NORTHVILLE MASONS HIGHLY ENTERTAINED

THE KILWINNINGS OF DETROIT DID IT UP BROWN.

One Hundred and Twenty-five from Northville Were in Attendance.

Two special D. U. electric cars filled with enthusiastic Masons and their ladies, numbering in all 125 hungry souls left here Monday afternoon for Detroit to pay Kilwinning lodge of that city a return visit. The party was met upon their arrival in the city by a committee from the Kilwinning lodge and escorted to the beautiful Masonic temple, where they were treated to an appetizing little lunch after which the officers of the Northville lodge equipped the delegates with work upon some innocent-looking candidates and made them travel over the city and figured out a very ship-shape manner. While the ladies were being entertained by the Detroit ladies on the main floor of the temple, the entertainment consisted of singing, instrumental music, reading and a very interesting talk on the history of the Detroit Art Museum.

A delicious banquet was served in the large dining hall of the temple, where about 400 partook of one of the swiftest feasts ever laid before a hungry man or woman. Following the banquet came toasts and another entertainment. W. H. Hutton of this place responded to the toast of Kilwinning lodge, "Our Guests."

It was one round of pleasure from beginning to end and when the Northville crowd left at 1:00 a. m. they voted it the most royal entertainment and the most enjoyable affair in the history of Northville lodge.

Editorial from Muskegon Chronicle March 21, 1902.

The republican county convention's endorsement of Gov. Bliss was in these words:

"We commend the administration of Governor Bliss, which, free from the spectacular, has given to the state a wise and careful government."

This paragraph contains but a few words and could not have been expressed any stronger or better, if a whole column of words had been used. The convention has gone on record as recognizing Gov. Bliss' administration as a commendable one, and that is the general sentiment among republicans.

Death of Rev. R. C. Lanning.

Rev. R. C. Lanning, uncle of Wm. J. and Robert Lanning of Northville, died last week at his home in Holly, aged 83 years. He was a superannuated Methodist minister and had been sick for some time. Mr. Lanning was born in New York and came to this state a number of years ago. His wife survives him. The funeral was held Monday and the interment was at Franklin.

Green in Dress Fabrics.

The popularity of green in dress fabrics has brought out a variety of green trimmings for fall and winter hats, and the duck, parrot, peacock, and even the homely turkey would hardly recognize its own plumage as it now appears, redecorated with every sort of spot, spangle, or iridescent or fluffy feathers-gummed around its edges. These green breasts, wings, etc., are but items, however, of the array of birds' plumage to be used this season on hats of every shape and size, in defiance of the Audubon and anti-similar societies in the universe. There are hundreds of vari-colored birds brought from the isles of Trinidad, to be used for entire toques and trim, close turbans for traveling and promenade wear, quills and wings, breast feathers and sweeping tail feathers, picturesque plumes, aligrettes, pom-poms, tiny pheasants, humming birds, sea swallows, orioles, bluebirds, robins, partridges mottled breasts, and a score of other pretty-eyed songsters and game birds; that are to grace, or to some minds disgrace, my lady's head this season.

Condition Food for Horses.

As a result of bad roads and heavy transportation, many horses in Argentina have been overworked during the rainy season, and many of them have been exhausted and have fallen ready victims to disease. To give greater endurance, sugar has been added to the food of the animals. The effects have been quite surprising, and it is reported that not only has fatigue been overcome by the sugar, but the animals that had become quite weak regained strength and capacity for work.

W. H. Gilbert, of the Lansing-Sugar Co., has reaped rich returns from sheep fed on sugar pulp. He brought several thousand head of sheep from Montana and tried the new fodder on them. Some of them died, but after they got accustomed to this fodder they thrived rapidly. A large number sold at Buffalo brought about $6.50 per owl.

About 20 residents of Flint are mourning the demise of the Pontine Surety Co., of Minneapolis, whose articles of incorporation were declared forfeited by Judge McGee last week. Many Pontiac people are losers. The agents of the company have been instructed to accept no more payments for the present. Seventeen people of Almont were also "touched."

Although nearly a month has elapsed since the house directed the committee on Indian affairs to investigate the charges against Eugene C. Nardin, superintendent of the Mt. Pleasant Indian school, nothing has been done in way of investigating. It is intimated investigation would quite likely show high officials in the interior department were primarily responsible.

Ex-Senator Patton, member of Republican national committee, believes that Michigan will get the next national convention of the party if it can get it, and believes that Detroit could take care of the delegates if a suitable place were found for the convention sessions. The matter came up incidentally before the advisory council of the State League of Republican clubs.

Dairy cows in Michigan the last census year 567,995; value of dairy products for the year $16,909,087; gallons of milk produced 305,617,047; milk sold, 55,053,108 gallons, for which was received $4,643,577; cream sold, 231,139 gallons, for which $124,502 was received; pounds of butter produced, 60,051,196; of which 34,345,614 pounds were sold for $5,099,679; pounds of cheese made, 331,176.

More than 200 Grand Rapids school ma'ams will make the trip to the national capital, starting next Saturday at Plymouth the Grand Rapids party will be joined by 50 teachers from Saginaw. This run to Washington will be made over the Pere Marquette to Toledo, the Hocking Valley to Athens, Ohio, and the B & O through the state of West Virginia to Washington. Four days will be spent in Washington.

Rostora will boom this summer. Last summer a bank was established by J. & F. J. Evland, of Mayville, and several residences were built. This summer a brick block consisting of a general store, a drug store, hardware and meat market, will be built and occupied by Noah Tompkins, who recently sold his hardware business to Owens & Evans, of Millington. In addition, several substantial residences will be erected.

Surveyors are at work near Devil's Lake laying out the right of way of the electric line from Adrian to Jackson. The road will run on the west side of the lake, taking in Beard's Landing and Manitou Beach. From the beach the line runs to Addison and thence to Jackson, by way of Cement City and Clarke's Lake. A line will also be built from Hudson to Devil's Lake in connection. Cars will be running by July 1 next.

A clumsily-executed attempt at arson Saturday night resulted in the arrest of Stead Vileski and his partner, Julius Vileski, a Jackson saloonkeeper, who rents a building adjacent to a rag warehouse. Fire was discovered in the warehouse at 2:15 Sunday morning, and while it was extinguished without much damage, George Bench, a roomer above the saloon, was partially overcome with smoke, and had a narrow escape. In the morning it was discovered that some one had removed most of the saloon stock, avoided the premises with kerosene oil and touched a match. The fire worked into the rag warehouse and was discovered.

Mrs. G. A. Tinham has one of the best selected displays of Millinery ever seen in Northville and will be pleased to have you call.

INTEREST RATES WERE HIGH.

A Banking Experience in Virginia After the War.

Gov. J. Hoge Tyler of Virginia is responsible for this interesting banking story: "Soon after the war, when banking rates, or discount rates, were high, an old fellow in one of the southwest counties of Virginia, a farmer, went to the bank to secure a loan of $1,000 for five years. Of course this made the man behind the grating open his eyes and look at him with wonder and astonishment, and the farmer was told that they could not make provision for such a loan as that unless they had the most satisfactory collateral that could be obtained. The old fellow asked, 'Collateral? What collateral?' the banker answered, 'Well, what is that?' the farmer asked. The banker went on to describe the stocks and bonds and securities that are meant by the term collateral. The old farmer said: 'Well, if I had those things I wouldn't want any money. They are better than money,' he said. 'Well,' said the banker, 'you can't get the money unless you succeed in getting some of those collaterals, and then we might discount your note.' Well, the farmer succeeded in getting some collateral and in getting some personal indorsements, and also in getting his own name upon the paper and his wife's as well, and obtained mortgages on everything he had. He came and dumped his collateral down on the banker's desk. They were satisfactory, and the cashier made out his note for him for $1,000, and told him to sign it, which the farmer did. After signing the note he passed it over. Then the cashier counted him out $287.52. The old farmer ejaculated, 'Come on. No, sir,' said the cashier, 'that is all you can get on a note of $1,000 for five years at our present rate of discount.' 'Dis-what?' asked the farmer. 'Discount,' said the cashier, 'that is all you can get.' 'What do you mean?' said the farmer. 'Why,' said the cashier, 'we take off the discount for the first four months and the next four months, and so on, and then, at the end of five years your note will only make $287.52.' 'I am glad that I did not ask you to lend me that money for ten years,' ejaculated the farmer, 'or you would have had me in debt and I would have to pay you something for asking you to lend it to me.'"

EUROPE DOES THINGS WELL.

In Some Respects, Foreign Nations Are in Advance of the United States.

All the good things in the world are not confined to the United States. Europe in some respects sets an example that is well worthy of imitation. For instance, in Berlin the streets are washed and scrubbed each night like a kitchen floor, and fine, snap sand is sprinkled over the surface so that the asphalt is not slippery. Each "white wings" has his own section of street to attend to and for it he is held responsible. He is paid only five cents an hour, but he gets a premium at the end of each week, the amount depending upon how many good marks the inspector has placed against his name. If you rush into the New York post-office to post a letter in a hurry the chances are about even that you will make a mistake in the posting slip and get a foreign letter into the receptacle for "outgoing domestics," or the other way about. In Germany there is no necessity to stop and read the lettering over the slit. The box for foreign letters is painted a bright yellow and the box for domestic letters is as bright a blue. The telephone system of Sweden is something to be envied—it is too much to hope that it may be copied in this country. Stockholm with its suburbs has 40,000 telephones, an average of one to each family, and you can telephone anywhere within a radius of fifty miles of the city for a little less than two cents. Belgian railways have specially designed hospital cars with twenty-four beds, an operating room and every possible convenience for sick or injured persons. With surgeons and nurses always ready, these cars already have saved many lives in case of accident, and when not used they are employed in carrying sick people from place to place. In Austria every race course is provided with a "casualty room" for the treatment of all cases of accident, and a surgeon is always in attendance there during race meetings.—Chicago Chronicle.

Hindu's Advertisement in English.

A Hindu baker's assistant in Bombay, on setting up in business for himself, betought him of catering for the English community as well as for the native one. With this end in view he had the following notification painted over his doorway: "Ram Bux solicits respectful patronage. He is a first-class British loafer."

A Fatal Objection.

The Brussels man's invention by which talkers over a telephone may see each other will not become popular. The usefulness of the telephone would be largely destroyed if, when one called up a woman he had to wait till she made her toilet before she answered.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Life Insurance.

Life insurance should live its life in a simple way. It is not a complicated matter. It is a simple matter of saving and investing. It is an incentive to economy and correct habits. There are relatively few business men who do not carry a large or small amount. It takes the place of the account in the savings bank. It is an asset during life upon which to negotiate loans. The time was when one looked askance at it because it involved an event of which one wished to think, because it assumed that a man did not have foresight enough to look after the future of his family, and because, too, of the many swindling schemes proposed in connection with it. That time has now passed, and the benefits of life insurance are universally conceded. There can be no better way of saving money than by insuring in an old established company or in a good fraternal society—such as Northville has several—of both life insurance has at last won its triumph over credulity and prejudice, and every young man should avail himself of it.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Willcox celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage March 21, 1902, at their home in Sherwood, this being the third golden wedding in the Willcox family. Charles M. Goodale of Jackson, 50 years old, was found lying in bed unconscious Wednesday morning and died four hours later when apparently on the way to recovery. Coroner Stenon is investigating. Goodale leaves a widow and two daughters. Cadillac expended over $4,000 last year for new cement sidewalks, but the city is just that much farther away from the liability to be sued for damages for injuries sustained on defective walks than she was before. And $4,000 wouldn't go very far in paying judgments obtained in law suits.

Mrs. C. D. Hardy, of Adrian, claims the distinction of being a member of the Sabbath school class taught years ago by the original "Mary," of the lamb episode fame, in Somerville, Mass. The lamb was a reality. The heroine was Mrs. Mary D. Sawyer, who married Columbus Tyler.

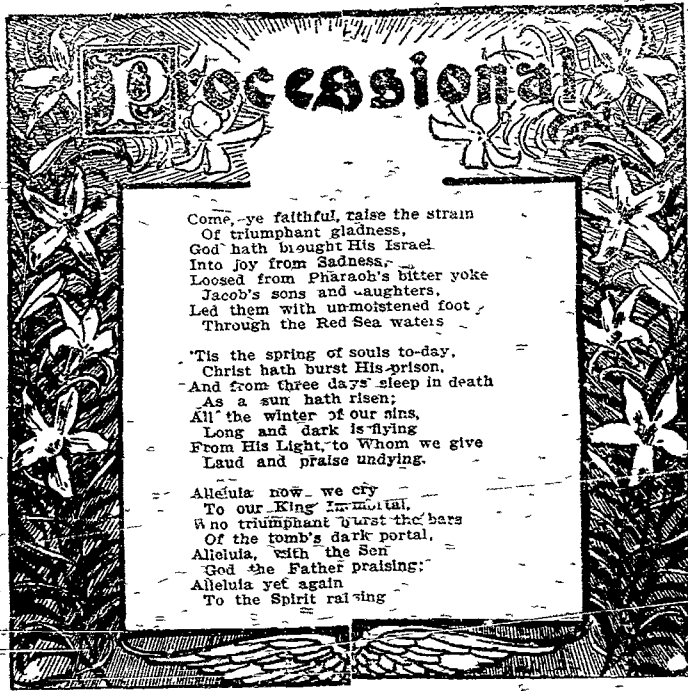

A syndicate of Chicago capitalists is trying to interest Ironwood people in a scheme to build a theater in that city. The construction of a $300,000 building is guaranteed if the citizens will agree to purchase 1,000 tickets at $10 apiece for the opening production.

Henry Dunning and wife, of Perry, had a close call Wednesday morning from being asphyxiated by coal gas. They were aroused from their slumber by an alarm clock, set to ring at 5 o'clock, and groping their way to a door, soon revived in the fresh air. The clock saved their lives.

Philip Little, one of the men arrested at Toledo for the robbery of the post-office at Coral, and for a time confined in the city jail, but afterwards taken to Montclair county to answer for helping rob and torturing an aged couple, was convicted at Stanton and sentenced to state prison for 13 years.

A tale comes from Los Angeles of an old soldier who coughed up the point of a bayonet which he had carried since the Civil war. In St. Joe or Galaxburg, says the Grand Rapids Press, the same veteran would have coughed up a Springfield musket and forty rounds of ammunition.

The rural high school proposition was defeated in Kalama township, Eaton Co., Monday for the reason, it is said, that the farmers thought the plan was sprung by the citizens of Kalama village, where the building was to be erected, for the village's benefit at the expense of the entire township.

Term Easter is of German Origin.

Our term Easter is of German origin, but the name by which the festival is designated from the beginning is the Paschal, a name derived from the Hebrew, it commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian bondage when the destroying angel spared the first-born of the Hebrew because their doors were marked by the blood of the Paschal lamb.

The Easter festival is the greatest in the Christian calendar; it is the climax of the events in the life of our divine Lord—his birth, his labors, his miracles, his betrayal, the bitterness of his agony at Gethsemane, and his cruel death on Calvary's culminated in the victory we commemorate on this glorious day.

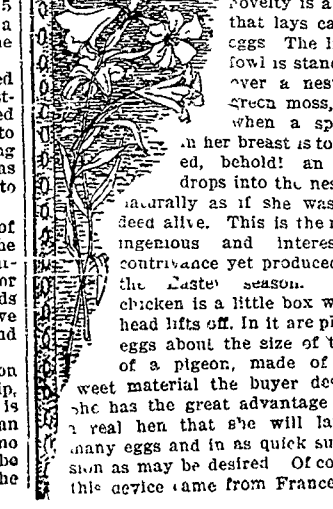

The church has always held that the miraculous deliverance of the Hebrew people from Egyptian bondage was the type and figure of the far greater deliverance which would follow when Christ, our Paschal, as St. Paul says, would be sacrificed and by his blood would save us from eternal death.

The Christian Pasch was instituted on that night when our Savior, Jesus Christ, surrounded by his disciples at the Last Supper which he held with them, gave them under the form of bread and wine his body and his blood to drink. There is nothing in all the gospels set forth in language more unequivocal than this fact. The church has always taught, as he himself declared, that our divine Lord is truly and really present, under the terms of bread and wine, consecrated by the words uttered by himself, and spoken by those authorized by him to use them.

It is true that he suffered and died that all men might be saved, yet we know, from his own words and the teachings of his apostles, that many may not be saved because they will not make the necessary effort and sacrifice. Many are called but few chosen. Faith alone in the redeeming sacrifice will not bring salvation, the fact that we believe in the divinity of Christ, in the teaching of Christ, in the redemption purchased for us by the death of Christ will not bring us salvation unless we ourselves do our part to make ourselves worthy thereof. It is not enough to have faith, we must also labor. "I have fought the good fight, I have kept the faith," St. Paul says, he did not consider it enough to have the faith only—it must be accompanied by good work.

The church, therefore, celebrates this day with more of joy and gladness and ceremony than any other in commemoration of the institution of that Christian Pasch which means so much to humanity for millions of her children, under her guidance and direction, through prayer and repentance, and other penitential works are made worthy to participate in this divine banquet. They are restored to the friendship of God and have earned for themselves eternal life, for our Savior has said "If any man eat of this bread he will live forever, and I will give him life, and I will give him life for the life of the world" (John vi).

And she celebrates this day with unusual joy and gladness for the further reason that it is the anniversary of that day on which the Founder by his own inherent power raised himself from the dead, thus giving the strongest possible proof of his divinity, and leaving to us, who believe in him and love him, a reason for the faith that is in us.

Easter Festival of Great Age.

The festival of Easter is much older than the Resurrection of Jesus. Christianity not only converted the magnificent pagan temples, which it could not pull down into churches, but it also adopted and adapted as man, of the rites and ceremonies of heathen antiquity as were too deeply rooted in the habits and affections of the people to be eradicated. From the Greeks and the Romans the early Christians borrowed their emblems of resurrection and immortality—the Peacock and the Phoenix. The Easter egg, too, as a religious symbol is as old as the pyramids of Egypt and the primer of Oriental philosophy which taught that the world was hatched from an egg about the time of the vernal equinox. We read also that the Romans in early spring ran races in an oval—an egg-shape, arena, when the winner was presented with eggs accompanied with wishes that his noble family may increase and multiply. Christianity colored the egg red to remind the people of the blood shed for their redemption.

That ceremonial Christianity is in a large measure paganism transformed or rejuvenated is admitted by the best scholars in the church as well as out of it—by Cardinal Nicholas Wiseman and Baronius, as well as by Max-Muller and Renan. "The church has borrowed many customs from the religion of the Romans and other pagans," says an ecclesiastical authority, "but it has meliorated them." Another writes that "the pagan festivals laden with superstition were changed into the praiseworthy festivals of the martyrs." Still another defends the practice by saying "It was permitted the church to transfer to pious uses those ceremonies which the pagans had wickedly applied in a superstitious worship."

Ostera or Eostre, derived from "Ost," meaning East, was a Saxon Goddess who presided over the luminous powers which revived the earth and resuscitated life out of the shadow of darkness and the mold of the grave. She was the divinity whose face shone like the glory of the sunrise and the brightness of the dawn; her ambrosial breath made hill and dale fragrant, and her smile shed beauty over every breaking bud and blossom. The people congregated in the fields to cheer her arrival in the skies, because she came to destroy the germ of winter-darkness, sterility, storm, and death, and to shake from her golden urn blessings upon man and beast alike. "The Sun is risen!" they shouted, as they greeted one another and kissed and danced on the new grass. Our Teutonic ancestors devoted eight days of April, which they called the Ostermonat, to the worship of this beautiful goddess of life and love perennial, whose arrows, tipped with flame, had shot fresh hopes into their hearts. When Christianity converted the pagan Saxons, instead of attempting to abolish this joyous festival, it christened it into an institution of the church preserving all its poetry and music—the flowers and the eggs, and only substituting Jesus the "Sun of Righteousness," for Ostera, the Goddess of the East.

Thus we see that the most poetic and dramatic of the festivals in the calendar of the Christian church is pagan in origin as well as in ethical significance.

Easter, then, is a day in which Christian and heathen memories mingle, and we regard that as its most pleasing feature, because it lifts it from being merely a sectarian symbol into a festival of humanity. It demonstrates that all festivals have a common ancient source—the needs of the human heart, and that all religions, instead of being miraculously given to any chosen people, spring out of the eternal soil of humanity.

Let us rejoice to-day that one that the "Sun" has risen or that one man has been raised from the dead, but that all mankind has been steadily rising during these many ages—rising from the deep, dark grave of ignorance and slavery to freedom and power. Let us change the Easter salutation, and instead of greeting one another with "Christ is risen" and "He is risen, indeed," let us say, "Humanity is risen," and let the refrain be, "Hail, risen Humanity!"

Heathen Nations Celebrate the Day

In the Christian churches of all nations Easter is celebrated as the day on which the Great Teacher, the Jesus Christ, rose from the dead and thereby consummated his divine plan of redeeming the human race. Since Easter is so indissolubly associated with the life of the Founder of the Christian religion, one would naturally assume that it is a purely Occidental festival, having its origin in the west and being confined in observance to Caucasian countries. Yet, strangely enough, in several of the countries of the Orient, in India, in Japan, in China, we find religious festivals bearing a wonderful resemblance—festivals that were observed by pious people thousands of years before the beginning of the Christian era. The foundations of western civilization and power. The festival of India analogous to the Christian Easter is called the "Feast of Buddha"; in Japan it is named the "Feast of the Higon," while in China they term the great spring-time celebration "The Ancestral Worship." All these holidays have deep religious significance, for all their origin in the spirit of thankfulness and adoration; that wherever man lives he has ever greeted the death of winter and the dawn of spring. In this sense Easter, the Higon, the Ancestral Worship, are all more than mere church days—they are man's spontaneous outpouring of gratitude to nature, alike beneficent mother of both Occident and Orient.

The German Emperor has just founded a prize, consisting of a handsome vase, for the best spirit-driven motor car suitable for agricultural purposes. The conditions for the competition will be decided in February.

For the Complexion.

The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. DeWitt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. Hooper, Albany, Ga., says: "I took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness. They were just what I needed. I am feeling better now than in years." Never gripe or distress. Black Saturday.

Saturday appears to have had a curiously malign influence on English kings. It is a fact that William of Orange died on Saturday, March 18, 1702; Queen Anne, Saturday, August 1, 1714; King George I., Saturday, June 10, 1727; George II., Saturday, October 25, 1760; George III., Saturday, January 30, 1820; George IV., Saturday, June 26, 1830.

The engravers of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing have completed a vignette of President Roosevelt which will be used as the official picture of the President. After his death it may be used on government money or securities, but not until then. This vignette was made from what was decided to be the best photograph of the President after every photograph he had had taken in the last ten years had been examined.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Who Pays the Printer?

When you go around from printer to printer getting bids on a job, and then giving it to the lowest bidder you get an indirectly good job, one with no particularly good points—one that sells no goods for you, then who pays the printer?

YOU DO.

When you pick out a good printer, giving him all your work, educating him to an idea of your needs, and paying a fair price for the work you get, your printed matter (when secured at the lowest price) necessarily creates a favorable impression for you and for what you offer, and becomes a factor in selling your goods. Then who pays the printer? Your customer.

HE DOES.

The Lost Continent

By CUTCLIFFE HYNE.

Published by Harper & Bros. Copyright, 1900, by Cutcliffe Hyne.

CHAPTER XIV. SIEGE OF THE SACRED MOUNTAIN. Now my passage across the great continent of Atlantis, if tedious and haunted by many dangers, need not be recounted in detail here. After some days I passed the black forest and the country from there onward had at one time carried a sturdy population which held its own firmly, and, as its numbers grew, took in more ground, and built more homesteads farther afield. The houses were perched in trees for the most part, as there they were out of reach of cave-bear and cave-tiger and the other more dangerous beasts. But others, and these were the better ones, were built on the ground, of logs so ponderous and so firmly clamped and dove-tailed that the beasts could not pull them down; and once inside a house of this fashion its owners were safe, and could prosecute at any attackers through the interstices between the logs, and often wound, sometimes make a kill.

But not one in ten of these outlying settlers remained. The houses were silent when I reached them, the fire-heap before the door weed-grown, and the patch of vegetables taken back by the greedy fingers of the forest into mere scrub and jungle. And farther on, when villages began to appear, strongly walled, as the custom is, to ward off the attacks of beasts, the logs which aforetime had barred the gateway lay strewn in a sprouting undergrowth, and naught but the kitchen middens remained to prove that once they had sheltered human tenants. Phoenice's influence seemed to have spread as though it were some horrid blight over the whole face of what was once a smiling and an easy living land.

At last I found myself within a half-day's journey of the city of Atlantis itself, with the Sacred Mountain and its ring of fires looming high beside it, and the call for caution became trebly accentuated. Every where evidences showed that the country had been drained of its fighting men. Every where women prayed that the battles might end with the rout of the priests or the killing of Phoenice, so that the wretched land might have peace and time to lick its wounds.

An army was investing the Sacred Mountain, and its one approach was most narrowly guarded. Even after having journeyed so far, it seemed as if I should have to sit helplessly down without being able to carry out the orders which had been laid upon me by the high council, and earn the reward which had been promised. Force would be useless here. I should have one good fight—a gorgeous fight—one man against an army, and my usefulness would be ended. No; this was the occasion for guile, and I found covert in the outskirts of a wood, and lay there cudgeling my brain for a plan.

In that covert of the woods I lay a day and a night raving with myself for not discovering some plan to get within the defenses of the Sacred Mountain, but in the morning which followed there came a man towards me running. "You need not threaten me with your weapons," he cried. "I mean no harm. It seems that you are Deucalion, though I should not have known you myself in those rags and skins, and behind that tangle of hair and beard. Zaemon laid a command on me. He came to my house. I asked his pleasure. It was to find you when you came in here from some distant part of the land and deliver to you his message. "Then tell me the message," said I. "You are to make a great blaze. You may fire the grasses of the plain in front of this wood if you choose. And on the night which follows you are to go round to that flank of the Sacred Mountain away from the city where the rocks run down sheer, and there they will lower a rope and haul you up to their hands above."

He took himself off then, and I wasted no more precious time. The grass blazed up for a signal almost before the messenger's heels were clear of it; and that night, when the darkness gave me cover, I took the risk of what beasts might be prowling, and went to the place appointed. There was no rope dangling, but presently one came down the smooth cliff-face like some slender snake. I made a loop, slipped it over a leg, and pulled hard as a signal. Those above began to haul, and so I went back to the Sacred Mountain after an absence of so many toilsome and warring years. There were none to disturb the ascent. Phoenice's troops had no thought to guard that gaunt, bare, seamless precipice.

The men who hauled me up were old, and panted heavily with their task, and, until I knew the reason, I wondered why a knot of younger priests had not been appointed for the duty. But I put no question. With us of the Priests' clan on the Sacred Mountain it is always taken as granted that when an order is given it is given for the best. Besides, these priests did not offer themselves to question. They took me off at once to Zaemon, and that is what I could have wished.

The old man greeted me with the royal sign. "All hail to Deucalion," he cried, "king of Atlantis, duly called thereto by the high council of the priests."

"Then being king I can speak without seeming to make use of a threat. I must have my queen first or I am not strong enough to give my whole mind to the business."

"She shall be brought here." "So! Then I will be a general now, and see to the defenses of this place, and view the men who are here to stand behind them." I went out of the dwelling then, Zaemon giving place and following me. It was night still, but there is no darkness on the upper part of the Sacred Mountain. A ring of fires, fed eternally from the earth-breath which wells up from below, burns round one-half of the crest, lighting it always as bright as day, and in fact forming no small part of its fortification. Indeed, it is said that in the early dawn of history men first came to the mountain as a stronghold because of the natural defense which the fires offered. There is no bridging these flames or smothering them. On either side of their line for a hundred paces the ground glows with heat, and a man would be turned to ash who tried to cross it. Round full one-half of the mountain slopes the fires make a rampart unbreakable, and on the other side the rocks run in one sheer precipice from the crest to the plain which spreads beyond its foot. But it is on this farther side that there is the only entrance way which gives passage to the crest of the Sacred Mountain from below. Running diagonally up the steep face of the cliff is a gigantic fissure, which succeeding ages (as jagged has grown more luxurious) have made more easy to climb. Looking at the additions, in the ancient days, I can well imagine that none but the most daring could have made the ascent. But one generation has thrown a bridge over a bad gap here, and another has cut the living stone and widened a gap ledge there, till in these latter years there is a path with cut steps and carved balustrade such as the feeblest or most giddy night traverser with little effort or exertion. But always when these improvers made smooth the obstacles, they were careful to weaken in no possible way the defenses, but rather to add to them. Eight gates of stone there were cutting the pathway, each commanding a straight, steep piece of the ascent, and overhanging each gate was a gallery secure from arrow shot, yet so contrived that great stones could be hurled through holes in the floor of it, in such a manner that they must irrevocably smash to a pulp any man advancing against it from below. And in caves dug out from the rock on either hand was a great hoard of these stones, so that no enemy through sheer expenditure of troops could hope to storm a gate by exhausting its ammunition. But though there were eight of these granite gates in the series, we had the whole number to depend on no longer. The lowest gate was held by a garrison of Phoenice's troops, who had built a wall above them to protect their occupation. The gate had been gained by no brilliant feat of arms—it had been won by threats, bribery and promises, or, in other words, it had been given up by the blackest treachery. And here lay the key-note of the weakness in our defense. The most perfect rampart that brains can invent are useless without men to line them, and it was men we lacked of students entering into the colleges of the Sacred Mountain—there had been none now for many a year. The younger generation thought little of the older gods. Of the men that had grown up among the sacred groves, and filled offices there, many had become lukewarm in their faith and remained on only through habit, and because an easy living stayed near them there; and these, when the siege began, quickly made their way over to the other side. Phoenice was no fool to fight against unnecessary strength. Her heralds made proclamation that peace and a good subsistence would be given to those who chose to come out to her willingly; and as an alternative she would kill by torture and mutilation those she caught in the place when she took it by storm, as she most assuredly would do before she had finished with it. And so great was the prestige of her name that quite one-half of those that remained on the mountain took themselves away from the defense. There was no attempt to hold back these sorry priests, nor was there any punishing them as they went. Zaemon, indeed, was muddled (so he told me with grim meaning himself) to give them some memento of their apostasy to carry away which would rot wear out, but the others of the high council made him stay his vengeful hand. And so, when I came to the place, the garrison numbered no more than 80, counting even feeble old dotards who could barely walk, and of men not past their prime I could barely command a score. Still, seeing the narrowness of the passages which led to each of the gates, up which in no place could more than two men advance together, we were by no means in desperate straits for the defense as yet, and even if my new-given kingdom was so far small, consisting as it did of the Sacred Mountain, and no other part of Atlantis, at any rate there seemed little danger of its being farther contracted. Another of the wise precautions of the men of old stood in god stead then. In the ancient times, when grain was first grown as a tribute came to be looked upon as the acme of wealth. Tribute was always paid from the people to their priests, and presently, so the old histories say, it was appointed that this should take the form of grain, as this was a medium both dignified and fitting. And those of the people who had it were not forced to barter their other produce for grain before they could pay this tribute.

On the Sacred Mountain itself vast storehouses were dug in the rock, and here the grain was teemed in great yellow heaps, and each generation of those that were set over it took a pride in adding to the accumulation.

In modern days it had been the custom among the younger and more forward of the priests to scoff at this ancient provision, and to hold that a treasure of gold or weapons or jewels would have more value and no less of dignity; and more than once it had been a close thing lest these innovators should not be outwitted. But as it was, the old constitution had happily been preserved, and now in these years of trial the clan reaped the benefit. And go with these granaries and a series of great tanks and cisterns which held the rainfall, there was no chance of Phoenice reducing our stronghold by mere close investment, even though she sat down stubbornly before it for a score of years.

But it was the paucity of men for the defense which oppressed me most. As I took my way about the head of the mountain, inspecting all points, the emptiness of the place smote me like a succession of blows. The groves, once so trim, were now shaggy and unpruned. Wind had whirled the leaves in upon the temple floors, and they lay there unwept. The college of youths held no more than a dusty smell to bear witness that men had once been grown there. The homely palaces of the higher priests, at one time so ardently sought after, lay many of them empty, because not even one candidate came forward now to canvass for election.

Evil thoughts surged up within me as I saw these things, that were direct promptings from the aether gods. "There must be something wanting," these tempters whispered, "in a religion from which so many of its priests fled at the first pinch of persecution."

I did what I could to thrust these waverings resolutely behind me; but they refused to be altogether ousted from my brain; and so I made a compromise with myself. First, I would with the help that might be given me, destroy this wanton Phoenice, and regain the kingdom which had been given me to my own proper rule, and afterwards I would call a council of the seven and council of the three, and consider without prejudice if there was any matter in which our ancient ritual could be amended to suit the modern requirements. But this should not be done till Phoenice was dead and I was firmly planted in her room. I would not be a party, even to myself, to any plan which smacked at all of surrender.

And there as I walked through the desolate groves and beside the cold altars, the high gods were pleased to show their approval of my scheme, and to give me opportunity to bind myself to it with a solemn oath and vow. At that moment, from his distant resting place in the east, our Lord the Sun leaped up to begin another day. For long enough, from where I stood below the crest of the mountain, he himself would be invisible. But the great light of his glory spread far into the sky, and against it the Ark of the Mysteries loomed in black outline from the highest rag where it rested, lonely and terrible.

For anyone unauthorized to go nearer than a thousand paces to this storehouse of the highest mysteries meant instant death. On that day when I was initiated as one of the seven I had been permitted to go near, and once press my lips against its ample curves; and the rank of my degree gave me the privilege to repeat that salute once on each day when a new year was born. But what lay inside its great interior, and how it was entered, that was hidden from the seven, even as it was from the other priests and the common people in the city below. Only those who had been raised to the sublime elevation of the three had a knowledge of the dreadful powers which were stored within it.

I went down on my knees where I was, and Zaemon knelt beside me, and together we recited the prayers which had been said by the priests from the beginning of time, giving thanks to our great lord that he has come to brighten another day. And then, with my eyes fixed on the black outline of the Ark of Mysteries I vowed that, come what might, I at least would be true servant of the high gods to my life's end, and that my whole strength should be spent in restoring their worship and glory.

CHAPTER XV. NAIS THE REGAINED.

Now from where we stood together, just below the crest of the Sacred Mountain, we could see down into the city, which lay spread out below us like a map. The harbor and the great estuary gleamed at its farther side, and the fringe of hills beyond smoked and fumed in their accursed fumed fashion; the great stone circle of our Lord the Sun stood up grim and bare in the middle of the city, and nearer in reared up the great mass of the royal pyramid, the gold on its sides catching new gold from the sun. There, too, in the square before the pyramid stood the throne of granite, dwarfed by the distance to the size of a mole's hill in which these mice is my love has been sleeping. Old Zaemon followed my gaze. "Aye," he said, with a sigh, "I know where your chief interest is. Deucalion when he landed here new from Yucatan was a strong man. The king whom we have chosen—and who is the best we have to choose—has his weakness." "It can be turned into additional strength. Give me Naas here, living and warm to fight for, and I am a stronger man by far than the cold viceroy and soldier that you speak about." "I have passed my word to that already, and you shall have her; but at the cost of damaging somewhat this new kingdom of yours. Maybe, too, at the same time we shall rid you of this Phoenice and her brood. But I do not think it likely. She is too wily, and once we begin our play, she is likely to guess whence it comes and how it will end, and so will make an escape before harm can reach her. The high gods, who have sent all these trials for our refinement, have seen fit to give her some knowledge of how these earth tremors may be set a-moving." "I have seen her juggle with them. But may I hear your scheme?" "It will be shown you in good time enough. But for the present I would bid you sleep, and take your woman (that is my daughter) when she is set free, and bring her here as best you can. And for that you will need all a strong man's strength." He stepped back and looked me up and down. "There are not many folk that would take you for the lady, clean-chinned Deucalion now, my brother. Your appearance will be a fine armor for you down yonder in the city to-night when we wake it with our earth-shaking terror. As you stand now, you are hairy enough and shaggy enough and naked enough and dirty enough for some wild savage new landed out of Europe. Have a care that no fine citizen down yonder takes a fancy to your thews and saizes upon you as his servant."

"I somewhat pity him in his household if he does."

Old Zaemon laughed. "Why, come to think of it, so do I." But quickly he got grave again. Laughter and Zaemon were very rare playmates. "Well, get you to bed, my king, and leave me to go into the Ark of Mysteries and prepare there with another of the three things that must be done. If is no light business to handle the tremendous powers which we must put into movement this night. And there is danger for us as there is for you. So if by chance we do not meet again till we stand up yonder behind the stars, giving account to the gods, fare you well, Deucalion."

I slept that day as a soldier sleeps, taking full rest out of the hours, and letting no harassing thought disturb me. It is only the weak who permit their sleep to be broken on these occasions. And when the dark was well set, I roused and fetched those who of a fight was loathsome to me then. I wanted to have my business done and get gone from the place. With hands that shook I fumbled over the face of the stone and found the clamps and bars of metal still in position where I had clenched them, and then reverently I let my fingers pass between these and felt the curves of my love's body in its rest beneath. An exultation began to whirl within me. I did not know if she had been touched since I last left her; I did not know if the drug would have its due effect, and let her be wakened to warmth and sight again; but, dead or alive, I had her there, and she was mine, mine, mine, and I could have yelled aloud in my joy at her possession.

(To be continued next week.)

Look Only Pop.

The best citizens of Girard, La., "hung a nigger" for stealing a bottle of soda pop. If he had stolen a bottle of whisky he would no doubt have been barbecued.

A Severe Cold for Three Months.

The following letter from A. J. Nusbaum of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story: "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar and eight doses cured me." Release substitutes Murdock Bros.

A pair of twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. Will VanVleet last Thursday night—boy and girl—Plymouth Mail.

To be up with the early spring Plymouth's athletic people have already got together and organized a base ball club. They had a crack nine there last year and this season expect to have one that will knock

The fact of Milford's going "wet" at the recent village election is already having effect on the people. Here this from the Times of last week: "The first snake story of the season comes from John Pickett. He reports that he killed five Thursday morning."

The Bell Telephone company has invaded Milford and up to last week had secured some fifty subscribers, mostly business places. The company will now go after the residence portion in town. D. P. Yerkes has abandoned his idea of establishing an independent company there.

George Austin got too familiar with one of the tip saws in the Mfg Co.'s factory there last week, and as a result his hand was nearly sawed off. Previous to that time two other men had been similarly injured by the same buzzing piece of steel.

Frank Andrews of Green Oak sheared 30 sheep in 12 hours recently and helped tie part of the wool. Who can beat that record?—South Lyon Excelsior. Frank Andrews of Detroit not only sheared more sheep but he realized more on the shearing. —Birmingham Eccentric.

Dick Henderson, a former well known Wayne boy and a ball player of considerable repute, has just signed for the season as a professional with the Rochester, N. Y. team in the eastern league. Henderson has lived in Pontiac for some time past where he has been employed in one of that city's buggy factories.

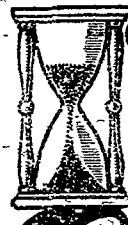

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

Hilarious, jolly, gay "McFaddon's Row of Flats" comes to the Whitney Opera House the afternoon of March 30. Does "McFaddon's Flats," the most remarkable farce comedy ever written, tell a story? Well now, don't let that worry you—you will be too busy laughing to give that a thought. However, it is a cleverly imagined and brightly written parody on life in a flat house, and it has deservedly won more consideration than any farce of late days. It promises to be brisk and breezy from start to finish.

Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

The funniest French farce ever produced in this country, "The Girl from Maxim's" will be presented at the Lyceum Theatre for one week beginning March 30 by the only company of farceurs organized for this play. "The Girl from Maxim's" in its original French form has been running in Paris for the past three years. In its American version, which preserves all the jolly fun and bright lines of the original, the company, which is an unusually clever one, is headed by Miss Lene Merville.

kills, not necessarily suddenly, but SURELY. It preys upon the intellectual powers more than we realize. It consumes the vitality faster than nature can replenish it, and we cannot tell just what moment a temporary, or complete aberration of the mind will result. Headache and pain should be promptly removed—but properly. Many pain cures are more harmful than the pain. Beware. If you would be safe, take

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

"As a result of neuralgia I lost the sight of my right eye, and the pain I have suffered is insupportable. Being obliged to take opiates almost continually, a friend gave me one of Dr. Miles' Pain Pills and it promptly relieved me. I then purchased a box and now my trouble is gone. They have also cured my daughter of nervous headache, and I heartily recommend them to others."—W. J. CORLEY, Bremond, Texas.

Farrington Disgusts His Best Friends.

TEKONSHA'S MYSTERY SOLVED

The Defunct Niles Bank Pays Depositors Ninety Per Cent—Why Prame Was Favored—Various Happenings in and About the State.

Farrington's Friends Disgusted.—Many hope that Bert Farrington may have had of securing a pardon has vanished into thin air. Petitions were being circulated in many parts of the state and the outlook for securing the release of the man who killed Jesse Hooker, whom he found occupying a room with his wife, were exceedingly bright.

Monday, however, it was discovered that he still loves the woman who betrayed him, and caused his financial ruin, and that he was corresponding with her. A letter which he had entrusted to a man who worked for him fell into the hands of Ed Farrington, the prisoner's brother. It was couched in endearing terms, and as soon as he had finished reading it Ed Farrington announced that he would have nothing more to do with the attempt to secure his brother's pardon, and ordered all the petitions called in. "I think under the circumstances," he said, "the best thing Bert can do is to serve his sentence. By the time he comes out of prison the love which he still bears for the worthless woman may have worn away. Yes, for his own sake I think now that he should serve his full term. I told him what I had done and he was very bitter to ward me at first, but before I left him he handed me his watch and other valuables, and said, 'Ed, perhaps you're right.'"

The friends of the imprisoned man are sore at the way he has "thrown" them, as they call it, and will do nothing more to secure his release, which they were confident they could have accomplished within the next 30 days.

Tekonsha's Mystery Solved.

One of the greatest mysteries connected with the history of Tekonsha has just been solved. June 12, 1901, Orley Hall, a respectable citizen of the village, and a member of the council, disappeared from his home at dead of night. He left a note saying that he was "going on a long journey and would never return; that his grave would never be discovered and that it would be useless to hunt for him." At the time of his disappearance he was just recovering from an operation for appendicitis and could scarcely walk. The community was greatly shocked and mystified over the affair. Searching parties were organized and streams, lakes, forests and the entire country carefully examined, but not a trace of the missing man could be found. It now transpires that, by some assistance he managed to get into a hospital and having recovered his health, put in an appearance at Battle Creek Thursday, March 20, being joined by his wife. The two went to Chicago to make their home with a son. An outstanding reward of $100 by Mrs. Hall and $150 by the county for the discovery of Hall dead or alive, is causing considerable speculation as to who will be entitled to the money since Mrs. Hall herself seems to be the first to discover her husband.

Prame's Sentence Commuted.

Acting on the unanimous recommendation of the advisory board of pardons, Gov. Bliss has commuted to imprisonment for 20 years the sentence of Henry Prame, who was sent from Grand Rapids in July, 1894, to Jackson prison. Prame and Charles McCord received life sentences for the murder of Mrs. Mary McKendrick, an old woman whose home they invaded for the purpose of robbery. The recommendation of the board is based on the fact that McCord, an convict, was the originator of the plan to rob the old woman and induced Prame, who was a drinking man, to accompany him. Prame pleaded guilty to the charge of murder so that the judge had no alternative than to give him a life sentence. He also furnished the story which resulted in the conviction of McCord. The board expressed the opinion that with 12 years yet to serve, Prame will have reached an age where he is not likely to again participate in any crime.

Depositors Get 90 Per Cent.

J. C. W. Rhode, receiver of the defunct Citizens' National bank, of Niles, announces that the affairs of the bank will be wound up by May 1 and that depositors will receive another 10 per cent dividend, making 90 per cent in all. The bank failed in July, 1899, and the capital stock of $50,000 was never assessed, although the stockholders put up $20,000 on the morning of the day of the failure in the hope of averting the impending crash. The total deposits were $12,000.

They Won't Pay the Taxes.

It is admitted in Benton Harbor that the Graham & Morton Transportation Co. will reorganize under the laws of Indiana to escape Michigan taxation of vessel property. Indiana has a tonnage tax law, and the change will save the Graham & Morton company several thousand dollars in taxes each year. The Dunkley company, of South Haven, is already an Indiana corporation.

Alpena's Mystery.

Alpena has a mystery which is the cause of considerable gossip. Ever since Treasurer Fred Hagen fled, city orders to the amount of $53,000 have been missing. Friday evening during the absence of Mayor O'Brien from his home, a man rapped at the door, left a package with Mrs. O'Brien, and telling her that it was for her husband, quickly disappeared. The package proved to be one missing securities.

Rumor says the sugar trust is trying to buy the beet sugar factories at Bay City.

AROUND THE STATE.

It is claimed that oil has been found in the vicinity of Oxford. Six new stores will be built at Orion to replace those destroyed by fire. Dowagiac has changed its principal business thoroughfare from Main street to McKinley avenue.

Central Lake has landed a canning factory, which will be built in time for this year's campaign. A banjo, mandolin and guitar club, as well as a glee club will be formed among the co-eds at Ann Arbor.

Otsego will have a creamery, stock to the amount of $3,000 having been subscribed, and the milk of 60 cows guaranteed by the farmers.

Gen. B. F. Tracy, ex-secretary of the navy, who was suddenly overcome by illness in court Saturday, is reported to be steadily improving. Phineas F. Blake, of Lansing, took 30 grains of morphine and was relieved of both life and marital woes. He was 40 years of age.

The company to operate Augusta's canning factory has been organized. The capital stock is $40,000, of which $3,000 has been paid in.

J. W. Martin's new gas proposition in Pontiac is said to be a winner, over 100 prominent business men having signed within the past few days.

Capt. Seymour Howell, paymaster in the army, whose home is at Adrian, has been relieved from duty at Chicago and ordered to the Philippines.

There are two schools in Ontonagon county which have but two pupils apiece, but the teachers get their $40 per month apiece just the same.

On complaint of the lad's own father, L. W. Eriker, a second-hand dealer of Albion, was arrested for buying stolen goods from a minor. He was assessed a small fine.

State Communicable-Disease Inspector Roney has gone to Rapid River, Delta Co., to investigate an alleged outbreak of smallpox which is not being restricted.

Sheffit Shepherd, of Adrian, took James R. Farrington to Jackson this morning to begin his three-year term for killing Jesse Hooker, the man who ruined his home.

Vicksburgers are counting on having a new depot this spring, basing their hopes on the fact that the railroad company refuses to make any repairs to the present structure.

The stockholders of the Genesee County Savings bank of Flint voted unanimously to renew the bank charter for 30 years from May 1. The bank is a fine dividend payer.

SPEAK OUT.

The Searchlight of Publicity is Pleasing Northville People.

Publicity is what the people want. Let the public speak on the subject. There has been too much claim—too little proof. There is only one kind of proof for a Northville citizen: The experience of people we know. When friends and neighbors endorse, no question about such evidence. This kind of proof backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a case of it: Mrs. J. Palmer of Cady street, husband employed in the lumber yard, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills were used in my family some time ago for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble and they proved to be all that is claimed for them, for in a short time the annoying backache was a thing of the past and the other symptoms of either excited or weakened kidneys disappeared. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. They are a wonderful medicine and one that everybody should know about."

Just such emphatic endorsement is plentiful in Northville. Call at Murdock Bros.' store and ask them what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name. Doan's, and take no substitute.

A PASTOR WHO WAS BEFRIENDED BY AN EMPEROR SAVED BY PE-RU-NA.

REV. H. STUBENVOLL

Rev. H. Stubenvoll, of Elkhorn, Wis., is pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's Church of that place. Rev. Stubenvoll is the possessor of two bibles presented to him by Emperor William of Germany. Upon the fly leaf of one of the bibles the Emperor has written in his own handwriting a text.

This honored pastor in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., says concerning their famous catarrh remedy, Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.
Gentlemen: "I had hemorrhages of the lungs for a long time, and all despaired of me. I took Peruna and was cured. It gave me strength and courage, and made healthy, pure blood. It increased my weight, gave me a healthy color, and I feel well. It is the best medicine in the world. If everyone kept Peruna in the house it would save many from death every year."

Yours very truly,

REV. H. STUBENVOLL.

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is, catarrh is catarrh wherever located, and another fact which is of equally great importance, is that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Catarrh is an American disease. Fully one-half of the people are afflicted more or less with it in some form. Previous to the discovery of Peruna, catarrh was considered well nigh incurable. Since the introduction of Peruna to the medical profession thousands of cases are cured annually.

Mr. W. D. Smith, a well-known grocer of Port Huron, Mich., writes:

"By following your instructions and taking Peruna and Manalin I am cured of catarrh. I had catarrh for twelve years and quite a bad cough so I could not sleep nights. I do not have any cough now, and if I feel anything in the throat I take a swallow of Peruna and I am alright."—W. D. Smith.

Suffered Fifteen Years.
C. F. Gerding, Milburn, Neb., writes: "I contracted a heavy cold about fifteen years ago and tried all kinds of patent medicines and drugs recommended for a cold or heavy cough, but found none to help me until I commenced using Peruna. My age is seventy-eight years, and I am better now than I have been for years. I still keep using your great medicine, and am still improving in health. I recommend it to all sufferers with coughs and colds."—C. F. Gerding.

Peruna, The Greatest Remedy Known For Catarrh.

Mr. Chas. H. Stevens, 97 Seventeenth Street, Detroit, Mich., writes: "It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh. I suffered for some time with chronic nasal catarrh, but after five months' treatment during which time I used seven bottles of Peruna I am pleased to say that I am entirely well, there being not the slightest trace of the catarrh left. Peruna is without doubt the greatest remedy known for catarrh."—Chas. H. Stevens.

Affected Since Childhood With Catarrh.
Mr. Elbert S. Richards, Milburn, Neb., writes:

"I am now sixty-eight years of age, and have from childhood been afflicted with catarrh in the head, and for the past four or five years been much afflicted with it in my eyes; they being watery, would materate a good deal, and stick together in the night. My condition was so fully described in your almanac that I decided to try Peruna.

"I am thankful to say that I now consider myself entirely free from catarrh, and only use Peruna occasionally now as a tonic. Accept my sincere thanks for your personal interest in my case.

"My son, 21 years of age, has been using Peruna for a number of weeks for catarrh in the head and has obtained great relief."—Elbert S. Richards.

Catarrh Thirty Years.
Mr. Andrew Barrett, 940 N. Ridgely Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to testify to the merits of such a worthy remedy for catarrh as your Peruna. I had suffered for thirty years from this very disagreeable disease and had tried many so-called remedies but until I used Peruna none had the desired effect.

"I have been connected with the Chicago Police Department for the past twenty-eight years. I can cheerfully recommend Peruna to anyone suffering from catarrh."—Andrew Barrett.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Mayor Johnson is not yet ready to announce whom he will appoint to have charge of the several village offices. There seems to be no question, however, but that Mr. Taft will be re-appointed marshal. He has certainly made one of the best the village ever had.

Nate Caverly has just completed for his firm of Scherer & Cattermole a harness which in all probability is the finest one ever turned out in this part of the state or ever carried on the back of a Northville horse. It is all hand made from the finest leather to be bought and the mountings are all covered with white celluloid. The harness cost $50 to produce and was made for Mr. Scherer of the above firm.

One of the heaviest of Northville's taxpayers said to the Record this week he believed that it would be in the interest of economy and good business management for the council to appoint a marshal and street commissioner in one person. "By doing that," he said, "the council would have a man right on hand all the time to look after the village's interests and the two jobs combined would just about keep one man busy the year around."

If Mr. Huff receives enough encouragement (financially of course) he will again take position of night watch for the ensuing year. Mr. Huff has proved a very efficient officer during the past two years and that not a single theft or fire has occurred at night among the business places during that period is certainly to his credit. Scarcely another town in the state has been similarly fortunate. The business men of the village as well as the council will make no mistake in employing Mr. Huff for another year.

"Coughed All Night"

We hear that complaint frequently now. It is one easy to believe as a rule, for the speaker generally shows that his rest has been badly broken. Of course, it is always natural for us to tell of the value of White Pine, and we can recommend this preparation with confidence. We have made and sold it for five years, and have scores of people in the neighborhood who are willing to say a good word for it as the opportunity arises. White Pine soothes the inflamed bronchial passages and quickly quiets the annoying hack. It's good for a fresh cold or a chronic one, good for the little fellow who coughs and chokes and gasps; good for his father if he has a cough. Two sizes, 25c and 50c.

HOME AND CHILD
Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference. Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible. Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion. Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.
This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.
