Vol. XXXIII—No. 43.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, June 6, 1902.

$1.00 Per Year in Advance

WAS FITTINGLY OBSERVED HERE

APPROPRIATE EXERCISES HELD MEMORIAL DAY.

Occasion Marked by the Absence of All Kinds of Sports.

The various exercises in connection with the observance of the time set apart to the memory of the nation's departed defenders were carried out last week as planned and all were successful and interesting.

A large audience gathered at the Methodist church Sunday evening, May 25th, to listen to an appropriate sermon by Rev. W. H. Lloyd, a good representation from the local patriotic organizations being present as usual.

On Thursday afternoon the same church was crowded to the doors with patrons and friends of our schools, who were entertained by the children in a manner which justified the warm praise given both instructors and pupils, and demonstrated the fact that patriotism is in no danger of dying out here for lack of earnest and thorough instillation of patriotic principles and cultivation of love for our country and its institutions.

Friday proved to be one of the most absolutely perfect days for Memorial day ever seen in Michigan and Northville was filled with visitors from all directions. In the afternoon Hon. Samuel J. Lawrence of Glenwood delivered a stirring address to a large assemblage at the Princess rink, and some charming musical numbers were given by Prof. J. Henry Smith and a chorus of young voices he had trained for the occasion. The usual ceremonies of the G. A. R. order were carried out at the cemetery, the flowers being placed on the graves by forty-five young girls, representing the forty-five states of the Union. A generally approved feature of the day was the absence of all kinds of sports and games.

L. O. T. M. ENTERTAINMENT.

Dandy One at the Rink Wednesday Night.

If any one of the big crowd at the L. O. T. M. entertainment and supper Wednesday evening did not get the worth of the small admission fee he must have been particularly hard to suit. The supper was elegant and the program won vociferous applause from start to finish. The Farmington and Plymouth people, as well as those here, were all fine in their parts. Jolly Harry Robinson of Plymouth and our Charley Gardner were doubly endorsed and tiny June Pelton fared even better.

THE DAILY QUESTION.

—Chicago News.

The little maiden's delightful rendition of her parts caused her to be repeatedly called back and she was more charming every time.

The sofa-pillows were won by Miss Harriet Skinner and Mrs. Robert Cameron. Ina Wood carried off first honors among the little girls, having collected over $15. Irene Dixon came second with nearly seven dollars. The first boy's prize went to Harry Kator and the second to Floyd Evans. The five little girls each received a beautiful doll and the boys were given nice croquet sets.

The musicale was followed by a pleasant dance.

NORTHVILLE'S VALUATION

Little Less Than a Million Dollars This Year.

The assessed valuation of the village of Northville reaches almost to seven figures, being $998,790. The real estate values foot up $652,580 and the personal holdings are put at $346,200. The rate is .0091, which gives the taxpayer a chance to pay ninety-one cents on each $100 valuation.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all who have so fully sympathized with us in our recent bereavement, especially the Maccabees and Mr. Dubuar and his employees for their kindness and all the friends and neighbors who so kindly gave their assistance.

Mrs. Wm. Criger and Family.

PRIMARY ELECTION.

Will Be Tried on County Ticket This Fall.

The county republican committee met in Detroit Tuesday and unanimously voted to adopt Alex. McLeod's plan of primary election for the county ticket this fall. The sentiment in this county in favor of such a plan is increasing all the time and it is figured "at for the republicans to be first" adopt it will work considerably to their advantage in the election.

In consequence of the adoption of this new primary plan no delegates will be elected to the county convention, but instead a regular primary election will be held at which each voter will cast a vote direct for the man whom he favors for nomination for county office. It practically means two elections—the first to nominate and then the regular one in November to elect.

In bringing forth the superior qualifications of the various candidates, the voters will necessarily be obliged to rely greatly upon the newspapers of the county and especially those published in the localities where the voting takes place.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JUNE 6, 1902

He Popped This Question.

A young lawyer, as yet to fortune and to fame unknown, recently attended an informal party at which the guests were regaled with popcorn and lemonade. The popcorn suggested at once to his fertile brain the story of Joseph, who was warned in a dream to prepare during the seven years of plenty for those of famine to follow.

"Why did Jacob's sons go down to Egypt?" inquired the lawyer.

Nobody could guess.

"To buy pop corn."—N. Y. Times.

And It's Often Done.

"Are we all out of debt at last?" she asked.

"Thank Heaven, we are!" he answered.

"Then let's give a swell dinner and dance," she suggested.

"But that will put us in debt again," he protested.

"Of course, it will," she returned, "but what's the good of making our credit so good if we don't use it?"—Chicago Post.

Sentimental Teddy.

Little Teddy (to mamma, who is cutting pipsa's hair)—Mamma, may I take one of papa's curls?

Mamma—Yes, darling. (To papa) See what an affectionate, sentimental angel that little fellow is. Even at his tender age he knows enough to prize the mere curl of his dear papa's head.

Little Teddy (as he sees mamma trying to pick him a good specimen)—

Hurry mamma, I want you for a new tail for my horse.—N. Y. Times.

What June Said.

"June, did you say that George had no strength of character?"

"Do you mean George Strickland?"

"Yes, I mean George Strickland, the man I am going to marry."

"Well, you see dear, I had just heard that George proposed to you and what I said is that he was really a swell."—Chicago Post.

A Profound Twister.

"Dr. Dethmold, why used up by his last case?"

"I should say he pronounced the patient dead and sent for the undertaker when she came to life."

"He ought to be glad of it."

"Not at all." Having pronounced the girl dead, he considered her recovery a reflection on his skill.—Denver Times.

The Dearest to It Yet.

Blair—Where goes Smith's widow?

See how bad she looks? Poor Smith has been dead ever months now and his widow does not seem to be weeping from mourning at night? That's what I call devotion!

Syre—Devotion? Why, man, that's what I would call perpetual emotion.—Judge.

Only Natural.

Subbubs—I suppose you would scoff if I told you that a man who used to live in our town, but afterward moved to Colorado, had come back to our town in search of his health.

Cutman—No, that's reasonable. I suppose that's where he lost it.—Philadelphia Press.

A Family Affair.

De Not (at the theater)—That orchestra that plays between the acts is exasperating. It's enough to drive folks out.

Lobbinger—The leader is a brother of the man who has the saloon next door.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Height of Improvidence.

Mrs. Lakeside—Mrs. Brerly has applied for a divorce, and yet she tells me that she has no plans for marrying again, and no one in particular picked out.

Mrs. Pacinglane—Dear me! How very imprudent!—Town Topics.

Career's Courtship.

A noble youth, it is said, had been engaged to a girl, and was about to be married.

One day he was out for a walk, and saw a girl who was very beautiful.

He said to himself, "What a beautiful girl!"

He said to himself, "What a beautiful girl!"

Wanted Her to Vanish.

Conjuror (pointing to a large cabinet)—Now, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to exhibit my concluding trick. I would ask any lady in the company to step on the stage and stand in this cupboard. I will then close the door. When I open it again the lady will have vanished without leaving a trace behind.

Gentleman in Front Seat (aside to his wife)—I say, old woman, do me a favor and step up.—Tit-Bits.

Lacks Business Judgment.

"Binks isn't much of a business man, is he?"

"Well, I should say not. Why, he shows that in his family life."

"How?"

"He has accumulated a bigger stock than he can comfortably handle with the amount of capital he has."

"Stock of what?"

"Children." He has six.—Chicago Post.

In Strict Confidence.

Sweet Girl Graduate—And do you really love me?

Handsome Commercial Traveler—With my whole soul.

Sweet Girl (doubtfully)—How am I to know that you are telling the truth?

Handsome Commercial Traveler (earnestly)—I am not selling goods now.—Tit-Bits.

A Paradox.

The Critic—Why does that strapping young man wear knee trousers?

The Man Who Knows—He fills an engagement as a child actor, and is only trying to keep up appearances.

The Critic—I see. He's a walking paradox.

The Man Who Knows—How's that?

The Critic—Why, short clothes are his long suit.—N. Y. Times.

Chance for Vengeance.

Slimson (angrily)—I have sent the editor of the Hightone Magazine 42 of my poems, and he has returned every one of them.

Friend—Don't send him any more. He might get mad.

"Suppose he should? What could he do?"

"He might publish one of them under your real name."—N. Y. Weekly.

The Proof.

Then the defiant, militant spirit took possession of the devoted missonary.

"You think I'm a pudding!" he cried. "I'll show you I am not!"

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating!" rejoined the savage dandy.—Detroit Free Press.

A Minister's Joke.

"I haven't seen your face in church lately, Miss Dresser."

"Why, Mr. Baxter, I've been there every Sunday."

"M-m—maybe; but from where you sit, you know, that big hat of yours hides your face from me completely."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

His Gentle Reproach.

"Father," said the boy, I want five cents for a top."

"What in the world do you want of a top?" demanded the father.

"What do I want of a top?" repeated the boy, in surprise. "Why weren't you ever a boy, father?"—Chicago Post.

A Pecuniary Fatigue.

"Don't forget," said the wailing worker, "that money talks."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorgum, a little grimly, "but I can't help wishing that you boys would select another phonograph occasionally."—Washington Star.

Rough on Cholmondeley.

A dapper, curly fellow named Cholmondeley remarked to a man: "You are cholmondeley."

"But the word went away."

"Not a word did she say."

"And poor Cholmondeley, looked after her do moral."—Baltimore American.

Lansing, Mich., June 4.—The weekly crop bulletin issued by the state weather bureau says that frost of some severity occurred in all parts of the state during the early part of the week, but the damage was very slight. A few correspondents report some injury to strawberries, but fruit quite generally appears to have escaped injury. The weather conditions have been favorable to winter wheat and rye, oats, barley, meadows and pastures, all of which are in promising condition.

Potatoes and corn are germinating nicely but rather slowly. Sugar beets have made good growth and thinning is becoming general. Last night's session at the capitol included the annual address of the president, C. M. Burton of Detroit, and papers by Mary E. Chamberlain and J. C. Thorpe. After the session Governor and Mrs. Bliss received the pioneers in the executive parlors.

Boats Collided—Two Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., June 4.—The schooner Gleniffer, in tow of the tug Seaman, upbound and light, collided with an unknown steamer opposite the Star Island house at 10 o'clock Monday evening. The bow of the schooner was smashed in and she filled and sunk in a short time. Mrs. C. Moore, the captain's wife of St. Catharines, Ont., and Archie Mysner of Windsor, one of the crew, were drowned. They were asleep in the cabin at the time. The accident is said to have been due to the fact that the captain of the schooner sheered off to avoid the wreck of the Kittie Forbes, and thus got in the way of the steamer.

Colonel Drew Is Dead.

Royal Oak, Mich., June 4.—Col. W. H. Drew, aged eighty-four years, is dead at his home here. In 1861 he took the first company of soldiers out of Buffalo, they forming part of the Thirty-first New York volunteers. After the war Colonel Drew came to Michigan and for many years lived at Carleton, four years ago coming to Royal Oak. He is very well known throughout the country.

Both men were under the influence of liquor.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Household Cleanliness.

All housekeepers worthy the name aspire to cleanliness without stopping to think that it is of three sorts—traditional, aesthetic and sanitary. It may be remarked in passing that the last of these three is the only one that bears any intimate relation to godliness.

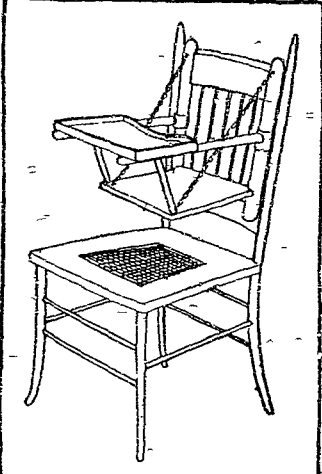

Traditional cleanliness was the strong point of the old fashioned model housekeeper. She directed her energies to ceaseless scrubbing and scourings, but was the sworn enemy of air and sun shine. She rejoiced in such abominations as feather beds, cotton stuffed coverlets, allover carpets and similar homes for enterprising disease germs, and she cared little about the location of the well provided it was handy for her persistent but misdirected cleansing operations.

Aesthetic cleanliness, as still practiced in nine houses out of ten, is even more heedless of the laws of health. It was in deference to its demands that plumbers vented wood cased water pipes and furniture dealers the folding bed and washing cabinet. All it demands is that whatever it fancies unsightly shall be covered up or put out of the way.

Now, sanitary cleanliness—it might also be called real cleanliness in distinction from the other sorts—is a very different matter. It rests on the two great sciences of physiology and bacteriology, and it cannot be successfully secured without at least a rudimentary knowledge of the principles on which it is founded. The old fashioned housekeeper hated dust because it looked untidy and provoked the adverse criticism of her sex. Her granddaughter hates it because it excites pulmonary diseases or is likely to contain stray germs infalual to health. The practical difference lies in the fact that the scientific housekeeper will make war not only against the dust in sight, but against the dust which she merely suspects of existing. She has seen through the microscope the secrets of air and water, and her standard for the purity of the household surroundings is raised by her knowledge of the invisible dangers to health and comfort.

High Chair For Baby.

One of the earliest requirements of a child is a high chair with a shelf in front to prevent a fall and serve as a tray when mealtime arrives. As a very convenient substitute for the common high chair Alfred H. Hunting of Iron Mountain, Mich., has designed the arrangement shown in the drawing. As will be seen, this device is intended for use in connection with an ordinary dining chair and does not interfere in any way with the use of the latter by grown persons, while the seat can be folded in small compass when not needed for the child. The frame consists of two vertical posts of sufficient length to extend from the upper to the lower crosspiece of the chair back, with a seat pivoted between the posts and supported at the outer ends by two chains. In addition there is a tray having extension braces at the slides for insertion in brackets on the uprights, supported by two vertical posts pivoted to the front of the seat. By detaching the braces from the brackets and allowing the tray to tilt forward and down the seat is exposed to make it an easy matter to place the child in position or lift it out. The device is suspended on the chair by means of two books, which screw into the posts, and their adjustment raises the seat to the required height. To fold the seat the tray is allowed to tilt down and the seat is lifted against the posts, when the tray is folded back on the underside of the seat, making a perfectly flat package and leaving the chair for common use.

Visible Ice.

Modern kitchens offer the very best proof that neatness and cleanliness are catered to in a thoroughly satisfactory manner nowadays. The housekeeper of the present day has no faith in things unseen. Both manufacturers and inventors find it to their interest to be governed by this new dispensation in domestic matters. Their latest achievement has done away with the old time metal water cooler by supplying the same receptacle in glass and in two sizes. The larger one is a ten gallon cylinder in the center of which is a tin cylinder for holding ice, so that the water, once filtered, cannot be contaminated by any impurities in the ice. A smaller five gallon cylinder of glass contains a glass case for the ice, which is far more attractive to the eye, but is much more liable to breakage than the metal one which is carefully handled. Both of these water coolers cost $10 each.

Saved from an Awful Fate.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa., "I was so low after six months of severe sickness, caused by Hay Fever and asthma, that few thought I could get well, but I learned of the marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, used it, and was completely cured." For desperate Throat and Lung Diseases it is the safest cure in the world, and is infallible for Coughs, Colds and Bronchial affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Hueston's Pharmacy.

Gardening Taught in Sweden.

Scientific gardening is taught in the national schools of Sweden and in the seminaries for the education of national school teachers. There is a school garden in nearly every rural school district in the kingdom. The garden is placed near the schoolhouse, and the children receive practical instruction in the cultivation of plants, berries, flowers, herbs and fruits, the management of hotbeds, greenhouses, etc.

"Antiseptic Slates" the Latest.

"Antiseptic slates" are the thing that the careful germ-fearing mother buys for her children nowadays. They are made of some light-weight material, paper-mache, perhaps, and there is no temptation to spit on this slate or even use a sponge on it. A piece of cotton flannel is all that is necessary for an eraser.—New York Press.

Can't be perfect health without pure blood? Burdock Blood Bitters makes pure blood. Tones and invigorates the whole system.

Initials of No Account.

Dr. McGee of the bureau of American ethnology was named Washington Jefferson McGee, but when he grew up he thought the first two names were somewhat magniloquent. Then he began to sign himself W. J. McGee. "What do the initials stand for?" asked a friend. "For nothing; they are what they seem," said the scientist. "Then why do you put points after them?" Dr. McGee saw the inconsistency and now signs W. J. McGee.

BUSY COURTS IN THE STATE

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN BAY CITY MANSLAUGHTER CASE.

EXCITEMENT YESTERDAY IN THE MCGARRY TRIAL.

SILENT WITNESSES IN ROOS DISBARMENT CASE.

Bay City, Mich., June 5.—Dr. R. W. Griswold, one of the joint defendants in the Bennett-Griswold manslaughter case, will take the stand during the former's trial. This was announced by the defense yesterday.

The first medical testimony introduced was given by Dr. C. T. Newkirk yesterday, who, with Dr. William Bishop, performed the midnight autopsy in Battle Creek. It developed that Dr. Haughey, the Ebersteins' family physician, had removed part of the girl's body before their arrival, but there were congested spots which indicated the use of a surgical instrument.

Mrs. Loretta McDwan, the nurse who attended the girl, unheeding the close cross-examination of the defense of the actions of the court, frantically accused Bennett and Griswold, who quivered under the tongue-lashing and denunciation, of having dragged her into a crime. She became so hysterical that she was excused, but will be recalled later on.

Mrs. A. L. Morris of Detroit, who lived near the rooms occupied by Miss Eberstein while the latter was staying in that city, testified that she came to Bay City with Miss Eberstein, who had told her of her predicament. They came here March 12 and went to Bennett's office.

Bennett Had Preacher Witness. — She said: "After a private talk with Agnes, Bennett suggested having a witness to our talk. He called Rev. C. T. Patchell, who came in a few minutes. Bennett said it would be a case of illegitimate parentage and promised to see the girl through her trouble. I told Agnes to stay here in a quiet place and I would adopt the child. Nothing was said to Bennett regarding the payment of any money."

Allegan, Mich., June 5.—There was a striking scene in the courtroom here during the McGarry trial Wednesday afternoon when the prosecution recalled Tessie Duncan, private secretary of the respondent.

Miss Duncan was shown one of her shorthand note books, which have been under expert examination, and was questioned as to the contents of one page. The witness paled perceptibly as she glanced at her old notes, then she threw the book down upon the table before her and said excitedly:

"It is nothing that is rebuttal evidence in this case."

Miss Duncan read from her notes the original letter that accompanied the Fitzgerald bid. The defense had introduced what purported to be the original letter, typewritten on a Buadly & Travis letter head, but the evidence introduced clearly rebuts the showing and tends to prove that the letter was dictated to McGarry's office.

Lansing, Mich., June 5.—The Roos disbarment case was submitted to the supreme court without argument Wednesday morning, and the court's decision will not be announced for some time. The briefs in the case will be printed and the evidence duly arranged.

The greater part of the forenoon was spent by the prosecution in the examination of the officers and stockholders of the Henderson-Ames company of Kalamazoo, which engineered the big deal by which the old state military board secured over $30,000 from a fake sale of military stores. All the witnesses were wary and each claimed his constitutional privilege, stating that he would not testify to matters which might incriminate himself.

OLD SCANDAL STIRRED UP

SPANISH WAR CLOTHING TRANS-ACTION AIDED BY WHITE.

TESTIMONY MAY CAUSE ARREST OF OTHERS FOR PERJURY.

MATTER CAME UP IN CONNECTION WITH ROOS CASE.

Lansing, Mich., June 4.—The old state military board scandal was raked up here Tuesday afternoon in a most unexpected manner, and for the first time Gen. Will White, former quartermaster-general of the state troops, made a full confession of how the famous Henderson-Ames company deal was put through.

The testimony was brought out in the hearing before the supreme court of the disbarment proceedings against C. N. Roos, attorney for the Henderson-Ames company, whose connection with the deal brought about the filing of the charges.

White said that the order to sell the military goods came, as he supposed at the time, from Governor Pinckney direct. It was delivered by Col. Eli Sutton of Detroit in person and was written on official paper, although White has since doubted the authenticity of the document.

Bickerstaff Proposed a Scheme.—The sale was duly advertised, as Attorney-General Oren said that this was the proper method of procedure, and Colonel Sutton placed the advertising.

Then Bickerstaff of Kalamazoo entered the field with a proposition that White, inspector General Mark of Allegan with Sutton and the Henderson Ames company of Kalamazoo, should organize the "Illinois Supply company" to buy goods. They would then be turned over by the Henderson-Ames company and by them resold to the state at a large profit to the stockholders.

The criminal features of the case were fully gone over, and White was assured that there was nothing illegal in the transaction, as Mr. Roos, the attorney for the Henderson-Ames company, had gone over the ground very fully and assured him that it was safe. The Illinois Supply company was accordingly formed, and the deal went through.

White's story is evidently intended as an effort to clear himself from the blame of the initiative in the deal. He claims that he was proceeding on the theory that the order to sell the goods was genuine and that he had authority to get rid of them under the law passed by the legislature at the close of the Spanish American war.

Others Told Different Stories.—While Attorney-General Oren refuses to discuss the matter, the impression prevails that General White's testimony will result in the arrest of various parties for perjury. It will be recalled that several Kalamazoo citizens told an altogether different story both to the grand jury and when sworn during the trials of Sutton and Marsh, and also that when sworn in his own behalf, Sutton, on the trial which resulted in his acquittal, denied all connection with the deal.

In continuance of the trial former Assistant Quartermaster-General Harold A. Smith was called to the stand. The prosecution endeavored to exculpate from him proof by voucher that the Illinois Supply company had paid Roos fees for services. A protest was made by Smith's attorney, R. C. O'Grady, stating that such evidence would tend to incriminate the defendant and other clients. But the court consented, and Smith produced a receipt showing payments had been made to Roos. The witness refused to answer questions as to the nature of the employment.

Director Kauffer was the next witness sworn. He identified the $27,000 draft, and admitted attending a directors' meeting at which the clothing purchase was discussed.

Witness admitted that he knew who contributed to the fund with which the $27,000 draft was purchased, saying that Woodworth, Hunter, Dayton, Roos, Pihkin and himself each contributed $5,000.

This admission, in the opinion of the attorney-general, connects Mr. Roos with the transaction. The adjournment of court for the day at this juncture prevented the further examination of Kauffer, but he will resume the stand today.

The Home of Peruna

The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

As is well known, Dr. Hartman is the president of the Hartman Sanitarium, an institution which has a department devoted exclusively to the treatment of female diseases. He is thus brought to see thousands of such cases every year.

THE GREATEST OF AMERICA'S SANITARIUMS.

The principal remedy he relies upon in such cases is Peruna, which every woman should have, who has any affection of this kind.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some kind of female disease, and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as may make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will prevail during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of her derangements.

All cases of female diseases, including menstrual irregularities, displacements, ulcerations, inflammations, discharges, irritation of the ovaries, tumors and dropsy of the abdomen, should apply at once and become registered as regular patients. All correspondence will be held strictly confidential. No testimonials of cures will be given to the public except by the express wish of the patient.

No one knows better than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, hopefully, wearily, and often silently, they eke out a miserable existence year after year.

A woman confined to the house several years with a chronic female derangement had finally given up all hope of being cured. She had tried physician after physician, and remedy after remedy, without any permanent improvement. Her treatment had cost her husband, who was a poor man, hundreds of dollars. They had been obliged to deny themselves many comforts of life in order to get money enough to pay the physicians.

Picking up the paper one day she happened to read an item which contained the news that Dr. Hartman would treat such cases free of charge by letter. She immediately wrote the doctor, describing her case, and giving him all her symptoms. She soon received a letter telling her exactly what to do and what medicines and appliances to get. She began the treatment (the principal remedy being Peruna) at once, and in a few weeks was well and strong again and able to do her own work.

Another woman who used Peruna without becoming one of Dr. Hartman's regular patients had the following experience:

ONE OF THE 200,000 WOMEN HELPED LAST YEAR.

Miss Ida Green writes from Baldwinville, Ga.:

"Peruna is wonderful and good, and a certain cure for female weakness. I have been ill and have been taking doctor's medicine for several years, and found that none did me any good.

"Every day it was a worry. I was always sick. I had come to the conclusion to give up, and not use any more medicine. I was sick indeed for the past two years. Just before I began to take Peruna I was very weak, besides I was bilious and constipated.

"I had pains in my back and side and falling of the womb, with bearing down pains.

"One day while reading my newspaper, I came across an ad., read of the book for women entitled, 'Health and Beauty,' and sent for it. Then I began to use Peruna. After using several bottles I am now thoroughly cured."

MISS IDA GREEN.

Mrs. Theresa Keller, of Fremont, Wash., writes:

"Peruna not only cured me of female trouble but prevents me catching any cold, and as long as I have a bottle in the house my family needs no doctor."

Why She Was Disappointed.

After the bishop of Liverpool preached a sermon recently an old woman was heard to say: "Never was I so disappointed. I never heard a bishop. I thought I'd hear something great. But I could understand every word he said."

A Real Friend.

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for fifteen years," says W. T. Sturdevant of Merry Oaks, N. C. "After I had tried many doctors and medicines to no avail one of my friends persuaded me to try Kodol. It gave me immediate relief. I can eat almost anything I want now and my digestion is good. I cheerfully recommend Kodol." Don't try to cure stomach trouble by dieting. That only further weakens the system. You need wholesome, strengthening food. Kodol enables you to assimilate what you eat by digesting it without the stomach's aid. Murdock Bros.

Spring Fever.

Spring fever is another name for biliousness. It is more serious than most people think. A torpid liver and inactive bowels mean a poisoned system. If neglected, serious illness may follow such symptoms. DeWitt's Little Early Risers remove all danger by stimulating the liver opening the bowels and cleansing the system of impurities. Safe pills. Never gripe. "I have taken DeWitt's Little Early Risers for torpid liver every spring for years," writes R. M. Every, Mondaville, W. Va. "They do me more good than anything I have ever tried." Murdock Bros.

Leads Them All.

"One minute Cough Cure beats all coughs, colds, croup and throat and lung troubles," says D. Scott Currin of Lozanton, Pa. One Minute Cough Cure is the only absolutely safe cough remedy which acts immediately. Mothers everywhere testify to the good it has done their little ones. Croup is so sudden in its attacks that the doctor often arrives too late. It yields at once to One Minute Cough Cure. Pleasant to take. Children like it. Sure for grip, bronchitis, coughs, Murdock Bros.

Bringing Out The Facts.

We want to make it as strong as we know how—that we will give you better Lumber at the same price, or equal grades at a lower price, than you can get elsewhere.

We believe first, in giving the best lumber that money can buy, and then in making the price as low as possible for that kind of lumber. And still we defy you to find lower prices than ours.

We carry everything in lumber, sash, doors, blinds, lime, cement, salt, coal, wood, etc.

If you leave our yard dissatisfied, it's your own fault.

Wm. Plakerton and family have leased the Greg Lapham residence on High street and will shortly move therein.

All the members of Court Northville, No. 65 F. of A. are requested to meet at the lodge rooms, Sunday, June 8, at 10:15 a. m., so as to attend memorial services at Pontiac. Badges may be obtained at Fry Bros. store. By order of the C. R.

Prof. Whitney of Ann Arbor and President Kelley of the state board of education visited the Northville schools recently and expressed their approval of methods and management in the highest terms. The school will undoubtedly be reinstated on the University list in the near future.

A. M. Harmon Post G. A. R. wishes to acknowledge through the Record the kindness of all who helped to make the Memorial day services a success. The boys of '98, the band for its fine music, the W. R. C. for flowers, and the citizens for their generous contributions.

E. G. WEBSTER, Adjt.

The Northville High school graduates a class of six this year—Misses Louise Joslin, Susie Dandison and Harriet Skinner and Messrs Paul Dubuar, Elbridge Lapham and William Sletor. The exercises will occur on the evening of June 10 and the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. W. S. Jerome on the preceding Sunday.

Northville W. R. C. voted this year to decorate the graves of members of that order on Flag day, June 14th, instead of Memorial day. The work of preparing flowers for the use of the G. A. R., and the other memorial services in connection with May 30th, makes the later date much more convenient for the ladies and flowers are also more plentiful and in greater variety at that time.

In his address at the rink May 30 Hon. S. J. Lawrence, who is an enthusiastic G. A. R. member, paid a glowing tribute to the noble work of the W. R. C. organizations, and at the close of the meeting presented the local corps with $2, the amount paid him for his expenses, while Mr. Newman of Philadelphia, also an old soldier, generously enriched the corps treasury with a gift of $5.00.

Under the persuasions of an eminently worthy successor of Will Carleton's famous "Lightning" rod dispenser, farmers in some of the road districts have again been signing petitions to persuade each other to indorse the purchase of expensive road grading machines. They get the impression from the oily tongued agent that the machines are to be paid for by work on the public highways, but they will find when they come to pay taxes that it's different. The deal is strictly a cash transaction when paying time comes, and the taxes will be heavier in those districts by just the amount paid for the machines. These deals have been variously and repeatedly sat down on, but like the irrepressible historic cat the agent "came back."

Laxative Promo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

Judging from the applause which interrupted Miss Wilson in the midst of her impersonations at the band benefit entertainment Tuesday evening the lady "got her audience" completely. Her marvelous flexibility of voice, gesture and facial expression and her skill in "make up" and interpretation of human nature makes her for the time absolutely each character she portrays. Her gift is nothing short of genius.

School Notes.

[By the Superintendent.]
Motto: "Cultivate with assiduity, that which will brighten your nature, enrich your life, and establish your character."—Selected.

The senior class, composed of Susie Dandison, Paul Dubuar, Louise Joslyn, Elbridge Lapham, Harriett Skinner and William Sletor, came out with some beautiful class plays last Monday.

The lecture on "Wireless Telegraphy" last Monday evening was not a success when considered from a financial point of view, but from the point of interest, entertainment and information it was a gold mine and deserved better patronage.

Mabel Stark, Jessie Wilkinson, Leah Judson, Thomas Carrington, and Mark Risner recently received diplomas from the County Commission on account of successfully passing the eighth grade county examination. Ten sets of papers were sent in from here.

We believe in acknowledging a good thing when we have it and on this account want to say that we have one of the finest janitors it has ever been our pleasure to work with. Besides the general work of keeping the yard, buildings, school furniture, etc neat and tidy he finds time to scour all drinking cups every few days, a very necessary and sanitary attention that nine schools out of ten don't know from one term or year's beginning to its close.

P. P. C.

They do say there are some women who are expert at ping pong, but yet do not shine when it comes to observing social amenities. In proof of this, a story is going the rounds of one such who had a "p. p. c." card from a friend better versed in matters of etiquette. Whereupon the ping pong player waxed wroth, as she believed her friend had taken this way to sign herself "ping pong champion."

Americans Are Encouraged.

The duke of Argyll has placed with a New York real estate firm the sole agency on this side of the ocean for the leasing of his castle at Inverary, in Argyllshire, Scotland, and for the sale of Tiree island, off the coast of Scotland, near the isles of Mull and Jona. Thus is the American invader invited and encouraged to go and take the best in Britain—palace, deer park, game and fishing.

Whitney's Opera House—Detroit.

Patrons of the Whitney Opera House are to have a chance for the first time in Detroit to see the sensational melodrama, "A Man of Mystery." The leading character is a man who has the power to hypnotize and which he uses to accomplish some of his fiendish acts. He is what may be termed a gentlemanly burglar and instead of breaking into houses and stores to secure valuables he merely shakes them by the hand and they are at once under his control. Matinee each day except Wednesday.

Lyceum Theatre—Detroit.

"Rosedale," that famous play in which Lester Wallack starred for many years and in which the late Lawrence Barrett was seen in Detroit shortly before his death, has been selected for production by the Pike Theatre company at the Lyceum during the week of June 8th. There are many varieties of character in "Rosedale," the various shades of nature being drawn by a master hand. The stirring rescue of the little lord from the gypsies, the chase of the lancers at the raging cry, "Up, Boys!" and at "oh," is remembered by all who have seen the play before. But a few weeks remain of the Pike company's Detroit season and "Rosedale" promises to be one of the most important of them. Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Special summer prices prevail.

A Remarkable Record.

Modern steamship travel is so safe that the English government has not lost or injured in transit a single man of the 250,000 sent to South Africa.

We hear that complaint frequently now. It is one easy to believe as a rule, for the speaker generally shows that his rest has been badly broken.

Of course, it is always natural for us to tell of the value of White Pine, and we can recommend this preparation with confidence. We have made and sold it for five years, and have scores of people in the neighborhood who are willing to say a good word for it as the opportunity arises.

White Pine soothes the inflamed bronchial passages and quickly quiets the annoying hack. It's good for a fresh cold or a chronic one; good for the little fellow who coughs and chokes and gasps, good for his father if he has a cough. Two sizes, 25c and 50c.

MUSLIN UNDERWEAR NOW.

Carpets and Rugs.

William H. Elliott Co.

Our Annual June Sale of Nice Muslin Underwear commenced Monday. If you will allow us a few moments of your time we can easily demonstrate the superiority of our class of Underwear. Garments customarily offered at sales the country over are manufactured for that purpose; poor cloth, badly sewn, scant material; but overlaid with a superabundance of flashy trimmings, cheap lace or sleazy embroidery, they appear bargains if not critically examined. Our June Sale Garments are taken right from our stock of the best goods possible to buy—the sort that is building up for us a most substantial business. Larger quantities were ordered to take care of the rush at this sale. We call particular attention to the nice cloth, neat sewing, fine trimmings of lace and embroidery or hemstitching, and the amplitude of each garment (no stinting of material ever); the prices are as low as inferior “garments of the sales sort” are offered. We believe it is really to your interest to look through our department. No irritating urging to buy, either.

DAINTY CHEMISES—No Skirt style, trimmed properly with good lace or Hemstitching. 25c, 39c, 50c, 75c, 89c to $5 each. With Skirt, beautifully made, trimmings of quality. 75c, $1, $1.50, $1.69 to $5 each.

CHARMING CORSET COVERS, very nicely trimmed with lace insertion, beading and ribbon, or hemstitched and lace, good cloth, neat styles. 25c each.

Large assortment of tight-fitting Lace and Embroidered Covers. 25c each.

Plain Corset Covers, nice material and right shapes. 2 for 25c.

Better ones at 19c each.

Corset Covers from 2 for 25c up to the exquisite article for bridal wardrobes at $5.00 each.

Ruffled Muslin Drawers—well made. 19c pair.

BRIT IN THE BEARINGS

Low Rheumatism Affects the Human Mechanism.

Grit in the bearings—every engineer knows how important it is to guard against this trouble—to get rid of it, if it comes; so too every one who has to do with machinery of any kind. The human body is a more marvelous piece of mechanism than any made by hand. Nature does a deal to keep a body in good repair—in good running order. But people make mistakes—some through carelessness, some through ignorance. Nature sometimes needs help.

Uric acid causes Rheumatism—deposited in the muscles and joints, it is like grit in the bearings—hinders action, makes pain and trouble. Every sufferer knows how much.

Athrophoros dissolves the Uric acid—the body to get rid of it—helps to the restoration of health and energy. It does this with certainty—proven by the experience of many.

Exchange comfort for pain. If your leg doesn't keep it send $1 for a bottle to The Athrophoros Co., New York, Conn. It will show you how to rid your bearings of the grit.

Johnson, Phoebe Goodell, Jas. Erwin Jay and Loren Leavenworth have been present every day during the year. Whole number of pupils enrolled during the year, 53.

Oakland county has considerably more than the usual number of political aspirants this year. Geo. A. Brown would like to be re-nominated as county clerk, K. P. Rockwell and F. D. Covert are prosecuting attorney possibilities, and no less than half a dozen men are willing to take the nomination for the office of register of deeds—Frank B. Tanner of Novi, Messrs. Betzing and Brondige of Pontiac, Frank Vowles of Lyon, C. H. Glaspe of Oxford and J. F. Rundle of Birmingham. Jud Sibley of Commerce and Theo. Collier of Pontiac want the custody of the county money, and ex-Sheriff Belt and George Greer would like to see their names on the ballot for sheriff. Rep. L. R. Waterbury is after the state senatorship, and George Cowden would be willing to succeed him in the house, while Rep. Seeley would be willing to accept a re-nomination.

ANSWER IT HONESTLY.

Are the Statements of Northville Citizens Not More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers?

This is a vital question. It is fraught with interest to Northville. It permits of only one answer. A Northville citizen speaks here. A citizen's statement is reliable. An utter stranger's doubtful. Home proof is the best proof.

Dr. Crumpton, Vet. Surgeon, says: "For several months Mrs. Crumpton had a dull aching pain in her back and up her shoulders, which at times was quite severe. Hearing so many people praising Doan's Kidney Pills I decided to get her a box and procure them at Murdock Bros' drug store. I trusted that the remedy would do her some good, but I was not prepared for the great benefit which it soon brought. It was only a short time until the pain or aching went away. Whenever I hear anyone complaining of backache or kidney complaint, I invariably advise them to procure Doan's Kidney Pills take a course of treatment and they need not be dubious about the results."

Hard to Tell Chinaman's Age.

How old is a Chinaman? Can you give a good guess? It is harder to tell than the age of a negro. The Chinaman has no beard and his hair is of a jet and glossy blackness, which turns gray only at an extreme age, when a Caucasian head would be either snow white or bald.

Then, again, the Chinese have the most perfect nervous system of any people in the world and do not wrinkle up with age. They can stand any amount of opium smoking without material injury that would send a white man to his grave or an insane asylum. So you have little to go by.

A Chinaman will look 30 when he is 20 and when he is 50. If you ask him his age he will place it at least 10 years ahead, for he holds old age to be honorable, and among his people he will be respected and looked up to by all his juniors.—Washington Post.

Gas Jet For "Jays".

Hotelkeepers who offer accommodations of the kind preferred by casual visitors from the country will learn with pleasure that a burner is about to be put on the market which the inexperienced lodger may blow out if he wants to without any ill effects. Its parts are so arranged that to afford a gas passage a certain amount of heat must be applied to expand them. While thus expanded they offer a gasway sufficient for illumination. When the flame is extinguished the rapid cooling of the parts causes them to contract, which closes the gasway in less than one minute. What little gas escapes in the interval of cooling, which is facilitated by the shape of the parts and their thickness, is not enough to do harm to life or health.

THE STRANGER AND THE PRINCESS

BY SEWARD W. HOPKINS

Copyright, 1902, by Seward W. Hopkins.

At a nod from the chief another detective stood out.

"But little has been discovered," he said.

"As was learned, however, that M. de Bullion had been in the house some time. The watchman he employed is a man of no intelligence and is now little more than a gibbering idiot. He cries continually for his leather jacket. He cares more for the leather jacket than for M. de Bullion."

"Well, but the murder?"

"That's all. M. de Bullion is dead. There is a dispute as to when he died and what killed him."

"Come, now, another mystery? What is this dispute?"

"Well, when the coroner examined the body he declared that the man had been dead but a short time. 'It was strange,' he remarked, 'that the blow, or wound, did not bleed more. A surgeon, however, whom he called in to assist him declares that M. de Bullion was not murdered at all.'"

"Oh, come now! The case is becoming a monster of a hundred claws and neither head nor tail."

"I am giving you the declaration of the surgeon. He will appear himself to corroborate it. He declares that M. de Bullion died of heart disease. The expression of pain on his face, the position as if writhing in agony, all go, so the surgeon declares, to prove that M. de Bullion died of a severe heart trouble. He was dead when the robber plunged the knife into him, probably thinking he was asleep. That would account for the wound not bleeding."

"But the prisoner's face and hands were covered with blood when he was arrested," said the chief of detectives.

"Well, it was not the blood of M. de Bullion, for that gentleman, according to the surgeon, shed none."

"Well, this case will drive me to an insane asylum," said M. Senecal. "The investigation must now stand adjourned until we recover the prisoner. Hello! What's that thing?"

"That is the leather jacket the prisoner borrowed of the watchman of M. de Bullion."

"Let me examine it."

The leather jacket was handed to the magistrate. He examined it with more than ordinary curiosity. It was the only thing connected with the great case remaining in the hands of the police.

"Hello! Here!" he said. "Here is a lump."

He ripped open the lump. It proved to be a wad of bank notes.

"No wonder the watchman mourns for his leather jacket," said the magistrate. "Take his savings to him, and perhaps his mind will clear and help us."

Captain Durvally was about to leave.

"Give our respects to his-to the count," said M. Senecal, "and tell him we will push the case with the utmost vigor."

"I believe it," replied Rosso, "and I think I may take a hand in it myself. I am very eager to meet this remarkable murderer and the courageous scoundrel who takes my name to assist that murderer to escape."

He was about to leave when a commotion held him back. An agent of police hurriedly entered and bawled out in excited and nervous tones to M. Senecal and the chief of detectives.

"Another murder in the Rue de Mont-Rouge! The body of M. Monroe, the rich American, has just been found in a heap of refuse back of the stables of a brewery!"

And silence, the silence of utter, hopeless dismay, fell upon the group.

Paris now had cause enough to go insane.

CHAPTER VI.

A BOLD PLOT.

THE police of Paris at last believed that a plot of some kind existed, and measures were taken to protect the Prince of Deneslia and his household while they should remain in Paris. The police also endeavored to unravel the mystery of Buckford's disappearance and the death of Monroe.

The solution of this mystery was found so late that in its own time it would be of no use to us, so well did the rascals of the Rue de Mont-Rouge cover their tracks.

It will therefore be necessary to use the privilege of the historian and relate in this chapter what happened to Buckford Wallace and how the American, Monroe, met his untimely death.

There never was a dandy in Paris or out of it more ready for an adventure than Bob Monroe. Circumstances had led him to Paris while young. He was rich, well born and well liked. He married a Parisian woman and set up an elegant home in a quarter much frequented by Americans.

Marriage, of course, put an end to most of Bob's adventures. There was no more hunting big game in Asia, no potting African chiefs in the jungle, no tiger bating, no shooting the rapids in canoes, no crossing the Mediterranean in balloons.

But the old spirit was still in him, and in a good cause it was sure to come to the front.

And he thought he had found a good cause.

Monroe was sitting at his favorite window in the American club on the day he disappeared. A visitor was announced, and there came to him a well dressed man of respectable appearance and apparently a Parisian.

"Pardon, monsieur," said this man. "Have I the extreme pleasure of meeting M. Monroe, the American?"

"That is my name," said Monroe. "What can I do for you?"

"Nothing for me, monsieur. I have come not to ask a favor, but to confer one."

"Good," said Monroe. "That will be a new experience. What are you about to do for me?"

"Monsieur sees fit to jest. But does monsieur read the police news of Paris?"

"No, I fear I am not up to such lofty literature."

"Then monsieur does not know that his friend and compatriot is under arrest on the charge of murder?"

Monroe became interested at once.

"My friend and fellow countryman? Whom do you mean?"

"The young artist. Is his name not M. Wallace?"

"Buckford Wallace arrested for murder! Impossible. He is as harmless as a kitten."

"True, I did not say he did the murder, monsieur. I said he was under arrest. Unfortunately, the circumstances do point to him as the culprit. He was taken in the very house with the murdered man. The police are desperate and will undoubtedly fasten the crime upon him. An innocent man, monsieur, will die for a crime another committed."

"Heavens! I will go to him at once. Has he counsel? Has the American minister been notified? When was he taken?"

"Be calm, monsieur. The American minister can do nothing. Pardon me for malintending as a secret my own

There came to him a well dressed man, apparently a Parisian.

Identity. I am closely connected with the police. A hint of what I am doing would result in my being found dead some morning in my bed. I came to you, monsieur, because I knew you were brave, shrewd and rich. Upon you, and you alone, depends the safety of this man."

"How? I don't see why the representative of our country could not set him free at once."

"The visitor laughed.

"You know, monsieur, that the course of law in Paris is slow and full of intricacies. An appeal to your minister would bring about a long diplomatic controversy. While that is going on poor M. Wallace will be found in his cell some morning dead. People are often found dead in Paris, monsieur."

"Heavens! You mean the police would murder him and call it suicide?"

"Yes, monsieur, to end the matter and prove his guilt."

Monroe spent a moment in deep study.

"I see you mean that I shall connive at his escape in some way. Where is he?"

"In the depot for the detention of accused criminals."

"Horror! I could never get him out of there."

"But I think if monsieur will follow what I tell him he can do it very easily."

"Well, proceed. Be as quick as you can. I am burning with impatience to go to the poor fellow."

"You shall, monsieur, and when you go you shall take him liberty."

The visitor then proceeded to give a clear story of the crime of which Buckford was charged. It is not necessary to repeat it here. Suffice to say that it was in most respects, true.

"Now, monsieur you will of course be surprised to know that your friend was in this disreputable quarter. He went there, monsieur, from the purest motives. He had overheard in some way a plot to kill a certain prince who is now in Paris incognito. The real title of this prince is the Prince of Deneslia, a small country in eastern Europe. The prince is now in Paris under the name of Count Rockmillere. He has with him his wife, Princess Margaret, and his sister, the Princess Marie Alexia."

"It was in the service of this family, monsieur, that your friend became involved in these difficulties. Now the Prince of Deneslia is really a proud and cold hearted man, who cares nothing for the unfortunates he may cause to lose life or liberty. An appeal to him would be useless. The police, anxious and eager to show their alertness, will hurry the execution of your friend. They will stop his mouth so that the story of the plot they failed to unravel will not reach the prince. Nothing will save him, unless you are ready to accept the one chance open to you. It requires courage, skill, and a disregard for French law."

"I hold all law in respect," replied Monroe, "but this is something very disturbing. It is not law, but the abuse of law that we are talking of."

"Exactly!" said the visitor with delight. "I have met M. Wallace a few times, and have followed this case carefully. I am convinced that he is no more guilty of the murder of M. de Bullion than I am. The unfortunate part of it is that we can prove nothing. The pocketbook is condemnatory evidence. He was taken in the very house. You see, monsieur?"

Monroe shuddered.

"Tell me what to do. If I can save him, I will."

"Good. It so happens that the magistrate who has charge of the case is M. Senecal, a good and worthy man. He is not prejudiced or cruel. There is connected with the household of the Prince of Deneslia a young man about your age, height and appearance. His name is Bosso Durvally. He fills the position in Deneslia of the captain of the prince's guard. In Paris he is a sort of high body servant to protect the prince. He has charge really of the entire establishment."

"Now, it is most fortunate that I am personally acquainted with the coachman of the prince—a worthy German, somewhat stolid and not overbright. It will be an easy matter for you to have the carriage of the prince at your service in an hour."

"My plan is this: You, monsieur, will need two disguises. You will need a footman; take your own. You will then need a disguise exactly like the livery worn by your footman."

"You will also need a disguise including heavy whiskers and false hair."

"Having acquired these, you go in the equipage of the prince to the house of the magistrate, M. Senecal. You will present this card, which I was fortunate enough to obtain, bearing the name of Bosso Durvally. You see it bears the name simply and no hint of his position. It is used perhaps in his gallantries in Paris. M. Senecal will undoubtedly be delighted at the visit. He will do anything for the prince. Tell him any story you make up, keeping to the facts I have stated. Ask him for an order admitting you to the jail to see M. Wallace privately. He will give it to you to favor the prince."

"Having received the order, drive to the jail. On the way put on the footman's disguise and over that the other. You will be admitted to the cell of the prisoner. Tell him what awful danger he is in. Give him the outer disguise. Get him into the corridor. He then becomes sick. You, his footman, assist him to the waiting carriage. The coachman, who will be posted beforehand will take you to a place where the prisoner can be hidden among friends till he can be got out of Paris. Is the plan clear to you, monsieur?"

"It is a bold one. I doubt if it succeeds. Prisoners cannot be taken out of the Palais de Justice at will."

"The Palais de Justice is as easily robbed of its victims as any other temple of oppression. I am sure the plan will succeed. Still, if monsieur fears to try it, then let the poor young man die a victim to the inefficiency of the Paris police."

Monroe's heart beat rapidly. He had never indulged in pranks that involved breaking laws. But here was a case which appealed to his sense of justice, and fair play. If he could rescue his young countryman, then there could be time to employ detectives, trace the real murderer, and clear Wallace from suspicion. But to leave him there to die as this police agent said—it was horrible.

He sent for the papers of the last two days. He read the details of the arrest. He saw in every article a rabid hatred of the young prisoner because he was an American. At that time the spirit of enmity toward Americans was high in Paris. America had had the effrontery to thrash a sordid and racially nation having Latin blood. Therefore all Latin blood boiled at America.

Monroe made his decision.

"If I do not act, they will kill him in his cell, even if they have proof that he did not commit the murder," he said. "I will do what I can."

The police agent bowed. He wrote on a small piece of paper.

"Take that, monsieur. It is the address to which the German coachman will bring you."

Monroe took the paper, glanced at it and put it in his pocket.

"There is just one thing to be feared," he said. "Wallace is a peculiar chap. He is the soul of honor. Suppose he will not try to escape."

"There are such people, monsieur. They hold their faith with their enemies at the cost of their lives. I had just such a case once in which I played the role of rescuer. A young officer had been taken prisoner. He had given his parole not to escape. I found an opportunity for him to go and urged him. He refused because he had given his word. What did I do? Leave him to a cruel fate at the hand of a treacherous foe? No; I drugged him and carried him away by force. He was innocent, monsieur, and he was saved."

"I will think of it. When I go into a thing, I go in to win."

"Good! I will now hasten to do my part, hoping that monsieur will find no difficulty in doing his."

"I thank you. I would be pleased to know your name. I must find a way to reward so true a friend."

"Ah, not now, monsieur! I am, as I said, of the police. But if monsieur brings his friend to the address I gave him he will see me there, and then we will exchange confidences."

He was gone.

Monroe, feeling not a bad and talking of nothing but the rescue of Buckford Wallace from a certain death, hurried about making sundry arrangements.

He went to his house for a footman. This footman received strict orders, and the strictest of all was that, no matter what happened to Monroe, his mouth was to be kept sealed. Not a word of the escape of the prisoner was to leak out.

The footman's work consisted simply in sitting with the coachman, doing the usual footman's duty till the jail was reached and then taking himself off out of sight and going home alone.

At 2 in the afternoon the splendid equipage of the prince stopped at the club for Monroe. The footman, who had been waiting, informed Monroe and the American managed to make his exit without exciting comment.

We have already seen the result of the visit to M. Senecal. We know that Monroe managed to gain admittance to the jail.

Now let us see what happened there. When the black bearded man entered the cell, Buckford was sitting disconsolately on a wooden stool thinking of the perilous situation he was in and the difficulty of getting out of it. He looked up, saw the bearded man and supposed he was the investigating magistrate.

When the door was closed and the attendant out of hearing, Monroe tore the beard from his face.

"Hello, old fellow! Don't you know me?" he asked.

"Bob Monroe!" exclaimed Wallace. "I did not think—but this disguise—what does it mean?"

"They do not allow outsiders to visit prisoners who are charged with murder till after the investigation. But a very kind officer of police came to me this morning and put me on to a scheme to get you out of here. It seems that the police are determined to fasten this crime on you, no matter who did it. The idea is that if you are fortunate enough to show proof at the investigation that you perhaps did not do it they will murder you in the Conciergerie before the trial. Poison can be put in your food."

"Heavens! Do they do such things in Paris?"

"Queer things happen in Paris. That is no worse than many I have known. Now the thing is to get out."

"Out! You mean to escape from the Palais de Justice?"

"Certainly. Would you remain here and be killed?"

"But I want to establish my innocence. What will become of me if I escape and so appear to be guilty?"

"They will not give you a chance to prove your innocence. They will kill you. If you are out, you can employ detectives and thus run down the real murderer."

"But I can't. I have no money. Did you not know that my uncle died and left me nothing? I am as poor as any crossing sweeper."

"Never mind. Come with me, and I will furnish the money to ferret out the crime and also to start you again to prosperity. You are young, and can make your way."

"And you really think they intend to kill me?"

"If one of the police say so, I do not doubt it. He must have been a friend. An enemy would simply let you go to your execution."

To the cool, disinterested mind there were plenty of flaws in this reasoning, but to these two, hot with fear and indignation, with the awful realities making more vivid the dread possibilities, there was nothing unreasonable in it at all.

Buckford Wallace loved life better than he did the popular idea of justice in France.

At 22 one takes almost any chance.

It did not look to either of them discreditable to effect this escape, knowing the prisoner to be innocent and yet in danger.

I am not sure it was dishonorable. I am sure that under the same circumstances I would have done the same thing—provided I had the skill and courage.

The exchange of disguise was effected. Wallace staggered from the cell and fell. The footman tied to raise him. The attendant came, and the unconscious man was carried to the waiting carriage.

Monroe had said "Home" to the coachman. The German had already received his instructions. It was not home the American meant, but the address given by the friendly police agent.

It took an hour to reach it. The house was an ordinary stone building in the street called Rue de Creuse. This was the street on which Buckford had made his exit from the cellar and the street on which the house of M. de Bullion faced.

It was not, however, in the immediate vicinity of the former scenes of Buckford's adventures.

The spring crop of skeletons is still coming up. The latest one reported was plowed up at Morenci the other day and some people are thoroughly convinced that the grave of Bonaparte has at last been discovered for sure.

Things are happening made lively and interesting for Pontiac pedestrians by a playful little night habit some of the people out there have of getting up impromptu horse races on the city thoroughfares. Three rigs racing on a not very wide street require about all the room there is and naturally the citizens think the city fathers should read up on the ordinances a little.

A very untoward and peculiar accident recently occurred to an Ypsilanti young man. He scratched his foot while in a bath tub and the dye from his stocking caused blood poisoning. He will recover, but he so nearly died that he can't even bear to think of a dyed stocking. No man knows when he is safe. There is danger even in washing the feet. Truly these are perilous times.

Pontiac is in the throes of a rummage sale, and if any unfortunate husband throws down any of his wearing apparel for a few minutes his wife throws the garment into the rummage collection, and then the man throws a fit because he can't find anything to wear. Then the partner of his throws out insinuations about the unreasonable nature of men and we throw a veil over the remainder of the scene. Such is life, and such are rummage sales.

The Birmingham eccentric man had a great disappointment the other day and has lost authority on the uncertainty of human hope ever since. A thoughtful and considerate friend placed of exhibition in the eccentric office a great big hen's egg, and the thirty editor resolved within his secret soul to utilize that exhibit as an item in his inside department before it should become a back number, but alas! history repeated itself and "not all the king's horses and all the king's men could put Humpty Dumpty together again." It was a case of pi, but it wasn't pie for a hungry editor either, if it was for the dog that happened along just in time to dispose of the remains.

Graphophone Record of a Baby's Voice.

Fond mothers and fathers who have recorded baby's first sayings in a book, accompanying them by photographs, take a periodical, have a new ally in the graphophone. Heretofore the diary of infantile years has had, of necessity, to delay its beginning until baby could talk, and many of the soft "coos" and "goo-goo" so dear to a mother's heart have been only a memory. The proprietor of an Omaha music store has, however, bettered the written diary of his little daughter's sayings by preserving on graphophone records her earliest efforts to express her emotions. From infancy to her fourth birthday (which occurred very recently) she has periodically made records and the idea bids fair to become a fad in Omaha.
