CARNIVOROUS PLANTS

Vegetable Ogres Which Catch and Devour Various Insects.

The most remarkable of all carnivorous plants grows in the state of Maryland. It is commonly known in that region as the "butcher plant," though science calls it Dionea muscipula, and its business is the catching of insects—chiefly flies. At this it is so clever that an unwary fly that ventures to alight upon it has practically no chance to escape immediate death. The leaves of this vegetable curiosity, which creep along the ground in boggy places, are so modified as to take the form of jaws armed with saw-like teeth. Under ordinary conditions the jaws are held wide open, and the whole plant is a waiting bench of traps, waiting for prey. The traps are baited, too, each one of them having on its inside a sweetish substance which is attractive to flies and other such creatures. When a fly comes along it is obliged, in order to get at the sweetish stuff to enter between the jaws of one of the leaves. Each jaw has three almost microscopic hairs, so arranged that a visitor cannot help coming in contact with them—a contact which irritates the intelligent plant that a victim is at hand. Instantly—the hairs acting as feelers—the jaws snap together, imprisoning the unfortunate insect, which is held fast until digested and absorbed by the vegetable ogre.—New York Press

Two Criticisms on Sermons.

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford, rector of St. George's church, New York, derives much enjoyment from the criticisms of his sermons which he hears from time to time. He has an artful way of calling forth these expressions, and enjoys telling of some very frank replies he has received. He recently asked a young parishioner, who is an attentive listener: "Well, Dorothy, how did you like my Advent sermon?"

"It was very peculiar, doctor," replied the precocious 11-year-old. "You read so many texts from the Bible."

The doctor inquired from the services a stern-faced but kindly old woman of New England stock, and sought her out.

"I have not seen you at church lately," he said.

"The fact is, doctor, I have been going to St. ———."

"Don't you like St. George's?" the clergyman asked.

"Yes," was the hesitating reply, "but there is not enough hellfire in your sermons. You are too easy on sinners."

Tired Out

"I was very poorly and could hardly get about the house. I was tired out all the time. Then I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it only took two bottles to make me feel perfectly well."—Mrs. N. S. Swinney, Princeton, Mo.

Tired when you go to bed, tired when you get up, tired all the time. Why? Your blood is impure, that's the reason. You are living on the border line of nerve exhaustion. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and be quickly cured.

31 00 a bottle.
All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and you will be satisfied.

After the Beet Sugar Factories.

It is understood that the sugar refining trust, on parties closely allied thereto, have made overtures to the ex-Killbuck sugar beet plants in the Saginaw Valley. The proposition being to take over 51 per cent of the stock, the remainder to be held by the local people. President Benoyer of the Saginaw Sugar Co., in a general conversation, said that "something is going on but I am not at liberty just now to give any information." The Churchill factory in Bay City is included in the list, as is the Alma factory. W. R. Burr, a large stockholder in the Alma factory, says that there has been talk of this kind but he is not aware that it has yet reached the point of consummation. Much apprehension is felt here that the passing of the local factories into the hands of the trust means the destruction of the industry.

Mr. Penoyer and other local stockholders in sugar companies, laugh at the proposition. They say that it will be to the advantage of the owners of the factories to operate them, since they will be able to produce a better quality of sugar than the trust could. They will be no more in the country and there will be no more sugar for the trust to ship to the coast.

It is to the greater advantage of the trust to control the output than to attempt its destruction.

May Get 50 Per Cent.

Short $2,700.

The expert who examined the books of Martin Kallander, deceased, treasurer of Gogebic county, reports a shortage of $2,700 in his accounts. He had been using the county's funds in his own private business, no doubt with the intention of making the shortage good before the expiration of his term of office, next January. When his books were examined by the county auditors last October they found no shortage, because Kallander had deposited enough money to square himself, but immediately after the examination the money was withdrawn, having probably been borrowed for that purpose.

Easter Bonnets Spoiled.

T. C. Becker, an Albion dry goods man, had occasion to stop in at his store Thursday night to get an umbrella, as it was raining. When he stepped inside he found that it was more than raining there. A family pipe overhead had sprung a leak, and was drenching everything in sight. He summoned help and they worked until 4 o'clock in the morning removing goods to places of safety. All his fine Easter stock was ruined and the loss will reach several thousand dollars.

Fire in Durand.

Durand people turned out at 3 o'clock Thursday morning to see a large frame house burn down. It was located just out of the corporation limits, and occupied by Nellie Hamilton and two other females. The house was well furnished, and the furniture dealers lose. A piano and a music box were lost. The females escaped without enough clothes to appear on the streets with. Miss Hamilton claims the house was set on fire. Others bear her out in this statement.

Lots of Smallpox Still.

Reports to the state board of health from representative physicians in active practice in various parts of the state indicate that rheumatism, bronchitis, influenza, neuralgia, and tonsillitis, in the order named, caused most sickness in Michigan during the past week. Meningitis was reported at five places, whooping cough at 18, diphtheria at 25, typhoid fever at 102, measles at 76, scarlet fever at 102, smallpox at 158 and consumption at 211.

The fish boat of John Lundgren was swamped in Lake Michigan while trying to make Saugatuck harbor Saturday morning, and John Lundgren, Jr., aged 23, drowned. His brother reached shore exhausted. Their father stood on the shore watching them, and his distress was pitiful to witness. The body was recovered.

It is estimated that 130,000 logs will come down the Menominee river this season.

Montague will give a cash bonus of $3,000 to secure the location of a furniture factory in the village.

Grand Rapids Crimes.

From one to seven homes have been robbed in Grand Rapids every night for the past two weeks, but hitherto the burglars have taken nothing but money. The police are making strenuous efforts to catch the robbers, but as yet there seems to be no clue to their identity. In early every instance the burglars have been committed when the families were absent.

The body of an eight or nine months' old baby was found in a basket in the river at Grand Rapids by Claude Brown, a fisherman, Thursday afternoon, and turned over to Coroner Wright. The baby was covered by a coffee sack and the basket weighed down with stones. The basket was found in shallow water, and it is believed was placed in the river farther up stream than where it was found.

Fire at Highland Park.

How the Highland Park training tables just outside Detroit, which were destroyed by fire early Saturday morning, came to be burned is still a mystery. The entire loss will reach $25,000. Mr. Colby lost two coats, and a number of vehicles and considerable harness. Their value he places at $1,500. Among the horses burned were: Red Royal, 2-24 1-2, owned by W. W. Collier and valued at $5,000; The King, 2-26 1-2, a trotter valued at $2,000; Harry P., 2-23 1-4, value $2,500; Maud in Queen, pacer, 2-13 1-4, valued at $2,000; Moneo, trotter, 2-32 1-3, valued at $3,000; Marie, trotter, valued at $1,500 beside eleven colts. These were owned by different horsemen in and out of Detroit who had left them at the stables for training or for safe keeping.

Henry A. Taylor.

Henry A. Taylor, the young eastern millionaire who was found guilty of complicity in the Grand Rapids water deal, appeared before Judge Newham in the Superior Court Friday afternoon, and submitting to the sentence of the court paid a fine of $2,000 and was released from custody. Taylor, the Connecticut man who sent $100,000 to Grand Rapids to be used in securing a water contract with the city, and although he pleaded that all but $20,000 was returned to him, was sentenced to pay a fine of $2,000 and a small portion of it back, if any.

McGarry's End Fix.

Thomas P. McGarry, whose trial under indictment for conspiracy in the Grand Rapids water boodle scheme, has submitted every means to escape trial before Judge Newham. At a conference of attorneys and Judge Newham it is reported that McGarry made a proposition to take no action for venue if the judge would promise to let him off with a fine without a jail sentence, as in the case of Taylor, if convicted. It is said Judge Newham would make no promises.

A Game Report.

The fine weather of March resulted in an unusually large number of violations of the fish laws, says Game and Fish Warden Morse in his monthly report. There were 68 prosecutions, of which only six were for violation of the game laws. The birds and deer have wintered well, it is reported, and the latter have suffered severely from wolves.

Will Be Blind.

It is alleged that in a quarrel during a baseball game Charles and Max Curtis and Raymond Powell, of Niles, aged about 16 years, stoned 11-year-old Enoch Letcher.

The latter's condition is very serious, and the physician says that if he recovers he probably will be blind.

The three alleged assailants have been arrested.

Censured the Senators.

The executive committee of the state grange has adopted resolutions censuring the Michigan senators for their vote on the ship subsidy bill; also urging the adoption of the bill calling for the election of senators by direct vote of the people, and urging the Michigan senators to support the amendment.

AROUND THE STATE.

The cash balance in the state treasury at the close of business March 1, was $3,027,549 57.

Grand Rapids landlords have agreed to advance rents on all stores and dwelling houses 10 per cent on April 1.

Osego county farmers will have a chance to prove whether they believe in good roads or not at the township election next week.

Michigan's interest claim in the Spanish war claim it is learned, will not exceed $100,000 the federal government having quickly paid off the principal.

Rev. J. P. de B. Kay, of Ironwood, has tendered his resignation as chaplain of the Third Regiment to Adj. Gen. Brown, because of his removal from the state.

Sportsmen of Barry and Eaton counties have formed an organization with the object of securing a better enforcement of the laws for the protection of fish and game.

Tennessee Loses Millions by Great Floods.

DEATH BY FLOOD AND STORMS.

How the Ragging Rains Swept Through Tennessee Carrying Destruction of Life and Property—A Pennsylvania Church
Euroofed and Many Injured.

Disaster in Pennsylvania.

One of the fiercest wind storms ever known in the section struck Pittsburgh Sunday just before noon and did almost incalculable damage to property and injured many people, some of whom may die from the effects of their wounds. Scores of houses were unroofed, many trees were blown down, mill stacks toppled over and telegraph and telephone wires generally disabled. The most serious accident reported was the unroofing of the Knoxville Presbyterian church, in Knoxville. The church at the time was filled with an Easter congregation numbering about 600 persons. While the minister was in the midst of his sermon, a particularly strong gust of wind blew over the large chimney and lifted a portion of the roof of the building. The bricks from the chimney crashed through the roof and carried a huge piece of the hardwood ceiling, measuring about 40x20 feet, down upon the worshippers in the pews. An indescribable panic ensued, and a frantic rush was made for the doors and windows. The excitement was soon quieted, and the work of rescue begun. At least forty persons were caught by the wreckage and more or less hurt. Of this number five may not recover.

The Tennessee Floods.

Reports from the flooded districts of Tennessee emphasize the gravity of the situation. The damage resulting, it is believed, will reach $4,000,000, while twenty-two lives are known to have been lost. Several counties, certain to have suffered heavily, are still cut off from communication, and the loss in property and life may go higher than these figures. The section visited by the flood embraces one of the richest portions of the state, and the damage to farm lands is a serious item. It includes counties lying between the mountains on the east and the Tennessee river, on the west, and between the Cumberland river and the Alabama line. Stone fences that have stood the storms of forty years were washed away in many of the well known riverside farms of Lincoln county, and crops have been destroyed.

A Little Friend's Deed.

Daniel Rosenbecker, the 13-year-old boy, of Toledo, O., who killed his playmate Arthur Shanteau aged 7, will not be tried for murder, as he is under the age of legal accountability which is 14 years. Rosenbecker sticks to his story that he killed Shanteau because he called him a vile name and attacked him with a club, but he will give no details. The entire left side of the Shanteau boy's face, including a part of the jaw and tongue, was chopped off. A part of the jaw was found on the top of the Rosenbecker roof while another part of it was found near the hog pen where it had been covered up. The tongue has not yet been found.

Guthrie's Heavy Loss.

Guthrie, Ok., was visited Sunday by a $350,000 fire and as a result the State Capital printing plant, the Hotel Capitol, the St. James hotel the Cammack livery barn and the Richey general merchandise store are in ruins. Everything in the Capital plant was destroyed, including two presses, machines of every kind, linotype machines, electric and steam heating systems, libraries and a large stock of supplies. Frank H. Greer, the owner, states that the total loss is $250,000. Not a thing but mailing lists of the paper was saved. The loss in the other building will make the entire loss to the town fully $350,000.

MANY RELIABLE WITNESSES

Prove That Old Cases of Chronic Catarrh can be Cured.

A Medicine That Will Cure Cases of Catarrh of Long Standing Deserves a Very High Place in the Annals of Medical Discovery.

Such a Medicine is Peruna.

THOUSANDS of testimonials are pouring in every day of old cases of chronic catarrh that have resisted all treatment for years, being promptly and permanently cured by Peruna.

These reports do not all come from obscure places, signed by obscure people. A large proportion of these letters are written by men and women prominent in business and professional circles and many of them well known from ocean to ocean.

Colonel John Franklin Waters occupies a prominent position among the leading trial lawyers of Chicago. He has probably obtained more verdicts against corporations in suits for personal injuries than any man of his age in the United States, and during his practice of over fifteen years he has not lost a single case in the Supreme Courts of Illinois and Missouri. He is a hard worker and has the energy of four men.

For a number of years he had been afflicted with chronic catarrh and having recently been thoroughly cured of his old affection, an interview was obtained with him by one of our reporters in which he gave the following statement to the public:

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 6, 1900.
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"It gives me great pleasure to testify to the merits of such a worthy remedy for catarrh as your Peruna. I had suffered for a number of years from this very disagreeable disease and had tried many so-called remedies, but until I used Peruna none had the desired effect. I feel that I am perfectly cured and can cheerfully recommend Peruna to any one suffering from catarrh."

JOHN F. WATERS.
120 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Another case equally well-known in Chicago, is reported through a letter from a veteran Railroad man.

COLONEL JOHN FRANKLIN WATERS, OF CHICAGO.

J. H. LYONS.

Captain John H. Lyons, of Chicago, passenger agent for various railroad companies for the past twenty-four years, connected with the Postoffice Department for six years, the Police Department for six years, and at present connected with the Grand Trunk railroad, had a similar case. He is a veteran soldier and a prominent member of G. A. R. Camp No. 102. Captain John H. Lyons, 1612 Prairie Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "For twenty years I suffered with chronic catarrh but thanks to Peruna I am now entirely cured. "It affords me much pleasure to make a statement in behalf of your meritorious remedy, Peruna. I have used same for catarrh and have found it to be all you claim for it. I had suffered for twenty years. I cheerfully recommend Peruna to anyone suffering from catarrh, as I believe that, as in my case, it will prove a sure cure."—Captain John H. Lyons. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, for instructive free literature on catarrh.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

In many respects Al. W. Martin's Uncle Tom's Cabin is the most important of the season's production. In the first place it serves to exploit the masterpieces of two of Europe's noted artists, i. e. Ralph Brunst's elaborate painting entitled "The Celestial City" and Martz Verion's picture of the New Orleans slave mart; and secondly, it has brought back into prominence the memories of that grand old lady, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and served to reveal the beautiful lessons really to be learned by careful attention. The Martin revival will be brought to the Whitney Opera House April 6. A special train of cars is required for the production's transportation.

Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

David H. Hunt's Pike Theatre Co. of Cincinnati, will open its third successive season April 6 at the Lyceum in Anthon Hope's charming romantic comedy-drama "The Prisoner of Zenda." The company will bring with it this season the favorites of former years. This production is complete in every way, the stage settings be of the most elaborate style and the costumes entirely new. The spirited story of Rudolph Rassend and his adventures while posing as the imprisoned king of Ruritania have no equal as the plot for a play. The company carries fine carloads of stage settings and costumes. Beginning with this engagement the price for best seats in the evening will be 25c and 50c and for matinees 25c.

Yes, and Monk's the boy who can find 'em, too. But as Kipling says, that's another story. What we want to drum into your think-tank is the fact that we can save you good dollars on what lumber and building material you're going to need this season.

No matter what you want, nor how much of it nor how little, if you're particular about the quality and the price, here's the place to buy it.

"Coughed All Night"

We hear that complaints frequently now. It is one easy to believe as a rule, for the speaker generally shows that his rest has been badly broken. Of course, it is always natural for us to tell of the value of White Pine, and we can recommend this preparation with confidence. We have made and sold it for five years and have scores of people in the neighborhood who are willing to say a good word for it as the opportunity arises. White Pine soothes the inflamed bronchial passages and quickly quiets the annoying hack. It's good for a fresh cold or a chronic one, good for the little fellow who coughs and chokes and gasps, good for his father if he has a cough. Two sizes, 25c and 50c.

No fees will be charged and it is our desire to make this a purely informal social affair. All members of the B. Y. F. U. and all interested in our B. Y. F. U. are invited to be present on this occasion.

Provide Against Deception.

In dealing with the famine in southern Russia the authorities have adopted a novel method of testing the needs of the hungry. They tap the bodies of the hungry folk, and if any one is found well fed he is denied the assistance of the famine funds and sent to prison to expiate his crime.

An American Wife.

The story here related is so typical of our distinguished representative at the court of St. James that one would have no hesitancy in vouching for its genuineness. A semi-state reception was given at the residence of a certain lord in London, our inimitable Choate in his "court dress" of plain broadcloth was extremely inconspicuous in comparison with the gold-laced and insignia-decorated representatives of other countries. When the night was waning one of the departing guests, whose indulgence probably made him forget that English lackeys on such occasions were the livery of their office, approached Mr. Choate and requested him to call him a cab. The response was a blank stare. Upon his repeating the request, "Won't you call me a cab, please?" Mr. Choate responded, "Certainly. You're a cab." Imagine the indignation of the insulted Englishman, who, upon making complaint to the host, was asked as a favor to point out the offender. After a search through the crowded saloons the Englishman was quite at the elbow of Mr. Choate when he exclaimed: "That's the man!" The whispered reply: "Why, that's the United States ambassador" — Philadelphia Telegraph.

All Hands Are Smoking.

Tobacco is in the vanguard of a great industry. One evening some of our party of sixteen were handsomely given a night's shelter, Mexican fashion, at a hacienda or rancho. Hotels—except in the large towns—are unknown. Sitting on the wide veranda to receive us we beheld the entire family. On the right of the door was the lady of the house in a white cotton gown, smoking a cigar, below her were the daughter and hand maids, also smoking. On the other side of the door was the ranchero or master himself, with his sons and men servants, says Fortnightly Review. Every one was employed in rolling the tobacco leaf into cigars and every one was smoking, including a little boy not quite three-years old, who had a full-sized cigar in his baby mouth, which he puffed at most professionally, while in his left hand he held a banana from which he took bites between the puffs, occasionally stopping to play with a small puppy dog. "Does he often smoke?" I asked in amazement. "Si, señor, he smokes three or four cigars a day, all our children have done so at that age." Adaptability of temperament to climate!

A Generous Millionaire.

Three young women of Bound Brook, N. J., went to New Brunswick to attend the theater there, intending to catch the last trolley home. They did not know that the time table on the line had been changed that day, and when the performance was over they were in a bad fix. In some way Edward H. Radel, the millionaire manager of the road, heard of the trouble. He took them home himself in a special trolley car and came back alone.

Worth of a Compliment.
Most compliments sound something like this: "They say he is a thief, but he never stole anything from me. It may be because I have watched him closely but so far I have never missed anything." "When you feel that your friend deserves praise, why pay tribute to his enemies in praising him?"

A Nearly Fatal Runaway.
Started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill., which defied doctors and all remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Just as good for Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c at Geo. C. Hueston's drug store.

Kaiser Declares Himself.
When Representative Bartholdt of St. Louis went abroad recently he was given an audience by the kaiser. He introduced himself as a German-American. "I don't know you, then," the kaiser is said to have replied. "If you are an American you are not my subject and if a German you are. I do not recognize German-Americans."

Saved Many a Time.
Don't neglect coughs and colds even if it is spring. Such cases often result seriously at this season just because people are careless. A dose of One Minute Cough Cure will remove all danger. Absolutely safe. Acts at once. Sure cure for coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, and other troubles. "I have used One Minute Cough Cure several years," says Postmaster C. O. Dawson, Barrill. Monument to General Harrison.
A Tippecanoe monument will be erected in the memory of Gen. William Henry Harrison's defeat of his savage adversary, Tecumseh, Nov. 11, 1811, at the confluence of the Tippecanoe and Wabash rivers, in Indiana. Congress is to be asked to appropriate $50,000.

The Great Dismal Swamp.
Of Virginia is a breeding ground of malaria germs. So is low, wet or marshy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial trouble. They will surely prevent typhoid. "We tried many remedies for Malaria and Stomach and Liver trouble," writes John Charleston, of Asheville, O., "but never found anything as good as Electric Bitters." Try them. Only 50c Geo. C. Hueston guarantees satisfaction.

Mrs. Clover's Courtesy.
But one American woman courted to President Roosevelt on the occasion of the recent diplomatic reception, Mrs. Clover, daughter of W. A. Clark, the millionaire senator from Montana, executed a bended-knee bow before the chief magistrate of the nation, which was so elaborate and prolonged that it delayed for the better part of a minute the line of guests waiting to be presented to Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt. Courtesy is common at diplomatic receptions, however. The greater number of the ladies connected with the foreign embassies and legations bring their court manners with them just as they wear their court clothes. They greet the President of the United States as if he were a ruler born by right. But American women proffer their hands to the President and bow—perhaps a little lower than if they were meeting an acquaintance on the street. Mrs. Clover, who has resided much abroad and mingled with European society, attained her proficiency in making a courtesy while across the water.

Walled Lake News.

D. B. Moyer of Walled Lake is an enthusiastic fisherman. "One of the best game laws ever enacted by the legislature," says Moyer, "was the measure passed at the last session prohibiting the catching of bass in Michigan until May 30th. Formerly the bass were yanked off the spawning beds and as a result the lakes and rivers were rapidly being depopulated. Every true sportsman rejoices over this law."

Money Spent for Fireworks.

Enormous sums are spent on fireworks every year both in this country and abroad. The amount of money that is burned up on an average American Fourth of July has never been calculated, but in England it has been estimated that $500,000 is spent on each Guy Fawkes day. On the occasion of Queen Victoria's jubilee no less than $1,250,000 was expended. When Victoria was proclaimed empress of India Delhi had a display which cost $15,000 and India spent in fireworks during the visit of the prince of Wales in 1875 over $100,000.

Who Pays the Printer?

When you go around from printer to printer getting bids on a job, and then giving it to the lowest bidder, you get an indifferently good job—one with no particularly good points—one that sells no goods for you, then who pays the printer?

YOU DO.

When you pick out a good printer, giving him all your work, educating him to an idea of your needs, and paying a fair price for the work you get, your printer (when secured at the Record Printery) necessarily creates a favorable impression for you and for what you offer, and becomes a factor in selling your goods. Then who pays the printer? Your customer.

The Lost Continent

By CUTCLIFFE HYNE.

Published by Harper & Bros.

Copyright, 1900, by Cutcliffe Hyne.

Still the earth shook beneath us, and masonry roared and crashed into ruin. I had to cling to my place with one hand while I unheaped the clamps of metal that made the top of her prison with the other. But at last I swung the upper half of them clear, and those which pinned down her feet I let remain. I stooped and drew her soft body up on to the flat of the stone beside me, and pressed my lips a hundred times to the face I could not see.

Some mad thought took me, I believe, that the mere fierceness and heat of my kisses would bring her back again to life and wakefulness. Indeed, I will own plainly that I did but sorry credit to my training, in calmness that night. But she lay in my arms cold and nerveless as a corpse, and by degrees my sober wits returned to me.

This was no place for either of us. Let the earth's tremor cease (as was plainly threatened), let daylight come, and let a few of these nerveless people round recover from their panic, and all the great cost that had been expended might be counted as vast. We should be seen and it would not be long before some one put a name to Nais; and then it would be an easy matter to guess at Deucalion under the beard and the shaggy hair and the browned nakedness of the savage who attended on her. Tell of fright? By the gods! I was scared as the very tremor who blundered among the dust-clouds that night when the thought came to me.

It was hard to find a direction; it was hard to walk in that ink darkness over the ground that was tossed and tumbled like a frozen sea; and as the earth still quaked and heaved, it was hard also to keep a footing. But if I did fall myself a score of times my dear burden got no bruise, and presently I got to the skirts of the square and found a street I knew. The most venomous part of the shaking was done, and no more buildings fell, but enough lay sprawled over the roadway to make walking into a climb, and the sweat rolled from me as I labored along my way.

There was no difficulty about passing the gate. There was no gate. There was no wall. The gods had driven their plow through it, and it lay flat, and proud Atlantis stood as defenseless as the open country. Though I knew the cause of this ruin, though in fact I had myself in some measure incited it, I was almost sad at the ruthlessness with which it had been carried out. The royal pyramid might go, houses and palaces might be leveled, and for these I cared little enough; but when I saw those stately ramparts also felled away, there the soldier in me woke, and I grieved at this humbling of the mighty city that once had been my only mistress.

But this was only a passing regret, a mere touch of the fighting-man's pride. I had a different love now, that had wrapped herself round me far deeper and more tightly, and my duty was towards her first and foremost.

WE TOOK THE GIRL AND LAID HER ON A BED IN ONE OF THE HOUSES

The night would soon be past, and then dangers would increase. None had interfered with us so far, though many had jostled us as we clambered over the ruins; but this forbearance could not be reckoned upon for long. The earth-tremors had almost died away, and after the panic and the storm, then comes the time for the spoiling.

All men who were poor would try to seize what lay nearest to their hands, and those of higher station, and any soldiers who could be collected and still remained true to command, would ruthlessly stop and strip any man they saw making off with plunder. I had no mind to clash with these guardians of law and property, and so I fled on swiftly through the night with my burden, using the unfrequented ways, and crying to the few folk who did meet me that the woman had the plague, and would they lend me the shelter of their house, as ours had fallen. And so in time we came to the place where the rope dangled from the precipice, and after Nais had been drawn up to the safety of the Sacred Mountain, I put my leg in the loop of the rope and followed her.

Now came what was the keenest anxiety of all. We took the girl and laid her on a bed in one of the houses, and there in the lit room for the first time I saw her clearly. Her beauty was drawn and pale. Her eyes were closed, but so thin and transparent had grown the lids that one could almost see the brown of the pupils beneath them. Her hair had grown to inordinate thickness and length, and lay as a cushion behind and beside her head.

There was no flicker of breath; there was none of that pulsing of the body which denotes life; but still she had not the appearance of ordinary death. The Nais I had placed nine long years before to rest in the hollow of the stone was a fine grown woman, full-bodied and well-boned. The Nais that remained for me was half her weight. The old Nais it would have puzzled me to carry for an hour; this was no burden to impede a grown man.

In other ways too she had altered. The nails of her fingers had grown to such a great length that they were twisted in spirals, and the fingers themselves and her hands were so waxy and transparent that the bony core upon which they were built showed itself beneath the flesh in plain dull outline. Her clay-colored lips were so white that one sighed to remember the full beauty of their carmine. Her shoulders and neck had lost their comely curves, and made bony hollows now in which the dust of entombment lodged black and thickly.

Reverently I set about preparing those things which if all went well would restore her. I heated water and filled a bath, and dined it heavily with those essences of the life of beasts which the priests extract and store against times of urgent need and sickness. I laid her chin-deep in this bath, and sat beside it to watch, maintaining that bath at a constant blood heat.

An hour I watched; two hours I watched; three hours—and yet she showed no flicker of life. The heat of her body given her by the bath was the same as the heat of my own. But in the feel of her skin when I stroked it with my hand there was something lacking still. Only when our Lord the Sun rose for his day did I break off my watching, while I said the necessary prayer which is prescribed, and quickly returned again to the gloom of the house.

It is hard to take note of small changes which occur with infinitesimally when one is all the while on the tense watch, and, high-strung though my senses were, I think there must have been some indication of returning life shown before I was keen enough to notice it. For of a sudden, as I gazed, I saw a faint upping on the surface of the water of the bath. Gods! would it come back again to my love at last—this life, this wakefulness! The ripple died out as it had come, and I stooped my head nearer to the bath to try if I could see some faint heaving of her bosom, some small twitching of the limbs. No, she lay there still without even a flutter of movement. But as I watched, surely it seemed to my peering eyes that some tinge was beginning to warm that blank whiteness of skin?

How I filled myself with that sight. The color was returning to her again beyond a doubt. Once more the dried blood was becoming fluid and beginning again to course in its old channels. Her hair floated out in the liquid of the bath like some brown tangle of the ocean weed, and ever and again it twitched and eddied to some impulse which in itself was too small for the eye to see.

She had slept for nine long years, and I knew that the awakening could be none of the suddenest. Indeed it came by its own gradations and with infinite slowness, and I did not dare do more to hasten it. Further drugs might very well stop eternally what those which had been used already had begun. So I sat motionless where I was, and watched the color come back, and the waxiness go, and even the fullness of her curves in some small measure return. And when growing strength gave her power to endure them, and she was racked with those pains which are inevitable to being borne back again in this fashion to life, I, too, felt the reflex of her agony, and writhed in loving sympathy.

Still further, too, was I wrung by a torment of doubt as to whether life or these rackings would in the end be conqueror. After each paroxysm the color ebbed back from her again, and for awhile she would be motionless. But strength and power seemed gradually to grow, and at last these prevailed, and drove death and sleep beneath them. Her eyelids struggled with their fastenings. Her lips parted, and her bosom heaved. With shivering gasps her breath began to pant between her reddening lips. At first it rattled dryly in her throat, but soon it softened and became more regular. And then with a last effort her eyes, her glorious, loving eyes, slowly opened.

I leaned over and called her softly by name. Her eyes met mine, and a glow arose from their depths that gave me the greatest joy I have met in all the world. "Deucalion, my love," she whispered. "Oh, my dear, so you have come for me. How I have dreamed of you! How I have been racked! But it was worth it all for this!"

CHAPTER XVI.

STORM OF THE SACRED MOUNTAIN
It was Nais herself who sent me to attend to my sterner duties. The din of the attack came to us in the house where I was tending her, and she asked its meaning. As pathos as might be for she was in no condition for tedious listening, I gave her the history of her nine-years' sleep.

The color flushed more to her face. "My lord is the properest man in all the world to be king," she whispered.

She closed her eyes then, lying back among the cushions where I had placed her, and dropped off into healthy sleep, with the smiles still playing upon her lips. I put the coverlet over her, and kissed her lightly, holding back my head lest it should sweep her cheek. And then I went out of the chamber.

That beard had grown vastly disagreeable to me these last hours, and I then went into a room in the house, and found instruments, and shaved it down to the bare chin. A change of robe also I found there, and took it instead of my squalid rags. If a man is in truth a king, he owes these things to the dignity of his office.

But, if the din of the fighting was any guide, mine was a narrowing kingdom. Every hour it seemed to grow fiercer and more near, and it was clear that some of the gates in the passage up the cliff, impregnable though all men had thought them, had yielded to the vehemence of Phorenice's attack. And, indeed, it was scarcely to be marvelled at. With all her genius spurred on to fury by the blow that had been struck at her by wrecking so fair a part of the city, the empress would be no light adversary even for a strong place to resist, and the Sacred Mountain was no longer strong.

Defenses of stone, cunningly planned and mightily built, it still possessed, but these will not fight alone. They need men to line them, and, moreover, abundance of men. For always in a storm of this kind some desperate fellows will spit at death and get to hand grips, or slingers and archers slip in their shot, or the throwing-fire gets home, or (as here) some new fangled machine like Phorenice's fire tubes make one in a thousand of their wavering darts find the life, and so though the general attacking losses in hundreds, the defenders also are not without their dead.

The slaughter, as it turned out, had been prodigious. As fast as the stormers came up, the priests who held the lowest gate remaining to us rained down great rocks upon them till the narrow alley of the stair was paved with their writhing dead. But Phorenice stood on a spur of the rock below them urging on the charges, and with an insane valor company after company marched up to hurl themselves hopelessly against the defenses.

They had no machines to batter the massive gates, and their attack was as pathetically useless as that of a child who hammers against a wall with an orange; and meanwhile the terrible stones from above mowed them down remorselessly.

Company after company of the troops marched into this terrible death trap, and not a man of all of them ever came back. Nor was it Phorenice's policy that they should do so. In her lust for this final conquest, she was minded to pour out troops till she had filled up the passes with the slain, so that at last she might march on to a level fight over the bridge of their poor bodies. It was no part of Phorenice's mood ever to count the cost. She set down the object which was to be gained, and it was her policy that the people of Atlantis were there to gain it for her.

Two gates then had she carried in this dreadful fashion, slaughtering those priests that stood behind them who had not been already shot down. And here I came down from above to take my share in the fight. There was no trumpet to announce my coming, no herald to proclaim my quality, but the priests as a sheer custom picked up "Deucalion!" as a battle cry, and some shouted that, with a king to lead, there would be no further ground lost.

It was clear that the name carried to the other side and bore weight with it. A company of poor, doomed wretches who were hurrying up stopped in their charge. The word "Deucalion!" was banded round and handed back down the line. I thought, with some grim satisfaction, that here was evidence I was not completely forgotten in the land.

There came shouts to them from behind to carry on their advance; but they did not budge; and presently a glittering officer panted up, and commenced to strike right and left among them with his sword. From where I stood on the high rampart above the gate I could see him plainly and recognized him at once.

"It matters not what they use for their battle cry," he was shouting. "You have the orders of your divine empress, and that is enough. You should be proud to die for her wish, you cowards. And if you do not wish, you will be afterwards under the instruments of the tormentors, very painfully. As for Deucalion, he is dead any time these nine years."

"There it seems you lie, my Lord Tatho!" I shouted down to him. He started and looked up at me. "So you are there in real truth, then? Well, old comrade, I am sorry. But it is too late to make a composition now. You are on the side of these mangy priests, and the empress has made an edict that they are to be rooted out, and I am her most obedient servant."

"You used to be skilful of fence," I said, and indeed there was little enough to choose between us. "If it please you to stop this pitiful killing, make yourself the champion of your side, and I will stand for mine, and we will fight out this quarrel in some fair place, and bind our parties to abide by the result."

chief. You are not even one of the three."

"I am king."

Tatho laughed. "Few but yourself would say so, my lord."

"Few, truly, but what they are they are powerful. I was given the name for the first time yesterday, and as a first blow in the campaign there was some mischief done in the city. I was there myself, and saw how you took it."

"You were in Atlantis!"

"I went for Nais. She is on the mountain now, and to-morrow will be my queen. Tatho, as a priest to a priest, let me solemnly bring to your memory the infinite power you bite against on this Sacred Mountain. Your teaching has warned you of the weapons that are stored in the Ark of the Mysteries. If you persist in this attack, at the best you can merely lose; at the worst you can bring about a wreck over which even the high gods will shudder as they order it."

"You cannot scare us back now by words," said Tatho, doggedly. "And as for magic, it will be met by magic. Phorenice has found by her own cleverness as many powers as were ever stored up in the Ark of the Mysteries."

"Yet she looked on helplessly enough last night, when her royal pyramid was trundled into a rubbish heap. Zaeonon had prophesied that this should be so, and for a witness, why, I myself stood closer to her than we two stand now, and saw her."

"I will own you took her by surprise somewhat there. I do not understand these matters myself; I was never more than one of the seven in the old days; and now, quite rightly, Phorenice keeps the knowledge of her magic to herself, but it seems time is needed when one magic is to be met by another."

"Well," I said, "I know little about the business either. I leave these matters now to those who are higher above me in the priesthood. Indeed, having a liking for Nais, it seems I am debarr'd from ever being given understanding about the highest of the high mysteries. So I content myself with being a soldier, and when the appointed day comes, I shall fall and kiss my mother the earth for the last time. You, so I am told, have ambition for longer life."

He nodded. "Phorenice has found the Great Secret, and I am to be the first that will share it with her. We shall be as gods upon the earth, seeing that death will be powerless to touch us. And the twin sons she has borne me will be made immortal also."

"Phorenice is headstrong. No, my lord, there is no need to shake your head and try to deny it. I have had some acquaintance with her. But the order has been made, and her immortality will be snatched from her very rudely. Now mark solemnly my words. I, Deucalion, have been appointed king of Atlantis by the high council of the priests who are the mouthpiece of the most high gods, and if I do not have my reign, then there will be no Atlantis left to carry either king or empress. You know me, Tatho, for a man that never lies."

He nodded. "Then save yourself before it is too late. You shall have again your victory in Yucatan."

"But, man, there is no Yucatan. A great horde of little hairy creatures, that were something less than human and something more than beasts, swept down upon our cities and ate them out. Oh, you may sneer if you choose. Others sneered when I came home, till the empress stopped them. But you know what a tram of driver-ants is that you meet with in the forests? You may light fires across their path, and they will march into them in their blind bravery, and put them out with their bodies, and those that are left will march on in an unbroken column, and devour all that stands in their path. I tell you, my lord, those little hairy creatures were like ants—aye, for numbers and wooden bravery, as well as for appetite. As a result, today there is no Yucatan."

"You shall have Egypt, then?"

He burst at me hotly. "I would not take seven Egypts and ten Yucatans. My lord, you think more poorly of me than is kind when you ask me to become a traitor. In your place would you throw your Nais away if the doing it would save you from a danger?"

"That is different." "In no degree. You have a kindness for her. I have all that and more for Phorenice, who is, besides, my wife and the mother of my children. If I have qualms—and I freely confess I know you are desperate men up there, and have dreadful powers at your command—my shiverings are for them and not for myself. But I think, my lord, this parley is leading to nothing, and though these common soldiers here will understand little enough of our talk, they may be picking up a word here and there, and I do not wish them to go on to their death (as you will see them do shortly) and carry evil reports about me to whatever gods they chance to come before."

Suburban News.

J. E. Crawford has been re-appointed postmaster at Milford.

Holly has a new bank building in process of construction, to cost nearly $5,000 and is proportionately elated thereat.

The Wayne Review is getting to be a clipper. The caption of its extract column is "Scissorations" which is certainly a sheer originality.

The Farmington Enterprise last week mentioned "an accident that was purely accidental." So few of 'em are that way, don't you know.

Ann Arbor has a local ice trust but the citizens are going to keep cool about it, as they are assured it doesn't mean any advance in prices to the consumer.

A Wyandotte man had the temerity during the beautiful weather of last week to predict the recent "blizzard." Every body ought to give him the "big mitt."

Fifty-two Smiths get their mail through the South Lyon post-office, and it is not stated that the unabridged report includes any blacksmiths, gunsmiths, or tinsmiths. And South Lyon isn't a very big place either.

"In spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." Among last week's marriage licenses, two, one in Oakland and one in Wayne county, were issued in which the age of each of the parties was over 50 years.

A Farmington attorney has just secured $100 from the P. M. railway as compensation for a broken ankle belonging to William Jesse and as the company threw in a good position in the bargain William found things arranged Jesse wanted 'em.

Dressing is a strenuous operation at Carleton. A man down there burst a blood vessel during the process last week, but The Times does not state whether it was on account of his trying to put on too much style, or whether his clothes were too small in any way it wasn't caused by a fit.

Plymouth people are about to enlarge their educational facilities by constructing a $40,000 addition to their village school building. The number of pupils has for some time been too large for present accommodation and an adjacent building has had to be utilized besides the basement of the school house.

A pair of horses at South Lyon so far forgot the grave nature of their occupation one day last week as to run away with a hearse. Fortunately the only occupant of the somber vehicle during the anomalous excursion was the driver, who was lucky enough not to be transformed into an inside passenger, but escaped with a few bruises, and a little "coughin'."

The Wyandotte Herald brags about three divorces granted in an hour down that way, but Washtenaw county discounts that record completely by reducing two marriages to their component parts in 15 minutes. The mills of the gods may grind slowly and exceeding small, but the work of the modern divorce mill will not answer to that description.

Pontiac factories are doing such a big lot of business in the manufacture of vehicles that the local freight handling facilities are entirely inadequate to the demand upon them. This doesn't look as if the multiplicity of electric roads is going to put the horse out of commission right away. But then, if Ponty keeps on in this way so many new railways will have to be built to take care of her vehicle output that folks won't have any use for wagons and buggies after they get them. Thus it will be seen that the "big injun" village boom is in danger of becoming a boomerang if carried to such extremes. But in either case "the horse must go."

Wyandotte contemplates the construction of a $60,000 sewer system if the necessary bonding proposition carries at the election next week, but the taxpayers may conclude not thus to be flush with their money.

A Jackson county man notified the health department at Lansing that his bees had the hives, and asked what he must do in the matter. Dr. Baker at once wrote out three pages of statistics, two of remedies and one of instructions, gave the assistant a comb, and had the assistant proceed to the bee farm at state expense, with orders to destroy the bees, unless they had been vaccinated. —Adrian Press.

We don't believe such a thing can be, even though told in the Press man's honeyed sentences. There is evidently some cell about it.

YES OR NO?

Northville People Are Respectfully Asked to Answer These Questions.

Is there anything in the evidences of one's senses? Is there anything in the testimony of one's friends? Can reliance be placed upon the statements from people we know? Are the opinions of local citizens of any greater moment than those of strangers? Would you sooner believe people living in some faraway place than citizens of our city? We think not, for home proof can be easily investigated.

Mrs. Philip Porter, retired, living on Cady street, says: "I have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills and know them to be a valuable remedy. I was troubled for over two years with a dull aching pain in my back. I could hardly stoop and get up again. I took cold it always settled in my back, causing much pain and inconvenience. Some mornings I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly get around and had to make quite an effort to dress myself. Learning about Doan's Kidney Pills I procured a box at Murdoch Bros. drug store. The benefit derived from their use causes me to value them very highly. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Sole agent for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other."

Hungary Hopes to Raise Cotton.

Hungary hopes to be able to raise cotton, although the warm season is only five months long and the plant requires seven months to ripen. The difficulty is to be overcome by special preparation of the seed and by adding ingredients to the soil.

A Doctor's Bad Plight.

"Two years ago as a result of severe cold, I lost my voice," writes Dr. M. L. Scabrought, of Helron, Ohio, "then began an obstinate cough. Every remedy known to me as a practicing physician for 35 years, failed, and I daily grew worse. Being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, I found quick relief, and for last ten days have felt better than for two years. Positively guaranteed for Throat and Lung troubles by Geo. C. Hueston 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free."

Allies in New York.

The preponderance of aliens in East Side districts, in New York city is shown by the fact that in the Eighth Assembly district, in which the total population as returned by the Federal census was 72,125, there were only 4,748 votes cast in November.

It's the little colds that grow into big colds the colds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little colds. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

The Roman stylus was often made heavy, that it might be used as a weapon. It was with such a stylus as this that Caesar defended himself when attacked by the conspirators.

Sibley is an Expert Chauffeur.

One of the most expert chauffeurs in Washington is Representative Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania. He has an automobile and each morning when congress is in session takes it up the avenue to the east front of the capitol, and then turns it over to an attendant. Mr. Sibley is so expert that he can cut figure eights and do other fancy stunts in steering the machine.

Disappointed the Father.

Lewis Nixon, the new Tammany leader, a hard worker himself, tells this story of Edison's industry: A fond parent, who was a great stickler for punctuality, took his son to visit the great electrician. Just before leaving he asked Mr. Edison to give the boy a word of advice. "My boy," said the inventor, "never look at the clock."
