more than you have done all along for my forwardness."

She ran back from me into the edge of the trees.

"But this is foolishness," I said. "I must take you through the dangers that lie between here and some gate of the city, and then come back to the ship."

"You need not fear for me. The unhappy are always safe. And, besides, I have a way. It is my solace to know that you will remember me now. You will never forget that kiss."

"Fare you well, Ylga," I cried. "May the high gods keep you entirely in their holy care."

But no reply came back. She had gone off into the forest. And so I turned down to the beach, and plashed into the water, and climbed on board the ship up the steering-oar. Tob gave the word to haul the anchor and get her away from the beach.

"Greeting, my lord," said he, "but I'd have been pleased to see you earlier. We've small enough force and slow enough heels in this vessel, and it's my idea that the sooner we're away from here and beyond the range of pursuit the safer it will be for my woman and brats, who are in that hutch of an aftercastle. It's long enough since I sailed in such a small, old-fashioned ship as this. She's no machines, and she's not even a steering manikin. Look at the meanness of her furniture, and (in your ear) I've suspicions that there's rottenness in her bottom. But she's the best I'd have means to buy, and if she reaches the place at the farther end I've got my eye on, we shall have to make a home there, or be content to die, for she'll never have strength to carry us farther or back. She's been a ship in the Egypt trade, and you know what that is for getting worm and rot in the wood."

"You'd enough hands for your scheme before I came?"

"Oh, yes. I've fifty stout lads, and eight women packed in the ship somehow, and trouble enough I had to get them away from the city. That thief of a port captain well-nigh skinned us clean before he could see it lawful that so many useful fighting men might go out of harbor. Times are not what they were, I tell you, and these trade's about done. All sailor men of any skill have taken a woman or two and gone out in companies to try their fortunes in other lands. Why, I'd trouble enough to get half a score to help me work this ship. All my balance are just landmen raw and simple, and if I land half of them alive at the other end, we shall be doing well."

"Still, with luck and a few good winds it should not take long to get across to Europe."

Tob slapped his leg. "No savage Europe for me, my lord. Now see the advantage of being a mariner. I found once some islands to the north of Europe, separated from the main by a strait, which I called the Tin Islands, seeing that tin ore litters many of the beaches. I was driven there by storm, and said no word of the find when I got back, and here, you see, it comes in useful. There's no one in all Atlantis but me knows of those Tin Islands to-day, and we'll go and fight honestly for our ground, and build a town and a kingdom on it."

"With Tob for king?"

"Well, I have figured it out as such for many a day, but I know when I meet my betters, and I'm content to serve under Deucalion. My lord would have done wiser to bring a wife with him, though, and I thought it was understood by the good lady that spoke to me down at the harbor, or I'd have mentioned it earlier. The savages in my Tin Islands go naked and stain themselves blue with woad, and are very filthy and brutish to look upon. They are sturdy, and should make good slaves, but one would have to get blunted in the taste before one could wish to be father to their children."

"I am still husband to Phoenice."

"Tob grinned. 'The gods give you joy of her. But it is part of a mariner's creed—and you will grow to be a mariner here—that wedlock does not hold across the seas. However, that matter may rest. But, coming to my Tin Islands again: they'll delight you. And I tell you, a kingdom will not be so hard to carve out as it was in Egypt, or as you found in Yucatan. There are beasts there, of course, and no one who can hunt need ever go hungry. But the greater beasts are few. There are cave bears and cave tigers in small numbers, to be sure, and some river horses and great snakes. But the greater lizards seem to avoid the land; and as for birds, there is rarely seen one that can hurt a grown man. Oh, I tell you, it will be a most desirable kingdom."

"Tob seems to have imagined himself king of the Tin Islands with much reality."

He sighed a little. "In truth I did, and there is no denying it; and I tell you plain, there is not another man living that I would have broken this voyage for but Deucalion. But don't think I regret it, and don't think I want to push myself above my place. This breeze and the ebb are taking the old ship finely along her ways. See those fire-buckets on the harbor forts? We're abreast of them in a w. We'll have dropped them and the city out of sight by daylight, and the flood will not begin to run up till then. Put I fear unless the wind hardens down with the dawn we'll have to bring up to an anchor when the flood makes. Tides run very hard in these narrow seas. Aye, and there are some shrewdish tide-rips round my Tin Islands, as you shall see when we reach them."

There were many fearful glances backward when day came and showed the waters, and the burning mountains that hemmed them in beyond the shores. All seemed to expect some navy of Phoenice to come surging up to take them back to servitude and starvation in the squalid wards of the city; and I confess ingeniously that I was with them in all truth when they swore they would fight the ship till she sank beneath them before they would obey another of the commands of Phoenice. However, their brave heroics were displayed to small purpose. For the full flow of the tide we hung in our place, barely moving past the land, but yet not seeing either oar or sail; and then, when the tide turned, away we went once more with speed, mightily comforted.

Tob's woman must needs bring drink on deck, and bid all poor babbons to her as a future queen. But Tob cuffed her back into the aftercastle, slamming to the hatch behind her heels, and bidding the crew send the liquor down their dusty throats. "We are done with that foolery," said he. "My Lord Deucalion will be long of this new kingdom we shall build in the Tin Islands, and a right proper king he'll make, as you untamed ones would know if you'd sailed the outer seas with him as I have done." Beneath which I read a regret, but said nothing, having made my plans from the moment of stepping on board, as will appear on a later sheet.

So on down the great estuary we made our way, and though it pleased the others on board when they saw that the seas were desolate of sails, it saddened me when I recalled how once the waters had been whitened with the glut of shipping.

They had started off on their voyage with a bare two days' provision in their equipment, and so, of necessity, even after leaving the great estuary, we were forced to voyage coastwise, putting in every likely river and sheltered beach to slay fish and meat for future victualing. "And when the winter comes," said Tob, "as its gales will be heavier than this old ship can stomach, I had determined to haul up and make a permanent camp ashore, and get a crop of grain grown and threshed before setting sail again. It is the usual custom in these voyages. And I shall do it still, subject to my lord's better opinion."

So here, having by this time completed a two-months' leisurely journey from the city, I saw my opportunity to speak what I had always carried in my mind. "Tob," I said, "I am a poor, weak, defenseless man, and I am quite at your mercy; but what if I do not voyage all the way to the Tin Islands and outst you of this kingship?"

He brightened perceptibly. "Aye," he grunted, "you are very weak, my lord, and mighty defenseless. We know all about that. But what's else? You must tell all your meaning plain. I'm a common mariner, and understand little of your fancy talk."

(To be continued next week).

Suburban News.

Milford went from "dry" to "wet" in Monday's election and South Lyon went from "wet" to "dry."

The back bone of the Ann Arbor newspaper trust has been broken, and hereafter all will race on the go-as-you-please plan.

Chas. B. Bullock, a former Milford boy, has been sentenced to be hanged at Ft. Saskatchewan, N.W.T., March 26 for the murder of Leon Stainton, a former Kalamazoo boy.

Jas. Slocum has disposed of his interest in the Flint Daily Globe. "Jim" has hustled things since he has been at Flint and has made the Globe one of the leading papers of the valley.

In speaking of the bath of a 100-pound baby at Farmington the enterpriser says "We would say to the Northville record that Dr. Hecolomb is authority for the weight of that child referred to last week."

A drug clerk was waiting on a "school marm" who was buying some school books. She asked for a copy of Steele's physics. The clerk looked blank but made a thorough search of all the shelves on the patent medicine row and then returned to the school marm and said, "I am sorry madam, but we have others just as good, however." "What are they," asked the teacher somewhat puzzled. "Well, there's sedlitz powders and epsom salts and castor oil—but the school marm had fled—E."

Waitney's Opera House—Detroit.

One of the most interesting plays of the present season will be seen at the Waitney Opera House when "The Gypsy Cross" is presented for one week commencing March 16th. This is a play of two continents and is intensely dramatic and full of that heart interest which attracts attention and tells a story without in the least going into social problems. The central character in the play is the Dutch Dancing Girl, played by Miss Alma Doerge, who has become one of the most gifted character actresses on the stage today.

Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

Starting with the evening performance of March 13th and Wednesday and Saturday matinees at the Lyceum Theatre the "Belle of New York" will appear for nine performances. This will be its first appearance in Detroit at popular prices, and many of the same cast will be seen on this occasion as when the "Belle of New York" last appeared at the Detroit Opera House. As this is the first big musical show at the Lyceum Theatre, it is doubtless if the Lyceum will hold the vast multitude that will welcome the "Belle of New York's" return to Detroit.

"PROVE A HALIBI SAMIVEL"

Readers of Pickwick Papers are familiar with the simple plan which the elder Mr. Weller suggested to Sam as a way to help Mr. Pickwick out of the breach of promise suit brought against him by the engaging Mrs. Bardell. According to the New York Sun, the alibi is again to become conspicuous, this time in a case of contemporaneous human interest and in involving more serious questions than those which were raised in fiction, to be decided by Sergeant Euzarone. The Sun says: "The gray-haired, will appear in an entirely new and unique role if, as is now intended, it is produced in court to establish an alibi for an accused murderer in Chicago. Louis G. Thoms, the purser of a steamboat, is charged with the murder of a young woman. Thoms says that on the night that the murder is alleged to have been committed, he was at the house of a friend, where he dictated a story to a graphophone, and investigation shows that one of the cylinders of the machine in question bears the record of his story. Apparently, therefore, all that is necessary to complete the alibi is to fix conclusively the time when the record was made."

PEOPLE WE KNOW.

They are Northville People, and What They Say is of Local Interest.

When an incident like the following occurs right here at home, it is bound to carry weight with our readers. So many strange occurrences go the rounds of the press, are published as facts, people become skeptical. On one subject skepticism is rapidly disappearing. This is due to the actual experiences of our citizens, and their public utterances regarding them. The doubter most doubt no more in the face of such evidence as this. The public statement of a reputable citizen living right here at home, one whom you can see every day, leaves no ground for the skeptic to stand on.

Mr. T. W. Wood, painter and paper hanger, of 37 Center St., says: "My wife and I are thoroughly convinced of the curative power of this popular remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, for we used them some years ago to backache and other kidney troubles. They acted very effectively and promptly, relieving the backache and the other annoyances. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine we ever used and we are pleased to testify to their merits." Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Northville. Call at Murdock Bros' drug store and ask them what their customers report.

Boys 700 Times an Hour.

When passing through the streets to perform some ceremony the King of England takes off his hat on an average of twelve times a minute, that is, the almost incredible number of 700 times an hour. The king requires a new brain to his hat every fortnight. Being very economical in his head-gear he does not buy a new hat every time the brim requires greasing.

"The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. DeWitt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. ## Conan Doyle's Activity.

Dr. Conan Doyle was born in 1859, and is a tall, heavily built man, whose open-air life is evidenced in his face. He may, perhaps, be best described as typically British. Before devoting himself entirely to writing Dr. Doyle had been a ship's doctor, a military doctor, a general practitioner in both town and country, and a specialist.

HIS SINS FORGIVEN.

Boss Shepherd's Return to Washington Pleases the People.

He Ran the Capital Three Years and Made a City of It—Congress Ousted Him in 1874 and He Went to Mexico.

"Boss" Shepherd is coming back to Washington. He has made a great fortune in the silver mines of Mexico, and returns to his native city to spend his remaining days in peace. He is 67 years of age, and enjoys the distinction of being the best loved and best hated man that the capital city ever knew.

Alexander H. Shepherd's name will live in history as the originator of the new Washington. After all his said and done, the work of the experts who have planned the future Washington as a city of delight had the basis of "Boss" Shepherd's work to go upon. That is how he derived his sobriquet of "boss." For three years he was the absolute ruler of Washington, and in that time spent $40,000,000 in making it what it is today.

Alexander H. Shepherd, says the Philadelphia Press, is a native of Washington. He was born in the "flats" January 13, 1835. His parents were in ordinary circumstances. His ancestors for 150 years had lived in this country; some of them fought in the revolutionary war. Shepherd himself was for a time a soldier in the late war. His father became well-to-do before his death, which enabled the boy to obtain a pretty fair education. He entered Columbian university. But the executor of the estate it is said stole the money and young Alexander started to learn a trade to help support the family. Then he became a shoe salesman and later learned to be a plumber and gas fitter. Within eight years of entering his apprenticeship he was a partner. Within the next 12 years he had built more than 400 houses in Washington.

His prominence in business led him into politics. He was a member of the board of common council of Washington before he was 25. Two years after, in 1862, he became president of the body. He was a member of the levy court in 1867, and president of the Citizens' Reform association in 1870. Then congress turned Washington into a territorial government. He was appointed governor of the district, and president of the board of public works. He had always borne the reputation of being a progressive, liberal, yet determined man. Washington at this time was a drowsy, half-northern, half-southern city. It had been laid out on liberal lines but had never conformed to them. It had no adequate building laws. Its streets were mud holes in winter and dust distributors in summer. Shepherd determined to alter this. He had the power and he proceeded to use it. One morning the people of the old town awakened to find hundreds of men at work on the streets. It was the advance guard of "Boss" Shepherd's legions.

ALEXANDER H. SHEPHERD
(Has Just Returned to Washington After Long Exile)

Within the next three years, from June 1, 1871, to June 24, 1874, "Boss" Shepherd ruled Washington with a rod of iron. Men who began by praising him ended by cursing him. As improvements grew taxes increased. Many men were financially ruined by the burdens imposed upon them. Newspapers in other cities were the only avenues for the maledictions of the citizens; the local papers were bound hand and foot by the influence of the "boss" or silenced by a knowledge that he was doing the right thing in improving Washington, although it was unpopular at the time.

Nothing halted his determination. The city became a hive of municipal industry. All streets of any importance underwent transformation. They were graded, sewered and paved, and it is now admitted that the work was well and admirably done. Some idea of the improvements that Shepherd made in Washington may be gleaned from these interesting figures. He planted more than 16,000 trees and paved 118 miles of streets, besides laying 207 miles of sidewalks. His army of men dug and carted away 3,340,000 cubic yards of earth. He had constructed 317,196 feet of pipe sewers of 12 to 15 inches in diameter; four miles of sewers from 10 to 30 feet in diameter and over five miles of sewers from 3 to 7 feet in diameter. He laid 30 miles of water pipe and nearly 60 miles of gas pipe. In addition to this he constructed 30 miles of roads in the suburbs of the city.

TAILORS USE CAMERA.

Perfectly Fitting Clothes Assured by Photographic Measuring System Recently Invented.

You can be measured for a suit of clothes by photography now, if you care to have it done in that way. A Wisconsin man patented the process, which promises to be a boon to tailors, relieving them of much labor, and at the same time securing a degree of accuracy in measurements that is quite out of the question when the ordinary method is employed.

All you have to do is to stand close behind a screen of a peculiar kind, while the tailor puts his own head under a black cloth and focuses a camera upon you. The screen, which, mind you, is between yourself and the camera, is simply a wooden frame with wires strung tightly across it, at equal distances and parallel, so as to form a series of squares.

"SECURING A PERFECT FIT"
(Ingenious Method for Obtaining Absolutely Correct Measurements)

Necessarily, the resulting photograph is cut up by these black lines into a network of squares, and your measurements are indicated by the number of squares and portions of squares occupied by your body in the picture. With half a dozen such photographs taken of yourself, in different attitudes, it is a simple problem in mathematics to calculate your dimensions all ways.

To make sure that such salient points as the armpits are correctly indicated in the photograph, the inventor has devised a sort of harness that holds the clothing close to the body—thus avoiding the necessity of stripping.

It may be that before long this ingenious plan will be applied to the measuring of women for tailor-made suits and other garments. Thus, says the New York Herald, one of the difficulties of the dressmaking business will be largely done away with, and there will be fewer wrinkles in the brows of properly gowned maids and matrons.

RAREST OF MONKEYS.

As Far as the Face Is Concerned, He Resembles Man More Than Any Other Animal.

The zoological garden of Berlin just now boasts of possessing a rare monkey, the only animal of the kind in captivity in Europe. It is known as the silk ape of Kilimandcharo. C. G. Schulz, the leader of the recent German East Africa expedition. The Kilimandcharo silk monkey, as far as the face is concerned, resembles a human being more than any other of the animal species. Eyes, face, nose and mouth betray a remarkably intelligent expression. The eyes have not the staring, insane look of the beast, but regard one with contemplative calm. The most beautiful feature of the animal is its hair. The main fur is of a darkish brown, as soft as seal skin, but the face is surrounded with a white silk beard and he has a long gray silk mane and a large and bushy white silk tail.

RAREST OF MONKEYS

The specimen in the Berlin zoological garden exhibits a morose, melancholy temperament whenever he is left in his cage without a monkey for a companion. This is a difficult task for the animal keeper, as most monkeys are malicious and pugnacious and the Kilimandcharo silk monkey is of a sweet, affectionate temperament. One companion was found which died a few weeks ago and now the Berlin zoo authorities are searching high and low for one to take its place.

Hives are a terrible torment to the little folks, and to some older ones. Easily cured. Doan's Ointment never fails. Instant relief; permanent cure. At any drug store, 50 cents.

"Sleeping Illness."

Eminent specialists are just now endeavoring to solve the mystery of a disease known as beriberi, which seems to be identical with the "sleeping illness" of the west coast of Africa. But up to the present even the greatest physicians have not been able to diagnose or cure it. Whole villages of West African negroes have been known to sleep themselves to death.

Pneumonia Follows a Cold

but never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough, heals and strengthens the lungs and affords perfect security from an attack of pneumonia. Refuse substitutes. Murdock Bros.

New French Military Manual.

It is proposed to abolish the "shoulder arms" and "present arms" movements from the French army, owing to the time wasted in teaching men to do this properly. The present salutes would be exchanged for a more simplified movement.

Could Not Breathe.

Coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, other throat and lung troubles are quickly cured by One Minute Cough Cure. One Minute Cough Cure is not a mere expectorant, which gives only temporary relief. It softens and liquefies the mucus, draws out the inflammation and removes the cause of the disease. Absolutely safe. Acts at once. "One Minute Cough Cure will do all that is claimed for it," says Justice of the Peace J. Q. Hood, Crosby, Miss. "My wife could not get her breath and was relieved by the first dose. It has been a benefit to all my family."

Precedence at Coronation.

Discussion of the rules of precedence governing the reception of special envoys at such ceremonies as the coronation of King Edward VII. brings out the opinion that Mr. Reid on that occasion may have to take his place far down the line, just ahead of the representatives of some very insignificant governments. This is because representatives of emperors and kings come ahead of those of republics.

Africa's Telegraphic Lines.

Overland telegraphic communication across Africa is almost attained. The Cape to Cairo wires have reached Ujiji on Lake Tanganyika. They have only to extend to the north end of the lake and then go to Albert Nyanza, which is connected with the Soudanese and Egyptian lines.

Over 8,000 persons have petitioned the French chamber of deputies against the order of M. de Lanesan, the minister of marine, abolishing the Good Friday ceremonies in the navy.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Beware of cheap imitations. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Schley's Santiago
BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.
The intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, was aboard the U. S. S. Brooklyn during the entire six months of the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the author during the fight.
The Most Sensational Book of the Day.
The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore V. G. F. Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.
Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear Admiral Schley.
"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct."
—W. S. SCHLEY.
An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrospect Movement," the "Loop," the "Coaling Problem," and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said:—"Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed just as much courage to go about taking photographs as it did to win the guns."
THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."
No subject has ever been before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the full recognition of the hero of Santiago. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitnesses saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Cuttle and books now ready. Send seven cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY.
